A dispatch from Stockholm, meanwhile, gave some evidence that the Nazi troubles in the Adriatic area were not confined to clashes with partisans and the threat of sullen Italians. A Zurich report to the Aftontidningen said that German Major-Gen. Brauner, commander of the port city of Pola, had been cited for court-martial.

Germans Reported Shifting Troops To Counter Invasion

Stockholm Tells Of Moves From Norway And Finland And Shortening Of Russian Front

[By the Associated Press]

Stockholm, Sept. 18—Germany is weakening her military position in Norway and Finland and retreating all along the line from the Smolensk area to the Sea of Azov to establish a shorter Russian front in a frantic shifting of troops to meet anticipated new Allied invasion blows, reports reaching Stockholm said today.

From 20,000 to 40,000 German troops have been removed from Norway in the last month, and thousands—one unconfirmed report said two divisions—have been withdrawn from Finland since September. 1.

Mountain Troops To Balkans

Most soldiers trained in mountain operations were said to have been transferred to the Balkans, where the Nazis' general staff faces a difficult task in replacing twenty-nine Italian garrison divisions.

Swedish correspondents reported from Berlin that elite German troops have been moved from the Russian front to reinforce troops under Field Marshal General Albert Kesselring and Field Marshal Erwin Rommel in Italy.

German militarists have not acknowledged the withdrawals from Norway and Finland, although troop movements have been known to Scandinavian observers for weeks.

Quote Commentators

Berlin dispatches to the Swedish press said German commentators now admitted it was essential for Germany to save soldiers to fight on the Russian front as well as to be ready to meet offensives from other directions.

Where the main German defensive line would be was a military secret, but Swedish correspondents pointed out that if the Russians were able to continue their present drive they would have as much to say about it as the Nazis.

Russia Greater Threat

The Stockholms-Tidningen correspondent wrote:

"The tone of articles published in the last few days by German military writers clearly proves that developments on the Russian front are causing so much worry that it would be senseless and even dangerous to minimize their worth to the German public.

"Italian events are not nearly so threatening to Germany's safety—at least for some time."

The Social Demokraten quoted German military experts as saying that Russian capture of Novorossisk was designed to establish a naval operational base for invasion of the Crimea.

May Revive Plan

"The originial Russian plan of the first winter, which was to roll up the German front across the Perekop isthmus after landing troops in the Crimea, seems to have been revived," this newspaper reported.

There are no indications the Germans intend to evacuate either Norway or Finland. Rather the signs are that the 200,000 troops in Norway and 80,000 in Finland two months ago are only being "thinned" and the forces left would oppose any Allied thrust into the north.

While the extent of withdrawals from Finland still has not been determined definitely, Finnish military authorities remobilized hundreds of men who had been put on inactive service temporarily.

The Germans continued their efforts in Denmark to relieve themselves of a military dictatorship so they could free soldiers who now must be held in readiness for police duty.

BLOODY FIGHTING CONTINUES TO RAGE IN TURIN STREETS

Swedish Report Says Pope Has Twice Refused to See Kesselring.

Stockholm, Sept. 18 (A. P.).—Bloody street fighting, in which a great number of Italians and Germans have been killed, continues in the streets of Turin, in northern Italy, Swiss dispatches to the newspaper Svenska Dagbladet said today.

The fight against the Germans was being carried on by the inhabitants, who had organized a home guard, armed with weapons given them by the commander of the Italian garrison following Italy's capitulation, the dispatches said.

Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, commander in chief of German forces in Northern Italy, was reported to have established headquarters at the Hotel Diana in Milan, where German armored cars patrolled the streets to prevent the Italians from organizing resistance.

[Units of Adolf Hitler's personal S. S. Guard have arrived in Milan from France, the British radio said today, quoting the German news agency Transocean. "According to the Italian paper, Libera Stampa, which is published in Switzerland, the Italians are still fighting the Germans for the possession of Milan and Turin," added the broadcast recorded by CBS.]

The Stockholm newspaper Social Demokraten said that German treatment of the Italian people had brought a strong protest from the Pope, who it said was held a virtual prisoner in the Vatican. The newspaper said the Pope had twiced refused to see Field Marshal Albert Kesselring, whose Nazi troops forced Rome's capitulation, insisting that the Germans must evacuate the Italian capital before he holds any discussions with them.

French Sabotage Active.

Berne, Sept. 18 (A. P.).—French underground forces, increasing their attacks against railroads in southern France over which the Nazis are pouring supplies and reinforcements into Italy are causing grave delays in German troop movements, it was reported today.

A dispatch from France to the newspaper La Suisse at Geneva said that a derailment at Evires tied up railroad traffic for more than three months.

The rail line from Bellegarde to Bouveret, only recently re-established with the construction of the Longeray viaduct, has been dynamited again, the dispatch said.

Nightly attacks on railroads led to the distribution of leaflets at Saone-et-Loire and elsewhere advising the inhabitants to stay at home, as "you cannot risk journeying because of the strict orders given to French patriots to sabotage the railroads."

Italians Tear Up Track.

The dispatch said that Italian troops had also taken a hand in recent sabotage, tearing up almost 300 feet of tracks on the Mont Cenis line in Italy and obstructing the Mont Cenis tunnel by derailing freight cars in it. Nazi authorities are still trying to open the route, it added.

The Journal de Geneve said that hundreds of persons, including a station master, had been arrested by the Nazis in Haute-Savoie department in an attempt to check the attacks.

La Suisse said also that a sharp encounter between Italian troops and Germans resulted when the Nazis disarmed the Italians before the French population of Savoie. Words led to blows and shootings, the newspaper said, before the garrison of 650 troops was captured. Fifty Germans were wounded.

A dispatch from Chiasso, at the Swiss-Italian border, said that Count Calvi di Bergola, the eldest son of Gen. Calvi di Bergola, commander of the Rome garrison under Nazi occupation, had arrived in Switzerland. The General's wife, the Italian Princess Yolanda, and their children were already in Switzerland.

Hungary Faces Crisis as Nazis Demand Troops

More Arrests Reported as Peace Demands Grow; Cabinet Called Confused

BERN, Switzerland, Sept. 18 (AP).—Hungary, caught between increased pressure from Germany for additional war man power and a desire for peace, was reported in the throes of an intense political and parliamentary crisis today.

The Budapest correspondent of the "Gazette de Lausanne" said that military decisions vital to Hungary had become a "burning actuality" and that secret moves, made in conjunction with Berlin, could cause important changes in the future of the nervous Axis satellite.

There has been a strong official attempt to curb a growing tendency for withdrawing from the war.

Additional arrests of leaders of the Hungarian "Peace party" for their "pacifist attitude and for spreading alarming rumors" have been officially announced, according to the correspondent.

A Budapest dispatch to "La Suisse de Geneve" said: "The profound impression of public opinion by events in Italy is far from calming," and asserted that the Hungarian Cabinet "remains confused."

"La Suisse" said "important conversations" were in progress between Hungary and her allies on the question of fresh Hungarian divisions being sent to the battle front. Germany's energetic action in Italy has induced responsible Hungarians to proceed "more prudently," the newspaper added.

RED ARMY NEAR WHITE RUSSIA IN BRYANSK ZONE

Important Rail Network Is Cleared of Foe by Soviet Gains.

OREL PROVINCE ALL OCCUPIED

Nazis Retreat on Wide Front—Pile Up Defenses to Hold Key Bases on Dnieper.

Moscow, Sept. 18 (A. P.).—Military dispatches reported today that the Red Army had reached the gates of White Russia after crossing the Desna and capturing the key central fortress of Bryansk.

One of Russia's most important networks of communications, including the central stretch of the Moscow-Kiev railroad and the junction leading to White Russia, was cleared by the Red Army advance.

[The German communique broadcast by Berlin and recorded by the Associated Press said that strong rainfall "which lasted for days" impaired operations in the southern sector of the eastern front. It claimed that Red Army attempts to "thrust into movements of detaching carried out by our troops" were repulsed in bitter struggles. In the area west of Vyazma, the communique said, attempts of Soviet forces to break through failed, and seventy Russian tanks were disabled.]

A Pravda dispatch said reoccupation of Orel Province virtually was completed after the taking of Bryansk. White Russia borders this province on the west and includes the important strategic centers of Gomel, Mogilev and Vitebsk and the regional capital of Minsk. White Russia lies about seventy miles west of Bryansk at the nearest point.

Nazi Tank Corps Beaten.

A part of Col.-Gen. Heinz Guderian's German second tank army was disclosed to have been beaten in the battle of Bryansk in some of the hardest fighting of the summer campaign. Pravda said the second squadron of this veteran armored force, now commanded by Marshal Walter von Modl, had its base at Bryansk.

Adolf Hitler's battered German legions, hurled back on every sector of the eastern front and smarting from loss of the key central fortress of Bryansk, were reported piling new defenses before their Dnieper River bases of Kiev and Smolensk.

Punch drunk from the incessant hammer blows of the hard-slugging Russians, the Nazi lines before the Dnieper barrier were said to be curling up everywhere.

From north of Bryansk down through the Central anl southern Ukraine to the shores of the sea of Azov and the Crimean gateway, the Germans were in retreat, leaving behind stores of war gear.

The Dnieper line was in immediate danger at two main points. Before Kiev, Red Army advance columns had driven a wedge to within fifty miles of the river, while far to the south another Soviet spearhead had captured the Azov port of Ossipenko and smashed to a point thirty-five miles from the lower reaches of the river, the daily Soviet communique reported.

[Russian troops, under the command of Gen. Rokossovsky, are now less than forty-five miles from Kiev, and have broadened the wedge driven into the German fortified zone protecting the Ukrainian capital, the British radio said today in a broadcast recorded by CBS.]

Reds Using Strong Forces.

The Russians admittedly were throwing prodigious strength against the war-weary enemy. For two months they have been blasting the Germans from key strongholds. Today they were racing ahead to beat the autumn rains which would turn the Ukrainian plains into a morass. That they were succeeding was evidenced by the jubilant tone of the communique, which declared:

"All attempts of the Hitlerites to hold on whatever lines they occupy are unsuccessful. Under the blows of our tankmen, infantry and artillery men, the enemy is forced to abandon one position after another and at the same time is sustaining heavy losses in man power and equipment."

REDS NEARER DNIEPER BEND

Take Poltava To Push Within 37 Miles Of Dnieperopetrovsk. Other Drives Gain

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sunday, Sept. 19—Soviet columns have slashed to within thirty-seven miles of Dnieperopetrovsk, "Bouder Dam" of the Dnipere river bend, and to within forty-four miles of Kiev, capital of the Ukraine, by capturing the railway junction of Pavlograd and the railroad town of Bobrovitsa, Moscow said today.

Smashing ahead on ten important sectors on a 600-mile front, the Russians won back a total of 733 villages, killed 8,700 Germans, wounded 2,000 more, and took 500 prisoners during yesterday, a communique said.

Closest At Bobrovista

The drive on Kiev from several directions reached closest to the middle Dnieper river bastion along the Kiev-Nezhin railway where a Red army column took Bobrovitsa.

Over 230 populated places were captured in this drive alone and more than 1,000 Germans fell to Russian fire, said the bulletin recorded to the Soviet Monitor.

Northeast of Kiev the important town of Chernigov came within Soviet artillery range as Vibli, six miles to the east, was captured and twenty-six other towns overrun.

Priluki, another bastion, seventy-eight miles east of Kiev, was gripped by a semi-circle of Russian forces the nearest of which was fifteen miles from Priluki.

Cut Kiev-Poltava Railway

Southeast of Kiev the Russian threat was more distant, but a surprise dash which swamped a Nazi rear-guard resulted in a twelve-mile Red army advance that cut the Kiev-Poltava railway at Mirgorod, fifty miles northwest of Poltava.

Another threat to the German lower Dnieper river line developed when the Russians seized the town and railway junction of Pavlograd on the road to Dnieperopetrovsk.

Soviet troops first cracked German defenses on the Samara and Volchya rivers, wedged themselves into enemy formations and then swept on to fierce street engagements inside Pavlograd. A regiment of German infantry was wiped out, the bulletin said.

Autumn rain was hindering both the attack and the defense in this key sector.

The capture of Poltava put the Russians nearest the Dnieper which bends far to the east in lower Russia. Already the Red army's guns were audible at Dnieperopetrovsk.

German Admissions

The communique told of these triumphs amid a chorus of pessimistic German admissions relayed from Stockholm, Madrid and even Berlin itself.

In Berlin, Capt. Ludwig Sertorious, German radio commentator, said frankly that the Germans were retreating in Russia to spare their forces and "it is not yet clear where and when" the retreat will halt.

Far to the south, in the offensive aimed at Zaporozhe and Melitopol, the Russians moved from six to nine miles along the railroads, taoking 110 towns including Pologi, fifty-four miles east of Zaporzhe and Chernigovka, forty-nine miles northeast of Melitopol.

Krasnograd Outflanked

Southwests of Kharkov Soviet armies outflanked Krasnograd with the capture of Kolomak, thirty-one miles to the northwest. Other forces took Sakhnevshchina, twenty-five miles southeast of the rail center. Over 250 occupied places were taken in this area.

Moscow dispatches said Bryansk was wrecked by the retreating Germans who demolished buildings, burned houses and carried off many residents to forced labor. Soviet mobile forces were reported dashing along forest paths and through ravines to outflank the retreating Germans.

In the Novgorod Severski area of the northern Ukraine the Russians widened one of three gaps across the Desna river in an advance of nine to twelve miles, capturing over fifty villages and hamlets in their smash toward White Russia.

Liquidating Nazi Bridgehead

The German Kuban bridgehead into the Caucasus — doomed by Soviet capture of Novorossisk and advances along the Sea of Azov on the north—was being liquidated. Six strong centers of Nazi resistance were captured, the bulletin said.

On the northern end of the active Russian line, where progress was slowest, the Russians reported they gained up to three miles and captured over fifty populated places in slugging their way toward Smolensk and Roslavl.

German broadcasts, recorded by the Associated Press, admitted a withdrawal on this central front for the second successive day, saying minor breaches had been made by extremely heavy Russian attacks against Smolensk defense lines.

In an order of the day, Premier Joseph Stalin made the Twentieth Cavalry Division a Guards division and honored its commander for breaching the Desna River southwest of Bryansk at Novgorod-Severski. Seven officers received awards for the combined operations that took Novorossiisk, seventeen generals and other officers were cited for Desna River operations and a rear admiral and six other officers won awards for the capture of Taganrog and Osipenko, on the Sea of Azov.

Report Nazis Plan To Quit Russian Front

Madrid, Sept. 18 (A. P.).—The Berlin correspondent of the Madrid newspaper Arriba said today that the Germans might "abandon the Russian campaign" and retire to a heavily fortified "eastern Siegfried Line" along the Polish frontier, 620 miles from the present front.

He reported that such a decision, widely discussed in Berlin, would mean a complete shift in German tactics, the strategy being to hold a powerful defense line from the Baltic to the Black Sea and to abandon Smolensk, Leningrad, the Crimea and the Ukraine. In this way, he said, the Germans could free more troops and material to face the Allies in Italy and western Europe.

Nazi Plan To Abandon Russ Campaign Hinted

Madrid, Sept. 18 (AP)—The newspaper Arriba's Berlin correspondent said today that the Germans might "abandon the Russian campaign," relinquish the Ukraine and their foothold in the Crimea, and drop back some 620 miles to a heavily fortified line along the Polish frontier.

[The correspondent's dispatch presumably was passed by German censors, perhaps for propaganda purposes.]

Such a decision, he said, would mean a complete change in German strategy to that of holding a powerful defense line from the Baltic to the Black Sea, withdrawing their forces from their threat to Leningrad in the north and evacuating such bastions as Smolensk.

Would Free Troops For West

The withdrawal would enable the Nazis to free more troops and material to oppose the Allied thrust through Italy and the expected invasion of western Europe, he said.

SOVIET CHURCHMEN EXPEL PRO-NAZIS

Moscow, Sept. 18 (A. P.).—The Russian Orthodox Church announced today the ex-communication of all priests and laymen who have co-operated with the enemy.

The order, decided upon at the September 8 Congress of Bishops and announced today through Izvestia, official organ of the Presidium of Supreme Council, technically would apply to any cases of treason in all Russian and Greek Orthodox churches throughout the world.

Persons profiting by enemy occupation, working for the enemy, or betraying partisans to the enemy were denounced by the order as guilty of "Judas treason."

"Every traitor of the church cause and every one who takes the side of the Fascists as the opponent of the creed of the Lord is to be excommunicated, and bishops and priests are to be deprived of their dignity," the announcement said.

Izvestia also published a message from Bishop Sergei, elected Russian patriarch at the Congress of Bishops, and three other bishops to Premier Josef Stalin pledging the support of the orthodox church to the Soviet war effort.

The message concluded:

"A long life for many years, dear beloved Joseph Vissarionovich Stalin."

CAMPAIGNING FOR '44 BRINGS PRAVDA GIBES

Communist Organ Says Election Interest Exceeds War Fervor

MOSCOW, Sept. 18 (AP)—The Communist party newspaper Pravda commented caustically today on American politics and preparations for next year's Presidential election.

"Although the United States is at war, the electoral campaign is again starting early," it asserted. "The struggle of interests connected with the election is already obvious in Washington.

"Although America has been fighting for more than eighteen months, the realization of the fact that America must mobilize all its strength for the struggle against the mortal enemy has not penetrated to the same extent among various strata of the American people."

Pravda's review of the Presidential line-up placed Wendell Willkie as a "serious opponent of isolationism in the Republican party" and said "among Republicans Willkie enjoys the most popularity in the country, but he still has not obtained the support of the heads of the Republican party."

Gen. Douglas MacArthur was named by the newspaper as a possible Republican candidate.

Among Democrats, Pravda said some Senators were speaking in favor of a fourth term for President Roosevelt, although some Southern Democrats opposed a fourth term.

Other potential Democratic candidates were listed as Senator Harry F. Byrd of Virginia, Vice President Henry A. Wallace and Paul V. McNutt, War Manpower chief.

Yank Raiders Bag 14 Jap Planes In China

Chungking, Sept. 18 (Delayed, A.P.)—The Fourteenth United States Air Force in a communique today said that on September 10 and September 11, American medium bombers and fighters shot down fourteen Japanese planes and probably destroyed six others in raids on Wuchang, Hankow, Canton and Suchow.

One American plane was lost, but the pilot was reported safe, the communique said.

Burma Targets Bombed.

New Delhi, Sept. 18 (A. P.).—Railway buildings at Seywa and Tindeinyan in the Katha district were attacked yesterday by Beaufighters as the R. A. F. continued to hammer at Japanese communication centers in Western Burma, an Allied joint communique announced today.

The planes also struck at shipping along the upper Irrawaddy, damaging two river steamers and several barges and setting fire to an oil barge.

Gestapo Scourge Visits Italy

By THOMAS F. HAWKINS

Bern, Switzerland, Sept. 18 (AP).—The German secret police went into full speed operation in Italy today with an order imposing death on all Italians caught hiding arms or molesting or stealing military equipment.

The death decree was published throughout occupied Italy—the best indication thus far of the underground resistance the Nazis expect to encounter there and the ruthlessness with which they are determined to fight it.

The Nazi pattern was the same as that first seen in Poland and later used with shocking precision in Norway, the Low Countries, France and Russia—conscription of labor, death to saboteurs and a command to the country's army to appear for surrender or induction.

In Italy, however, the Germans have stepped up the pattern, for here they are acting against a former ally, and the bitterness of the Nazi press has not been softened by the release of Benito Mussolini.

People Disillusioned.

There is yet no strong indication of sabotage within Italy. Probably neither the Allies nor the Germans can expect much help from the Italians in the battle of Italy. The people are disillusioned by the fact that Mussolini's overthrow failed to bring immediate peace, and are stunned by the rapid whirl of events.

Information trickling across the frontier indicates that civilian resistance to German occupation so far has been mostly passive, although there have been reports of skirmishes in several northern cities and there were some efforts to strike immediately after the armistice.

Underground Exists.

(Another AP dispatch, dated London, quoted seemingly later reports stating that Italians were fighting back in increasing numbers and ripping up German communications between northern and central Italy. The same dispatch related that disorder and misery were spreading in Italy on a scale not seen since the fall of France. The Pope, said this dispatch, has twice refused to see the German commander, and has demanded that the Germans first evacuate Rome. However the Papal Secretary of State was reported to have received the German ambassador.)

The anti-Fascists had their day —between Mussolini's fall and the armistice. The armistice, however, brought the Germans and the release of the Fascists Gen. Badoglio had arrested. It also brought the arrest of anti-Fascists.

Underground anti-Fascist parties do exist, including a Communist group, this writer is most reliably informed, but they were reluctant to distribute anti-Mussolini literature before the Sicilian campaign.

The Germans are taking over the railways of northern Italy with their own troops and crews, although the Italians still are manning trains reaching the Swiss frontier.

(The United Press said reports reaching Switzerland indicated that Badoglio had gone to North Africa at Allied request to form a new Italian army from hundreds of thousands of prisoners captured in the Africa fighting.)

The Italian army has been ordered to report in uniform for induction into the German forces. To what degree this has been obeyed is uncertain. Many soldiers in the north donned civilian clothes and fled.

ARGENTINE RUBBER SHORT

Nation Seeks Product From Brazil But Learns U. S. Takes Entire Export

[By the Associated Press]

Buenos Aires, Sept. 18—Argentina's rubber shortage is growing more acute each month.

Cut off from pre-war sources in the Far East and able to import from South American sources only a fraction of her needs, the country is waging a delaying action for preservation of her slim rubber stockpile by increasingly severe restrictions.

The Government is making fresh efforts to get Brazilian rubber by offering foodstuffs in exchange, but Brazil's entire export supply is being shipped to the United States.

The Rubber Distribution Commission long since banned sale of tires for "unessential" cars, reduced the allotment of rubber for essential autos to fifteen per cent. of the 1941 output and for busses and trucks to fifty-four per cent.

New Tire Plans

New plans call for the manufacture of tires composed of five per cent. crude rubber and ninety-five per cent. reclaimed rubber. This, it is said, would permit the manufacture of ten tires with the amount of crude rubber formerly used in one. Such tires, however, are designed for use only on light vehicles operating at low speeds.

Synthetic rubber production and extraction of rubber from Guayule and similar plants have been considered, but only in terms of a long-range program.

Chiang Sees Foe Doomed by Loss Of Italian Fleet

Says More Warships Will Strike at Japan, Urges All-Front Offensive

CHUNKING, Sept. 18 (AP).—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, making his first public appearance as President of China, called today for the co-operation of his country and her allies in an "all-front" offensive, and declared that the surrender of the Italian Fleet "determines Japan's ultimate doom."

China's war against aggression was effectively linked to the European battle theater by the surrender of the Italian Navy," he said.

"The safety of sea-borne traffic through the Mediterranean has considerably shortened the Allies' route for the movement of troops and supplies," he declared. "Part of the Allied naval forces can now be shifted to the Far East. Broadly speaking, the capitulation of the Italian Navy determines Japan's ultimate doom."

The Generalissimo opened the fourth plenary session of the People's Political Council and pledged the Chinese to fight until Manchuria is recovered.

Reiterating a statement of 1941, Chiang said: "Our sacred resistance will not end until the lost territory of our northeast is fully recovered and the liberty of our fellow countrymen there regained.

"Through more than six years the resistance of China on her 4,000-kilometer front has immobilized more than thirty enemy divisions," he continued. "Now is the time for us to co-ordinate our efforts with those of our Allies in launching an all-front counter-offensive to bring our fight to a successful conclusion.

"But the closer we approach final victory the heavier will be our burden. It is hoped you will urge all the citizens of the country to do their part loyally and exert their utmost so that the ultimate triumph may be achieved."

Declaring that relations with Great Britain, the United States, Russia and others of the United Nations would be placed on a "closer and more solid basis," Chiang added:

"An ever-growing spirit of co-operation and mutual helpfulness is especially evident in the co-ordination of the war efforts. In this war we can surely win both a complete victory and a lasting peace. Of this there can be no doubt."

JAPS ABANDON WAR SUPPLIES IN LAE RETREAT

Aussies Find Ample Stores of Munitions and a Few Tired Soldiers.

DEFENSES POORLY ORGANIZED

Hundreds of Drums of Gasoline and Many 500-Pound Bombs Fall to Invaders.

With Australian Forces in Lae, New Guinea, Sept. 16 (Delayed) (A. P.).—The Australian Army moved into Lae today and found that the enemy had left ample stores of equipment and ammunition, much of it new, and a few Japanese soldiers, somewhat shopworn.

The brigadier who commanded the first Australian units to enter Lae was driving about in a jeep when he noticed a sedan parked in a small revetment. The brigadier suggested it would be a good idea for his driver to investigate.

Unarmed, the driver opened the car door and found two Japanese inside, one of them with a bayonet. He hauled out both by the scruff of their necks.

Three correspondents walked unsuspectingly along the shore within twenty yards of a pillbox. Few moments later they heard a burst of fire, turned and discovered a Japanese had been lurking there. He had opened fire on a group of Aussies but was eliminated quickly.

A number of enemy stragglers had been hunted down by the time the brigadier mounted to a terrace behind the small township area, then climbed a control tower and hoisted the Australian flag.

On the final three miles of a six-mile hike into Lae, correspondents saw sizable stores which will be invaluable when the Lae airfield is put to use by the Allies.

There were hundreds of drums of aviation gasoline marked Shell Company of Australia; other hundreds of drums of motor oil and ordinary gasoline, and a bomb dump containing at least fifty 500-pound bombs.

In Lae there were motorcycles which the Aussies promptly put to use, at least two three-ton trucks and anti-aircraft guns of several types.

Lae Defenses Poor.

The Lae defenses are poorly organized and of flimsy construction compared with those the Allies encountered in capturing Buna and Sanananda in Papua.

But gaping bomb craters are evidence that the Japanese were not given much time for extensive construction work.

[Among the Japanese dead at Lae can be seen many cases of suicide, where defeated enemy soldiers have blown themselves up by their own grenades, the British radio said today in a broadcast picked up in New York by CBS.]

The final push into Lae, which was virtually unopposed, fitted into a changed pattern of Japanese resistance in recent months. As at Kiska, Bairoko Harbor and Salamaua, the enemy withdrew part of his force instead of putting up a near fanatic resistance such as marked the Papuan fighting and the early campaign in the Solomons.

A few prisoners were taken. They generally appeared healthier than those seized in the Papuan fight.

"Compared to the Owen Stanley Mountains in the Papuan fighting, our supply position has been wonderful," one commander added. "In addition we had fine co-operation from the American air force and our own artillery.

"Artillery observers, often working under instruction from men within twenty yards of the Japanese, called for shells to be placed within twenty yards of themselves."

Aussie Casualties Light.

Between them Australians driving in from the east and the west accounted for many Japanese dead. Against this their own casualties were relatively light, in the words of one high officer.

In eliminating one pocket of enemy resistance after another down the Markham, the Aussies employed typical Japanese tactics. When held up by such a perimeter they would surround it with a sufficient force to handle the Japanese there contained, and then by-pass it with the main body and drive on down the track.

The final rush began with pressure on the Japanese in Edwards plantation at 6 A. M. today. Five hours later a patrol had pushed on some six miles to the waterfront. Less than an hour after that a strong force was in the Lae area mopping up.

The work of making Lae a solid Allied base began promptly. One of the key factors in the preparations is the restoration of the Lae airdrome.

RAID DESTROYS 20 JAP PLANES

Allies Bomb Bougainville Fields As Enemy Bolsters Air Forces

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in the Southwest Pacific, Sunday, Sept. 19.—American war planes in a new Solomons raid have added twenty to the more than 2,000 enemy aircraft destroyed in the South Pacific since August, 1942, but Japan is rushing in reinforcements and risking big formations in the mounting sky battles.

Today's communique reported that bombers "of all categories"—meaning Liberator heavy bombers, Mitchell medium bombers, Avenger torpedo bombers and Dauntless divebombers—struck twice Wednesday under a screen of fighters at the Kahili and Ballale airdromes in the vicinity of southern Bougainville. Fifty enemy planes challenged them.

Tells Of Reinforcements

"The enemy is reinforcing his air forces in this area," today's communique said.

[Previously dispatches from the Solomons area said the Japanese may be ferrying planes from Japan down through Truk and Rabaul, New Britain, to Bougainville bases.]

Bougainville in the northern Solomons is the last air fortress barring American forces now entrenched on New Georgia and Vilfa Lavella from the naval and air base of Rabaul.

The American airfield at Munda, on New Georgia, now serving with Guadalcanal's Henderson Field as bases for American air raiders, has been raided three more times, headquarters said today. One Japanese plane was brought down by anti-aircraft fire. Yesterday's communique had told of an enemy formation of sixty striking at Munda.

Mopping Up Around Lae

In the New Guinea war theater, mopping up operations are in progress around newly captured Lae.

Off Kavieng, New Ireland, a 1,000-ton enemy freighter has been hit by aerial bombardment.

[Tying in with development of the aerial slugging matches in the Solomons were reports from the south Pacific by a spokesman for Admiral William F. Halsey that fifty-eight Japanese planes had been destroyed during the first fifteen days of September for an advantage over United States losses of four to one.]

In the Buin-Faisi raids a motor transport was destroyed and six parked planes were wrecked in addition to fourteen shot down. Three American fighters were lost.

American Mitchells struck again at the isolated Japanese garrison of Vila on southern Kolombangara.

Japs' Loss of Leaders In Raids Credited for Easy Victory at Lae

By WILLIAM F. BONI,
Associated Press War Correspondent.

WITH AUSTRALIAN FORCES IN LAE, New Guinea, Sept. 16 (Delayed).—The first Australian troops

entered Lae proper at 11 a.m. today and at 2:30 p.m. the commander of the advance units hoisted the Australian flag over the Lae control tower.

It is possible to draw two conjectures for the collapse of Japanese resistance at the New Guinea point where the Allies expected it would be fiercest:

One is that the American bombing raids within the last two weeks smashed enemy headquarters buildings, accounting for almost the entire staff; the second is that there were indications throughout the astonishingly swift march by the Australians down the Markham Valley that all was not harmony in the enemy camp.

It is likely that morale in some enemy outfits was sagging badly because for one thing they had been pulled out of Salamaua only three days earlier. For another, they had been let down by the famed Japanese marines, who had been counted on to stick it out longer in the perimeter ahead of the infantry positions.

Japs Beaten at Own Game.

But in the final analysis there is no doubt that the Markham Valley Aussies won their fight because they beat the Japanese at his own game. Veterans of jungle fighting after the Kokoda Trail, Gona and Sanananda battles ending eight months ago, "they were on top of the Jap the moment they met him" in the words of a commander of the forward units.

The Australians who came down the Markham Valley raised the colors on a terrace overlooking the shattered township and the wreckage of about 60 Japanese aircraft along the airstrip.

Thus ended more than 18 months of Japanese control of this vital point in Southwest Pacific campaigning and completed, with the withdrawal from Salamaua, the first removal of the enemy from a major Southwest Pacific base.

Buna, Gona and Sanananda were taken at the cost of more lives, but these points were never bases in the true sense of the word. They were merely advance strong points.

Last Push Almost Unopposed.

In the race between Australian troops coming from the west down the Markham Valley and other Aussies driving westward 12 miles along the coast, the Markham Valley force was narrowly the winner.

The final push into Lae, which was virtually unopposed, fitted into a changed pattern of Japanese resistance in recent months. As at Kiska, Bairoko Harbor and Salamaua, the enemy withdrew part of his force instead of putting up a near fanatic resistance such as marked the Papuan fighting and the early campaign in the Solomons.

A few prisoners were taken. They generally appeared healthier than those seized in the Papuan fight.

The enemy had left ample stores of equipment and ammunition, much of it new.

On the final three miles of a six-mile hike into Lae, correspondents saw sizable stores which will be invaluable when the Lae airfield is put to use by the Allies.

Much Gasoline Seized.

There were hundreds of drums of aviation gasoline (marked "Shell Company of Australia"); other hundreds of drums of motor oil and ordinary gasoline; and a bomb dump containing at least 50 500-pound bombs.

In Lae there were motorcycles which the Aussies promptly put to use, at least two three-ton trucks and antiaircraft guns of several types.

"Compared to the Owen Stanley Mountains in the Papuan fighting, our supply position has been wonderful," one commander added. "In addition we had fine co-operation from the American Air Force and our own artillery.

"Artillery observers, often working under instruction from men within 20 yards of the Japanese, called for shells to be placed within 20 yards of themselves."

Casualties Relatively Light.

Between them Australians driving in from the east and the west accounted for many Japanese dead. Against this their own casualties "were relatively light," in the words of one high officer.

In eliminating one pocket of enemy resistance after another down the Markham, the Aussies employed typical Japanese tactics. When held up by such a perimeter they would surround it with a sufficient force to handle the Japanese there contained, and then bypass it with the main body and drive on down the track.

The final rush began with pressure on the Japanese in Edwards Plantation at 6 a.m. today. Five hours later a patrol had pushed on some six miles to the waterfront. Less than an hour after that a strong force was in the Lae area mopping up.

The work of making Lae a solid Allied base began promptly. One of the key factors in the preparations is the restoration of the Lae airdrome.

STANDLEY SET TO RETURN TO WASHINGTON

Envoy's Move Viewed As Preliminary To U. S.-British-Russian Parley

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 18—In a step possibly preliminary to a three-power conference of high American, British and Soviet representatives, Admiral William H. Standley, United States Ambassador to Moscow, is coming home to make a personal report to President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull.

His imminent return was made known today by the State Department which said it was for consultation in connection with discussions being carried on with the British and Soviet Governments.

Spokesmen Noncommittal

Department spokesmen were noncommittal when asked whether Standley would go back to Moscow after his consultations here are completed. But in view of persistent reports that he might be replaced and the fact that he has been quoted more than once as wishing to avoid another winter in Russia, it was considered here that his return to Moscow is problematical at best.

His recall to Washington came as reports—nowhere officially confirmed—piled up in London that the three powers had definitely decided to hold a conference of foreign ministers at Moscow.

Meanwhile, the possibility of Secretary Hull's attending such a conference with Foreign Ministers Vyacheslav Molotov and Anthony Eden remained in doubt.

Created Furore

Standley, who went to Moscow as Ambassador in March, 1942, created something of a furore last winter when he declared that the Russian people were not being informed of the amount of lend-lease help America was sending their Government.

His return here will provide President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull with a first-hand personal report on the latest Russian attitude regarding the proposed three-power conference and the scope of its agenda.

London Speculates.

London, Sept. 18 (A. P.).—London diplomats speculated today on the possibility that the return to Washington from Moscow of United States Ambassador Admiral William H. Standley for consultations might open the way for William A. Harriman to go to Moscow and possibly participate in a three-Power conference.

Mr. Harriman, lend-lease administrator in London, has made several trips to Moscow and is reported to be highly regarded by the Russians.

Japs Send More Planes Into Solomons Area

SOUTH PACIFIC HEADQUARTERS, Sept. 18 (AP).—A steady flow of plane reinforcements has made the Japanese as strong or stronger in the Central and Northern Solomons than they were two weeks ago, despite their heavy losses during the Allied air campaign, a Navy spokesman said today.

He said the Japanese may be ferrying planes from Japan down to the big island naval base of Truk, thence to Rabaul, New Britain and on to the Bougainville Island air bases.

The airfields of Bougainville, at the northeastern end of the Solomons group, have not been made inoperative by American raids, although they have been hit regularly and heavily.

The enemy still manages to take off planes from the airdrome at Kahili, on the southern tip of the island, and at Ballale, and he is also using a new field at Kara, 7 miles northeast of Kahili.

Despite increased strength of the enemy, Americans still retain air superiority in the South Pacific area, the Navy spokesman said.

In the first 15 days of September, Admiral William F. Halsey's airmen destroyed 58 enemy planes on the ground or in the air for better than a four-to-one United States advantage. Many of our pilots were saved.

Since the beginning of the Solomons campaign in August, 1942, to September 15, the spokesman said, 2,136 Japanese planes have been destroyed on the ground and in the air.

U. S. COMMANDS AIR IN SOUTH PACIFIC

South Pacific Headquarters, Sept. 18 (A. P.).—Americans still retain air superiority in the South Pacific area, a Navy spokesman said today.

In the first fifteen days of September Admiral William F. Halsey's airmen destroyed fifty-eight enemy planes on the ground or in the air for better than a four-to-one United States advantage. Many of our pilots were saved.

Since the beginning of the Solomons campaign in August, 1942, to September 15, the spokesman said, 2,136 Japanese planes have been destroyed on the ground and in the air.

Missionary Work Pays Dividends In Jungle

Munda, New Georgia, Sept. 13 (Delayed, A. P.)—Missionary work done in the Solomons in previous years paid dividends during the American advance on New Georgia.

A Methodist mission near Munda had taught many natives to speak English and several were employed by American forces to lead them through the jungles.

CURTIN THANKS M'ARTHUR

Australian Premier Praises Men Who Drove Japanese From Lae

CANBERRA, Australia, Sept. 18 (AP)—Prime Minister John Curtin sent his congratulations today to Gen. Douglas MacArthur upon his victory at Lae, New Guinea, and declared "this splendid feat of arms marks another notable stage in the Pacific war."

"I would convey to you, your commanders and all officers and men of the Australian and American naval, land and air forces the thanks and admiration of the Government and people of Australia on the superiority they have demonstrated over a tenacious foe," his message read.

"The achievements of the forces of our two countries and their invincible comradeship in arms are happy portents of greater things to come, culminating in final defeat of the enemy."

JAPS STYMIED, VINSON SAYS

Cannot Supply Garrisons Due To Might Of Allied Sea Power, He Declares

SEP 19 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 18—Representative Vinson (D., Ga.), chairman of the House Naval Committee, declared flatly today that Allied sea might is preventing the Japanese from supplying their "beleaguered garrisons" with food, ammunition and reinforcements "in sufficient quantity to permit long resistance."

In an outline of the situation in the Pacific based on information supplied by the Navy Department, he noted that 180 Japanese warships have been announced as sunk to date and "heavy losses" inflicted upon the enemy's supply and troop ships.

"The recent land and air successes on New Guinea, the capture of the Salamaua naval and air base and the adjoining base of Lae, and the tremendous air victory at Wewak demonstrate that the Southwest Pacific campaign has been one of marked coordination between Allied land, sea and air forces," he said.

One Way For Jap Army

"The task of Allied seapower has been to meet and defeat the Japanese Navy whenever the opportunity presented itself. The parallel objective of causing the Japanese Navy to give one-way passage to the Japanese Army has also been carried out."

Just a day after Secretary of the Navy Knox observed in London that our navy hasn't sighted a Japanese aircraft carrier in four months because "apparently they don't like to come out where it is wet," Mr. Vinson tallied the foe's losses.

"In sea areas exclusive of the Southwest Pacific," he said, "125 Japanese warships have been sent to the bottom. These include two battleships, six aircraft carriers, twenty-four cruisers, sixty-two destroyers and six submarines.

Others Damaged Badly

"Nine battleships, 7 carriers, 47 cruisers, 62 destroyers and 6 submarines were so badly damaged as to be forced out of action. Another 28 Japanese warships, including 1 carrier, 4 cruisers, 18 destroyers and 1 submarine, are listed as 'possibly sunk.'"

In the Southwest Pacific area, Mr. Vinson continued, "55 additional Japanese warships have been sent to the bottom and 73 damaged. These include 1 battleship, 14 cruisers, 21 destroyers, 3 seaplane tenders, 8 submarines and 1 submarine tender destroyed—and 1 battleship, 38 cruisers, 21 destroyers, 2 carriers and 3 seaplane tenders damaged."

Just as did President Roosevelt in his "Progress of the War" report to Congress, the naval committee chairman jubilantly stressed the effect upon the Pacific sea warfare resulting from the capitulation of Italy.

"Today," he said, "because of the surrender of the Italian fleet to the Allies, Japan can expect no naval aid from Germany. Today, because of the surrender of the Italian fleet, Allied naval units have been released for action in the Pacific.

"Today, Japan stands alone."

PREDICTS VICTORY ON PEACE PROPOSAL

Bipartisan House Group Says It Will Be Able to Win Vote for World Collaboration

AIMS AT TEST TOMORROW

And Democratic and Republican Chiefs Assert Plan for Cooperation Will Be Adopted

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18 (AP)—A bipartisan House group declared today that it had sufficient strength to obtain on Monday the first official expression of opinion by a branch of Congress in favor of post-war collaboration among nations to maintain peace.

The vote will come on a resolution recording Congress as "favoring the creation of appropriate international machinery with power adequate to establish and to maintain a just and lasting peace among the nations of the world, and as favoring participation by the United States therein."

Despite the efforts of a group attempting to tack on amendments, the majority leader, Representative McCormack, and the minority leader, Representative Martin, expressed confidence that the resolution would be adopted in its present form.

So certain of approval is the House Foreign Affairs Committee, which gave unanimous support to the bill, that it risked bringing in the resolution under a procedure requiring a two-thirds vote of the members present, and barring amendments.

"The question is just this," said Representative Eaton, ranking minority member on the Foreign Affairs Committee, "do we want to substitute law for force in world affairs? If we do, then the United States must participate. And if the United States is to participate, then Congress must say so."

The chief week-end argument over the resolution centers around the amount of time to be allotted for debate. Those eager to offer amendments mapped their strategy on a plan to limit debate, believing that the resolution will be forced back to the Rules Committee unless ample time is allotted for discussion. If successful, they then could press the Rules Committee to return the resolution under procedure permitting amendments to be offered.

Mr. McCormack, however, has notice that he will force a vote on adoption of the resolution regardless of the amount of time granted for debate.

Chairman Bloom called a special session of the Foreign Affairs Committee today for 10 A. M. Monday to consider a Republican-sponsored amendment to the resolution designed to guarantee that constitutional processes be used in setting up any international machinery to maintain peace.

Mr. Bloom said that the additional language, which resulted from a meeting of the Republican Steering Committee, was acceptable to him, and that it would be offered as a committee amendment if accepted by the other members.

Message on War Called Political By Republicans

Roosevelt Is Said to 'Play Down' Home Difficulties; Democrats Deny Charge

SEP 19 1943

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18 (AP)—Republicans asserted and Democrats denied today that President Roosevelt's message yesterday on the progress of the war contained "campaign material" and constituted an effort to minimize controversial domestic issues.

Mr. Roosevelt said that while some complaints about domestic activities were justified, the people have reason to be proud of the successful conversion from a peace to war economy.

Senator Robert A. Taft, Republican, of Ohio, told reporters he interpreted that and some other statements by the President as indicating that Mr. Roosevelt intends to "play down" home controversies and emphasize the foreign war effort if he seeks a fourth term—a view that was shared in part by Senator Styles Bridges, Republican, of New Hampshire.

Called "Adroitly Written"

"It was an adroitly written message which attempted to center the people's minds exclusively on the efforts if our fighting forces so as to overcome their concern about domestic blunders," Senator Bridges declared.

In the same vein, Senator George D. Aiken, Republican, of Vermont, said he regarded as "campaign material" the President's suggestions that Congress consider the greater economic protection for the returning men and women of the armed forces, study the broadcasting of social-security benefits, and give early attention to problems of demobilization.

"I can't understand the purpose of the message unless it was to provide campaign material for the next election," Senator Aiken declared. "He certainly had no specific recommendations for action by Congress."

Minority leader Charles C. McNary, of Oregon, said the message was "a comprehensive report on the war fronts but an incomplete report on the home front."

Most Democrats were quick to deny, however, that Mr. Roosevelt's message reflected political matters. Most of them called it a "factual report" on the progress of the war, and Senator Tom Stewart, Democrat, of Tennessee, said he thought that Mr. Roosevelt had guaged the temper of the public aright in contending that home-front mistakes are dwarfed by over-all accomplishments.

Observing that he saw nothing political in the message, Senator Josiah W. Bailey, Democrat, of North Carolina, said he thought that Mr. Roosevelt had "cleared up a great many things."

Generally, Congress members reported today much satisfaction among the folks back home with the way this country is conducting its war on foreign battlefields, but widespread discontent with various phases of the war on the home front.

A cross-section of the views that constituents have conveyed to the legislators who went home on vacation in July and returned last Tuesday was obtained from sixty-nine Democrats and Republicans from forty-two states.

The majority said they found their people pleased with the war's progress but critical of domestic affairs, with most of the complaints mentioning restrictions and regulations.

The Office of Price Administration—responsible for price control and rationing—was the only government agency singled out by name for criticism. And only eleven Congressmen—most of them Democrats—mentioned it.

Most of the legislators reported they had received no complaints about the way man power has been handled and distributed, although at the moment man power is one of the nation's most critical problems, with the War Department urging a labor draft.

Only three—all Democrats—commented on the possibility of a draft of fathers at all, and they said their people hoped it would not be necessary but believed the military leaders "know best."

Little Interest in Planning

One Southern Democrat said his people "view with alarm the continued rapid growth of government agencies," and several were critical of the number of persons on Federal pay rolls.

Only a handful of the legislators—seven altogether and almost all of them from the East—reported their people had indicated marked interest in post-war planning for a lasting peace through international co-operation or any other means.

Time and again the Congressmen started off their statements by saying something like: "My people are mainly interested in the war right now," or "My people are mainly interested in getting this war over with and their boys back home."

One Representative said he had discovered that "the old American custom of criticising Congress has changed and the law-making body is held in high public esteem."

NAVY CASUALTY LIST INCLUDES 13 DEAD

99 New Names Brings Total in War to 29,589

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18 (AP)—The Navy announced today ninety-nine casualties, including thirteen dead, thirteen wounded and seventy-three missing. This brings to 29,589 the total of Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard casualties reported to next of kin since Dec. 7, 1941. The grand total includes 10,219 dead, 5,213 wounded, 10,005 missing and 4,152 prisoners of war.

The casualties announced today those of non-commissioned personel included:

Shell Imbedded In His Hip Makes Sailor Human Bomb

8569 38.24 — 8569

By TECHNICAL SERGT. JIM LUCAS
[Distributed by the Associated Press]
[Marine Combat Correspondent]

A South Pacific Marine Base (Delayed)—Twenty-three-year-old Allen L. Gordon, of Rock Island, Ill., knew he was a human bomb.

Standing at his post aboard an American warship in the South Pacific, he had been struck below the left chest by a 20-mm. anti-aircraft shell which pierced his abdomen and lodged in his left hip.

By freakish chance, the shell had not exploded.

Could Still Grin

When Gordon, a fire-control man, third class, was gingerly carried ashore at this island outpost on November 22, 1942, he could still grin at the corpsmen who served as his stretcher bearers.

Thus began one of the strangest stories of war surgery which culminated on December 2, when two navy doctors, working behind steel plate, operated on an American sailor who might explode at any moment.

They removed the shell in his hip and although infection later set in, Gordon was strong enough eventually to return to the United States, where treatment continues.

Hospital Being Built

Gordon's experience is not typical, yet it vividly underlines the safeguards thrown up to protect the lives of maroines and sailors in the war of the Pacific by the navy's mobile hospital units.

When Gordon was brought ashore, after an emergency operation aboard a battleship to sew up his intestinal tract, the navy's hospital at this island outpost was still under construction.

Japs Are Dangling Independence In Hope Of Winning Filipino Favor

Island Leaders Here Are Sure Their People, Many Still Fighting, Will Prefer Faith In U. S. Pledge

[By the Associated Press]

SEP 19 1943

Washington, Sept. 18 — Two plums—one poisoned—are offered to the people of the Philippines.

They are promises of their long yearned for independence.

Almost any moment now the Japanese, who have occupied the islands since early 1942, probably will announce that the right to rule themselves which they promised to the Filipinos has become a fact.

President Roosevelt has promised them total independence as soon as they are freed from the Japanese.

The islands' leaders—representatives of the only Government-in-exile with headquarters in Washington—highly skeptical of any Japanese promise, declare that the new constitution submitted to a meeting of the Kalibapi (Japanese puppet organization in the Philippines) on September 5 and 6 is "phony."

Constitution Not Published

The wording of the new constitution was not made public, but according to the Japanese-controlled radio broadcasting from the islands, it was "unanimously accepted" by the Kalibapi.

To every Philippine peasant, the word "independence" is magic. The Japanese know this and while they started off their regime in the islands with oppression, they are reported to have softened their tactics simultaneously with the promise of independence.

Leaders here say the reason the Filipinos fought the Jap invaders so bitterly in the first place was because of the United States pledge under the Tydings-McDuffie Philippine Independence Act to give them complete independence on July 4, 1946.

President's Promise

In a broadcast to the Philippines last month, on the forty-fifth anniversary of American occupation of Manila, President Roosevelt said:

"I give the Filipino people my word that the Republic of the Philippines will be established the moment the power of our Japanese enemies is destroyed."

Manuel L. Quezon, carrying on his functions as President of the Philippines after regaining his strength at Saranac Lake, N. Y., after a long illness, says the Japanese promise means "less than nothing."

"It would really mean," he says, "that the Philippines would be another Manchoukuo. . . . A government without rights, without powers, without authority, a government charged only with the duty to obey the dictates of the Japanese rulers."

Leaders of the Government in exile here say the Filipinos have confidence in the United States—a confidence strengthened by President Roosevelt's reassurances and the news of the war's progress, which reaches them on a three-and-a-half-hour daily broadcast on the Manila beam from San Francisco.

The leaders here are aware, however, of serious aspects of a Japanese proclamation of Filipino "independence."

They point out that the Japanese then would couple the granting of "independence" for the Philippines with their recognition of Burmese "independence" as propaganda throughout Asia.

Lesson Of Burma

They also point out that when the Japanese recognized the so-called independence of Burma, they forced the puppet government in Burma to declare war on the United States.

Obviously, they say, the Japanese will try the same thing in the Philippines . . . and, "if they can get one company of one hundred men to follow this line, the propaganda, interms of psychological warfare, will be tremendous."

Meanwhile President Quezon assures his countrymen that the Philippines are not being neglected.

"The President, the Congress, the American people," he says, "are doing and will do everything in their power to redeem you as soon as possible from the heel of the invader."

Make Up Of Cabinet

The Government in exile has set up a war cabinet in Washington. Its members consist of Quezon, Vice-President Sergio Osmena; Maj. Gen. Basilio J. Valdes, chief of staff of the Philippine army and Secretary of National Defense; Jaime Hernandez, auditor general; Col. Andres Soriano, Secretary of Finance; J. M. Elizalde, Resident Commissioner of the Philippines, and the secretary of the President and of the cabinet, Dr. Arturo B. Rotor.

The Government here has the same status as the government of any other nation. It is one of the United Nations, a signer of the United Nations Declaration, and has participated in all the various international conferences, such as the Hot Springs (Va.) food parley.

Under the Philippine constitution, Mr. Quezon is due to retire from the Presidency at the end of December of this year, to be succeeded automatically by Vice-President Osmena. Whether this change in Government will take place in view of the war emergency, with the Government in exile, has not been officially announced.

Prepare For Return

Filipinos now residing in the United States are actively preparing for the day of return to their homeland. On the West Coast two Filipino infantry regiments of some 6,000 to 7,000 men are in training as a part of the United States Army.

A small Philippine merchant marine . . . three 10,000-ton vessels . . . is carrying supplies in the service of the United Nations, while the Philippine Government in exile made a gift to the United States of a sub-patrol Filipino-manned ship, now in active service.

About 75,000 Filipinos in the United States and Hawaii are working in essential war industries and in agriculture.

The Government has oversubscribed its war-bond quota, purchasing $2,700,000 worth on April 29.

Operates On Interest

Incidentally, the Philippines are the only belligerent nation able to operate on the interest of its deposits and one of the few able to return to its homeland with as much money as it had before the outbreak of the war.

Its leaders here say there was no fifth column in the Philippines. The bulk of General MacArthur's infantry in the battle of the Philippines was Filipino, numbering seven to every American. On Bataan alone the ratio of war casualties totaled 20,000 Filipinos to 3,000 Americans.

Throughout the 7,000 islands which make up the Philippine commonwealth, uncaptured soldiers still are actively resisting the Japanese. The Japanese-controlled radio has made more than 150 admissions of armed resistance since the invaders took over.

European Post For Marshall Called Unlikely

'Army and Navy Journal' Doubts General Will Be Relieved as Chief of Staff

From the Herald Tribune Bureau

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—"The Army and Navy Journal" said editorially today that there appeared little foundation for current reports that General George C Marshall was to be relieved as Chief of Staff of the Army and sent to London as commander in chief of the European theater of war. Not only would the Army be "shocked" at such a change, but President Roosevelt would be "deprived of the valuable advice he had received from General Marshall on military activities everywhere," said "The Journal," which not infrequently reflects the official view without having official status.

Although the assignment could be "ballyhooed" as to appear a reward for exceptional service, the editorial pointed out, General Marshall's detail to command on the European front would "mean his confinement to a single theater of operations whereas he now is general in command of the armies of the United States throughout the world."

"The truth is," the editorial continued, "the global character of this conflict has given the Chief of Staff an importance not attained in any other war in which the United States has been engaged. Under the President this officer really performs notably the function of commanding general of the Army forces by administrative and planning duties as well."

It was pointed out further that a new chief of staff at this critical period in the war would be compelled to "earn the confidence of the Army, the Congress and the country, which General Marshall now enjoys to an extent without parallel in war."

"Thinking only of winning the war and of saving every American life possible in connection with the bloody operations which it calls for," concluded the editorial, "General Marshall, of course, has come into conflict with powerful interests which would like to eliminate him from the Washington picture. It is not believed, however, the President will be induced to transfer him."

SALERNO LANDING COST U. S. 2 SHIPS

Washington, Sept. 18 (A. P.).—The landing of the Fifth Army at Salerno cost at least two United States warships.

The 1,500-ton destroyer Rowan went down as the result of an "underwater explosion" off the Italian coast Saturday, two days after the Salerno beachhead was established, a Navy communique disclosed last night.

Enemy action caused the sinking of the 1,450-ton tug Nauset in the Mediterranean Thursday, the day of the landing.

The communique also announced the loss of the U. S. S. Navajo, sister-ship of the Nauset, from an underwater explosion in the South Pacific Sunday.

The sinkings brought to 117 the number of United States fighting craft lost since the war started.

No casualty reports have been received as yet from either the Rowan, which had a normal complement of 172, or the Navajo, which carried about sixty men.

All three ships were comparatively new. The Rowan was commissioned in the fall of 1939, the Navajo in 1940, and the Nauset in March of this year.

Allied Ground Guns Bag 501 Planes In Africa

Washington, Sept. 18 (AP)—Gun crews of Allied anti-aircraft units knocked at least 501 enemy planes out of the North African skies during the campaign there and bagged sixteen more during the first week of business in Sicily.

The War Department, reporting this today, said the final score for the ground gunners probably will be higher because some of the crews hurriedly pulled up stakes when the North African campaign was over and moved to Sicily without getting a chance to tally their gains in the African war.

Nazis Report Clash in Barcelona

A German propaganda broadcast said yesterday that several persons were killed or injured in clashes in Barcelona, Spain, between French emigrants and Spanish Falangists. It alleged that the emigrants were "supported by the United States Consulate General" and that the disorders began when the French emigrants began singing the "Internationale" in the main street to annoy Spaniards. The broadcast was recorded by The Associated Press in New York.

Frenchmen Ordered To Resist Germans

New York, Sept. 18. (AP)—The French Committee of National Liberation today broadcast a statement to France warning civil servants of the mainland that the committee is "the sole legitimate French authority" and ordered them to resist the Germans or be considered traitors.

The statement, broadcast in French by the British radio and recorded by CBS, said that until the French Republic is constituted on liberated French territory, the committee remains the sole authority.

Russia Reported Urging October Parley in Moscow

NEW YORK, Sept. 18 (AP).—The New York Times said today in a London dispatch that Russia had proposed that the conference of foreign ministers of the United States, Britain and Russia be held in Moscow in October.

The dispatch said that although British and American officials had urged that Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov come to London, half way between Moscow and Washington, for the conference, Soviet Vice Commissar Ivan Maisky had presented Molotov's argument that he would be in a better position to take action on questions facing the conference if he were in Moscow, where he could confer constantly with Premier Stalin.

In arguing that London be made the conference site, the British and Americans were represented as saying that the air journey to Moscow would be difficult for Secretary of State Hull, and that his physicians were hesitant about giving their consent for so long a trip. It was conceded, however, the Times said, that this consideration would not be allowed to stand in the way of the conference.

Berlin Reports Attack On SS. Conte di Savoia

The Italian liner Conte di Savoia, unreported since the Germans occupied her home port of Genoa shortly after the Italian capitulation, was reported by the Berlin radio today to have been attacked by German planes on September 12 outside Venice.

"The ocean liner Conte di Savoia, which had prepared to leave its anchorage outside Venice and sail for an unknown destination on September 12, was prevented from doing so owing to bombs dropped from German planes," said the broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press.

The broadcast did not disclose whether the vessel was sunk or only damaged.

The Conte di Savoia, launched in 1932 as a queen of ocean liners of that time, held the Atlantic crossing record in 1935.

Hero in Solomons Gets Two Medals

Washington, D. C., Sept. 18 (AP).—Major Gen. Oscar W. Griswold of Cranford, N. J., has been awarded the Distinguished Service Medal and the Legion of Merit, the Army announced yesterday. Gen. Griswold, whose troops captured Munda and Bairoko harbor to end Japanese resistance on New Georgia Island in the Solomons, was awarded the SM for his success in the New Georgia operation and his previous services as commanding general on Guadalcanal.

Guerrillas Cut Vital Railway In Yugoslavia

Washington, Sept. 19 (AP)—Yugoslav guerrillas, harassing German communication lines in preparation for a possible Allied thrust in the Balkans, cut the Belgrade-Chachak railway at Latkovich on September 15, the Yugoslav Embassy here reported today.

In a swift attack, a guerrilla group destroyed several hundred yards of the closely guarded tracks, the Embassy said, adding that the raiders escaped without loss.

Admiral James Gets Legion Of Merit Award

Washington, Sept. 18 (AP)—The navy announced today award of the Legion of Merit to Rear Admiral Jules James for outstanding service as commandant of the naval operating base at Bermuda.

James, 58, Danville, Va., served at Bermuda from April 7, 1941, when work on the base started, to March 24, 1943, when he was transferred to duty as commandant of the Sixth Naval District, covering the Carolinas and Georgia.

2 Navy Aviators Cited For Attacks On Subs

Washington, Sept. 18 (AP)—The navy announced today award of the Air Medal to two naval aviators for attacks on enemy submarines during the invasion of French North Africa in November, 1942. They are:

Lieut. (j. g.) Ralph W. Burns, 25, Marlboro, Mass., listed as missing in action. His wife, Mrs. Helen Burns, lives at Malden, Mass.

Lieut. (j. g.) Paul E. Coughlin, 25, son of Mrs. Lilly Coughlin, Edina, Mo.

SEP 19 1943

LONDON, SEPT 18-(AP)-THERE WAS ONLY ONE MORNING OF VICTORY HANGOVERS IN LONDON AFTER ITALY'S CAPITULATION. PUBLIC JUBILATION WAS SOBERED BY THE COLD WATER SHOCK OF THE FIRST REVERSES AT NAPLES AND SALERNO. OPTIMISM WAVERED, BROKE AND FINALLY STEADIED ONLY TOWARDS THE END OF THE WEEK.

"THE FAMILIAR CORPS OF CRITICS" AS THE LONDON STAR SAID, BEGAN "BUSILY SHARPENING THEIR DARTS AND REPOINTING THEIR GOADS."

THERE WOULD BE HELL TO PAY WHEN PARLIAMENT RECONVENED, THE PAPERS SAID.

THE SAME THING HAD HAPPENED WITH TUNISIA AND IT HAD TAKEN WEEKS FOR THE PUBLILTO READJUST ITS PERSPECTIVE.

THIS TIME THE ADJUSTMENT CAME MORE QUICKLY. IT WAS TYPIFIED BY TWO COMMENTS FROM MILITARY MEN.

"WE CAME PERILOUSLY NEAR DISASTER AT SALERNO," A BRITON SAID.

"BUT FROM THE LONG-TERM POINT OF VIEW THE GERMANS' POSITION IN CENTRAL AND SOUTHERN ITALY IS STRATEGICALLY IMPOSSIBLE," DECLARED AN AMERICAN, AND HERE'S WHY:

THE LANDING AT NAPLES AND SALERNO INVOLVED WHAT AT TIMES IS CALLED "GREAT RISKS RIGHTLY TAKEN." FOR THE FIRST WEEK AT LEAST NEARLY VERY ADVANTAGE WAS ARRAYED ON THE SIDE OF THE GERMANS:

TERRAIN--THE SALERNO BEACHES ARE IDEAL FOR LANDING BUT THE ALLIES WERE ABLE TO SEIZE ONLY A 35-MILE STRIP COMPARED WITH 100 MILES AVAILABLE IN SICILY. DETERMINED GERMAN TROOPS WERE ENSCONCED WITH ARTILLERY IN THE HILLS OVERLOOKING THE BEACHES. THE HIGH, RUGGED POSITION GAVE THEM THE ADVANTAGE IN SPOTTING THE ALLIES' MOVEMENTS AND RESISTING ATTACK BOTH FROM THE AIR AND THE GROUND.

AIR SUPPORT--THE ALLIES LONG AGO ESTABLISHED AIR DOMINATION IN THE MEDITERRANEAN BUT AS THE LONDON EVENING STANDARD REMARKS, "WHAT MATTERS IN BATTLE IS NOT GENERAL AIR DOMINATION BUT THE EXERCISE OF AIR POWER OVER A BATTLEFIELD." THE ALLIES' "AIR POWER OVER THE BATTLEFIELD" WAS IMPAIRED IN THE INITIAL STAGES BY THE LACK OF NEARBY AIRDROMES. THIS LIMITATION OF AIRPOWER WAS BEING OVERCOME AT THE END OF THE WEEK BY THE ENCOMPASSMENT OF AIRFIELDS IN THE ADVANCE OF THE BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY.

ARTILLERY--WHILE THE GERMANS WERE ABLE TO MASS ARTILLERY IN THE HILLS IN CLOSE SUPPORT OF THE DEFENDING TROOPS THE ALLIES HAD TO DEPEND LARGELY UPON THE LONG RANGE DISPERSED SUPPORT OF NAVAL VESSELS.

TACTICS--HAVING FAILED TO SURPRISE THE GERMANS THE WHOLE OF THE FIFTH ARMY CAME WITHIN THE RANGE OF MURDEROUS GERMAN FIRE WHILE TRYING--WITHOUT THE ADVANTAGE OF A MAJOR PORT--TO LAND HEAVY WEAPONS AND VEHICLES.

FOR DAYS THE BRIDGEHEAD WAS ONLY FOUR MILES DEEP AND IT NORMALLY TAKES FIVE MILES IN WHICH TO DISPOSE AND MANOEUVER A SINGLE DIVISION. IT MAY TAKE UP TO 25 MILES TO ACCOMODATE FRONTLINE TROOPS AND THE REARWARDLORGANIZATION OF AN ARMY SUCH AS THE FIFTH. BY

FRIDAY, HOWEVER, THE FIFTH HAD PUSHED ITS BRIDGEHEAD AT LEAST 12 MILES INTO THE INTERIOR.

FORCES--FIVE GERMAN DIVISIONS WERE IDENTIFIED IN ACTION AT SALERNO. THE PARIS RADIO REPORTED SEVEN ALLIED DIVISIONS IN THE ATTACK BUT THIS IS PROBABLY EXAGGERATED. THE BEST GUESS IS THAT THE FORCES WERE ROUGHLY EQUAL IN STRENGTH BY MIDWEEK.

THE ARRIVAL OF THE EIGHTH ARMY AND THE LANDING OF REINFORCEMENTS REPORTED BY THE GERMANS FRIDAY PROBABLY GAVE THE ALLIES EARLY PREDOMINANCE.

MORALE--THE TENACITY OF THE FIFTH ARMY IS ALREADY BECOMING A MILITARY BY-WORD DESPITE THE HEAVY CASUALTIES REPORTED.

"THEIR BRAVERY WILL BEAT THE GERMANS YET," SAID GENERAL SIR ROBERT GORDON-FINLAYSON, THE LONDON STAR'S MILITARY CORRESPONDENT, WHILE THE DAY WAS STILL DARK FOR CLARK'S COMMAND.

IT WAS IN FACT GERMAN WILL WHICH YIELDED FIRST AND THE DISADVANTAGES OF SALERNO ARE NOT LIKELY TO BE RECREATED SOON FOR THE ALLIES IN THEIR ADVANCE UP THE ITALIAN LEG.

AFTER FOUR YEARS OF WAR THE UNITED NATIONS' FORCES HAVE AT LAST SECURED A CONTINENTAL FOOTHOLD IN A FAIR FIGHT AGAINST HITLER'S FIRST TEAM. THERE IS NO THOUGHT IN LONDON THAT THIS BASE--WHICHEVER WAY ITS EFFORTS MAY BE DIRECTED--WILL BE LOST BY ANYTHING EXCEPT THE MOST UNIMAGINABLE BAD LUCK OR BLUNDERING.

WHATEVER FORCES FIELD MARSHAL ALBERT KESSELRING HAS LEFT IN SOUTHERN AND CENTRAL ITALY WILL BE INCREASINGLY IMPERILLED BY FOUR FACTORS WHICH APPEAR TO MAKE RETREAT INEVITABLE.

FIRST, THE ABILITY OF THE ALLIED FORCES AT ANY CHOSEN TIME TO OUTFLANK BY SEA WHATEVER LINE KESSELRING MAY CHOOSE.

SECOND, THE INABILITY OF THE GERMANS TO PROTECT LINES OF SUPPLY AND TROOPS FROM CONSTANT AIR ATTACK.

THIRD, THE THINNESS OF THE GERMAN COMMUNICATIONS LINE RUNNING THROUGH HOSTILE COUNTRY BY COMPARISON WITH THE SECURITY OF THE ALLIED LINES THROUGH SEAS COMPLETELY CLEARED OF THE ITALIAN NAVY.

FOURTH, THE OBVIOUS GERMAN RELUCTANCE TO WITHDRAW FORCES FROM OTHER FRONTS WHICH ARE ALREADY LIGHTLY MANNED UNTIL CERTAIN OF THE MAIN DIRECTION OF ALLIED STRATEGY.

MOST COMMENTATORS IN LONDON ARE CONVINCED THAT THE GERMAN ARMY WILL REINFORCE THE ITALIAN GARRISON BEYOND THE 18 DIVISIONS BELIEVED THERE WHEN THE ALLIED FORCES LANDED. HOW MUCH BEYOND IS A QUESTION.

THE ITALIAN "INCIDENT" SAID THE NEW STATESMAN AND NATION, "MAY EVEN ASSUME THE DIMENSIONS OF A SECOND FRONT."

SHIFTING TROOPS TO MEET NEW STRATEGIC SITUATIONS, THE GERMANS WERE REPORTED BY AN UNDERGROUND SOURCE TO HAVE WITHDRAWN THREE DIVISIONS FROM NORWAY, ONE FROM HOLLAND AND ORDERED SIX DIVISIONS FROM THE HOME RESERVE TO ITALY AND SIX TO THE BALKANS. THESE FIGURES WERE NOT CONFIRMED AUTHORITATIVELY.

SOBER OPINION IN LONDON IS THAT IT WOULD TAKE 35 TO 40 DIVISIONS TO HOLD THE ALLIES BELOW THE LINE FROM WHICH THEY COULD EASILY AND EFFECTIVELY BOMB SOUTHERN GERMANY--THAT IS THE LINE ACROSS THE CALF OF THE ITALIAN BOOT IN THE VICINITY OF FLORENCE. GERMANY IS NOT BELIEVED ABLE TO SPARE THAT MANY MEN.

EQUALLY SOBER OPINION, HOWEVER, IS THAT HITLER, DETERMINED TO KEEP THE WAR OFF GERMAN SOIL, WILL RISK UPWARDS OF 25 OR 30 DIVISIONS IN AN EFFORT TO HOLD THE PO RIVER LINE INDEFINITELY.

LONDON, SEPT.18-(AP)-COVERING NEWS OF MEDITERRANEAN NAVAL OPERATIONS ACCOMPANYING THE BATTLE OF SALERNO HAS BEEN "A NIGHTMARE NOSTRUM" TO ALLIED WAR CORRESPONDENTS.

THAT QUIP BY JAMES COOPER OF THE LONDON DAILY EXPRESS WAS QUOTED BY DESMOND TIGHE OF REUTERS WHO SAID IN A DISPATCH FROM THE MEDITERRANEAN THAT THE CORRESPONDENTS "HAD ONE OF THE MOST DIFFICULT ASSIGNMENTS OF THIS WAR ENDEAVORING TO GET THE FIRST NAVAL NEWS BACK FROM SALERNO."

DESCRIBING HOW VARIOUS CORRESPONDENTS SENT DISPATCHES, TIGHE SAID:

"PAUL KERN LEE OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS, WHO HAS JUST ARRIVED IN MALTA AFTER 10 DAYS IN A BOMBARDING CRUISER, FIRED DISPATCHES BY SIGNAL LINE TO VARIOUS CRAFT WHICH DISAPPEARED IN EVERY DIRECTION.

"HE HAD ONE LUCKY BREAK WHEN HE THREW CABLES TO ONE VESSEL WHICH GOT HIT, WAS SLIGHTLY DAMAGED AND FORCED TO RETURN POST HASTE TO MALTA FOR REPAIRS. HE NOW FINDS THAT THE ONLY SUBSEQUENT DISPATCH WHICH ARRIVED WAS ONE BROUGHT BACK BY A COMPETING CORRESPONDENT."

COOPER TUCKED ONE DISPATCH UNDER THE ARMS OF A WOUNDED MAN BEING SLUNG OVERSIDE TO RETURN TO HIS BASE.

LONDON, SEPT.18-(AP)-THE IMMINENT RECONVENING OF PARLIAMENT HAS OPENED THE FLOOD-GATES FOR A RUSH OF POLITICAL QUESTIONS ABOUT THE UNFINISHED CONQUEST OF ITALY.

VARIOUS MEMBERS OF PARLIAMENT GAVE NOTICE THAT THEY WOULD ASK PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL THESE QUESTIONS:

WHY WAS NOT THE SURRENDER OF BENITO MUSSOLINI MADE A CONDITION OF THE ARMISTICE FOR ITALY?

HAS THE ITALIAN GOVERNMENT OF PIETRO BADOGLIO CONFIRMED THAT NO BRITISH PRISONERS WERE TRANSFERRED TO GERMANY AFTER MUSSOLINI'S FALL?

HAS AMG (THE ALLIED MILITARY GOVERNMENT) RECEIVED INSTRUCTIONS TO MAKE SURE THAT YOUNG ITALIANS NO LONGER ARE TAUGHT FASCISM?

WHO WAS RESPONSIBLE FOR BROADCASTING THE ITALIAN ARMISTICE TERMS BEFORE THEY WERE COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF COMMONS?

CHURCHILL IS EXPECTED TO MAKE A STATEMENT TO THE HOUSE AT AN EARLY SESSION ON THE QUEBEC WAR CONFERENCE AND THE ITALIAN SURRENDER. THE PRECISE DATE OF PARLIAMENT'S REASSEMBLING AFTER THE SUMMER RECESS WAS NOT DISCLOSED.

RHYS DAVIS GAVE NOTICE HE WOULD ASK SIR KINGSLEY WOOD, CHANCELLOR OF THE EXCHEQUER, WHY, AS HE SAID, THE BRITISH EMPIRE GAVE THE UNITED STATES A 90-YEAR LEASE ON ATLANTIC BASES IN EXCHANGE FOR A GROUP OF OVERAGE DESTROYERS, THE GOVERNMENT NOW WAS CALLED UPON TO PAY $5,600,000 IN THIS CONNECTION.

LONDON, SEPT.18-(AP)-FOLLOWING IS THE TEXT OF PREMIER MARSHAL STALIN'S ORDER OF THE DAY BROADCAST FROM MOSCOW AND RECORDED BY THE SOVIET MONITOR:

THE SECOND GUARDS CAVALRY CORPS UNDER MAJ. GEN. KRYUKOV, IN FIGHTING TO FORCE THE RIVER DESNA SEPT.11-15, DISPLAYED EXAMPLES OF MILITARY SKILL, STEADFASTNESS AND ABILITY OF MANEUVER. UNITS OF THE CORPS, BREAKING THROUGH TO THE REAR OF THE ENEMY FORCED THE RIVER DESNA AND CAPTURED THE PLACE D'ARMES (FORTIFIED POINT) ON THE WEST BANK AND HELD IT FOR FOUR DAYS UNTIL THE ARRIVAL OF OUR INFANTRY REPULSING NUMEROUS COUNTERATTACKS LAUNCHED BY LARGE GERMAN FORCES SUPPORTED BY TANKS AND AIRCRAFT.

FOR GALLANT AND DETERMINED OPERATIONS IN FORCING THE RIVER DESNA THE SECOND GUARDS CAVALRY CORPS IS RECOMMENDED FOR THE AWARD OF THE ORDER OF THE RED BANNER.

THE 20TH CAVALRY DIVISION, BELONGING TO THE ABOVE NAMED CORPS, WHICH ALREADY HOLDS THE RED BANNER AS WELL AS THE ORDER OF LENIN, WILL BE MADE THE 17TH GUARDS CAVALRY DIVISION HOLDING THE RED BANNER AND ORDER OF LENIN.

THE COMMANDER OF THE DIVISION IS MAJ. GEN. P.T.KURSAKOV. THE NEW GUARDS DIVISION WILL BE PRESENTED WITH THE GUARDS BANNER. FOR THE SUCCESSFUL FORCING OF THE RIVER DESNA THE COMMANDER OF THE CORPS AS WELL AS THE COMMANDERS OF FORMATIONS AND UNITS WHICH HAVE DISTINGUISHED THEMSELVES WILL BE RECOMMENDED FOR THE AWARD OF THE ORDER OF SUGOROV.

THE TITLE OF HERO OF THE SOVIET UNION IS CONFERRED ON SEVEN OFFICERS. THE ORDER OF SUVOROV FOR THE NOVOROSSISK OPERATIONS IS CONFERRED ON REAR ADMIRAL KHOLOSTYAKOV AND LT. GEN. LESELIDZEWELL AS WELL AS SEVEN OTHER OFFICERS OF THE RED ARMY.

FOR OPERATIONS IN FORCING THE RIVER DESNA THE ORDER OF SUVOROV IS CONFERRED ON LT. GENERALS FEDYUNINSKY AND BOLDIN.

FIFTEEN OTHER GENERALS AND OFFICERS RECEIVE THE ORDERS OF SUVOROV AND KUTUZOV OF FIRST, SECOND AND THIRD CLASS FOR THE SAME OPERATION.

FOR OPERATIONS IN THE AREA OF TAGANROG AND OSSIPENKO (BERDYANSK) THE ORDER OF KUTUZOV FIRST CLASS IS CONFERRED ON REAR ADMIRAL GORSHKOV AND THE ORDERS OF SUVOROV OF THE SECOND AND THIRD CLASS ON SIX OTHER OFFICERS.

LONDON, SEPT.18-(AP)-THE NEW STATESMAN AND NATION, FOREMOST BRITISH LIBERAL WEEKLY, REPORTED TODAY THAT "ONE OF THE QUEEREST THINGS IN LONDON NOW IS THE AMERICAN INVASION OF JEWELERS SHOPS."

"THEY STREAM THROUGH THEM," THE PUBLICATION SAID, "SEEKING NOT JEWELS APPARENTLY, BUT SILVER; TEA SETS, SPOONS, ESPECIALLY ANTIQUE ONES."

this information was represented as coming from reliable italians who had been in rome "within the past few days." they were quoted as saying that mussolini had attempted no violence during his confinement, but had spent most of the time writing what was believed to be a defense of his regime and his personal part in bringing italy into the alliance with germany.

a reuter dispatch also told of the arrest by italian authorities of the signorine pettacci - miria (correct) and clara - who were in the latest crop of mussolini's girl friends. the entire pettacci family, including the parents, brothers and sisters, were arrested on a charge that clara possessed valuable state docu,ents, but the arrests was only temporrary, according to the dispatch, and they afterward were released.

the account added that following the arrests italian newspapers related such intimate details of mussolini's love life that the public found it in bad taste.

under a banner frontpage headline one london evening newspaper today published an associated press photograph which, the german caption said, showed the deposed duce leaving the gran sasso hotel, where he was supposed to have had been held prisoner. the photo showed the uniform-loving mussolini in civilian clothes, the first time he was pictured in mufti in years.

surrounding him in the picture were some nazi parachtists credited with releasing him from his prison quarters in the hotel, situated in the abruzzi mountains north of rome. the exact location of the hotel was in dispute here, some describing it as an ita... luxury resort with 70 rooms and nine baths and others as a small mountain retreat.

aside from the fact that it showed mussolini walking unaided, the photo shed no light on the condition of his health. in the recent rash of contributions to the "mussolini saga" he had been described variously as having been injured in a melee when the germans burst into his room and the italian guards tried to shoot him; as suffering a gastric order for which he was going to berchtesgaden for treatment, and as suffering from cancer beyond the operating stage. none of these reports were confirmed.

(ADVANCE) LONDON, SEPT. 19-(AP)-THE CONTROVERSY BETWEEN PRODUCTION AND MERCHANT CIRCLES OVER THE FATE OF BRITISH OVERSEAS COTTONS, LTD., AFTER THE WAR HELD THE SPOTLIGHT IN THE COTTON SECTION OF THE TEXTILE INDUSTRY THIS WEEK.

SIGNIFICANT WAS THE ACTION OF THE CENTRAL COMMITTEE OF COTTON SPINNERS AND MANUFACTURERS ASSOCIATION WHICH MET AT MANCHESTER AND VOTED UNANIMOUSLY TO FAVOR CONTINUANCE OF BOC'S ACTIVITIES IN PEACETIME. THIS WAS VIGOROUSLY OPPOSED BY VARIOUS MERCHANTS' ORGANIZATIONS.

BOC IS A SEMI-GOVERNMENT WARTIME AGENCY SET UP FOR THE PURPOSE OF HANDLING SALES OF COTTON OVERSEAS. THE RESOLUTION URGED THAT THE "ORGANIZATION SHOULD BE MAINTAINED AS ONE ESSENTIAL FEATURE OF POSTWAR REORGANIZATION" ON THE GROUND THAT IT PROVED TO BE OF GREAT VALUE IN DIFFICULT CIRCUMSTANCES WHICH MAY BE EXPECTED TO CONTINUE IN DIFFERENT FORMS AFTER THE WAR.

THE MANCHESTER GUARDIAN COMMENTED THAT: "WARTIME CONDITIONS HAVE CHECKED PROGRESS IN MANY DIRECTIONS BUT HAVE ENCOURAGED INDUSTRIES TO TRY NEW FORMS OF ORGANIZATION.

"THERE CAN BE NO DOUBT THAT BOC HAS DEVELOPED INTO A MOST USEFUL FORM OF COOPERATIVE MACHINERY FOR ARRANGING ECONOMICAL LARGE-SCALE PRODUCTION FOR EXPORT WHEN DISTRIBUTION MUST IN MANY INSTANCES BE ON A SMALL SCALE."

-DASH-

CONTINUED BRISK DEMAND FOR SUPPLIES OF COTTON CLOTH FOR THE ARMED FORCES CAME MAINLY FROM THE AIR MINISTRY. SOME NEW ORDERS ALSO WERE PLACED IN TIRE YARNS.

EXPORT TRANSACTIONS WERE ON A VERY SMALL SCALE AND YARN BUSINESS WAS HAMPERED BY A DELIVERY PROBLEM WITH MOST NEW CONTRACTS FOR DELIVERY WELL INTO NEXT YEAR.

-DASH-

BULK OF FAIRLY ACTIVE WOOL BUSINESS WAS FOR UTILITY REQUIREMENTS DURING THE REMAINDER OF THE CURRENT PRODUCTION PERIOD.

MOST FIRMS COVERED THEIR NEEDS AT ABOUT THE LEVEL OF PRICES WHICH RECENTLY WERE ORDERED.

-DASH-

PRICE STABILITY CONTINUED A FEATURE OF THE RAYON INDUSTRY. IT HAS BEEN MORE THAN TWO YEARS SINCE THE LAST INCREASE FOR YARNS TOOK PLACE. THERE IS NO CHANGE FOR NOVEMBER DELIVERY. DEMAND IS PACED BY UTILITY FABRICS WHICH STILL ARE AHEAD OF PRODUCTION.

A U.S. BOMBER BASE IN ENGLAND, SEPT 18-(AP)-AMERICAN FIGHTER PILOTS HAVE PROMISED THE BOMBER BOYS TO KNOCK DOWN A CERTAIN "YELLOW DEVIL" OVER FRANCE.

SEVERAL VETERAN FLYING FORTRESS OFFICERS SWEAR COOLLY THAT THEY REPEATEDLY HAVE SEEN ONE PARTICULAR FOCKE-WULF 190 FOR MONTHS OVER FRANCE, AND THAT THE THUNDERBOLTS WOULD BE DOING EVERY B-17 CREWMAN A PERSONAL FAVOR IF THEY KNOCKED HIM DOWN.

"WHOEVER HE IS, THAT GUY SURE KNOWS HOW TO TAKE EVERY ADVANTAGE IN THAT GOLDEN YELLOW BUGGY PLANE SO DOLLED UP THAT IT SPARKLES LIKE A CIRCUS WAGON WHEN IT IS COMING IN FROM THE SUN," SAID LT. ROBERT E.GOODWIN, 700 QUACKENBUSH ST., N.W., WASHINGTON, D.C., NAVIGATOR OF THE FORTRESS THUNDERMUG, WHO HAS 24 AIR BATTLES TO HIS CREDIT.

GOODWIN SAW THE "YELLOW DEVIL" OVER PARIS WEDNESDAY.

"I WOULD SWEAR HE IS THE SAME SMARTY WE FIRST RAN INTO OVER LORIENT MAY 17 AND RENNES MAY 29," HE SAID. "I GOT TIME TO LOOK AROUND AND THE WAY HE FLIES YOU CAN'T MISTAKE HIM. OTHER GUYS SPOTTED HIM, TOO."

THE OTHER DAY THE FORTRESS MEN TOLD THE STORY OF THE "GOLDEN BUGGY" TO A BUNCH OF P-47 PILOTS.

"THOSE FIGHTER FELLOWS KEPT US EXPLAINING THE YELLOW DEVIL'S TACTICS FOR HALF AN HOUR," SAID CAPT. ROGER A.STEVENSON, 603 BELLEVILLE ST., LEBANON, ILL., PILOT OPERATIONS OFFICER WHO GOT A FOCKE-WULF 190 HIMSELF WHILE RIDING TO PARIS AS AN OBSERVER THE OTHER DAY.

"THEN THEY SAID, 'THAT'S ALL WE WANT TO KNOW. WE'LL GET HIM.' AND BOY, THEY MEANT IT. WHEN THE P-47S CATCH HIM SASHAYING AROUND, HE'S A DEAD PIGEON."

THE YELLOW DEVIL DOESN'T CARE HOW CLOSE HE COMES," GOODWIN SAID. "USUALLY HE WAITS UNTIL HE CAN FIRE IN YOUR FACE.

"HE MUST BE A HIGH MUCKETY-MUCK SQUADRON LEADER OR SOMETHING WHO JUST COMES UP TO TRY TO PUT SOME STEAM INTO THE YOUNGER BOYS. HE SENDS THEM OUT ON ONE SIDE TO DRAW THE FORTRESSES' FIRE AND THEN WHOOSH WHEN YOU AIN'T LOOKING HE'S PAST LIKE A BALL OF FIRE.

"HE HAS COME SO CLOSE TO US I'VE SEEN THE WHITE SCARF HE WEARS TUCKED UNDER HIS OXYGEN MASK.

"AND HE'S GOT ABOUT FOUR AMERICAN FLAGS ON HIS FUSELAGE. THAT'S WHAT MAKES US MAD."

"THE WAY THAT GUY HUNG AROUND OVER PARIS THE OTHER DAY, HE MUST OWN SOME OF THE PUBS IN THE TOWN, BECAUSE HE SURE PUT IN A DAY'S WORK," SAID FLIGHT OFFICER VASIL MARKOFF, 1236 MARKET ST., SAN FRANCISCO.

"BUT I GUESS IT WON'T BE LONG TILL THE FIGHTER BOYS MAKE A CHRISTIAN OUT OF HIM."

ALTHOUGH THERE HAVE BEEN RUMORS OF SIMILAR GERMAN PLANS, THE ARTICLE CREATED UNUSUAL INTEREST IN MADRID BECAUSE IT APPEARED UNDER A BERLIN DATELINE WITHOUT THE USUAL HINTS OF "DIPLOMATIC SURPRISES"--WHICH IN THE PAST HAVE BEEN INTERPRETED HERE TO REFER TO A POSSIBLE GERMAN-SOVIET AGREEMENT.

THE FACT THAT THE RUSSIANS, AFTER TWO MONTHS OF OFFENSIVE OPERATIONS, ARE STILL ABLE TO UNLEASH ATTACKS OF GREAT FURY AND POWER MIGHT JUSTIFY COMPLETELY THE BLACKEST PESSIMISM, THE ARTICLE SAID, AND ADDED:

"NEVERTHELESS, ABOVE ALL OFFICIAL EXPLANATIONS--AND IN PASSING IT MIGHT BE SAID THAT ONE DOES NOT TALK ABOUT AN ELASTIC DEFENSE ANY MORE--ONE POSSIBILITY AND ONE DOUBT HAVE EMERGED.

"A YEAR AGO THE GREATEST PART OF GERMANY'S CONSTRUCTION ORGANIZATION AND ALL OF THE MOST FORMIDABLE CONSTRUCTION GROUP IN THE WORLD (THE TODT ORGANIZATION) WENT TO POLAND."

THAT WAS THE POSSIBILITY HE MENTIONED--THE CONSTRUCTION BY THE GERMANS OF A GREAT EASTERN DEFENSIVE WALL.

THE DOUBT, HE SAID, WAS THE EFFECT OF THE GERMAN RETREATS ON HOME MORALE. "THE CALM EVACUATION OF MARIUPOL AND TAGANROG" MIGHT BE EXPLAINED TO THE GERMAN PEOPLE, HE SAID, BUT ADMITTED IT WOULD BE DIFFICULT FOR THEM TO UNDERSTAND THE ENTIRE TWO MONTHS OF WITHDRAWALS ON THE RUSSIAN FRONT.

HE SAID IT WAS TRUE THAT NO OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT HAD BEEN MADE OF A GERMAN PLAN TO GIVE UP MOST OF THE TERRITORY HER ARMIES NOW HOLD IN RUSSIA, "BUT NOBODY IN GERMANY CONSIDERS THAT THE PRESENT UNFAVORABLE MOVEMENTS ARE DUE TO THE WEAKNESS OF THE GERMAN ARMY OR THE WEARINESS OF ITS SOLDIERS." #

GERMANY'S ENERGETIC ACTION IN ITALY HAS INDUCED RESPONSIBLE HUNGARIANS TO PROCEED "MORE PRUDENTLY", THE NEWSPAPER ADDED. MANY HUNGARIANS BELIEVE, HOWEVER, IT WAS POINTED OUT, THAT THE TRIPARTITE PACT, OF WHICH HUNGARY WAS A SIGNER, WAS VOIDED BROKEN WHEN ITALY XXXXXXXXXX CAPITULATED TO THE ALLIES. HENCE, IT WAS ARGUED, HUNGARY IS RELEASED FROM HER OBLIGATION UNDER THE AGREEMENT AND IS AT LIBERTY TO RESIGN.

"LATER, ALTHOUGH UNDER CONSTANT AIR ATTACK, WE WERE ABLE TO PROCEED INLAND ABOUT HALF A MILE TO THE DIVISION COMMAND POST."

THERE THEY FOUND TWO PUBLIC RELATIONS OFFICERS, LT. JOHN SENSENEY, FORMER ST. LOUIS, MO., NEWSPAPERMAN, AND LT. JACK BEARWOOD, FORMER ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER ON THE WASHINGTON STAFF.

THE NEXT MORNING GRAHAM WAS CHOSEN TO CARRY BACK A POUCH OF STORIES AND PICTURES AND PERSUADED THE BEACH MASTER TO GIVE HIM TRANSPORTATION ON A TANK LANDING SHIP, ONLY TO LEARN THAT IT HAD BEEN UNABLE TO UNLOAD ITS CARGO OF AMMUNITION.

"I PROCEEDED TO FOUR OTHER SHIPS AND WAS TOLD THE SAME THING," GRAHAM SAID. "I THEREFORE RETURNED TO THE HEADQUARTERS SHIP AND SPENT THE NIGHT. WE WERE UNDER CONSTANT BOMBARDMENT THAT NIGHT. THE GERMANS DROPPED SO MANY FLARES YOU COULD GO OUT AND SHAVE BY THEIR LIGHT. FORTUNATELY, HOWEVER, WE WERE NOT HIT.

"THE FOLLOWING DAY, SATURDAY, WE WERE FINALLY PERMITTED TO MOVE UP THE BEACH AND UNLOAD THE AMMUNITION. THIS TOOK ALL DAY. I WANTED TO RETURN TO THE DIVISION COMMAND POST BUT DID NOT DO SO BECAUSE, FIRST, THE SHIP MIGHT GO OFF AND LEAVE ME, AND SECOND, I FIGURED THE CORRESPONDENTS MIGHT HANG ME IF THEY FOUND OUT THEIR STUFF HADN'T LEFT ITALY. THAT NIGHT THE GERMANS CONTINUED TO BOMB US."

THE SHIP FINALLY LEFT THE BEACH SUNDAY AFTERNOON AND REACHED A SICILIAN PORT AT NOON THE NEXT DAY. GRAHAM MANAGED TO GET ASHORE BEFORE DARK.

HE TRIED VAINLY TO GET A SPECIAL PLANE TO CARRY THE POUCH, AND THE REGULAR COURIER PLANE HAD BROKEN DOWN, BUT HE FINALLY MANAGED TO GET THE POUCH ON ANOTHER PLANE LATE MONDAY.

GERMAN PILOTS TRIED FRANTICALLY TO GET SEVERAL PLANES INTO THE AIR, BUT ONLY ONE ESCAPED DESTRUCTION. THE OTHERS WERE KNOCKED OUT AS THEY WERE TAXIING ON THE RUNWAY.

IN ALL THE DAY'S ATTACKS HERE AND ELSEWHERE, THREE ALLIED PLANES WERE LOST. TWO GERMAN FIGHTERS WERE LOST. TWO GERMAN FIGHTERS WERE DOWNED IN THE AIR THURSDAY NIGHT.

WITH THE AMERICAN FIFTH ARMY IN ITALY, SEPT 18-(AP)-THE END OF THE TENTH FULL DAY SINCE THE ALLIED LANDING ON THE COAST OF THE GULF OF SALERNO FOUND THE U.S.FIFTH ARMY PREPARING AN OFFENSIVE TODAY AGAINST

A STRONG, AGRESSIVE, AND EXCEEDINGLY WELL DIRECTED GERMAN ARMY.

THE GERMANS OBVIOUSLY ARE DETERMINED TO FIGHT FOR EVERY INCH OF ITALY.

THE SALIENT FACT EMERGING FROM THESE 10 DAYS OF HEAVY FIGHTING IS THAT THE GERMANS WON'T PULL OUT WITHOUT A STRUGGLE. AS IN SICILY, THE MOUNTAIN TERRAIN HERE HEAVILY FAVORS THE DEFENSIVE AND THIS MAY COUNTER BALANCE THE ALLIED SUPERIORITY IN NUMBERS.

THE AMERICAN HIGH COMMAND IS THOROUGHLY SATISFIED WITH THE RESULTS OF THESE 10 DAYS. THE GULF OF SALERNO FROM AGROPOLI TO SALERNO HAS BEEN FIRMLY SECURED AND THE HIGH GROUND OVERLOOKING THE PLAIN IS NOW LARGELY IN OUR HANDS.

THE JUNCTION OF THE BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY WITH THE FIFTH BENT THE NARROW GERMAN LINE INTO A CRESCENT IN FRONT OF NAPLES. DIFFICULT MOUNTAINS THERE, AND THE SCARCITY OF REAL ROADS MAKES THAT A STRONG DEFENSIVE POSITION FOR THE ENEMY.

WHERE WE HAVE COMPLETE SUPERIORITY IS IN THE AIR AND ARTILLERY.

THE ONLY GERMAN PLANES WE EVER SEE ARE SMALL GROUPS OF SNEAK RAIDERS WHO RACE IN THREE OR FOUR TIMES DAILY BOMBING SHIPS AND OCCASIONALLY STRAFING GROUND POSITIONS. OTHERWISE THE ALLIES FULLY CONTROL THE SKIES AND ARE MAKING THE GREATEST USE OF THEIR SUPERIORITY MAINLY BY BOMBING GERMAN SUPPLY LINES AND STRONG POINTS IN THE HILLS.

THIS SEVERELY HAMPERS THE MOVEMENT OF SUPPLIES BY THE GERMANS FROM THE NORTH, BUT HUGE STORES WERE BELIEVED TO HAVE BEEN PILED IN THIS AREA BEFORE THE LANDING AND THERE IS LITTLE LIKELIHOOD OF SHORTAGES.

WARSHIPS HAVE BEEN MAKING A SPECTACULAR CONTRIBUTION TO ALLIED FIRE POWER HAMMERING ENEMY POSITIONS AS MUCH AS 15 MILES FROM THE COAST WITH INCREDIBLE ACCURACY. AT THE FRONT YOU CAN SEE BIG SHELLS PILING INTO PIN-POINT TARGETS AS THOUGH THEY WERE FIRED FROM JUST ACROSS THE VALLEY.

THE OVERALL PICTURE AS IT APPEARS AT THIS MOMENT: THE ALLIES FACE A LONG, TOUGH FIGHT SIMILAR TO THE LAST THIRD OF THE SICILIAN CAMPAIGN LITERALLY BLASTING THE GERMANS FROM ONE ROCK AFTER ANOTHER.

AT LEAST A DOZEN BOMBS HAVE DROPPED WITHIN 100 YARDS OF THE SHIP, AND ONE CAME SO CLOSE IT LIFTED THE STERN OUT OF THE WATER, BUT NO HARM WAS DONE.

THE GERMANS DON'T ALWAYS MISS. HOWEVER, OUR SHIPS' LOSSES HAVE BEEN FAR BELOW EXPECTATIONS FOR OPERATIONS OF THIS MAGNITUDE,

I WAS TOLD BY A SHIP'S OFFICER.

IF FIRE BREAKS OUT ABOARD A SHIP AMONG THE FIRST TO REACH HER USUALLY ARE THE DAMAGE CONTROL OFFICER AND HIS FIRE AND RESCUE PARTY. THIS EFFICIENT OFFICER HAS A REPUTATION AMONG HIS SHIPMATES AS A MAN WITHOUT NERVES. HE TAKES HIS MEN IN TO FIGHT THE FIRES REGARDLESS OF DANGER, AND SOMETIMES WHEN OTHERS THINK THE SITUATION IS HOPELESS.

WHEN FIRE BROKE OUT ABOARD A BRITISH SHIP THE OTHER DAY THE FIRE AND RESCUE PARTY WENT TO THE SCENE. CLIFFORD B.BARNHILL, OF BREMERTON WASH. WAS HOISTED ON THE DECK OF THE ABANDONED VESSEL WITH A WATER HOSE AND HE BEGAN POURING WATER INTO A COMPARTMENT STORED WITH AMMUNITION AND POWDER BAGS.

THE FIRE PARTY TOSSED SOME POWDER OVERBOARD AND WITHIN A SHORT TIME HAD THE FIRE UNDER CONTROL, SAVING THE VALUABLE CARGO.

THE MEN OF THE NAVY HAVE TO MOVE FAST WHEN THINGS GET TO POPPING ALONG BOMBERS' ALLEY. THERE'S NO TIME TO THINK.

ONE OF THE MOST IMPORTANT FLEET DEFENSES LIES IN AIRPLANE RECOGNITION.

WHEN A PLANE COMES HURTLING ACROSS THE GULF, THE GUNNERS MUST BE ABLE TO TELL AT A GLANCE WHETHER ITS A MESSERSCHMITT, A FOCKE-WULF, A SPITFIRE OR A WARHAWK. CONSIDERING THE SPEED WITH WHICH THE PLANE MOVES THERE ARE FEW MISTAKES IN IDENTIFYING HOSTILE AND FRIENDLY PLANES.

BEFORE THE ITALIAN INVASION THE NAVY PUT 1,200 MEN THROUGH AIRPLANE CONSTRUCTION CLASSES TAUGHT BY LIEUT. (JG) WILLIAM EDWIN HOBSON, OF 219 MORGAN ST., CRAWFORDSVILLE, IND., AND ENSIGN THOMAS H. KELLY, OF DURYEA, PA.

WITH AUSTRALIAN FORCES IN LAE, NEW GUINEA, SEPT 19 (SUNDAY)-(AP)-THE CAPTURE OF LAE, JUST FOUR DAYS AFTER THE OCCUPATION OF SALAMAUA, MARKED THE SUCCESSFUL COMPLETION OF THE ALLIES' FIRST FULLY COORDINATED LAND, SEA AND AIR OPERATION IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC.

ALSO, IT ALMOST SURELY MARKED THE BEGINNING OF THE END OF THE JAPANESE GRIP ON ISLAND BASES IMMEDIATELY NORTH OF AUSTRALIA.

IN ADDITION, IT REMOVED A BIG OBSTACLE FROM THE ROAD LEADING BACK TO THE PHILIPPINES.

"WITH GOD'S HELP, WE ARE MAKING OUR WAY BACK," GENERAL DOUGLAS MACARTHUR SAID IN ANNOUNCING THE VICTORY.

GEN.SIR THOMAS BLAMEY, COMMANDER OF ALLIED LAND FORCES IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, COMMENTED ONLY A FEW DAYS AGO THAT IT WAS THE

STRENGTHENING OF OUR NAVAL FORCE, BOTH IN WARSHIPS AND LANDING CRAFT, WHICH MADE THE ASSAULT ON THE JAPANESE BASE AT LAE POSSIBLE. IT ENABLED THE ALLIES TO DRIVE ON THE ENEMY STRONGHOLD FROM BOTH EAST AND WEST IN AN EXPERTLY CONCEIVED AND EXECUTED PINCER MOVEMENT.

WITH THE FORCES UNDER GENERAL MACARTUR'S COMMAND STEADILY BEING BUILT UP, SUCH AMPHIBIOUS OPERATIONS CAN BE EXPANDED.

FROM THE STANDPOINT OF AERIAL STRIKES, THE LAE-SALAMAUA VICTORY TREMENDOUSLY IMPROVED THE ALLIED POSITION.

SEP 9 1943

ALREADY THERE IS A POTENTIAL FORWARD AIRBASE AT NADZAB, WHERE TRANSPORT PLANES LANDED TROOPS AND SUPPLIES FOR THE MARKHAM VALLEY PUSH OF 20 MILES TO LAE. THERE IS STRONG LIKELIHOOD THAT AIRDROMES AT LAE ITSELF SOON WILL BE ABLE TO ACCOMODATE ALLIED AIRCRAFT

FROM LAE, SOME OF THE MOST VITAL JAPANESE STRONGPOINTS REMAINING IN NEW GUINEA AND IN NEW BRITAIN ARE WITHIN EASY STRIKING RANGE. TO THE NORTHWEST, IT IS ONLY 130 MILES TO MADANG AND LESS THAN 300 MILES TO WEWAK. TO THE NORTHEAST, ON NEW BRITAIN, CAPE GLOUCESTER IS 120 MILES DISTANT, GASMATA 220 AND RABAUL ABOUT 400 MILES.

AUSTRALIAN TROOPS WERE IN ACTION FOR ONLY BRIEF PERIODS DURING THE LATEST OPERATIONS AND SUFFERED RELATIVELY LIGHT CASUALTIES. HENCE THEY SHOULD BE IN SHAPE FOR ANY NEW MOVE. IN ADDITION THERE IS A RESERVE OF AMERICAN TROOPS. SINCE COMPLETION OF THE PAPUAN CAMPAIGN LAST JANUARY NO AMERICAN UNITS HAVE SEEN COMBAT ACTION OUTSIDE OF THE 162ND INFANTRY OF THE 41ST DIVISION. THIS REGIMENT FOUGHT BESIDE THE AUSTRALIANS IN THE DRIVE ON SALAMAUA. U.S.PARATROOPERS SAW LIMITED ACTION AND HAD NO MORE THAN A SKIRMISH WITH THE ENEMY IN THE UNEXPECTEDLY BRIEF FIGHT FOR LAE.

FROM THE VIEWPOINT OF AUSTRALIAN VETERANS WHO SWEPT DOWN THE BROAD MARKHAM VALLEY, THE TOTAL LACK OF JAPANESE AERIAL INTERFERENCE WAS NOTABLE. AUSTRALIAN FORCES WHICH ADVANCED ALONG THE HUON GULF COAST AFTER AN AMPHIBIOUS LANDING WERE HARASSED OCCASIONALLY BY DIVE BOMBERS AND STRAFING ZEROS, BUT TROOPS IN THE MARKHAM VALLEY PUSH WERE NOT SURE THEY SAW A SINGLE ENEMY AIRCRAFT.

IN CONTRAST, THE SKY WAS FILLED ALL DAY WITH OUR FIGHTERS, BOMBERS AND TRANSPORTS. NOT ONCE DID THE ENEMY ATTEMPT TO INTERCEPT FLIGHTS INTO NADZAB AIRDROME ALTHOUGH ON A SINGLE DAY THE C-47'S MADE MORE THAN 150 FLIGHTS ONTO THE STRIP.

ON OUR WAY TO THE LAE FRONT, WE STOPPED BRIEFLY AT DOBODURA, ABOVE BUNA, WHERE IN JANUARY THERE WERE ROUGH-HEWN LANDING STRIPS CUT OUT OF FIELDS HEAD HIGH WITH KUNAI GRASS. NOW THERE ARE A BEWILDERING SERIES OF LANDING STRIPS, TAXI RAMPS, DISPERSAL AREAS AND EVEN FROM THE AIR IT IS DIFFICULT TO MAKE OUT THE AIRDROME PATTERN.

AS ONE PILOT PUT IT AT ONE OF THE TRANSPORT LANDING STRIPS: "ALL WE NEED HERE IS A LOUDSPEAKER SYSTEM CALLING 'FLIGHT FOUR NOW LEAVING FOR NADZAB FROM RAMP 10, ALL ABOARD,' TO MAKE THIS PLACE MORE IMPRESSIVE THAN LA GUARDIA FIELD."

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, SEPT. 19-(AP)-UNITS OF THE UNITED STATES AIR FORCES ARE GIVING THE JAPANESE NO LET-UP IN THEIR LONG VIGIL AGAINST ENEMY SHIPPING LANES IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC.

LIBERATOR BOMBERS SPOTTED FOUR CARGO VESSELS IN WATERS OF THE NEW IRELAND AREA YESTERDAY, SINKING ONE AND DAMAGING THE OTHERS BY STRAFING OR BOMBING.

NORTHWEST OF MUSSAU ISLAND NEAR CAPE ST.GEORGE, A LIBERATOR PILOTED BY 1ST LT. HARRY YOUNG, CHICAGO, ILL., SIGHTED THREE SMALL CARGO VESSELS OF THE TYPE THE JAPANESE USE EXTENSIVELY ALONG COASTAL REGIONS FOR TROOPS AND SUPPLIES.

YOUNG MADE TWO SKIP-BOMBING RUNS AND SANK ONE SHIP. HE CAME BACK LOW TO STRAFE THE OTHER TWO FROM LOW ALTITUDE. THE SECOND VESSEL WAS LEFT BURNING AND THE THIRD WAS BADLY DAMAGED. FLYING DEBRIS DAMAGED THE PLANE, BUT NONE OF THE CREW WAS INJURED AND THE BOMBER RETURNED SAFELY TO BASE.

CO-PILOT OF THE LIBERATOR WAS 2ND LT. JAMES MYER, STALGIERS,

STRIKING JUNGLE TROOPS IN A MAJOR STEP BY GEN. DOUGLAS MACARTHUR TOWARD HIS AVOWED RETURN TO THE PHILIPPINES.

"WITH GOD'S HELP, WE ARE MAKING OUR WAY BACK," THE RESOLUTE GENERAL SAID TODAY IN ANNOUNCING LAE'S CAPTURE.

ITS FALL THURSDAY, WITH THE FEW ENEMY SURVIVORS CHASED NORTH INTO A DEATH TRAP OF BLOCKADED JUNGLE TRAILS, OCCURRED WHILE THE LONG SMOULDERING SOLOMONS ARM OF THE PACIFIC OFFENSIVE WAS BEING RESET AFLAME BY MANY SCORES OF JAPANESE AND AMERICAN PLANES.

ALLIED AIR POWER, GROWING RAPIDLY AT BOTH ENDS OF THE 750-MILE BATTLE ARC, MADE POSSIBLE THE BRILLIANTLY EXECUTED 12-DAY PINCERS DRIVE WHICH SWALLOWED UP LAE. AFTER LIBERATORS AND MITCHELLS RAZED ITS LAST DEFENSES THURSDAY MORNING WITH 43 TONS OF BOMBS, THE AUSTRALIANS WHO MARCHED IN AND RAISED THEIR FLAG ON LAE'S CONTROL TOWER FOUND ONLY A FEW STRAGGLERS AMONG THE RUINS TO KILL.

A SPOKESMAN FOR GENERAL MACARTHUR SAID THAT 1,800 TONS OF BOMBS WERE DROPPED ON THE NOW CAPTURED AIR BASES OF LAE AND SALAMAUA--1,000 TONS IN AUGUST ALONE--DURING A CAMPAIGN AGAINST A JAPANESE ARMY ESTIMATED AT ONE TIME TO HAVE TOTALLED 20,000 MEN. HOW MANY OF THESE PERISHED REMAINS TO BE COMPUTED, THE LAST ESTIMATE BY AN ALLIED GENERAL OF 6,000 HAVING BEEN MADE MIDWAY IN THE OPERATIONS.

A FEW PRISONERS WERE TAKEN.

LAE HAS BEEN RAIDED ON 75 DAYS SINCE THE DRIVE OVER TORTUOUS JUNGLE AND RIDGE AGAINST NORTHEASTERN NEW GUINEA GOT UNDER WAY FROM THE ALLIED PAPUAN BASE OF BUNA LAST JAN. 28. SEA BARGES, THE ENEMY GARRISON'S PRINCIPAL MEANS OF SUPPLY,

WERE SO CONTINUOUSLY ATTACKED THAT 500 WERE DESTROYED IN A MONTH.

IN THE CLOSING STAGES LAE WAS POUNDED INTO A SHAMBLES. CONSEQUENTLY, THE AUSTRALIANS WHO LANDED FROM THE SEA ABOVE IT SEPT. 4, GUARDED BY GUNS OF AMERICAN WARSHIPS, AND THE PARA-TROOPERS WHO LANDED FROM AN IMMENSE FORMATION OF PLANES IN THE MARKHAM VALLEY BEHIND IT SEPT. 5, WERE ABLE TO ROUT THE JAPANESE FROM BOMB-SHATTERED PILLBOXES WITHOUT EXTENDED EFFORT.

FLIGHT OF THE ENEMY REMNANTS NORTH HAD BEEN FORESEEN. BLOCKADES, SOME MANNED BY AMERICAN PARATROOPS, HAD BEEN BUILT ACROSS TRAILS LEADING INTO MOUNTAINS WHICH RISE NEARLY 14,000 FEET.

"DESTRUCTION OF THESE REMNANTS IS CERTAIN," TODAY'S COMMUNIQUE SAID.

LAE, WITH ITS TWO AIRFIELDS, HAS BEEN USED BY THE JAPANESE AS THEIR MAIN NEW GUINEA COASTAL BASE SINCE THEY OCCUPIED IT IN JANUARY, 1942.

IN A SPECIAL FIELD HEADQUARTERS STATEMENT, GENERAL MACARTHUR SAID, "THE LAE VICTORY, ACCOMPLISHED IN THE FACE OF SUPERIOR FORCES AVAILABLE TO THE ENEMY, REPRESENTS A SERIOUS BLOW TO HIM."

AGAINST THE BOUGAINVILLE AIR BASES OF THE JAPANESE IN THE SOLOMONS, ADMIRAL WILLIAM F.HALSEY HAS FOLLOWED UP A RAID OF MORE THAN 200 AMERICAN PLANES ON TUESDAY BY SENDING ANOTHER BIG FORCE OF BOMBERS OF ALL CATEGORIES WEDNESDAY. AGAINST THESE, 100 JAPANESE FIGHTERS ROSE TO GIVE BATTLE. SIXTEEN WERE SHOT DOWN AGAINST THE LOSS OF THREE ESCORTING AMERICAN FIGHTERS.

THE BOMBERS DESTROYED TWO JAPANESE PLANES ON THE GROUND, DAMAGED MANY OTHERS AND SPREAD RUINS AMONG REPAIR AND SUPPLY DEPOTS.

IN A GIVE-AND-TAKE BATTLE FOR MASTERY OF THE SOLOMON SKIES, THE JAPANESE ON THE NIGHT OF SEPT. 14 AND IN THE PRE-DAWN OF SEPT. 15 SENT 60 PLANES TO RAID THE AMERICAN AIRFIELD OF MUNDA, NEW GEORGIA, AND NEARBY BARAKOMA, CAUSING MINOR DAMAGE AND CASUALTIES.

FIRST REPORTS SAID THE PARATROOPS ENCOUNTERED A STRONG ENEMY PATROL, KILLED 40 AND WOUNDED 18 AGAINST A HALF-DOZEN CASUALTIES FOR THEMSELVES. THE JAPANESE WERE SAID TO BE MARINES ACTING AS ADVANCE GUARDS FOR REMNANTS OF THE LAE GARRISON FRANTICALLY ATTEMPTING TO ESCAPE TO THE HILLS.

THE BUMBU RIVER RUNS FROM THE NORTH TO REACH THE SEA JUST EAST OF LAE.

ALL DURING THE AUTRALIANS' MARCH DOWN THE MARKHAM RIVER VALLEY, THEY HAVE BEEN ACCOMPANIED BY AMERICAN 'CHUTISTS SINGLY OR IN TWOS AND THREES. THESE LADS ALL WERE DETERMINED TO SEE SOME FIGHTING. SGT. HOLMES RECEIVED THE AWARD FOR "EXTRAORDINARY ACHIEVEMENT" WHILE ENGINEER AND TURRET GUNNER OF A HEAVY BOMBER WHICH FOUGHT OFF 16 ZEROS OVER FINSCHAFEN, NEW GUINEA, IN MAY 1943, DESTROYED FIVE OF THE ZEROS, AND RETURNED SUCCESSFULLY TO AN EMERGENCY LANDING FIELD.

MONTEVIDEO, URUGUAY, SEPT.18-(AP)-OBSERVERS OF THE TROUBLED ARGENTINE DOMESTIC AND FOREIGN POLITICAL SITUATION TONIGHT FOCUSED THEIR ATTENTION UPON THE SUDDEN RETURN TO BUENOS AIRES OF GEN. ARTURO RAWSON, CO-LEADER WITH PRESIDENT GENERAL PEDRO RAMIREZ OF THE JUNE 4 REVOLUTION WHICH OVERTHREW THE REGIME OF PRESIDENT RAMON S. CASTILLO.

RAWSON, WHO WAS RECENTLY NAMED ARGENTINE AMBASSADOR TO BRAZIL, WAS REPORTED SUMMONED TO THE CAPITAL BY RAMIREZ AS HE WAS MIDWAY THROUGH A TOUR OF ARGENTINA'S NORTHERN PROVINCES.

IT WAS BELIEVED RAMIREZ WISHED TO CONSULT HIM ON THE APPOINTMENT OF A NEW FOREIGN MINISTER TO SUCCEED VICE ADMIRAL SEGUNDO STORNI, WHO RESIGNED AFTER U.S. SECRETARY OF STATE CORDELL HULL REFUSED ARGENTINA'S REQUEST FOR LEASE-LEND AID. MINISTER OF THE INTERIOR GENERAL ALBERTO GILBERT, WHO HAS BEEN SERVING AS ACTING FOREIGN MINISTER, WAS UNDERSTOOD TO HAVE ASKED TO BE RELIEVED OF THE FOREIGN PORTFOLIO.

BUENOS AIRES, SEPT.18-(AP)-POLICE ARRESTED 12 PERSONS TAKING PART IN A PRO-DEMOCRATIC DEMONSTRATION ON A CROWDED DOWNTOWN STREET TONIGHT.

NEW YORK, SEPT. 18 (AP)—THE SWISS NEWSPAPER GAZETTE DE LAUSANNE IN AN ARTICLE REPORTED BY THE OFFICE OF WAR INFORMATION TONIGHT SAID THAT WOMEN AND CHILDREN ARE BEING EVACUATED FROM BRATISLAVA, PUPPET CAPITAL OF THE PUPPET STATE OF SLOVAKIA AND THAT AIR RAID SHELTERS ARE BEING BUILT IN PUBLIC SQUARES AND GARDENS.

OWI QUOTED THE ARTICLE AS SAYING THAT THE SLAV PORTION OF THE POPULATION, HOWEVER, BELIEVES THAT PRESIDENT EDUARD BENES, HEAD OF THE CZECHOSLOVAKIA GOVERNMENT IN EXILE, WILL BE ABLE TO PREVENT ALLIED AIRMEN FROM DESTROYING THE CITY.

THE EVACUATION, THE REPORT OF THE ARTICLE SAID, WAS CAUSED PARTIALLY BY A NAZI PLAN TO MOVE SEVERAL MINISTERIAL OFFICES THERE FROM VIENNA, THUS MAKING IT AN ATTRACTION FOR ALLIED AIRMEN.

AT THE SAME TIME OBS REPORTED A BROADCAST FROM BUDAPEST SAID CHILDREN WERE BEING EVACUATED FROM THE HUNGARIAN CAPITAL AND SURROUNDING TOWNS.

NEW YORK, SEPT. 18 (AP)—THE TOKYO RADIO SAID TONIGHT THAT THE JAPANESE AIR FORCE HAD THREE NEW TYPE PLANES THAT ALREADY HAD HAD THE ALLIES "SHIVER WITH FEAR."

9591 30.24-8591

THE BROADCAST, WHICH WAS CARRIED TO THE JAPANESE EMPIRE, WAS HEARD HERE BY THE U.S. FOREIGN BROADCAST INTELLIGENCE SERVICE.

THE TOKYO RADIO DESCRIBED THE PLANES—AN ARMY PATROL, A FIGHTER, AND A HEAVY BOMBER—HAD ALREADY ENGAGED IN "ANNIHILATION OPERATIONS."

SEP 19 1943

THE BROADCAST SAID THE PATROL PLANE WAS NAMED SHITEI (INDICATOR), THE FIGHTER PLANE SHOKI (A DEITY WHO PURIFIES THE SPIRIT), AND THE HEAVY BOMBER DONRYU (DRAGON EATER).

FOLO CLARK LEE'S YANK-[illegible]AN RENDEZVOUS

WASHINGTON, SEPT 18-(AP)-BRIG.GEN. MAXWELL TAYLOR, ONE OF THE TWO OFFICERS WHO MADE AN AUDACIOUS VISIT TO GERMAN-HELD ROME A FEW HOURS BEFORE THE SALERNO INVASION, SPANNED THE RANKS FROM CAPTAIN TO BRIGADIER GENERAL IN TWO YEARS.

THE HANDSOME, YOUTHFUL ARTILLERY OFFICER WAS A CAPTAIN IN 1940. THEN--AS WAR CLOUDS LOOMED--HE WAS NAMED A MAJOR AND, IN A QUICK SUCCESSION OF APPOINTMENTS, ROSE TO HIS TEMPORARY RANK OF BRIGADIER GENERAL IN 1942.

A NATIVE OF KEYTESVILLE, MO., TAYLOR ATTENDED KANSAS CITY JUNIOR COLLEGE AND WAS GRADUATED FROM WEST POINT IN 1922 AS A SECOND LIEUTENANT IN THE ENGINEERS. HE TRANSFERRED TO THE FIELD ARTILLERY IN 1926.

HE HAS BEEN ON DUTY IN HAWAII, AT FORT SAM HOUSTON, TEXAS, AND IN LATIN AMERICA; STUDIED IN JAPAN AND FRANCE, AND SERVED AS

AN ASSISTANT MILITARY ATTACHE IN PEKING, CHINA, AND AS AN INSTRUCTOR OF FRENCH AND SPANISH AT WEST POINT. HE IS A GRADUATE OF THE COMMAND AND GENERAL STAFF SCHOOL IN FORT LEAVENWORTH AND THE ARMY WAR COLLEGE IN WASHINGTON.

HIS LAST RECORDED ASSIGNMENTS IN THIS COUNTRY BEFORE GOING OVERSEAS WERE IN THE OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY OF GENERAL STAFF IN WASHINGTON AND, IN 1942, AS ASSISTANT DIVISION ARTILLERY COMMANDER IN THE 82ND AIRBORNE ARTILLERY--A UNIT THAT PARTICIPATED IN THE INVASION OF SICILY.

UNDATED GERMAN-RUSSIAN

SEP 19 1943

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MADRID DISPATCHES LAST (SAT) NIGHT SAID THAT THE GERMAN PRESS INCREASINGLY REFLECTS GERMAN PUBLIC WORRIES OVER AXIS REVERSES IN RUSSIA AND ITALY, AND ONE SPANISH CORRESPONDENT IN BERLIN SAID THE GERMANS MIGHT ABANDON THEIR RUSSIAN TERRITORY, WON AT SUCH FRIGHTFUL COST IN MEN AND MATERIAL, AND FALL BACK TO THE POLISH BORDER.

BERLIN'S OWN ADMISSIONS, SUPPLEMENTED BY MADRID AND STOCKHOLM REPORTS, SUGGESTED THAT THE GERMANS MIGHT RETREAT BEYOND THE DNIEPER RIVER, AND LENT WEIGHT TO PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S WORDS:

"THE RUSSIAN CAMPAIGN MOVES TOWARD THE ELIMINATION OF EVERY GERMAN FROM RUSSIAN SOIL--TOWARD THE INVASION OF GERMANY ITSELF."

THE BERLIN LOKAL ANZEIGER, A MADRID DISPATCH SAID, GAVE THE NAMES OF THREE MEN RECENTLY EXECUTED FOR "UNDERMINING MORALE BEHIND THE FRONT AND SAYING FAVORABLE THINGS ABOUT THE ENEMY." THEIR AGES RANGED FROM 27 TO 60.

SUCH EXECUTIONS USUALLY ARE CARRIED OUT WITHOUT THE BENEFIT OF PUBLICITY, BUT PUBLICATION IN THESE CASES APPARENTLY WAS PROMPTED BY AN EFFORT TO INSTILL FEAR AMONG OTHER GERMANS WHO HAVE NOT FALLEN FOR THE NAZI-DOCTORED PROPAGANDA LINE OF A GERMAN "ELASTIC DEFENSE" IN RUSSIA.

DESPITE THE RED ARMY'S RAPID ADVANCE IN RUSSIA'S FIRST SUMMER OFFENSIVE, IT STILL HAS HUNDREDS OF MILES TO GO BEFORE CLEARING THE INVADER FROM SOVIET TERRITORY, AND THE FALL RAINS, NOW BEGINNING, MAY CAUSE A POSTPONEMENT OF THE DRIVE UNTIL LATE NEXT MONTH.

THE IMMEDIATE RUSSIAN OBJECTIVE, THE DNIEPER RIVER, FORMS A NATURAL DEFENSE LINE, BUT IT IS STILL UNKNOWN WHETHER THE GERMANS WILL TRY TO STAND THERE. BEYOND THE DNIEPER ARE THE RUSSIAN BUG RIVER AND THE PINSK MARSHES, AND STILL FARTHER WEST ARE THE DNIESTER RIVER ON THE RUMANIAN BORDER AND THE POLISH BUG RIVER ON THE BORDERS OF OLD POLAND. ALL POSSIBLE DEFENSE LINES.

THE MOST SIGNIFICANT COMMENT OF THE DAY CAME FROM BERLIN RADIO, BROADCASTING A COMMENTARY BY CAPT.LUDVIG SERTORIUS, TRANSOCEAN NEWS AGENCY CORRESPONDENT, WHO FRANKLY SAID THAT THE GERMANS WERE RETREATING IN RUSSIA TO SPARE THEIR FORCES AND "IT IS NOT YET CLEAR WHERE AND WHEN" THEY WOULD HALT. HE ADDED THAT WHEN THE RETREAT IS OVER "THE GERMAN ARMIES WILL HAVE A FRONT LINE WHICH IS MUCH SHORTENED AND MUCH BETTER SUITED FOR DEFENSE."

A MORE SENSATIONAL VERSION CAME FROM SPANISH CORRESPONDENTS IN BERLIN. THEY SENT REPORTS TO MADRID THAT THE GERMANS MIGHT ABANDON THE RUSSIAN CAMPAIGN, RELINQUISH THE UKRAINE AND THE CRIMEA, AND DROP BACK SOME 620 MILES TO THE POLISH FRONTIER WHERE A GREAT DEFENSE WALL HAS BEEN BUILT.

STOCKHOLM ALSO QUOTED BERLIN DISPATCHES TO SWEDISH NEWSPAPERS SAYING THAT GERMANY WAS SO ANXIOUS TO SAVE SOLDIERS FOR OTHER FRONTS THAT A WITHDRAWAL FROM RUSSIA WAS NECESSARY.

NEW YORK, SEPT 18-(AP)-THE TOKYO RADIO APPARENTLY HAS WITHHELD FROM THE JAPANESE PEOPLE THE NEWS OF THE ALLIED CAPTURE OF LAE, THE OFFICE OF WAR INFORMATION REPORTED TODAY, BUT IT RECORDED A BROADCAST WHICH APPARENTLY WAS DESIGNED TO PREPARE THE PEOPLE FOR THE SETBACK.

A BROADCAST REPORTED BY OWI QUOTED A JAPANESE NAVAL CORRESPONDENT IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC AS SAYING JAPANESE FORCES WERE "FIGHTING NIGHT AND DAY TO CRUSH THE ENEMY FORCES."

"ENEMY AMERICAN AND AUSTRALIAN FORCES ATTACK OUR JUNGLE BASES, FIRST BY RAINING BOMBS ON US AND TEARING OPEN THE THICK JUNGLE," HE SAID. "THEN, MAKING USE OF AT LEAST 20 TIMES OUR MANPOWER, THE ENEMY APPROACHES IN VERY SYSTEMATIC ORDER."

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S REVIEW OF THE WAR LEFT ME WITH THE COMFORTABLE FEELING THAT THE COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF HAD CALLED ME INTO HIS PRIVATE OFFICE AND IN HIS OWN COLORFUL WAY HAD LAID BEFORE ME ALL THE ESSENTIAL FACTS WHICH ANY CITIZEN OUTSIDE THE HIGH COMMAND COULD REASONABLY EXPECT TO KNOW.

F.D.R.'S COMMENTARY STRUCK ME AS CALCULATED TO INSPIRE COMPLETE CONFIDENCE IN ALLIED PROGRESS, WHILE MAKING IT QUITE CLEAR THAT WE STILL HAVE A TOUGH JOB AHEAD OF US. ONE OF THE OUTSTANDING IMPRESSIONS IT CONVEYED WAS THAT THE PRESIDENT RECOGNIZES THE CITIZENRY CAN BE DEALT WITH ON A MAN-TO-MAN BASIS AND DOESN'T NEED TO BE BEATEN OVER THE HEAD WITH A PROPAGANDA CLUB IN ORDER TO KEEP IT IN LINE.

THE PRESIDENT HAD TO HOLD OUT ON US IN ONE IMPORTANT MATTER AND THAT'S WHEN WE ARE TO GET THE OTHER INVASIONS WHICH HAVE BEEN PROMISED. HE SAID NEW OPERATIONS WERE COMING, BUT HE DIDN'T SAY WHEN. STILL, THAT'S THE CONCERN OF OUR MILITARY CHIEFS AND WE NEED KNOW ONLY THAT THESE DANGEROUS EXPEDITIONS WILL BE UNDERTAKEN AS SOON AS IT IS FEASIBLE.

ONE OF THE PLACES WHERE INVASION IS POSSIBLE, OF COURSE, IS THE BALKANS AND WHILE MR. ROOSEVELT DIDN'T INVITE ANTICIPATION OF IMMEDIATE ACTION THERE HE DID MAKE A BLUNT AND SUGGESTIVE BID FOR RUMANIA, HUNGARY, AND BULGARIA TO DESERT HITLER. WITH THEM HE COUPLED FINLAND, WHICH HAS BEEN FLIRTING ANXIOUSLY WITH THE IDEA FOR SOME TIME.

THE SEED OF REVOLT WAS THROWN ON FERTILE GROUND IN THE BALKANS AND IF I WERE HEAD OF ONE OF THE THREE GOVERNMENTS CONCERNED I SHOULD BE INCLINED TO EXPECT INDIRECT AID OF SOME SORT FROM THE ALLIES IF MY COUNTRY THREW HITLER OVERBOARD. IT WOULD BE STRANGE IF A GENERAL UPHEAVAL IN THE PENINSULA DIDN'T BRING QUICK ACTION BY THE UNITED NATIONS.

IN THE MATTER OF THE EUROPEAN AIR FRONT MR. ROOSEVELT WAS MORE SPECIFIC. HE MADE THE QUIP THAT HITLER HAD FAILED TO ROOF THE EUROPEAN FORTRES WHICH THE NAZI CHIEF BOASTED WAS IMPREGNABLE. THE PRESIDENT THEN BLUNTLY ADVISED THE FUEHRER THAT BRITAIN AND AMERICA ARE GOING TO SET UP BOMBER BASES FROM WHICH SOUTHERN AND EASTERN GERMANY WILL BE DEVASTATED.

THE WAR INDUSTRIES OF THESE ISOLATED PARTS OF THE REICH HAVE BECOME ABSOLUTELY VITAL TO HITLER--ALMOST A LAST RESORT FOR SUPPLIES--BECAUSE OF THE TERRIBLE DESTRUCTION WROUGHT BY ANGLO-AMERICAN BOMBER FLEETS IN THE RUHR AND OTHER MAINSTAYS OF WESTERN GERMANY AND FRANCE.

F.D.R. CERTAINLY DREW BLOOD WITH THIS ANNOUNCEMENT BECAUSE ONLY SO LONG AGO AS SEPTEMBER 8 HITLER'S GUTTURAL TONES INFORMED HIS PEOPLE THAT "ONLY BY AIR CAN THE ENEMY TERRORIZE THE GERMAN HINTERLAND." HE SAID NAZIDOM WAS DEVISING MEANS TO COUNTER ALLIED AERIAL ATTACKS--BUT TALK NEVER WRECKED A BOMBER.

ROOSEVELT'S MESSAGE WAS FULL OF MEAT, BUT THIS COLUMN HAS SPACE FOR ONLY TWO MORE POINTS. IT WAS HEARTENING TO HAVE HIM GIVE US THE CATEGORICAL ASSURANCE THAT NOT ONLY HITLER AND THE NAZIS MUST GO, BUT THAT THE PRUSSIAN MILITARY CLIQUE MUST BE ROOTED OUT OF GERMANY, AND THE MILITARISTS OF JAPAN MUST FOLLOW, IF WE ARE TO HAVE PEACE. THERE THE PRESIDENT PUT HIS FINGER ON THE PERENNIAL ROOT OF GERMAN AND JAPANESE AGGRESSION--MILITARISM, WHICH LIVES ON WHEN INDIVIDUALS LIKE HITLER AND TOJO DIE.

IT WAS GOOD ALSO TO HAVE CONFIRMATION OF OUR HOPES THAT JAPAN WOULD BE DEPRIVED OF THE MANDATED ISLANDS WHICH THEY GOT THROUGH THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS AFTER THE LAST WAR AND FORTIFIED AGAINST US. IT WOULD BE A GREAT THING IF THE UNITED STATES COULD CONTROL THOSE ISLANDS IN THE INTERESTS OF PEACE. WE NEED AIR BASES RIGHT ACROSS THE PACIFIC--AND ARE LIKELY TO HAVE THEM.

--DASH--

EDITOR'S NOTE

SEP 19 1943

IN HIS COLUMN OF SEPT. 14 DEWITT MACKENZIE SAID, REFERRING TO THE NECESSITY OF ROOTING OUT ADOLF HITLER AND ALL HIS LIEUTENANTS:

"BUT WE SHALL HAVE TO DIG MUCH DEEPER THAN THAT, BECAUSE THE REAL AND PERPETUAL MAINSPRING OF GERMAN AGGRESSION IS PRUSSIAN MILITARISM. WE MUST ELIMINATE THE PRUSSIAN WAR LORDS AS WELL--AND THEY WON'T BE HARD TO NAME.

"THERE'S A VERY SIMILAR SITUATION IN JAPAN, GENERAL TOJO. THERE MILITARISM RULES. YOU AND THE OTHER MILITARISTS ARE GUILTY OF MULTIPLE AGGRESSION AND UNTOLD ATROCITIES. WE'RE GOING TO GET YOU, TOJO, AND YOUR CO-MURDERERS."

FRANKLIN D.ROOSEVELT SAID ON SEPT. 17:

"THERE IS ONE THING I WANT TO MAKE PERFECTLY CLEAR: WHEN HITLER AND THE NAZIS GO OUT, THE PRUSSIAN MILITARY CLIQUE MUST GO WITH THEM. THE WAR-BREEDING GANGS OF MILITARISTS MUST BE ROOTED OUT OF GERMANY--AND OUT OF JAPAN--IF WE ARE TO HAVE ANY REAL ASSURANCE OF FUTURE PEACE."

U.S. IGNORANCE

OF NEIGHBORS (1,000)

BY STANLEY ROSS

(ADVANCE) BUENOS AIRES (AP)-THE ARGENTINE GOVERNMENT HAS EMBARKED ON A PROGRAM OF INDUSTRIAL STIMULATION TO BOLSTER NATIONAL DEFENSE, SERIOUSLY COMPROSED DURING THE PRESENT WAR BY THE IMPOSSIBILITY OF IMPORTING MATERIALS.

THE MINISTRY OF FINANCE HAS BEEN INSTRUCTED TO CREATE A CREDIT SYSTEM DESIGNED TO ENCOURAGE THE GROWTH OF INDUSTRY IN GENERAL AND OF MILITARY FACTORIES IN PARTICULAR. ALTHOUGH IT IS NOT EXPECTED TO PRODUCE IMMEDIATE RESULTS, ARGENTINA WANTS TO DIMINISH ITS DEPENDENCE ON FOREIGN WAR SUPPLIES IN THE FUTURE.

THE GOVERNMENT ALSO IS SEEKING TO ENCOURAGE INDUSTRIES PRODUCING CIVILIAN NECESSITIES DIFFICULT TO OBTAIN ABROAD IN WARTIME, IN AN EFFORT TO RAISE THE COUNTRY'S STANDARD OF LIVING THROUGH A FAVORABLE PEACETIME TRADE BALANCE BOLSTERED BY EXPORTS OF MANUFACTURED ARTICLES. NORMALLY AGRICULTURAL AND MEAT PRODUCTS ACCOUNT FOR NEARLY NINETY PER CENT OF THE VALUE OF ARGENTINE EXPORTS. HOWEVER, IN THE PAST TWO YEARS THE COUNTRY HAS INCREASED ITS EXPORTS OF TEXTILES, DRUGS, LEATHER GOODS AND OTHER MANUFACTURED ARTICLES TO LATIN AMERICA, THE UNITED STATES AND SOUTH AFRICA, AND THE GOVERNMENT HOPES TO RETAIN AND EXPAND THESE NEW MARKETS AFTER THE WAR AS WELL AS SUPPLY AN INCREASING NUMBER OF ARTICLES FOR HOME CONSUMPTION.

TO THESE ENDS THE GOVERNMENT HAS ALLOCATED 100,000,000 PESOS ($24,800,000) TO DISCOUNT INDUSTRIAL LOANS BY PRIVATE BANKS. THE GOVERNMENT FUND WILL PARTICIPATE IN THESE LOANS TO THE EXTENT OF THIRTY PER CENT BUT WILL ALSO DISCOUNT UP TO SIXTY PER CENT OF AN OPERATION.

UNDER THE PRESENT PLAN, THE GOVERNMENT FUND WILL FOREGO ITS CLAIM AS CREDITOR IN THE EVENT OF FAILURE, UNTIL THE BANKS' CLAIMS HAVE BEEN PAID.

ARGENTINE ARMY LEADERS HAVE BEEN INCREASINGLY PREOCCUPIED OVER THE STATIC CONDITION OF THE REPUBLIC'S MILITARY ESTABLISHMENT WHILE OTHER SOUTH AMERICAN NATIONS, NOTABLY NEIGHBORING BRAZIL AND CHILE, HAVE BEEN RE-ARMING WITH U.S. LEND-LEASE AID.

CARACAS, VENEZUELA-(AP)-FOUR AMBASSADORS OF AMERICAN GOOD-WILL ARRIVED BACK IN THEIR NATIVE VENEZUELA LAST WEEK, ALL OF THEM EAGER TO TELL ABOUT THE "GREAT POWER OF THE NORTH" AND WITH DIVERSE OPINIONS AFTER A LIGHTNING TOUR WHICH CARRIED THEM FROM MIAMI TO SAN FRANCISCO TO QUEBEC AND BACK TO MIAMI IN SIX SHORT WEEKS.

AS THE GUESTS OF THE NATIONAL PRESS CLUB OF WASHINGTON AND THE OFFICE OF THE COORDINATOR OF INTER-AMERICAN AFFAIRS, THEY HAD GONE TO SEE THE UNITED STATES AT WAR. THEY DID--AND THEY WERE IMPRESSED. THEY WERE SO IMPRESSED THAT IT WOULD BE HARD TO FIND FOUR NATIVE-BORN NORTH AMERICANS ANY MORE CONVINCED OF AN ALLIED VICTORY THAN VENEZUELA'S RETURNING JOURNALISTS.

IN INTERVIEWS, ARTICLES AND STATEMENTS TO THE PRESS SINCE THEY HAVE BEEN HOME, JOSE MIGUEL FERRER OF THE PRESS OFFICE OF THE MINISTRY OF FOREIGN RELATIONS; PASCUAL VENEGAS FILARDO OF EL UNIVERSAL; MANUEL B. POCATERRA OF EL HERALDO, AND LUIS ESTEBAN REY OF AHORA HAVE BEEN BUSY SPREADING GOOD WILL.

THEY AGREE THAT:

SEP 19 1943

(1) THE MAJORITY OF NORTH AMERICANS ARE TOTALLY IGNORANT OF LATIN AMERICA BUT ARE EXTREMELY FRIENDLY AND ANXIOUS TO LEARN.

(2) THE UNITED STATES WAR EFFORT IS SO TREMENDOUS AN ALLIED VICTORY IS INEVITABLE.

(3) THE RACIAL PREJUDICE IN THE UNITED STATES, AS THE GREATEST DEMOCRACY IN THE WORLD, IS AN INCOMPREHENSIBLE PARADOX.

(4) PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT IS A GREAT, GREAT MAN. THEY FAIL TO UNDERSTAND THE STATE DEPARTMENT ATTITUDE TOWARD ARGENTINA AND FASCIST SPAIN, BUT CONSIDER THE PRESIDENT BEYOND REPROACH.

TO VENEZUELANS, (AND TO MOST LATIN AMERICANS FOR THAT MATTER) ACCUSTOMED TO COMPLETE RACIAL AND COLOR EQUALITY WITH INTERMARRIAGE COMMON, THE RACIAL DISCRIMINATION IN THE UNITED STATES IS HARD TO STOMACH. IT BOTHERED THE VENEZUELANS, BUT THEIR REMARKS CONCERNING IT ARE DISCREET IN THE EXTREME. IT IS ABOUT THE ONLY THING REGARDING THE UNITED STATES THEY DON'T LIKE--BUT THEY SAY THE PROBLEM CAN AND WILL BE SOLVED.

BUT WHAT REALLY SURPRISED THE VENEZUELANS, ASIDE FROM THE MIRACLE OF PRODUCTION OF GUNS, PLANES AND TANKS; THE MIRACLE OF HUGE CITIES, TREMENDOUS NEWSPAPERS AND THE PRESS ASSOCIATIONS; THE BEAUTIFUL GIRLS AND THE CAPABILITY OF THE AMERICAN WOMAN IN WARTIME JOBS--ASIDE FROM THESE, WHAT SURPRISED THEM WAS THE AMERICAN

IGNORANCE OF LATIN AMERICA.

ESTEBAN REY SAYS THEY FOUND "SOME KNOWLEDGE OF MEXICO, DUE TO THAT COUNTRY'S SMART ADVERTISING AND PROPAGANDA AIMED AT THE TOURIST TRADE."

THEY ALSO FOUND "PEOPLE KNEW MORE OR LESS THAT THERE WAS AN ARGENTINA AND A HUGE COUNTRY CALLED BRAZIL WITH A VERY BEAUTIFUL CAPITAL." THAT, AND THE FACT THERE WAS A CANAL IN PANAMA, WAS ABOUT ALL.

AS REY PUT IT, THE QUESTION HE HEARD MOST OFTEN IN THE UNITED STATES WAS "WHERE IS VENEZUELA, ANYWAY?"

IT WAS VENEGAS FILARDO WHO HAD THEMOST FUN OVER IT.

"A HIGH-RANKING ARMY OFFICER WITH WHOM WE LUNCHED ASKED IF VENEZUELA WERE NOT SOMEWHERE IN PUERTO RICO," HE SAYS WITH A LAUGH. "ANOTHER PERSON, HOLDING A HIGH OFFICE, ASSURED ME HE KNEW ALL ABOUT VENEZUELA BECAUSE HE HAD ONCE BEEN TO BARRANQUILLA!"

(BARRANQUILLA IS THE CARIBBEAN PORT OF THE NEIGHBORING REPUBLIC OF COLOMBIA--ABOUT AS CLOSE TO CARACAS AS DETROIT IS TO NEW YORK).

BUT EL UNIVERSAL'S EDITOR CAUGHT ON QUICKLY AND SOON WAS GIVING AS GOOD AS HE GOT. CHATTING WITH A YOUNG LADY IN A DINING CAR HE ADMITS THAT "SHE SEEMED QUITE PLEASED AND SATISFIED WHEN I ANSWERED IN THE AFFIRMATIVE TO HER QUESTION IF VENEZUELA WERE NOT SOMEWHERE NEAR ALASKA."

THE NEWSMEN WERE BESIEGED WITH QUESTIONS BY INTERESTED AMERICANS EAGER TO FURTHER LATIN AMERICAN UNDERSTANDING. THEY WERE TREMENDOUSLY IMPRESSED BY COURSES IN INTER-AMERICAN STUDIES SUCH AS THOSE AT MILLS COLLEGE IN OAKLAND,CALIF. THEY WERE ENCHANTED TO FIND A CIT LIKE SAN ANTONIO,TEX., WHERE "TODO EL MUNDO HABLA EL ESPANOL."

AMERICAN JOURNALISM LEFT THEM ASTOUNDED--NOT ONLY THE MANNER IN WHICH PAPERS GATHER AND DISSEMINATE NEWS AND THE WAY THE HUGE PRESS ASSOCIATIONS FUNCTION, BUT THE WAY THE PEOPLE CONTROL THE PRESS.

"IN THE UNITED STATES," SAYS FERRER, "THE EDITORS GIVE THE PEOPLE WHAT THEY WANT TO READ--WHAT THEY DEMAND HE GIVE THEM. HERE IN LATIN AMERICA IT IS THE PAPER WHICH RULES. HERE THE EDITOR GIVES THE READERS WHAT HE THINKS THEY SHOULD HAVE, THE VERSION THEY SHOULD HAVE AND THE OPINION ON IT THEY SHOULD HAVE."

THEIR IDEA OF A GREAT STEP TOWARD DEVELOPING INTER-AMERICAN UNDERSTANDING WOULD BE TO ESTABLISH IN THE UNITED STATES A SPANISH-ENGLISH NEWSPAPER WITH NATIONWIDE CIRCULATION, STRESSING JUST LATIN AMERICAN NEWS.

ESTEBAN REY AND FERRER BOTH ADMIT IT IS JUST A DREAM. BUT THEY AND THE COLOMBIANS AND ECUADOREANS DISCUSSED IT. THEY WOULD LIKE MIGHTILY TO SEE IT COME TRUE.

Italians Seize Sardinia for Allies, Fight in Corsica; 5th Army Captures 2 Key Towns; Badoglio Safe; Reds Smash Smolensk Gateway, Race for Kiev

FOE'S EVACUATION ALMOST COMPLETE, ALLIES REVEAL

Two Italian Divisions, Supported by Planes Smash Resistance.

FIFTH ARMY ADVANCES

Battipaglia, Former Axis Airbase, Seized in Steady Expansion.

ROME AIRFIELDS RAIDED

Eighth Army Sweeps Forward at Rapid Pace in Mountains.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 19—(AP) German troops were fleeing from the Mediterranean island of Sardinia today under attack by two Italian divisions, and an Allied communique said their evacuation to Corsica was "almost completed."

(The British radio said French patriots and Italian troops, combining in action against the Germans, also had seized control of Ajaccio, capital city of Corsica, but that German troops, reinforced by the Sardinia evacuation, had occupied Bastia, small Corsican seaport and railway terminal on the northeast coast).

The American Fifth army continued its steady expansion of the Salerno bridgehead in the heightening battle for Italy, capturing the mountain village of Altavilla, 10 miles inland, and seizing the nearby town of Battipaglia, once an important Axis air base.

Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's forces made other penetrations into enemy positions at unspecified points and patrols pushed out further beyond the zone where German lines had been reported earlier to be thinning out.

The German high command communique announced that Nazi troops in southern Italy "have detached themselves from the enemy in accordance with plan and have taken up a shorter line of resistance—in other words, retreated.

Badoglio Safe

An official Allied announcement disclosed for the first time that Marshal Pietro Badoglio, who took over the government of Italy when Benito Mussolini was ousted, is now in Allied-held Italian territory.

The new premier has been on the Allied side of the battle lines since the Germans occupied strategic points in and around Rome the day after his armistice proclamation, the announcement said. It was presumed that he and members of his government would work closely with the Allies on Italian soil.

(The Berlin radio declared earlier in the day that Badoglio was in north Africa to prepare for the enrollment of Italian prisoners in the Allied armies. This, the broadcast asserted, would be in violation of international law).

Bombers and fighters of the Allies' northwest African air forces, operating in skies swept clear of enemy opposition, lashed out once more at German air bases in the vicinity of Rome in a continuation of aerial attacks similar to those on the Naples-Salerno area before Allied assault troops landed there.

British Surge Ahead

Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's British Eighth army advanced at a rapid pace. His column pushing up the coastal highway already had joined with the Fifth army at the southern edge of the Salerno bridgehead near Agropoli and official reports did not say how far the swift thrust had carried into the mountainous interior where enemy troops and motor convoys were fleeing toward the north.

The daily communique from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters also failed to indicate whether any Allied troops had landed yet on the island of Sardinia, which was surrendered officially to the Allies along with the Italian mainland Sept. 8.

The German garrison on the island was believed to have been too small to offer any substantial resistance to the attacks from two divisions of the Italian army and from Allied aircraft which swept Sardinia constantly in recent weeks without encountering more than an occasional enemy plane.

At any rate, the German flight across the seven and a half mile wide strait of Bonifacio to Corsica paved the way for easy Allied occupation of Sardinia, which long has been a cherished goal.

Corsica Next

It appeared unlikely that the Germans could expect any more cordial treatment in Corsica, former French island which Italian forces occupied after the fall of France, than they received at the hands of the embattled Italian troops in Sardinia.

The residents of Corsica, whether of French or Italian blood, displayed an active dislike for German domination long before the Allied landings in North Africa brought the first promise of deliverance. Disorders are reported to have increased greatly since Italy's surrender.

Sardinia possesses 10 airfields which the Axis used for military purposes, three of which are in the north end of the island at Olbia, Chilivani and Attana.

Although hardly as well situated for basing heavy strategic bombers as the recently captured airdromes in southern Italy, they would be valuable bases for operations against northern Italy.

The Axis once based considerable numbers of bombers, fighters and torpedo planes in Sardinia for use against Allied shipping in the Mediterranean and big North African ports. Recent reconnaissance, however, showed less than 100 aircraft on the island's ten landing fields, of which hardly half were bombers.

Sardinia's loss pushes the enemy air force from the last bases which could easily command the vital shipping lanes.

Sardinia, 166 miles long and 89 miles wide, is interlaced with many good roads and, as in Sicily and Italy, the Allies expect a cordial welcome from the population of approximately 864,000 as well as from the two divisions of Italian troops.

These soldiers went beyond Badoglio's proclamation ordering Italian forces to resist any attack from sources other than American and British armies and drove out the hated German garrison.

An Allied conquest of Sardinia, if attempted in the face of determined German resistance, would have been a long, difficult matter because the island is mountainous and offers excellent defensive advantages.

As enemy resistance continued to weaken in the Salerno area, American and British troops poured ashore in ever increasing numbers to strengthen the already powerful army under Gen. Clark's command.

Near the southern edge of the bridgehead German opposition was reported particularly weak and there was no indication the Nazis would attempt a further major stand in that area.

The German communique listed losses inflicted on the Allies forces at Salerno as 10,000 killed and wounded and 4,429 prisoners. Between Sept. 8 and 17, the Nazi war bulletin declared, German air and naval units sank three Allied cruisers, two destroyers, one torpedo boat, 15 landing boats and nine transports of 58 000 tons. To these unconfirmed damages to Allied naval forces the Germans added a British destroyer of the Jervis class which they claimed was sunk yesterday.

Nazi Airfields Blasted

The German withdrawal from Sardinia and Salerno was accompanied by a continued retreat of Nazi air power under fresh pounding of its southernmost Italian mainland bases by powerful formations from Lt. Gen. Carl A. Spaatz' northwest African air forces.

Not a single enemy plane was seen over the Salerno battle area yesterday and the enemy avoided combat when American bombers again blasted air fields in the Rome area on which huge numbers of parked aircraft were sighted.

American fighters destroyed several dozen enemy planes in a swift raid on the big Foggia air base near the Adriatic and there also enemy fighters failed to challenge the Allied air domination.

Rome Airfields Pounded

Flying Fortresses blanketed the Viterbo air field, 50 miles northwest of Rome, with bombs, scoring direct hits among 50 planes parked on the ground. Medium bombers returned to Pratica di Mare, 15 miles south of Rome, and scored hits among between 100 and 150 grounded planes, leaving smoke spiralling as high as 5,000 feet from burning Junkers-88 transports. Another medium formation attacked the Ciampino airdrome south of Rome.

American Liberators from the Middle East struck again at rail yards at Pescara, on the Adriatic coast across from Rome, and blanketed tracks, engine sheds and buildings with more than 150,000 pounds of bombs.

Four-engined R.A.F. raiders also struck at Maritza in Rhodes, in the Dodecanese islands again.

Sardinia Opens Door to North Italy, France

Fall of Mussolini's No. 2 Island Bastion Gives Allies Vital Naval Bases

An island of many and closely-guarded military secrets, Sardinia is the No. 2 outpost upon which Benito Mussolini, the former Fascist Premier, depended for defense of the Italian homeland, The Associated Press notes.

It became his fortress guarding the Tyrrhenian Sea on the west. Sicily, the conquest of which was completed by the Allies on Aug. 17, was the foremost island outpost, and its loss opened the sea approaches for invasion of southern Italy.

The driving of German garrisons from Sardinia should permit its use soon as a base for a thrust into Corsica, northern Italy or the southern shores of France.

The Axis had made Sardinia a formidable sea-and-air bastion to lash at Mediterranean shipping. Craggy and mountainous along its coasts, Sardinia has plains within its uplands, with enough good roads and railroads to permit fairly rapid movement of troops.

Large areas of the island, which is 160 miles long by sixty-eight miles wide, long have been reserved for military activities, and the Axis at one time poured thousands of dollars and trops and hundreds of planes into the island. However, in recent operations American Warhawk pilots have swept over the island virtually without opposition.

Its principal naval bases are Cagliari in the south and La Maddalena in the north, the latter "worth a hundred Maltas in position," in the words of Lord Nelson 140 years ago. La Maddalena is ringed with airfields, bif guns command its harbor, and ammunition and fuel dumps are yrotected by underground storage. Sardinia has several other excellent harbors, especially Porto Torres and Terranova on the northwest and northeast coasts, respectively. It has numerous airdromes spotted over the island.

For months all these strategic centers have beeen under aerial attack by the Allies in softening-up blows, with Cagliari pounded particularly heavily. Attacks have been so severe that many civilians were evacuated to the mainland.

Aside from its strategic position, the island's main contribution to the Italian war effort has been the products of its mines, including copper, zinc, lead and antimony.

This land of warm temperatures was a breadbasket for ancient Rome. It has been ruled by the Carthaginians, the Romans, the Saracens, the Spaniards and, for a brief time, by the British.

Its king, Victor Emmanuel II, became king of united Italy in 1861, and the royal tie between Sardinia and Rome has remained strong. Sardinians, like Sicilians, however, are fiercely individualistic and never have taken kindly to Fascism.

London Expects Premier To Declare Italy At War With Germany

RUSSELL LAMBSTROM

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sept. 19—The announcement that Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglia was safe behind Allied lines raised fresh obstacles tonight to the embattled Germans on the Italian peninsula.

Fighting between Italians and the Nazis continued in the Milan and Turin areas, it was reported, despite Benito Mussolini's Saturday radio appeal to renew the fight against the Allies.

Apparently worried over Badoglio's plans, the Berlin radio increased its fulminations against Mussolini's successor within a few hours after Allied headquarters made known that he was in Italian territory. The radio asserted that he had gone to North Africa to enroll Italian prisoners into the Allied ranks and declared that such recruitment violated international law.

"Liberation" Played Up

While the reappearance of Badoglio strengthened a London impression that his Government might declare war on Germany, the Nazis continued to play up their "liberation" of Mussolini, declaring that immediately after he was freed he paid Hitler a visit lasting several days.

The Berlin radio said a Republican Fascist party group in Milan held its first meeting, "which culminated in a demonstration of loyalty toward the Duce and the Fuehrer."

But Mussolini's Saturday radio appeal to Italians to return to the Axis fold, described in the Berliner Lokalanzeiger today as "the Duce's fighting speech after his liberation," appeared to have had little effect on the Italian population.

Resistance Continues

Reports of continued Italian resistance to the Nazis came from Swiss and Spanish sources and it appeared that the Germans had been forced to seize practically all Italian railroads and to stop all freedom of movement in the occupied zones.

The Berlin radio itself acknowledged that the Germans had occupied the Swiss-Italian border crossing of Ponte Chiasso this morning and were controlling all important ways across the frontier.

Without giving a reason for the action, the Germans said all traffic had been stopped between Italy and Switzerland.

The union of anti-Fascist parties in Milan was said to be inciting Italians to even bolder resistance against the Nazis, and Swiss reports also said that Italian patriots led by army officers had organized a large-scale sabotage campaign against German works in the Rome region.

Menaced In Balkans

The harassed Germans were reported to be menaced from other directions.

[The British radio quoted advices from Bern that Yugoslav patriots had penetrated into Italian territory and were fighting in the port of Fiume. The broadcast, recorded by the CBS listening station, said the "entire Dalmatian coast, with the ports of Susak, Ragusa and Spalato (Split), is now dominated by the Yugoslav patriots."]

The Berlin radio, meanwhile, announced that Hitler had received the Serb puppet Premier, Milan Nedic, at his headquarters yesterday and that Joachim von Ribbentrop, Foreign Minister, also had a prolonged talk with the Serb Premier on the "future state of affairs in Serbia."

A German broadcast quoted the Bulgarian telegraph agency as denying that Bulgarian troops had extended their zone of occupation to Albania.

AMG STARTS WORK IN CENTRAL ITALY

Military Government Office Set Up in Captured Salerno, Stripped of Foods

COURTS GO INTO OPERATION

Civilian Offenders Are Tried —Vital Services and Shops Restored by the Allies

By EDWARD KENNEDY
Associated Press Correspondent.

WITH THE ALLIED ARMIES IN ITALY, Sept. 17 (Delayed)—Throughout central and southern Italy millions of Italians, hungry and forlorn, have thrown themselves on the mercy of the Allied invaders.

They say that they hate the Fascists for leading Italy to ruin and loathe the Germans for mistreating them. They would like to join with the Allies in chasing the Germans from the country, but there is little fighting spirit left in them.

Their main interest is in getting enough to eat and getting back to the homes from which they fled. Their main hope is that something will be saved in Italy to enable them to earn a living in the future.

Hordes of soldiers disarmed by the Germans wander about, trying to reach their villages. They willingly help the Allies and along the coast they are digging up mines laid by the Germans.

The Allied Military Government has swiftly taken charge of occupied areas and set up military governments.

Salerno is badly battered but not razed. The heaviest damage was done in a Flying Fortress raid in June. The civil population abandoned Salerno after that. Though the city is still under German shellfire, which has destroyed many more buildings, about 5,000 of the city's 50,000 population have returned from the hills.

A queue of these, chattering excitedly as shells burst along the waterfront a quarter of a mile away, lined up for food and ration tickets outside the AMG offices. The Germans had taken all the food that they could. An AMG wheat ship docked yesterday and its cargo was trucked rapidly to a mill, which is now grinding flour for the hungry population.

Yesterday was the AMG's first real day of operation at Salerno and a great deal was done. A court was set up to try several hundred persons on black-market and looting charges.

A group that started counterfeiting Allied occupation money as soon as the bills appeared here also was rounded up and tried. This area, in the bygone years, produced the world's most skillful counterfeiters, and the rapidity with which the group went to work indicated that the war had not impaired their talent.

Italian-speaking American lieutenants, mostly of Italian origin and many of them lawyers, administer the courts. The lieutenant colonel who heads the AMG here said that Italians generally were eager to cooperate. "The police are also willing to cooperate, but we found a good deal of corruption among them," he added. "We found several Carabinieri with ten and fifteen ration cards in their pockets."

The first shop that the AMG got opened was a barber shop. AMG officers then induced a pharmacist to return from the hills and open his store. A single-sheet newspaper started publication in both English and Italian under the direction of the occupying authorities.

On leaving Salerno the Germans had kidnaped the whole fire department with the apparatus and put it in a cave in the mountains with machine-guns trained on it. This was done so that the work of the German bombers that dropped incendiaries on the city would not easily be handicapped.

A lieutenant colonel, who won the British Distinguished Service Order in the First World War, said that "in two days here the AMG has done more to get things running than was done in a month at St. Quentin after its recapture in the last war."

Water For Two Hours Daily

The Germans still hold the city's main water reservoir, but the emergency reservoir is in Allied hands and the water is turned on two hours daily.

The AMG officers laughingly call themselves "ancient military gentlemen on tour," but AMG's work includes such operations as the one the night before last when AMG soldiers captured seven patrols which the Germans sent into the city from a fortress above it which they hold.

100 Get In But Only 30 Get Out In Yank Fight For Italian Town

Surrounded And Short Of Ammunition, Americans "Shoot" At Nazis With Rocks And Cans

By RELMAN MORIN
[Associated Press Correspondent]

With the American Fifth Army in Italy, Sept. 16 (Delayed)—The Americans have just finished the defense of one of the most important Italian towns on this front.

Few defenders got out.

[This dispatch did not name the town, which might have been either Altavilla or Battipaglia, both of which now have been recaptured by the Fifth Army.]

Threw All They Had

They left the citadel only under orders and only when all their ammunition was exhausted except what they needed to fight their way through the German lines which had closed around them.

In repelling the last German assault they threw rocks, empty ammunition clips and even cans of rations as well as all the lead they could spare.

The story begins two days after the American landing on the Gulf of Salerno. This battalion was assigned to penetrate swiftly to high ground some ten miles from the beachhead and seize the town. It did.

The Germans immediately organized a counter-attack with a strong infantry force backed up by tanks and covered by a powerful bombardment from their 88-millimeter guns.

Trapped For 2 Days

Support for the Americans had not had time to reach them. For two days they were pinned down in the town, fighting from houses, buildings, behind fences and any sort of cover available.

Corporal David J. Davis, of Cleveland, Texas, found a nice soft spot in a hogpen.

"It wasn't exactly the spot I would have picked if I had had any choice," he said, "but I have to admit it was easy to dig a foxhole in."

Gradually the men all gravitated into a thick-walled, stone building, probably a former Fascist headquarters, which commanded a number of the German lines of entry into the town.

Some Were Wounded

There were about one hundred of them some of whom were wounded on the afternoon they received the orders to withdraw from the town. The main American forces still were nearly five miles back of them, and they knew they were encircled because they heard their own artillery shell the ground between them and the American lines.

But it was sheer suicide to attempt to get back to safety in broad daylight. Their ammunition was running low, but, nevertheless, they had no choice but to stay in the building. They were sure they could halt the Germans until darkness. The enemy again had drawn close to their miniature fortress, with tanks in the streets and artillery beginning the usual late afternoon bombardment.

Had One Prisoner

They had one German prisoner with them. He told them he was a wholly unenthusiastic Nazi and had been imprisoend before the war for writing a letter to a German newspaper suggesting that the Government build more houses and fewer tanks. He tuned their radio into the German broadcasting frequency and interpreted orders to the artillery and tanks from the German commanders so that they knew pretty well what to expect.

"The last attack was really something," said Lieut. Louis N. Quast, of St. Paul, Minn. "They got two machine guns into positions flanking the building and then the infantry came at us time after time."

There were only thirty men still able to fight back and they fought with everything they could pick up and throw in order to conserve their ammuniation for the moment when they could attempt to break out of the town.

Under the cover of darkness, when it finally came, the remaining thirty soldiers slipped out the building and reached a narrow ravine from which they were able to make good their escape. They sighted German armored vehicles several times but wormed their way past them through the woods.

What bothers them most is that they had to leave the wounded behind.

SHARP FIGHTING WAGED NEAR ALPS

Swiss Report Violent Combat in Northwestern Italy.

CHIASSO, ON THE ITALIAN-SWISS FRONTIER, Sept. 19—(AP) Italian Alpine troops in the upper Dora Baltea river basin in the extreme northwestern portion of Italy are engaged in violent fighting with the Germans, reports reaching here today said.

Fighting between Germans and Italians also was reported in central Italy, especially in the province of Marche—the calf of the Italian boot on the Adriatic sea.

Frontier reports said that earlier rumors hat the Brenner pass, connecting link between Germany and Italy, had been sabotaged by Italians are not true. These reports added that the pass still is open.

Milan workers failing to appear at war industry jobs are being arrested, the Swiss newspaper Die Tat said. It added that a majority of the workers in Turin, which, like Milan, is a major northern Italian industrial city, have stayed at home. Some demonstrations in the workers districts have resulted in action by the German army.

Real Rebellion Organized

The newspaper declared that a "real rebellion was organized near Cuneo," an Italian city 43 miles west of the French border and 50 miles north of the seacoast. There, the account continued, an Italian army force arrived from France led by a captain.

Many Italians who listened to the radio speech yesterday by a voice purported to be that of Benito Mussolini are convinced that it actually was his voice they heard, the Swiss telegraphic agency reported. The speaker bade the Italians take

Badoglio Safe With Allies

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Sept. 19—Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio is on the Allied side of the battlelines in Italy, Allied headquarters announced today.

He gave the orders to oust the Germans from Sardinia after reaching Allied-held soil and the garrison obeyed, it was disclosed.

In agreement with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, he also used units of the Italian fleet to help in the operation.

up arms again by the side of Germany and Japan and attacked the Italian Royal House of Savoy.

The Germans have announced, the agency said, that food trains have been given priority after the military and have assured the Italians that coal would be received from Germany.

Nazis Take Over British War Prisoners In Italy

London, Sept. 19 (AP)—The German propaganda agency Transocean said today that British prisoners in war camps in central and northern Italy had been taken over by the Germans and that most of them had been sent to Germany.

The broadcast, heard by the Associated Press, said that in a number of cases Italians had opened the gates to prisoners of war, but the most of those who gained their liberty had been rounded up.

[illegible]ajor Surrenders Because "I'm Fed Up"

London, Sept. 19 (AP)—There have been a number of desertions from German positions in the Salerno area in recent days and nights, mostly Austrians, conscripted Czechs and Poles, William Munday, representing the combined Australian press, reported in a dispatch from the Fifth Army today.

One German major came out onto a mountain track, however, and told a surprised Cockney patrol, "I'm fed up. I've had enough of this blankety-blank war."

Nazis Quitting Salerno Leave Dead Unburied

Withdraw Hastily Toward North in Effort to Break Contact With 5th Army

By Reynolds Packard

WITH THE 5TH ARMY IN ITALY, Sept. 19.—Part of the German forces in the Salerno area were believed to be withdrawing toward the north as the 5th Army generally speeded up its advances today all along the front.

Following the taking of one town by the British yesterday, the German supply difficulties should increase and they must pull out from southwest of Salerno or live on the country.

In an effort to break contact with the 5th Army, the Germans pulled out of some sectors of the Salerno front so fast that for the first time since the Allied landings here they left their dead unburied on the battlefields. American burial patrols, supervised by a chaplain and composed of service troops, penetrated into no-man's-land this morning to give the German dead a Christian burial and erected crosses over the graves.

Earlier, the 5th Army took three more strategically important towns, two of which were captured by the Americans and the third by the British.

In each case the Germans, after several days of fierce resistance, suddenly pulled out as the Allies occupied commanding points near by. One of these towns is important as a roadway hub, the second because it stands on a high point dominating the countryside, while the third place represents an extension of the Salerno beachhead in a northerly direction.

I was on a knob which enabled me to see the occupation of one of the towns and I could see at first hand the enemy tactics. They fought day and night with machine guns, mortars, rifles and 88-mm. guns, sent out patrols and utilized sneak air raids up to the last minute. Then firing ceased suddenly and the enemy had withdrawn.

I saw a number of prisoners taken yesterday and they were the most dilapidated soldiers I have seen in a long time. The uniforms of the prisoners—most of them wore khaki shorts and green-visored caps—were badly patched and torn. The captives seemed short of food, mainly because the Allied air forces had prevented them from getting anything from the north.

The German air force has shown a slackening of power in the last several days. In one area, where during the first six days the average was thirty-six sneak raids a day, the number of raids had fallen by yesterday to an average of seventeen.

Captain George Horner, of Latrobe, Pa., one of the combat engineer officers in charge of a section of the beach, said: "The enemy used to come over the beaches like clockwork in sneak raids at dawn, breakfast and suppertime and again at bedtime and 3 o'clock in the morning, but already he has been compelled to reduce his attacks considerably."

Naples Is Under Curfew As Italians Resist Nazis

Refugees Tell of Underground Fight, Reprisals Threat

WITH THE AMERICAN 5TH ARMY IN ITALY, Sept. 19.—Italian refugees from Naples who have succeeded in filtering into territory held by the 5th Army report that Italians in Naples are waging underground resistance to such an extent that the Germans have clamped down a curfew from 8 p. m. to 6 a. m.

Copies of a proclamation announcing the curfew have been brought here by Italian refugees. The proclamation also states that reprisals will be taken against citizens of Naples because a number of German soldiers have been slain or wounded by Italians.

The proclamation declares that a state of emergency exists throughout the Naples area under command of a German military governor whose name is given as Colonel School.

The proclamation stated: "Anyone who acts against the German Army will be executed and the places where such acts are committed will be destroyed and reduced to ruins. Every German soldier wounded or killed will be revenged 100 times."

SELASSIE HAILS ITALY'S COLLAPSE

Surrender Termed Bright Signal of Impending Doom of Axis.

ADDIS ABABA, Sept. 19 — (AP) Haile Selassie, emperor of Ethiopia, today hailed the collapse of Italy as a bright signal that the overthrow of the other enemies of civilization was very near.

In a special statement for the Associated Press, the Emperor whose country once was thrown to its knees by Italian conquerers, said there never could have been peace or justice in the world so long as Fascism endured.

The text of his statement:

"Two years after the defeat of the Italian armies in East Africa and five months after the end of the North African campaign Fascism has completely collapsed.

"Here in Ethiopia there is special satisfaction that the whole fabric of Mussolini's regime has crumbled.

"There could never have been peace or justice in the world so long as that regime of force and brutality existed. That is why the defeat of Mussolini's government demands also the overthrow of justice in the world so long as that regime of force and brutality existed. That is why the defeat of Mussolini's government demands also the overthrow of Hitler's regime and Japan's tyranny.

"What has happened in Italy is an assurance that the overthrow of the other enemies of civilization is very near.

"Signed, Haile Selassie, Emperor."

U. S. Guns Break Nazi Nerves

By RELMAN MORIN

With the American Fifth Army in Italy, Sept. 18 (Delayed)—German prisoners who have fought on both fronts told questioners today that American artillery fire was tougher than anything they ever encountered in Russia.

"For days we have been living like moles," said one young Nazi officer.

He declared—and similar statements have been taken from other prisoners—that the sustained American artillery bombardment makes enemy troops vomit from sheer nerves. Even the most phlegmatic among them get jittery, sometimes panicky, under such fire.

GERMANS DRIVEN FROM LAST MAJOR BASES NEAR KIEV

Strongly-Fortified Nazi Line Smashed on Central Front, Says Stalin.

RETREAT NEARS ROUT

Stockholm Dispatch Says Flight is of 'Frightful Dimensions'.

LONDON, Monday, Sept. 20—(AP) A powerful Red army offensive has cracked the gateway to Smolensk on the Napoleon road of retreat, smashing more than 30,000 Germans manning six lines of fortifications 30 miles northeast of that German central stronghold, Moscow announced early today.

Sweeping westward along a 700-mile front with gathering momentum the Red army also captured more than 1,100 towns, among them Krasnograd, Lubny, Piryatin and Priluki—the last major Axis bastions short of the Ukraine capital of Kiev.

A spearhead was driven within 24 miles of the lower Dnieper river, the bulletin said, as the Red army rolled on at a pace making it doubtful whether the German flight would halt at the Dnieper river.

A savage four-day fight that crushed "several German divisions" and resulted in the capture of 600 Germans and enormous stocks of enemy equipment toppled Dukhovchina and Yartsevo, on the approaches to Smolensk.

Two Special Orders

Marshal Joseph Stalin last night issued two orders of the day which announced the great central front and Ukraine victories. He ordered the usual salvoes from Moscow's victory cannon to celebrate them.

The Russians were "giving the enemy no respite and are pursuing and smashing enemy units," said the midnight supplement to the daily communiqué. It disclosed that more than 6,000 Germans had been cut down in their westward flight during the day.

Scores of tanks and ammunition dumps and hundreds of guns and mortars were seized in the breakthrough on the central front, the bulletin said.

Surging back over battlefields hallowed by the brilliant 1941 Soviet defense that saved Moscow from the invaders, the Russians stormed and captured Yartsevo and Dukhovschina, 30 miles northeast of Smolensk. Both of these points had been fortified by the Germans over a two year period.

"Thus the strongly-fortified German defense line which has been in existence for a long time and which closed the so-called Smolensk gates has been broken," Stalin's triumphant announcement read.

Victory Cannon Boom

Moscow's victory cannon boomed their salutes to the victory on the approaches to Smolensk, 230 miles west of the Soviet capital.

The two orders of the day and a communique recorded by the Soviet monitor disclosed that a bleeding German army was reeling back toward the Dnieper river, no longer "the invincibles" of 1941. Berlin admitted a "hot pursuit" by the Russians in this new phraseology of retreat:

"The movement of German troops in a westerly direction was accomplished with astonishing exactitude, covered by a strong rear guard."

A Stockholm dispatch quoted the Helsinki newspaper Helsingin Sanomat as saying that the German retreat "is of frightful dimensions, worse than the Finns expected." The Finns, the dispatch added, were increasingly worried by their status as a co-belligerent of a losing Germany.

Amazing Comeback

The Russians swept through 1,107 towns and villages during the day in one of the most amazing military comebacks in history. Moscow dispatches said the coming week should see the Red army hauling up to the banks of the Dnieper river at most points along a two-mile front where the Soviet forces are fighting in ten major sectors.

One Russian unit is within 42 miles of Kiev, the Ukraine capital and German citadel, ripping to shreds the German rearguards opposing it. When Kiev is reached, probably within a few days, the Russians will have accomplished a 670-mile march from Stalingrad in less than a year.

The Russians also were advancing in the northwest Caucasus and in the southern Ukraine had reached a point only 24 miles from the Dnieper.

To Generals Andrei Yeremonko and Vassilly Sokolovsky went the honor of leading the Russians back into gutted Yartsevo and Dukhovshchina on the Slomensk front.

Both Celebrated Heroes

Yeremenko is one of the great heroes of Stalingrad, and Sokolovsky a hero of the first Soviet defense at Smolensk in July, 1941. Sokolovsky lost the battle of Smolensk after one of history's most bloody battles, but he helped save Moscow by disrupting the German timetable for taking the capital before winter descended on the lightly-clad Nazi troops.

The Germans first announced the capture of Smolensk July 16, 1941, but the Russians did not concede its fall until Aug. 13 of that year. In that heroic stand, General Sokolovsky said at the time that "blitzkrieg has failed," and said that the battle of Smolensk was 10 to 100 times as destructive as the first World war fight at Verdun.

Smolensk once was a stately city of 160,000 persons. It lies on the banks of the upper Dnieper river. The first fight for the railway center which is the gateway to upper White Russia and Poland reduced it to ashes, but it has remained a great strategic prize because of the railways radiating into Poland and the Baltic states. The Polish border is only 175 miles to the west.

The situation in the other key sectors of the collapsing German eastern wall as announced by Moscow:

Roslavl—This railway junction 67 miles below Smolensk is expected to fall soon. The Russians during the day crossed the Desna river to capture Dubrovka, only 32 miles southeast of Roslavl. Bryansk to the southeast already had fallen. More than 100 villages were captured in a nine-mile advance.

Drive Well Beyond Bryansk

Bryansk—A Red army that toppled this hinge of the German southern and central fronts streamed on west and southwest of Bryansk, overrunning 300 towns in gains up to 12 miles. One seized was Trubchevsk, 52 miles southwest of Bryansk.

Chernigov—The fall of this important city on the edge of lower White Russia between Kiev and Gomel is expected shortly. The Red army captured more than 100 villages in an 18-mile advance, including Beresna, only 22 miles northwest fo Chernigov. But another Russian column has seized Anisovo, less than four miles southeast of Chernigov.

Kiev—Priluki, 80 miles east of the Ukraine capital fell, but another Russian column striking down the railway from Nezhin to the northeast was only 42 miles from this great prize, Piryatin, Lubny, Mirgorod, Krasnograd, and other points along the Kiev-Lozovaya railway, were captured. These points parallel the Dnieper river where it turns southeast from Kiev. Only Poltava remains in the hands of the Germans in this area, and its capture is imminent.

180 Villages Taken

More than 180 villages were seized in this sweep which was hurling back the Germans on the north side of the Dnieper bend, and Moscow dispatches said the Russians now were gathering up the more important communities of the western Ukraine "bread basket."

Poltava—The Russians captured 150 towns and advanced from six to nine miles in a frontal assault on this key city on the approaches to the Dnieper. Poltava stands isolated with the fall of Krasnograd to the southeast and Lubny, Mirgorod and other points on the northwest. The Germans are expected to fall back to the Dnieper along the railway leading to Kremenchug.

Dnieperopetrovsk—One Russian column is believed to be only 25 miles from this city, whose $110,000,000 dam and hydroelectric works were destroyed by the Soviets in their 1941 "scorched earth" retreat. After seizing one point only 37 miles from Dnieperopetrovsk the Russians today swept on for gains of over 11 miles and swept up more than 80 towns and villages.

Nazi Escape Menaced

Zaporozhe—This Dnieper bend city south of Dnieperpetrovsk was menaced by a Soviet column driving up from the southeast along a railway. This column was only 27 miles from Zaporozhe and only 22 miles from the Dnieper river west of the railway. Cutting of the Kharkov-Crimea railway at Zaporozhe would menace the escape of thousands of Germans in the Crimea and the Caucasus. Another Soviet objective in this area is Melitopol, 70 miles below Zaporozhe.

Northwestern Caucasus — After taking the Black sea port of Novorossisk the Russians during the day pushed northward to capture the "Volchyi Vorota," a 12-mile long mountain pass leading to Anapa, a small port 25 miles northwest of Novorossisk. A German abandonment of the narrow Caucasian foothold in a flight across the Kerch strait to the Crimea is expected soon.

During Saturday's fighting on all fronts the Russians said their troops had knocked out 33 German tanks and shot down 36 planes. The smallness of these figures as compared with previous Russian announcements also provided evidence of a German retreat which at times has reached the proportions of a rout.

Red Fleet Aids Melitopol Drive

Moscow dispatches said the Germans were using primarily motorcyclists and bicyclists carrying automatic rifles for rearguard action—a complete reversal for this type of troops, which once led the victorious German entry into France in 1940.

Russian ships of the Sea of Azov flotilla were aiding the Russian land sweep along the shores toward Melitopol by shelling the retreating Germans and landing marines in the rear of the enemy.

Red Army General Kolpakchi, who liberated Rzhev, on the central front, was disclosed to be in charge of the Russian armies that broke the Desna River line southwest of Bryansk two days ago in a sweep toward lower White Russia. The commanders and officers of his army received the Order of Suvoroff decoration.

The Russian units liberating Priluki, Lubny, Krasnograd, Pavlograd and other cities along the Dnieper River approaches henceforth will have the names of those cities attached to their regular designations.

RUSSIANS STRESS ROOSEVELT DENIAL

Moscow Magazine Says Reply to Charge of Unfriendliness Is Significant

SEES STRONG TIES TO U. S.

Union Organ Renews Attacks on Allied Military Regime in Occupied Areas

MOSCOW, Sept. 19 (AP)—The Soviet trade union magazine War and the Working Class said today that President Roosevelt's and Secretary of State Cordell Hull's denials of charges that the State Department was unfriendly to the Soviet Union were of "great significance."

"They demonstrated the fact that American public opinion reacts quickly to anything connected with American-Soviet relations," the magazine said.

"Readers recall, of course, that several months ago the same quick, definite disavowal followed the statement by United States Ambassador Admiral William H. Standley, who unexpectedly made to American correspondents in Moscow a declaration alleging that the Russian people had not received proper information as to American help to Russia, although this did not correspond to the truth."

The magazine said there "exists in American circles a great desire for friendship with the U.S.S.R. and further improvement in Soviet-American relations; this is also the aim with which the people of the U.S.S.R. are imbued."

AMG Is Again Criticized

At the same time the magazine renewed criticism of the Allied Military Government of Occupied Territories, asserting that the AMG was opposed to the principles of democracy. It recognized the necessity for the Allied High Command to establish control over territory taken from the enemy, but that "for the consolidation of victory it is necessary to attract quickly local forces capable of assisting the Allies in their struggle against the enemy."

"It is necessary to establish local organs of power on a democratic basis," it declared.

The magazine also protested the existence in New York of the White Russian newspaper, Russia, which it called the "legal conductor of false German information in the United States."

"Some innocent persons feign to regard this as freedom of the press," the magazine said. "But when, where and in what democratic country have spies enjoyed legal freedom of the press and assembly? Would a newspaper that made a profession of insulting the American Allies be possible in England or any other Allied country? But such a newspaper exists in the United States."

In another article the magazine also renewed objections to the Polish plan for a confederation of eastern European States and denounced a proposal for a "central union" of Poland, Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia and Rumania.

Referring to the book "Central Union" by George Harrison and Peter Gordon, published in London, which advances an eastern European plan, the magazine declared that "discovery of fantastic countries and travel are traditionally beloved topics of English literature."

"It is true that this is a funny book, but it was not written for laughs, but to be taken seriously," it said.

The magazine said the authors wanted Britain and the United States "to force the countries of the Baltic and the Balkans to submit to Poland and prepare the arena for which the Polish plan could attack the Soviet Union."

YORK ARRIVES IN MOSCOW

Anglican Archbishop To Confer With Russian Church Hierarchy

[By the Associated Press]

Moscow, Sept. 19 — The Archbishop of York, wearing a purple cassock and four-peaked mitre, arrived at a Moscow airport today as the representative of the Church of England to visit the hierarchy of the Russian Orthodox Church.

A delegation of the Orthodox church, including the long-bearded Metropolitan Nikolai of Kiev and the Archbishop Sergei of Gorky, met him at the plane in the name of the Metropitan Sergei of Moscow, the newly elected Patriarch of All Russia.

Invited By Patriarch

The archbishop came at the invitation of the patriarch, with whom a series of conferences was planned.

Emerging from the passenger plane in flowing robes at the central airport, the English prelate embraced the representatives of the Orthodox church and heard an address of welcome by the Metropolitan Kikolai. The archbishop replied:

"I bring you and your nation the greetings of our church. I rejoice in the election of your patriarch. I look forward to meeting him in the coming days and having many conversations with him."

Two Chaplains With Him

John Balfour, British Minister to the Soviet Union, also met the archbishop. The visitor was accompanied by two chaplains, the Rev. Francis House and the Rev. Herbert Waddom.

On the way to Moscow from Teheran via Astrakhan, where he stopped last night, the archbishop circled the ruins of Stalingrad. He said they were "an awe-inspiring spectacle."

The visit was the latest in a series of indications of revival of the Orthodox church, including the restoration of the synod election of a patriarch with the sanction of the Soviet Government.

The archbishop arrived on the eve of a great Russian religious holiday, the Nativity of the Madonna, which will be observed Monday.

A London announcement that he already had arrived in Moscow was premature owing to a misunderstanding about the schedule of his trip.

U.S. Ambassador Standley Heads Home from Moscow

Return May Clear Way for Three-Power Parley, London Hints.

MOSCOW, Sept. 19 — (AP) U. S. Ambassador Admiral William H. Standley left Moscow by plane for Washington today for what have been described officially as consultations.

It is considered unlikely here, however, that the American representative will return to the Soviet Union. Admiral Standley is 71 and had not planned to spend another winter in Russia unless his presence was considered absolutely necessary.

(Admiral Standley's departure less than 24 hours after the Washington announcement yesterday that he had been called home for conferences, raised speculation in London that his return might open the way for W. Averell Harriman, London Lend-Lease administrator, to participate in a three-power conference in Moscow.)

Admiral Standley's sudden departure was made without previous announcement in Moscow. He was host to the diplomatic corps, foreign military missions and correspondents at a motion picture showing at his residence yesterday but made no reference to his departure.

He rose at dawn this morning and left from the central airport, where he was seen off by the embassy's full staff.

Maxwell M. Hamilton, former chief of the Far Eastern department of the State department who came to Moscow in July as embassy counselor, remained as American charge d'affaires.

Nazi Retreat In Russia Causes Worry To Finns

Stockholm, Sept. 19 (AP)—The Germans' retreat in Russia is causing growing worry in Finland, a cobelligerent with Germany against the Soviet Union.

"The retreat is of frightful dimentions, worse than the Finns expected," said an editorial in the Helsinki newspaper Helsingin Sanomat received here.

The paper said the Eastern Front was moving "an enormous step toward the frontiers of Europe."

RUSSIAN ENVOY TO SWEDEN ADVANCED

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 19 — (AP) A Tass dispatch announced today that Mme. Alexandra Kollantay, Soviet envoy to Sweden, had been elevated to the rank of ambassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary.

Her promotion led the newspaper Aftonbladet to speculate that Stockholm might become the stage for an important political conference involving Russia, perhaps to discuss post-war European political plans.

Aftonbladet said various peace rumors had developed around Stockholm and "it is not impossible that a German-Russian meeting is in preparation." The newspaper expressed doubt, however, that a peace conference involving Finland was in prospect here.

CHURCHILL RETURNS HOME

Expected To Open Debate On Reconvening Of Parliament

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sept. 19—Prime Minister Winston Churchill, bearing the secrets of the Quebec and Washington war councils, returned home tonight and plunged into preparation of a report to the nation on his talks with President Roosevelt covering the whole of the global situation, both military and diplomatic.

Mrs. Churchill, Subaltern Mary Churchill, his daughter, and Brendan Bracken, British Minister of Information, came with him.

The Prime Minister will open a two-day debate at a forthcoming reconvening of Parliament, and although much of what happened on the other side of the Atlantic following his arrival in Canada on August 10 must remain untold, he will give a general account for which the ears of the world will be attuned.

Provides Victory Theme

The Italian surrender, which came during Churchill's absence of six weeks, will provide the victory theme for his speech. At the same time, his appearance in Commons after his longest wartime absence from the country yet, will give him an opportunity to answer critics who have been sharpshooting at Allied strategy in Italy.

In the diplomatic field it is expected he will shed more light on British-American-Russian relations and the projected three-power conference for which the groundwork is reported to have been laid.

With the battle for Europe just beginning to unfold on the Italian peninsula, Britons expected little information from the Prime Minister on future Allied intentions against the Continent from other directions.

Three Likely Subjects

They looked forward, however, to learning more details of the armistice with Premier Marshal Badoglio and the events leading up to it.

It was considered likely he would reply to those who have (Continued on Page 3, Column 5) been asking questions about the lull between the time of the overthrow of Benito Mussolini and the invasion of the mainland; why the attack was not made farther up the peninsula and why Hitler could come to the rescue of Mussolini before the Allies had laid hands on the former Italian dictator.

In the words of one commentator, Churchill had a ready-made answer to at least some of these questions.

"None could be more effective than to say that Generals Eisenhower, Alexander and Montgomery, acting in conjunction with their chiefs of staff, were the best judges of what could be done, just as they must be left to decide the venue, scale and form of the next offensive which will be directed at the heart of Germany," said the News of the World commentator.

No Precedent For Speed

"He (Churchill) will contend that history contains no precedent—not even in German Blitzkrieg—for such speed in successive operations as North Africa, Tunisia,

Sicily and Italy.

"Such enterprises, he will stress, cannot be undertaken without colossal organization. They are not carried through, as some critics seem to think, by means of a magic wand."

The same line of a reasoning was followed by other commentators who pointed out that as it was the Salerno landing entailed great risks.

Plans Virtually Complete

Arrangements, meanwhile, were reported virtually complete for a British-United States-Russian political conference with Anthony Eden, Foreign Minister, for Britain; W. Averell Harrison for the United States, and Vyacheslav Molotov, Foreign Commissar, for Russia at the table.

Churchill, looking exceptionally fit for the tasks ahead of him, reached an undisclosed point in England after an Atlantic plane crossing and completed the trip to London by special train.

Upon entering No. 10 Downing street he found his official residence gleaming with a fresh coat of paint and brand-new curtains.

FRENCH TARGETS ARE POUNDED BY ALLIED AIR FLEETS

Planes Thunder Across English Channel Throughout Day.

DUTCH AIRFIELDS HIT

Six Nazi Fighters Are Downed; Three Allied Planes Lost.

LONDON, Sept. 19—(AP) Great formations of Allied planes plied back and forth across the English channel all day today, and early tonight strongly-escorted bombers thundered eastward to carry the new round-the-clock offensive into its fifth day and night.

American and British daylight raiders bombed targets in France and Holland. U. S. Marauders showered explosives on the important Nazi fighter base at Lille while R.A.F. Typhoon bombers struck at airfields at Merville, in northern France, and Woensdrecht, in Holland. Later, R.A.F. Mitchells atacked industrial targets near Bethune, France.

R.A.F. Dominion and Allied fighters provided escort and carried out offensive sweeps, shooting down six Nazi fighters. Three Allied fighters were reported missing.

Berlin had its first respite in four nights last night as R.A.F. Mosquito bombers, which had attacked the German capital for three straight nights, turned to the industrial Rhineland and bombed unspecified targets there. Other R.A.F. planes laid mines in Nazi sea shipping lanes to round out the overnight assaults without loss to the British.

Formidable Sight

A south coast town observer who witnessed the formations of Allied planes criss-crossing the channel today said:

"They made a formidable and impressive sight to people here who remember when it was Nazi bombers coming in from the airfields of northern France that they saw."

There was no official explanation of the recent inactivity of American and R.A.F. heavy bombers, which had left the burden of the day and night assaults on Germany and Nazi-occupied territory to lighter bombers and fighters for the past two days.

American Flying Fortresses launched the new non-stop assault on Sept. 15 by bombing Nazi aircraft factories and other war plants at Paris while other Fortresses, Liberators and Marauders struck at French airfields.

The R.A.F. swung into the attack that night, bombing a rubber factory at Montlucon, France.

Heavy bombers returned to the assault again the next day and night, when Fortresses made a 1,600-mile round-trip attack over France and R.A.F. Lancasters thrust to the Italian border to bomb the Mondane railway junction.

9 SQUARE MILES OF HAMBURG GONE, PICTURES REVEAL

77 Pct. of Germany's Second Largest City Lies in Ruins.

By HENRY B. JAMESON

LONDON, Monday, Sept. 20. — (AP) Seventy-seven per cent of sprawling Hamburg, formerly Germany's second largest city and chief port, lies in ruins as a grim and smouldering example of what is in store for Berlin and other cities when Allied air power cuts loose in its full and awful fury.

The full story of the unprecedented devastation produced in the one-time industrial center by four R.A.F. and two American Flying Fortress raids between July 24 and Aug. 2 at a cost of 87 bombers was disclosed by an R.A.F. commentator today after weeks of study of photographs and intelligence reports.

They show the once-flourishing city of 1,800,000 population has, for the time being at least, almost ceased to exist.

Nine Square Miles Blasted

Altogether, between 5,000 and 6,000 acres—about nine square miles—were devastated.

That is nearly 100 times Coventry's similarly damaged area, and nearly 60 times greater than the principal area of devastation in London (105 acres) at the peak of the German aerial attack to knock Britain from the war in 1940.

The "built up" area of Hamburg which was destroyed includes the city proper and its suburbs.

The R.A.F. dropped approximately 7,000 long tons (7,840 U. S. tons) of bombs on Hamburg but the additional tonnage dumped by the Fortresses has not been revealed.

In their biggest raid on Coventry 400 German planes dropped 450 tons in nine hours—a rate of almost a ton per minute.

In the last big raid on Hamburg, the R.A.F. dropped 2,350 long tons in 45 minutes—a rate of more than 50 tons per minute, or more than 50 times the intensity of the largest Coventry raid.

Most Streets Fire-Swept

The Hamburg photographs reveal an almost uniform expanse of gutted buildings. Fire swept through street after street for miles, particularly in commercial and port areas, destroying everything.

Light patches measuring up to 150 yards across dot the city where big blockbusters leveled even big steel and concrete buildings.

The official damage list, which scrupulously includes hospitals, churches and other institutions which could not escape the holocaust, includes as "almost entirely destroyed" eight shipbuilding yards, three oil works, six nonferrous metal works, 20 armament and steel works, 11 chemical works, eight textile plants, 21 foodstuff plants, 21 miscellaneous factories, 16 gas and electric plants, 14 administrative buildings of a large army camp, 419 warehouses, the city's main railroad station and five suburban stations.

Destruction of essentials like transportation, communication, stores and police stations so thoroughly disrupted the urban life that it practically stopped, the ministry of Economic Warfare added to the R.A.F.'s report.

The flight of the terrified population intensified the production paralysis and caused a great administrative tangle.

Non-essential people attempting to return to the city after the raids were threatened with food card invalidation while essential residents were exhorted to return, the report continued.

Shipping Dealt Severe Blow

Shipping in the harbor—one of Germany's war production lifelines—plummeted from a normal rate of 200,000 tons to 15,000.

Equally impressive were the raids' repercussions throughout Germany's war economy.

The Hamburg raids precipitated the general cancellation of clothing ration cards, ended the 10-hour work day, caused stock market drops and spurred inflation which the Nazis have vainly attempted to keep under control, the report said.

Circulation of bank notes climbed from 8,000,000,000 marks in 1939 to 28,000,000,000 by last August, and jumped 1,700,000,000 between July 23, 1943 and Aug. 23.

This year's Victory gardens are expected to produce 10 1-2 billion pounds of food, compared with 7 1-2 billion pounds that came from such gardens in 1942.

London, Sept. 19 (AP)—While his troops battled guerrilla and Partisan forces in Yugoslavia, Adolf Hitler today was playing a political game to quell unrest in the Balkans, offering "protection from Bolshevization" in return for cooperation.

The Nazi-controlled Paris radio, in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press, said that Milan Nedic, Quisling Serbian Premier, had conferred with Hitler yesterday and later talked with Joachim von Ribbentrop, German Foreign Minister.

The Transocean propaganda agency called Nedic's visit "a sign that Serbian statesmen realize that interests of the Serbian people demand cooperation with the Reich," and says such cooperation "will doubtless be duly rewarded."

Tug Built In U. S. Tows Ship 1,650 Miles To England

London, Monday, Sept. 20 (AP)—The Royal Navy announced today that an American-built tug HMS Destiny, had towed a ship 1,650 miles through fog and heavy seas all the way from Gibraltar to the United Kingdom without charts and with only a pocket atlas as a guide.

The Destiny was commissioned in Michigan in July, 1941, and has since sailed the Caribbean and Mediterranean seas and the Atlantic Ocean.

BOMBER, GLIDER DOWNED

LONDON, Sept. 19 — (AP) The Germans said in their communique today that a four-engined bomber and a big glider in tow had been shot down over the Atlantic yesterday by long-range German fighters.

RED CROSS ASSISTANT KILLED IN LONDON FALL

LONDON, Monday, Sept. 20 — (AP) Miss Dorothya Stretch, 34, American Red Cross staff assistant, died Saturday in the United States Army hospital of injuries suffered when she fell from a London office building, it was announced today.

Authorities have begun an investigation.

Miss Stretch was the daughter of Elwood T. Stretch of Highland park, Detroit, Mich.

Knox Warns Of New Drive By Axis Subs

LONDONDERRY, Northern Ireland, Sept. 19 — (AP) U. S. Navy Secretary Frank Knox, addressing the personnel of the American naval base here, warned today that although the German U-boat menace had been checked the Germans were believed to be preparing new onslaughts upon Allied Atlantic convoy routes.

Secretary Knox, on an inspection tour of the U. S. installations in the European theater, was accompanied by Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of U. S. Naval operations in this theater, Capt. Leland P. Lovett, director of naval public relations, and Capt. L. S. Perry.

Praising the part this base played in upsetting Hitler's U-boat warfare, Mr. Knox told the personnel:

"If we hadn't had bases in Ulster we might have had a harder time, but we would have fought the battle of the Atlantic just the same."

He spoke during a ceremony at which the Secretary of the Navy's flag was presented the Londonderry base in recognition of the participation by more than 90 per cent of the base's personnel in the war bond drive.

Mr. Knox then made a tour that left Irish reporters gasping and prompted one to comment:

"Not even Mrs. Roosevelt went so fast when she was here."

PORTUGAL TO DRAFT HORSES AND DONKEYS

Animals Are Needed by Army —Train Travel Curbed

LISBON, Portugal, Sept. 19 (AP)—Premier Antonio de Oliveira Salazar's War Ministry issued an order today for the mobilization of all horses, mules and donkeys for urgent and extraordinary army service.

The mobilization will take place next Sunday.

This latest step in Portugal's military preparation followed an announcement in yesterday's evening papers urging vacationists to return immediately to their homes "in view of the requirements of transportation that will be necessary next month."

It was announced previously that large-scale military exercises, probably involving the mobilization of all available railroad and highway communications, would take place in October.

Premier Salazar said Sept. 2 that the country's stepped-up military preparations were defensive, but "in the unfortunate times in which we are living, may have to be used against foreign enemies as much as against internal elements of national disintegration."

He declared in a communiqué that it might be necessary to reinforce the colonial garrisons "according to the evolution of events concerning them."

[The London Evening Standard at that time interpreted the mobilization as a possible indication that Portugal was ready to declare war on Japan in protest against Japanese actions at Macao and Timor, Portuguese possessions in the Far East.]

THREE CONVOYS NOTED

LA LINEA, Spain, Sept. 18—(Delayed) — (AP) Three huge Allied convoys totaling more than 100 freighters and tankers passed Gibraltar into the Mediterranean today. Twelve other merchantmen were waiting in the bay for repairs.

BIG ALLIED FLEET NEAR AEGEAN ISLE

Refugees Reaching Turkey Predict Move on Castelrosso.

SEP 20 1943

BODRUM, Turkey, Sept. 18. — (Delayed)—(AP) Italian military and civilian refugees arriving at this Aegean port from the Dodecanese island of Castelross said a large Allied fleet was hovering near the island.

Castelrosso is the most southerly of the Dodecanese islands and is only a short distance from the Turkish coast.

The refugees said a previous report by a foreign naval source of the Allied seizure of the islands of Lero and Cos was true.

(There was no mention of the island of Samos in the dispatch. A previous Turkish report quoted a naval source as saying Samos was also occupied by Allied forces.)

The Germans were reported in complete control of Rhodes after Italians surrendered to end a 14-hour battle which opened soon after radios announced the fall of Italy.

It was estimated that 25,000

Italians on Rhodes were outmaneuvered and crushed by 5,000 Germans, including some armored units supported by waves of dive-bombers from Crete.

A Reuters dispatch to London from Istanbul said British forces landed Saturday on the Greek island of Samos, north of the Dodecanese chain. This followed up a report by a foreign naval source in Ankara last Wednesday that the Allies had landed on Samos, as well as on Lero and Cos.

Six Italian Naval Craft Surrendered At Haifa

Haifa, Palestine, Sept. 19 (AP)—An Italian gunboat, a mine sweeper and four other small naval craft steamed into Haifa harbor today flying their red, white and green flags to surrender to the Allies.

Two British motor launches escorted the tiny fleet which moved under the command of its own officers.

Allies Pound Barracks And Railroads in Burma

Start Landslides in Gorge, Attack Mandalay Area

NEW DELHI, India, Sept. 19 (AP).—American and British bombers and fighter planes, stabbing through breaks in the waning monsoon, concentrated their attacks on Japanese barracks and transport lines in occupied Burma during the week, it was announced in communiques today.

American B-25 Mitchell bombers loosed their loads on the Bongyuang Gorge last Wednesday, causing landslides which covered a great section of the railway line extending along the bottom of the cut. Other railway targets were attacked at Naba junction the same day.

Targets east and west of Mandalay were attacked Thursday, as were Japanese barracks at Maymo. Other attacks were made on rail lines and rolling stock at Ywataung and Sagaing to round out a week without losses to the Americans.

Royal Air Force Beaufighters shot up enemy barracks, locomotives, trucks and twenty sampans and attacked a Japanese troop concentration in the Prome area yesterday, a British announcement said.

14 JAP PLANES BAGGED IN RAID

Americans Battle Sixty Interceptors While Bombing Bougainville Base

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in the Southwest Pacific, Monday, Sept. 20—Intensive air action in the South Pacific continues at a mounting cost to the enemy's air forces, war-front reports made clear today.

In the latest combat over the northern Solomon Islands, fourteen additional Japanese fighter planes were destroyed, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters has been advised.

These were from a force of sixty interceptors which challenged a raid by fighter-escorted American torpedo and dive bombers on the enemy's Ballale airdrome at the southern tip of Bougainville Island. Their loss lifted to close to one hundred the number of Japanese aircraft destroyed in this sector within the last three weeks.

At Cost Of 6 Planes

The new American success, which was enhanced by further damage to the already largely unusable airfield, was achieved at a cost of two bombers and four fighters, today's communique disclosed. Two of the pilots were saved.

The daylight attack was preceded by three night attacks on Ballale and its neighboring airdrome of Kahili, in which fires were started. Two bombers failed to return from the mission.

Although the number of U. S. planes participating in these most recently reported attacks on the enemy's key Bougainville holdings was not disclosed, they followed close upon a series of raids within the past few days in which as many as 200 aircraft were thrown against the Japanese.

The enemy, in turn, has responded by sending up fleets of interceptors ranging from 50 to 100 planes.

There still was no detailed official summary here on the capture of Lae, New Guinea, by Allied forces Sept. 16, but a spokesman for General MacArthur said preliminary reports indicated considerable enemy artillery, both Army and Navy types, has been seized along with other booty.

The spokesman said also that the Lae airdrome was found to be in good shape and should be useable as an Allied base within a short time. Beyond that, he added, there is a strong possibility that the Malahang landing strip, three miles east of Lae, also may be ready soon as an auxiliary field.

Foretaste Given Japs

A foretaste of what this will mean to the enemy was given in the extensive activity of Allied airpower over the general area even when it is operating from its present, more remote bases.

Bombers of Lieut. Gen. George C. Kenney's Fifth Air Force dumped sixteen tons of explosives on Finschhafen, one of Japan's last remaining bases on the Huon Gulf.

In an air patrol off the coast of New Britain, two Japanese barges laden with troops were destroyed.

Darwin Raid Does No Damage

The Allied base at Darwin, Australia, was raided by the enemy, but the communique said no damage resulted.

A small enemy cargo ship was bombed and set afire by an Allied reconnaissance plane east of Kavieng, New Ireland, and other heavy bombers damaged a 2,000-ton Japanese merchantmen off Cape St. George in the same general sector.

At Hansa bay on the north coast of New Guinea between Wewak and Madang, a third enemy cargo vessel, of 1,200 tons, fell victim to a night attack by a single medium bomber. The ship was destroyed, the communique said.

MACARTHUR HAILS LAE CONQUERORS

Conduct of Ground Troops Termed Splendid; Navy Wins Praise.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Monday, Sept. 20 — (AP) General Douglas MacArthur, Allied commander-in-chief in the Southwest Pacific, paid tribute today to the commanders, troops and naval units which took part in the successful campaign against Lae, New Guinea.

"The conduct of the ground troops was splendid beyond words," he said in a statement.

"The Australian contingent included two of the Australian imperial forces' most famous divisions who added new lustre to their colors. These are magnificent troops, unsurpassed in the world. The newer Australian units also covered themselves with distinction.

"The American contingent of ground troops was much smaller than their Australian comrades, but performed equally well. The paratroop unit was especially notable.

Naval Units Lauded

"The naval units performed their difficult and dangerous task most admirably. No amphibious force could have excelled them. The superb work of American and Australian airmen have already been noted by me.

"The skill of all commanders was of high order. Outstanding were Generals Blamey, Herring, Vasey, Wootten, Savige, Milford, Moten and Eather; Admirals Carpender and Barbey; Air Generals Kenney, Whitehead, Wurtsmith and Ramey.

"The staffs functioned smoothly and efficiently, as did the services of supply and medical installations. All services and ranks warrant high praise."

The capture of Lae, key Japanese base on the northeast coast of New Guinea, was achieved 12 days after the final offensive was undertaken.

Chandler Favors M'Arthur As Supreme Asia Commander

Kentucky Senator Wants Unified Control In Pacific, India, Burma And China

SEP 20 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in the South Pacific, Sept. 18 (Delayed)—Senator Albert B. Chandler (D., Ky.) today urged appointment of Gen. Douglas MacArthur as Supreme Allied Commander in the Pacific and Asia. Chandler, on a tour of the war zones with a group of other Senators, said he would return to the United States with a message to the Senate and American people that the war effort against Japan must be increased.

A unified command for the Pacific and Asia, including Burma, India and China, was advocated by the Senator, who said his personal choice was General MacArthur, with whom he conferred recently. Senator Chandler said he had heard criticisms of MacArthur in recent days, but refused to give details.

More Aid For China, He Urges

He praised MacArthur as a great military leader and said:

"I'm sold on his ability as a fighter and as a leader he represents our best chance of winning the war against Japan.

"Unless we soon get more men, guns and planes out here, China is in danger of being forced out of the war. That's the risk we are running. If China is knocked out, the war against Japan will be prolonged."

The Senator said what he had seen on his tour only deepens his conviction that Japan is our primary enemy and added: "We're not doing enough out here."

Thinks Area Has Been Neglected

Senator Richard Russell (D., Ga.), the only other Senator in the traveling group to come here with Chandler, agreed that this area has suffered by the policy of "clipping" Germany first, but said he believed an increasing stream of supplies would be coming to the Pacific war zone.

Both Senators said this area has been getting more emphasis since the Churchill-Roosevelt conferences at Quebec.

Chandler reiterated throughout his interview that the Japanese are our strongest enemy, having the balance of power on land, on the sea and in the air as well as a great store of resources.

Would Retain Bases After War

He said America should not continue a policy of "take and abandon," meaning building foreign bases, leaving them and then having to fight to get them back again. He asserted we ought to keep control of our bases after the war. Asked if he meant we should keep planes and garrisons based in Australia, Chandler said:

"We need anchors out here, but we wouldn't want to do it unless the Australians wanted us to."

Again referring to the China situation, Chandler said Maj. Gen. Claire Chennault, commander of the American Air Force there, desperately needs support and "we are taking a chance of losing our Kunming base."

Must Regain Burma

Chandler said the United Nations must run the Japanese out of Burma in order to keep China in the fight.

"Somebody's troops will have to help China," he said.

Chandler declared General Chennault told him he could drive the Japanese out of China with planes alone.

While Chandler and Russell visited headquarters here, other members of the party, Senators Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr. (R., Mass.), James M. Mead (D., N. Y.), and Ralph O. Brewster (R., Maine), were inspecting Guadalcanal in the Solomons. The five will join at another base en route home.

Two Pacific Islands Raided By Strong U. S. Navy Force

Nimitz Reveals Attack on Jap Bases at Tarawa, Nauru Islands.

PEARL HARBOR, Sept. 19—(AP) The Japanese airbase on Tarawa island in the northern Gilbert group and Nauru island, west of the Gilberts, were attacked by strong American naval forces last night and today (east Longitude time)), Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced.

The form of assault on the enemy's island bases was not specified in the admiral's communique, but they probably were heavily bombed by carrier-based torpedo planes and dive bombers.

Follows Marcus Raid

The attack on the islands, which form the eastern spearhead of Japan's Pacific defense perimeter, came less than three weeks after the Sept. 1 bombing of Marcus island, 1,200 miles from Tokyo.

(In the Marcus island raid American planes blasted the base for nine hours, smashing 80 per cent of the Japanese installations there, Admiral Nimitz reported later).

Admiral Nimitz' communique today:

"Strong Pacific ocean area forces today conducted a heavy raid on the Japanese bases on Tarawa island in the northern Gilbert group and on Nauru island to the west of the Gilbert group.

"These operations were carried out according to plan during the night preceding and for a good portion of the day of Sept. 19, east Longitude time.

Details Not Disclosed

"Details of the operation are not immediately available."

Today's raids were not the first on those Japanese bases. Both have been bombed previously by land-based heavy bombers, presumably operating from American airfield in the Solomons or central Pacific area.

The raids, if made from carriers, were among the most daring attempted by a United States task force since the objectives were bases at which the enemy could employ long-range, land bombers to attack the carriers and their supporting warships.

Task Force Attacks Indicated

PEARL HARBOR, Sept. 19 (AP)—If the attacks on Tarawa and Nauru were made by carrier task forces, they followed in less than three weeks the Sept. 1 bombing of Marcus Island, in which carrier bombers blasted that base steadily for nine hours.

The communiqué's report that "heavy raids" extended for several hours last night and today is strong indication that the attack was carried out by a carrier task force, similar to the Marcus Island assault which resulted in destruction of 80 per cent of the Japanese installations there.

Previous raids on Tarawa and Nauru were made by bombers presumably operating from American airfields in the Solomons theater or Central Pacific area.

If the week-end raids on the two islands were made by carrier planes the operations would be among the most daring attempted by United States task forces against bases from which the enemy could use long-range land bombers to attack the carriers and their escorting warships.

Enemy Apparently Surprised

The tone of the Nimitz communiqué suggests the enemy was surprised as he was at Marcus, when the first bombers struck in the darkness of early morning. If the carriers were able to continue their attacks several hours, the first bombing runs must have knocked out whatever air power the enemy had available for interception or for bombing the task force ships.

The enemy's air strength at both Tarawa and Nauru in all probability was light, since the Japanese have been pressed by heavy plane losses in the New Guinea and Solomons areas.

The main use made of Tarawa and Nauru by the enemy has been for plane reconnaissance and bombing raids on American outposts at Canton and Funafuti Islands.

This raid following so closely behind the Marcus raid indicates the American Navy has mustered aircraft carrier replacements for losses suffered in the early months of the war and that Navy task forces may keep hitting the enemy in this sector repeatedly.

Japs Report Munda Raid

New York, Sept. 19 (AP)—The Tokyo radio said in a broadcast tonight that Japanese navy planes had heavily attacked United States positions near Munda, New Georgia, and caused severe destruction without loss of a plane. The broadcast was recorded by the Associated Press.

ChangeRichardson'sCommand

HONOLULU, T. H., Sept. 19 (AP).—Lieutenant General Robert C. Richardson was designated commander of United States Army forces in the central Pacific area today in a move viewed as indicative of Hawaii's transformation from a defensive bastion to an important springboard for an accelerated offensive against Japan. General Richardson has been commanding general of the Hawaiian Department, United States Army.

SHORT WORK STOPPAGES BARRED IN MEXICO

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 19—(AP) Temporary work stoppages, frequently resorted to by Mexican labor in recent months to enforce demands, were outlawed tonight by a decree of President Manuel Avila Camacho.

Only duly declared strikes that have gone through prescribed arbitration processes will be recognized as legal, the president said.

In the case of illegal "collective suspensions of work," employes will be subject to fines deductible from their salaries.

The president said that the increasing number of work stoppages, usually for a few hours at a time, were impeding production.

ventory Discloses; Production Soaring.

By HAMILTON W. FARON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19 — (AP) A giant fleet, "mightiest in world history," carries the United States flag today on all oceans and seas.

And, in the skies, is "the most powerful naval air force in the world."

The Navy proudly gave the descriptions today in an inventory disclosing gigantic production of ships, planes, ammunition — production that still is adding swiftly to the "greatest sea-air power on earth."

On the seas, the Navy observed, the fleet is composed of 14,072 vessels including 613 warships. Three years ago there were only 1,076 vessels, numbering but 383 fighting ships.

18,000 Navy Planes

The Navy air forces have more than 18,000 planes—dive bombers, torpedo bombers, fighters, patrol ships, planes of all types. Three years ago there were 1,744 naval planes of all types.

Speed of the production that has built up the fleet and air arm is portrayed in these comparative figures:

"In July, 1940, the Navy received five newly completed vessels; in July, 1943, almost 1,200.

"In July, 1940, the Navy received 25 new airplanes; in June, 1943, almost 2,000."

Emphasis in the swift job of building the world's mightiest fleet has been laid on hard-hitting warships, combatant vessels that can battle it out with any enemy craft.

In that fighting category 333 new ships have been completed since July, 1940, at a cost of $3,000,000,000. But the other types have not been neglected. Mine craft and patrol boats built in the last three years total 1,274 and cost $820,000,000; auxiliaries number 151, and district craft 654.

Thousands of Landing Craft

Landing craft, the boats that carry troops, tanks and other fighting equipment ashore on strange beaches to wrest them from enemy control, make up the largest total—12,964 new boats costing $1,000,000,000.

"No naval construction program of comparable size and speed," the Navy says, "has ever been accomplished by any other nation. Ability to build this huge new naval force—and to continue to build at the present rate—is one of the foundation stones of our military strategy.

"It underlies our amphibious attacks in the Pacific, the Atlantic and the Mediterranean. It protects our long, exterior supply routes running across thousands of miles of ocean.

"Most important, it makes feasible a strategy of attack, with all the risks it implies. Ability to build—or, if necessary, to rebuild—on this scale is one of the basic advantages which the American Navy holds over fleets of all other nations."

The production step-up in combatant ships— battleships, aircraft carriers, cruisers, destroyers, destroyer escorts and submarines — has been especially sharp, the Navy reports, and tonnage of fighting ships produced in the first six months of 1943 exceeds by twenty times the tonnage completed in the first six months of the "defense program."

Emphasis Shifted

Emphasis throughout the three-year period—in which 58 warships were lost and 129 transferred to Allied nations or converted to non-combat use—was shifted from one type to another as urgency dictated. For example, immediately after Pearl Harbor, new battleships were held to be of greatest urgency. Their production was rushed and new capital ships played a big part in the decisive battles off Guadalcanal Nov. 15 and 16, 1942.

As the battleship program moved into the clear and giant battles were being fought between aircraft carriers in the Coral sea, at Midway and in Southwest Pacific waters, the need was for more aircraft carriers. They were produced.

Meantime, a huge landing craft program was pushed forward with 10,000 tons produced in the first six months of 1942; 218,000 tons the next six months; 375,000 tons in the first half of 1943.

Destroyer escort construction also moved ahead rapidly to provide an answer to the German U-boat menace along merchant shipping lanes.

Speeds heretofore believed impossible also have been achieved in production of all types of fighting craft.

Production of naval aircraft has been even swifter on a comparative basis.

500 Pct, Air Increase

"The Navy air arm of mid-1940 has been erased more than five times over," the Navy says, "but, the United States now has the most powerful naval air force in the world. Where there were 1,744 naval planes three years ago, on July 31, 1943, there were 18,269, a ten-fold net increase."

Fire power of planes and ships alike has been increased says the Navy.

"New Navy fighter planes fire in one minute five times the weight of projectiles that their 1940 predecessors fired. A modern battleship's anti-aircraft firepower is 100 times what it was three years ago."

And, with all the new production, there's more to come. The Navy says that ships on the ways in July, 1942, had a value of $1,800,000,000. On that same date this year the value of "construction in place" was $3,200,000,000.

"Despite its tremendous size, the naval shipbuilding program still moves upward," concludes the Navy's production review.

WOULD LIMIT PEACE MOVES

Republicans Want Reservation To Assure United States Sovereignty

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 19—A Republican demand for reservations may force some revision of the Fulbright "lasting peace" resolution when it comes up for a House vote tomorrow in the first Congressional test of foreign policy sentiment.

With minority party Representatives urging the insertion of language guaranteeing that Constitutional processes be observed in setting up any international machinery to preserve peace, Chairman Bloom (D., N. Y.) called the House Foreign Affairs Committee into special session tomorrow morning.

Bloom said the language is acceptable to him and that if his fellow-members agree it will be offered as a committee amendment to a proposal by Representative Fulbright (D., Ark.), already approved by the group. Leaders previously had said they hoped to pass the bill without change.

Aim Of Resolution

The Fulbright resolution proposes to put Congress on record as favoring American participation in the creation of "appropriate international machinery with power adequate to establish and to maintain a just and lasting peace among the nations of the world."

The House will take it up under procedure which would require a two-thirds vote for its passage and would ban any but committee amendments.

Some Republicans previously had sought to open the bill to changes on the floor and Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.), who headed the Republican Advisory Council committee which drafted a foreign policy statement at Mackinac Island (Mich.), said he did not believe the Fulbright proposal would be satisfactory to the Senate in its present form.

Wants A Few Assurances

"It could be made entirely satisfactory by the simple addition of a few assurances that America is to remain a sovereign nation and that her international commitments are to be made by Constitutional process," he said. The House Republicans proposed to add the words "without impairment of its Constitutional processes."

These points were covered in the Republican declaration which urged "responsible participation" by the United States in a cooperative organization of sovereign nations to prevent future aggression.

"Unless somebody wants to deny these limitations," Vandenberg said, "I do not understand why a Congressional expression on foreign policy should not contain them.

Urges Substantial Unity

"The only Congressional expression on foreign policy of value will be one of substantial unity. Men of good faith should be allowed to seek this common ground."

There were indications, meanwhile, that the Senate leadership—after hesitating for months—is about ready to come to grips with the foreign policy question.

Chairman Connelly (D., Texas) has called a Foreign Relations subcommittee together to consider a dozen or more proposals Wednesday and Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky.) is said to be anxious to bring a resolution to a vote in the Senate shortly. Republican Leader McNary (Ore.) also is reported to favor early action.

In General Agreement

Connally and Barkley recently talked over the question informally with Secretary Hull and the three were said to be in general agreement on procedure.

In his message to Congress Friday, President Roosevelt said that as the war progresses this country seeks "a national cooperation with other nations toward the end that world aggression be ended and that fair international relationships be established on a permanent basis." He suggested that the good-neighbor policy be extended to the whole world.

Most legislators interpreted this as inviting action by Congress on a general resolution pledging post-war collaboration with other nations to preserve the peace.

WAR LOAN DRIVE HITS 10 BILLIONS, SAYS MORGENTHAU

Last Third of Objective Will Be Hardest, He Warns.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 — (AP) The Third War Loan passed the two-thirds mark today with Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau calling on all sales forces to think of the five billon dollars still to go rather than the ten million already in the till.

'I can assure you that the last five billion will be the hardest," the Treasury head said in announcing that sales through Saturday totaled $10,239,000,000 of the $15,000,000,000 goal.

"The 'big' money — money from corporations and insurance companies — is already in," he said. "The job of supplying the remainder rests squarely on the shoulder of the American people."

Mr. Morgenthau paid tribute to the individuals and groups who have joined to promote the campaign, asserting that "raising this amount of money, in so short a time, would have seemed utterly impossible only a few months ago."

"The fact that we have been able to do it," he said, "is eloquent testimony to the patriotic, untiring efforts of the hundreds of thousands of volunteers working with our war finance committees throughout the country, and to the cooperation of the nation's newspapers, businesses, radio networks, industries, organized labor, and all the rest. I think it is safe to say that never before have all these elements of our national life teamed up so closely and effectively to do a job.

"But simply because we are on the home stretch in so short a time, we have no right yet to throw our hats in the air and consider the job done."

He expressed confidence in the success of the drive, "not only because the American people are taking the war more seriously than ever before, but because they know a good thing when they see it." He said the bonds represent the "best interest and the safest investment they can find anywhere."

Americans Told to Ignore Enemy News of Prisoners

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19—The American Red Cross says that short-wave broadcasts from enemy nations purporting to give information about American prisoners of war should be ignored.

Announcing that "hundreds of service men's families" had received false casualty reports, the Red Cross quoted the Federal Bureau of Investigation today as stating that the spreading of such reports indicated a substantial force of enemy representatives strategically placed throughout the country, working under enemy orders to undermine American morale.

LONE JAP PLANE RAIDS GUADALCANAL

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19 — (AP) The Navy reported today that a lone Japanese plane visited American-held Guadalcanal island on the night of Sept. 15 and dropped bombs which caused only minor damage and injury to one man.

This followed by one night a raid by Japanese planes on the Lunga point area on Guadalcanal which, the Navy said in a communique at that time, resulted in "some minor damage."

O.W.I. OVERSEAS BRANCH IN EUROPE REORGANIZED

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19 — (AP) The Office of War Information has reorganized its Overseas division anew, and simultaneously has laid plans to ask Congress for several million dollars of additional funds to keep the propaganda war in step with the march of military events.

The change affected mainly the European and African theater. It makes James P. Warburg, deputy director in charge of psychological warfare policy since last February, responsible for U. S. propaganda aimed at enemy and occupied nations, and puts Ferdinand Kuhn in charge of informational programs among the neutral and Allied countries.

In effect, OWI has divided the European countries along political lines, instead of the geographical groupings which have been in effect since last February.

Robert Sherwood, director of OWI's Overseas branch, said that military developments in the last seven months necessitated the separation of informational activity from propaganda warfare.

QUICK END TO WAR IS LEGION'S THEME

Waring Announces Topic For Convention Opening In Omaha Tomorrow

[By the Associated Press]

Omaha, Neb., Sept. 19—Key theme of the twenty-fifth annual American Legion convention which will open here Tuesday for three days is "doing our part to speed conclusion of the war," National Commander Roane Waring, of Memphis, Tenn., declared on his arrival to day.

Of post-war policy Waring added:

"The Legion is committed, and properly so, to future cooperation with other peace-loving countries in preventing another world-wide catastrophe. The Legion believes that America, big and strong and powerful as it is, must take a definite stand and do its part in the preservation of the future peace.

Want Strength Maintained

"To do this America must at all times maintain its armed strength, so as to be effective. And whatever it does it must do as a sovereign nation in cooperation with other sovereign nations."

Warren Atherton, of Stockton, Cal., regarded by pre-convention delegates to have the best chance of succeeding Waring as commander, said he believed the Legion's main responsibility is helping the nation in making the necessary adjustments to get the maximum efficiency out of man power, thus bolstering the war effort.

Atherton, 51-year-old attorney and national defense chairman of the Legion since 1939, said that in his opinion a universal service act—sought by the Legion for many years—would be the best means of achieving maximum manpower efficiency.

Imperialistic Plans Laid, Hillman Says

Minneapolis, Sept. 19 (AP)—Sidney Hillman, national chairman of the CIO political action committee, in an address today to a regional trade union representatives' conference in Minneapolis on labor's part in the world-peace plans, charged that "there are forces in this country who today are laying grandiose plans for a new American imperialism," opposed to any constructive domestic post-war program.

Hillman is here to aid in the formation of labor political leagues for Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska, North and South Dakota which he said will work to defeat Congressmen who voted for the Connally-Smith labor bill.

Flying Tigers' Recruiter Dies At Kelly Field

San Antonio, Texas, Sept. 19 (AP). Col. Richard Aldworth, 46, recruiter of the Flying Tigers and a pioneer in the Air Corps, died at Kelly Field Hospital late last night one day after he was awarded the Legion of Merit Medal.

Maj. Gen. Gerald C. Brant, of the Central Flying Training Command at Randolph Field, presented the Legion of Merit Medal as a representative of Gen. Henry H. Arnold, chief of the Air Corps.

Colonel Aldworth, a native of San Antonio, was largely responsible for recruiting the famed American Volunteer Group, which blazed a remarkable record in China skies.

Col. [illegible]es Roosevelt Heads for White House

The eldest son of the President returned recently from the Aleutians battle zone.

U. S. IS URGED TO SHARE FOOD

But No American Will Be Deprived Of Sufficient Supplies, Roosevelt Says

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Sept. 19—President Roosevelt said tonight the United States must be prepared to share its food "with those who—without our help—might be faced with want."

In a letter to food dealers attending the seventh annual conference of the Super Market Institute, the President asserted, however, that "the Government does not intend to deprive any American citizen of sufficient food to maintain health and energy."

Text Of Message

The text of his message:

"The food problem of the United States has become an increasing part of our military effort. There is no indication that our responsibilities in this direction will diminish soon—in fact, they are likely to be increased as additional territory is occupied by our fighting forces.

"It is therefore essential that there be complete cooperation between the producers and distributors of food in this country and those governmental agencies charged with the duty of supplying food to our soldiers and civilian population.

"Ready To Share"

"The Government does not intend to deprive any American citizen of sufficient food to maintain health and energy. At the same time, we must be prepared to share with those who—without our help—might be faced with want.

"Everything that we in the United States can do to increase production and make distribution more efficient will further this objective. Retail distributors have an especial duty, which I feel they will be glad to assume patriotically."

SABOTAGE FOUND IN 1,105 INSTANCES

FBI Official Says There Is No Evidence of Foreign Direction.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19—(AP) The Federal Bureau of Investigation, up to Aug. 31, 1943, investigated 11,534 cases of suspected sabotage, found evidence of sabotage activity in 1,105 cases, but "as yet there has been no evidence of accomplished sabotage having been directed by a foreign government," Lee R. Pennington, assistant to FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover, said today.

Addressing the 22nd annual convention of the Disabled American Veterans, Mr. Pennington disclosed that 485 persons had been convicted in sabotage cases, with other cases pending, but he added that most cases in industrial plants involved persons "who have personal axes to grind." The nearest approach to accomplished sabotage directed by an enemy government, he said, was the case of the eight would-be saboteurs landed at Long Island, six of whom later were executed.

Mr. Pennington said that up to Sept. 7, 1943, 14,73 enemy aliens had been taken into custody by the FBI, some of whom were released after hearings. Included were 5,-91 Germans, 5,924 Japanese, 3,503 Italians, 11 Rumanians, 11 Hungarians and one Bulgarian.

Since the enactment of Selective Service, he told the veterans, the FBI disposed of more than 285,000 cases of alleged violations, with only 5,764 resulting in conviction. Principal reason for violations, he said, was ignorance or carelessness.

Hitler Gives Iron Cross To Transport Officials

New York, Sept. 19 (AP)—The Berlin radio, indirectly acknowledging the war stress on German transport, said today that Adolf Hitler had bestowed honors "shared by millions of indefatigable railwaymen," on two Reich transport officials for "meritorious war service."

The broadcast said the Knights' Cross of the Iron Cross had been awarded to Dr. Julius Dorpmueller, Minister of Transportation, and Dr. Ganzenmueller, state secretary in the Ministry of Transportation.

Nazis Nab Ex-French Officers

New York, Sept. 19 (AP)—The French radio at Dakar said today in a broadcast recorded by CBS that former French army officers were being arrested by the Germans in provinces bordering on Italy on suspicion of having joined the underground resistance movement.

Allied Nationals Board Ship For Exchange Port

New York, Sept. 19 (AP)—The Tokyo radio said Sunday that American and Allied nationals had boarded the liner Teia Maru in the Yangtze river off Shanghai and would sail Monday morning to be exchanged for Japanese nationals.

The Allied repatriates will be exchanged at Mormugao, Portuguese India, for an approximately equal number of Japanese nationals from the United States, Canada and South America.

NINE SHIPS ADDED TO FAST GROWING U. S. SEA MIGHT

Troopship, Escorts, Liberty Ships, One Sub Are Launched in Day.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ship yards on both coasts yesterday added nine naval and merchant ships to America's growing sea might.

One of the busiest launching schedules was at Henry J. Kaiser's Permanente Metals corporation yards in Richmond, Calif., where two Liberty ships, the George Sterling and the James J. O'Kelly, as well as a 19,000-ton troopship, the General Hugh L. Scott, took to the water.

The Scott was named for the Kentuckian who was Army chief of staff from 1914 to 1917.

The Federal Shipbuilding and Dry Dock company's yards at Newark and Kearny, N. J., launched the troopship Henry W. Butner and and Straub.

Honoring the former commanding general of the Panama Canal department, who was a native of Pinnacle, N. C., the Butner was the fourth transport of its type turned out at Kearny since March 21.

War Victims Honored

The escorts, launched at Newark, were named for Lieut. (j.g.) George Nelson Trumpeter of Rennerdale, Pa., and Lieut. (j.g.) Walter Morris Straub of Baltimore, both of whom died in action in the present war.

At the Groton, Conn., yards of the Electric Boat company the submarine Gabilan slid down the ways, the 16th underseas craft to be launched there in 30 weeks.

A 10,500-ton Liberty ship named for the late Edward H. Sothern, the Shakespearean actor, was christened at the California Shipbuilding corporation ways, Wilmington, Calif.

The New England Shipbuilding corporation yard at South Portland, Me., produced its 109 vessel under the war program, the Liberty ship William H. Todd, honoring the founder of the Todd Shipyard corpration, an affiliate firm.

U-BOAT LOSSES HIT NEW ATLANTIC LOW

Only One Allied Vessel Listed as Sunk in 28 Days; Insurance Rates Cut.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A new record low of destruction by Axis U-boats operating in the Western Atlantic has been established in the last 28 days with only one Allied or neutral merchant ship sinking announced.

Since Pearl Harbor, U-boats have destroyed 687 neutral and Allied cargo ships in the western Atlantic.

Last week as in two of the three previous weeks, no new sinkings were announced, bearing out Navy Secretary Frank Knox's recent comment that the Allies have given German U-boats "a good shellacking."

Lower Insurance Rates

Marine underwriters took notice of the improved shipping situation by announcing reduction of war risk insurance rates on shipments between New York and the United Kingdom, Eire and northern Ireland to four per cent, lowest quoted rate since 1940.

A year ago the rates on similar shipments was 10 per cent.

In the first 20 days of September this year the Navy announced only one Western Atlantic cargo ship loss. During September, 1942, thirty non-Axis merchant ships were reported sunk in these waters.

Typhus Reported In Rumania

New York, Sept. 19 (AP)—The Office of War Information reported today that a Bucharest dispatch to the Swiss newspaper Gazette de Lausanne stated a typhus epidemic had broken out in the Rumanian capital and was "making rapid progress."

CLOSE ALLIANCE URGED BY REP. WILL ROGERS

NEW YORK, Sept. 19 — (AP) Rep. Will Rogers, Jr., (D-Calif.) said tonight America must "enter into a close and lasting alliance with England, Russia and China" as the sole alternative to a third world war.

Rep. Rogers, son of the late Will Rogers, made the statement upon his arrival at La Guardia airport aboard a Pan American Airways Clipper which brought him from England, where for seven weeks he had toured U. S. fighter and bomber stations and conferred with British officials. He also briefly visited Ireland.

What's Behind The War News

By ELTON C. FAY

(Associated Press War Analyst)

The Allies in the Asiatic war are not forgetting the Japanese now lurking virtually undisturbed in their Malaya and East Indies strongholds.

The impending Burma campaign, although in a theater far removed, may have a direct influence in the vast area stretching west from the New Guinea-Solomons front to the Indian ocean.

President Roosevelt says "we are determined to take the offensive" in Burma. He put that declaration into the same message in which he noted there had been "one serious gap in the lines of our globe-encircling sea-power, the 3,000-mile interval between Ceylon, in the Indian ocean, and northwest Australia. That gap, he said, now can be closed because naval strength once needed in the Mediterranean can be diverted.

Sumatra and Java flank that gap in Allied sea strength and north of them are Singapore and Borneo. But because they do flank the gap which is now to be closed does not necessarily mean that the islands themselves can be retaken by amphibious operations carried over and launched from the sea route. The enemy has been there, presumably is well entrenched and operation from the sea against his guns and shore-based aviation could be difficult and costly. It would even be unsuccessful.

But Burma is athwart the Japanese overland route to Malaya and the Indies. It is within reach of seaborne invasion forces from Ceylon and India and, from the north, is threatened by land armies growing in strength at the India border.

With Burma and Indo-China, or an east-west cross section of the two countries, in Allied control the enemy's land route to his positions and the Indies would be cut. And what is more, his sea route would be brought within easy bomber range. Allied forces would be in position for a war of attrition or for a full-scale flanking move to the south.

To the east, the jaws of the pincer close steadily. General MacArthur's air, sea and land forces progress along the enemy's southwest Pacific flank, advancing west and north.

Pathway to China

With Burma in Allied hands, China would receive the huge stocks of war goods for which she now starves. The rate of progress in the whole Pacific war would be accelerated.

Allied four-engine bombers now stand on Chinese air fields, many of them grounded because the flood of gasoline they should have is presently only a trickle. The material for full-scale mechanized warfare awaits the reopening of a land route to the Chinese front.

"Even with such air strength as is now available in the China-Burma skies, Allied forces are wearing down Japan's aviation and, says the President, "that process will continue until we are ready to strike right at the heart of Japan

The plans for war in the Orient —specific and precise plans—were part of the discussions at the Quebec conference last month. The week-end announcement that Prime Minister Churchill has arrived back in England after six weeks of conversations with President Roosevelt emphasized that the pattern for war is cut and ready.

WITH CHURCHILL

BY JUDSON O'QUINN

LONDON, SEPT. 19-(AP)-AMID SUCH HUBBUB AS IS SELDOM SEEN AT A LONDON RAILROAD STATION IN WARTIME, PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL RETURNED HOME TONIGHT TO BE WELCOMED ENTHUSIASTICALLY BY HIGH-PLACED COLLEAGUES AND HORDES OF ADMIRERS.

SHARING THE OVATION WERE MRS.CHURCHILL, HER DAUGHTER MARY, SUBALTERN IN THE ATS, AND MINISTER OF INFORMATION BRENDAN BRACKEN.

BEFORE THEY HAD TIME TO LEAVE THE TRAIN OTHER CHURCHILL DAUGHTERS, MRS.VIC OLIVER AND MRS.DUNCAN SANDYS, JUMPED ABOARD AND EMBRACED THEIR PARENTS AND SISTER.

AS SOON AS HE LEFT THE TRAIN, CHURCHILL WAS CHEERED BY A WAITING CROWD WHICH SOMEHOW HAD LEARNED WHEN HE WOULD ARRIVE.

FOR JUST A FEW MINUTES IT WAS POSSIBLE FOR HIM TO GREET FOREIGN SECRETARY ANTHONY EDEN; LORD HALIFAX, AMBASSADOR TO THE UNITED STATES; SIR KINGSLEY WOOD, CHANCELLOR OF THE EXCHEQUER; CLEMENT ATTLEE, DOMINIONS SECRETARY; U.S. AMBASSADOR JOHN WINANT; A.V. ALEXANDER, FIRST LORD OF THE ADMIRALTY; VISCOUNT SIMON, LORD HIGH CHANCELLOR; AND SIR STAFFORD CRIPPS, LORD PRIVY SEAL.

THEN THE CROWD CLAIMED HIM FOR ITS OWN. HE WAS GIVEN A RECEPTION SELDOM MATCHED IN FOUR YEARS OF STRIFE.

THE PRIME MINISTER PAUSED FOR A MOMENT ON THE WAY TO HIS CAR AND HELD UP HIS FINGERS IN THE VICTORY SIGN.

HE DID NOT SPEAK NOR DID HE MAKE A STATEMENT TO NEWSMEN. HE HALTED BRIEFLY IN THE GLARING LIGHTS OF NEWSREEL CAMERAS, THEN PASSED ON TO BE DRIVEN AWAY IN HIS BLACK MOTOR CAR.

WHEN THE TWO CARS TRANSPORTING THE CHURCHILL ENTOURAGE ARRIVED AT 10 DOWNING STREET ONLY TWO POLICEMEN AND TWO REPORTERS WERE ON HAND.

HEADLIGHTS WERE EXTINGUISHED BEFORE THE PASSENGERS ALIGHTED.

THUS ENDED THE HISTORIC RETURN JOURNEY FROM QUEBEC AND WASHINGTON.

(ADVANCE) LONDON, SEPT. 19-(AP)-THE CONTROVERSY BETWEEN PRODUCTION AND MERCHANT CIRCLES OVER THE FATE OF BRITISH OVERSEAS COTTONS, LTD., AFTER THE WAR HELD THE SPOTLIGHT IN THE COTTON SECTION OF THE TEXTILE INDUSTRY THIS WEEK.

SIGNIFICANT WAS THE ACTION OF THE CENTRAL COMMITTEE OF COTTON SPINNERS AND MANUFACTURERS ASSOCIATION WHICH MET AT MANCHESTER AND VOTED UNANIMOUSLY TO FAVOR CONTINUANCE OF BOC'S ACTIVITIES IN PEACETIME. THIS WAS VIGOROUSLY OPPOSED BY VARIOUS MERCHANTS' ORGANIZATIONS.

BOC IS A SEMI-GOVERNMENT WARTIME AGENCY SET UP FOR THE PURPOSE OF HANDLING SALES OF COTTON OVERSEAS. THE RESOLUTION URGED THAT THE "ORGANIZATION SHOULD BE MAINTAINED AS ONE ESSENTIAL FEATURE OF POSTWAR REORGANIZATION" ON THE GROUND THAT IT PROVED TO BE OF GREAT VALUE IN DIFFICULT CIRCUMSTANCES WHICH MAY BE EXPECTED TO CONTINUE IN DIFFERENT FORMS AFTER THE WAR.

THE MANCHESTER GUARDIAN COMMENTED THAT: "WARTIME CONDITIONS HAVE CHECKED PROGRESS IN MANY DIRECTIONS BUT HAVE ENCOURAGED INDUSTRIES TO TRY NEW FORMS OF ORGANIZATION.

"THERE CAN BE NO DOUBT THAT BOC HAS DEVELOPED INTO A MOST USEFUL FORM OF COOPERATIVE MACHINERY FOR ARRANGING ECONOMICAL LARGE-SCALE PRODUCTION FOR EXPORT WHEN DISTRIBUTION MUST IN MANY INSTANCES BE ON A SMALL SCALE."

-DASH-

CONTINUED BRISK DEMAND FOR SUPPLIES OF COTTON CLOTH FOR THE ARMED FORCES CAME MAINLY FROM THE AIR MINISTRY. SOME NEW ORDERS ALSO WERE PLACED IN TIRE YARNS.

EXPORT TRANSACTIONS WERE ON A VERY SMALL SCALE AND YARN BUSINESS WAS HAMPERED BY A DELIVERY PROBLEM WITH MOST NEW CONTRACTS FOR DELIVERY WELL INTO NEXT YEAR.

-DASH-

BULK OF FAIRLY ACTIVE WOOL BUSINESS WAS FOR UTILITY REQUIREMENTS DURING THE REMAINDER OF THE CURRENT PRODUCTION PERIOD.

MOST FIRMS COVERED THEIR NEEDS AT ABOUT THE LEVEL OF PRICES WHICH RECENTLY WERE ORDERED.

THE RED FALCON, COMMANDED BY LT. (JG) NORMAN DEVOL OF OROVILLE, CALIF., AND TWO OTHER PT BOATS BRAZENLY ENTERED THE HARBOR IN THE ISLANDS OF LIPARI AND STROMBOLI AFTER THE CONQUEST OF SICILY AND DEMANDED THEIR SURRENDER. THEY GOT IT.

"STROMBOLI?" GRINNED DEVOL. "THERE WAS NOTHING TO IT. WE JUST TOOK THE PLACE OVER IN 30 MINUTES' TIME AND WENT BACK TO SEA AGAIN."

LIPARI WAS A BIT MORE FUN FOR THE CREW FOR THE INHABITANTS SWARMED DOWN TO GIVE THEM A BOISTEROUS GREETING.

"IT WAS THE MOST ENTHUSIASTIC RECEPTION I EVER GOT MYSELF INTO," SAID THE RED FALCON'S EXECUTIVE OFFICER, FRED CULBERT OF WESTCHESTER, N.Y. "WE WENT OVER FROM PALERMO WITH A SQUADRON OF THREE PT BOATS UNDER THE COMMAND OF LT.ED DUBOSE OF TEXAS.

"WE WENT INTO THE HARBOR THINKING THE SHORE GUNS WERE GOING TO OPEN UP ON US AT ANYLTIME. IF THEY HAD WE WOULD HAVE GOTTEN OUT OF THERE FAST. I THINK EVERY KIND IN TOWN WAS DOWN TO HELP GIVE US A WELCOME AND ALL THE PEOPLE WERE FRIENDLY."

THE BOYS CAME OVER INTO THE MEDITERRANEAN IN MAY AFTER THEIR BOAT HAD BEEN GIVEN A TEST RUN.

WHILE THE BOAT IS IDEAL IN A CALM SEA AND WARM WEATHER, IT BECOMES A HELLISH JUMPING-JACK IN ROUGH WATER AND ONLY A STOUT-HEARTED MAN CAN RIDE ITS WINDSWEPT DECKS.

SEP 20 1943

"WE BROUGHT A COOK ABOARD," SAID JOE MAIZE OF MATHER, PA. "WE WERE RUNNING THROUGH A ROUGH SEA AND HE WAS BELOW AND COULDN'T GET OUT. THE BOAT THREW HIM AROUND SO MUCH HE HAD A CONCUSSION, A BROKEN COLLARBONE AND A BROKEN ARM. DAMNDEST THING YOU EVER SAW."

AS HARDY A LOT AS THEY ARE, EVEN THE CREW OF THE RED FALCON GETS SEASICK AT TIMES IN ROUGH WEATHER SUCH AS THAT WHEN THE ALLIES BEGAN THE INVASION OF SICILY.

"WHEN THIS THING GETS TO PITCHING," SAID FRANCIS GLENN OF BISMO BEACH, CALIF., "THE SKIPPER HAS TO STOP BEFORE WE CAN GET OUT OF OUR BUNS("WE'D BE THROWN ALL OVER THE PLACE IF HE DIDN'T."

BEFORE THE INVASION, DEVOL AND HIS CREW OFTEN SCOUTED THE COAST OF SICILY, POKING ABOUT IN THE BAYS THROUGH MINED WATERS AND FIGHTING ENEMY E-BOATS.

"SEVERAL TIMES WE'D COME SO CLOSE TO THE DOCKS AT PALERMO WE COULD SEE STREET CARS RUNNING PEOPLE WALKING ALONG THE STREETS," SAID EDWARD OSTRANDER OF WEBSTER CITY, IA.

BUT PERHAPS THE MOST EXCITING WERE THE VENTURES INTO NAPLES BAY. THE RED FALCON, WITH MOTORS TURNING SLOWLY, WOULD CREEP ALONG THE DARKENED SHORES UNDER THE VERY NOSE OF THE ENEMY. WHEN THEY SAW A SHIP COMING OUT OF THE HARBOR THEY'D INTERCEPT IT AND SEND A TORPEDO PLUNGING TOWARD IT. THEN THEY'D SLOWLY LEAVE THE SCENE WHILE THE

ENEMY WONDERED FROM WHAT DIRECTION THEY ATTACKED.

"WE MADE A LOT OF RUNS THROUGH THE STRAIT OF MESSINA AND IN WATERS NORTH OF SICILY," SAID BENJAMIN SCHNETZER OF ROXBURY, MASS., WHO FORMERLY WORKED WITH THE LINOTYPE METAL POTS AT THE BOSTON GLOBE.

"OFTEN WE'D PASS GERMAN AND ITALIAN HOSPITAL SHIPS GOING TO AND FROM SICILY. I TRIED TO CHECK UP TO SEE IF THEY WERE CARRYING TROOPS. I HAD A HUNCHTHEY WERE BUT I NEVER WAS SURE."

SINCE THEY ARE MORE OR LESS LONE WOLVES, THE BOYS ENJOY FREEDOM FROM ORDINARY ROUTINE, ALTHOUGH THEY WORK HARD, LONG HOURS WITH MOST OF THEIR CRUISING AT NIGHT WHEN THEY OFTEN ENGAGE E-BOATS.

THE BOYS HAVE TO BE CAREFUL WHEN APPROACHING ANY OF THEIR OWN WARSHIPS FOR THE GUNNERS ARE LEERY OF A STRANGE CRAFT APPROACHING.

L.HOROWITZ OF 1025 SIMPSON ST., THE BRONX, NEW YORK, WAS A GREAT TIME.

"HOROWITZ GETS TO POPPING AWAY ON THAT MACHINEGUN," SAID MAIZE, "AND WE HAVE TO GRAB HIM BY THE SEAT OF THE PANTS AND PULL HIM AWAY TO MAKE HIM QUIT SHOOTING."

THE ALLIED OCCUPATION OF ALTAVILLA AND BATTIPAGLIA WAS THE SECOND OF THE SALERNO CAMPAIGN. BOTH POINTS WERE ENTERED BY LIGHT ALLIED UNITS SOON AFTER THE INITIAL LANDINGS ON THE BEACHES SOUTH OF SALERNO BUT HEAVY GERMAN COUNTERATTACKS SUPPORT BY TANKS DROVE THEM BACK.

DURING THE BRIEF FIRST PERIOD IN WHICH BATTIPAGLIA WAS IN ALLIED HANDS THE AIR FIELD THERE REMAINED UNDER ENEMY ARTILLERY FIRE AND COULD NOT BE USED BY ALLIED FIGHTER PLANES WHICH, HOWEVER, ALREADY WERE BEING REFUELED ON A HURRIEDLY BUILT LANDING STRIP NEAR THE BEACHES.

SEP 20 1943

THE DAY BROUGHT NOTHING FRESH FROM THE BRITISH FIFTH CORPS TROOPS WHO PREVIOUSLY HAD ENCOUNTERED OUTPOSTS OF A GERMAN PARACHUTE DIVISION AT GOIA, ABOUT 30 MILES NORTH OF TARANTO. IT HAD BEEN ASSUMED THAT THE LIGHT ENEMY SCREENING FORCE THERE WOULD WITHDRAW, POSSIBLY BEHIND THE USUAL SERIES OF ROAD DEMOLITIONS, TO AVOID ENCIRCLEMENT AS BRITISH PATROLS MOVED NORTHWARD.

(BBC, QUOTING ITS NORTH AFRICA CORRESPONDENT IN A BROADCAST RECORDED BY CBS, SAID THE BRITISH FIFTH CORPS WAS ADVANCING IN TWO DIRECTIONS, UP THE ROAD FROM BARI ON THE ADRIATIC AND WESTWARD TOWARD THE HILLY CENTER OF THE ITALIAN MAINLAND.)

DESCRIBING THE ATTACK ON PRACTICA DI MARE BY B-26 MARAUDERS, SGT. ALFRED R.GILBERT OF DRY MILL ROAD, ROCHESTER, N.H., SAID:

"WE DESTROYED A LOT OF PLANES TODAY BUT THE RAID REALLY HIT AN OIL DUMP. A PUFF OF WHITE SMOKE ROSE ABOVE THE BLACK SMOKE OF BURNING AIRCRAFT AND WENT 5,000 FEET INTO THE AIR. FOR SEVERAL MINUTES WE COULD SEE A SOLID SHEET OF FLAME BLAZING ACROSS THE SPOT AS WE TURNED OUT TO SEA AND HEADED HOME."

LT.LEONARD M.FISHER OF 1335 WASHINGTON AVE., MIAMI FLA., A BOMBARDIER, DECLARED: "THE WEST SIDE OF THE AIRDROME TOOK THE SAME TREATMENT THE EAST SIDE GOT YESTERDAY. THE PLANES WERE CONCENTRATED ON WHAT THE GERMANS THOUGHT WAS A GOOD SIDE RUNWAY AFTER YESTERDAY'S

SGT. CECIL BECKSTEAD OF 7045 PACIFIC AVE., TACOMA, WASH., A GUNNER, SAID "AT LEAST 10 MORE PLANES WERE BURNING FIERCELY AS WE BROKE AWAY AND MANY MORE MUST HAVE BEEN DESTROYED OR DAMAGED."

"THOSE GUYS MUST HAVE BEEN PLENTY MAD AT US," SAID CAPT. HAROLD E.HEINRETH OF 508 S. 24TH ST., TERRE HAUTE, IND., A PILOT. "THEY KEPT FIRING AFTER WE WERE 10 MILES OUT TO SEA. WHEN I SAW SOME RED FLAK COMING UP I THOUGHT MY TIME HAD COME. FORTUNATELY IT WAS JUST UNCOMFORTABLY CLOSE."

SEP 20 1943

SGT. GORDON H.BENNETT OF 2109 FRANCIS ST., JACKSON, MICH., SAID: "AS WE WENT OVER THE TARGET THE FLAK WAS VERY INTENSE AND ACCURATE. THE FIELD WAS COVERED WITH ENEMY PLANES. OUR BOMBS FELL ACROSS SOME OF THEM, SETTING THREE ON FIRE. IN ONE PLACE I SAW EIGHT PLANES BURNING AND WE COULD STILL SEE SMOKE RISING FROM THE TARGET WHEN WE WERE 15 MILES AWAY."

SGT. ALBERT H.TRENDERGAST (ADDRESS UNAVAILABLE), A WAIST GUNNER, SAID: "THERE WERE AT LEAST 200 AIRCRAFT ON THE GROUND. I WAS OVER THE SAME TARGET YESTERDAY AND TODAY WE GOT AN EXCELLENT BOMB PATTERN AND A LOT MORE COVERAGE."

"WE TOOK CARE OF WHAT OUR FELLOWS MISSED YESTERDAY," SAID LT. ROBERT W.BROWN OF BAKER, LA., A BOMBARDIER. "AT LEAST 15 PLANES WERE BURNING AS WE LEFT AND MANY MORE WERE PUT OUT OF COMMISSION."

MITCHELLS ATTACKED ROAD JUNCTIONS AT POMPEII AND TORRE ANNUNZIATA.

SGT. F.ZONZIA OF 2235 W. 20TH ST., CLEVELAND, O., RADIO OPERATOR, PAID TRIBUTE TO RAF BOSTONS IN DESCRIBING THE POMPEII RAID. "THE WAY THE BOSTONS LIT UP THE TARGET FOR OUR BOMBING WAS SWELL," HE SAID. "IT WAS LIKE LAYING EGGS. OUR STICKS RAN RIGHT ACROSS THE ROAD JUNCTION ON THE RAILWAY TRACK."

WHILE ATTACKING TORRE ANNUNZIATA, ALSO AT NIGHT, A MITCHELL WAS JUMPED BY A NAZI NIGHT FIGHTER. "I THOUGHT IT WAS A HECK OF A TIME TO BE JUMPED BY A NIGHT FIGHTER," SAID LT.E.P.SLAFTAUCHLEN OF LOUISVILLE, KY. "I WAS ON MY 56TH AND FINAL MISSION. I WONDERED IF I HAD GONE ONE TOO MANY, BUT WE FOUGHT HIM OFF WITHOUT DAMAGE."

MOSQUITO AND OTHER RAF NIGHT RAIDERS PROWLED AS FAR NORTH AS ROME.

WITH THE FIFTH ARMY IN ITALY, SEPT. 17-(DELAYED)--AN AMERICAN ARTILLERY OBSERVER PERCHED IN A TREE ABOVE INFANTRY DUG INTO FOXHOLES GOGGLED THROUGH HIS BINOCULARS.

THERE IN THE DISTANCE SOME 40 GERMANS CALMLY MARCHED ALONG A RAILROAD EMBANKMENT TOWARD THE FRONT LINES. THEIR OFFICER WALKED IN FRONT WITH A LARGE MAP UNFOLDED AS IF HE WERE GUIDING TOURISTS.

THE OBSERVER, LT. JEOL CRAIN OF TULSA, OKLA., EXCITEDLY BARKED THE GERMANS' LOCATION INTO THE TELEPHONE LEADING BACK TO HIS BATTERIES. BUT THE FIRST AMERICAN SHELLS MUSHROOMED FAR TO HTE RIGHT AND THE GERMANS FLUNG THEMSELVES OUT OF SIGHT BY THE EMBANKMENT.

CRAIN YELLED INTO THE TELEPHONE, "YOU ARE 200 YARDS TO THE RIGHT.

LISTEN TO ME!"

THEY LISTENED. AND ON THE NEXT SALVO AN ENTIRE BATTALION OF ARTILLERY SMOTHERED WITH SMOKE THE AREA WHERE THE GERMANS WERE LAST SEEN. THOSE GERMANS WERE WIPED OUT. THERE IS NO DENYING THAT FOR AN AMERICAN PATROL LATER FOUND MANY SHATTERED BODIES NEAR THE EMBANKMENT, EVIDENCE THAT OTHERS NEARLY WHOLE HAD ALREADY BEEN REMOVED BY GERMAN BURIAL PARTIES.

SEP 20 1943

THAT IS ONE EXAMPLE OF THE WORK DONE THIS PAST WEEK BY AMERICAN ARTILLERY IN PROTECTING THE ALLIED BEACHHEAD.

"CRAIN HAS KILLED MORE GERMANS ON THIS FRONT THAN ALL THE INFANTRY TOGETHER," SAYS HIS SUPERIOR OFFICER, CAPT. PHILIP FOSTER OF STATE COLLEGE, PA.

"YEAH," COMPLAINS INFANTRY LT.JIM "CACTUS" PARRISH, "THAT GUY DOESN'T LEAVE THE GERMANS COME CLOSE ENOUGH FOR US TO HIT THEM!"

ON ANOTHER OCCASION CRAIN AND A MORTAR OBSERVER, LT.DAVID GOODELL OF VERMONT, WERE PERCHED AT AN OBSERVATION POST TOGETHER WHEN THEY SAW OVER THREE DOZEN GERMANS WALKING BEHIND A HILL TOWARD A DRAW. THE ANGLE WAS SUCH THAT THE ARTILLERY COULDN'T DROP SHELLS ON THE GROUP SO CRAIN AND GOODELL HUDDLED, THEN BEGAN TELEPHONING THEIR INSTRUCTIONS TO THE ARTILLERY AND THE MORTAR PLATOONS.

THEIR PLAN BLOSSOMED WITH THE FIRST ARTILLERY BURST WHICH SENT THE GERMANS SCURRYING DOWN INTO THE DRAW. THE MORTARS THEN OPENED UP WITH THEIR HIGH TRAJECTORY MISSILES AND LOBBED SHELLS UP AND DOWN THE LENGTH OF THE DRAW.

AGAIN AN EVENING PATROL FOUND MANY DEAD AND HEEL SCRAPINGS SHOWING OTHER BODIES HAD BEEN DRAGGED AWAY.

THERE ARE OTHER OBSERVERS LIKE CRAIN AND GOODELL IN FAR FORWARD POSITIONS ALONG THIS SHORT FRONT WHO ARE CALLING THEIR SHOTS AND DROPPING THE BALLS IN THE CORNER POCKETS.

CRAIN IS A NATIONAL GUARD MEMBER AND ORMERLY WAS A COMMERCIAL ARTIST IN TULSA, OKLA.

WITH THE FIFTH ARMY IN ITALY, SEPT. 17-(DELAYED)-A BURDEN HAS BEEN LIFTED FROM THE STUDY SHOULDERS OF LT.BERNIE BYRNE OF 800 SOUTH PRICE ROAD CLAYTON, MO.,

THIS BLOND, 23-YEAR-OLD FIGHTER PILOT FIRST BECOME KNOWN ONLY AS THE SON OF BOBBY BYRNE, GREAT PITTSBURGH PIRATES THIRD BASEMAN IN HONUS WAGNER'S DAYS. THEN, WHEN HE WAS COMING ALONG AS A FIGHTER PILOT, HE BECAME KNOWN AS THE LITTLE BROTHER OF CAPT. ROBERT BYRNE, 26, OF THE DESERT AIR FORCE. BUT THAT OLD BURDEN WAS BOOTED OUT OF THE PICTURE SEPT. 15 WHEN THE LITTLE BROTHER, KNOWN TO HIS SQUADRON MATES AS "HOT SHOT", BROUGHT DOWN HIS FIRST GERMAN PLANE, A FOCKE WULF.

LT.BYRNE SAT IN THE SHADE OF HIS AIRCRAFT WING TODAY AND TALKED ABOUT IT. AND HOW HE TALKED. "IT WAS JUST LIKE HITTING MY FIRST HOME RUN," SAID THIS SCRAPPY KID WHO PLAYED PROFESSIONAL BASEBALL FIRST AT ASHLAND, KY., IN THE MOUNTAIN STATE LEAGUE AND LATER AT APPLETON, WIS., IN THE WISCONSIN STATE LEAGUE.

SEP 20 1943

BERNIE BYRNE, TALKING IT UP LIKE ANY SHORTSTOP, SAID:

1943

"IT WAS THE FIRST GOOD SHOT I HAD. I DIVED DOWN ON THAT BOY FROM ABOUT 8,000 FEET AND CAUGHT HIM RIGHT OFF BASE. I POURED IN ABOUT 380 ROUNDS. HE SLIPPED OFF SMOKING AND WENT DOWN, EXPLODING WHEN HE HIT THE GROUND. THEN I LOOKED BACK AND THERE WAS A BIG RADIAL ENGINE LOOKING AT ME RIGHT IN THE FACE. A FOCKE WULF HAD SLIPPED ONTO MY TAIL, BUT LT. R.A. WILLIAMS, FROM BOGOTA, N.J., DIVED IN AND DROVE HIM OFF.

"WHEN I LANDED THERE WAS A LETTER FROM DAD. HE SAID HE SUPPOSED THE TELEPHONE WOULD RING SOME DAY AND THE LOCAL PAPER WOULD BE TELLING HIM THAT I HAD BAGGED A HEINIE.

LT.BYRNE GOT HIS FIRST VICTORY DURING HIS 24TH COMBAT MISSION.

WITH AN AMERICAN ASSAULT FORCE IN THE SALERNO SECTOR, SEPT. 19--TWO AMERICAN DOUGHBOYS WHO HELPED TAKE AN ENEMY HILL BY A BAYONET CHARGE AND THEN WERE CUT OFF BY A GERMAN COUNTER-ATTACK CLIMBED OUT OF AN ITALIAN HOG PEN TODAY AS THE FIFTH ARMY'S ADVANCE SWEPT PAST THEM.

THEY HAD BEEN HIDING FROM GERMAN PATROLS FOR SIX DAYS -- SLEEPING AND EATING ALONGSIDE THE HOGS WHILE BEING LOOKED AFTER BY A FRIENDLY ITALIAN FARMER NAMED ANGELO WHO HAS A SISTER SOMEWHERE IN ASSACHUSETTS AND A COUSIN IN NEW YORK CITY.

THE SOLDIERS ARE PVT. DON J.PATTARA, 25, OF 9611 SO. PEORIA ST., CHICAGO, ILL., AND PVT. ZARAGOZO SALINAS, 23, OF SKIDMORE, TEX.

I WAS WITH AN AMERICAN ASSAULT FORCE WHICH PUSHED FORWARD IN THE SALERNO SECTOR, ENABLING PATTARA AND SALINAS TO CLIMB OUT OF THE HOG PEN. THEIR UNIFORMS WERE TORN AND THEIR HAIR TOUSLED AND MATTED, BUT THEY LOOKED WELL FED.

SEP 20 1943

"THAT ITALIAN FARMER WAS PRETTY GOOD TO US," PATTARA TOLD ME. "HE TOLD THE GERMANS WE WEREN'T ABOUT WHEN THEY CAME AND HE FED US SOME PRETTY GOOD MEALS. LAST NIGHT, FOR EXAMPLE, HE BROUGHT US STRIN(BEANS WITH TOMATO SAUCE, SOME GRAYISH SPAGHETTI AND BROWN BREAD. SOME TIMES HE BROUGHT US WATERMELONS. THE HOGS ATE OUR SCRAPS."

SALINAS SAID A GERMAN COUNTER-ATTACK DURING A BAYONET CHARGE HAD ISOLATED HIMSELF AND SOME OTHERS.

"ONE OF THE BOYS WAS HIT BAD IN THE STOMACH AND DIED LATER," HE SAID. "THE FARMER LOOKED AFTER BURYING HIM."

PATTARA SHOWED ME A BULKY WALLET WHEREIN HE KEEPS PRECIOUS DOCUMENTS INCLUDING A PICTURE OF HIS GIRL FRIEND, FERN SWANSON OF 10619 SOUTH OGLESBY AVENUE, CHICAGO, ILL. A PIECE OF SHRAPNEL HAD PIERCED THE PHOTOGRAPH AND OTHER PARTS, LIKE LETTERS FROM CHICAGO, PREVENTED THE BALL FROM ENTERING HIS HEART AS HE WAS CARRYING THE WALLET IN HIS LEFT SHIRT POCKET.

"IT DIDN'T EVEN MARK MY SKIN," HE SAID. "THAT'S HOW LUCKY I WAS."

WILL HAVE MY PROTECTION. ANYONE WHO ACTS AGAINST THE GERMAN ARMY WILL BE EXECUTED AND THE PLACES WHERE SUCH ACTS ARE COMMITTED WILL BE DESTROYED AND REDUCED TO RUINS. EVERY GERMAN SOLDIER WOUNDED OR KILLED WILL BE REVENGED 100 TIMES.

"3. I ORDER A CURFEW FROM 8 P.M. TO 6 A.M. EXCEPT IN CASE OF AN AIR RAID ALARM, WHEN CITIZENS MAY USE THE STREETS TO GO TO NEARBY SHELTERS.

"4. A STATE OF EMERGENCY EXISTS.

"5. IN THE NEXT 24 HOURS ALL ARMS AND AMMUNITION OF EVERY KIND INCLUDING HUNTING GUNS AND GRENADES MUST BE HANDED OVER. ANYONE AFTER THESE 24 HOURS WHO IS FOUND IN POSSESSION OF ARMS WILL BE IMMEDIATELY EXECUTED. THE DELIVERY OF ARMS AND AMMUNITION WILL BE MADE AT THE PIAZZA PLEBISCITO, THE PIAZZA GARIBALDI, THE CASERNA CAVELLERIA CONDE DI TORINO AND ALBERGO BELLAVISTA.

"6. CITIZENS WILL KEEP QUIET AND BE REASONABLE. MEASURES AND REPRISALS TAKEN UP TO DATE HAVE BEEN NECESSARY BECAUSE A CERTAIN NUMBER OF GERMAN SOLDIERS HAVE BEEN VILELY ASSASSINATED OR BADLY WOUNDED WHILE THEY WERE CARRYING OUT THEIR DUTY AND IN SOME CASES THE GERMANS HAVE BEEN MISTREATED BY THE CIVILIAN POPULATION IN THE MOST SHAMEFUL MANNER.

(ADVANCE FOR AMS OF MONDAY, SEPT. 20)

BY C.YATES MCDANIEL

SOMEWHERE IN AUSTRALIA, SEPT. 19-(AP)-THE HOISTING OF THE AUSTRALIAN FLAG OVER LAE, NEW GUINEA, LAST THURSDAY JUST FOUR DAYS AFTER THE ALLIED OCCUPATION OF SALAMAUA, TO THE SOUTH, MARKED THE COMPLETION OF THE PREPARATORY PHASE OF GENERAL DOUGLAS MACARTHUR'S STRATEGY OF RECONQUEST.

IT ALSO PRESAGED THE BEGINNING OF THE FAR MORE FORMIDABLE TASK OF ROLLING UP THE EASTERN FLANK OF THE POWERFULLY FORTIFIED BARRIER BUTTRESSING THE APPROACHES TO THE JAPANESE EMPIRE AND SOUTHEAST ASIA.

THE VICTORY ON THE NORTHEAST COAST OF NEW GUINEA, GAINED BY THE AUSTRALIANS WITH CONTINUOUS HARD-HITTING SUPPORT BY AUSTRALIAN AND AMERICAN AIRMEN AND, AT DECISIVE JUNCTURES, BY AMERICAN AMPHIBIOUS FORCES, ALSO MARKED THE FIRST JAPANESE FAILURE TO DEFEND TO THE LAST MAN THE ENEMY'S LONG-HELD POSITION IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC.

ALTHOUGH THE VICTORY ACHIEVED BY MACARTHUR'S FORCES IN THE CAMPAIGN ON THE NEW GUINEA'S PAPUAN PENINSULA, LAST JANUARY PAVED THE WAY FOR THE TRANSITION FROM DEFENSIVE TO OFFENSIVE FIGHTIN IN THIS ZONE OF WAR, IT RESULTED PRIMARILY IN DESTROYING THE SPEARHEAD WHICH THE JAPANESE LAST YEAR DROVE DANGEROUSLY CLOSE TO ALLIED BASES IN SOUTHEASTERN NEW GUINEA.

THE VICTORY AT LAE GIVES THE ALLIES POSSESSION OF THE ADJACENT MALAHANG AIRDROME. THIS COMPLETES AN ARC OF AIR BASES RUNNING THROUGH KIRIWINA AND WOODLARK ISLANDS, OFF THE SOUTHEAST NEW GUINEA COAST, EASTWARD TO MUNDA IN THE SOLOMON ISLANDS. FROM ONE OR ANOTHER OF THEM ALLIED FIGHTER PLANES CAN REACH EVERY MAJOR JAPANESE BASE FROM WEWAK, NEW GUINEA, TO RABAUL, NEW BRITAIN, AS WELL AS IN THE NORTHERN SOLOMONS.

THIS MEANS THAT WHENEVER ALLIED COMMANDERS OF THE SOUTH AND SOUTHWEST PACIFIC DECIDE TO STRIKE AT THE EASTERN END OF THE ENEMY'S 2,000-MILE LONG SUB-EQUATORIAL DEFENSE LINE THEIR ATTACKING FORCES--LAND, SEA AND AIR--WILL BE COVERED BY THE ALLIES' STILL-GROWING FIGHTER PLANE FORCE.

SEP 20 1943

IN HIS SPECIAL MESSAGE ANNOUNCING THE VICTORY AT LAE, MACARTHUR SAID IT WAS "ACCOMPLISHED IN THE FACE OF SUPERIOR FORCES AVAILABLE TO THE ENEMY." THE KEY TO THAT STATEMENT IS THE WORD "AVAILABLE." FOR VICTORY IN THE FINAL, FAST MOVING PHASE OF THE LAE-SALAMAUA CAMPAIGN WAS ACHIEVED BY A TACTICAL CONCENTRATION WHICH GAVE THE ALLIES LOCAL THOUGH NOT AREA-WIDE SUPERIORITY.

THE STRATAGEM WHICH ENABLED NUMERICALLY SUPERIOR AIR AND SEA-BORNE AUSTRALIANS TO ENVELOPE AND REDUCE THE LAE STRONGHOLD IN 12 DAYS WAS ACTUALLY THE DECISIVE FRUITION OF AN ALLIED PLAN WHICH IN SEVEN MONTHS DREW BATTALION AFTER BATTALION FROM THE ENEMY'S LAE GARRISON TO BE SUCCESSIVELY CUT OFF AND DESTROYED SOUTH OF SALAMAUA.

TIME AND AGAIN DURING THE SEVEN-MONTH PERIOD THE ALLIED COMMAND NOTED THAT THE JAPANESE STEADILY WERE STRENGTHENING AND REINFORCING THEIR REAR BASES IN NEW GUINEA AND NEW BRITAIN, FROM WHICH SUPPORT MIGHT BE SENT LAE.

THE ENEMY'S LAST MAJOR ATTEMPT TO RUN SEA-BORNE ASSISTANCE TO LAE MET DISASTER IN THE BISMARCK SEA AND HUON GULF LAST MARCH, WHEN EVERY VESSEL IN A 22-SHIP CONVOY WAS SUNK BY ALLIED PLANES. THE ENEMY'S SUBSEQUENT EFFORTS TO SEND HELP TO NORTHEASTERN NEW GUINEA BY BARGES WAS FOILED BY ALLIED AIRMEN WHO DESTROYED HUNDREDS OF THESE SMALL CRAFT IN NIGHT AND DAY SWEEPS ALONG THE COASTS.

ISOLATED FROM SUPPORTING BASES BY THE ALLIED SEA AND AIR BLOCKADE AND HEMMED IN BY AUSTRALIANS CONVERGING ON THEM FROM THE SOUTH, WEST AND NORTHEAST, THE REMNANTS OF THE JAPANESE GARRISON OFFERED NO RESISTANCE TO THE FINAL ASSAULT AT SALAMAUA AND THEIR GUNS HURLED ONLY BRIEF AND INEFFECTIVE DEFIANCE TO AUSTRALIANS MOVING ON LAE.

MACARTHUR RECENTLY ESTIMATED THE JAPANESE OVER-ALL STRENGTH IN THE LAE-SALAMAUA AREA AT 20,000 MEN, COMPRISING ELEMENTS OF FOUR DIVISIONS. FOLLOWING THE VICTORY GENERAL SIR THOMAS BLAMEY, COMMANDER OF ALLIED LAND FORCES IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, ASSERTED THAT THE JAPANESE LOST NINE BATTALIONS IN SEVEN MONTHS SOLELY IN THE ATTEMPT TO HOLD THE APPROACHES TO THESE OUTPOSTS. THIS WOULD TOTAL APPROXIMATELY 6,000 MEN, ON THE BASIS OF THE ACCEPTED WAR-TIME STRENGTH OF JAPANESE FIELD UNITS.

PRELIMINARY REPORTS FROM AUSTRALIAN UNITS WHICH OCCUPIED SALAMAUA AND LAE ACCOUNTED FOR SEVERAL HUNDRED MORE ENEMY CASUALTIES.

HOW MANY JAPANESE MAY HAVE SUCCEEDED IN ESCAPING FROM THE TWO STRONGHOLDS BY BARGES AND HOW MANY WERE FLEEING TO DESTRUCTION IN THE MORE THAN TWO-MILE HIGH MOUNTAIN MASSES NORTHWEST OF LAE WAS NOT YET KNOWN.

DRIVING THE JAPANESE FROM SALAMAUA AND LAE WAS NECESSARY TO THE DEVELOPMENT OF A LARGER SCALE OFFENSIVE AGAINST THE PRINCIPAL CENTERS OF THE ENEMY'S STRENGTH ALONG THE SUB-EQUATORIAL DEFENSE BARRIER, FOR WHICH LAE AND SALAMAUA SERVED AS OUTPOSTS.

MACARTHUR'S COMMUNIQUE TODAY ACKNOWLEDGED THE ENEMY'S REALIZATION OF THE ALLIED THREAT TO THE RABAUL ANCHOR OF HIS SOUTH PACIFIC DEFENSE CHAIN BY TAKING NOTE THAT THE JAPANESE ARE REINFORCING THEIR ALREADY FORMIDABLE AIR STRENGTH IN THE NORTHERN SOLOMONS.

HOW LONG AND HOW COSTLY WILL BE THE TASK OF ROLLING UP THE ENEMY'S EASTERN FLANK JUST SOUTH OF THE EQUATOR WILL DEPEND UPON HOW SOON AND HOW EFFECTIVELY THE ALLIED AIR POWER OPERATING FROM THE NEWLY ADVANCED BASES CAN GAIN THE DEGREE OF AERIAL DOMINATION WHICH PAVED THE WAY FOR THE LAE VICTORY.

IT ALSO WILL DEPEND UPON HOW DARINGLY THE STILL-FORMIDABLE JAPANESE NAVY WILL ATTEMPT TO CHALLENGE ALLIED FLEETS IN THE PACIFIC, ESPECIALLY IF THE ALLIES RECEIVE THE PROMISED REINFORCEMENTS WHICH WERE MADE POSSIBLE BY THE SURRENDER OF THE ITALIAN NAVY IN THE MEDITERRANEAN.

SOUTH PACIFIC HEADQUARTERS--FIRST ADD HIPPLE'S BOUGAINVIL. RAIDS X X X LATER INFORMATION.)

NEARLY ALL OF THE BOMBS DROPPED AT BALLALE LANDED IN THE TARGET AREA, STARTING FIRES AND CAUSING EXPLOSIONS WHICH DESTROYED SEVEN PARKED PLANES AND A NUMBER OF TRUCKS.

ABOUT 50 ZEROS ATTEMPTED TO INTERCEPT AND DIVIDE THE AMERICAN FORMATIONS, RESULTING IN SIX DOG FIGHTS AT HIGH ALTITUDE. U.S. FLIERS SHOT DOWN AT LEAST 12 ENEMY PLANES AND LOST THREE FIGHTERS, BUT ONE AMERICAN PILOT WAS SAVED. ANOTHER WHO PARACHUTED WAS SEEN BEING STRAFED BY THE JAPANESE.

BEFORE DAWN WEDNESDAY MITCHELL MEDIUM BOMBERS SWEPT LOW OVER THE TREES ONTO KARA, THE NEW JAPANESE AIR FIELD NEAR KANILI AND DROPPED MANY LIGHT BOMBS, STARTING FIRES. THEY THEN STRAFED AND SHOT OUT ONE SEARCHLIGHT.

AT THE SAME TIME MORE MITCHELLS ATTACKED KANILI, WREAKING HAVOC WITH THEIR FIRE BOMBS AND EXPLOSIVES. BOTH RAIDS WERE MET WITH HEAVY ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE, BUT ALL THE PLANES PARTICIPATING IN THESE ATTACKS RETURNED TO THEIR BASES.

KANILI WAS ALSO HIT AT NOON BY MORE THAN 40 LIBERATOR HEAVY BOMBERS, AND WARHAWK AND CORSAIR FIGHTER PLANES, WHICH DUMPED SEVERAL HUNDRED FRAGMENTATION BOMBS ON THE AIRSTRIP. (ALTHOUGH THE DISPATCH DOES NOT STATE, IT WAS PRESUMABLY IN THIS RAID THAT THE OTHER THREE U.S. FIGHTERS WERE LOST.)

THE SPOKESMAN SAID THE KANILI AIRDROME WAS STILL CAPABLE OF OPERATION BECAUSE A NUMBER OF ZEROS TOOK OFF DURING THE RAID. CURIOUSLY, THEY DID NOT ATTEMPT TO INTERCEPT THE AMERICANS.

JAPANESE INSTALLATIONS ON BUKA ISLAND, NORTHWEST OF BOUGAINVILLE, WERE BLASTED BY SEVERAL HUNDRED TONS OF FRAGMENTATION BOMBS DROPPED BY ANOTHER FORCE OF LIBERATORS.

DURING A SEARCHING MISSION U.S. FIGHTERS SHOT DOWN ONE ZERO IN THE SHORTLAND ISLAND AREA, JUST SOUTH OF BOUGAINVILLE.

ON VELLA LAVELLA ISLANDS, THE SPOKESMAN DISCLOSED, THE AMERICANS HAVE DISCOVERED ADDITIONAL SUPPLIES LEFT BY THE JAPANESE, CHIEFLY MEDICAL MATERIALS INCLUDING A QUANTITY OF GERMAN ATABRINE. THE FORCES THERE ARE CONTINUING TO CONSOLIDATE THEIR POSITIONS.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, MONDAY, SEPT.20-(AP)-AMERICAN WARPLANES HAVE DESTROYED 14 MORE ENEMY AIRCRAFT IN RENEWED RAIDS ON JAPANESE BASES IN THE NORTHERN SOLOMON ISLANDS, GENERAL DOUGLAS MAC ARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS ANNOUNCED TODAY.

THE ATTACK WAS CENTERED ON AIRDROMES IN THE BUIN AREA AT THE SOUTHERN TIP OF BOUGAINVILLE ISLAND, THE WRECKED ENEMY PLANES WERE IDENTIFIED AS FIGHTERS.

THIS NEW SUCCESS WAS SCORED IN THE COURSE OF A TRIPLE BLASTING BY BOMBERS OF THE JAPANESE-HELD KANILI AND BALLALE AIRFIELDS.

BOTH HAVE BEEN REPEATED TARGETS FOR AMERICAN BOMBERS OF ALL CATEGORIES, AND BALLALE HAS BEEN DESCRIBED AS HAVING BEEN RENDERED TEMPORARILY UNUSUABLE.

SIXTY INTERCEPTORS FROM THE ENEMY'S GROWING FIGHTER FLEET IN THE NORTH SOLOMONS AREA ROSE TO CHALLENGE THE BOMBERS IN THEIR THREE

PLY ATTACK, A HEADQUARTERS COMMUNIQUE SAID. IT WAS FROM AMONG THESE THAT THE BOMBERS AND THEIR FIGHTER ESCORT BAGGED TODAY'S SCORE OF ENEMY AIRCRAFT.

ALLIED AIRPOWER ALSO WAS FELT IN THE NEW GUINEA AREA TO THE WEST. BOMBERS OF LT.GEN.GEORGE C.KENNEY'S FIFTH AIRFORCE DUMPED 16 TONS OF EXPLOSIVES ON FINSCHHAFEN, ONE OF JAPAN'S LAST REMAINING BASES ON THE HUON GULF.

IN AN AIR PATROL OFF THE COAST OF NEW BRITAIN, TWO JAPANESE BARGES LADEN WITH TROOPS WERE DESTROYED.

THE ALLIED BASE AT DARWIN, AUSTRALIA, WAS RAIDED BY THE ENEMY, BUT THE COMMUNIQUE SAID NO DAMAGE RESULTED.

A SMALL ENEMY CARGO SHIP WAS BOMBED AND SET AFIRE BY AN ALLIED RECONNAISSANCE PLANE EAST OF KAVIENG, NEW IRELAND, AND OTHER HEAVY BOMBERS DAMAGED A 2,000-TON JAPANESE MERCHANTMAN OFF CAPE ST. GEORGE IN THE SAME GENERAL SECTOR.

AT HANSA BAY ON THE NORTH COAST OF NEW GUINEA BETWEEN WEWAK AND MADANG, A THIRD ENEMY CARGO VESSEL, OF 1,200 TONS, FELL VICTIM TO A NIGHT ATTACK BY A SINGLE MEDIUM BOMBER. THE SHIP WAS DESTROYED, THE COMMUNIQUE SAID.

HEAVY AND MEDIUM BOMBERS AND ATTACK PLANES JOINED IN THE ASSAULT ON THE FINSCHHAFEN TARGETS, BOMBING INSTALLATIONS AND TROOP CENTERS AT GELDSBACH, XINSCH HARBOR AND THE TAMI ISLANDS, AND FOLLOWING UP WITH NUMEROUS MACHINEGUN ATTACKS FROM LOW ALTITUDE.

ANOTHER NEW GUINEA OBJECTIVE WAS THE ENEMY-HELD VILLAGE OF KAIPAIT, WHERE BIVOUACS WERE STRAFED BY ALLIED FIGHTER PLANES AND A CONSIDERABLE NUMBER OF HUTS WERE DESTROYED.

SMALL SHIPPING AND SHORE STRUCTURES ON KIMBA BAY, NEW BRITAIN, AND ON ROOKE AND RITTER ISLANDS IN VITIAZ STRAIT NORTHWEST OF FINSCHHAFEN CAME UNDER THE GUNS OF ALLIED LONG-RANGE FIGHTERS.

DILI, ON ENEMY-HELD PORTUGUESE TIMOR, WAS SUBJECTED TO A NIGHT ATTACK BY AUSTRALIAN-BASED BOMBERS.

BESIDES THE RAID ON THE DARWIN AREA, IN WHICH NINE JAPANESE PLANES PARTICIPATED, THE ENEMY MADE A WEAK AND INEFFACTIVE AERIAL STAB AT HOPOI, AN AIRFIELD AND VILLAGE RECENTLY FALLEN INTO ALLIED HANDS 20 MILES EAST OF LAE, NEW GUINEA.

WITH GILBERT ISLAND RAIDS

BY LEIF ERICKSON

PEARL HARBOR, T.H., SEPT. 19-(AP)-THE HEAVY RAID ON THE JAPANESE ISLAND BASES OF TARAWA AND NAURU IN THE GILBERT GROUP FRIDAY NIGHT AND SATURDAY, FOLLOWING UP THE DESTRUCTIVE BOMBING OF MARCUS ISLAND BY A CARRIER TASK FORCE SEPT. 1, SHOWS CLEARLY THE NEW CENTRAL PACIFIC OFFENSIVE BEING DEVELOPED BY ADM.CHESTER W.NIMITZ.

BEFORE THE MARCUS OPERATION, THE CENTRAL PACIFIC THEATER HAD BEEN MORE OR LESS DORMANT SINCE MARCH, 1942, WHILE THE PACIFIC FLEET'S STEADILY GROWING POWER WAS CONCENTRATED ON CLEANING OUT THE JAPANESE FROM THE ALEUTIANS AND PUSHING BACK THE ENEMY IN THE SOLOMONS.

THE LANGUAGE OF ADMIRAL NIMITZ' COMMUNIQUE, REPORTING THAT THE TARAWA-NAURU ATTACK EXTENDED OVER MANY HOURS, INDICATES THE RAID ON THOSE BASES ALMOST CERTAINLY WAS A CARRIER PLANE BOMBING STRIKE LIKE THAT ON MARCUS.

THE CARRIER FORCE IN THIS OPERATION POSSIBLY WAS SUPPORTED BY LAND-BASED ARMY LIBERATORS. NAURU IS 800 STATUTE MILES FROM GUADALCANAL, AND TARAWA ABOUT THE SAME DISTANCE FROM FUNAFUIT IN THE AMERICAN-OCCUPIED ELLICE ISLANDS.

THE TWO TASK FORCE RAIDS IN LESS THAN A MONTH SHOW THE OUTLINE OF A LOGICAL OFFENSIVE PLAN TO EMPLOY THE NAVY'S INCREASING AIRCRAFT CARRIER STRENGTH IN THE PACIFIC TO BATTER THE ENEMY'S ISLAND OUTPOSTS UNDER BOMBING BY AVENGER TORPEDO PLANES AND DAUNTLESS DIVEBOMBERS.

THE ULTIMATE OBJECTIVE IN SOFTENING THE JAPANESE OUTPOST HOLDINGS FROM THE AIR OF COURSE WOULD BE TO PREPARE THE WAY FOR INVASION LANDINGS BY GROUND TROOPS.

SEP 20 1943

SUCH INVASION OPERATIONS MAY BE WEEKS OR MONTHS AWAY. BUT THE OFFICIAL ARMY ANNOUNCEMENT OF A NEW COMMAND DESIGNATION FOR LT.GEN. ROBERT C.RICHARDSON, JR., HINTS THAT THE ARMY'S PLANS FOR THE MID-PACIFIC NOW ARE DEFINITELY OFFENSIVE RATHER THAN DEFENSIVE. BEFORE SATURDAY RICHARDSON WAS COMMANDER OF THE ARMY'S HAWAIIAN DEPARTMENT. NOW HE IS COMMANDING GENERAL OF UNITED STATES ARMY FORCES IN THE CENTRAL PACIFIC AREA.

IF IT WAS A CARRIER FORCE WHICH RAIDED TARAWA AND NAURU, THE FULL DETAILS OF THE ATTACK PROBABLY WILL NOT BE DISCLOSED UNTIL THE SHIPS RETURN TO PORT.

SF854PPW NM

ADMIRAL NIMITZ' COMMUNIQUE HINTS THE JAPANESE WERE SURPRISED AS THEY WERE AT MARCUS WHEN THE BOMBERS STRUCK IN THE DARKNESS OF EARLY MORNING. IF THE BOMBERS WERE ABLE TO PRESS HOME THEIR ATTACKS FOR SEVERAL HOURS, THEIR FIRST ASSAULTS PROBABLY KNOCKED OUT WHATEVER AIR POWER THE ENEMY HAD AVAILABLE FOR INTERCEPTION OR FOR BOMBING THE TASK FORCE SHIPS.

IN ALL PROBABILITY THE JAPANESE AIR STRENGTH AT BOTH BASES WAS LIGHT SINCE THE ENEMY HAS HAD HEAVY PLANE LOSSES IN THE NEW GUINEA AND SOLOMONS CAMPAIGNS.

FOLLOWING SO CLOSELY BEHIND THE MARCUS RAID, THIS ATTACK INDICATES THE AMERICAN NAVY HAS MUSTERED AIRCRAFT CARRIER REPLACEMENTS FOR LOSSES SUFFERED IN THE EARLY MONTHS OF THE WAR AND IT FORECASTS INCREASING

THRUSTS DEEPER INTO ENEMY TERRITORY.

THE MAIN USE OF TARAWA AND NAURU TO THE ENEMY HAS BEEN FOR PLANE RECONNAISSANCE AND BOMBING RAIDS ON AMERICAN OUTPOSTS AT CANTON AND FUNA FUTI ISLANDS. NAURU ALSO IS A MAJOR SOURCE OF PHOSPHATE FOR THE JAPANESE.

WASHINGTON,SEPT 18-(AP)-VICE PRESIDENT WALLACE SAID THAT RALPH W.GALLAGHER, PRESIDENT OF THE STANDARD OIL CO. (NJ), HAD INFORMED HIM AT A CONFERENCE TODAY THAT THE COMPANY OPPOSES THE CREATION OF INTERNATIONAL CARTELS WHICH MIGHT HOLD PRICES ABOVE COMPETITIVE LEVELS.

WALLACE'S STATEMENT WAS ISSUED AFTER HE HAD MET WITH GALLAGHER AND WENDELL BERGE, ASSISTANT ATTORNEY GENERAL, IN A CONFERENCE THE VICE PRESIDENT SAID WAS SUGGESTED BY GALLAGHER.

PREVIOUSLY THE VICE PRESIDENT HAD ACCUSED THE COMPANY OF "DELIBERATELY STALLING" SOME RUBBER AND CHEMICAL COMPANIES TO KEEP THEM FROM DEVELOPING SYNTHETIC RUBBER AND, WITHOUT SPECIFICALLY NAMING THE FIRM, HAD CRITICIZED IN A CHICAGO SPEECH ITS PRE-WAR AGREEMENTS WITH I.G.FARBENINDUSTRIES OF GERMANY.

WALLACE SAID GALLAGHER TOLD HIM AT TODAY'S MEETING:

"(1) THAT THERE SHOULD BE NO INTERNATIONAL AGREEMENTS TO HOLD PRICES ABOVE SOUND COMPETITIVE LEVELS, AND THAT INTERNATIONAL AGREEMENTS OF A SECRET NATURE SHOULD BE PROHIBITED UNLESS MAJOR CONDITIONS SUCH AS WAR REQUIRE SECRECY; BUT THAT, EVEN THEN, ALL INTERNATIONAL AGREEMENTS MADE BY PRIVATE PARTIES SHOULD BE FILED WITH THE APPROPRIATE DEPARTMENTS OF THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT.

"(2) THAT AS FAR AS THEIR OWN COMPANY WAS CONCERNED, THEY WOULD FAVOR AN INDUSTRY POLICY OF UNRESTRICTED LICENSING OF PATENTS AT REASONABLE ROYALTIES.

"(3) THAT CARTELS WHICH LIMIT PRODUCTION, FIX PRICES, DIVIDE TERRITORY, AND LIMIT TECHNOLOGICAL DEVELOPMENT ARE AGAINST PUBLIC POLICY AND ARE INCONSISTENT WITH OUR PRINCIPLES OF FREE ENTERPRISE.

"(4) THAT WITH REGARD TO THEIR OWN PATENTS ON BUTYL RUBBER THEY REITERATED THEIR STAND THAT BOTH NOW AND AT THE CONCLUSION OF THE WAR, SUCH PATENTS WOULD BE OPEN TO ALL THOSE WHO ARE INTERESTED, ROYALTY-FREE UNTIL AFTER THE WAR AND AT REASONABLE ROYALTY THEREAFTER.

"(5) THAT PRODUCTION SHOULD BE INCREASED RATHER THAN RESTRICTED, EXCEPT WHEN GOVERNMENT CONTROL IS NECESSARY TO MEET AN EMERGENCY CONDITION OR TO AVOID THE WASTE OF A NATURAL RESOURCE. A GREAT RESURGENCE OF INTERNATIONAL TRADE SHOULD BE MADE POSSIBLE IN THE POSTWAR YEARS BY CONSTRUCTIVE GOVERNMENTAL AGREEMENTS AMONG NATIONS WHICH WILL INCREASE, PLAN, AND FOSTER THE EXCHANGE OF PRODUCTS WITHOUT WASTE FOR THE BENEFIT OF ALL PEOPLES."

Corsicans Seize Capital In Fight To Expel Nazis

GALLAGHER

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Sept. 20—French Commandos, taking their first active part in the war since Tunisia, have stormed into Corsica to battle side by side with French patriots in an effort to grab the key Mediterranean island less than fifty miles from the northern shores of the Nazi-held Italian mainland, it was announced tonight.

One of the first acts of the Corsicans was to gain control of Ajaccio, their capital, and hold it.

"Immediately after news of the Italian armistice became known, French Corsican patriots took up the fight against the Germans," the French high command said in a communique.

"French Commandos were immediately landed to back up the patriots.

"Events have taken a favorable turn."

Giraud Signs Communique

The communique was signed by Gen. Henri Giraud, commander in chief of French forces.

Corsicans have long engaged in guerrilla activities against Axis forces on the island. They seized upon the capitulation of Italy to carry their warfare into the open.

[This dispatch did not bring out the point from which the Commandos struck. They may have embarked from either North Africa or Sicily.]

Warning To Germans

A few minutes before the communique was issued, the French-controlled radio at Algiers broadcast a warning to Germans that Corsican guerrillas wearing skull-and-crossbones insignia on their sleeves must be considered regular soldiers and treated as prisoners of war in event of capture.

Naval vessels participated in the action, which included swift dashes into German-patrolled waters.

[Don Hollenbeck, NBC reporter, in a broadcast from Allied headquarters, said that two Italian divisions which drove the Nazis off Sardinia were slated to cross to Corsica to help the French drive. He said the Germans were "trying to get to the port of Bastia for quick evacuation to the port of Leghorn on the mainland."]

Operations All French

Thus far, the entire Corsican operation has been French.

Control of the island would give the Allies one of the greatest air prizes in the Mediterranean theater, for from Corsica, long-range fighter planes could sweep the Nazi-held Po valley weeks and perhaps months before Allied ground forces could battle their way up the Italian boot.

The operation is of tremendous importance to French morale. The French had felt they were left out of the Italian fighting while they wanted to do something on their own.

It was understood that in the first engagement, the French had ambushed a German column in the island's mountains and wiped out some 300 Nazis.

SEP 21 1943

all the commanding heights of Sorrento Peninsula, Allied headquarters announced today.

Already padlocked on the seaward side by the occupation of the islands of Capri, Ischia and Procida on either side of the bay, Italy's second largest port thereby came under the gaze of Allied soldiers across twelve miles of water and within range of "Long Tom" artillery.

Easily within artillery range also were the Italian naval base of Castellammare, recently bombarded by the British Navy, and the key railway town of Torre Annunziata, both in the lower elbow of the bay. Smoking Vesuvius rose but ten miles from the Salerno beachhead in the Montecorvino and Battipaglia sectors where the Germans apparently were making a full-scale retreat under a merciless air lashing reminiscent of the days when the British were trying to get out of Greece under the blows of the Nazi air force.

The British Fifth Corps, closing in from the Italian heel, captured Gioja, twenty-eight miles from Taranto on the road to Allied-held Bari, and a headquarters spokesman said the Germans had completed the evacuation of Sardinia, the huge island and air base which Mussolini had regarded as the No. 2 defense outpost of Italy. 10 Airfields on Sardinia.

With the capture of Sardinia by Italian troops acting under orders of Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio, the position of the Germans in Corsica, only seven miles to the north, apparently became untenable, and the Allies gained the potential use of ten airfields from which to press attacks on northern Italy and southern France. It was not likely that much use was being made of Sardinia by Allied forces as yet, however, because of the floodtide of operations on the mainland now beating against Naples.

[A Morocco radio broadcast said the German commander had ordered a state of siege in the Naples area.]

The Fifth Army advances were reported made "against decreasing enemy resistance." Further reinforcements continued to arrive on the Salerno beaches to swell the ranks of Lieut.-Gen. Mark W. Clark's American and British forces which yesterday were reported to have captured Battipaglia and Altavilla.

Sardinia Cleared of Nazis.

A military spokesman announced that all of Sardinia had now been cleared of German forces by two Italian divisions which ousted the Nazis on orders direct from Marshal Pietro Badoglio, who now is somewhere in Allied-held territory.

There were indications the Germans were making a full retreat from the Salerno bridgehead, the spokesman said, adding that considerable columns of enemy vehicles were observed withdrawing. The air force reported that American A-36 Invaders attacked a column of 1,800 German vehicles traveling northward from Contursi, ten miles east of Eboli facing the bridgehead, and destroyed or damaged 246 of them.

There was little news from the British Eighth Army, which now has advanced some 250 miles from the southernmost toe, but it was considered probable that the German withdrawal reported by the invaders near Contursi might have been caused by the Eighth Army cutting due north past the Salerno bridgehead.

In sweeping out on the Sorrento Peninsula, the Allied forces mounted a direct threat to the port of Naples from yet another side. Amphibious forces have taken over all islands immediately off the port.

"As we control all the heights of the Sorrento Peninsula we undoubtedly control all of the peninsula since it is unlikely the Germans would stay in the lower parts just to be destroyed," the spokesman declared. Amafi and other towns on the south side of the peninsula were declared in Allied hands.

Reports are reaching headquarters from the Salerno area on casualties. The full count will be taken when the divisions have time to sort themselves out as the battle becomes less confused.

Reports from the Salerno area indicated, however, that battle casualties were not so high as had been feared at first.

Removal of the Germans from Sardinia gives the Allies several potential air bases from which to reach northern Italy and southern France.

SEP 21 1943

Germans Weak on Island.

Yesterday's headquarters bulletin reported that the German garrison on Sardinia, under attack by the two Italian divisions, had almost completed evacuation to Corsica, Italian-held former French island directly to the north. German troops persumably were too small to present substantial resistance to the Italians.

The island's removal from enemy hands gives the Allies fighter plane access to German concentrations above Rome and southern France, although it undoubtedly would be some time before the ten oft-bombed Sardinian air ports, three of which are at the northern end of the island, could be put into usable condition.

The German Air Force itself is keeping aground except for minor excursions. Not a single enemy plane was sighted over the Salerno battle area Saturday, and the Germans avoided combat when American bombers blasted air fields in the Rome area.

Allies Capture Sorrento; Guns Command Naples

GALLAGHER

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Sept. 20—Naples was within sight and within twelve-mile artillery range tonight of the American Fifth Army, which captured the Sorrento peninsula in a fifteen-mile advance west of Salerno through weakening German resistance.

All Sardinia was in the hands of two Italian divisions, which had acted on orders of Marshal Pietro Badoglio, and chased German elements onto the French island of Corsica, seven miles north.

[A United Nations radio broadcast from Algiers said the Allied penetration of the Salerno area now extended inland nineteen miles. The British Eighth Army is joined "in full strength" with the Fifth, said the broadcast, which was recorded by the Associated Press.]

British Capture Gioja

While the British Eighth Army consolidated its junction with Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark's Fifth Army on the beaches of Salerno, the British Fifth Corps in the south occupied Gioja, twenty-eight miles inland and northwest of Taranto, extending the Allied hold on southern Italy.

The British encountered no Germans at Gioja, but had to clear extensive mine fields. Their position on the Adriatic beyond Bari had not been reported in almost a week.

Allied air power, particularly American invader dive bombers, ripped and tore with high explosives at German motor convoys, totaling as high as 1,800 vehicles, which were retreating north of Contursi from the center of the Salerno front under the pressure of the Fifth and Eighth armies. The Allies destroyed 109 of the enemy's trucks and damaged 137 others.

Bay Of Naples Flanked

Seizure of the Sorrento peninsula flanked the south side of the Bay of Naples. Sea approaches to Italy's second largest port in the shadow of Mount Vesuvius already were firmly commanded by the Allies, who seized the guardian islands of Capri, Ischia and Procida on either side of the bay last week.

American 155-mm. "Long Toms" of African and Sicilian fame could now lob shells into bomb-torn Naples at will from the peninsula or the islands. The peninsula lies twelve miles across the bay from Naples and its 866,000 people. General Clark has said Naples is his first objective.

In Easy Artillery Range

The Italian naval base of Castellammare at the northeast corner of the peninsula, and the important railway city of Torre Annunziata, eleven miles north of Castellammare, both came within easy artillery range of Allied batteries. Amalfi and other towns on the south side of the peninsula were taken.

Among the towns on the peninsula supposedly captured were Sorrento, Piano, Positano, Equense and Massalubrense.

The capture of the Sorrento peninsula was the largest announced gain in the Salerno campaign. There were no reports of any large engagements on any sector of the front.

Nazis In Full Retreat

The Germans appeared to be in full retreat from the Salerno area.

"Considerable columns of enemy vehicles were observed withdrawing," an Allied spokesman said. "The Fifth Army has advanced north of Battipaglia (six miles inland and fifteen southeast of Salerno) in the face of stubborn opposition. Small gains also were made in the vicinity of Montecorvino."

"The Fifth Army continues to extend its bridgehead against decreasing enemy resistance," the Allied communique said. "Reinforcements continue to arrive. The Eighth Army continues to advance from the north."

Allied Casualties Light

Casualties of the Fifth Army in the violent beach battle below Salerno were smaller than at first feared, headquarters indicated. Losses were reported light compared with those inflicted.

[The Berlin radio said Allied forces in the Salerno area had been reinforced by three additional divisions, including two American, the Eighty-second Airborne Division and the Third Infantry Division. The First Canadian Division also has been placed under General Clark's command, it said.

[British forces attempting to thrust northward from Salerno to Naples were repulsed twice yesterday, the German broadcast said, and added that American attempts to outflank the new German positions "were frustrated."]

Allies Still Rule Air

Meanwhile, the German air force remained the weakest arm of the enemy war machine. Allied aircraft virtually were unopposed on all sectors.

The Allied strategic air force took yesterday off, but the tactical air force hammered German columns wherever found.

Considerable snarled traffic was chopped to pieces at a junction of four roads twelve miles northeast of Eboli. A concentrated attack was made on Pescopagano and its roads. Heavy RAF night raiders hammered a highway bridge at Benevento, which is the lone crossing of the Calore river. The rail junction of Capua and freight yards in the Naples suburbs were other targets. Two Nazi planes were destroyed and three Allied craft were lost.

The railway junction of Capua and the freight yards on the outskirts of Naples.

A total of two enemy aircraft out of a very small number sighted were shot down during the twenty-four hour period against an Allied loss of three planes.

Allies Lash Nazi Road Convoys Fleeing North

MORGANTHAU

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Sept. 20—Long lines of German motor convoys retreating northward from the Salerno bridgehead battle area were heavily bombed and strafed yesterday by United States A-36 invaders, which left the smoking wreckage of at least 109 trucks littering the mountainous defiles north of Contursi.

The Nazi ground forces were retreating to the north in larger numbers than have been previously seen on the roads and were given an unmerciful battering by the planes, which roamed unmolested by enemy fighters.

SEP 21 1943

Roads Cluttered

The pilots estimated that at least 1,800 trucks cluttered the roads as the Germans pulled back from the Contursi area, ten miles east of Eboli.

In addition to the trucks destroyed at least 137 others were badly damaged, official reports showed.

The versatile A-36's were joined in the sweeps by American Warhawks and RAF Kitty bombers. Pilots found considerable traffic congestion at the junction of four roads twelve miles northeast of Eboli and they made a concentrated attack on Pescopagano, as well as on the arterial roads entering it.

Bridge Area Attacked

RAF and RCAF Wellingtons of the Strategic Air Force made a heavy attack last night on the approaches to the key highway bridge at Benevento.

The Wellingtons dropped many strings of bombs across the entrance to the bridge and 3,000-pound bombs started a large fire among the adjacent buildings. The bridge affords the only crossing of the Calore river for a considerable distance and provides one of the main routes for the withdrawal of the German forces.

Red Airmen Report Signs Germans Are Quitting Caucasus

[By the Associated Press]

London, Tuesday, Sept. 21—The Red army overran more than 1,130 villages yesterday, flanking the German central anchor at Smolensk and cutting the Kiev-Chernigov highway and the railway into the Crimea amid signs that the enemy was abandoning the Caucasus.

A Moscow communique also disclosed early today a vast Red army wheeling movement aimed at Cherkasy, on the middle Dnieper southeast of Kiev, in an effort to trap hundreds of thousands of enemy troops in the river bend. One Red army unit was within forty miles of the Cherkasy area, key to the extensive rail network in the bend.

Only 15 Miles From Dnieper

East of the bend the Red army reached a point only eight miles from Melitopol after snapping the Crimean escape railway between Zaporozhe and Dnepropetrovsk and capturing a town only fifteen miles from the Dnieper, said the broadcast communique recorded by the Soviet monitor.

Red airmen of the Black Sea fleet, the bulletin said, sank a German minesweeper and three troop barges along the south side of the Paman peninsula above recaptured Novorossisk, indicating an enemy withdrawal from the narrow Caucasian foothold.

Nearly 10,000 Germans were declared killed by the pursuing Russians along a 750-mile front in an accelerated drive that has swept up more than 3,000 villages and towns in three days.

Velizh Falls In Smolensk Push

Velizh, sixty-five miles northwest of Smolensk, fell as the Russians also drove to within thirty miles on the northeast. Front reports relayed from Moscow said the Red army imperiling that German bastion was moving steadily through swamps and mine-filled forests, sometimes pulling artillery by hand as infantrymen and mortarmen demolished blockhouses and pillboxes in the path.

Beyond Bryansk the Russians overran Kletnya, forty-five miles to the west, in a race for White Russia as other units farther south crossed the Snov river, forty miles from Novozybkov, a junction on the Bryansk-Gomel railway.

Free 16,000 From Labor Draft

"German troops were routed and dispersed," the communique said of the westward sweep beyond Bryansk. "They are being wiped out at present by our troops."

The Soviet troops' advance was so swift that at one point near Poltava, the communique said, 16,000 Soviet civilians being herded westward for forced labor were freed.

Whole strings of freight cars loaded with ammunition and grain were captured intact by the Russians.

The German radio said the Smolensk battle was rising to a climax, and that Russian parachute troops were being dropped behind their lines above the northern arm of the Dnieper river bend.

Kozelets, forty miles north of Kiev on the highway to Chernigov and Gomel, in lower White Russia, fell to the Russians, who also were only about three miles from Chernigov, rich farming community.

Major Threat Develops

Southeast of Kiev, however, a major threat was developing to all the Germans in the Crimea and the Dnieper river bend. Turning south from Piryatin the Russians moved along the railway leading toward Odessa in an apparent effort to plunge across the Dnieper and cut off the Germans below the river and east of the bend. This column captured Grebenka, a junction point only forty-five miles north of the river.

Farther east, another Russian column was swinging down the Romny-Kremenchug Railway, and also was approaching the river.

The situation at Smolensk undoubtedly was precarious for the Germans. The Soviet communique announced the capture of more than 400 villages in a direct drive on that bastion, once reported to be Adolf Hitler's eastern headquarters, and in the swing to the northwest.

Advances Up To 11 Miles

Head-on smashes toward Smolensk and Roslavl to the south netted the Russians up to eleven miles, an advance made through forests snarled with barbed wire, pocked with tank traps, and bristling with armored pillboxes.

Moscow dispatches said there was no German flight in this sector. The Germans were fighting until they were cut down by the Russians who had strong air and artillery support.

The fall of Velizh to the northwest not only flanked Smolensk but placed the Red army within ten miles of the upper White Russian border and only forty-five miles northeast of Vitebsk on the railway from Smolensk to Latvia.

In the drive on Poltava, last major Axis bastion above the Dnieper bend, the Russians said their troops had taken sixty towns, including Kochubeevka, only fifteen miles to the northeast, and Karlovka, twenty-seven miles to the southeast.

Although the Russians were only forty miles north of Kiev and within forty-two miles of that Ukraine capital on the northeast, the major Russian blows appeared to be directed at Dnieper River points above and below the city. More than two hundred villages fell to the Russians in the wheeling movement toward the river southeast of Kiev.

Advancing on Dniepropetrovsk the Red Army gained from four to eleven miles, capturing Zachenilovka, fifty miles from the city, and fifty other localities.

Farther south in the thrust toward Zaporozhe the Russians captured Bolshaya-Tokmak, only eighteen miles east of the Zaporozhe-Melitopol railway at a point midway between those two cities. Aside from the capture of the village only eight miles southeast of Melitopol, the communique said another Russian unit had seized Novovasilevka, eighteen miles due east of Melitopol.

Reds Bear Down On Smolensk And Kiev

[By the Associated Press]

Moscow, Sept. 20—Red army troops under Gen. Andrei Yeremanko cracked through the gateway to Smolensk on the central Russian front over the week end as the Soviet advance shifted into high gear, a Russian communique announced last night.

Victory guns bombed out in Moscow again as Russian troops drew nearer to Smolensk and Kiev.

In the north the Red army moved to within thirty miles of Smolensk, capturing Dukhovschina, while another Soviet column was only forty-two miles from Kiev.

Huge Supplies Captured

The Russian war bulletin indicated that the Red army was sweeping westward rapidly, meeting only lightly-armed Nazi rearguards.

Huge stocks of food and munitions were falling into Russian hands, but there was little mention of the heavy armored equipment which the Germans expended so prodigiously previously.

The Smolensk area was apparently a focal point of the present drive, with General Yeremenko bearing down from the northeast, while another column under Gen. Vassilly Sokolovsky pushed into Yartsevo on the left flank.

Roslavl Also Menaced

Roslavl, south of Smolensk, was also menaced by the Red army, which, the Soviet communique said, stormed across the Desna river to capture Dubroska.

Other army units advancing westward from Bryansk took 300 towns, including Trubchevsk, in a drive of twelve miles, the bulletin added.

On the lower central front the Russians were arrayed in a rough arc, with the columns aimed in the general direction of Kiev. Chernigov, at the northern end of the arc, was reported menaced by an eighteen-mile advance.

In the drive on Kiev the cities of Priluki, eighty miles east; Lubny, Piryatin, Mirgorod and Krasnograd all fell, bringing the Red army line parallel to the Dnieper river along a one hundred-mile front about eighty miles to the northeast.

The Russian lines were nearest to the Dnieper in the vicinity of Dniepropetrovsk, at the river's eastern most bend, where the Red army was closing in on Zaporozhe.

Reds Push Closer to Smolensk

Velizh Is Captured as Advance Rolls to Within Ten Miles of White Russia.

SEP 21 1943

London, Sept. 20 (A. P.).—The Russians have captured Velizh, sixty-five miles northwest of Smolensk, in a push that carried them to a point only ten miles from the White Russian border, while in the south a town only eight miles from Melitopol was taken, Moscow announced tonight.

Bolshaya-Tokmak, 20 miles east of Zaporozhe on the Dnieper Bend, also fell as the Russians closed in fast in an effort to cut the railway entering the Crimea. Hundreds of villages were seized as the offensive, now broadened to a 750-mile front, rolled on westward, according to the communique, which was broadcast by the Moscow radio and recorded by the Soviet monitor here.

In the drive on Smolensk and Roslavl, where the Russian Army is within thirty miles of those Axis central front bastions, the Russians said their troops advanced by from six to eleven miles and captured more than 850 villages, including a railway station. Fifty more localities fell in the wheeling movement to the northwest that toppled Velizh.

In the Ukraine the Russian Army reached a point twenty-one miles northeast of the big Axis base at Poltava. Further west one Russian column swinging south toward the Dnieper River below Kiev occupied Grebenka, nine miles southwest of Piryatin and forty-five miles short of the river.

CHURCHILL HAS SESSION WITH CABINET

London, Sept. 20 — Winston Churchill presided at a Cabinet meeting tonight, and it was understood that the British Prime Minister had made a full report of the Quebec-Washington war conferences and possibly discussed his coming appearance before Parliament.

The general expectation is that Churchill will take the floor almost as soon as Parliament reconvenes and will describe the progress of the war and the forthcoming tripartite conference as well as answer questions widely raised in the British press on the lapse of time between the capture of Sicily and the invasion of the mainland.

The return of Churchill will probably act to speed a British-Soviet-American conference. Although a formal announcement has been withheld, speculation has grown here that the meeting will take place next month, possibly in Moscow. W. Averell Harriman, lend-lease supervisor in Britain, has been widely mentioned as a possible American representative to the conference.

Anthony Eden, Foreign Secretary, who took part in the Quebec conference, will wind up a two-day war debate and answer any criticism raised by the members.

Canadian censors yesterday permitted disclosure that Churchill arrived at Halifax on a giant British transport early in August and left from the same port last week on the battleship Renown.

Prime Minister Believed To Have Reported On Conferences

Churchill Drafts War Review

Prime Minister, Back in London From U. S., Faces Queries on Italy and Il Duce.

SEP 21 1943

London, Sept. 20 (A. P.).—Prime Minister Churchill, back in Britain after a momentous six-week visit to Canada and the United States, today began preparation of a war review to be presented shortly to the House of Commons.

The review, which will be Mr Churchill's first since his brief statement to Commons July 27 and which is expected to be one of his longest, will open a two-day war debate when Parliament reconvenes after a brief summer recess.

It is anticipated that during the debate the Government will be asked, among other things, to explain why Italy was given a "breathing space" after Benito Mussolini's fall and why the Allies failed to demand from the Badoglio government the immediate surrender of the former Duce.

The first Commons debate in eight weeks also is expected to demand additional details on the Italian surrender, more definite news of proposed conferences between Britain, the United States and Russia, and information on the operations of AMG—the Allied Military Government in Occupied Territory.

Parliament Nears Record.

When Parliament reconvenes, it will have become the longest-lived Parliament for more than 250 years. Today it exactly equaled the life span of the Parliament elected in December, 1910 and assembled January 31, 1911, which was prolonged until November 25, 1918 because of the world war. The present Parliament first met November 26, 1935. Only three Parliaments in Britain have had a longer history—the Elizabethan Parliament of 1572-83; the long Parliament, 1640-53, and the Cavalier Parliament, 1661-79.

Mr. Churchill, accompanied by Mrs. Churchill and their daughter, Mary, a subaltern in the A. T. S., returned to London by The Prime Minister returned to England aboard the battleship Renown and landed at a northwest port, the authoritative British Press Association reported today. The 32,000-ton battleship has taken part in this war in both the Atlantic and Mediterranean.

The Prime Minister was looking exceptionally fit on his arrival.

Big Fleet Reported in Aegean

ALNEW

Powerful Blow at Balkans Believed at Hand as Allied Warships Steam North.

London, Sept. 20 (A. P.).—An Allied war fleet was reported steaming up the Ægean Sea off the west coast of Turkey today, stirring new talk of an imminent lunge into the Balkans.

Italians fleeing into Turkey reported its presence describing it as a large concentration of war ships, and London newspapers quoted them as saying also that Allied forces had occupied the Island of Castel Rosso, the most southerly of the Dodecanese, four miles from the Turkish coast and ninety miles east of Rhodes.

These refugee reports were linked in London with similar accounts four days ago of Allied occupation of the Islands of Samos, Lero, and Cos (Coo), all in the Dodecanese north of Rhodes, and with the reported departure of Britain's Ninth Army from its base in the Middle East.

Rhodes itself, the largest of the Dodecanese, was last week reported to be under German control, after the Nazis had overcome the Italian garrison in several days of bloody fighting. Refugees estimated that 25,000 Italians on Rhodes were out maneuvered and crushed by 5,000 Germans supported by dive-bombers operating from German-held Crete.

An early cleanup of all German forces in the Dodecanese was looked for in London. The Allies hold the superiority in the air and the surrender of the Italian fleet removed most of the danger from the sea and virtually wiped out the possibility of enemy reinforcement.

The Germans, apparently anticipating a thrust into the Balkans, were reported by the London newspapers as still rushing troops into southeastern Europe. These reports said that troops were being shipped into Salonika for the eventual reinforcement of the garrisons on the Aegean island defense ring, and that all Greek vessels, even light fishing craft, had been commandeered for the transportation of supplies to these islands.

In the Balkans proper, the Germans are now confronted by ever-growing forces led by Gen. Draja Mihailovich, an Istanbul dispatch said. Hundreds of Italians were also reported to have joined the guerrilla bands, with all now receiving ammunition, food and clothing regularly and in some cases fighting with the support of Allied air power.

Meanwhile, the London Daily Sketch reported that high Rumanian officials had gone to Ankara with the hope of establishing touch with Allied diplomats and sounding them out on Rumanian's future if she should break with Germany and get out of the war.

Hoare Warns Europe Its Peril Lies In Russian Isolation

British Envoy To Spain Denies Soviet Influence Is The Great Post-War Danger

SEP 21 1943

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sept. 20—Sir Samuel Hoare, British Ambassador to Spain, asserted today that the great danger to Europe after the war was not Russian influence but Russian isolation.

In an address to Chelsea war workers, Sir Samuel, home for consultatons after a recent meeting with Generalissimo Fancisco Franco, said:

"In any stable Europe the greatest of the Slav peoples, whose territories possess vast resources and whose achievements have amazed the world, must take its rightful place.

"Communism, for all the claims of some of its propagandists, is a national and not an international product.

"It is brought about by internal conditions. If you fear it, you should so set your house in order that your social and political conditions will silence any demand for its introduction."

Declaring that the two great dangers to a better Europe were famine and anarchy, Sir Samuel said that "unless these specters can be driven away there is little hope for the political recovery of Europe." He said the third great need was liberty, and he added that European civilization could not live without it.

The British Ambassador made no reference to Spain by name in his speech.

He said there had been periods in history when European liberty was temporarily stifled and declared that the tyranny produced by Naziism and Fascism was the blackest of these chapters.

"Sooner or later the breath of liberty always dissipates the encircling obscurity and revivifies the life of Europe," he declared.

What particular course that spirit will take in Italy, Germany or any other country on the Continent, Sir Samuel said he could not say, for "political constitutions, social conditions and economic needs will vary between one European people and another."

"If we are wise," he said, "we shall accept these differences and make no attempt to impose uniformity upon a Europe that will never accept it. What matters to us are not details of constitutions or differences of habits and methods, but rather the broad principles without which civilized life is impossible."

Hits "Police State"

Sir Samuel declared that these broad principles should be focused upon the "revival and maintenance of the dignity of human nature" in which the "police state," built up around state idolatry and racial bigotry has no place.

"Just as I do not believe that any human being, however excellent he may be, can be safely entrusted with absolute power," Sir Samuel said, "so I am convinced that no state, however intelligent and well meaning may be its officials, can safely be allowed a monopoly of power. I share, therefore, the view of many of my continental friends who wish to see a renaissance of non-state activities in Europe."

BIG GERMAN FORCE TO GUARD BALKANS

24 Divisions Reported to Be on Way to Meet the Expected Landing by Allies

YUGOSLAVS LIST VICTORIES

Hungarians Fear Hitler Will Force Them to Take Large Part in Defense

LONDON, Sept. 20 (AP)—The Germans were reported tonight to be rushing thirty divisions, aggregating more than 250,000 men, to Italy and the Balkans to protect themselves from the growing Allied menace to their southern flank. Twenty-four of the divisions were said to have been sent to the Balkans and the others to Italy.

An informant who is in clandestine communication with sources inside Germany said twelve of the divisions were drawn from the reserve behind the Russian front, while three were taken from Norway and one from the Netherlands. The others were said to be of substandard quality, made up of youngsters, convalescents and middle-aged men drawn from the interior of Germany.

This would bring the German strength in Italy to about twenty-four divisions. The forces sent to the Balkans would replace the twenty-seven Italian garrison divisions lost on Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio's surrender.

NAZI SHIPPING HARRIED BY AIR

U. S. Heavy Bombers Help RAF Sow Mines And Strafe Coastal Craft

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sept. 20—A quietly mounting "invisible" Allied air campaign against enemy shipping has been making increasing inroads in Germany's war production, it was disclosed tonight. This campaign is waged with mines sown from the air.

While large-scale air attacks have been holding the limelight in recent weeks, the unseen campaign has proceeded methodically by day and night from British bases with both British and American planes participating.

Dozen Sunk In Past Week

Nazi vessels are being torpedoed, bombed, strafed, and sunk by mines sown from the air. The forays have been intensified until some dozen craft were sunk and no fewer than sixty set afire or damaged during the last week.

The attacks are largely along coastal routes, in the Baltic Sea, and among the Scandinavian straits —routes as important to the Nazis now as trans-ocean shipping is to the Allies.

With her highly self-contained continental production system, Germany can exist on small imports from overseas, but continental materials must be moved from mines and other sources to her factories.

A large portion of the burden of her overstrained railroads, bombed, shot up and sabotaged by her enemies, has fallen on coastal traffic.

U. S. Heavy Bombers Help

All main branches of the RAF had been participating in the campaign against this traffic for some time, and recently American heavy bombers have been helping along the campaign during their operational flights.

Two weeks ago the Eighth Air Force made its first concentrated attack on shipping with a Liberator raid on a Nazi convoy off the Dutch coast.

Flying Fortresses followed up a few days later by attacking Nantes and La Pallice, sinking an enemy destroyer and hitting several ships.

On nights when RAF heavy bombers can't fly, anti-shipping activities flourish because clouds give just the cover planes need for unobserved mine laying.

Says Boris Was Slain At Order of Hitler

London, Sept. 18 (A. P.).—The Daily Telegraph, quoting reliable sources, said today that King Boris fo Bulgaria was assassinated on orders of Adolf Hitler because he was trying to free Bulgaria of German control and had asked Russia for aid.

According to this account, Boris's request to Russia was discovered by Franz von Papen, German Ambassador to Turkey.

Nazis Report Channel Clash

SEP 21 1943

London, Sept. 20 (AP)—The Berlin radio, in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press, said today that Nazi coastal patrol boats and British speedboats met in an engagement off the coast of Ijmuiden, Holland, last night.

Fires were observed in two British boats, the Germans said.

Shostakovich Completes His Eighth Symphony

London, Sept. 20 (AP)—Dmitri Shostakovich, the composer, whose Seventh Symphony was written during the siege of Leningrad, has completed his eighth, the Moscow radio announced today.

The new work was described as reflecting his emotions over the joy of the Russian people from Red army victories, and as attempting to look into the post-war era.

London, Tuesday, Sept. 21 (AP). Formations of high-flying RAF bombers crossed the southeast English coast late last night and headed for the Continent.

British Fighter Command aircraft made offensive patrols over France yesterday and attacked and damaged an enemy airfield at Morlaix, two mine sweepers off Brest and several locomotives.

London, Sept. 20 (AP)—The Daily Sketch today reported that high Rumanian officials had gone to Ankara with the hope of contacting Allied diplomats and sounding them out on Rumania's future if she should break with Germany and get out of the war.

London, Sept. 20—The Tokyo radio quoted a Japanese communique today as saying that 200 Allied planes had raided Tarawa and Makin Islands in the Gilberts over the week end.

Twenty of the raiders were shot down, said the broadcast, which was recorded by the Associated Press.

HO HUM! THINK WHAT WE MISSED

London, Sept. 20 (A. P.).—A German propaganda broadcast asserted today that Nazi troops in the Salerno region had captured on September 13 an Allied invasion time - table calling for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's entry into Rome by September 16.

"It is easy to imagine how much the Anglo - American propaganda looked forward to this date," the broadcast said, declaring Benito Mussolini was to have been delivered to President Roosevelt in Washington also on September 16.

SPAIN QUOTES ALLIES FIRST

Turn Of Salerno Tide Laid To Mass Bombing

London, Sept. 20 (AP)—Concentrated bombing turned the tide of the battle of Salerno and eased a serious situation, enabling British and American troops to resume the offensive, the British Air Ministry news service said in a summary tonight.

For seventy-two hours the whole might of both the northwest African strategic and tactical air forces was hurled at Nazi troops and gun positions which commanded the Salerno beaches, it said. Under this pounding and the stiff defense aground, the Germans yielded.

"Allied ground and air forces are now so coordinated in this theater they are used by the supreme commander as though they were his right and left fist," the news service stated.

Allies Counting Casualties

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 20 (AP).—Reports are reaching headquarters from the Salerno area on casualties. The full count will be taken when the divisions have time to sort themselves out as the battle relaxes. Reports from the Salerno area indicate, however, that battle casualties were not so high as had been feared at first.

NEW TYPE BRITISH SHIPS

Admiralty Reports Switch to Fast 12,000-Ton Cargo Craft

LONDON, Sept. 20 (AP)—The Admiralty today announced the putting into service of the first of a new type of fast, 12,000-ton cargo ships, revealing a production shift similar to that made in the United States from the eleven-knot Liberty ships to the seventeen and a half knot Victory ships.

The new British ship is described as of a high utility type. The number planned to be built and their exact speed was not disclosed.

The large clear decks and many large hatchways permit the carriage of bulky as well as heavy items. Three large derricks provide facilities for cargo handling while older type ships in the past generally had one. Mechanical equipment is condensed to provide more space. The first of these vessels was steam-powered. The later ones, with Diesel power, each are designed to accommodate twenty-four passengers.

No Sabotage in Sikorski Crash

LONDON, Sept. 20 (AP).—A court of inquiry, investigating the crash of a Liberator bomber at Gibraltar July 4 in which General Wladyslaw Sikorski, former Premier of the Polish government-in-exile, was killed, found today that it was caused by a jamming of the elevator controls shortly after the take-off, making the aircraft uncontrollable. How the jamming occurred was impossible to determine, the inquiry report said, but it was established that no sabotage was involved.

Ex-Paris Communist Is Slain

LONDON, Sept. 20 (AP)—Marcel Varoteaux, former Communist member of the Paris Municipal Council who later became secretary of the Paris branch of the Workers and Peasants party, was shot and killed today by two unidentified men, a Berlin broadcast, recorded by The Associated Press, said tonight.

Danish Parties Reject Nazi Puppet-State Plan

Refuse to Call Parliament to 'Legalize' New Regime

STOCKHOLM, Sept 20 (AP).—A dispatch from Denmark said today that a cmomittee representing the "big five" Danish political parties had unanimously rejected a German proposal which would reduce the kingdom to the status of a puppet and disband its parliament.

Details of the German plan to replace the military control, with Nazi Minister Werner Best assuming power as Reich's protector, were presented to the Danish Cabinet Sept. 13, the Danish press service said. Under the proposal, non-politicians would administer and issue laws, with Germany reserving control of the press and radio and retaining all legal power acquired under the present state of emergency.

The Germans demanded that Parliament be summoned to empower the new government to issue laws and then be dismissed permanently, 'he new service said. They demanded also the abolition of the War Ministry because of the de facto demobilization of Danish defense forces.

The Parliament leadership, on the same day the demands were rejected, decided to take no action toward convening Parliament because both King Christian X and the government chiefs, who alone have such power, have been "suspended" by the Nazis.

Meanwhile, sabotage against German production and transport, which resulted in the Nazi occupation, were reported to be continuing at an undiminished pace, with five new bombings reported today.

Stockholm, Sept. 20 (AP) — Two regiments of Poles conscripted for Nazi military service have fled into the extensive forests near Augustow, 135 miles northeast of Warsaw, with artillery, mortars and other equipment and brigaded to harass the Germans, the secret Polish radio station SWIT said today. Young Poles were reported streaming into the forests to join them.

Italian Escape Path Blocked

At the Swiss-Italian Frontier,

Sept. 20 (AP)—The Ponte Chiasso customs station on the Italian side of the Swiss-Italian frontier, where hundreds of Italian troops and civilians have been massing in an effort to flee the country, was closed today by German troops.

Passports, frontier cards and visas were invalidated and some 600 persons, who until now had crossed the border daily to work, were detained on whichever side of the border they were caught by the action.

Nazi occupation authorities have suspended passenger traffic from Como, Italy, into Switzerland. A few freight trains were permitted to go through.

Italians in Corsica Battle

MADRID, Sept. 20 (AP).—A French report received here tonight said that the forces of Italian Premier Badoglio already are in possession of the railroad in Corsica running northeast from the Ajaccio naval base across the mountains to Bastia.

There were reports also of a clash between Italian soldiers and sailors and Germans in Ajaccio after the Germans tried to sail several merchant ships out of the harbor, presumably to some French port.

Bastia and the island's eastern airports, however, apparently form the main German-held area on Corsica. It is believed the Germans are not likely to give up the island without a struggle, since it is close to the Nazi-occupied island of Elba, to the east, and commands the Gulf of Genoa supply route between France and Italy.

Portuguese Intern U. S. Crew

LISBON, Sept. 20 (AP).—An American bomber made a forced landing in the Cape Sagres region of southwestern Portugal today. The five-man crew, none of whom suffered any injuries, surrendered to Portuguese authorities for internment.

Gen. Clark Visits Front.

By REYNOLDS PACKARD.

Representing the Combined American Press. (Distributed by the Associated Press.)

With the Fifth Army in Italy, Sept. 19 (Delayed).—Lieut.-Gen. Mark W. Clark visited the central part of the Salerno sector today, riding in a jeep through a minefield strewn with dead animals and the bodies of Germans.

Gen. Clark, who already is becoming known to his men as "the frontline general," not only inspected outposts but also went into two cities which had been taken and examined the damage they had suffered.

He discussed problems with various commanding officers in the field, including the heads of a number of patrols which he met while they were attempting to contact the Germans.

Gen. Clark inspected another sector of the front yesterday where the men were considerably encouraged by seeing the General in their midst, close to the firing line and at several points actually under mortar and artillery fire.

The General's face was like a white mask from the powdery dust of the country roads pulverized by thousands of war vehicles. Wherever he stopped, he was surrounded by men who crowded around to hear his remarks of encouragement.

Several places where the fight had been extremely hard the General got out of his jeep and congratulated not only the officers but also the men on the fine showing they had made.

He was informally garbed, wearing a combat uniform of woolen shirt and trousers tucked into his hunting shoes. He wore a trench cap most of the time but when he came under fire he donned a helmet. He wore no tie and no coat, and his collar was open.

Salerno Saucer Shudders

Even as the Allied chiefs pore over maps and charts and plan the oint blows of tomorrow, the Salerno "saucer" shudders from the battle blows of today.

Hundreds of our artillery batteries and scores of big naval guns in the bay behind pound enemy hills to the north, the east and southeast hour after hour, while countless machine guns guarding our front line rake the uphill slopes near by.

Achievements Weighed

On the positive side of the battle balance stands a brilliant achievement — the Salerno beachhead taken in the face of a waiting foe and held by modern Minute Men against half a hundred vicious attacks by the best forces Hitler could muster in his determination to make it a second Dunkirk. On the positive side, too, is the Eighth Army's occupation of the end of the Italian peninsula.

But on the negative side stands the bold fact that we still have to get to grips with the Nazi forces and eliminate them.

Both the troops and their commanders, however, are overwhelmingly confident they'll get "elusive Jerry yet, for he can't run away forever." Both are not disturbed by the losses we suffered, for they were light in comparison with the casualties we inflicted, nor by the fight ahead but both are outsp

Military Commanders Plan Next Blow In Italy

With the Fifth Army in the Salerno Area, Sept. 19 (Delayed). General Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's men, pouring in by the thousands from the south and pulling up abreast of Lieut. Gen. Mark Clark's stalwart defenders of the Salerno beach head, have closed the first phase of Italian operations.

Army and field commanders of both British and American forces are huddled in conferences from which will emerge the strategy by which the Fifth and Eighth armies and the other land, sea and air forces will hit the enemy and hit outspokenly chagrined over the Monday morning quarterbacks who from their easy chairs spoke of Salerno as another Gallipoli.

It is true that last Monday afternoon German tanks and panzer grenadiers bent our lines and drove into a pocket between the Sele and Calore rivers. It is true also that at the extremity of this pocket our artillery had no infantry front cover, but it is equally a fact that artillerymen under the command of Lieut. Col. Hal Muldrow, of Norman, Okla., reducing their gun crews to the bare operational minimum, took up rifles and machine guns, improvised their own infantry tactics and held the enemy at bay.

Story Of The Battle

Now that that particular battle is over and won this story can be told. The fight had been raging for three hours and as dusk fell the infantry fell back to defensive positions on the west bank of the Sele river.

The artillery batteries were likewise ordered to move back, but before they could get started Colonel Muldrow and Major Otwa Autry, Enid, Okla., saw a column of enemy tanks moving down in between the rivers. Darkness and the smoke of battle made it impossible to say whether they were friend or enemy until one opened fire. Muldrow and Autry dove into a slit trench and ordered their men to fire artillery at point-blank range with minimum crews while the remainder took front-line infantry covering positions.

Charge Broken

Battery commanders promptly executed the orders. Then, while Lieut. Stanley Torgerson, Minneapolis, distinguished himself, braving death by standing on a fuse and ammunition box to direct the fire, Sergt. Lester Snow, Tonkama, Okla., operated a 50-caliber machine gun which sent the Jerries "scrambling to cover" and broke the charge.

That's the story and it's at request of these and other brave men who have fought beyond the point of endurance the past week that I pass on their request:

"Ask the people at home to have more faith in us—we shall never run back."

Fight Germans, Italians Told By Badoglio

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Sept. 20—Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio told Italians in a broadcast today that it was their "absolute duty to fight on the side of the British and Americans against the Germans and against the few senseless Italians—no longer of such name—who put themselves at their command."

The text of Badoglio's plea, which was made from the new "Radio Italiana" on September 16, was released for publication after it had been flown here from the Italian mainland.

"Official Radio"

(The speech thus ranged Badoglio's leadership squarely against that of the former dictator, Benito Mussolini, who on Saturday was quoted by the German radio as having made a broadcast urging Italians to take up arms again at the side of Germany and Japan.)

Radio Italiana was described as the "new official radio of the Italian Government" in the text released through official Allied military channels.

The marshal, who formed his government on July 25, immediately after Mussolini was thrown out of office, told his people, "Do not forget that all talk about unconditional surrender is out of date and irrelevant to the changed conditions of today. We have intervened decisively against Germany following on the aggressive attitude of the Germans. We are cooperating side by side with the Anglo-Americans who are now accepting our assistance in the task of driving the Germans from the country."

Seen As Allies

These and other sections of his speech were the first public avowals from any source indicating that the Italians probably will be accepted as full-fledged allies of the United Nations in the campaign to drive the Germans out of Italy.

"Moreover, the British and Americans, our erstwhile comrades of the Piave (in the first World War) and Vittorio Veneto did not hesitate to state that their ultimate aim is the rebirth of a strong and united Italy," Badoglio continued, "and that they will not withdraw their help from us when the time comes to repair the havoc of war and to reconstruct our future."

Tells Of German Attacks

The marshal conceded that when the armistice was concluded "it was our intention to lay down our arms and abstain entirely from acts of hostility against anybody."

"Even after the Germans began to attack us we were patient and did not fight back, hoping these attacks were only isolated incidents and not the result of a premeditated plan of aggression against us," he added. "Soon, however, we realized that whole German divisions were attacking our troops in Italy and outside Italy, were forcibly occupying our cities, harbors and airdromes, were pillaging our stores and the possessions of our citizens, while the German air force was bombing our ships."

He urged Italians where outnumbered to use "the terrible weapon of guerrilla warfare" and gave them instructions "to escape the country, cut communications, blow up bridges and dumps, attack isolated men and equipment. And, above all, do not give up; do not lose heart—persist."

Plea Includes Civilians

Badoglio's declaration was both the first urging Italian soldiers and civilians to attack Germans wherever they find them, and the first urging his followers to make war upon whatever Italian troops align themselves with the Nazis.

His original proclamation of September 8 announcing the armistice called upon Italians merely to yield to invasion by the Americans and British and only to fight against attack from any other quarter.

The question of whether Italian troops who yielded to American and British forces would be rearmed in order to participate in th wheth[illegible] could disarm such Italian troops as those who drove the Germans from Sardinia, were not answered in Badoglio's utterances, however.

Escaped From Rome

Badoglio escaped from Rome a few hours before the Germans took over the city and made his way to Allied territory by automobile and by ship, an American official who talked with the Italian chieftain disclosed today.

The American said Badoglio gave this version of the escape:

After announcing the armistice terms to the Italian people on September 8, Badoglio realized that the German troops around the capital planned to take it over and to take himself and King Vittorio Emanuele into custody.

Unlike Nazi Story

Badoglio and his military advisers took a large number of Government automobiles and made up a caravan in the early hours before dawn on September 9. The caravan left Rome at 5 A. M. and sped to a port on the Italian coast.

There the entire party boarded an Italian ship and in broad daylight sailed down the Italian coast and into Allied occupied territory. The Germans apparently at no time were close to the party.

The true story of the escape differed completely from the version given out by the Germans, who apparently thought Badcglio had fled toward Florence. The German radio said the Badoglio party had made its way to a town a short distance from Florence and there had been surrounded by German troops, but a small group had succeeded in escaping by plane from an Italian-held airport.

Italian Premier Appeals To His People To Fight Beside Allies

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Sept. 20—Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio called upon the people of Italy to take up arms against their former German allies in active cooperation with the United Nations in a proclamation published here today.

The Premier's appeal, in effect a declaration of hostilities, was the first official indication from any source that the Italians might be accepted as full-fledged allies of America and Britain in the campaign to drive the Germans from Italy.

Badoglio declared that "all talk about unconditional surrender (to the Allies) is out of date and irrelevant to the changed conditions of today," adding that "we have intervened decisively against Germany following on the aggressive attitude of the Germans."

Call Was Issued Sept. 16

It was announced that the Premier, now officialy disclosed to be in Allied-held Italian territory, made his call to arms from a new Italian Government station, Radio Italiana, on the mainland September 16, two days before the voice attributed to Benito Mussolini was broadcast over the German radio in an appeal to Italians to disregard the armistice with the Allies and fight at Germany's side.

Says Mussolini Planned Shift

[Clark Lee, representing the combined American press, said in a dispatch from General Eisenhower's advanced command post that Badoglio disclosed that Mussolini himself was considering a plan to "cut adrift from the Germans by September 15 because Hitler had betrayed him" and revealed that Mussolini had thanked Badoglio for saving him from injury after the Fascist party had ousted him.]

The marshal told his countrymen it was their "absolute duty to fight on the side of the British and Americans against the Germans and against the few senseless Italians—no longer of such name—who put themselves at their command."

"We are cooperating side by side with the Anglo-Americans who are now accepting our assistance in the task of driving the Germans from the country," he continued.

Guerrilla Warfare Urged

Italians were advised to use "the terrible weapon of guerrilla warfare" when outnumbered, and "to escape the country, cut communications, blow up bridges and dumps, attack isolated men and equipment, and, above all, do not give up, do not lose heart—persist."

The marshal said that when the armistice of September 3 was concluded "it was our intention to lay down our arms and abstain entirely from acts of hostility against anybody.

"Even after the Germans began to attack us, we were patient and did not fight back, hoping these attacks were only isolated incidents and not the result of a premeditated plan of aggression against us. Soon, however, we realized that whole German divisions were attacking our troops in Italy and outside Italy, were forcibly occupying our cities, harbors and airdromes, were pillaging our stores and the possessions of our citizens, while the German air force was bombing our ships."

"Out With Germans," He Asks

"Out with the Germans!" Badoglio exclaimed after declaring Germany had had "the impudence to set up a puppet government which purports to represent the soul and honor of Italy, whereas it only represents a slight minority enslaved to Germany."

"We cannot countenance that Germany should look upon Italy as conquered territory, that Germans should destroy our towns to spare their own, that they should send our youth to Germany on forced labor service, that they should plunder, kill our soldiers and our workmen, insult our women," he said.

"After shedding so much blood in a war wanted by them and which was fought solely in their own interests, we cannot tolerate to be looked upon and treated as a nation of slaves. . . . How can they speak of honor—they who never had any? Not the Germans who abandoned our soldiers on the Don, in Libya, in Tunisia and in Calabria, nor the Fascists who filled their pockets with gold which should have been used in preparing for the war into which they incautiously threw the country."

Badoglio referred to partnership of the Americans, British and Italians in the last World War and declared the Allies "did not hesitate to state that their ultimate aim is the rebirth of a strong and united Italy" and asserted "they will not withdraw their help from us when the time comes to repair the havoc of war."

More Italian Flyers Escape to Allies

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Sept. 20 (A. P.).—Italian warplanes are continuing to escape from German - held portions of Italy and a considerable number of them have now safely reached Allied fields, Northwest African Air Force officials said today.

Officers at mess near one beach were surprised to see two Savoia Marchetti bombers flying in low over the water preparatory to landing and later others arrived escorted by an American B-25 Mitchell.

Nazi Airman's Nose In Air

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Sept. 20 (AP)—Here's a story of how well German and Italian airmen got along together even before Marshal Pietro Badoglio's armistice proclamation, as related by the Italian air officer who surrendered the Crotone airdrome to the RAF:

"The Germans used three strips for landing their aircraft here. They refused to use the same strips as our machines. Their officers and men lived in two buildings. They cooked their own food and kept strictly to themselves. They did not appear to want to have anything to do with our men."

By contrast the Italian airmen helped the RAF repair the bomb-pitted runways, uncovered hidden stocks of bombs and fuel and helped mount guard over the field. Crotone was used primarily for refueling Axis planes operating over North Africa and Sicily.

Commodore Perry Kin Bags Germans

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Sept. 20 (AP)—The great-great-grandson of Commodore Perry, Capt. Donald Perry, of Hawthorne, N. Y., was credited today with knocking out two German trucks in a reconnaissance air sweep over Italy. Perry said he broke family tradition by joining the Army Air Force instead of the navy "because the army has better planes."

THEY BEAT JINX ON 13TH MISSION

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Sept. 20 (A. P.).—Flying an American B-26 Marauder bomber on only one engine is a feat in itself, but Lieut. William G. Williams of Maplewood, N. J., fought off the jinx of his thirteenth combat mission to make his run over a Nazi airdrome through heavy flak with only one engine. The tricky run was made during a raid on Pratica Di Mare airdrome south of Rome on September 18.

"Flak piled into my open bomb bay doors and tore at my right and left engines," Lieut. Williams related. "That's a nasty sound. We bombed from a medium altitude and were still up in the air, but when you hear the only thing in the world that's keeping you there take punishment it doesn't do anybody in the crew any good. I held her steady as long as possible, long enough to hear the 'bombs away.'

"Then Staff Sergt. La Plant, the bombardier, from Littleton, N. H., rushed up to say that our left engine was pouring smoke. I noticed oil spouting on the cowling. Then the engine caught fire. So I left the formation.

"First we headed for Sicily, trying to hold our altitude but losing it all the time. Co-pilot Sergt. Daniel H. Calahan of Pawling, N. Y., said 'Where's Sicily? I can't swim a stroke.' We checked the gas and found we could reach Africa, so I nursed it along and after two hours and twenty - five minutes on a single engine we landed at our home base."

Gen. Beynet Named Attache in Washington

Algiers, Sept. 20 (A. P.).—Gen. Etienne Beynet, former military commander of the Algiers region, was appointed military attache in Washington today by the French committee of national liberation to succeed Col. Pierre de Chevigne, who will be given a field command.

Gen. Beynet was recalled by the Vichy Government from the Algiers area in 1942 at the demand of the Germans. He later escaped from France, arriving in London early this year to join the movement of Gen. Charles de Gaulle.

Archbishop Of York Pays Visit To Patriarch Of Church In Moscow

[By the Associated Press]

Moscow, Sept. 20 (AP) — The Archbishop of York today paid his first formal visit to the Patriarch of all Russia, the Metropolitan Sergei of Moscow, and handed him a letter from the Church of England assuring "the Russian church and the Russian nation of our unity of heart with them."

The letter was signed by the Archbishops of Canterbury and York, who invited the Orthodox church to send a delegation to London. The Archbishop of York arrived in Russia by plane yesterday for talks with the hierarchy of the rejuvenated Russian Orthodox church.

Sympathy For Sufferings

The letter said "we have watched with deep sympathy the sufferings of the peoples of the Soviet Union these last two years and have been inspired by the patriotism and constancy of the Russian church in faithfulness to the one Lord, our Savior, Jesus Christ."

"We share with all our countrymen," the letter continued, "the admiration aroused by the heroic resistance of the Russian people and the Red army to attacks and treacherous aggression. And we look forward to the time when the evil forces of Fascism will be destroyed and true peace may be established. . . ."

Plans Week's Parleys

The prelates met at the Patriarchate Mansion on Christy street.

The archbishop has planned a week-long series of conferences with the Metropolitan Sergei of Moscow and other leading Russian churchmen. He said the conferences were designed to "promote and strengthen relations between the two churches."

GERMAN GENERALS UNITE IN MOSCOW

Moscow, Sept. 20 (A. P.).—A "Union of German Officers" was formed here on September 12 by more than 100 Generals and other officers from five Russian prison camps, it was announced today, for the purpose of bringing about the downfall of the Hitler regime and the establishment of a "free, peaceful and independent" Germany.

Calling themselves the "Generals and Officers of the Sixth German Stalingrad Army," they told their countrymen that Germany faces a worse isolation than in 1918, and added: "Continuation of the senseless, futile war might any day cause a national catastrophe."

The Communist party newspaper Pravda, devoted a full page to the announcement of the organization, reprinted from the newspaper, Free Germany, organ of the "National Committee of Free Germany." Artillery Gen. Walter von Seidlitz, who commanded the Fifty-first German Army Corps at Stalingrad, was listed as chairman of the Officers' Union and vice-chairman of the National Committee.

The union will be part of the previously formed National Committee, it was announced.

Finland, Hungary and Rumania, they declared, are certain to fall out of the war soon, proving that Germany has lost the war, and only Hitler and his regime are to blame.

"It is now necessary to save all Germany," they said. "We suffered the pangs of hell. In Germany, we were given up for dead, but we have been born again for a new life. We cannot keep silent any longer."

The appeal was drawn up at a meeting in Moscow attended by Gen. von Seidlitz, Lieut.-Gen. Alexander Elder von Daniels, Gen. Otto Korfes and Gen. Martin Latman, in addition to 100 other officers, including Walter Meyer, leader of an SS Death's Head Division.

CAPTIVE NAZI OFFICERS SAID TO URGE PEACE

Group Taken At Stalingrad Reported In Anti-Hitler Plea To Reich

[By the Associated Press]

Moscow, Sept. 20—The Communist party newspaper Pravda said today that more than a hundred German generals and other officers who lost the battle of Stalingrad have formed a "Union of German Officers" and called upon their countrymen to overthrow Hitler and establish a "Government having the confidence of the people" and strong enough to bring about peace.

The announcement, reprinted in Pravda from the newspaper, Free Germany, organ of the "National Committee of Free Germany," said the officers, who [illegible] to Moscow

Von Seidlitz At Head

Artillery General Walter von Seidlitz, who commanded the Fifty-first German Army Corps at Stalingrad, the announcement said, was elected chairman of the officer group and vice-chairman of the national committee.

Calling themselves the "generals and officers of the Sixth German Stalingrad Army," which was annihilated by the Soviet counter-offensive last winter, they appealed to the German people and army for an end to "the senseless, futile war" which "might any day cause a national catastrophe."

In a long chain of political setbacks, they continued, Finland, Hungary and Rumania might drop out of the struggle shortly, causing Germany to lose a war for which only Hitler and his regime are to blame.

"Worse Than In 1918"

Germany, today, the appeal stated, faced a worse isolation than in 1918. "It is now necessary to save all Germany."

Among the more than a hundred signers of the appeal in addition to von Seidlitz were Lieut. Gen. Alexander Edler von Daniels, Gens. Otto Korfes and Martin Latman and Walter Meyer, leader of an SS Death's Head division.

"We suffered the pangs of hell," they said. "In Germany, we were given up for dead, but we have been born again for a new life. We cannot keep silent any longer."

U. S. RAIDS BURMA

New Delhi, Sept. 20 (A. P.).—American Medium bombers made a concentrated attack yesterday on Monywa, capital of the Chindwin district in Burma, and halted rail traffic from the east by smashing the Mu River bridge, headquarters of the United States Army Tenth Air Force said today. The bulletin declared extensive damage was done to the dock area and fires left burning all along the east bank of the Chindwin River. Direct hits were observed on a power station and other buildings. All planes were reported to have returned.

R. A. F. Beaufighters shot up wide sweeps over Jap installa- enemy barracks near Henzado and at points along the railway between Prome and Letpadan in wide sweeps over Jap installations and communications in Burma yesterday, a communique said today.

Colombo, Ceylon, Sept. 20 (AP). Colombo experienced its first night alert when a hostil plane, apparently on reconnaissance, approached the city early today. No bombs were dropped. (Colombo is the site of a naval base on the British island of Ceylon off the lower tip of India.)

UNCOVER JAP PLOT TO KILL U.S. AIRMEN

Chungking, Sept. 20 (A. P.)—A Japanese Secret Service plot to assassinate members of the Fourteenth United States Air Force in China was disclosed with the announcement that a 21-year-old Chinese was executed by a firing squad today.

The youth was hired on July 15 at Pengpu, Anhwei Province, by the Japanese secret service chief there, the Chinese Central News Agency reported, and was promised 100,000 Chinese dollars if he carried out an elaborate plan designed to create an incident between the American and Chinese air forces. The plan called for the killing of American flyers and the subsequent distribution of provocatory leaflets declaring that the killing was the work of Chinese airmen in protest against "unequal treatment."

The agent was supposed to return to Pengpu to receive the award. The news agency said he received 10,000 Chinese dollars and 16,000 puppet Chinese dollars for expenses, and left Pengpu on July 17. He arrived in Chungking on Aug. 19 and was arrested a week later.

American airmen, in a running battle with Japanese planes during a Liberator raid on Haipong on September 15, shot down ten Zeros and probably eighteen more, it was announced at Gen. Stillwell's headquarters today. The communique also said that Liberators, escorted by Warhawks, blew up the ammunition dumps at Tayeh, midway between Henkow and Kiukiang, on September 16, and also destroyed warehouses and barracks. Three American planes failed to return form these missions.

Headquarters of the Fourteenth United States Air Force, Sept. 19 (Delayed) (A. P.). — Mitchell bombers raided the Japanese iron smelting plant and foundry at Shihweyao, southwest of Hankow, on Saturday. Direct hits were registered in three smelting furnaces and on warehouses. Crane installations and ore cars also were severely damaged. All American planes returned safely.

Allied Bombers Drop 94 Tons On Japs' Base

Fortresses And Liberators Raid Cape Gloucester, Leave Fires Visible For 70 Miles

CLEMENTS — SEP 21 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in the Southwest Pacific, Tuesday, Sept. 21—New Guinea and New Britain bases of the Japanese most immediately menaced by Allied capture of airdromes at Lae and Salamaua have begun to rock under an increased weight of bombs.

Today's communique told of a ninety-four ton raid Sunday by Flying Fortresses and Liberators on the enemy airdrome of Cape Gloucester, which is on the westernmost tip of New Britain, only about 120 miles northeast of Lae.

All Get Home Safely

These raiders, protected by fighters, all got home after wrecking five grounded enemy bombers and a fighter, destroying two anti-aircraft positions, silencing a third and spreading fires so large they could be seen for seventy miles.

Steadily extending the target area of long-range fighters, which until recent months never appeared over New Britain, these units of the Fifth Air Force moved up the island's north coast to strafe an airdrome, supply dumps, anti-aircraft positions and surface craft in the Kimbe Bay area.

Only sixty miles above Lae on the Huon peninsula of New Guinea, Mitchells not only dropped twenty-two tons of bombs Sunday on airdromes and other targets but also flew as low as possible so their gunners might strafe enemy-occupied villages and surface craft near Finschhafen.

In the jungle region above Lae, into which enemy remnants retreated when that air base fell September 16, Allied forces blocking the trails the fugitives must take have come into contact with them. Contact also has been established by Allied soldiers moving against them from Lae, a spokesman said.

Behind Lae, along the Markham river, some enemy stragglers have been taken prisoner.

[illegible] who fled north from Salamaua after that air base fell on September 12 now have been destroyed.

26 Tons Dropped On Ambon

Six hundred miles above Australia, Liberators raided Japanese-held Amboina Island, dropping twenty-six tons on Ambon.

West of Amboina, Liberators started fires visible for thirty miles among airdrome workshops at Namlea on Boeroe Island, which is in the Netherlands East Indies. Fires of similar intensity were set in an Allied raid by medium bombers on the airfield of Selaru on the Tanimbar Islands southeast of Amboina.

The only Allied air activity reported today in the Solomons was a torpedo and dive-bomber attack on gun positions near the Japanese air base of Vila on Kolombangara which caused large explosions.

Twelve Japanese planes attacked the American airfield on Munda on New Georgia and American positions on Vella Lavella.

Two enemy planes made a feeble night raid on the big Allied base of Port Moresby, New Guinea.

Yanks Near Full Control Of Arundel Island

SEP 21 1943

By Rembert James

[Associated Press Correspondent]

With United States Ground Troops on Arundel, Solomon Islands, Sept. 16 (Delayed)—Veteran United States Army jungle fighters neared possession of the important Island of Arundel today after smashing Japanese infantry assaults in the weird and savage ten-day battle of Bomboe.

Other American troops meantime pressed ahead against strong Japanese opposition on Sage Karasa Island, across a lagoon and 200 yards off Arundel's shores.

Sage Karasa Control Needed

Control of Sage Karasa will give United States forces positions only one mile and a half across Blackett Strait from Japan's desperate garrison force on Kolombangara Island, the main objective of this push.

The Bomboe battle was named for a native village and peninsula on Arundel. It was the climax of a three-week campaign to extend American control in the central Solomons after the capture of adjacent New Georgia Island with the fall of Bairoko on August 26.

Japs Use Many Tricks

The Japanese employed all of their old tricks and many new ones in an effort to hold Arundel's dense jungles and mangrove swamps. They set up phantom targets of straw men, laid machine-gun ambuscades and yipped like coyotes while attacking. But the American soldiers, who spearheaded the capture of Rendova and smashed their way up the Munda trail and defeated the Japanese in the short but vicious Baanga Island battle of August 23, were more than a match for the foe.

(A Southwest Pacific headquarters communique dated September 18 said the enemy had reinforced his garrison on the north end of Arundel Island. A light counter-attack on United States positions during the night was heavily repulsed.)

Jap Units Wiped Out

Led by Col. David M. Ross, Berea, Ky., American troops broke the Japanese into small units and wiped them out.

Artillery played a thunderous role in scattering and killing the enemy. These were the same division batteries whose highly accurate fire figured heavily in the capture of Munda.

I spent four nights in jungle foxholes, three of them with an infantry battalion commanded by Major William H. Naylor, former Hartford (Conn.) insurance man. The same day I left Naylor the Japanese surrounded his outfit on three sides and attacked continuously for six hours, but his lines held.

Yell Like Coyotes

"I could hear the Japs yell like coyotes and a lot of gunfire was put out by both sides," Said Private Arthur Morrison, Douglas, Wyo.

Jap Bougainville Base Wrecked

BONI

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in the Southwest Pacific, Sept. 20—What appeared a sustained and determined effort to reduce the defenses of Bougainville Island by American aerial attack advanced into its second week today, with the enemy's air bases there further shattered and his air reserves further diminished.

Three surprise night raids by Mitchell medium bombers against Kahili and Ballale airdromes at the southern tip of the big Solomon island, followed by a daylight assault in force on Ballale by fighter-escorted Dauntless dive bombers and Avenger torpedo planes, marked the latest stage in this campaign.

Sixteen Planes Bagged

The enemy, who has brought in squadron after squadron of interceptor planes, sent sixty aloft to meet the latest attack on Ballale—and lost sixteen, today's communique from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced.

These victims could be added to eighty-four other Japanese aircraft previously reported destroyed aground and in the air over Bougainville since the aerial offensive began September 11.

Airdromes Wrecked

Besides, the airdromes themselves were becoming of doubtful value to Japan. Even before the latest attacks, Ballale was described as virtually unusable, and now it has blossomed with new fires, its gun positions, revetments and garrison areas blasted and torn.

This, the communique said, was achieved at a cost of two American bombers and four fighters, the pilots of two of which were saved. For the period of the current Bougainville air offensive as a whole, American plane losses were reported as standing at a ratio of one to six for the enemy.

Japan's willingness to pay a high price to retain Bougainville was understandable. Situated at the northern end of the chain, it is the enemy's last securely held position in the Solomons. Beyond that, it is the stepping stone from the southeast, both by land and air, to Rabaul, New Britain, and its fall would expose that anchor of Japan's South Pacific defense system.

MACARTHUR LAUDS U. S. ENGINEER UNIT

Allied Headquarters in the Southwest Pacific, Sept. 20 (A. P.).—Gen. MacArthur's headquarters today paid high tribute to the United States Army Amphibian Engineers, who played a vital role in the victorious Salamaua-Lae campaign.

BONI

It was the Amphibian Engineers who ran the invasion craft along 200 miles of the Japanese-controlled New Guinea coast to assist in landing an Australian force for the final drive on Lae.

"The hazardous undertaking," said a headquarters statement, "was performed with such clock-like precision that every barge, with the exception of two damaged by the Japanese, landed and departed exactly on schedule. . . ."

CHANDLER'S VIEWS

Allied Headquarters in the South Pacific, Sept. 20 (A. P.).—Major-Gen. Claire Chennault, commander of American Air Forces in China, believes airpower alone could drive the Japanese from that country, reports Senator A. B. Chandler (D.-Ky.), but the Senator himself offered the opinion that "somebody's troops will have to help China."

Senator Chandler, who with four others members of the Senate has been inspecting all major war fronts on which American forces are active, said that Gen.

Chennault told him there is a desperate need for planes at present and "we are taking a chance of losing our Kumning base."

Mr. Chandler said his own conclusion is that if China is to be kept fighting, her Allies must run the Japanese out of Burma. He said again that he thought that Gen. Douglas MacArthur should be placed in supreme command in the Pacific and Asia.

Legion of Merit to Chaplain

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Tuesday, Sept. 21 (AP)—Award of the Legion of Merit decoration to Capt. Michael J. Lyons, an Army chaplain from Palmer, N. Y., was reported today at General MacArthur's headquarters.

A Distinguished Service Cross for extraordinary heroism in action was presented to Maj. Edward Cargg of Greenwich, Conn.

Sailors Name South Seas Island "Okey Doke"

Munda New Georgia, Sept. 13 (Delayed, A.P.)—Sailors named a small island off New Guinea Okey Doke because it was suitable for troops to live on and for boats to moor.

The name appears on the new American maps of the area.

0-0-0-0-0 For Yank

United States Headquarters in the South Pacific, Sept. 20 (AP)—A new American flying ace has emerged from heavy raids on Japanese bases in the Solomons with a record of shooting down five Zeros in a single engagement.

Marine Major Gregory Boyington, 30, of Owanogan, Wash., accomplished the feat last Thursday as almost 150 Dauntless dive-bombers and Avenger torpedo bombers, escorted by fighters, raided the Ballale airdrome on Bougainville island. He now has eleven victories to his credit, and becomes one of the leading aces in the South Pacific.

Other pilots in dogfights brought down ten other Zeros. Against the total of fifteen Japanese planes destroyed, we lost four fighters, but two pilots were known to have been saved.

All Laborites But One Reelected In Australia

Canberra, Australia, Sept. 20 (AP). All members of the previous Labor party Ministry except George Lawson, Minister of Transport, were raeelected for Cabinet positions today at a party caucus.

Arthur Augustus Calwell, one of the Parliament representatives for Melbourne, was selected to replace Lawson. Calwell's election came as a surprise because he has opposed the policy of Prime Minister John Curtin to extend the area of service for conscripted militia troops.

Curtin will allot the Cabinet portfolios later. The caucus followed the recent elections in which the Labor party won by an unprecedented landslide.

NAVY STRIKES TWO SMASHING BLOWS AT JAPS

SEP 21 1943

Tarawa and Naura Islands Attacked as Heavily as Was Marcus.

TOKIO REPORTS MAKIN RAIDED

Great Assaults Are Sustained for Hours and May Have Wiped Out Some Targets Totally.

Pearl Harbor, Sept. 20 (A. P.).—America's growing naval strength has lashed again and in force against the outer fringe of Japan's zone of conquest in the Pacific, striking the enemy-held Tarawa and Nauru islands in prolonged attacks.

The simultaneous assaults, made along the line of the Equator some 2,000 statute miles southwest of Hawaii, began on Saturday night (East longtitude time) and carried well into the following day. Their exact nature was not disclosed immediately, but the assumption was that they were spearheaded by carrier-borne torpedo and dive-bombers such as raided Marcus Island, to the northwest, on September 1.

[In a broadcast picked up at London today by the Associated Press, the Tokio radio quoted a Japanese communique as saying that 200 Allied planes raided Tarawa and Makin, in the Gilberts, over the week end, and that twenty were shot down. Makin, the northernmost of the Gilbert islands, lies about 130 miles north of Tarawa. Allied headquarters made no mention of this attack.]

Destruction May be Complete.

"Strong Pacific Ocean area forces today conducted a heavy raid on the Japanese bases on Tarawa Island, in the Northern Gilbert group and on Nauru island to the West of the Gilbert group," said a communique issued by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, Commander in Chief of the Pacific Fleet. "These operations were carried out according to plan. . ."

Then the two task forces sailed from the scene of their devastation, maintaining radio silence to handicap any possible pursuit.

"Details of the operation are not immediately available," the communique added, "and there seemed little likelihood they would be until the fleet units return to their bases."

There was good reason to believe, however, that the destruction of military objectives on the two islands was thorough and perhaps complete. In temporarily neutralizing Marcus Island, 1,200 miles from Tokio, in the September 1 attack, the Navy raiders were over the target for nine hours. Admiral Nimitz's announcement yesterday indicated that the assault on Tarawa and Nauru lasted at least as long as that and probably longer. In addition, the fact the operation could be continued for so many hours suggested that the enemy had been rendered helpless to retaliate or even to protect himself.

Planes from another American carrier force blasted targets in the Gilberts and the Marshall Island group to the north early in 1942, and subsequently long-range American bombers attacked both Nauru and positions in the Gilbert group from bases in the Ellice islands to the southeast.

Soldiers' Health Good On Attu

[By the Associated Press]

Adak Island, the Aleutians, Sept. 20—Despite cold winds and penetrating fogs the health of American soldiers and sailors at Aleutian bases, including the recovered islands of Attu and Kiska, was reported to be good.

Rear Admiral W. L. Mann, Jr., navy senior medical officer, made the report after an inspection trip along the entire Aleutian chain.

Illness Rate Low

Hospital facilities already are well established at Attu, which was retaken from the Japanese in May, and on Kiska, bloodlessly reoccupied in mid-August.

The rate of illness among navy personnel in the Alaska area, as shown by sick bay records, has been one third of one per cent., the admiral reported, compared with the two and a half and three per cent. navy average. He said he understood that army records also showed the North Pacific area healthful, despite the weather.

Fungus Infection

The most common ailments listed were infections of the upper respiratory tract in winter.

Admiral Mann said the fungus infection known as athlete's foot was the only ailment he found apparently more prevalent in other areas. He expressed the opinion it probably was due to heavy leather and rubber boots, in which the fungus flourished.

"Theres' practically no venereal disease in the area," he said.

ARGENTINE ACTIVITY

Montevideo, Sept. 20 (A. P.).—The unexpected recall of Gen. Arturo Rawson, to Buenos Aires from a tour of the northern provinces of Argentina was linked here today with reports that the regime of Gen. Pedro Ramirez may abandon Argentine neutrality. Argentines here noted that Gen. Rawson was welcomed in Buenos Aires with shouts of "Long Live Democracy" and "Long Live Pan American Unity." They pointed out that the Argentine censorship had permitted news agencies to cable this abroad and added that publication was also permitted of the news that Gen. Rawson, in a speech at Rosario, had spoken in favor of American unity.

Argentines here also paid special attention to a communique in which the Argentine Government announced on Saturday that it was following closely the situation in the Vatican City. It was suggested that the Ramirez Government, looking for an excuse to break off relations with the Axis, might take advantage of the German attitude toward the Vatican City.

Made San Juan Navy Chaplain

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Sept. 20 (AP)—Lieut. Robert E. Delaney, who served a parish in Tuckahoe, N. Y., before entering the Chaplain Corps of the Naval Reserve, has taken over the duties of chaplain of the Naval Air Station here. Born in New York City, he was graduated from St. Joseph's Seminary at Yonkers and studied at Fordham.

Chinese Spy Employed By Japs Is Executed

New York, Sept. 20 (AP)—The Chungking radio today reported the execution of a "Chinese spy employed by the Japanese secret service with instructions to assassinate American flyers in China."

The broadcast, recorded by United States Government monitors, said the execution took place in Chungking.

Benedetto Croce Freed By British Taking Sorrento

New York, Sept. 20 (AP)—Benedetto Croce, anti-Fascist Italian philosopher and historian and corresponding member of the American Academy of Arts and Letters, "has been liberated" by a British landing at Sorrento on the south side of the Bay of Naples, the British Broadcasting Corporation said today.

The broadcast, recorded by United States Government monitors, noted that the Germans recently said Croce had been arrested, but added, "he is now safe and well with his family." It said the British landing was made Thursday night.

Dr. Umetaro Suzuki

Japanese Scientist Won Prize for Discovery of Vitamin B

The death of Dr. Umetaro Suzuki, an authority on vitamins, was reported today by the Tokio radio, according to the Associated Press. The broadcast said he died at the Keio University Hospital in Tokio. He was sixty-nine years old.

Dr Suzuki won the Imperial Academy prize for the discovery of "oryzarin" (Vitamin B). He was president of the Scientific Research Institute of Manchukuo and a professor emeritus of Tokio Imperial University.

Congress Is Warned Not To 'Dim' Allied Offensive Power

SEP 21 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 20—Gen. George C. Marshall warned Congress today against "dimming the power" of great Allied offensives by forbidding the drafting of fathers.

"We are on the offensive now," the chief of staff said. "It would be unfortunate to do anything that would dim the power of that offensive.

"We have, undoubtedly, very heavy fighting in front of us."

Testifying before the Senate and House Military Affairs committees on the Wheeler bill to postpone induction of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers until January 1, Marshall apologized "for expressing myself rather vigorously."

The general said that whether army quotas could be met without drafting fathers heretofore deferred was a question "for the manpower people," but he told Senator Austin (R., Vt.) that failure to obtain the quotas "probably would force us to emasculate some of our units."

Warns Of "Emasculation"

"It would emasculate the tail end of our army and put us in a serious position," Marshall added.

Even a postponement of such a draft by three months, the chief of staff said, would seriously interfere with the army's program.

"While you've got the other fellow on the run, the more you do to cut him down before he regains his balance, the better it is," Marshall testified.

Asserting that the American armed forces have reached their peak of training and are poised for aggressive development all over the world, the chief of staff said he was puzzled "by the reaction at this time."

Strategy Change Linked

It seemed to him, Marshall said, that if Congress stepped in to interrupt the flow of men through selective service, "all we can do is reduce our program and change our strategy."

"Certainly," Marshall testified, "if you cut us now, we will suffer a much greater loss than we anticipated from the Germans and the Japs."

With Admiral Ernest J. King, commander of the fleet, sitting beside him, Marshall testified before a jammed hearing room on a bill by Senator Wheeler (D., Mont.) to postpone the induction of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers until after January 1.

Plan New Battalions

In his preliminary remarks Marshall noted that Lieut. Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, deputy chief of staff, had given the committee many details in opposition to the proposal in previous testimony.

Marshall said that the army plans to activate soon between 430 and 440 new battalions, adding that four divisions now had only 1,500 men each and need an additional 14,000 each.

The general added that 50,000

special troops, including engineers, mechanics and Signal Corps men, were being shipped to England this month, along with 600 bomber crews. These latter, he said, were not to increase the weight of bomber participation, but to maintain the operation of bombers already there.

Ready For All Fronts

For the first time in history, Marshall said, trained men are on hand for deployment on all of the fronts of the world.

"We are just getting ready for our deployment," he testified, adding that operative personnel had been trained and placed, that the basic establishment was a going concern, and that now manpower had become largely a matter of maintenance and replacement of casualties and other losses.

"Our shipping can now be turned to the deployment of our ground army for the first time in history," he said.

Stand-By Troops Here

Marshall said it was necessary to keep stand-by troops on hand in this country to meet the demands from various theaters of war.

"These troops are all on demand for certain times and places," he said. "We do not want to use hastily gathered people. We had to do that in the early part of the war, but, thank God, we do not have to do that now."

As an example of the large number of specially trained troops that are needed, Marshall said port-occupation troops now were being moved into Salerno and "we hope soon to move men in to occupy the port of Naples." He added that there was no lessening of the number of men needed to occupy Bizerte.

75,000 Needed Monthly

The chief of staff said 75,000 additional inductees were needed monthly to keep the armed forces at par and to bring the army to the goal of 7,700,000 by the end of the year.

Citing losses in personnel through sickness and other causes, Marshall said there was no way of estimating battle casualties accurately.

"We don't yet know the casualties of Salerno," he said. "We have been busy fighting—tabulating can come a little later."

Marshall told the committees he was being pressed by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Gen. Douglas MacArthur and others for trained troops.

SEP 21 1943

Fatigue Cuts Pilot Ranks

"These units have to be created, trained, disciplined and prepared for operations," he said. "If we don't do that now we cannot do it in time."

Marshall said demands for bomber crews had been heavier from England than expected and that fatigue, rather than casualties, put pilots out of action in the Mediterranean theater. He stressed the fact that many men are being transferred to and from the battle zones.

"You can't conduct war all over the world and not consider the loss of men going and coming," he said, referring to their inaction while traveling rather than to personnel losses. "The pipeline must be kept filled.

Ready For First Time

"We are now, for the first time, ready to make full use of our ground forces," Marshall said. "Do you wish to cut down on them?

"Certainly you would not wish to cut down on the program of air developments."

As an example of the necessity of a reserve of well-trained troops, Marshall said that the first division to land in Salerno "had never been in battle before."

Originally a division of 15,000, he testified, it was cut down last fall to 9,000 by diversions to other units and "it took six months to build it up again to strength."

"It would have been better," he said, "if it had not been ripped to pieces."

On the need of troops, Marshall said, "There will be no compromise from the Japanese and the Germans."

"Right Emotions" Lacking

A denial of quotas for the rest of the year, he continued, might make difficult the task of finding "where to make the adjustments."

"If it comes to emotions, we in the War Department don't have the right to emotions," Marshall testified. "We have some 700,000 fathers in the army now. What happens to them?"

The general reiterated previous assertions that "men over 38 are a burden."

Marshall said the plans of the combined chiefs of staff were "based on the assumption the United States will come across with its commitments."

"You Can Eat Less"

Austin asked about the advisability of taking trained single men from aircraft and other industries.

"That would be serious," Marshall replied. "A collapse in agriculture would be serious. A collapse in the aircraft industry might be even more serious. You can eat less, but you can't operate half an airplane."

Marshall said the army must have the 446,000 additional men represented in prospective father inductees before the end of this year "if we are to go about this war in a businesslike way."

Senator Bridges (R., N. H.) asked why the army previously had cut back its 1944 goal from 8,200,000 men to 7,700,000.

In reply, Marshall said that eight months ago he began to rearrange and consolidate, to force economy in manpower. Possession of Dakar and Morocco, he explained, changed requirements in the South Atlantic theater with the result that Panama ground troops had been reduced and training units sent there.

Divisional Setup Cut

The army was able to cut its divisional setup, Marshall continued, when all went well on the Russian front in the summer campaign. He added that while service forces and air force overhead had been cut down, there was a demand for air force mechanics which delayed the activation of some units.

"This reduction was not due to outside pressure," the general said, adding that the general staff was aware of such pressure.

Marshall said that as far as he could tell now, the army's goal would remain 7,700,000 men through 1944, "but I can tell you more about that in December." He declined to say whether there would be a necessity for drafting fathers after January 1.

Requirements Fixed

In response to questions by Senator Hill (D., Ala.), Marshall said he did not believe it possible for the army to reduce physical and mental requirements beyond their present level.

Representative Short (R., Mo.) interrupted the questioning to bring out that while the army's manpower goal had been cut 500,000 under previous figures, the navy had increased its personnel quota from about 2,300,000 to about 3,000,000.

Marshall testified the number of men sent overseas would reach at least 5,000,000 by the end of 1944, although he said that greater success in fighting submarines than expected might increase that figure.

The army has been forced at times, Marshall said, to take divisions to pieces, after they had been trained, in order to send special troops to battle zones.

Example Is Cited

As an example, he said the Thirty-third Division, which recently went overseas, once had been cut down to 3,000 men to provide special units for the North African campaign and could not be shipped until its strength was built back up and new men trained.

"Is that the fault of Congress?" Senator Johnson (D., Col.) demanded.

"I'm not going to try to answer that," Marshall said.

When Johnson persisted, Marshall replied:

"If it will simplify things, I will say it is the army's fault."

Sees Question Raised

Senator Downey (D., Cal.) asked whether it would be satisfactory if the selective service could replace from other sources the 446,000 fathers who might be drafted between now and the end of the year.

Marshall said that was a problem for selective service and the manpower people, but added that it raised the question of whether by marriage "a man frees himself from the defense of his country," and whether "only bachelors are to wage war."

Some married men with many responsibilities and worries, the general said, make "unhappy soldiers" and it would be "simpler to handle unmarried men."

Most Resources Needed

However, Marshall said, the nation has about approached the point "where every resource is required." He added:

"If you can find healthy men, non-fathers, for the army without injuring production and bringing other unfortunate results, it's happier for us."

A possible compromise by which the drafting of fathers might be delayed thirty days while Selective Service reexamines physical and occupational deferments was reported under consideration today by members of the Senate committee.

Senator Bridges disclosed that some committee members have been discussing the feasibility of offering such a proposal as a substitute for the bill by Senator Wheeler which would postpone the induction of pre-war fathers for the rest of this year.

"I don't know whether anything will be done about it or not," Bridges said, "but that might be acceptable to a number of Senators who don't want to vote to draft fathers but still don't want to deny the army any men it needs."

While Bridges said he thought a resurvey might yield a sizable number of prospective inductees, Senator Gurney (R., S. D.), another committee member, expressed doubt that many eligible men could be found that way.

Gurney said he believed many fathers would like to have the issue settled immediately, preferring to take their chances of being among the one in twelve family heads to be inducted before the end of the year to the uncertainty of not knowing when or if they are going to be called.

Gurney said testimony before the committee had satisfied him that, barring unforseen developments, the armed forces will be leveled off at about the point they reach by the end of the year, with only replacements needed after that.

Move To Switch Gen. Marshall Assailed

SEP 21 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 20—Speculation over a possible shakeup in the army high command was revived today in the wake of an editorial in the authoritative but unofficial Army and Navy Journal, which declared that "powerful interests" would like to eliminate Gen. George C. Marshall from the Washington scene.

There have been recurring reports for several months that Marshall, who has been chief of staff since 1939, might be sent to Europe as commander in chief of Allied forces in that theater.

Marshall is known to have held firmly to the conviction that western Europe should be invaded directly from England, while other strategists, particularly those on the British side of the table, have frowned on cross-Channel tactics.

While his appointment as chief of staff was extended for an indefinite period only recently, Marshall was described by some of his aides as having been somewhat disturbed by the casual manner in which President Roosevelt announced it, during a White House news conference.

Text Of Editorial

The text of the editorial concerning General Marshall follows:

"We refuse to believe that there is any foundation for the reports that General Marshall is to be relieved as chief of staff and sent to London to be commander in chief of the European theater of war. Such action would shock the army, the Congress and the country.

"The assignment could be ballyhooed to appear as a reward for the exceptional service the general has rendered as chief of staff, as evidence of the closeness of his relations with the high command of Britain, and as preliminary to delivery of more blows against Germany.

"In fact, however, although recognizably the post is of primary strategic importance, his detail to it would mean his confinement to a single theater of operations whereas he now is the general in command of all our own army forces throughout the world. Moreover his absence from Washington would deprive the President of the valuable advice the latter has said he has received from him in connection with military activities everywhere.

"The truth is the global character of this conflict has given to the chief of staff an importance not attained in any other war in which we have been engaged. Under the President, this officer really performs the functions of commanding general of all our army forces in addition to his arduous administrative and planning duties.

Besides aiding in formulating the strategic plans they are to follow, he is in constant communication with our army commanders at home and abroad, giving them direction and determining and meeting their needs. Furthermore, through visits such as those he already has made to North Africa and to London, he is able personally to inspect the fighting troops in operational areas, pass upon the uses to which they are to be put, and advises on their dispositions, etc.

Termed Handicap

"In consequence, his membership on the combined chiefs of staff enables him to fit our forces intelligently into the larger picture of United Nations strategy.

"A new chief of staff would be compelled to earn the confidence of the army, the Congress and the country which General Marshall now enjoys to an extent without parallel in war. This would mean adaptation of the service to the policies the successor would inaugurate.

"Further it would serve as a serious handicap to our war effort because necessary legislation constantly must be sought, and prompt acquiescence by Congress naturally depends upon the degree of faith it has in the chief of staff.

"As the public appreciates, it was General Marshall who, at the instance of the President, created the powerful armies now on fields of battle, under whose direction our military establishment has been reorganized to greater efficiency, who was responsible for the battle training given to the men, who expanded the air component to the strength which he visioned modern war requires, who has performed his work with a minimum of friction and no scandal, and whose intimate relations with Admiral King and General Arnold, have brought about the effective coordination of the army, the navy and the air forces.

Policies Praised

"Acting under the President's instruction, he has labored zealously to insure the fullest measure of cooperation with our Allies and especially the British, a policy based upon the President's and his own appreciation of the necessity of safeguarding American interests.

"He has declined to be led into adventures not directly aimed at winning the war, however attractive they seemed at first blush. Rather has he coldly studied every proposal, obtained thereon the advice of his trusted staff and war college, discussed it with Admiral King and his associates and then presented his conclusions to the President for the latter's decision and communicated that decision to the combined chiefs of staff.

"The President never has failed at any appropriate opportunity to tell the country of his satisfaction at having Gen. Marshall [illegible] member of his personal staff. As [illegible] is responsible finally for the entire war effort this generous acknowledgement has appealed to the army and the people. Thinking only of winning the war in the shortest time and of saving every American life possible, in connection with the bloody operations which it calls for, General Marshall, of course, has come into conflict with powerful interests which would like to eliminate him from the Washington picture and place in his stead an officer more amenable to their will.

"It is not to be believed the President will be induced to change his mind and transfer him. Rather the hope of the country is that he will retain this experienced officer in the post which he has distinguished by his demonstrated ability, his sane judgment, his wise advice to his Commander in Chief, and his loyal execution of the latter's decisions."

NAVY HAS MOST GIGANTIC FLEET IN WORLD TODAY

Inventory Shows Strength at 14,072 Vessels, 613 of Them Warships.

AIR ARM IS MOST POWERFUL

Records 18,000 Planes of All Types, Compared With 1744 Three Years Ago.

Washington, Sept. 20 (A. P.).—Industrial America's outpouring of ships, planes and munitions for the Navy has built up the mightiest sea-air Power in the world—a gigantic fleet operating around the globe.

A Navy inventory disclosed today that the fleet now includes 14,072 vessels, 613 of them warships. In 1940 the Navy had only 1,076 vessels, of which 383 were fighting craft.

The air arm, described as the most powerful naval air force in the world, now has more than 18,000 planes of all types, compared with 1,744 on hand three years ago.

During July, 1943, the Navy received almost 1,200 completed vessels and close to 2,000 planes, the report said. By contrast, in the same month three years ago, five newly completed vessels and twenty-five new planes were delivered.

"No naval construction program of comparable size and speed has ever been accomplished by any other nation," the Navy said. "Ability to build this huge new naval force—and to continue to build at the present rate—is one of the foundation stones of our military strategy.

"It underlies our amphibious attacks in the Pacific, the Atlantic and the Mediterranean. It protects our long, exterior supply routes running across thousands of miles of ocean.

"Most important, it makes feasible a strategy of attack, with all the risks it implies. Ability to build—or, if necessary, to rebuild—on this scale is one of the basic advantages which the American Navy holds over fleets of all other nations."

The tonnage of fighting ships—battleships, aircraft carriers, cruisers, destroyers, destroyer escorts and submarines was twenty times greater in the first six months of this year than in the first half year of the defense preparedness program.

The Navy said 333 new fighting ships have been completed since July, 1940, at a cost of $3,000,000,000, but the greatest addition has been in landing craft that carry troops ashore on invasions. The Navy said 12,964 new landing boats, costing $1,000,000,000 have been delivered.

Fifty-eight warships were lost and 129 transferred to other nations or converted to non-combat use during the period.

Berle Condemns Buffer State Idea

Washington, Sept. 20 (AP) — The State Department considers the idea of a cordon sanitaire (buffer States) against Soviet Russia "absurd," Assistant Secretary of State Adolf A. Berle, Jr., has informed the former Rumanian Minister here, Charles A. Davila.

The statement was made in reply to a letter from Davila incorporating the latter's protest against a columnist's assertion that the State Department turned an "icy cold shoulder" to exiled Balkan leaders advocating friendly relations between their countries and Russia.

U. S.-Approved, Says Davila

In this protest Davila emphasized that broadcasts which he had been making to Rumania over the OWI network attacking the idea of any post-war system of buffer states in Eastern Europe had met the approval of the State Department.

He added that the State Department also had facilitated his efforts to iron out problems between Russia and Rumania through conversations with Ambassador Maxim Litvinoff.

In his reply to Davila, dated September 17, Berle assured him that he had stated the facts correctly; that the department had approved his broadcasts and was "amazed an isgusted" at rumors that the department had ever considered the idea of a cordon sanitaire.

Post-War Policy Resolution Qualified

SEP 21 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 20—A powerful bipartisan House group fell into line behind the Fulbright post-war collaboration resolution today and demonstrated sufficient apparent strength to pass it by a two-thirds vote.

A 252-to-22 vote, by which time for debating the resolution was extended from forty minutes to four hours, provided the first measure of collaborationist power.

The opposition attempted in vain to limit debate, hopeful that the members, if denied an opportunity to discuss the measure, wouud return it to the Rules Committee.

Vote Delay Held Likely

Time taken by the procedural row and by two quorum calls, however, made it likely that the House would defer a final vote until tomorrow.

The first indication of definite opposition to the resolution appeared in a speech by Representative Hoffman (R., Mich.), in which he suggested substitution of the foreign policy statement drafted at the Republican conference at Mackinac Island.

"Are we here today," he asked, "the representatives of the people in Congress assembled, to wipe out the declaration of independence and, in its place, adopt a declaration of interdependence upon Great Britain and other nations of the Old World?"

Called "Golden Opportunity"

Majority Leader McCormack (D., Mass.) told the House in opening debate:

"We, of this generation, have a real opportunity to make the greatest contribution in the known history of man—attaining the great objectives of permanent peace. It wil require vision and courage and the united effort of men and women of good will to bring this about.

"We have the golden opportunity."

The Foreign Affairs Committee wrote into the Fulbright resolution an amendment saying in effect that Congress has the power to approve or reject any international arrangement to preserve the peace.

The qualification—demanded by the Republican minority—was accepted unanimously by the committee a short time before the House was called into session to act upon the resolution itself, with leaders of both parties predicting its approval.

Another Amendment Rejected

To the resolution by Representative Fulbright (D., Ark.), placing Congress on record as "favoring the creation of appropriate international machinery with power adequate to establish and to maintain a just and lasting peace, among the nations of the world, and favoring partieipation by the United States therein," the amendment added these words:

". . . through its constitutional processes."

The committee rejected another amendment offered by Representative Mundt (R., S. D.) to set up a bi-partisan "post-war planning commission" to stuy methods of international collaboration to preserve the peace.

Opening debate on the floor, Majority Leader McCormack (D., Mass.) called for House passage of the resolution as a sign of American determination to take the "leadership" in preserving peace.

'Confiscatory' Taxes Opposed By Patterson

Says They Would Lead to Waste in War Plants, Backs Renegotiation Law

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (AP).—Robert P. Patterson, Under Secretary of War, gave a new slant today to Congressional studies of new taxes and possible changes in the war contract renegotiation law by declaring higher taxes on war contractors would "add fuel to the fires of inflation." He told the House Ways and Means Committee that "confiscatory taxes may eliminate excessive profits but will inevitably result in wastage of manpower and materials." He opposed repeal of the re-negotiation law, under which "excessive profits" in war contracts are recovered.

Meanwhile, a joint statement ment from the War, Navy and Treasury Departments and the Maritime Commission stated that the renegotiation of war contracts during August eliminated $448,253,000 in excess profits.

$4,404,108,000 Recovered

Excess profits totaling $4,404,108,000 now have been recovered through actual repayment or in reduction of current contract prices, the agencies reported. In the sixteen months since price adjustment boards were authorized, commitments for $2,141,366,000 in cash refunds had been obtained, and price reduction savings totaled $2,262,742,000, the report said.

The Army listed $1,399,900,000 in cash refunds and $1,549,200,000 in price reduction savings in the sixteen-mouth period. The Navy's were listed as $669,151,000 in cash refunds and $665,137,000 in lowered prices. The Maritime Commission renegotiations yielded $69,720,000 in cash refunds and $48,505,000 in reduced prices. Treasury recoveries were $2,595,000, all from refunds.

Representatives of the United States Chamber of Commerce and the National Association of Manufacturers recommended to the committee last week that the recapture provisions of renegotiation be suspended or repealed, and that excessive profits be recovered through the tax laws.

"This committee," Mr. Patterson said, "fully recognizes and understands that, when taxes are carried to the point of confiscation of earnings over and above any given level, the profit incentive necessarily disappears and resultant extravagance, with widespread waste of man power and materials, inevitably follows.

"The committee fully understands that until the point of actual 100 per cent taxation is reached, the higher the tax rate the greater the incentive to increase prices and gross profits—this in order to increase the total of dollars left to the taxpayer [illegible] payment of his taxes."

One leading Congressional tax authority, who asked that he not be quoted directly, said Mr. Patterson had expressed "a new tax philosophy," and recalled that other statements from Administration quarters had indicated increased taxes were needed all along the line to curb inflation.

Favors Extension Of Vessel Seizure

Washington, Sept. 20 (AP) — Extension of requisitioning powers of the War Shipping Administration to cover vessels owned by foreign subsidiaries of American shipping companies was proposed today by Representative Bland (D., Va.), chairman of the House Merchant Marine Committee.

Existing law covers only American-owned vessels and foreign vessels lying idle in American waters. Several large American companies, the WSA said, have organized wholly owned subsidiary companies in foreign countries.

Transport Near Full Use

Research Board Calls Pre-War Surplus a "Life Saver"

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (AP).—"Under pressure of war conditions," the Transportation Board of Investigation and Research reported today to President Roosevelt, "the country is nearer to a fully utilized transportation system than ever before."

"Prior to the war," the agency said in its annual report, "it was feared that the transportation plant had been built beyond any requirements of the immediate future, but this so-called surplus of transportation proved to be a life saver and without it the country would have been in a desperate position both before and after Pearl Harbor."

During the post-war era, the board said, "there may be a temporary surplus of ships and airplanes and perhaps some pipe lines," while railways and highways will need improvement, new facilities and "long-deferred maintenance."

Report On Munitions Held Too Optimistic

Washington, Sept. 20 (AP)—A War Production Board report on increased munitions output in August has been held up at the War Department, it was learned tonight, because officers there think it sounds too optimistic.

The report is said authoritatively to show a munitions gain of four per cent. for the month and a climb of twenty-five points in the munitions index, compared with the five-point increases registered in May and June, when lagging production caused officials deep concern.

Navy Department Lists Additional Casualties

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (AP).—The Navy Department announced today fifty-seven casualties, including six dead, one wounded and fifty missing. The list also includes the names of seven whose status has been changed to dead from prisoner of war, two to dead from missing and one to safe from missing.

This brings to 29,644 the total of Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard casualties reported to next of kin since Dec. 7, 1941. The grand total includes 10,234 dead, 5,214 wounded, 10,051 missing and 4,145 prisoners of war.

The casualties announced today included (those listed are Navy and non-commissioned personnel unless otherwise specified):

Automatic Pilot's Use By Army Disclosed

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Sept. 20—Details of "one of America's best kept military secrets"—the use of an electronically-controlled automatic pilot—were disclosed today with army approval.

The device, said by the Army Air Force to have been "one of the factors responsible for the devastation" in raids over Europe and Asia, provides a stable platform for high-altitude bombing "of vastly increased accuracy," and its use was said to be "equivalent to a material increase in the number of planes participating in an attack."

Minneapolis Company

The improvement was described by the Army Air Force and the Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator Company at a luncheon here. The company cooperated with the Army Air Force on its development after materiel command officials at Wright Field foresaw the need for a modified instrument capable of controlling accurately aircraft on high-altitude precison bombing missions.

The disclosures were made in accordance with army policy of informing the public on major military developments when it is certain the enemy no longer is in the dark about them. Existence of the autopilot was unknown previously outside military services and the industrial organizations building and installing it. The improvement was accepted by the Army Air Force in October, 1941, and for months was standard equipment on American heavy bombers and some types of bomber-trainer planes.

Enemy's Knowledge

An AAF spokesman said loss of some planes bearing the equipment made it reasonable to assume that the enemy knew essential facts about it.

Alfred M. Wilson, vice-president in charge of the company's areonautical division, described the autopilot as designed "to take over completely the duties of the pilot on bombings runs" and "to hold the plane on a designated course without wavering." He added that it was not designed to replace pilots, but to give them maximum protection.

Keeps Plane On Course

He explained that super-sensitivity of the electronic mechanism returns a plane almost immediately to its course, despite cross currents, wind variations and air blasts from exploding anti-aircraft shells.

"Precision bombing," he explained, "requires a steady platform, because if the plane is tipped or otherwise off its course at the time the bomb is released, this tipping or movement will be imparted to the bomb and cause it to miss the target." He said just as the rifleman steadies his gun on a tripod, the auto-pilot provides an artificial tripod to hold the aircraft on the bull's-eye when bombs are released.

Results Of Autopilot

To use of the autopilot was credited reduced time on bombing runs; better coordination of bombardier-pilot teams increasing efficiency of operations, and reduction of pilot fatigue.

Wilson cited the case of a Flying Fortress almost cut in two by a Messerschmitt 109, its pilot's manual control cables connecting to rudder and elevators severed. The ship, he said, "was flown safely home on the autopilot, because the control surface motors of the electric system were located far in the tail and were not damaged in the midair crash."

Open Palestine Urged By Jews

Kiamesha Lake, N. Y., Sept. 20 (AP)—Demanding unrestricted immigration into Palestine, the National Association of Jewish War Veterans is on record today as urging immediate withdrawal of the British White Paper of May, 1939.

Another resolution adopted at the conclusion of the Forty-eighth encampment yesterday asked Congress to pass legislation providing a 15-per-cent.-cost-of-living adjustment to veterans receiving pensions or compensation from the United States Veterans' Bureau.

Court Overrules Gen. Drum

Says Naturalized German Woodworker Can Stay on Atlantic Coast

BOSTON, Sept. 20 (AP).—A Federal judge today overruled an order issued by the chief of the Army's Eastern Defense Command excluding Maximilian Franz Joseph Ebel, fifty-three-year-old naturalized citizen of German birth, from residing in the Atlantic Coast defense area.

District Judge Francis J. W. Ford declared that military necessity did not require application of such drastic restraint on the liberty of an American citizen.

Ebel, a Bostonian whose woodworking company in neighboring Cambridge makes parts for the government, was ordered barred from the east coast on an order issued by Lieutenant General Hugh A. Drum on April 23.

Norfolk Death Toll Up to 26

NORFOLK, Va., Sept. 20 (AP).—The death toll in Friday's ammunition explosion at the Norfolk Naval Air Station rose to twenty-six with the death last night of Henry Nowocian, seaman second class, U. S. N. R., of Buffalo, N. Y.

25 Soldiers Die In Plane Crash On Army Field

Maxton, N. C., Sept. 20 (AP)—Twenty-five soldiers died this morning in the crash of an army transport plane on the Laurinburg-Maxton army air base field, two miles from here, the Public Relations Office announced.

The big ship, making a routine flight, burned after it struck earth.

"Names of those killed will be available for release after next of kin have been notified," the office said.

No other details of the crash were made available beyond an announcement that a board of inquiry had been appointed.

Windsors Fly From Miami to Washington

Maimi, Fla., Sept. 20 (A. P.).—The Duke and Duchess of Windsor left today aboard the Seaboard's streamliner, the Silver Meteor, for Washington en route to Baltimore, where the Duchess's aunt, Mrs. D. Buchanan Merryman, has suffered a broken hip.

They came here yesterday from Nassau, where the Duke serves as Governor of the Bahamas. They will visit at Washington and New York before returning to Nassau.

18 IN SEDITION CASE LOSE PLEA

Socialist Workers' Party Convictions Upheld.

St. Louis, Sept. 20 (A. P.).—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals today affirmed the conviction of eighteen persons affiliated with the Socialist Workers' party on charges of conspiring to undermine the loyalty and discipline of American soldiers and sailors.

"A thorough examination of the record leaves no doubt as to the sufficiency of the evidence and as to the justice of the verdict," Presiding Judge Kimbrough Stone wrote in the opinion, concurred in by Judges Harvey M. Johnson and Walter C. Riddick.

The defendants were convicted in the Federal District Court in the first peacetime sedition trial in the nation's history in Minneapolis by a jury, on December 1, 1941, and Judge Matthew M. Joyce sentenced them to terms ranging from a year and a day to sixteen months.

New Yorkers in Group.

The original indictment, returned by a Federal Grand Jury July 15, 1941, named twenty-nine persons. Five of them were acquitted by Judge Joyce and the trial jury acquitted another five.

Grant Dunne, a Minneapolis labor leader named in the indictment, committed suicide three weeks before the trial.

Those who were convicted and later appealed were Albert Goldman, New York attorney, who was chief defense counsel for the defendants; Vincent Raymond Dunne, labor union leader of Minneapolis; James P. Cannon of New York, national secretary of the party; Felix Morrow of New York, editor of the New Militant, official party organ; Mrs. Grace Carlson of Minneapolis, State organizer, and thirteen others, all either members of or associated with the Socialist Workers party, and who were members of the Twin Cities (Minneapolis-St. Paul) General Drivers Union 544.

The trial jury found the eighteen defendants innocent of the first count of the indictment charging conspiracy to overthrow the Government of the United States by force. However, all were found guilty on the second count, charging them with conspiring to create insubordination in the armed forces of the United States and of distributing literature which advised the "necessity, desirability and propriety of overthrowing and destroying the Government of the United States by force and violence."

Hero Won't Repeat His Story

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 20 (AP).—Fifty friends and neighbors gathered at the Harold Miller home and listened to a two-hour narrative by Harold's brother, Lloyd G. Miller, twenty-four-year-old machinist's mate, first class. He had invited the folk in to hear how he survived the sinking of the cruiser Helena. He said he didn't feel up to telling it more than once.

Legion Ready To Play Role in Post-War Plans

Waring Appoints 15-Man Planning Commission With Convention Opening Today

OMAHA, Sept. 20 (AP).—Roane Waring, national commander of the American Legion, emphasizing before a meeting of the Legion's National Executive Committee the importance of considering post-war problems, announced today appointment of a fifteen-man legion post-war planning commission.

The announcement was made on the eve of the opening of the legion's twenty-fifth annual convention tomorrow morning. High lights of the opening session will be the presentation of the legion's Distinguished Service Medal to General George C. Marshall, chief of staff of the United States Army and speeches by War Man-Power commission Director Paul V. McNutt and Eric A. Johnston, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

The purpose of the commission, Mr. Waring explained, will be to study and recommend to the legion policies dealing with post-war problems. The chairman will be former Assistant Secretary of War Louis Johnson, a past commander of the legion.

Other members are Frank Belgrano, of San Francisco, past national commander; Ray Murphy, of Iowa, also a past national commander; Dr. William Dow, of Detroit; Jacob Schmidt, of Wisconsin; Walter Hoving, of New York; General Frank Parker, of Chicago; Jaun Trippe, president of Pan American Airways, New York; Governor Dwight Griswold, of Nebraska; Arthur Cante, of Chicago; S. Toof Brown, of Tennessee; Governor Leverett Saltonstall, of Massachusetts; Governor Prentice Cooper, of Tennessee; Frank Haucke, of Kansas, and General Leonard Ayers, of Ohio.

American Legion Auxiliary units and departments since 1929 have spent more than ten and a half million dollars for rehabilitation work, Mrs. Alfred J. Mathebat, president, reported to the twenty-third annual national convention of the auxiliary here today.

Departments are represented by the states and units are the local organizations, of which there are about 10,000.

The Legion Auxiliary contributed to the Legion for national rehabilitation $371,137.65 from 1929 to 1943, inclusive, the report said.

Hospitalized veterans of the World War have been paid $3,052,046 for making the auxiliary's memorial poppies from 1928 through 1943.

SPAATZ PRAISES AIRCRAFT WORKERS

San Diego, Cal., Sept. 20 (A. P.).—Lieut.-Gen. Carl Spaatz, commander of the northwest African Air Forces, and Major-Gen. Ira C. Eaker, commander of the United States Eighth Air Force in England, were among those who praised today the performance of the Liberator and other American planes on the world's war fronts.

In messages delivered through Hugh Baillie, president of the United Press, to 50,000 workers at the Consolidated Aircraft plant here, the participation of the Liberator in battles on continental Europe and Africa was outlined. Mr. Baillie recently returned from a tour of the war fronts in Africa, Sicily and England.

"Crew and planes have done a splendid job on all occasions," Gen. Spaatz's message said. "My congratulations to the workers of Consolidated Aircraft who have built them."

Gen. Eaker said that "wingtip to wingtip with the Flying Fortresses, Thunderbolts and Marauders, the Liberators are helping us to forge a chain of invincible air power that is linking Hitler to his doom."

Mr. Baille also quoted a special message from Brig.-Gen. Victor H. Strahm, chief staff of the Ninth United States Air Force with headquarters in Cairo, expressing the flyers' gratitude to "those Americans who, far from the smoke and clash of battle, build the finest aircraft they know how to hasten the day of peace."

Lieut.-Col. Roosevelt En Route to White House

Los Angeles, Sept. 20 (A. P.).—Back from the Aleutians, Lieut.-Col. James Roosevelt says he's headed for the White House.

The President's eldest son, grinning as he boarded the plane for Washington last night, said: "I understand dad has an extra bed at the White House, so I'll be able to see him while I'm in Washington."

THE MARSHALLING OF GERMAN STRENGTH IN THE SOUTH WAS GOING FORWARD URGENTLY AT A TIME WHEN THE SEA APPROACHES TO A BALKAN INVASION WERE BEING STEADILY CLEARED OF THE ENEMY.

DURING THE DAY THE NAZIS THEMSELVES ACKNOWLEDGED THE LOSS OF SARDINIA -- WHICH COULD HAVE BEEN A STRONG BARRIER BETWEEN ALLIED FORCES BASED IN AFRICA AND OBJECTIVES IN LOWER CENTRAL EUROPE -- ALTHOUGH THEY CLAIMED IT WAS MERELY AN EVACUATION.

SARDINIA WAS THE FIFTH ISLAND REPORTED TO HAVE BEEN SWEPT UP IN RECENT DAYS, KOS, LEROS, SAMOS AND CASTELLORIZE IN THE AEGEAN HAVING FALLEN EARLIER INTO ALLIED CONTROL.

POSSESSION OF SARDINIA GAVE THE ALLIES A SERIES OF GOOD AIRFIELDS FROM WHICH TO BOMB THE GERMANS IN NORTHERN ITALY AND SOUTHERN EUROPE.

THE CAMPAIGN OF REDUCTION OF HITLER'S ISLAND LINE WAS ACCOMPANIED BY GUERRILLA OPERATIONS BY THE YUGOSLAVS ALONG THE ADRIATIC COAST.

AMONG THE REPORTS COMING UP FROM THE SOUTH WAS ONE THAT THE BRITISH FLEET WAS IN THE AEGEAN AND THIS WAS HEARD WITH INTEREST IN VIEW OF RECENT RUMORS THAT THE BRITISH NINTH ARMY WAS ON THE MOVE FROM THE MIDDLE EAST.

LONDON, SEPT.20-(AP)-A HINT THAT THE ALLIES ARE PREPARING TO TAKE OVER CORSICA WAS SEEN HERE TONIGHT IN A WARNING BROADCAST TO THE GERMANS ON THAT ISLAND BY GEN.HENRI GIRAUD CONCERNING FRENCH SOLDIERS.

GEN.GIRAUD WARNED, IN A BROADCAST FROM ALGIERS, THAT ANY MAN WEARING A WHITE BRASSARD WITH A BLACK DEATH'S HEAD MUST BE CONSIDE[illegible] "AS A REGULAR SOLDIER OF THE FRENCH ARMY."

SEP 21 1943

UNDER INTERNATIONAL LAW, ALL COMBATANTS DESIGNATED AS REGULAR SOLDIERS MUST BE TREATED AS PRISONERS OF WAR WHEN CAPTURED AND NOT AS SABOTEURS OR CIVILIAN SNIPERS.

SOME CONSIDERED THE WARNING AS A STEP TOWARD THE FIRST BIG INVASION TO BE LAUNCHED BY THE FRENCH ARMY BUILT UP IN NORTH AFRICA.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, ALSO INDICATING A BELIEF THAT GERMAN DOMINATION OF THE FORMER FRENCH POSSESSION WAS NEARING AN END, SAID TODAY THAT THE NAZI EVACUATION OF SARDINIA MADE CORSICA UNTENABLE.

LONDON WAS ELATED OVER SARDINIA'S FALL APPARENTLY WITHOUT A SHOT HAVING BEEN FIRED. THE ISLAND AFFORDS EXCELLENT AIRFIELDS FOR HARASSING THE GERMANS IN NORTHERN ITALY.

LONDON, SEPT. 20-(AP)-THE SWISS RADIO SAID TODAY THAT GERMAN TROOPS WHO OCCUPIED CHIASSO ON THE SWISS-ITALIAN FRONTIER YESTERDAY HAD CLOSED THE FRONTIER TODAY.

(THE DISPATCH DID NOT MAKE CLEAR WHETHER GERMAN TROOPS HAD ACTUALLY CROSSED THE BORDER TO OCCUPY SWISS CHIASSO, BUT THE ABSENCE OF ANY SWISS PROTEST INDICATED THAT THE GERMANS MIGHT HAVE OCCUPIED ONLY A SECTION OF THE TOWN ON THE ITALIAN SIDE).

PASSPORTS WERE CANCELLED AND TRAFFIC BETWEEN ITALY AND SWITZERLAND WAS CUT OFF COMPLETELY BY GERMAN OCCUPATION FORCES AT COMO, ON THE ITALIAN SIDE, SAID THE BROADCAST.

LONDON, SEPT 20-(AP)-AMERICAN AND BRITISH BATTLE PLANES ESCORTED BY FIGHTERS STREAKED ACROSS THE CHANNEL IN LARGE FORMATIONS YESTERDAY TO BLAST AWAY AT NAZI AIRFIELDS AND INDUSTRIAL TARGETS IN FRANCE AND HOLLAND.

SEP 21 1943

THE DAYLIGHT ATTACKS FOLLOWED UP SWEEPS OVER INDUSTRIAL TARGETS IN THE RHINELAND SATURDAY NIGHT BY THE HARD-WORKING RAF MOSQUITOS AND A CONTINUATION OF THE MINE-LAYING PROGRAM BY CRAFT OF THE RAF BOMBER COMMAND.

AMERICAN MARAUDERS, ESCORTED BY SPITFIRE FIGHTERS WHICH SHOT DOWN TWO GERMAN PLANES, BOMBED THE NAZI AIRFIELD AT LILLE IN ONE OF YESTERDAY'S FORAYS. THREE ALLIED FIGHTERS WERE REPORTED LOST.

RAF TYPHOOONS, MEANWHILE, POUNDED AIRFIELDS AT MERVILLE IN NORTHERN FRANCE AND WOENSDRECHT IN HOLLAND, WHILE MITCHELLS STRUCK INDUSTRIAL TARGETS NEAR BETHUNE IN FRANCE.

THE RAIDING FORMATIONS WERE DESCRIBED BY OBSERVERS ALONG THE BRITISH COAST AS LARGE, BUT DID NOT COMPARE TO THE FLEETS WHICH EARLIER IN THE MONTH MAINTAINED A STEADY SCHEDULE OF SLEDGE-HAMMER BLOWS AT NAZI TARGETS IN FRANCE AND THE LOW COUNTRIES.

MEANWHILE THE RAF ANNOUNCED FURTHER DETAILS ON THE RESULTS OF THE RECENT NINE-DAY ALL-OUT AIR ASSAULT ON THE GERMAN SEAPORT CITY OF HAMBURG. IN THE PERIOD BETWEEN JULY 24 AND AUG.2 AN AREA OF NINE SQUARE MILES, OR 77 PER CENT OF THE TOTAL AREA, WAS COMPLETELY DESTROYED AT A COST OF 87 BOMBERS, RECONNAISSANCE SHOWED.

THE DAMAGE WROUGHT BY THE 7,340 TONS OF HIGH EXPLOSIVES DROPPED WAS 100 TIMES GREATER THAN THAT DONE BY THE GERMAN AIR FORCE AT COVENTRY AND 60 TIMES GREATER THAN LONDON. IN THE GREATEST RAID ON COVENTRY, THE REPORT SAID, THE GERMANS DROPPED 450 TONS OF BOMBS IN NINE HOURS WHILE THE RAF IN ITS GREATEST ATTACK DUMPED 2,350 LONG TONS ON HAMBURG IN 45 MINUTES.

THE BROADCAST SAID THE PICTURE, TAKEN AT HITLER'S HEADQUARTERS, WAS PUBLISHED IN THE DEUTSCHE ALLGEMEINE ZEITUNG AND SHOWED THAT MUSSOLINI'S FACE HAD RESUMED ITS "OLD, ENERGETIC EXPRESSION."

NAZI FOREIGN MINISTER JOACHIM VON RIBBENTROP ALSO APPEARED IN THE PHOTOGRAPH, THE RADIO ADDED, AND HIS FACE AND THE FUEHRER'S "ARE REFLECTING HAPPINESS AT THIS MEETING WITH THE DUCE AFTER HIS LIBERATION."

LONDON, SEPT 20-(AP)-FOLLOWING IS A CONDENSED VERSION OF THE TEXT OF PREMIER MARSHAL PIETRO BADOGLIO'S BROADCAST TO THE ITALIANS FROM THE NEW "RADIO ITALIANA" SEPT. 16 AS RECORDED BY THE BRITISH MINISTRY OF INFORMATION:

"TODAY TO RESIST IS TO EXIST. IT IS THE ONLY WAY.

"ITALIANS, YOU HAVE POWERFUL MEANS IN YOUR HANDS, ESPECIALLY GUERILLA WAR OF WHICH YOU HAVE AN EXAMPLE ON THE OTHER SIDE OF THE ADRIATIC.

SEP 21 1943

"THE GERMANS WANT TO HARM US. THIS ORDEAL TOO, THE HARDEST OF ALL, MUST BE FACED AND OVERCOME.

"WE SHALL OVERCOME IT.

"IT IS YOUR ABSOLUTE DUTY TO FIGHT AT THE SIDE OF THE 1943

BRITISH AND AMERICANS AGAINST THE GERMANS AND AGAINST A FEW SENSELESS ITALIANS--NO LONGER WORTHY OF SUCH A NAME--WHO PUT THEMSELVES AT THEIR COMMAND.

"DO NOT FORGET THAT ALL TALK OF UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER IS OUT OF DATE AND IRRELEVANT TO THE CHANGED CONDITIONS OF TODAY.

"WE HAVE INTERVENED DECISIVELY AGAINST GERMANY FOLLOWING THE AGGRESSIVE ATTITUDE OF THE GERMANS.

SEP 21 1943

"WE ARE COOPERATING SIDE BY SIDE WITH THE BRITISH AND AMERICANS, WHO ARE NOW ACCEPTING OUR ASSISTANCE IN THE TASK OF DRIVING THE GERMANS FROM OUR COUNTRY.

"AFTER CONCLUSION OF THE ARMISTICE WE INTENDED TO LAY DOWN OUR ARMS AND TO ABSTAIN FROM ALL FURTHER ACTION.

"EVEN AFTER THE GERMANS HAD BEGUN ATTACKS AGAINST US, WE STILL EXERCISED RESTRAINT AND DID NOT STRIKE BACK. WE HOPED THESE ATTACKS WOULD BE ISOLATED INCIDENTS.

"SOON WE REALIZED ALL GERMAN DIVISIONS WERE ATTACKING OUR TROOPS BOTH INSIDE AND OUTSIDE ITALY, FORCIBLY OCCUPYING OUR TOWNS AND AIRDROMES AND LOOTING OUR SUPPLIES AND PROPERTY, WHILE THE GERMAN AIR FORCE BOMBED OUR SHIPS.

"THE GERMANS SAID 'LET THE ITALIANS PERISH SO LONG AS WE CAN KEEP THE WAR AWAY FROM GERMANY.'

"AFTER THE FIRST MOMENT OF SURPRISE AND UNCERTAINTY, ITALIAN TROOPS AND CIVILIANS REALIZED WITH WHOM THEY HAD TO DEAL.

"EVERYWHERE THEY TOOK UP THE FIGHT AGAINST THE GERMANS AND THEIR ACCOMPLICES.

"WE CANNOT ALLOW THE GERMANS TO TREAT OUR COUNTRY AS OCCUPIED TERRITORY, DESTROY OUR TOWNS TO SAVE THEIR OWN AND DRAG OUR BROTHERS AND SISTERS AWAY TO GERMANY.

"WE CANNOT ALLOW THE GERMANS TO LOOT OUR HOMES, STEAL OUR PROPERTY, KILL OUR SOLDIERS AND WORKERS AND INSULT OUR WOMEN.

SEP 21 1943

"SO MUCH BLOOD HAS BEEN SHED IN THIS WAR, WHICH WAS WILLED BY THE GERMANS AND WAGED BY THEM EXCLUSIVELY IN THEIR INTERESTS, THAT WE CANNOT ALLOW OURSELVES TO BE LOOKED UPON AND TREATED AS SLAVES.

"TODAY THERE IS ONLY ONE ORDER OF THE DAY FOR ALL OF US: 'OUT WITH THE GERMANS.'

"HOW DARE THE GERMANS SPEAK OF HONOR WHEN THEY DESERTED OUR DIVISIONS ON THE DON, IN LIBYA, IN TUNISIA AND IN CALABRIA?

"THE BRITISH AND AMERICANS, OLD COMRADES IN ARMS OF THE PIAVE AND VITTORIO VENETO, DID NOT HESITATE TO DECLARE THEIR ULTIMATE AIM IS THE RESURRECTION OF A STRONG AND UNITED ITALY.

"THEY WILL NOT DENY US THEIR ASSISTANCE WHEN THE TIME COMES TO MAKE GOOD THE DAMAGE OF WAR AND TO REBUILD OUR FUTURE.

"FIGHT THE GERMANS IN EVERY WAY, EVERYWHERE AND ALL THE TIME.

"LEAVE YOUR TOWNS AND GO TO THE COUNTRY.

"CUT COMMUNICATION LINES, BLOW UP BRIDGES AND DOCKYARDS.

"WHEREVER YOU FIND SMALL ENEMY UNITS ATTACK THEM, DESTROY THEIR EQUIPMENT AND ABOVE ALL DO NOT GIVE UP THE STRUGGLE.

"LET US ACHIEVE THE JUST AND LASTING PEACE WE ALL DESIRE--THE PEACE WHICH BRITAIN AND AMERICA WILL BRING ABOUT AND WHICH THE GERMANS DENY US."

WITH THE U.S.FIFTH ARMY IN ITALY, SEPT 20--WHILE RIVAL ALLIED AND GERMAN ARMIES PICKED AT ONE ANOTHER AND MANEUVERED FOR POSITIONS TODAY WE LEFT THE LOCAL WAR THOUSANDS OF MILES BEHIND BY RETREATING TO AN OLD HAUNT OF TIRED BUSINESSMEN AND TOURISTS--AMALFI, THE FIRST UNSCARRED TOWN WE'VE SEEN SINCE WE LEFT NEW YORK SIX WEEKS AGO.

SEP 21 1943

AMALFI IS NOT ONLY UNSCARRED. ALTHOUGH AN OCCASIONAL BOOM FROM WARSHIPS AND BRITISH 25-POUNDERS SLIGHTLY MAR THE CALM, AND SOLDIERS ARE FIGHTING AND DYING UP IN THE MOUNTAINS A FEW MILES AWAY, AMALFI DOESN'T EVEN KNOW THERE IS A WAR ON.

WE DINED AT THE HOTEL UNA, WHERE 100,000 AMERICANS HAVE DINED BEFORE US, ON ANTIPASTO, SPAGHETTI, FINE DRY WINE AND BELLEPAESE CHEESE. OUT TO THE HORIZON STRETCHED THE SAME AZURE SEA WE FIRST SAW A GENERATION AGO. WE GOT STUCK FOR TWICE AS MUCH AS WE SHOULD HAVE PAID AND WERE PLAGUED BY A GUIDE WHO EXPLAINED THAT THE COMPASS WAS INVENTED THERE. IT WAS JUST 600 YEARS AGO THIS YEAR THAT AMALFI, ONCE A TOWN OF 50,000, WAS WIPED OUT BY A FLOOD.

RESIDENTS OF THE TOWN WANTED ASSURANCE THAT WE WOULD SEND FOOD AND SUPPLIES QUICKLY.

WE HAD THIS PLEASANT INTERLUDE BY TWICE RUNNING THE LOCAL GANTLET, A STRETCH OF ROAD WHICH THE GERMANS IN THE NEIGHBORING HILLS SHOT UP WITH MORTARS AND MACHINE-GUNS WHEN THEY SAW TRAFFIC MOVING.

THE AMERICAN FIFTH AND BRITISH EIGHTH ARMIES NOW OCCUPY THE WHOLE OF SOUTHERN ITALY BETWEEN THEM AND ARE IN COMPLETE CONTACT AND ARE WORKING TOGETHER.

SUCH THOUGHTS AS THESE INEVITABLY COME TO ALL OF US WHO LIKE THIS CORRESPONDENT HAVE BEEN DRIVING FAR AND WIDE TODAY. TWO DAYS AGO SOME WAG SAID "WE ARE THE ONES WHO NEED LEBENSRAUM NOW." THEN OUR VEHICLES CROWDED ALL THE ROADS OF OUR CRAMPED BEACHHEAD CAUSING LONG TRAFFIC BLOCKS AND PRESENTING AN OBVIOUS DANGER FROM ENEMY AIR ATTACKS. TODAY, LIKE YESTERDAY, WE WERE PLAYING HIDE-AND-GO-SEEK WITH THE GERMANS. HAVING EXTRACTED THE FORCES OPPOSITE THE EIGHTH ARMY, THE GERMANS ARE FALLING BACK AND WE ARE FOLLOWING THEM. SOONER OR LATER THEY MUST MAKE A STAND, AND THEN WILL COME THE BATTLE FOR NAPLES. NO ONE CAN GUESS IN ADVANCE HOW DETERMINED THAT STAND WILL BE, BUT COMMON PRUDENCE REQUIRES PREPARATIONS FOR SMASHING THROUGH STRONG ENEMY DEFENSES. IF THE GERMANS DECIDE ON A BRIEF DELAYING ACTION FOR NAPLES AND A STRONG STAND BEFORE ROME WE WILL FOLLOW HARD AND FAST.

DRIVING AROUND OUR NEWLY ACQUIRED TERRITORY THROUGH A TOWN WE TOOK YESTERDAY, ONE COULD NOT HELP BUT THINK OF THE EFFECTIVENESS OF OUR SHELLING AND BOMBING.

DESTROYED VEHICLES AND CRATERS IN ALL THE ROADS SHOWED HOW WE HAMPERED THESE COMMUNICATIONS. NOT A HOUSE WHERE THEY PUT MEN AND MATERIAL REMAINS STANDING.

THERE IS AN UNHAPPY SIDE TO THIS, TOO, FOR IF THE GERMANS DEFEND

ALTAVILLA, ITALY, SEPT. 20--THE POPULATION OF THIS BATTLE-BATTERED TOWN, WHICH FELL INTO THE HANDS OF THE ALLIES AFTER SOME OF THE HARDEST FIGHTING ON THE MAINLAND OF ITALY, EMERGED FROM THEIR WINE CELLARS TODAY BEWILDERED, SHELL SHOCKED AND WITH THE PALE GREENISH PALLOR OF MUSHROOMS SO LONG HAD THEY HIDDEN IN DARKNESS.

ALTHOUGH THE ALLIES ENTERED ALTAVILLA YESTERDAY, THE PEOPLE DID NOT DARE TO COME OUT UNTIL TODAY, THEY HAD BEEN SO SHAKEN BY CRISS-CROSS FIRE FOR NINE CONSECUTIVE DAYS WITH ALLIED AND GERMAN PATROLS BATTLING AND BAYONET FIGHTING ON THE FLOORS OVER THEIR HEADS.

I SPOKE IN ITALIAN TO OVER 50 INHABITANTS OF ALTAVILLA TODAY, AND THEY ALL AGREED THAT AT LEAST 100 RESIDENTS OF THE TOWN HAD DIED AS A RESULT OF WOUNDS, AND THAT SOME HAD DIED FROM HUNGER AS THEY DID NOT DARE VENTURE OUT FOR FOOD.

THE INHABITANTS TOLD ME THEY WERE AFRAID TO GO INTO THE STREETS DURING THE NINE DAYS OF FIGHTING AND THAT THEREFORE THEY LIVED ON WHAT LITTLE THEY HAD ON HAND, SUCH AS CACTUS PEARS AND FRIED CORN. A FEW WHO HAD A CHICKEN OR PIG ABOUT THE HOUSE FARED FAIRLY WELL. THE WATER SHORTAGE WAS MOST ACUTE.

IN MANY WAYS THESE PALLID, SHAKEN PEOPLE REMINDED ME OF THE SURVIVORS OF ALCAZAR DURING THE SPANISH WAR. THEY WERE SO HUNGRY TODAY THAT UNLIKE MOST ITALIAN REFUGEE MEN IN NEWLY TAKEN CITIES THEY WERE NOT INTERESTED IN CIGARETTES BUT ONLY IN FOOD, ESPECIALLY CHOCOLATE CANDY.

MANY OF THEM SUFFERING FROM SHELL SHOCK COULD BE SEEN TREMBLING AND GIBBERING IN THE STREETS TODAY AS UNITED STATES RED CROSS WORKERS STARTED LOOKING AFTER THEM. THE FUNERAL SERVICE CORPS, HEADED BY A CHAPLAIN, ALSO WAS LOOKING INTO THE RUINS OF HOUSES FOR DEAD.

ACTING AS AN INTERPRETER FOR THIS CORPS, I WAS INFORMED BY THE INHABITANTS THAT THEY BURIED THEIR DEAD AS BEST THEY COULD AT THE TIME IN CELLARS.

THE STREETS ALSO HAD TO BE CLEARED OF A NUMBER OF MULES, DOGS AND CATS WHICH WERE KILLED DURING THE FIGHTING.

DESPITE THE TERRIFIC SHELLING AND RIFLE FIRE FIGHTING AROUND HERE, ALTAVILLA SUFFERED MUCH LESS THAN BATTIPAGLIA. BUT THE POPULATION OF BATTIPAGLIA LEFT A LONG TIME AGO, WHEREAS THE INHABITANTS OF ALTAVILLA SUDDENLY WERE CAUGHT BETWEEN TWO LINES IN THE LAND FIGHTING.

ACTUALLY, HOWEVER, ONLY A FEW PLACES HERE AND THERE RECEIVED STRAY SHELLS WHICH FLATTENED OUT WHOLE GROUPS OF HOUSES.

SPECIAL SERVICES WERE HELD IN AN UNDAMAGED CHURCH THIS MORNING TO COMMEMORATE THE DELIVERANCE OF THE POPULACE.

AT A U.S. NAVY BASE IN SICILY, SEPT. 19-(DELAYED)-(AP)- MANY MEN FROM FLORIDA ARE TAKING AN ACTIVE HAND IN THE ITALIAN INVASION.

OF THE LANDING ~~SHIP~~ CRAFT TANKS WHICH FOR THE PAST FEW ~~WEEKS~~ DAYS HAVE BEEN RUNNING THE GAUNTLET OF GERMAN AIRCRAFT TO RUSH REINFORCEMENTS INTO THE GULF OF SALERNO, TWO ARE CAPTAINED BY FLORIDA CITIZENS. COLEMAN, NOW A VETERAN OF THE SICILIAN CAMPAIGN, IS BEACHING HIS CRAFT, WITH ITS PRECIOUS CARGO OF SORELY NEEDED SUPPLIES, RIGHT ONTO THE BEACHES ONLY A FEW HUNDRED YARDS BEHIND OUR LINES.

THE OTHER FLORIDA SKIPPER IS LT. JOSHUA HOWELL, USNR, OF BOX 285, PALM BEACH, WHO HAS BEEN GUIDING HIS VESSEL INTO THE SAME BARRAGES OF NAZI 88 GUNFIRE — WHICH STILL HARASSES OUR NORTHERN SALERNO BEACHHEAD.

AYRES, USNR, OF BARTOW, AND HAS BEEN CARRYING THE LEADER OF HIS FLOTILLA OF "LCI'S" INTO SALERNO. TODAY, HE BEGAN HIS THIRD ROUND TRIP TO ITALY.

ANOTHER LAWYER HERE IS MAJOR REGGIE WILLIAMS OF MIAMI — ONE REASON FOR OUR CLOSE LIAISON WITH GEN. SIR HAROLD ALEXANDER AND THE BRITISH. WILLIAMS, WHO HAD PLAYED IMPORTANT TACTICAL ROLES WITH GEN. ALEXANDER IN TUNISIA, DOES TACTICAL WORK NOW IN THE ITALIAN CAMPAIGN.

THEN THERE IS BOB COOK OF MIAMI, ATTACKED TO THE U.S. NAVY TECHNICAL STAFF. COOK SPENDS HIS DAYS AND NIGHTS SEEING THAT THE LANDING CRAFT ENGINES DO THEIR STUFF. IN PEACE TIME HE HAD BEEN A BROKER.

THE SARDINIA COUP FOLLOWED THE DRAMATIC ESCAPE OF MARSHAL BADOGLIO, WHO TOLD ITALIANS IN A BROADCAST THURSDAY THAT IT WAS THEIR "ABSOLUTE DUTY TO FIGHT ON THE SIDE OF THE BRITISH AND AMERICANS AGAINST THE GERMANS AND AGAINST A FEW SENSELESS ITALIANS--NO LONGER OF SUCH NAME--WHO PUT THEMSELVES AT THEIR COMMAND."

"DO NOT FORGET THAT ALL TALK ABOUT UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER IS OUT OF DATE AND IRRELEVANT TO THE CHANGED CONDITIONS OF TODAY," BADOGLIO TOLD HIS PEOPLE, "WE HAVE INTERVENED DECISIVELY AGAINST GERMANY FOLLOWING ON THE AGGRESSIVE ATTITUDE OF THE GERMANS. WE ARE COOPERATING SIDE BY SIDE WITH THE ANGLO-AMERICANS WHO ARE NOW ACCEPTING OUR ASSISTANCE IN THE TASK OF DRIVING THE GERMANS FROM THE COUNTRY.

"MOREOVER, THE BRITISH AND AMERICANS, OUR ERSTWHILE COMRADES OF THE PIAVE (SCENE OF ITALIAN VICTORY IN WORLD WAR 1) AND VITTORIO VENETO DID NOT HESITATE TO STATE THAT THEIR ULTIMATE AIM IS THE REBIRTH OF A STRONG AND UNITED ITALY AND THAT THEY WILL NOT WITHDRAW THEIR HELP FROM US WHEN THE TIME COMES TO REPAIR THE HAVOC OF WAR AND TO RECONSTRUCT OUR FUTURE."

HE RALLIED OUTNUMBERED ITALIANS TO GUERRILLA WARFARE CALLING ON THEM TO "CUT COMMUNICATIONS, BLOW UP BRIDGES AND DUMPS, ATTACK ISOLATED MEN AND EQUIPMENT."

SARDINIA HAS TEN OR SO AIRFIELDS WITHIN CLOSER RANGE OF CENTRAL AND NORTHERN ITALY AND SOUTHERN FRANCE. AN ALLIED SPOKESMAN SAID PROBABLY LITTLE USE WOULD BE MADE IMMEDIATELY OF SARDINIA BECAUSE CHIEF OPERATIONS ARE ON THE MAINLAND. NORTHERN SARDINIA LIES 150 MILES WEST OF ROME AND ONLY SEVEN MILES ACROSS THE STRAIT OF BONIFACIO FROM CORSICA.

THAT FRENCH ISLAND, BIRTHPLACE OF NAPOLEON AND OCCUPIED BY ITALY AFTER THE FALL OF FRANCE, PRESENTS EVEN NEARER BASES TO GREAT TARGETS. NORTHERN CORSICA LIES 110 MILES FROM THE FRENCH PORT OF NICE, 103 MILES FROM GENOA, 58 FROM LEGHORN AND 76 FROM LA SPEZIA.

BADOGLIO ESCAPED ROME ONLY A FEW HOURS BEFORE THE GERMAN ENTRY, AN AMERICAN OFFICIAL SAID. HE AND HIS MILITARY ADVISERS SLIPPED AWAY IN GOVERNMENT CARS BEFORE DAWN ON SEPT. 9 REACHING A PORT WHERE THEY BOARDED AN ITALIAN VESSEL WHICH TOOK THEM TO ALLIED TERRITORY, COMPLETELY ELUDING THE GERMANS WHO APPARENTLY WERE AT NO TIME CLOSE.

THE GERMANS APPEARED TO BE IN FULL RETREAT FROM THE SALERNO AREA.

"CONSIDERABLE COLUMNS OF ENEMY VEHICLES WERE OBSERVED WITHDRAW-

ING," AN ALLIED SPOKESMAN SAID. "THE FIFTH ARMY HAS ADVANCED NORTH OF BATTIPAGLIA (SIX MILES INLAND AND 15 SOUTHEAST OF SALERNO) IN THE FACE OF STUBBORN OPPOSITION. SMALL GAINS ALSO WERE MADE IN THE VICINITY OF MONTECORVINO."

THE BRITISH FIFTH CORPS ENCOUNTERED NO GERMANS IN CAPTURING GIOJA, BUT HAD TO CLEAR EXTENSIVE MINE FIELDS. THEIR POSITION ON THE ADRIATIC BEYOND BARI HAS NOT BEEN REPORTED IN ALMOST A WEEK.

NEWS WAS SCARCE FROM GEN.SIR BERNARD L.MONTGOMERY'S EIGHTH ARMY WHICH HAD SWEPT 250 MILES OF SOUTHERN ITALY TO EFFECT A JUNCTION WITH CLARK. MONTGOMERY NORMALLY PAUSES TO REPLENISH SUPPLIES, REST AND REGROUP AFTER LONG MARCHES.

THE ALLIED STRATEGIC AIRFORCE TOOK SUNDAY OFF, BUT THE TACTICAL AIRFORCE HAMMERED GERMAN COLUMNS WHEREVER FOUND WITH A VIOLENCE REMINISCENT OF THE DAYS WHEN THE BRITISH WERE MAKING A TORTURED RETREAT FROM GREECE. #

ALTHOUGH ITALIANS ARE REPORTED TO HAVE FOUGHT WITH THE GERMANS IN MANY PARTS OF THE PENINSULA IN SPONTANEOUS OUTBURSTS, THIS WAS THE FIRST OFFICIAL INSTRUCTION FOR THEM TO TAKE UP ARMS, EITHER AGAINST THE GERMANS OR FELLOW ITALIANS WHO REMAIN LOYAL TO HITLER.

IN HIS ORIGINAL INSTRUCTIONS UPON ANNOUNCING THE ARMISTICE ON SEPT. 8, BADOGLIO HAD ORDERED HIS COUNTRYMEN TO CEASE FIGHTING AGAINST AMERICANS AND BRITISH AND TO RESIST ONLY IF ATTACKED FROM ANY OTHER QUARTER.

JUST BEFORE THE PROCLAMATION WAS PUBLISHED TODAY, AN AMERICAN WHO HAD TALKED WITH THE ITALIAN CHIEFTAIN GAVE THE FIRST AUTHORITATIVE ACCOUNT OF BADOGLIO'S ESCAPE FROM THE NEAR CLUTCHES OF THE GERMANS.

BADOGLIO, WHO FORMED AN ITALIAN GOVERNMENT ON JULY 25, THE DAY OF MUSSOLINI'S FALL, REALIZED THAT GERMAN TROOPS SURROUNDED ROME AND INTENDED TO SEIZE THE CAPITAL, HIMSELF AND KING VITTORIO EMANUELE, THE AMERICAN SAID.

BEFORE DAWN ON SEPT.9, A FEW HOURS AFTER ANNOUNCING ITALY'S UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER TO THE ALLIES, HE AND HIS MILITARY ADVISERS MADE UP AN AUTOMOBILE CARAVAN AND SPED TO A PORT ON THE ITALIAN COAST. A FEW HOURS LATER THE GERMANS OCCUPIED ROME.

AT THE PORT, BADOGLIO AND HIS PARTY BOARDED AN ITALIAN SHIP AND PROCEEDED IN BROAD DAYLIGHT DOWN THE COAST TO ALLIED OCCUPIED TERRITORY WITHOUT SIGHTING ANY PURSUING GERMANS.

AT THE 10TH U.S. AIR FORCE HEADQUARTERS IN INDIA, SEPT 20-(AP)-A STORY OF AERIAL WARFARE IN THE CHINA-BURMA-INDIA THEATER OF OPERATIONS WAS TOLD TODAY BY CREWMEN OF A LIBERATOR BOMBER.

THE PLANE, PILOTED BY CAPT.RAYMOND ROTE, 23, PHOENIX, ARIZ., WAS ASSIGNED WITH TWO OTHERS TO PHOTOGRAPH AND BOMB JAP INSTALLATIONS ON TINY NICOBAR ISLAND, WEST OF THE MALAY PENINSULA AND NORTH OF DUTCH

SUMATRA.

THE TRIP WAS BELIEVED TO BE THE WAR'S LONGEST OVER-WATER COMBAT MISSION.

THIS WAS THE SECOND TIME THAT ROTE'S CREW HAD MADE A HAZARDOUS FLIGHT. THE FIRST TIME, THEY SANK A LARGE FREIGHTER ANCHORED OFF AN ISLAND. THEY BARELY GOT BACK THIS SECOND TIME.

THANKS TO LT.GUY SPOTTS, WILLIAMSPORT, PA., NAVIGATOR, THE LIBERATOR HIT THE ISLAND ON THE NOSE. ROTE DROPPED THE BIG BOMBER TO 1,500 FEET AND SWEPT ACROSS THE ISLAND TO GIVE SGT.WILLIAM SHELLEY, YREKA, CALIF., PHOTOGRAPHER, GOOD SHOTS AT THE INSTALLATIONS.

A HAIL OF ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE ROSE, THE LIBERATOR LURCHED, THE NUMBER THREE ENGINE CAUGHT ON FIRE AND THE PLANE DROPPED TO 500 FEET. THE OTHER LIBERATORS FLASHED PAST.

SGT.JOSEPH WILLIS, AUGUSTA, ARK., OPENED UP WITH THE TAIL-GUNS ALTHOUGH OIL FROM THE DESTROYED ENGINE COVERED THE TURRET.

"WHEN I STARTED SHOOTING, THE JAPS LEFT THE GUNS AND JUMPED FOR COVER. WHEN I STOPPED, THEY RETURNED. IT'S FUNNY NOW, BUT IT WASN'T THEN," WILLIS SAID.

ROTE'S PLANE WAS SO LOW SHELLEY'S PICTURES SHOWED THE HANDS AND FEET OF THE JAPANESE.

THE PLANE'S TAIL WAS HEAVY SO ROTE ORDERED ALL CREWMEN FORWARD.

GUEST CO-PILOT THAT DAY WAS LT.COL.BERTRAM HARRISON, LEESBURG, VA.

OTHER CREWMEN INCLUDED LT.ROBERT CURRIE, BIG SPRING, TEX., AND SERGEANTS FERDINAND KNECHTEL, ELLWOOD CITY, PA., NORMAN GUYER, KENNEWICK, WASH., CARL PAAK, ANTICO, WIS., AND THOMAS TONER, BERRY, PA.

CAPT.HENRY COKE, DALLAS, TEX., INTELLIGENCE OFFICER, WENT ALONG TO SEE WHAT THE BOYS WERE UP AGAINST. "I SURE FOUND OUT," HE COMMENTED.

HOMEWARD BOUND, EVERYTHING POSSIBLE WAS JETTISONED TO LIGHTEN THE LOAD AND CONSERVE GASOLINE.

HOURS PASSED AND COKE WENT TO SLEEP. "YOU CAN'T STAY SCARED ALL THE TIME," HE SAID. "IT WEARS YOU OUT."

THE GASOLINE GAUGES SHOWED ZERO WHEN THE COAST WAS VIEWED. RADIO OPERATOR GUYER CONTACTED A FIELD WHICH LIGHTED A RUNWAY.

ROTE MADE A PERFECT LANDING, BUT THE NOSE WHEEL ANTI-CLIMACTICALLY BLEW OUT.

DURING THE RETURN TRIP, CURRIE READ A WESTERN STORY WHICH HE CALLED "A SWELL STORY WITH LOTS OF EXCITEMENT--JUST THE KIND I LIKE."

MOSCOW, SEPT 20-(AP)-U.S.AMBASSADOR WILLIAM H.STANDLEY DEPARTED SUDDENLY FROM MOSCOW BY PLANE YESTERDAY AND AN OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT SAID HE WAS ENROUTE TO WASHINGTON FOR CONSULTATIONS.

THERE WAS LITTLE BELIEF HERE, HOWEVER, THAT HE WOULD RETURN. THE ADMIRAL, WHO IS 71, HAD NOT PLANNED TO SPEND ANOTHER WINTER IN RUSSIA UNLESS HIS PRESENCE WAS CONSIDERED ABSOLUTELY NECESSARY.

(LONDON SPECULATED THAT ADMIRAL STANDLEY'S DEPARTURE MIGHT OPEN THE WAY FOR W.AVERELL HARRIMAN, LONDON LEND-LEASE ADMINISTRATOR, TO PARTICIPATE IN A THREE-POWER CONFERENCE IN MOSCOW)

IN CHARGE IN MOSCOW WITH THE DEPARTURE OF STANDLEY IS MAXWELL M.HAMILTON, WHO CAME HERE IN JULY AS EMBASSY COUNSELOR.

AN ADVANCED SOUTH PACIFIC AIRBASE, SEPT.16-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THE SWASHBUCKLERS, A SQUADRON OF MARINE FIGHTER PILOTS, HAVE DESTROYED 33 JAPANESE PLANES IN TWO TOURS OF DUTY.

THE SQUADRON NOW BOASTS THREE ACES, SAYS SECOND LT.PENN T. KIMBALL OF NEW BRITAIN, CONN., A MARINE PUBLIC RELATIONS OFFICER.

THE ACES ARE SECOND LT.ALVIN J.JENSEN OF (1236 11TH ST., N. W.) WASHINGTON, D.C., SIX PLANES; FIRST LT.STANLEY T. SYNAR OF WARNER, OKLA., AND FIRST LT.HARTWELL V.SCARBOROUGH OF AULANDER, N.C., EACH WITH FIVE ENEMY PLANES.

RECENTLY, LIEUTENANT KIMBALL REPORTED, THE SWASHBUCKLERS MADE A DARING, DUSK ATTACK ON THE IMPORTANT JAPANESE AIRBASE AT KAHILI, BOUGAINVILLE ISLAND.

THE MARINES SWOOPED DOWN ON 20 ENEMY PLANES CIRCLING FOR A LANDING. THEY SHOT THREE OUT OF THE AIR AND DESTROYED FOUR MORE ON THE GROUND. THEN THEY SPRAYED THE FIELD WITH MACHINEGUN BULLETS, KILLING ABOUT 50 JAPANESE GROUND CREWMEN, BURNING FIVE TRUCKS AND SHATTERING THE FIELD'S CONTROL TOWER.

ANOTHER TIME THE SWASHBUCKLERS SHOT DOWN 10 PLANES IN A

SINGLE FIGHT. THEY ALSO SAVED A U.S. NAVY SEAPLANE TENDER BY DOWNING THREE ATTACKING BOMBERS AND DRIVING OFF THE REST.

THE SQUADRON COMMANDER, MAJ.JOHN R.BURNETT OF (1301 MASSACHUSETTS AVE., N.W.) WASHINGTON, D.C., HAS TWO ENEMY PLANES TO HIS CREDIT IN ADDITION TO HIS OUTSTANDING LEADERSHIP.

FIRST LT.JACK W.PETIT OF (2423 11TH ST.) CANTON, OHIO, HAS SHOT DOWN THREE PLANES, AND SECOND LT.ROBERT M.HANSON OF NEWTONVILLE, MASS., HASS BAGGED TWO.

OTTAWA, SEPT 20-(AP)-NEW CONTROL MEASURES TO KEEP EMPLOYEES OF HIGH PRIORITY INDUSTRIES AT THEIR PRESENT JOBS WERE ANNOUNCED LATE TODAY BY LABOR MINISTER HUMPHREY MITCHELL.

THE LATEST MANPOWER REGULATIONS, WHICH PRACTICALLY AMOUNTED TO FREEZING OF MALE WORKERS IN "A" AND "B" PRIORITY INDUSTRIES, REQUIRE THAT MEN IN THESE CATEGORIES NOW MAY NOT BE RELEASED BY THEIR EMPLOYERS AND MAY NOT GIVE NOTICE OF SEPARATION TO THEIR EMPLOYERS WITHOUT FIRST OBTAINING THE WRITTEN PERMISSION OF A SELECTIVE SERVICE OFFICER.

TORONTO, SEPT. 20-(AP)-FULL SUPPORT FOR PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT WAS ADVOCATED TODAY BY S.H.DALRYMPLE, PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED RUBBER WORKERS OF AMERICA (CIO) IN HIS PRESIDENTIAL ADDRESS TO THE EIGHTH ANNUAL CONVENTION OF THE UNION HERE.

AFTER ASSERTING THAT "WE ARE GOING TO BE CONFRONTED WITH A NATIONAL ELECTION IN 1944," DALRYMPLE SAID LABOR HAD BENEFITTED UNDER THE PRESENT ADMINISTRATION BY THE PASSING OF THE WAGNER ACT, SOCIAL SECURITY LAWS AND OTHER LEGISLATION.

"DURING THE NEXT YEAR WE HAVE A PROFOUND DUTY TO PERFORM," HE SAID. "CERTAINLY WE CANNOT AFFORD TO SIT IDLY BY LIKE WE DID IN THE LAST ELECTION AND ALLOW A NUMBER OF PROGRESSIVE-MINDED CONGRESSMEN

AND SENATORS TO BE OUSTED AND REACTIONARIES ELECTED TO TAKE THEIR PLACE.

"NEITHER CAN WE ACCORD TO FAIL TO GIVE UNDIVIDED AND FULL SUPPORT TO OUR COMMANDER IN CHIEF, THE HONORABLE FRANKLIN DELANO ROOSEVELT."

A.R.MOSHER, PRESIDENT OF THE CANADIAN CONGRESS OF LABOR IN A SPEECH SAID THAT CANADIAN WORKERS NEED A LABOR CODE SIMILAR TO THAT OF THE UNITED STATES.

SEP 21 1943

"WE IN CANADA ARE STILL STRIVING FOR A LABOR CODE GUARANTEEING WORKERS THE RIGHT TO ORGANIZE AND BARGAIN COLLECTIVELY AND PUNISHING EMPLOYERS WHO DO NOT WANT TO RECOGNIZE LABOR'S RIGHT," HE SAID.

MOSHER EXPRESSED HOPE THAT AFTER THE WAR, "A ROUND TABLE CONFERENCE OF WORKERS FROM GREAT BRITAIN, CANADA, THE UNITED STATES, RUSSIA AND OTHER ALLIES WILL HAVE ITS PLACE IN THE BUILDING OF A WORLD OF FREEDOM."

JUDGE G.J.PATTERSON OF AKRON, OHIO, A MEMBER OF THE UNION'S GENERAL COUNCIL SAID THAT IN THE UNITED STATES, "THE GOVERNMENT HAS ASSURED SECURITY FOR LABOR ORGANIZATIONS NEVER BEFORE EXPERIENCED IN ANY COUNTRY IN TIME OF WAR, THROUGH THE RIGHT OF SELF-ORGANIZATION AND COLLECTIVE BARGAINING.

"WE OWE IT TO THAT GREATEST OF ALL COMMANDERS IN CHIEFS FOR SEEING THAT LABOR ORGANIZATIONS ARE PROTECTED."

INCREASED BENEFITS AND ASSURANCE OF SECURITY, HE SAID, "WERE GIVEN US BY THE GOVERNMENT BECAUSE WE MADE A PLEDGE TO MAINTAIN UNINTERRUPTED WAR PRODUCTION. AND WE KEPT THAT PLEDGE."

"AS A RESULT OF DILIGENCE, POLICY AND STRENGTH, THE UNION HAS SUCCEEDED IN BRINGING UP THE RATES OF PAY OF RUBBER WORKERS IN LOWER PAID PLANTS, REDUCING THE TEMPTATION OF THE INDUSTRY TO MOVE ITS PRODUCTION FROM HIGHER PAID TO LOWER PAID AREAS OF AMERICA."

THOMAS F.BURNS, OF WASHINGTON, MEMBER OF THE UNION EXECUTIVE BOARD, AND DEPUTY VICE-CHAIRMAN OF THE U.S.WAR PRODUCTION BOARD SAID THAT, "SYNTHETIC RUBBER MANUFACTURE IS THE GRANDEST CHALLENGE EVER TOSSED TO AMERICAN WORKERS.

SEP 21 1943

"MANAGEMENT AND LABOR ARE GETTING TOGETHER," HE SAID, "TO WORK OUT THEIR COMMON PROBLEMS SUCH AS PRODUCTION, STOCK AND PLANT LAYOUT. ANY WORKER WHO HOLDS BACK ON PRODUCTION IS DISLOYAL AND TREASONABLE."

DISAPPROVAL WAS EXPRESSED OF "THE ATTEMPT OF CERTAIN ELEMENTS IN THE RUBBER INDUSTRY TO BUILD NEW PLANTS OUTSIDE OF EXISTING PRODUCTION AREAS." THIS WAS "INJURIOUS TO THE WAR EFFORT, X X X CONSUMING STRATEGIC MATERIALS, USING VITALLY NEEDED MANPOWER," THE STATEMENT ADDED.

IT WENT ON: "WE URGE THE RUBBER INDUSTRY TO MAKE ALL USEABLE EQUIPMENT AVAILABLE FOR IMMEDIATE USE."

WITH PARTICULAR REFERENCE TO CONDITIONS IN THE UNITED STATES, THE STATEMENT EXPRESSED:

1. "UNQUALIFIED OPPOSITION TO ANY PROPOSALS FOR A NATIONAL SERVICE LAW," AS LEADING TO, "DETERIORATION OF MORALE AMONG THE NATION'S WORKERS BY FREEZING THEM TO THEIR JOBS."

2. APPROVAL OF THE PROGRAM OF THE CIO POLITICAL ACTION COMMITTEE, UNDER THE CHAIRMANSHIP OF SIDNEY HILLMAN.

3. SUPPORT OF MORE RIGID PRICE CONTROLS AND OVER-ALL RATIONING OF THE NECESSITIES OF LIFE.

SEP 21 1943

4. HOPE THAT THE AMERICAN CONGRESS, IN CONSIDERING NEW TAX MEASURES, WOULD "END LOOPHOLES IN THE INCOME TAX LAWS AND INCREASE THE RATES FOR INCOMES OF MORE THAN $35,000 A YEAR WITH 100 PER CENT TAXATION FOR ALL EARNINGS ABOVE $25,000 A YEAR AND DRASTIC TAXATION OF CORPORATION PROFITS AND SURPLUSES."

5. SUPPORT OF THE WAGNER-MURRAY-DINGELL BILL, PROVIDING GREATER SOCIAL SECURITY BENEFITS.

6. DEMAND FOR THE REPEAL OF THE SMITH-CONNALLY BILL AS "ENCOURAGEMENT TO STRIKES AND STOPPAGES IN WAR TIME," AND FOR THE REPEAL OF THE STATE POLL TAX.

NEW YORK SEPT 20-(AP)-THE TOKYO RADIO OBSERVED JAPAN'S "FOURTH ANNUAL AVIATION DAY" TODAY WITH A SERIES OF UNHAPPY TALKS WHICH INCLUDED THE FIRST JAPANESE OVERSEAS RADIO ACKNOWLEDGMENT OF THE LOSS TO THE ALLIES OF SALAMAUA AND LAE, STRATEGIC PACIFIC BASES.

THE BROADCASTS, REPORTED BY THE U.S.FOREIGN BROADCAST INTELLIGENCE SERVICE, LISTED GRIMLY THE HARDSHIPS BEING ENDURED BY JAPANESE FORCES AND STRESSED THE NEED FOR INCREASED PLANE PRODUCTION TO KEEP PACE WITH GROWING ALLIED STRENGTH.

WHILE THEY TALKED OF THE LOSS OF SALAMAUA AND LAE IN TODAY'S OVERSEAS BROADCASTS, THE TOKYO PROPAGANDISTS HAVE NOT BEEN HEARD BY U.S. MONITORS TO ADMIT THE LOSSES TO THEIR OWN PEOPLE AT HOME.

IN ONE BROADCAST, VICE ADMIRAL KEN TERASHIMA, MINISTER OF COMMUNICATIONS, TOLD JAPANESE WAR WORKERS THEY COULD NOT "AFFORD TO BE RELAXED" IN PRODUCTION AND REMINDED THEM THAT THE UNITED STATES WAS "STEADILY BRINGING OUT NEW AND BETTER MAKES OF FIGHTERS AND OTHER AIRCRAFT."

"SHOULD YOU PRODUCE OR SUPPLY EVEN AN OUNCE OR A SHEET MORE OF NEEDED MATERIAL, OR TRY TO CONSERVE FACTORY SPACE, LABOR HOURS AND THE LIKE, YOU ARE DOING A GREAT AND VALUABLE WORK IN TIME OF WAR," HE SAID.

ONE TOKYO ANNOUNCER TOLD OF THE JAPANESE NEED FOR MORE PILOTS, AND SAID THAT EVEN "HIS HIGHNESS, PRINCE TKAHIKO ASAKA," HAD COMPLETED TRAINING AT ARMY AVIATION SCHOOL AND WOULD BE ASSIGNED TO INSTRUCT IN FLYING "IN SPITE OF BEING A MEMBER OF THE ROYAL FAMILY."

NEW YORK, SEPT 20-(AP)-TWO VATICAN RADIO BROAD CASTS LAST NIGHT INDICATED THAT GERMAN MANEUVERS HAD INTERRUPTED SOME VATICAN CITY ROUTINE, EVEN WHILE THE BERLIN RADIO DENIED THE PLACING OF ANY RESTRICTIONS THERE.

SEP 21 1943

"OWING TO CIRCUMSTANCES BEYOND OUR CONTROL," SAID ONE SPANISH-LANGUAGE BROADCAST RECORDED BY U.S.GOVERNMENT MONITORS, "POSTAL COMMUNICATION WITH OUR LISTENERS CONTINUES TO BE INTERRUPTED."

IT WAS NOT BROUGHT OUT WHETHER THE DISRUPTION OF MAIL SERVICE WAS DUE TO THE CLOSING OF ITALY'S NORTHERN FRONTIERS BY THE GERMANS, THE ESTABLISHMENT OF NAZI GUARDS IN ST.PETER'S SQUARE, OR OTHER FACTORS.

IN A BROADCAST OF MESSAGES FROM BRITISH PRISONERS IN ITALY THE VATICAN ANNOUNCER OMITTED MENTION OF THE CAMPS IN WHICH THE PRISONERS WERE CONFINED, ALTHOUGH HERETOFORE CAMP NAMES HAD BEEN GIVEN.

A DNB DISPATCH TRANSMITTED BY THE BERLIN RADIO AND RECORDED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS SAID GERMAN GOVERNMENT CIRCLES "EMPHATICALLY STRESSED THAT THE LIBERTY OF THE VATICAN NEVER HAS BEEN SUBMITTED TO ANY RESTRICTIONS WHATSOEVER." IT ADDED THAT VATICAN OFFICIALS "THUS HAD FULL LIBERTY OF ACTION IN THEIR DEALING WITH PEOPLE OUTSIDE THE VATICAN."

THE GERMAN BROADCAST CHARACTERIZED AS "FREE INVENTIONS" REPORTS THAT GERMAN MILITARY QUARTERS HAD IMPOSED RESTRICTIONS UPON THE VATICAN AND THAT POPE PIUS XII HAD REFUSED TO RECEIVE FIELD MARSHAL GEN.ALBERT KESSERLING.

ON SEPT.10 THE GERMANS ANNOUNCED THAT THEY HAD SEIZED ROME AND HAD "ASSUME PROTECTION OF VATICAN CITY."

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

BY KIRKE L.SIMPSON

ASSOCIATED PRESS WAR ANALYST

ANGLO-AMERICAN FORCES ARE WITHIN SIGHT OF NAPLES FROM THE CAPTURED HEIGHTS OF SORRENTO PENINSULA OVERLOOKING THE NAPLES BAY, BUT BLOCKING THEIR WAY TO DIRECT NORTHWARD ADVANCE STANDS MOUNT VESUVIUS, AS FORMIDABLE AS MOUNT ETNA WAS IN SICILY.

VESUVIUS, RISING NEARLY 5,000 FEET IN AIR BEHIND A NARROW COASTAL SHELF MIDWAY BETWEEN THE NORTHERN AND SOUTHERN SHORES OF THE BAY, AFFORDS A POWERFUL NATURAL ANCHOR FOR A NEW NAZI DEFENSE LINE TO PROTECT NAPLES ITSELF.

SEP 21 1943

THERE IS EVERY REASON TO EXPECT ALLIED ENCIRCLEMENT TACTICS BY LAND AND SEA OR BOTH IF THE RETREATING GERMAN DIVISIONS FALLING BACK FROM THE SALERNO BRIDGEHEAD SECTOR ATTEMPT A NEW STAND ON THE SLOPES OF THE FAMOUS VOLCANO.

THERE IS NO DOUBT ABOUT THAT RETREAT, ONLY ABOUT THE AMOUNT OF GROUND THE NAZIS ARE PREPARING TO SURRENDER IN ITALY AND ABOUT ALLIED MOVES TO TURN THE RETREAT INTO A ROUT. GERMAN EVACUATION OF THE SORRENTO HEIGHTS, OCCUPIED BY 5TH ARMY PATROLS WITHOUT APPARENT HEAVY FIGHTING, COULD HAVE NO OTHER MEANING.

IT MAY PROVE, HOWEVER, THAT NAPLES ITSELF IS NOW REGARDED AS UNTENABLE BY THE NAZI HIGH COMMAND EXCEPT FOR DELAYING ACTION BASED ON MOUNT VESUVIUS. THERE IS A WIDER AND DEEPER POTENTIAL ALLIED BRIDGEHEAD JUST NORTH OF NAPLES ON THE SHORES OF GAETA GULF THAN THE SALERNO AND EBOLI PLAINS AFFORDED.

WITH THE ISLANDS OF ISCHIA AND PROCIDA, OFF THE TIP OF THE NAPLES PROMONTORY, ALSO IN ALLIED HANDS, NEW ALLIED BEACH LANDINGS ABOVE NAPLES ARE PRACTICABLE. THERE IS AN ARC OF FLAT LAND THERE ON THE VOLTURNO PLAINS, SOME 30 MILES WIDE AND 15 MILES MORE IN DEPTH BEFORE THE INSHORE HEIGHTS ARE REACHED, INVITING FURTHER ALLIED AMPHIBIAN OPERATIONS TO BY-PASS VESUVIUS AND NAPLES AND OUT-

FLANK THE NAZIS FROM THE NORTH.

IMPORTANT ITALIAN HELP IN ROUTING THE GERMANS FROM THE WHOLE SOUTH-CENTRAL PORTION OF THE ITALIAN BOOT IS FORECAST BY DEVELOPMENTS ON SARDINIA AND CORSICA. BOTH HAVE BEEN EFFECTIVELY CLEARED OF GERMAN FORCES BY ITALIAN FORCES ACTING APPARENTLY IN DIRECT COMPLIANCE WITH THE BROADCAST APPEAL OF MARSHAL BADOGLIO TO ALL ITALIANS TO TURN UPON THEIR FORMER NAZI ALLIES AND "FIGHT SIDE BY SIDE WITH THE BRITISH AND AMERICANS."

AND NOW COMES WORD THAT FRENCH COMMANDOS, TAKING THEIR FIRST ACTIVE PART IN THE WAR SINCE TUNISIA, HAVE LANDED ON CORSICA TO HELP THE FRENCH PATRIOTS CHASE THE NAZIS OUT OF THERE.

ALLIED SEIZURE OF THE GAETA BRIDGEHEAD WOULD BRING THE INVADING TROOPS WITHIN 150 MILES OR LESS OF ROME. IT WOULD MAKE SHUTTLE BOMBING OF ALL NAZI ESCAPE ROUTES FROM THE ITALIAN PENINSULA TO THE PO LINE IN THE NORTH A SIMPLE MATTER EITHER FROM BASES ON THE SHORES OF GAETA GULF OR FROM CORSICA, AND NAZI COMMANDERS SEEM AWARE OF THAT DANGER. IT MAY BE THAT THE SALERNO VICTORY BY GENERAL CLARK'S AMPHIBIOUS FORCE HAS CRACKED THE WHOLE ITALIAN PENINSULA TO FAST-PACED ALLIED OCCUPATION.

AS YET, HOWEVER, THE SCOPE AND DIRECTION OF THE GERMAN RETREAT FROM THE SALERNO FRONT AND FROM THE SOUTH IS NOT CLEARLY ENOUGH INDICATED TO FURNISH A GLIMPSE OF NAZI DEFENSE PLANS. THAT ENEMY FORCES ALONG THE SOUTHERN SEGMENT OF THE 5TH ARMY FRONT ARE IN FLIGHT NORTHEASTWARD TO ESCAPE ENTRAPMENT GOES WITHOUT SAYING IN VIEW OF THE GERMAN RETREAT FROM THE SORRENTO PENINSULA FARTHER NORTH.

THE IMPLICATION IS THAT THE BRITISH FORCES ON THE EAST COAST

ND

FROM TARANTO ARE CONVERGING NORTHEASTWARD FOR A DRIVE UP THE ADRIATIC COAST WHICH IS EASIER TERRAIN THAN THE WEST COAST. AN ALLIED ADVANCE TO OUTFLANK THE NAPLES-FOGGIA LINE FROM THE EAST SHOULD THE NAZI ATTEMPT TO STAND ON THAT SHORT FRONT ACROSS THE PENINSULA MAY BE IN THE MAKING.

THE RED DRUMS CONTINUE TO ROLL OUT THEIR MESSAGE OF THE SMASHING OF HITLER'S GREATEST BATTLE-LINE, AND STILL MORE OF THE HOUSE THAT ADOLF BUILT ON THE MEDITERRANEAN SANDS HAS COLLAPSED OVER THE WEEK-END, BUT WE SHOULDN'T LET THESE EVENTS IN NEIGHBORING EUROPE BLIND US TO THE SIGNIFICANCE OF GENERAL MACARTHUR'S BRILLIANT COUP IN THE CAPTURE OF THE JAP BASE OF LAE ON THE FETID ISLAND OF NEW GUINEA HALF WAY ROUND THE GLOBE.

AS THE CRYSTAL BALL READS, THE CONQUEST OF LAE AND ITS BROTHER BASE OF SALAMAUA PRESAGES IMPORTANT DEVELOPMENTS IN THE NEAR FUTURE. I THINK WE CAN BEGIN TO LOOK FOR ANOTHER BIG NAVAL AND AIR ENGAGEMENT TO GROW OUT OF THE PRESENT SITUATION."

FURTHER INDICATION THAT WE ARE WITNESSING THE BEGINNING OF A NEW PHASE OF ALLIED OFFENSIVE IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC IS SEEN IN THE ATTACK BY STRONG AMERICAN NAVAL FORCES AT THE WEEK-END ON TARAWA ISLAND IN THE GILBERT GROUP, AND ON NAUR ISLAND WEST OF THE GILBERTS. THE WATERS OF THE SOUTH PACIFIC ARE BEGINNING TO BOIL.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT IN HIS MESSAGE TO CONGRESS CALLED POINTED ATTENTION TO THE FACT THAT THE POSITION "HAS BECOME A THREAT ON OUR PART AGAINST THE JAPANESE IN THE SEAS THAT LIE NORTH OF THE SOLOMONS AND NORTH OF NEW GUINEA." MACARTHUR HAVING PERSONALLY DIRECTED THIS FRESH OPERATION AGAINST NEW GUINEA, PART OF THE TIME FROM A FLYING FORTRESS OVER THE SMOKING-HOT JUNGLES, ALSO HAS SAID THAT THE LAE VICTORY IS A SERIOUS BLOW TO THE JAPS.

"WITH GOLD'S HELP WE ARE MAKING OUR WAY BACK," HE SAID IN A SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT. HE OF COURSE HAD REFERENCE TO THE PHILIPPINES, WHICH HE HAS SWORN TO REDEEM.

NOW THAT'S STRONG TESTIMONY, COMING AS IT DOES FROM THE COMMANDER IN CHIEF IN WASHINGTON, AND HIS CAPTAIN IN THE FAR PACIFIC, AND THE SIGNIFICANCE OF IT IS THIS. THE NEW GUINEA COAST ON WHICH LAE IS SITUATED (PLEASE GET OUT THE MAPS!) LIES CLOSE TO THE ISLAND OF NEW BRITAIN WHERE THE JAPS HAVE THEIR POWERFUL BASE OF RABAUL. THIS BASE IS THE KEY TO ALL THE ISLANDS WHICH THEY HOLD IN THE NEW GUINEA AND SOLOMONS AREA.

LAE GIVES MACARTHUR A SPRINGBOARD FROM WHICH TO STRIKE AT RABAUL. IMPORTANT AS RABAUL IS, HOWEVER, MACARTHUR ALREADY IS LOOKING ACROSS IT TO ANOTHER MUCH BIGGER PRIZE SOME 800 MILES FARTHER NORTH. THAT'S THE ISLAND OF TRUK WHERE THE NIPPONESE HAVE THE MOST POWERFUL NAVAL BASE OF THEIR MANDATED ISLAND GROUP. THE WATERS OF THAT STRONGHOLD ARE HEADQUARTERS FOR A BIG PART OF THE MIKADO'S FLEET WHICH ISN'T IN HOME WATERS.

POSSESSION OF THE STRATEGIC ISLAND OF TRUK--WHICH WE PROPOSE TO HAVE--WILL PUT US IN A HIGHLY FAVORABLE POSITION FOR NAVAL OPERATIONS TOWARDS THE PHILIPPINES, THE EAST INDIES AND JAPAN HERSELF. BUT CAPTURE OF TRUK MUST MEAN ANOTHER GREAT NAVAL BATTLE, UNLESS THE LITTLE MEN OF NIPPON RUN AWAY.

THE UNITED STATES NAVY IS EAGER FOR A SHOWDOWN, BUT THE JAPS HAVE SHOWN LITTLE EAGERNESS FOR ANOTHER MAJOR CLASH WITH UNCLE SAM'S FLEET. STILL, THAT BATTLE IS BOUND TO COME. WHEN IT DOES IT'S LIKELY TO FAIRLY WELL SETTLE THE NAVAL ARGUMENT OUTSIDE JAPAN'S HOME WATERS WHERE THEY ARE HOLDING THE MAIN FLEET AS A VITAL PROTECTION FOR THEIR TINY ISLAND KINGDOM. IN THIS CONNECTION IT'S IMPORTANT TO NOTE THAT THE JAPS HAVE BEEN STEADILY SLIPPING IN BOTH NAVAL AND AIR STRENGTH, AS THEY HAVEN'T BEEN ABLE TO REPLACE THE GREAT LOSSES WHICH WE HAVE BEEN INFLICTED ON THEM.

IT ISN'T UNLIKELY THAT THE OFFENSIVE WHICH IS STEADILY GROWING IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC MAY BE COORDINATED WITH THE PROJECTED DRIVE AGAINST BURMA. MR. ROOSEVELT IN HIS MESSAGE REAFFIRMED THAT "AFTER A LONG PERIOD OF DEFENSIVE STRATEGY IN BURMA, WE ARE DETERMINED TO TAKE THE OFFENSIVE THERE." AT THE BEST, A MAJOR AMPHIBIOUS ASSAULT ON BURMA CAN'T BE EXPECTED FOR SOME WEEKS YET, SINCE THE MONSOON SEASON WITH ITS DELUGE OF RAIN IS ONLY NOW COMING TO A CLOSE. ONCE THE DRY WEATHER ARRIVES, IT STILL WILL TAKE MUCH TIME TO GET A GREAT EXPEDITION UNDER WAY.

ONE WOULD EXPECT THAT UNDER NORMAL CONDITIONS LORD LOUIS MOUNTBATTEN, COMMANDER OF THE BURMA SHOW, AND GENERAL MACARTHUR WOULD COORDINATE THEIR EFFORTS, SO AS TO SPLIT THE JAPANESE NAVAL AND AIR FORCES.

Churchill Promises Invasion of Europe From West, Says 'Bloodiest Portion of War' Is Still to Come; 5th Army Captures Eboli, Naples Is in Flames

CHURCHILL GIVES INVASION PLEDGE

CHESTER

Mass Allied Attack to Be Made on France, Lowlands at 'Right Time.'

LONDON, Sept. 21—(AP) Winston Churchill pledged Parliament and the world today that a second front in France and the low countries—"which already exists potentially—will be thrown open with a mass Allied attack "at what we and our American Allies judge to be the right time."

In his two hours and seven minutes war report to Commons, the doughty prime minister ranged the whole global scene of the war, warmly defended the Allies' Italian campaign, which he called a "third front," and forecast a Stalin-Roosevelt-Churchill conference before the end of the year.

Reveals Yanks on Sardinia

During the long speech, one of his most studied and most comprehensive if not one of his greatest rhetorically, Mr. Churchill sketched enormous Allied progress in air and sea warfare, disclosed that American troops had landed in Sardinia and asserted that Mussolini never would have escaped if Italian caribinieri at Gran Sasso had obeyed the orders they had to shoot him if he attempted a getaway.

Cries of "Hear, Hear" swelled into an aproving roar through the chamber as Mr. Churchill declared: "The bloodiest portion — make no mistake about that—the bloodiest portion of this war for Great Britain and the United States lies ahead of us. Neither this House nor His Majesty's government will shrink from that ordeal."

Even now, the prime minister declared with feeling, Hitler's "main preoccupation" is with the mere menace of an inevitable and decisive thrust at Germany's heart from Great Britain.

During his speech, which he interrupted for a luncheon period, Mr. Churchill declared:

1—The R.A.F. has increased threefold in the last twelve months the weight of bombs discharged on Germany, "havoc wrought is indescribable"; if the R.A.F.'s growth continues, the Allies should "be in a position when actual methodical destruction of every building of the enemy would become possible."

U.-Boat Attacks Checked

2—Although U-boats at present are attacking one convoy, no Allied merchant vessel was sunk in the north Atlantic in the four months ending Sept. 18; in the first two weeks of September no Allied ships were sunk by enemy action anywhere in the world.

3—"At an early date" there will be a tripartite conference of the United States, Great Britain and Russia at which no question will be barred. Any differences may be referred to a Stalin-Roosevelt-Churchill conference which he "confidently hoped" would occur before the end of 1943.

4—The Allies are ready to throw large armies into Italy, there to deploy a mighty fighting front wherever the Germans try to make a stand. The vigor and weight of Allied efforts on this battlefront will be increased throughout the fall and winter if necessary.

5—French troops, which have struck in Corsica their first blow to retrieve their motherland, are being steadily reorganized into an army of 300,000 to 400,000; the battleship Richelieu soon will join the French fleet.

6—United States naval forcse already dominate the Pacific; surrender of the Italian fleet changed the Mediterranean naval picture decisively.

7—Lord Louis Mountbatten soon will arrive in New Delhi to set up a Far East Allied military headquarters comparable to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's establishment in North Africa; Japan's fundamental weakness lies in her steady loss of ships and planes faster than they can be replaced.

8—Seeking new weapons in the air-sea war, the Germans are using a bomb "which may be described as a sort of rocket-assisted glider which releases its bombs from a height and is directed towards its target by a parent aircraft." The weapon is used at close quarters against shipping close to the coast.

Speaks of Conference

Switching with easy confidence from pure military to political affairs, Mr. Churchill looked to a further rapprochement of Russia, Britain and the United States by speaking of the prospect of a Stalin-Roosevelt-Churchill conference with these words:

"No meeting during this war could carry with it so much significance for the future of the world as a meeting between the heads of the three governments, for without close, cordial and lasting association between Soviet Russia and their great Allies we might find ourselves at the end of the war only to have entered upon a period of deepening confusion."

On the military side, the prime minister delved at great length into the Mediterranean campaign. He declared it was not and never had been regarded "as a substitute for direct attack across the channel on the Germans in France and the low countries."

"On the contrary," he went on, "the opening of this new front in the Mediterranean was always intended to be an essential preliminary to the main attack upon Germany and her ring of subjugated and satellite states."

Premier Tells Commons Italy Is No Substitute for Second Front.

CALLS RUSSIAN PARLEY SET

Says Mussolini's Guards Failed to Obey Orders to Shoot Him if Rescue Was Attempted.

DANIEL

London, Sept. 21 (A. P.). — Prime Minister Churchill declared today that the second front will be thrown open "at the right time" and "a mass invasion of the Continent from the west will begin."

Calling the Mediterranean battlefield the "third front," he told the House of Commons that the second front "already exists potentially" and "already is rapidly gathering weight. . . . The second front exists and is a main preoccupation already with the enemy."

"It has not yet been thrown into play," he continued. "That time is coming.

"At what we and our American Allies judge to be the right time this front will be thrown open and a mass invasion of the Continent from the west will begin."

Cries of "Hear! Hear!" swelled into an approving roar through the chamber as Mr. Churchill declared: "The bloodiest portion—make no mistake about that—the bloodiest portion of this war for Great Britain and the United States lies ahead of us. Neither this House nor his Majesty's Government will shrink from that ordeal."

Salient Declarations.

Surveying the whole sweep of the war with serene confidence, Mr. Churchill also declared:

1. Not a moment was lost needlessly in the operations against Italy and except for the failure of Italian guards to do their assigned duty Benito Mussolini would have been shot when Hitler's parachutists rescued him at Gran Sasso, a mountainous region about seventy-five miles northeast of Rome.

2. American forces have landed on the island of Sardinia to assist Italian troops who drove the German garrison over to Corsica, now being occupied by French units.

3. A tripartite conference of representatives of the United States, Britain and Russia will take place "at an early date" and no question will be barred from discussion. Any differences will be set aside for a conference of President Roosevelt, Premier Stalin and the Prime Minister himself.

4. The Allies are prepared to place large armies in Italy and to deploy a weighty and active fighting front against the enemy on whatever line he chooses, to resist and to maintain against him with increasing weight and vigor if need be through the fall and winter.

5. A French army of 300,000 to 400,000 is being steadily organized and the battleship Richelieu will soon take its place in the French fleet.

Of the Meeting with Stalin.

Speaking of the prospect of a Roosevelt Churchill-Stalin conference, the Prime Minister said:

"No meeting during this war could carry with it so much significance for the future of the world as a meeting between the heads of the three governments for without close, cordial and lasting association between Soviet Russia and their great Allies we might find ourselves at the end of the war only to have entered upon a period of deepening confusion."

Mr. Churchill's speech, longest in his career as Prime Minister, lasted two hours and seven minutes. He spoke for an hour and fifteen minutes, stopped for lunch, and then picked up where he left off.

He spoke out sharply against those who had accused the Allied leadership of bungling in Italy. The date on which the Italian invasion had originally been planned, he told the House, was September 15, but it was moved up "as the result of decisions taken before the fall of Mussolini, and what has taken place in any case would have happened in Italy at the earliest possible moment."

"The Italian surrender was a windfall," he said, "but it had nothing to do with the date of harvesting the orchard.

Churchill Loaded for Bear.

Mr. Churchill went to the House loaded for bear—with one of the longest speeches of his career. He began at noon and broke off an hour and a quarter later for lunch, after which he resumed speaking.

He termed the Naples invasion the "most daring amphibious operation we have yet launched or which I think ever has been launched on a similar scale in the war." He explained that the Allies could not have gone farther north unless they had dispensed with aid from shore-based aircraft—a fact which the Germans must have known.

Even in landing at Naples, he said, Allied forces were dependent "to an important extent" on carrier-borne aircraft in which the Allies are becoming stronger and stronger.

The claim that Hitler was given forty days to move in on Italy, he said firmly, "is as ill-founded in fact as it is wounding to those bereaved. [illegible]e timing of our main attack [illegible]aly was fixed without the sl[illegible] reference to the attitud[illegible]e Italian Government."

Mr. Churchill's [illegible]escription of the minu[illegible] exact planning that had [illegible]o the Italian campaign— [illegible]n answer to critics in t[illegible]orum where he had met [illegible]tered so many previous [illegible]—presented the picture of an Allied hand in Italy far harder than had been previously known.

The Escape of Mussolini.

We did not insist upon having Mussolini handed over to us beforehand, he said, for the simple reason that it would have tipped off the Germans of Badoglio's plan to make peace at a moment when "the Italians were in the position of having still to appear as allies of Germany."

Too, his disclosure that precise measures had been taken to keep Mussolini in Allied hands—measures extending to orders for the former Premier's execution if necessary—suggested something far removed from the sentimental approach to the former Duce which some had accused the Allies of making.

Premier Pietro Badoglio's government, Mr. Churchill explained, had made preparations to hold Mussolini but were not prepared against the one method Hitler attempted and brought off—"a heavy parachute descent at that particular point (Gran Sasso)."

"They had one card up their sleeves," he added calmly. "The Caribinieri guards had orders to shoot Mussolini if any attempt was made to rescue him but they failed in their duty."

Italy Declared a Prelude Only.

The Prime Minister said the Mediterranean campaign is not "a substitute for a direct attack across the channel on the Germans in France and the Low Countries"—that he has never regardeed it as such.

"On the contrary," he said in a lengthy statement of the trend of the war, 'the opening of this new front in the Mediterranean was always intended to be an essential preliminary to the main attack upon Germany and her ring of subjugated and satellite States."

Turning to the air war, the Prime Minister announced that the weight of bombs dropped on Germany in the last year was three times that of the preceding twelve months, and that Great Britain's aircraft supply now exceeds that of Germany by four to one.

Few Losses to U-boats Now.

Saying that the almost total destruction of German war centers was continuing on a great scale, Mr. Churchill disclosed that the percentage of plane losses to the R. A. F. in the first eight months of 1943 was less than the same period last year and that the morale of the crews was consequently higher.

He announced also that during the four months ending September 18 not a single merchant vessel was lost by enemy action in the North Atlantic and that enemy U-boats had not sunk one Allied ship anywhere in the world during the first two weeks of September. He added, however, that German U-boats had become active again and that one convoy was being attacked at the present time.

In a further disclosure of Russia's participation in the Italian surrender, the Prime Minister said the Soviet Government studied the armistice terms and authorized Gen. Dwight E. Eisenhower to sign them in its name. He also revealed that arrangements had been made to land an American air-borne division in Rome at the same time as the main invasion of Italy but that it was not possible because the Germans held the air fields.

Greeted by Cheering House.

The House greeted the sturdy, rotund figure of the smiling Prime Minister with prolonged cheers but among his auditors were many who were impatient with the progress of the Mediterranean campaign and the delay in opening a western second front for which Russia has been making repeated demands.

The galleries were crowded with dignitaries of the United Nations to hear the Prime Minister give an accounting of his conduct of the war and of the most exhaustive strategy conferences of his career at Washington and Quebec.

"Forf a whole year," he declared, "we and our great allies have had almost unbroken successes by land, by sea and by air."

At the Washington conference last May, he said, he and President Roosevelt set before them as their principal object the complete elimination of Italy from the war. No one, he added, "would have expected it to have been so rapidly achieved."

Telling of the contribution which "ever-increasing mastery of the air" had made the Allies' ground victories, he said "the weight of bombs discharged on Germany by the R. A. F. in the last twelve months is three times that of the preceding twelve months."

Havoc in Reich 'Indescribable.'

"The havoc wrought is indescribable," he said, disclosing that "the R. A. F at present is maintaining in action nearly 50 per cent more aircraft than Germany."

He said that on top of the R. A. F. effort was the rapidly expanding weight of the United States Army Air Force in Britain.

The fact that American and British supply of aircraft now exceeds Germany's by more than four to one, Mr. Churchill continued, "opens the possibility of saturating German defenses on the ground and in the air." If the R. A. F. growth continued, he said, "we should with very small loss to ourselves be in a position when actual methodical destruction of every building of the enemy would become possible."

"Complete strategic air dominion of Germany by Anglo-American air forces is not necessarily beyond our reach even in 1944 with consequences, if it were attained, which cannot be measured but most certainly would be profound."

Saying that we must not suppose because of air and sea successes that "the war is coming to an end," he asserted that on the contrary we must expect "frenzied efforts to retaliate."

Reports New German Weapon.

He disclosed that the Germans are using a new type of aerial bomb against shipping in close quarters. It is a rocket assisted by a glider which is released from considerable height and apparently guided to the target by a parent aircraft.

"It might be," he added, "that the Germans are developing their weapons on novel lines."

He said that the credit balance of new shipbuilding over losses of all kinds since the beginning of the war exceeded 6,000,000 tons and, "should present favorable conditions hold, we shall soon have replaced all losses suffered by the United Nations since the beginning of the year."

The United Nations, he said, can now be defeated by the submarine only through "gross neglect of duty in the shipyards and on the seas and inexcusable falling off of technical ability on both sides of the Atlantic." The high percentage of killings, he said, affected the morale of U-boat crews "and many of the most experienced U-boat captains have been drowned or are now prisoners."

Oil Fuel Supply Now High.

The favorable shipping position, he continued, enabled a large number of faster ships to be built and full advantage taken of the U-boat lull to bring in the largest possible convoys to replenish the stores of the British Isles. He said oil fuel stands now at almost the highest level since the start of the war.

"We have substantial margins between us and what is called the danger level (of supplies) on which we have never retrenched even at the worst times."

Turning to the Pacific war to which the Quebec conference was very largely devoted, Mr. Churchill cited "a new feature in the resistance of Japan," in evacuating the Aleutians instead of fighting to the last man. He said Lord Louis Mountbatten soon would arrive in India with a staff of officers to set up headquarters in New Delphi, which will conform with Gen. Eisenhower's British-American model in the Mediterranean theater.

He said the fundamental fact of Japan's situation was the diminution of her shipping. She is losing ships and planes faster than they can be replaced, he asserted.

Mr. Churchill disclosed that arrangements were made to land an American armored division in Rome at the same time as the main invasion of Italy, but it was not possible because the Germans held the air fields.

The preparation of landing craft was the only limiting factor in the invasion of Italy, he said, and not for one moment was lost in that. He said he or Mr. Eden "possibly" would make a further statement on the Badoglio government soon. He termed Italian action at present "natural and human" and said "may it prove to be the first of a series of acts of self-redemption."

"We don't want war with races as such," Mr. Churchill said. "We war against tyranny and we seek to preserve ourselves against destruction. These are the two targets to aim at—Nazi tyranny and Prussian militarism. Let us aim every gun and set every man who will march against them."

Halts Speech for Luncheon.

Mr. Churchill then broke off his speech for a luncheon recess. This action was unusual in the procedure of the House, but Mr. Eden said in proposing it before Mr. Churchill began to speak that precedent for it had been established by the Prime Minister himself in delivering a budget message as Chancellor of the Exchequer in 1928.

Resuming after lunch, Mr. Churchill declared that fighting between Germans and Italians has taken place "at many points" and there is no doubt where the sympathy, hopes and efforts of the Italians now lie.

Disclosing that American forces have landed on Sardinia, he said these forces are assisting four Italian divisions who have driven the Germans out of Sardinia.

"We had made great and elaborate plans for the invasion of Corsica and Sardinia," he added amid laughter, "but we have got them in the pick-up."

Surveying the recent fighting, Mr. Churchill said "I was bound to make this admission—that it looks as if we cut it very fine indeed. You have to run risks; there are no certainties in war. There is a precipice on either side of you, a precipice of caution and a precipice of overdaring."

Referring to the Salerno battle, he said "German hopes of driving us into the sea with a bloody mop-up on the beaches must at times have risen high."

At the height of the battle, 2,500 bomber and fighter sorties were flown in twenty-four hours and 1,400 tons of bombs were dropped on the Germans in the battlefield and their immediate communications.

"Yesterday's reports from the battlefield leave no doubt that the enemy has been worsened, that our main forces are firmly ashore, that the Eighth Army has come into action in a suitable place and that we have recovered the initiative and are now able to advance northward on a broad front," he said.

Salerno 'a Pregnant Victory.'

"We must consider this episode, the landing on the beaches at Salerno, as an important and pregnant victory, one deserving a definite place in the records of the British and United States armies."

Everywhere, he said, the Italians were "unfriendly or actively hostile to the Germans," and every effort was made by the Badoglio government and its forces to comply with the armistice terms.

Illustrating how Italians are joining the fight against their former allies, he disclosed that Italians and French co-operatively manned batteries in a Corsican harbor and Italian destroyers and a British submarine joined in shelling the Germans and driving them out.

"This is the first time," he added, "that the French have been in action for the liberation of their home territory."

Russia, he said, had agreed that the French National Committee should be represented on the commission set up in the Mediterranean.

"We regard the restoration of France as one of the great Powers of Europe as a sacred duty from which Great Britain will never turn."

Stating there were nearly 75,000 British prisoners and 25,000 Greek and Yugoslav prisoners in Italian hands before the armistice, he said the Italians had given orders for the release of all under their control.

Twenty-five Italian divisions in the Balkans, he said, would be "of no further danger to the patriots," even if unable to turn against the Germans.

Declaring United States naval forces to be already dominant in the Pacific, Mr. Churchill said the surrender of the Italian fleet had decisively altered the Mediterranean naval balance.

Concluding, he declared:

"In America I found the feeling everywhere that the war was being well managed. It is my hope that this conviction is generally shared at home."

Churchill in Top Form, Commons Is Crowded

Some Members Sit on Floor; Winant in Balcony

LONDON, Sept. 21 (AP).—Prime Minister Churchill was in peak form today as he faced friends and critics in his longest war address to the spirited, newly reconvened House of Commons. Chamber and balconies were so crowded some of the members had to sit on the floor.

Ambassador John G. Winant sat on a low balcony directly facing Churchill from about fifty feet away. Beside the Prime Minister, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden slumped low on his red-leather-covered bench, part of the time with his feet up on the table on which Churchill's notes rested. David Lloyd George sat directly across the aisle facing Churchill, his hair and mustache startlingly white.

The Prime Minister was sharp to critics. When answering one heckler across the aisle, he said, "All right. You had a good record before the war. I'll listen."

NAZIS SAY CHURCHILL HID ALLIED SETBACKS

Confirm, However, His Statement About U-Boat Inactivities

LONDON, Sept. 21 (AP)—The International Information Bureau, a Nazi propaganda agency, quoted German political circles tonight as saying Prime Minister Churchill, stated "everything positive for the Allies in regard to the war situation, whereas he suppressed everything negative" in his speech today.

The bureau, declaring that Mr. Churchill's purpose was to meet expected criticism, said further in a broadcast recorded by The Associated Press:

That Mr. Churchill, in his introduction before the House of Commons, presented an elaborate history of past campaigns whose value had been altered by the present turn of events.

That regarding the "continuation of air terror attacks, emphasis is being laid in German quarters on strengthened defenses" and "one day facts will speak an important word in this respect."

That Mr. Churchill chose a favorable moment in sea warfare to demonstrate "mathematical tricks" and that his admission that U-boat activity again was flaring was noted with interest.

A Berlin broadcast recorded earlier by The Associated Press said Mr. Churchill's statement that "no Allied merchantman has been sunk in the North Atlantic in . . . the past four months was confirmed by competent military circles in the Reich capital."

Neither the Berlin radio nor the International Information Bureau attempted to explain, however, the poor luck—or inactivity—of the U-boat campaign in that period.

He Says Fight in Mediterranean Is Preliminary to Main Attack

Reviews His Conferences With Roosevelt and Shifts in Situation From One Parley to Another; Reports New Nazi Rocket-Weapon Used in Bombing

LONDON, Sept. 21 (AP).—Following is the complete text of Prime Minister Churchill's address to Parliament today:

I could not embark upon the business which is set down for today without expressing what is in the hearts of all members of this House—our profound regret at the very sad news it has been your duty, Mr. Speaker [Douglas Clifton Brown], to announce from the chair of the sudden death early this morning of the Chancellor of the Exchequer [Sir Kingsley Wood].

Only yesterday evening he sat with us in Cabinet, apparently in the best of health and spirits, and now he has been instantaneously removed from our affairs in which he was playing a most important part. I would suggest that on the next sitting day we pause for a short time in our business in order to give the House the opportunity of paying a more formal tribute to one of its distinguished members who was holding an office of the greatest consequence in the peculiar stresses of war. I will defer any remarks which I may make on this sad matter—to me a very acute grief—until the proper time is reached.

I now turn to the statement which I understood was desired by the House that I should make. I have to go some way back in order to put the whole broad scene before the House.

At my conference with the President at Washington in June, 1942, the decision was taken to send an American army and a strong British contingent to occupy French Northwest Africa and, later on, Nov. 8, 1942, was fixed for the descent. I was very much in favor of this for a variety of reasons most of which are now well known.

I have never regarded this African operation as a substitute for a direct attack across the Channel upon the Germans in France or the Low Countries. On the contrary, the opening of this new front in the Mediterranean was always intended by itself and others to be an essential preliminary to the main attack on Germany and her ring of subjugated and satellite states.

At that time, fifteen months ago, no decision was taken beyond the occupation of North Africa. There followed almost immediately, in fact while I was in Washington, the June, 1942, disaster of Tobruk and the retreat, with the loss of 80,000 men, of our desert army of more than 400 miles to the approaches to Cairo and Alexandria.

The Suez Canal in Peril

This raised very grave issues, the Delta, Nile Valley and Suez Canal all being in jeopardy at the same time a German attack through the Caucasus was developing in a way which seemed to menace the Caspian Basin and the vital oilfields of Baku, Irak and Persia.

At Moscow, Premier Stalin was able to speak to me with confidence in his ability to withstand the German attack and he told me beforehand of the counterstrokes by which he intended to relieve Stalingrad and if possible to destroy the German forces before it.

At Cairo, Generals Alexander and Montgomery were placed in command and their substantial reinforcements which had been sent from Britain several months before had arrived to strengthen the desert army. Plans were made to resist Rommel's impending attack and thereafter to gain the initiative by a major battle. These plans proved successful. Almost exactly a year ago, on Sept. 23, began the hea' action which resulted in Rommel's decisive repulse, and a month later the desert army won a hard and prolonged battle at Alamein and set forth upon its immortal march—a march that is not yet completed.

From that time on for a whole year we and our great allies have had an almost unbroken success by land, by sea and in the air. I cannot recollect anything so complete and prolonged as the series of victories which have attended our allied arms in almost every theater.

Advance of the Russians

At the same time that our desert army has been making its great advance with the conquest of Northwest Africa and Sicily, the Russian armies have advanced along one thousand miles of front from the Volga almost to the Dnieper, a distance in many places of more than 500 miles, driving before them with prodigious slaughter the hordes of Germans who had invaded their country and inflicted so many indescribable barbarities upon its inhabitants.

When I next met the President in January of this year and the combined Anglo-American staffs went into protracted conference at Casablanca the whole scene of the war was already transformed. No decision had hitherto been taken by us to go beyond North Africa, but now the advance of the desert army, which already stood before the gates of Tripoli, brought another quarter million men into play and enabled us to carry out the policy which I mentioned in my broadcasts of November last of using North Africa not as a seat but as a springbroad.

We resolved, therefore, to complete the conquest of Tunisia and meanwhile to make all preparations for invading Sicily. The final victories in Tunisia were obtained in May when the whole of the enemy forces in North Africa, then a little short of a half million strong, were destroyed or captured.

When I visited the President again at Washington in May, 1943, after and during the victory at Tunisia, the British and American armies had great results to display and we therefore extended our view and set before ourselves as our principal objective the knocking of Italy completely out of the war this year. No one in attempting to frame a timetable for this task would have expected it would so rapidly be achieved.

On July 10, British and American armies on a scale of perhaps half a million men, the first waves of whom were carried, as the House knows, in upward of 2,700 ships and landing craft, began their attack upon Sicily, and in a campaign of thirty-eight days the entire island was conquered with a loss to the enemy of 165,000 killed, wounded and prisoners, or more than four times the Allies' losses in the operation.

It is necessary in order to have a correct perspective on the proportion of events to survey the whole chain of causation, the massive links of which have been forged by the diligence and burnished with the devotion and skill of our combined forces and their commanders until they shine in the sunshine of today and will long shine in the history of the war.

Mastery of the Air

This same year victory on land has been accompanied by an ever-increasing mastery of the air by the British, Americans and Russians over the enemy in Europe.

Speaking particularly of our own air power, the weight of bombs discharged by the Royal Air Force in Germany in the last twelve months is three times that of the preceding twelve months, and the weight of bombs discharged in the last three months is half as great again as that of the preceding three months. There has also been great improvement in accuracy, owing to technical devices. The percentage of loss for the first three months of 1943 is less than in the same period last year and the morale and ardor of our bombing crews is very high.

The almost total and systematic destruction of many of the centers of the German war effort continues on a greater scale and at a gerater pace. The havoc wrought is indescribable.

The effect upon German war production in all its forms and upon U-boat building are matched by those produced upon the life and economy of the whole of that guilty organization. There has been an enormous diversion of the German energy from the war fronts to internal defense against our attacks, and the offensive power of the enemy has been notably crippled thereby.

The German air force has been driven increasingly onto the defensive. The attacks we have had in this island, though marked by occasional distressing incidents, are at present negligible compared with the vast scale of war. The enemy is increasingly compelled to concentrate on building of fighter aircraft and night-fighter aircraft for home defense at the expense of his bomber production. He is also forced to save his strength so far as possible on all the fighting fronts and is therefore restricted to a far lower rate of activity than we and our allies maintain. Thus he throws the burden increasingly upon his fully occupied ground forces.

The Royal Air Force is at present maintaining in action throughout the war scene in all theaters nearly 50 per cent more first-line aircraft than Germany. That is, the R. A. F. alone, apart from Russia. On top of this already heavy preponderance comes the whole rapidly expanding weight of the United States Army, building up ceaselessly in this country and already in action on a great scale both here and in the Mediterranean.

American Daylight Bombing

The American system of daylight bombing gives great accuracy on specific targets and is also accompanied by very severe fighting, producing heavy losses among the enemy's fighting aircraft. Many superb actions of courage and daring have been fought by the great American air force, which is developing here and in the Mediterranean a high spirit of fellowship. Generous emulation subsists between them and their British comrades.

The British and American forces are fed by an ever broadening and improving supply of new aircraft which altogether exceeds the corresponding German aircraft supply by more than four to one. The continued progress of Anglo-American preponderance, which can certainly be expected month after month, opens the possibilities of saturating German defenses both on the ground and in the air, in spite of the desperate efforts which the enemy is making and will certainly continue to make to strengthen his home defenses in proportion to the mounting weight of our attack.

This word "saturation" comes to have a particular significance in the general field of air war. If a certain degree of saturation can be reached, and we can be sure that this can only be won against an increasingly hard foe and a bitter struggle with enemy air defenses, a reaction of the most far-reaching character will be produced. We shall, in fact, create conditions under which, with small loss to ourselves, the actual methodical destruction by day and night of the enemy military target, of significance in the widest sense, will become possible.

This destruction by the Anglo-American forces is not necessarily beyond our reach even in 1944, with consequences, if it is attained, which cannot be measured and must certainly be profound.

All this must be considered in relation to the gigantic struggle which is proceeding ceaselesssly along the two-thousand-mile Russian front from the White Sea to the Black Sea, where the Russian forces are already at many points superior in strength to the Germans.

Must Expect Retaliation

But we must not in these favorable tendencies do anything to weaken our efforts or to belittle the dangers that are facing us or believe that the war is coming to an end. On the contrary, we must expect that a terrible foe whom we are so heavily smiting will make frenzied efforts to retaliate.

The speeches of German leaders, from Hitler downward, contain mysterious allusions to new methods and new weapons which will presently be tried against us. It would be, of course, only natural for the enemy to spread such rumors in order to encourage his own people.

There is probably more in it than that. We have, for example, now had experience of a new type of aerial bomb which the enemy has begun to use upon our shipping at close quarters, on our ships close to the coast. This bomb may be described as a sort of rocket-assisted glider which releases its bombs from a height and is directed toward its target by a parent aircraft. It may be that the Germans are developing other weapons on novel lines with which they hope to do us damage. I can assure the House that unceasing vigilance and most intense study—the most intense we are capable of giving—are being given to these possibilities. So far we have always been able to find an answer to any new problems presented.

At the same time, no one must exclude from their minds that novel forms of attack will be employed, and should they be employed I shall be able to show to the House in detail the prolonged and careful examination beforehand that we have given to these possibilities and, I trust, show the measures brought against these new attacks.

So much for air. Not less remarkable than air or land and certainly not least important is the revolution effected in our position at sea. I have repeatedly stated that our greatest danger since the war began, sinee invasion seemed so much more remote, is the U-boat war upon our sea communications and Allied shipping all over the world.

The great victory which was won by our North Atlantic convoys and their escorts in May was followed by a magnificent diminution in sinkings. The monthly statements which are issued on authority of the President and myself, and about which the Canadian government—who contribute to the battle of the Atlantic brave men, airplanes and vessels—are also consulted, deserve close attention.

I have little to add to them today, but it's a fact that for the four months which ended Sept. 18, no merchant vessel was sunk by enemy action in the North Atlantic. The month of August was the lowest month we have ever had since the United States entered the war and was less than half the average of British and Allied sinkings in the fifteen months preceding the American entry into the war. In the first fortnight of September no Allied ships were sunk by U-boat action in any part of the world. This is altogether unprecedented in the whole history of the U-boat struggle either in this war or the last.

Says Convoy Is Under Attack

Naturally, I do not suggest for a moment that this immunity or anything like it could possibly continue. A new herd of U-boats has been coming out in the last week or so into the Atlantic from bases in France and Germany and they, no doubt, have been fitted with what is thought to be the best and latest apparatus. We for our part have not been idle and we await this renewal of the conflict, which, in fact, already has begun—one convoy is being attacked at the present time—with sober confidence. If they attack convoys we shall be able to attack U-boats.

In spite, however, of the reduced number of U-boats which have been at work since the May massacre, rarely a day passes without us getting one of these ill-starred vessels. Moreover, United States and British air attacks on German bases and building yards and on factories where the component parts are made have definitely reduced the rate of production of U-boats in Germany. The high percentage of killings has certainly affected the morale of U-boat crews, and many of the most experienced U-boat captains have been drowned or are prisoners in British and American hands.

Praises U. S. Ship Output

The output of new building from the United States has fulfilled all that I ever hoped from it and more. We build our regular quota in these islands, and the Canadian output—an entirely new development for Canada—also is remarkable. The credit balance of new building over losses for all times, including marine risks since the beginning of the year—the net gain, that is to say—exceeds 6,000,000 tons, and should the present favorable condition hold, we shall soon have replaced all the losses suffered by the United Nations since the beginning of the war.

As set forth in a letter from the President to me, which I laid on the table of the House before we rose, the massive achievement of United States shipbuilding has been shared generously with us on this principle of division of war labor in accordance with the highest economy of effort which we, from the beginning of our association with the United States in this war, have made our guide and which is now becoming increasingly our rule. The favorable position now enjoyed has enabled a larger number of faster ships to be built and projected.

We have taken advantage of the lull in U-boat attacks to bring in the largest possible convoys and we have replenished our resources in this island of essential commodities, especially oil fuels, which stand now almost at a higher level than any time since the outbreak of the war. We have a substantial margin between us and what is called the danger level and which we have never trenched upon even at the worst times.

Result of Hard Work

All this has not come about accidentally. It is the result of industry and organization on both sides of the Atlantic. It is also the result of hard, faithful and unwearying services given by a multitude of escort vessels of all kinds, and most of all, so as the last year is concerned, it is the result of the startling intervention of long-range aircraft of the British Empire and the United States, and especially our Coastal Command.

Besides this, a large number of auxiliary aircraft carriers now coming into service are able to give a measure of air protection to convoys and to conduct aggressive warfare against U-boats in those areas which are beyond the reach even of long-range aircraft, the V. L. R.'s (very long-range aircraft) of the two countries.

I repeat, as I always have done and as I am bound to do, my warning that no guaranty can be given for the continuance of these favorable conditions, but I can now go so far as to say we could only be defeated by U-boats if we were guilty of gross neglect of duty in shipyards and on the sea of inexcusable falling off in that scientific and technical ability on both sides of the Atlantic which hitherto has stood us in good stead. I cannot pass from this subject without paying tribute once more to the officers and men of the Merchant Navy, whose losses have been even in greater proportion than those of the Royal Navy. We never call on them in vain and we are confident that they will continue to play their part in the carrying of our men and their equipment and munitions to any place they may be required and under whatever conditions may exist at the time.

Discusses the Pacific

I may add also that with these new resources of shipbuilding which are coming into view every saving is immediately demanded in the fighting services in their endeavor to intensify and to augment our offensive action. Their appetite keeps far ahead of supply, even though that is ahead of our expectations. The more ships we have the more we seem to want.

I have dealt with land, air and Navy, but I must turn to another part of world.

At the conference at Quebec much attention was given to the prosecution of the war against Japan, an offensive already on foot on a considerable scale in various parts of the Pacific. The main strength of the United States is deployed in that ocean. The main weight of the offensive operations there is in the Solomons and New Guinea, where General MacArthur—an officer of outstanding personality to whom we and our Australian brothers are under an immeasurable debt—is conducting a large-scale offensive.

The first steps were taken by the eviction of the Japanese from Guadalcanal and from Papua. These were exploited by the landings which took place June 30 on New Georgia Island and on Sept. 4 in Huon Bay, northeast of Lae. New Georgia has been cleared of the enemy and the twin bases of Salamaua and Lae were reduced in a manner which shows remarkable development in use of amphibious and air-borne power and which furnished another opportunity for the 9th Australian Division to display to the Japanese their qualities, which the Germans tested at El Alamein.

Tells of Aleutians Victory

These operations give great promise for the future and will unfold stage by stage as the months pass by.

While we were at Quebec we also received news of the evacuation of the Japanese from the Aleutian Islands, which are American territory. The occupation of Kiska, in which Canadian forces also took part, was a sequel to the annihilation of the Japanese garrison from the Island of Attu, and it was certainly remarkable for the fact that the Japanese, who had occupied Kiska with a garrison of 10,000 men or more, were not prepared to await the assault but fled beforehand under cover of darkness.

Here is a new feature in the resistance of Japan. Hitherto we reckoned on their dying to the last man, which they certainly did at Attu, and in which respect we were prepared to serve them as well as we could, but at Kiska, and also to some extent at Salamaua and Lae, a somewhat different mood seemed to possess the enemy. Evacuation and retreat in order to save lives now seems to take a place in their method of fighting. We shall see in due course whether these new tendencies become pronounced: if so, while they will not alter the result, they will save cost and trouble.

Cites Japanese Ship Losses

The fundamental fact in the war against Japan is the steady diminution of Japanese shipping in relation to the task their war policy has imposed upon them. The wasting process is most marked. Their widely dispersed conquests depend upon a certain minimum shipping supply. They cannot possibly hold the vast areas they occupy except upon a certain minimum shipping supply. Their losses certainly exceed any means which they have or can ever obtain of replacement.

This is also true of their air force, which can scarcely keep its initial strength, and has long ago been overtaken and is now increasingly surpassed every month by the enormous United States expansion.

In both these vital respects, on which the Japanese conquests were repeatedly made dependent for their maintenance, the steady progress of attrition is at work and the strength of enemy must be considered a wasting asset.

I venture to dwell on these favorable aspects of the war against Japan only because I know it is realized throughout the United States that the slightest slackening of effort would destroy all. These favorable tendencies depend on a small margin. Any slackening of effort might allow them to come into a stagnant condition and we might find ourselves condemned to a long-drawn process of futile expenditure of life and treasure. It is the pace that kills.

Southeast Asia Command

Turning to another but cognate aspect of the war which was discussed at Quebec, considerable progress has been made in the organization of the Southeast Asia Command which is being set up in India to intensify the war against Japan. The supreme Allied commander, Admiral Mountbatten, will shortly arrive in India, accompanied by a staff of officers who will form a combined Allied headquarters modeled on that which has been set up under General Eisenhower with so much advantage.

This form of combined Allied headquarters was absolutely necessary because of many United States establishments which were growing up separately for many purposes in that area, particularly in respect of the great air route to China, which is is being extended and expanded on an ever increasing scale, and although there is excellent liaison and good feeling, it was absolutely necessary to have unity of command in this theater.

Another step which was foreseen when we examined these matters as much as sixteen or seventeen years ago in the Committee of Imperial Defense was the separation from the ordinary normal statutory command in India of any large extensive campaign fought on or beyond the frontiers of India. That also had been achieved.

India's Role in War

Headquarters of the new command will be set up first at Delhi so as to be in close liaison with the government of India. During the organizational period they have to be in the closest liaison with the government of India and with General Auchinleck, commander in chief of India.

The new command and the appointment of Admiral Mountbatten have been warmly welcomed by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and they are in full accord with the view of our American allies.

In all these questions of joint command, matters have to be so arranged that the men who are chosen to command have the full confidence of all parties concerned.

A general survey of this amazing and fearful world war is an essential part of any balanced statement. Without it, events in any one theater cannot be viewed in their proper setting or proportion. To understand fully any part of this war one must have at least a broad conception of the whole.

The Mediterranean War

I now return, after placing these general considerations before the House, to the more recent events in the Mediterranean theater which are so fresh and vivid in our minds.

July 25 was a memorable day. Even before we had half completed the conquest of Sicily or had set foot on the Italian mainland, Dictator Mussolini was overthrown and the Fascist regime which had lasted twenty-one years was cast down, vehemently repudiated by the whole mass of the Italian people.

The Badoglio government came into existence with the intention of making peace in accordance with the will of the nation. They were, however, intruded upon at all points and overlaid by the Germans and had the greatest difficulty in maintaining themselves against this fateful pressure. We knew nothing about this new regime. Once Fascism was completely overthrown we naturally were anxious to find some authority with whom we could deal so as to bring about the unconditional surrender of Italy in the shortest time with the least possible cost in the blood of our soldiers.

It was necessary, as I advised the House, to wait until the position had become more definite, and we therefore continued our preparations for an invasion in strength on the mainland of Italy and of Europe, on which we resolved at the May conference at Washington.

Presently feelers were put out by the new Italian government through various channels, asking for terms and explaining the deadly character of the difficulties in which they were involved. These difficulties arose from the menacing presence of German armies, police and spies all around them. We were sympathetic to those difficulties.

[Here a member made an interjection which was not audible in the press gallery.]

Wait and see. That is cheap criticism from people who must be hard put to it to find criticism, but I am going to answer very precisely and exhaustively even before we break off for the midday refreshment.

We were sympathetic to those difficulties, but to all advances we made the reply: Surrender must be unconditional. On Aug. 15 an Italian envoy, an officer with the rank of general, called on our ambassador at Madrid, Sir Samuel Hoare, with credentials proving he came with full authority from Marshall Badoglio and that he came to say that when the Allies landed in Italy, the Italian government was prepared to join them against Germany. When could they come?

Action at Quebec

I was at this time—not entirely by accident—at Quebec for the conference and I was in closest contact with the President. The Foreign Secretary was with me and I also was accompanied by an ample cipher staff and secretariat through whom hourly touch could be maintained with my colleagues in the War Cabinet. The President and I, therefore, were able to act together and give prompt guidance in any emergency.

With the approval of the War Cabinet it was decided that Eisenhower should send British and American staff officers to meet the Italian envoy at Lisbon.

We at once informed Premier Stalin of what was in progress. On Aug. 19, a meeting in Lisbon took place. The envoy was informed we would only accept unconditional surrender. Military terms embodying this act of surrender—not so much the conditions as the directions following the act of surrender—which had been prepared some weeks earlier, after prolonged discussion between Washington, London and Eisenhower's headquarters, were now placed before the envoy.

He did not oppose those terms, drastic though they were, but replied the purpose of his visit was to discuss how Italy could join the United Nations in the war against Germany. He also asked how the terms could be executed in face of German opposition.

The British and American officers replied they were empowered only to discuss unconditional surrender. They were however, authorized to add—this was the decision we took at Quebec—that if at any time, anywhere and in any circumstances any Italian forces or people were found by our troops to be fighting the Germans we would immediately give them all possible aid. On Aug. 23, the Italian general departed with these military terms expressing the act of unconditional surrender and with full warning that civil and administrative terms would be presented later.

Second Emissary Arrives

He then made his way back to Rome with great secrecy and danger. He promised to lay these terms before his government and to bring back their answer to General Eisenhower's headquarters by Aug. 31. In the interval, another Italian general arrived, bringing with him as his credentials no less a person than General Carton De Wiart, V. C., one of our most famous military figures, whom the Italians captured two years ago through a forced landing in the Mediterranean.

This second mission did not, however, affect the course of events.

On Aug. 31 the Italian envoy returned. He met General Eisenhower's representative at Syracuse. The Italian government were willing to accept the terms unconditionally, but they did not see how they could carry them out in the teeth of the heavy German forces gathered near Rome and many other points throughout the country.

We did not doubt the sincerity of the envoy nor his government, but we were not able to reveal our military plans for the invasion of Italy. The real difficulty was that the Italians were powerless, and until we landed in strength, we couldn't give them a date.

We therefore timed the announcement for the moment we deemed would give us the best military chance and give them the best chance of extricating themselves from the German grip. This meant an armistice should be accorded only at that moment or just before our main descent.

We would have done more if it had been possible to help this unhappy government who were beset on every side by insoluble problems and who have since acted toward us to the best of their ability both with courage and good faith.

We offered and prepared to land an American air-borne division at Rome at the same time the armistice was declared in order to fight off two German armored divisions massed outside it to help the Italians, but, owing to the German investment of Rome's airfields which took place in the last day or two before the announcement of the armistice—of which investment the Italian government warned us—it was not possible to carry out this part of the plan.

It was, I think, a pretty daring plan to cast this powerful force there in Rome under condition which no one could measure and which might have led to its complete destruction, but we were quite ready to do it, but at the last moment the warning came through: "The airfields are not in our control."

Unconditional surrender, of course, comprises everything. But not only was a special provision for the surrender of war criminals included in the longer terms, but particular stipulation was made for the surrender of Signor Mussolini.

It was not, however, possible to arrange for him to be delivered specially and separately before the armistice and our main landing took place, for this would certainly have disclosed the intentions of the Italian government to the enemy.

The Italian position had been that, although an internal revolution had taken place in Italy, they were still the allies of Germany carrying on a common cause with them. This was a position very difficult to maintain day after day with the pistols of the Gestapo pointing at the napes of so many necks.

We have every reason to believe that Mussolini was being kept under strong guard in a secure place. Certainly it was very much in the interests of the Badoglio government to make sure he did not escape.

Mussolini himself was reported to have declared he believed he was being delivered to the Allies. This was certainly the intention and would have taken place but for circumstances unhappily beyond our control.

The measures which the Badoglio government took were carefully conceived and the best they could do to hold Mussolini, but they did not provide against so heavy a parachute descent as the Germans made at the particular point where he was confined.

It will be noted that they sent him some books of Nietzsche and leaflets to console him and diversify his confinement and no doubt they were fully acquainted with where he was and the condition in which he was.

The stroke was one of great daring and was conducted with a heavy force and certainly shows there may be possibilities of this kind which are open in modern war.

I do not think there was any slackness or breach of faith on the part of the Badoglio government and they had one card up their sleeve — carabinieri guards had orders to shoot Mussolini if there was any attempt at a rescue—but they failed in their duty, having regard to the larger and considerable German forces who descended upon them from the air, who undoubtedly would have held them responsible for his health and safety.

So much for that. The terms were signed at Syracuse on the night of Sept. 3, and from that time forth occasional aircraft passed secretly between Rome and Allied headquarters. This was a very difficult matter, as great numbers of guns have to be silenced.

Russians Approved Terms

The Russian Soviet government, having studied the terms, authorized General Eisenhower to sign them in their name and he accordingly did that, not only on behalf of the United States and Great Britain but on behalf of the Soviet government and the United Nations.

I have seen it said that forty days of precious time were lost in these negotiations and that in consequence British and American blood was needlessly shed around Salerno. This criticism is as ill-founded as it is wounding to those who are bereaved. The time of our main attack upon Italy was fixed without the slightest reference to the attitude of the Italian government and the actual provisional date of operation was settled long before any negotiations with them had taken place or even before the fall of Mussolini.

The date depended upon the time necessary to disengage our landing craft from the beaches of southern Sicitly, across which, up to the first week in August, a major part of our armies actually engaged there had to be supplied from day to day.

These landing craft had then to be taken back to Africa. Those which had been damaged —and there were many—had to be repaired and then they had to be reloaded with all ammunition, etc., in exact and complex order before there could be any question of carrying out another amphibious operation. I suppose it is realized that these matters are arranged in the most extraordinary detail.

Every landing vessel or combat ship is packed in exactly the order which the troops landed will require when they land, so far as can be foreseen, and every lorry is, in fact, packed with the necessary articles which the units require when landed.

Some do swim out to the ships and swim back again, and they are all packed exactly with the things which have priority from the start so that nothing is left to chance. Only in this way are these extraordinary operations safe and possible in the face of the vast modern fire power which a few men can bring to bear. The condition and preparation of landing craft were the sole and decisive limiting factors—it had nothing to do with these negotiations we were "passing" time over, nothing to do with the Foreign Office holding back the generals while they worried over different things of this clause and that clause.

There was not for one moment a pause in the process of carrying out the military operations and everything else had to fit in with the main line of traffic. When I hear people talking in an airy way of throwing modern armies ashore here and there, as if they were bales of goods to be dumped on the beach and forgotten, I really marvel at the lack of knowledge of the conditions of modern warfare which still prevails.

The most strenuous efforts were made by all concerned to speed up our onfall. For instance, I sent a telegram myself from Quebec to General Alexander on Aug. 18 as follows:

"You are no doubt informed of the Italian approaches to us and the answer we have sent them. Our greatest danger is that the Germans should enter Rome and set up a Quisling Fascist government under, say, Farinacci. [Roberto Farinacci was a former Secretary General of the Fascist party.]

"Scarcely less unpleasant would be the whole of Italy sliding into anarchy. I doubt if the Badoglio government can hold their position until the present date fixed for our main attack so that anything you can do to shorten this period without danger to military success will help very much."

General Alexander replied on Aug. 20:

"Many thanks for your message. Everything possible is being done to carry out this operation at the earliest possible date. All here realize very clearly that every additional hour gives the enemy more time to organize and prepare against our forces."

Most people, knowing the character of these generals—Eisenhower, Alexander and Montgomery—would have thought that quite enough. The date, which had originally been the fifteenth, was, however, in fact brought forward to the night of Sept. 8.

Thus the whole of this operation, which is the answer to the charge of delay—and I have heard the word slothful used—was planned as a result of a decision taken before the fall of Mussolini and would have taken place in any case, whatever happened in Italy, at the earliest possible moment. The Italian surrender was a windfall which had nothing to do with the date fixed for harvesting of the orchard.

The truth is that the armistice was delayed to fit in with the attack and not that the attack was delayed to fit in with the announcement.

This class of criticism, which I read in newspapers when I arrived on Sunday morning, reminds me of a simple tale which I have heard, and which I dare say other members are familiar with, about a sailor who jumped into a dock—I think it was at Plymouth—to rescue a small boy from drowning. About a week later this sailor was accosted by a woman who asked him, "Are you the man who picked my son out of the docks the other night?"

The sailor replied modestly, "Well, that is so, ma'am."

"Oh," said the woman, "you are the man I'm looking for. Where is his cap?"

General Montgomery at the head of the 8th Army, with whom marched the Canadians —welcome comrades—on Sept. 3 began to cross the Strait of Messina and land at various points in the toe of Italy. One could not tell how much would leak out nor what would happen in Rome or in Italy before our main attack, nor to what extent the Italian government would have the power to carry out their undertakings.

In this uncertainty I availed myself of the President's invitation to remain with him in the White House.

Appraises Italian Action

We may pause for a moment to survey and appraise the act of the Italian government, indorsed and acclaimed as it was by the Italian nation.

Herr Hitler has left us in no doubt he considers the conduct of Italy treacherous and base in the extreme and he is a good judge of such matters (loud laughter).

Others may hold that the act of treachery and ingratitude took place with the Fascist confederacy headed by Mussolini —for he was not alone, but now became absolute dictator of his country's destiny—when the whole nation, ground up into his system after nearly a generation of totalitarian rule, when he used his arbitrary power to strike for material gain at falling France and so became the enemy of the British Empire, which for so many years had cherished the cause of Italian liberty, and afterward becoming the enemy of the United States, in which six or seven million Italians have found a happy home.

There was the crime, and though it cannot be undone and though nations who allow their rights and liberties to be subverted by tyrants must suffer heavy penalties for those tyrants' crimes, yet I cannot view the Italian action at this juncture as other than natural and human.

May it prove to be the first of a series of acts of self-redemption. It is possible, indeed, that I or the Foreign Secretary will have a further statement to make upon the subject of the Badoglio government before we separate. The Italian people have already suffered terribly. Their manhood has been cast away in Africa and Russia. Their soldiers have been deserted in the field. We have seen that ourselves. Their wealth has been squandered. Their empire has been lost, irretrievably lost (cheers).

Now their own beautiful homeland must become a battlefield for the German rear guards. Even more suffering lies ahead. They are to be pillaged and terrorized in Hitler's fury and revenge. Nevertheless, as the armies of the British Empire and the United States march forward in Italy, as we shall march, the Italian people will be rescued from a state of servitude and degradation and will be enabled in due course to regain their rightful place among the free democracies of the modern world.

German Case "Different"

I cannot touch upon the matter of Italy without exposing myself to a question I shall most properly be asked: Would you apply this line of argument to the German people?

Sir, I say the case is different. Twice in our lifetime, and also three times in that of our fathers, they have plunged the world into their wars of expansion and aggression. They combine in the most deadly manner the qualities of the warrior and slave. They do not value freedom themselves and the spectacle of it in others is hateful to them. Whenever they become strong they seek their prey and they will follow with an iron discipline any one who will lead them to it.

The core of Germany is Prussia. There is the source of the recurring pestilence. But we do not war with races as such. We war against tyranny and we seek to preserve ourselves from destruction.

I am sure the British, American and Russian peoples, who have suffered measureless waste, peril and bloodshed twice in a quarter of a century through the Teutonic urge for domination, will this time take steps to put it beyond the power of Prussia or all Germany to come at them again.

Must Be Rooted Out

Nazi tyranny and Prussian militarism are the two main elements in German life which must be absolutely destroyed. They must be absolutely rooted out if Europe and the world are to be spared a third and still more frightful conflict. Sir, controversies about whether Burke was right or wrong when he said, "I do not know a method of drawing up an indictment against a whole people"—these controversies seem to be at this time sterile and academic.

Here are two obvious practical targets for us to fire at—Nazi tyranny and Prussian militarism. Let us aim every gun, let us set every man who will march, in motion against them. We must not add needlessly to the weight of our task or to the burden that our soldiers bear. Satellite states, suborned or overawed, may perhaps, if they can help to shorten the war, be allowed to work their passage home [loud laughter].

But the twin roots of all our evils—Nazi tyrrany and Prussian militarism—must be extirpated. Until this is achieved there are no sacrifices that we will not make, no length in violence to which we will not go.

I will add this. Having at the end of my life acquired some influence upon affairs, I wish to make it clear that I would not prolong this war needlessly for a single day and my hope is that if and when the British people are called by victory to share responsibility of shaping the future we shall show the same poise and temper as we did in the hour of our mortal peril [loud cheers].

Explains Problem at Salerno

I have made a considerable, but I think by no means unnecessary, diversion into the relations and views which we may form toward various enemy or satellite countries with whom we may have to deal and I now come back to the purely military sphere.

The invasion of Italy in the Naples area was the most daring amphibious operation we have yet launched or has ever been launched on similar scale. In North Africa we expected little resistance and much help from the French. In Sicily we expected the opposition of the Italians would be lukewarm and we knew we greatly outnumbered the Germans. And on landing in northwest Africa no serious air power was likely to be encountered.

Our descent on Sicily was covered by overwhelming air fighter superiority over the beaches from our own shore bases at Malta and Pantelleria.

From the Gulf of Salerno we were at the extreme range of shore-based aircraft flying from Palermo and other conquered Sicilian fields. Until we gained refuelling stations and landing places our single-engined fighter squadrons had but a quarter hour's activity over the battle-field area.

It is a terrible problem for a pilot engaged in action to fight for a few minutes and then to submit himself to reaching home across the seas. Therefore it was necessary to make demands on our air strength which, even at its great numbers, could hardly supply the forces necessary of maintenance and continuous flying with the rapidity which was necessary.

We could not, therefore, go further north than Naples. It was, in fact, said it might have been better to go north of Naples and Spezia, but we could not go further north than Naples unless we dispensed with the aid of land-based aircraft.

Even as it is, we were dependent upon sea-borne aircraft, in which we are happily becoming stronger and in the future will become stronger.

To have gone further north would have deprived our carriers of the support of shore-based aircraft and they would have thus become the sole object of the enemy's attack, thus absorbing their own air power for their own defense instead of helping the troops on the beaches.

These are the hard limitations imposed upon us at the present time. These considerations must have been known to the Germans with whom alone we had to deal.

Says Foe Was Ready

Although the German forces were not numerous enough to man the whole of threatened sectors along the coast, they could counter-attack within a few hours with forces equal to those which we had built up in the first stages. At least the enemy's forces were equal to our own and they had power to march against us, to counter-attack with superior or equal numbers before we could secure any land bases or harbors, and while for several days we had to land and feed our forces on the open beaches, at this stage of war a disastrous repulse and enforced re-embarkation would have been particularly vexatious.

No doubt if this had occurred, criticism would have been leveled at the British and American war direction by some of those who are clamoring for the serious and more difficult operation across the Channel.

The enterprise, therefore, seemed full of hazards, especially as such a long distance—over 150 miles— separated the vanguard of the 8th Army from our new and major attack. This attack was confided to the United States Army commander of the 5th Army, General Clark, an officer of remarkable energy and force, who had under his command an equal number of United States and British divisions, supported by ample British and American naval forces and by our entire combined air forces.

If we had been ready to take a greater risk, we could, of course, have attacked earlier with a smaller force. If we had been ready to take greater risks, we could have attacked much farther to the northward, relying in that case wholly on sea-borne aircraft. But the enemy's strength would not have been less in the area involved, for no appreciable reinforcements from the north reached or could have reached the Naples area during the period involved, owing to faulty communications and our interference with them.

I think the case against delay is pretty watertight. When I survey in retrospect last week's intense fighting, with battles swaying to and fro, it looks as if we cut it very fine indeed. On the night of Sept. 8 the approaches and landing were successfully effected, but as the battle developed it was, from the second day onward, most critical.

The British and American divisions fought side by side, with their backs to the sea, with only a few miles behind them and with their equipment coming in slowly over the beaches and their landing craft coming in under recurrent attacks from the enemy in the air.

The Germans came in well organized assaults, fighting in their practiced skill in offense and defense. From the third day to the seventh day the issue hung in the balance and the possibility of a large-scale disaster could not be excluded. There are no certainties in war. There is a precipice on both sides—the precipice of precaution and the precipice of daring.

Alexander on Scene

General Alexander, in whose group of armies this operation lay, and later on General Eisenhower, the supreme commander, proceeded to the scene in person and visited divisional and brigade headquarters on this fluctuating battle front and conferred with General Clark at his battle post ashore. Every inch of ground was savagely disputed. The harbor at Salerno was got into working order and is now discharging supplies on a considerable scale. Reinforcements, of which there was no lack, poured in to the utmost limit of our landing craft.

The battle swngs to and fro, and one can quite understand the German hopes of driving us into the sea, with bloody mopping up on the beaches, must have risen high at times. When we thought we had their measure, a British battle squadron with some of the finest battleships joined the inshore squadron and by heavy bombardment of the enemy on the shore ran a great risk in narrow waters and at close range of enemy aircraft. Enemy gliders damaged some ships.

It was right to risk capital ships in this manner. They came in at close range and restored the artillery battle.

Defends Risking Ships

It was right to risk capital ships in this matter in view of the improvement of our naval balance, to which I will refer before sitting down.

The British and American air forces surpassed all previous efforts. Almost 2,500 fighter and bomber sorties were flown during twenty-four hours at the height of the battle, and 1,400 tons of bombs were dropped on German forces in the battlefield and among their immediate communications during the same twenty-four-hour period.

Meanwhile, the 8th Army, whose operations had been considered from the beginning as complementary, were striking with the 5th Army. They had become masters of many points in the toe, ball and heel of Italy, were advancing with giant strides and on the tenth day began to intervene, as it was intended they should, on the enemy's southern flank and rear.

Results show the enemy has been worsted. Our main forces are fully assured and the 8th Army are coming into action in suitable places. We have recovered the initiative and we are able now to advance northward on a broad front. That operation is now in progress.

"An Important Victory"

We must consider this episode—the landing on the beaches at Salerno—as an important and pregnant victory—one deserving definite place in the records of the British and United States armies and in the records of the British and United States Armies fighting together and shedding their blood.

While this struggle was raging the armistice with Italy was made public and the Badoglio government ordered Italian troops to fulfil its conditions. They also called upon them to resist the Germans when attacked by them. A German panzer division outside Rome broke into city and drove out the King and his government and they are now established behind our advancing lines.

I will not add to the excellent accounts, more full and vivid, which have been published in the newspapers which are fuller and more interesting than official telegrams (laughter). But I would say that in my opinion, they give a very true picture broadly to the public of what has been taking place. I do not, I say, need add to them. Indeed, I have found myself at a disadvantage, having for five days had to depend on official accounts and not knowing what the newspapers contain, a knowledge of which the House itself is fully possessed, in the way of descriptive passages about this battle.

Says Italians Side With Allies

I will, however, emphasize some main points which stand out. The first is that the Italian forces and the Italian population have everywhere shown themselves unfriendly or actively hostile to the Germans and everywhere have endeavored to obey so far as possible the order of the King of Italy's new government. The second is that every effort has been made both by that government and its forces to comply with the armistice conditions. Fighting is taking place at many points between Italians and the German intruders and there is no doubt whatever on which side the sympathy, hopes and efforts, of the Italian nation now lie.

In Sardinia, for instance, which until lately was considered a major prize in itself, four Italian divisions have driven out the German garrison. American forces have now landed in their support. The French have landed in Corsica.

We had great and elaborate plans worked out for these places, but we have got them in the "pick up"—broadly as a result of sound blows at the center and vital points of the enemy. The French have landed in Corsica and, added to the Italian garrison there, are actively attacking the Germans. This is the first time the French have been in action for liberation of their home territory.

Italians Aid Corsica Fight

At one site in Bastia Harbor the batteries were manned by Italian and French patriots whom the Italians had been sent to put down. The fight was conducted by Italian destroyers and a British submarine, all united in shelling and driving the Germans out of the place. For the first time, as I have said, the French were in action for the liberation of their territory. But a powerful French Army is growing up and it will play an increasing part.

The escape of Mussolini to Germany, his rescue by paratroops and his attempt to form a Quisling government with German bayonets which will try to refix the Fascist yoke upon the necks of the Italian people—this raises the issue of Italian civil war.

It is necessary in the general interest as well as in that of Italy that all the surviving forces in Italy's national life should be rallied together around their government and that the King and Marshal Badoglio should be supported (cheers) by whatever liberal left-wing elements which are capable of making headway against the Nazi Quisling gang and thus drive this villainous combination from Italian soil or, better still, annihilate it on the spot.

This, of course, is without the slightest prejudice to the untrammeled right of the Italian nation to make what arrangement it chooses for the future government of their country on democratic lines when peace and tranquillity are restored. (Cheers.)

If there is any issue on this point, and it certainly is one which will come most abundantly to the front, we must, of course, thresh it out and come to an issue, because the government intends to pursue a policy of engaging all the forces it can to make headway against the Germans and drive them out of Italy.

We propose to do that, and we are not going to be put off that action by any fear that we should not have perhaps complete unanimity on the subject. Parliament does not act on unanimity. Democratic assemblies do not act by unanimity; they act by majority.

I have not the slightest hesitation or doubt as to what will be the view of the House and what will be the view of the country in respect of the policy which I am announcing (cheers) and which we are determined to carry through with the utmost vigor.

[David Rhys Grenfell, Laborite, interrupting, said he did not think there was any division between the two sides of the House, but that there was anxiety in the House. He said the Prime Minister used earlier a very encouraging phrase when he described the Army as an Army of liberation. There are many, Grenfell said, anxious that this be the liberation of forces who had been working on our side long before the armistice with Italy.

Expects Some Dissension

I would make it perfectly clear that we are endeavoring to rally the strongest forces together in Italy to make headway against the Germans and the Mussolini-Quisling-Fascist combination. That is what we intend to do.

We shall do our utmost to explain and to justify any course we take to Parliament, but we cannot expect to convince everybody. There are some people who will run their own ideas to such a point without the slightest regard for the difficulties and dangers which troops have to face, and also, I may say, without giving the slightest consideration to the actual conditions of confusion and anarchy which prevail in Italy and which at this most terrible juncture require the most desperate measures in order to make any form of Italian nationality coherent and physical.

[Frederick Seymour Cocks, Laborite, asked if the Allied governments intended to allow Italian exiles to go back to Italy to arouse the people for the Allied cause.]

I should be very glad to see this kind of people rally to an all-Italian government which must be formed to drive out the Germans and other elements. Liberal and left-wing elements, if they are given an opportunity and do not come forward, they will be taking on a great responsibility, because there are moments in the life of a country when people cannot be more wise and help to throw in their lot with forces on whom depend the existence and identity of their nation.

Well, now, that is all right? (Laughter.)

Nothing that is settled here in administrative diplomacy prejudges or prejudices in any way the decision of the Italian people in the form of government they intend to have. We are coming to the rescue and liberation of Italy. We are prepared to place large armies in Italy and to deploy a wide, active, fighting front against the enemy on whatever lines he chooses to resist and to maintain an offensive against him with increasing weight and vigor, if need be, throughout the autumn and winter and beyond.

It is, of course, of great importance to the United Nations to bring the largest forces they possibly can to bear upon the enemy and to force the fighting to the utmost. We are terribly hampered by the sea, which has been our shield and protection and is now the barrier which prevents the employment of these considerable forces. It is our interest to force the fighting to the utmost and to find means, some of them not even the best means, of coming into contact with the enemy. Especially is this true in the air, where our superiority of numbers as well as quality must find full scope.

It is to our advantage to use the air on equal terms and more than equal terms—worse than equal terms to the enemy—in order to produce that diminution which we can sustain and which he cannot. But, happily, losses will show an advantage on our side. They have lost more heavily than we have in nearly all the fights.

"The Third Front"

I call this front which we opened first in Africa, next in Sicily and now in Italy the third front. A second front which already exists potentially and which is rapidly gathering weight has not yet been engaged. But is is here, holding force in its front, and I am not going to hint at the moment when it will be engaged. But the second front exists and is a main preoccupation already with the enemy.

It has not yet been thrown into play. On the day when we and our American Allies judge to be the right time this front also will be thrown open and thrown into play and the mass invasion of the Continent from the west in combination with the invasion from the south will begin.

It really is quite impossible for those who do not know the facts and figures of the American assembly in Britain or our own powerful expeditionary armies now preparing here; who do not know the dispositions of the enemy as between various fronts on which he is menaced or assaulted; or who cannot measure has reserve or resources and his power to transfer large forces from one front to another over the vast railway system of Europe; who do not know the state of our fleet of landing craft of all kinds—and this must be proportionate to work they have to do—who do not know how, actually, the means of landing will take place or what are the necessary stages of build-up that have to be thought out beforehand in relation to what the enemy can do—it is impossible for those who do not know these facts, which are studied by hundreds of skilled officers day after day and month after month, to pronounce a useful opinion upon this operation.

The House may be absolutely certain his majesty's present government—

[William Gallacher, Communist, interrupted to ask if that applied to Marshal Josef V. Stalin.]

We certainly should not take our advice in matters of this kind from the British Communists because we know they stood aside and cared nothing for our fortunes in our dire and mortal peril (cheers). Any adivec we take will be from friends and Allies who are all joined together in the common cause and the winning of victory.

The House may be absolutely certain that the present government will never be swayed or overborne by any uninstructed agitation, however natural, or pressure, however well meant, in matters of this kind.

It will not be forced or cajoled into undertaking vast operations against our better judgment in order to gain political unanimity or a cheer from any quarter.

"Bloodiest Portion Ahead"

The bloodiest portion—make no mistake about it—the bloodiest portion of this war for Great Britain and the United States lies ahead of us. Neither the House nor His Majesty's Government will shrink from that ordeal.

We shall not grudge any sacrifice for the common cause but must regard it a matter of personal honor to act only in a conviction of success founded upon the highest professional advice at our disposal in operations of the first magnitude.

I decline, therefore, to discuss at all the question of where, how and on what scale the main assault from the west will be launched, and I trust and am confident the House will support the government in this attitude.

I am glad to say that several important arrangements have been made at Quebec and in consultation with the War Cabinet here for closer correlation of policy and action between the Soviet Union, Britain and the United States. The difficulties of geography have hitherto proved an insurmountable impediment although various efforts have been made, not only by the United States and by the British government, to bridge the physical gap, by successive visits to Moscow by Lord Beaverbrook, the Foreign Secretary and myself and by the visit of Foreign Commissar Viacheslav M. Molotov to this country and the United States.

Tells of Stalin's Request

In August, replying to a telegram from President Roosevelt and myself informing Russia of the Italian peace feelers, Marshal Stalin expressed a wish to have an inter-Allied commission set up in the Mediterranean to deal with these and similar problems as and when they arose—the Mediterranean problem of working the Italian armistice and all that as they arose.

We were very glad to find this friendly interest taken in our Mediterranean operations by our Russian allies. The commission cannot, of course, supersede the authority or diminish the responsibilities of government, but its members will be kept fully informed of all that passes and will have the power of individual or collective representation to their governments.

Our representative will be Harold Macmillan, whose work at General Eisenhower's headquarters is closely connected with this field and who is discharging his difficult duties with increasing distinction and success.

But arrangements also been made—I must make it quite clear this does not relieve the governments of their responsibilities because that would be contrary to the parliamentary principle on which we rest and also, of course, the military emergency dominates everything—arrangements also been made, as has already been stated, for a tripartite conference between the foreign secretaries of the three countries or their representatives.

Eden To Be Representative

We shall be represented by the Foreign Secretary, in whom the House and his colleagues have complete confidence.

The conference will take place at an early date and no question will be barred from its discussions. The whole ground will be surveyed and matters will be carried forward to agreement wherever possible. Where there is a difference, that will be set aside for what I am coming to now.

We have also a confident hope of a subsequent meeting before the end of the year between the President of the United States, Marshal Stalin and myself, and I need scarcely say the time and place of this meeting will not be made public until the meeting has been concluded.

And I would add that all speculation on such points of details in the newspaper press would on the whole be unhelpful.

The work which will have to be done on the Foreign Office level between the three countries should prove invaluable and is certainly an indispensable preliminary to any such meetings between the heads of governments.

I will not say any more on this subject at the present time except that no meeting during this war could carry with it so much significance for the future of the world as a meeting between the heads of the three governments, for without close, cordial and lasting association between Soviet Russia and the other great Allies we might find ourselves at the end of the war only to have entered a period of deepening confusion.

French Question Settled

At Quebec also was settled the question of recognition of the French Committee of National Liberation. Any difference in the degrees of this recognition which may be noticed in documents of the various powers arises solely from the importance which is attached to preserving full freedom to the French nation as a whole to decide its future destinies under the conditions of freedom and tranquility. Neither Great Britain nor the United States is prepared to regard the French National Committee as other than a provisional instrument, and this view is fully accepted by the members of the committee themselves. I am happy to say a continued improvement of personal relations and a fusion of aims has taken place in the last two months within the committee itself.

Personalities have receded and the collective strength of this body—which I will call the trustees of France during the time of her incapacitation — has steadily grown. With the exception only of Indo-China, which is still within enemy hands, they administer with success the entire French Empire. This disposes of a considerable fleet in which the first-class modern battleship Richelieu will presently take her place.

A French Army of three or four hundred thousand men is being steadily organized by the French Committee under the command of General Henri Honore Giraud and in closest association with his colleague, General Charles de Gaulle.

This army is being equipped with the most modern equipment, supplied by the United States government, and it will not be long before we shall again experience the inspiring sense of having strong French forces alongside us on the battlefront.

French To Be Represented

I am glad to add that both Russia and the United States are agreeable to the French National Committee being represented on the new commission which is being set up in the Mediterranean. In this respect and for the first time they take their place as an equal partner with the great nations which are warring against Germany in Europe. Although I have not hesitated to express my differences with various sections of the French National Committee from time to time—and I can not pretend that all has run smoothly and happily—I want to make it quite clear that I regard the restoration of France as one of the great powers of Europe as a sacred duty from which Great Britain will never turn.

This arises not only from the sentiments which we hold toward France, so long our comrades in victory and misfortune, but also from the fact that it is one of the main and enduring interests of Great Britain in Europe that there should be a strong France and a strong French Army.

Such a condition can, however, only be reached on the basis of free self-expression of the French people as a whole. They must themselves be the judges of the conduct of their fellow Frenchmen in the terrible conditions which followed the military collapse in the summer of 1940.

Interruption in the House

I remain convinced that the highest honor will be accorded those who never flinched or wavered in the hour of disaster and that lasting condemnation and, I trust, salutary punishment will be meted out to all the prominent persons who have not only merely bowed to force of circumstances but who for the sake of personal ambition or profit have tried to promote the victory of the common foe.

[There was an interruption here and Churchill reported: "Some people are reduced by our prolonged unbroken successes to little more than mocking laughter."]

There were three points arising out of the unconditional surrender of Italy and the armistice which we granted which require special notice. First, there were our prisoners of war. There were nearly 70,000 British prisoners of war and upward of 25,000 Greek and Yugoslav prisoners in Italian hands.

Discusses Prisoners of Italy

From the very first moment of Mussolini's fall we made it brutally clear to the Italian government and the King that we regarded the liberation of these prisoners and their restoration to our care as a prime, indispensable condition to any relationship between us and any Italian government. However, many of these prisoners in the north of Italy and others in the central and southern parts might have fallen into the power of the Germans. I have no precise information to give to the House today in view of the confusion prevailing in Italy, which only our armies can clarify.

The Italian government, however, have given orders for release from confinement of all Allied prisoners under their control and I have no doubt that these will be succored by the Italian people, among whom they are dispersing in spite of German threats of punishment to any Italians who show these acts of common humanity.

In all these matters we were acting with the greatest vigilance and earnestness and everything in human power would be done. Much—everything, in fact —depended on the movement of the armies in the next few weeks.

The second important feature arising out of the armistice with Italy was the situation in the Balkans. Here, with marvelous and with indomitable tenacity, patriot bands of Greeks and Yugoslavs had maintained formidable resistance to the torturers of their countries.

Praises Guerrillas' Fight

They hold great regions under their control, they fight fierce battles in the mountains, they destroy communications, they occupy important towns and ports with vigor and on a scale which has required no fewer than forty-seven German, Italian and Bulgarian divisions—for this is the dirty work Bulgaria does—to be maintained continuously in these vast and wild spaces. Of these, upward of twenty-five were Italian divisions who, even if unable to turn upon the common foe, will certainly be of no further danger to the patriots and, indeed, a valuable source of equipment.

This gap will have to be supplied from some quarter or other by the Germans at a time when they are so heavily strained upon the Russian front and other fronts. Hitherto we have had no means of helping these unconquerable champions of Greek and Yugoslav freedom except by air-borne supplies and by officers and money. With the control of southern Italy, to which we are confidently looking forward in the near future, and with the building up of our air power in Italy, entry and perhaps command of the Adriatic should become possible.

All this opens to us a far-reaching vista of action, which must also be surveyed in relation to the conditions and temper of the people in the satellite states —Hungary, Rumania and Bulgaria. All of which is a study in itself and all of which will be increasingly affected by the advance of the Russian armies and by the development of Anglo-American bombing.

In dealing with this subject I must say no more than what is already obvious to the enemy. Henceforward we shall see the Germans holding down or trying to hold down the whole of Hitler's Europe by systematic terror.

Whenever Hitler's legions can momentarily avert their eyes from the hostile battlefronts which are closing in upon them, they can take their choice of either looking upon the ruined cities of the German homeland or upon what is the not less awful spectacle of infuriated populations which are waiting to devour them.

The third and most tangible advantage we have gained from the overthrow of Italy is the surrender of the Italian fleet. This was fulfilled in fidelity to the orders of the Italian King and the Badoglio government. Practically the whole of the Italian Navy and many merchant ships and many submarines, often in face of great risk, have strictly executed the conditions of the armistice and made their way to Malta or to other ports under British control.

Sees Naval Balance Affected

This event has decisively al-

tered the naval balance of the world. Not only have the Allies gained the Italian fleet, to use in any way they think most serviceable, but there was also set free the stronger British fleet which was measured against it. We came into two naval fortunes on the same day —or, as we should put it in this House, we counted two on division.

Very large additional naval forces are, therefore, at our disposal. The United States forces are already dominating in the Pacific. Old disasters have been repaired with new building, but very large additional naval forces have now come into our hands and, since they will not remain idle for one single unnecessary day, I venture to think that the Japanese war lords may soon find themselves confronted, at any rate, with some serious considerations which were probably not in their minds at the time they ordered the attack upon Pearl Harbor.

Comment on U. S. Politics

I now have finished my survey and I have but one word more. The political atmosphere in the United States is not the same as it is over here. The Constitution decrees elections at fixed intervals and the parties are forced to assert and defend their special interests at these elections in a manner which we by our more flexible system have been able to lay aside for the time being. Nevertheless, I was made conscious of the resolve and desire of all parties to drive forward the war on all fronts and against all foes with the utmost determination. I was also conscious of a feeling of friendliness toward Britain and the British commonwealth and empire such as I have never known before and a respect for the war of the 46,000,000 in this small island and the conduct of our troops, who are comrades of the Americans in the hard-fought fields of this war.

All this was very dear and refreshing to my heart. I found also the feeling everywhere that the war was being well managed, that skilled direction made good plans and that highly competent and resolute officers were intrusted with their execution in every part of the globe.

It is my hope that this conviction is generally shared at home (cheers and laughter) and that the House of Commons will feel no need to reproach itself for the unwavering confidence which it has given to His Majesty's servants in their discharge of the exceptional burdens which have been thrust upon them.

MARSHALL SLATED TO TAKE COMMAND OF GLOBAL FORCES

U. S. Chief of Staff to Lead All Anglo-American Armies.

BRITISH APPROVAL SEEN

Formal Action by London Awaited Before Announcement of Appointment.

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

(Copyright, 1943, By ASSOCIATED PRESS)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—General George C. Marshall is the Roosevelt-Churchill choice for a world-wide field command to lead all Anglo-American forces in the smashing of the Axis.

Only approval of the unprecedented assignment by the British War cabinet stands between the United States chief of staff and the tremendous task of effectuating the global victory directives of the Quebec conference. Nobody expects anything less from the British war advisors than full endorsement of the nomination.

Rumors Flood Capital

That word was given the writer today by a highly-placed official. It came as Washington seethed with rumors about Gen. Marshall's future. One version, as expressed on the House floor by Rep. Sumner (R., Ill.), was that he was to be "kicked upstairs (to a command in the European theater) because he stands for American rights."

Members of Congress were so concerned, it was disclosed, that a group representing the Senate Military Affairs committee protested informally to Secretary of War Stimson that any shifting of Gen. Marshall would be deeply resented by the American people.

But reaction generally was enthusiastic to the report that Gen. Marshall would become global commander-in-chief. Senator Bridges (R., N. H.), a member of the Military committee, said, "I dislike to see him leave as chief of staff of the American armies, but if he is to be global commander of the Anglo-American armies of the world that is a greater opportunity for service and I am gratified that he has been selected."

Would Be Top Commander

Not only would assumption of the global command give Gen. Marshall authority over the southwest Pacific where General Douglas MacArthur is commander, over General Dwight D. Eisenhower's sphere in the Mediterranean, over Lord Louis Mountbatten's East Asia command, and over the even vaster operations that impend against western Europe—it would make him active director of all sea and air forces of the English-speaking nations, wherever found and however assigned.

The date of any announcement of the new assignment is uncertain, but this much was made known to this writer today; the nomination was perhaps the main decision of the global strategy conferences of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill in Quebec.

Planned War Strategy

That decision was taken in acknowledgement that in successive conferences to cut the pattern of victory east and west, Gen. Marshall was the outstanding contributor to strategic plans at Washington, Casablanca, Washington again, and then Quebec.

Rumors that Gen. Marshall is to be eased out of his present chief of staff assignment due to the pressure of interests opposed to him, presumably British, are in direct conflict with the facts. The American chief of staff has won the admiration and respect of all the British officials with whom he has come in contact, including Prime Minister Churchill.

The unprecedented scope of his contemplated ultimate command might stir debate in Britain. It is understood to be wholly acceptable to Canada, however, and so far as known to French forces in the Mediterranean.

Highly Regarded by Roosevelt

One thing is absolutely certain. Gen. Marshall stands so high in President Roosevelt's estimation, both personally and for his professional attainments that the White House would veto any change in his present assignment that Gen. Marshall himself opposed, that was not a definite recognition of his abilities and—perhaps most of all—that Mr. Roosevelt did not regard as an important contribution to victory over the Axis.

The primary and dominating element of Allied war plans still is to smash Germany first, then turn the full might of ever increasing Anglo-American armed power on Japan. For that reason Gen. Marshall is expected to assume command of the "direct attack across the English channel on Germany in France and the low countries" for which Prime Minister Churchill told Parliament today the present Mediterranean campaign was "an essential preliminary."

"Our toughest job is to reach Berlin and Marshall is the toughest soldier we (the Allies) have got to do it," a high-placed government official told this writer today.

It also was indicated that in Gen. Marshall the Anglo-American joint chiefs of staff saw the only officer of either nation to whose supreme command both could intrust the tremendous task of completing the victory. It will involve, it is indicated, not only placing Britain's main army, her home fleet and her home air forces under other than a British commander for the far-reaching offensive actions across the channel contemplated; but even linking the operations in the Pacific, in Asia and India and in China with a unified central field command in due course.

Opposes Delay in Inductions

I believe Gen. Marshall gave some hint of his own view of the relative importance of his present assignment as army chief of staff and the super field command for which he has been nominated in his testimony this week before congressional committees. In urging that no legislative step to halt or delay the flow of new men into the ranks be taken, such as the proposed ban on drafting pre-Pearl Harbor fathers, he made it clear that he regarded his task of organizing and training the victory army as virtually completed.

The American army has "reached its peak" in training and was "poised for aggressive action," he said, adding that to defer or halt planned new manpower quotas for the Army now "would emasculate the tail end of our Army." He made it clear that in his judgment the job at home from now on will be the furnishing on schedule of adequate replacements in men and munitions for forces now on the fighting fronts or scheduled to embark soon.

By implication that apprisement of the status of the Army as of today means that the function of chief of staff at home is destined to become largely a routine matter of meeting the requirements of the forces over seas. There is no question that Gen. Marshall would prefer a field command even if it did not include global functions.

London Reaction Favorable

LONDON, Sept. 22 (Wednesday) (AP).—The Associated Press story from Washington by Kirke Simpson that General George C. Marshall is tentatively slated to be the virtual globe commander in chief of all British and American forces was frontpaged today by a majority of London morning newspapers.

While there was no official or editorial comment, the unofficial reaction was that General Marshall's appointment as head of all Allied forces in the field—ground, sea and air—would be satisfactory to British military leaders.

The story was given great credence here because of Simpson's reputation with Fleet Street editors and their knowledge of his intimate contacts with the White House.

General Marshall is well known and well liked in British military and naval circles on the basis of his visit here last spring.

One unofficial but competent source said: "Marshall would be one of the best leaders in the world for such a post. He has shown by his leadership he is qualified for such a post."

REFUGEES REPORT REIGN OF TERROR IMPOSED BY NAZIS

Thousands of Italians Slain by Curfew Patrols After Dark.

ISLANDS MOPPED UP

Allies Tighten Hold on Corsica, Sardinia, Ousting Enemy.

FIFTH ARMY GAINS

Yanks Widen Area Seized from Foe After Salerno Victory.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 21 — (AP) Clouds of smoke billowed up over Naples tonight, dispatches from Fifth army positions said, and the possibility that the city was being sacked and burned by the Nazis, perhaps as a step toward further retreat, was suggested in refugees' accounts.

Persons slipping through the battle lines into Allied-held territory told Relman Morin, Associated Press correspondent, that the Germans had plunged Naples into a state of widespread horror, with curfew patrols killing "thousands" of Italians in the last two weeks. They said epidemics of typhoid and typhus were adding to the situation.

Islands Mopped Up

Meanwhile, the Mediterranean islands of Corsica and Sardinia on Italy's west flank were being mopped up by Allied and Italian forces while the U. S. Fifth army pried wider to 16 miles its hold below the blazing city of Naples by capturing Eboli.

American Liberators flew 500 miles up the Adriatic coast of Italy to bomb Venice for the first time, setting fires which sent smoke curling a mile high. They cast bombs en route on Pescara, half way up the Adriatic. The Middle East command anounced also the occupation of two of Italy's Dodecanese islands—Coo and Lero—and the Greek island of Samos. R.A.F. fighters already are operating from Coo.

(Prime Minister Churchill told Commons that American forces had landed on Sardinia and were helping four Italian divisions drive out the Germans. At Salerno, he said, "we have recovered the initiative and are now able to advance northward on a broad front."

(The German radio at Oslo said Allied artillery was shelling Naples.)

Corsica Capital Seized

French Commandos and patriots captured Ajaccio, capital and main port of Corsica and birthplace of Napoleon. They clashed several times with German troops estimated at 12,000 men, last reported concentrated on the eastern side of the island. Corsica, containing 3,367 square miles, lies 54 miles west of Italy and 98 miles south of the Italian port of Genoa.

Favorable progress in the conquest of Corsica, a department of metropolitan France, was reported tonight in a French communique from Gen. Henri Giraud's headquarters.

Western Area Liberated

The communique announced that "the whole western side of Corsica is now liberated" from the Germans and that advance troops are in possession of St. Florent. French troops, disclosed earlier to have landed on the island, have taken eastern Corte and the city of Sartene, the communique said.

St. Florent is on the north coast of the island at the western base of Cape Corso. It is about eight miles across the narrow neck of land from Bastia, which is occupied by the Germans. Corte is virtually in the center of the island and Sartene is in the south.

German troops attempting to recapture the heights of Sorba "were easily repulsed," the communique said. It added that light detachments of French troops and Corsican patriots were probing enemy lines of communication and pushing forward toward Bonifacio, on the extreme southern tip of the island, and Port Vecchio, about 16 miles to the north.

Most of the 40,000 Italians garrisoning Corsica have teamed up with the French troops and guerrillas, although "one Italian Fascist regiment" was said in a naval announcement to have joined the German defense. The Germans were reported strung from Bastia in the north to Bonifacio in the south. The French Commandos participating in the attack landed from swift French warships.

Nazis Retreat at Salerno

In the Salerno area, 12 to 20 airline miles south of Naples, the German retreat northward to form a single line against United States and British troops of the Fifth and Eighth armies appeared to be gaining impetus.

The capture of Eboli gave the Allies an important highway center and the key to German escape exits east of the Salerno battlefield.

While a portion of the Fifth army was driving on east through Eboli, other units of Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's command worked through Monte-Corvino Rovelle, a little north of Eboli and nine miles inland.

Yet another prong of his army worked its way slowly through the rugged mountain area north of Salerno near smoking Mt. Vesuvius.

German opposition was light.

Naples, announced objective of Gen. Clark, was within 12-mile artillery range of his troops which captured the Sorrento peninsula, flanking the Bay of Naples on the south

Nazi Transport Bombed

American fighter-bombers battered large columns of German motor transport fleeing west from Potenza, 40 miles east of Eboli. Presumably, these columns, or such as survived the terrific rain of bombs and aerial machine gun bullets, were hoping to escape on an inland road which heads northward at a point west of Potenza. Once again the German air force was wholly absent from southern Italian skies.

THOUSANDS SLAIN BY NAZI TROOPS IN CITY OF NAPLES

Germans Loot, Destroy in Area Soon to Be Taken by Allies.

WITH THE FIFTH ARMY IN ITALY, Sept. 21 — (AP) The Germans have turned Naples into a city of horror, killing thousands of Italian civilians and looting, burning and destroying, it was reported today by persons who filtered through the battle lines into Allied-held territory.

Civilians said the town already was without water or any means of lighting the houses. A little food was brought down from orchards and farms in the mountains, but the organization for distributing it has broken down completely under the harsh German restrictions regarding the curfew.

It means death to go out of houses at night looking for food and water, the Italians said. German soldiers patrolling the streets don't challenge or ask for identification. They shoot first.

Asked an estimate of how many Italians had been killed that way in the last two weeks, the people who arrived in this area said "thousands." They added that there are no medical supplies and epidemics of both typhoid and typhus are raging.

Since the armistice, the Germans have turned on them like enemies they said, and are beating them and treating them worse than in any occupied country in Europe.

In addition, the communique said, French troops who were disclosed earlier to have landed on the island have taken the eastern region of Corte and the city of Sartene. Corte is virtually in the center of the island and Sartene is in the south. St. Florient is on the north coast at the western base of Cape Corso, about eight miles across the narrow neck of land from Bastia, occupied by the Germans.

German troops attempted to recapture the heights of Sorba, the communique said, but "were easily repulsed."

Slowly and steadily pressing the Germans backward, the Fifth Army stormed and took the key town of Eboli, sixteen miles inland, which had served the enemy as a communications center during last week's heavy fighting about Salerno.

Lieut.-Gen. Mark W. Clark's soldiers also battered their way to Monte-Corvino, nine miles inland, in a sustained push, an official source disclosed.

Nazis Swing Line Back.

A military spokesman also announced that the Germans are swinging the lower end of a line which formerly inclosed the Salerno bridgehead to the north and east to avoid being trapped by the continued rapid advance of the British Eighth Army. This retreat already has taken the bulk of the Germans north of the Sele River.

The Germans are using infantry supported by small groups of tanks to fight a delaying action in the Eboli area and the Fifth Army also was reported encountering elaborate minefields and demolitions in its slow but continued advance north of Salerno.

Italians Join French.

Most of Corsica's Italian garrison of about 40,000 men has joined native guerrillas and French troops landed from fast French warships in a fight to wipe out the German forces on the island, an official announcement said today.

The announcement, issued by the Allied naval command, declared that French destroyers of the latest design, which are among the word's fastest warcraft, had dashed into Ajaccio Harbor with troops and supplies after a first visit was paid by a French submarine. This submarine joined the French Navy after a daring flight from a French port last November.

Some nights later the same warships made a second fast trip to Ajaccio with more men, guns and other equipment. At the time, the naval announcement said, "there were believed to be some12,000 Germans on the island east of a line drawn from Bastia to Bonfacio. With them had joined an Italian Fascist regiment."

Corsicans Harried Nazis.

The Corsican patriots were already waging an effective guerrilla campaign in the mountains, with one group capturing 126 Germans in a single day.

On both the first and second swift runs which brought them into Ajaccio in the middle of the night, the French warships were spotted by enemy reconnaissance aircraft, but they succeeded in escaping attack. When the ships arrived and the wildly enthusiastic Corsicans gathered on the docks to stage a celebration as French Moroccan troops disembarked, fires were still blazing in the scrub on the hillsides. They were started by German planes which on the preceding day night to fire Italian ammunition ...ps.

by submarines took part in the landing of French troops and material in this port tonight and on other occasions.

This capital and main port of Corsica is a night and a day by sea from North Africa and within 200 miles of the strongly-garrisoned areas of occupied Europe.

First Trip by Submarine

The first visit was by submarine. The first surface voyage was by two of the world's fastest warships.

Though the destroyers were spotted by enemy reconnaissance aircraft, speeding in bright moonlight up the Sardinian coast, they were not attacked throughout the first operation.

Midnight Reception

Our arrival in Ajaccio harbor at midnight was welcomed with wild enthusiasm but did not compare with the reception received by the destroyers on their first trip Sept. 13.

"It was like a Mexican fiesta or the arrival of a stage coach in some midwestern cowpunchers' village," said Sub-Lt. Adrian N. Dewael, Royal Navy liason officer.

"The jetty was jammed with people banging off revolvers into the air and yelling and dancing."

The demonstrations continued at the same high pitch throughout the two hours the ships required to disembark their infantry personnel and unload their material.

On the present trip, the destroyers sailed in with a second contingent of troops and equipment.

We learned there were 12,000 Germans on the island, east of a line from Bastia to Bonafacio. With them had joined an Italian Fascist regiment.

Italians Fight Nazis

The majority of the island's Italian garrison of about 40,000, however, had accepted the armistice terms and volunteered to join the French forces and Corsican patriots, already fighting effective guerrilla warfare in the mountains. One group captured 126 Germans in one day.

Our ships, approaching Corsica at top speed, were again spotted by enemy reconnaissance an hour or so from the island.

A few hours ago, we steamed into the Gulf of Ajaccio. On either hand, the hills were ablaze with scrub fires. German aircraft yesterday had rained showers of incendiaries onto the wooded hillsides with the object of destroying the Italian munition dumps.

A mile outside the harbor in reply to lamp signals, a Corsican pilot boarded our vessel. He had just taken in a French submarine and 20 minutes later our ships were disembarking Moroccan troops and stores amongst the crowds who, even at 1:30 a. m., were streaming from their beds toward the jetty.

Other destroyers crept into berths and were met by trucks and vans and local inhabitants, eager to assist in the task of transporting the gear to clear the docks.

A stroll into the town produced a score of guides in happy, chatting girls and genial men.

They pointed out the tricolors, Union Jacks, hammers and sickles and Stars and Stripes that bedecked the buildings.

The people of Ajaccio were exuberant although, after a typical German pillage when the Nazis left town, they had no food left from regular sources.

Black Market Operates

On the black market, they were paying two to four dollars for a packet of cigarettes.

Clothing has been unobtainable for months, yet their hospitality was unchanged. One British sergeant who was in the task force told how in four days at Ajaccio he hadn't spent more than a few francs but had been feted without respite.

"We'd have been tight all of the time and for nothing, if they had their way," he declared.

There was a handful of British and Americans there during the German occupation. Three Australians ran a local nightclub-cafe and two movies. They had retained their full freedom throughout the occupation.

The destroyers broke records this time and in precisely one hour after entering the harbor, they were slipping silently away from the jetty.

Four hours' sail away was Marseille, the Italian mainland much less.

In bright moonlight, we steamed down the west coast of Sardinia and the following evening were refuelling in a North African port, ready for another dash into the German pincers in southern Europe.

FRONT VISITED BY EISENHOWER

General Risks Enemy Fire in Salerno Sector.

SEP 22 1943

By CLARK LEE.

Representing the Combined American Press. (Distributed by the Associated Press.)

At an Advanced Allied Command Post, Sept. 19 (Delayed).—After a visit to American forces on the Salerno front where he conferred with field commanders, watched the artillery pouring shells into the German positions and came under enemy shell fire himself, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower expressed complete satisfaction today with the military situation in Italy.

En route to the front, Gen. Eisenhower flew in his Flying Fortress to a certain port, boarded a British vessel to a point off Salerno and then an American PT boat took him to a landing craft which landed him on the beach. Ashore he rode in a jeep.

In a statement, the General said he was "completely satisfied with the progress of our invasion of southern Italy. The success of the operation to date exemplifies once more the results to be obtained through the use of air, ground and sea forces in the closest co-operation, he said.

Major Battle Coming.

"Through the planning stages of the campaign and its execution to date, Cunningham (Admiral Sir Andrew Browne Cunningham, Allied naval commander in the Mediterranean), Tedder (Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Tedder, Allied air commander in the Mediterranean), and Alexander (Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, Allied deputy commander in chief in the Mediterranean), have skillfully directed their respective forces and coordinated them with the other services.

"The conduct and morale of the troops of all three services is of the highest order and their efficiency is evidenced by the results they have achieved.

"The forces are rapidly getting into position to undertake seriously a major battle with the German forces in Italy."

Shell Falls Near General.

While Gen. Eisenhower was talking to Gen. Mark W. Clark, commander of the American Fifth Army, at the latter's headquarters, a German mortar shell came screaming through the air. The generals did not know whether to duck or just stand there and before they could make up their minds, the shell exploded a short distance away. Others near by, more accustomed to the sound of shells, had hit the dirt at the first whistle.

Afterward, Gen. Eisenhower went to a firing position and saw 155 mm Long Toms shelling enemy lines.

Aboard the British vessel at the request of the captain, Gen. Eisenhower made a three-minute talk over the public address system during the return voyage. When he left the ship, the British crew gave him three cheers in addition to the traditional bosun's pipes as he went over the side

'SWELL JOB,' EISENHOWER TELLS CLARK

General Inspects Salerno Front, Chats With Troops And Visits Wounded

SEP 22 1943

(Distributed by the Associated Press)

With the United States Fifth Army in Italy, Sept. 17 (Delayed). Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower today made an inspection tour of the general combat area in the Salerno sector and, as he departed, he appeared well pleased with the showing made by Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark's Fifth Army against the fiercest German opposition so far encountered in the Mediterranean theater.

As General Eisenhower shook General Clark's hand in farewell before climbing into a duck (a land-and-sea craft), I was close enough to hear the commander in chief say to Clark:

"I think you and your Fifth Army are doing one swell job."

A Dramatic Moment

The most dramatic moment of the inspection tour was when General Eisenhower visited a front-line evacuation hospital and chatted with wounded doughboys in their stretcher beds.

Garbed in light summer khaki and wearing a crumpled garrison cap and a tie but no coat, he wasn't always recognized until he had gone into another tent. Then I saw the patients smile with the realization and gasp "What? was that Eisenhower himself I was speaking to!"

Eisenhower spoke to one soldier who had been badly wounded in the leg this morning. The commander in chief asked "What happened to you?" The soldier replied: "I was machine-gunned by a Jerry as we were taking a hill." The commander in chief than asked, "Were you the only one wounded?" The soldier replied "Hell, no, but they can't halt us, those blankety blanks." Eisenhower said "that's the spirit."

Talks To Negro Soldier

He also talked to a Negro soldier who had been machine-gunned by a German tank, saying "How are you coming along?" The soldier replied: "I am coming along all right, but I want to get back at 'em." Eisenhower said "good luck to you."

Coming across a chow line of soldiers in a camp just off the roadway, Eisenhower halted, got out of the jeep in which he was riding with Clark, and asked the men: "Getting enough to eat?" A chorus came back: "You bet."

At another place, Eisenhower asked a group of doughboys if they had plenty of cigarettes, and the answer was "yes, sir." Then one soldier stepped up and offered the commander in chief a cigarette, thinking he didn't have any himself.

Watches Artillery Fire

At an advanced artillery post the commander in chief observed the crew of a Long Tom-155 pour shells into an enemy position on a hedgehog range a few miles away. Turning to Corporal Francis Johnson, from Laramie, Wyo., Eisenhower asked: "Are you hitting them?" The answer was: "I hope we're mowing 'em down like tenpins, sir."

Eisenhower arrived in the Gulf of Salerno aboard a naval vessel. He came ashore in a small landing barge and returned by duck. United States Vice-Admiral H. K. Hewitt and Major Ernest Lee, from San Antonio, Texas, aide to Eisenhower, came ashore with him.

Two of the proudest drivers in this theater are Sergt. Frank Resnick, of Slickville, Pa., and Private Louis Zagula, from Mississippi. Resnick drove the commander in chief's jeep, and Zagula his duck.

Nazis Unable To Hold Italy, Gen. Carl A. Spaatz Asserts

Allied Air, Sea and Ground Power Welded Into One Combat Team.

SEP 22 1943

By WES GALLAGHER

AN ADVANCED ALLIED AIR HEADQUARTERS COMMAND POST IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 21—(AP) In one of his rare interviews, usually reticent Lt. Gen. Carl A. "Tooey" Spaatz expressed the conviction today that the Allied air, sea and ground power team established in the battle of Salerno could not be halted in Italy.

"We feel that the team-work established cannot be stopped," said Gen. Spaatz who commands the Northwest African airforce.

"We feel proud to be part of that highly trained working trio of ground and naval forces thoroughly coordinated and integrated as a complete unit," the sandy-haired general added.

Created Two Air Forces

The usually nervous creator of two air forces in this war was much calmer than four months ago during the critical battle of Tunisia, and his attitude reflected the growing might of the Allied air force and the decline of the German air force.

A high officer of Gen. Spaatz' command gave this outline of the Allied air situation in the Mediterranean:

The German air force has been knocked out of the air in Italy more easily than at any stage of the Mediterranean war. The air battle in Tunisia and Sicily had been much harder.

The tremendous air power created in this theater was vividly illustrated on Sept. 14 at Salerno when more than 2,600 individual flights were made over the battlefield and the squadrons dropped more than 1,200 tons of bombs.

Air War Follows Pattern

The air war support of ground troops has settled into a pattern. The first attack is made on airfields to knock off the German air force. Then, Allied planes cut communications behind enemy lines, isolating the proposed or immediate battle area, and finally attack enemy troops in the battle area.

The job of knocking off the German air force has been progressively easier since the Tunisian campaign.

The Germans made a supreme effort several weeks ago in the Foggia and Rome areas to halt Allied air efforts, but were smashed and since then their resistance has been extremely feeble.

The experience gained by the African iar forces since the North African campaign has been a tremendous asset. The fliers learned the technique of hitting and knocking out such difficult targets as bridges, railroad yards and airdromes. This type of work has been tremendously aided by the equipping of medium bombers with new American bombsights, the same as those used in Flying Fortresses.

Many Experienced Fliers

Some squadrons in this theater are the most experienced in the world and this has been a great Fortress group was attacked by 70 German fighters in the Foggia area, but beat the Nazis off and lost only one plane.

A new phase in the air war is in the offing as Allied air forces, of which 70 per cent are American, get fields around Rome and Foggia.

From these fields the vital Ploesti oil fields would be an easy target; every capital of the Balkans would be within range; and southeastern Germany would be within the range of Flying Fortresses and Liberators.

A two-way air war could be launched from England and Italy which would split German defenses greatly and ease the task of the R.A.F. and U .S. Eighth Air force in causing the complete downfall of the German Air force.

Because of better flying weather in this theater of operations—even winter allows an average of 15 operations a month—most of the bombing war against Germany may come from Mediterranean bases during this winter.

In Sicily alone, 1,200 German planes were destroyed or captured on the ground.

With the air superiority the Allies now have attained, no German army will be able to stand against the combined land, sea and air effort.

Russians Surge Across Desna River Defense Line.

SMOLENSK MENACED

Stalin's Legions 18 Miles from Big Base, 25 Miles from Kiev.

SEP 23 1943

LONDON, Wednesday, Sept. 22.—(AP) The last Nazi barrier before the Dnieper crumbled yesterday as the Russian army slashed across the Desna river line and surged on toward Smolensk and Kiev in a Titantic drive to push the Germans back to their invasion boundaries.

A Moscow-broadcast communique recorded by the Soviet monitor here today announced that the Red army, surging through powerful defenses, had scored big advances on every sector of the front, indicating that the Germans would become more and more hard-pressed to keep their feet on Soviet soil through the coming winter.

80 Tanks Destroyed

On all fronts, the Soviets liberated Russian communities by the hundreds, killed upwards of 7,000 Germans, destroyed 80 tanks and captured 34 more, and took many prisoners and vast quantities of supplies, the communique said.

The Moscow radio said the Soviet air force, which reportedly had accounted for 63 more Nazi planes shot down, bombed concentrations of railway trains at Vitebsk, Gomel and Dzhankoi on the central front Monday night, causing many fires on trains carrying equipment and war materials. Several trains jammed with munitions were declared blown up by direct hits.

Soviet spearheads were reported wtihin 18 miles of Smolensk and only 25 miles from Kiev. They were shelling Melitopol on the Crimean railway from three miles away, and they were so close to the middle Dnieper that Cossack patrols were breaking through at night to water their horses in the river.

Chernigov Captured

Marshal Joseph Stalin proclaimed the capture of Chernigov, only 30 miles from the Dnieper, after a fierce three-day battle, and in an order of the day declared that the German Desna defenses had been cracked "along the whole length of the river, and the plan of the Germans to stem the advance of our troops on the line of the river Desna must be considered to have failed."

In the day's fighting the Russians claimed the capture of 1,117 towns and villages, some of them large.

These were the latest Russian gains, averaging an advance of 10 miles a day, along the 600-mile front as the Nazis' east wall toppled:

Northern flank: Captured Yugovka, six miles northeast of Roslavl, in a six mile advance through heavily-fortified woodland, bringing Soviet guns within close range of the Roslavl-Smolensk railway.

Upper Dnieper: Smashed forward 12 miles from Novgorod-Severski in a race toward the frontier of White Russia and Gomel, key rail junction midway between Smolensk and Kiev.

Desna line: A fierce three-day battle was climaxed by the capture of strongly-fortified Chernigov, 30 miles from the Dnieper and 80 miles northeast of Kiev.

Reds Near Kiev

Kiev front—Twelve-mile advance, carrying the Reds army within two-days' distance of the Ukraine capital at its present rate of attack. Progress was likely to be slowed, however, after contact with inner defenses of the city-second greatest prize left on the Russian front.

Dnieper bend—Gains of 15 miles toward Dneproetrovsk from the northeast; an advance of 10 miles from the east, capturing the railway junction of Sinenlikovo, 25 miles from the great Ukraine bend power city.

Lower Dnieper: A 10-mile gain, capturing Mordvilovka, three miles southwest of Melitopol on the Crimean railway, thus virtually sealing off the reinforcement, supply or escape of Germans in the Crimea except by sea.

Kuban—In the clean-up of that sector the Russians captured more tiny settlements, squeezing Nazi remnants into a six-mile semicircle Temryuk, nearest thing to an escape port left to the Germans since their loss of Novorossisk.

With Soviet forces bearing down on the Dnieper along its entire length, the Red army was poised for an assault to carry over that formidable natural barrier to which the Germans were said to have added numerous fortifications.

Chernigov Chief Threat

The Soviets' previous tactics suggested that multiple attacks would be made on the line to keep the Nazi defenses thinned.

The greatest threat of an immediate break-through, however, seemed to be in the Chernigov sector. In this salient, seventy-seven miles upstream from Kiev, German defenses are believed to be the weakest. Here the Dnieper narrows and grows shallow.

At the northern end of the Dnieper line, the Smolensk anchor was being outflanked by Russian troops blasting a way through the heavy defenses around the city.

Moscow dispatches, meanwhile, said the greatest victories of the entire Russian summer campaign appeared imminent. With the capture of Slavgorod in the southern sector, the Russians were only fifteen miles from the Dnieper and were entering the river region. Swamps and marshes were being encountered, but there was no indication that the Soviet drive was slowed.

Soviet Forces Move to Flank Big Enemy Bastion—Also Advance in South.

London, Sept. 21 (A. P.).—The whole German Desna River winter defense line collapsed today under a terrific Red Army onslaught which broke the Nazi stand along the entire west bank and took by storm the important bastion town of Chernigov, thirty miles from the Dnieper River and seventy-seven miles northeast of Kiev, Marshal Stalin announced in an order of the day.

The successful forcing of the Desna, described by Stalin as a "skillful outflanking maneuver," followed three days of violent fighting, the Premier's announcement said.

The order of the day, broadcast by Moscow and recorded by the Associated Press, said as the result of Chernigov's fall, "the Germans' defenses prepared on the western bank of the River Desna have been overcome by our troops along the whole length of the river and the plan of the Germans to stem the advance of our troops on the line of the River Desna must be considered to have failed."

An earlier Moscow communique announced that Red Army forces had slashed across the Kiev-Chernigov highway on the middle Dnieper and cut the main Crimean escape railway between Zaporozhe and Dniepropetrovsk. Other Russian troops stormed on from captured Velizh, sixty-five miles northwest of Smolensk, to outflank that German central front anchor.

The Moscow communique disclosed an amazing list of triumphs, including the start of a great wheeling movement pointed toward Cherkasy, key rail center on the Dnieper southeast of Kiev, in an attempt to entrap the hundreds of thousands of German troops reported in the river bend.

Red Army airmen smashed an apparent attempt of the Germans to evacuate the Caucasus, when they sank an enemy minesweeper and three troop barges just south of the Taman Peninsula above the recaptured port of Novorossisk.

Smolensk in Grave Peril.

The Nazi situation in the Smolensk theater verged on the precarious, reports indicated. Here the Russians apparently were hurling in immense concentrations of artillery, infantry, aircraft and tanks to clear the swamps and mine-filled forests. Yesterday's advance carried them within thirty miles of the stronghold.

The Berlin radio admitted the Smolensk battle was rising to a climax, with Russian parachute troops dropping behind the German lines above the northern arm of the Dnieper River bend.

The fall of Velizh not only flanked Smolensk but placed Red Army spearheads within ten miles of the White Russian border and only forty-five miles northeast of Vitebsk on the rail line from Smolensk to Latvia. The old Polish border is less than 115 miles to the west.

Reds Gain Near Bryansk.

Below Smolensk and west of fallen Bryansk the Reds pushed forty-five miles forward to storm Kletnya, and were racing on for the White Russian frontier as other units farther south crossed the Snov River forty miles from Novozybkov, a junction on the Bryansk-Gomel railroad.

Dnieper Valley, Kiev, Poltava, Dniepropetrovsk, Cherkasy, Zaporozhe and Melitopol were all threatened with imminent capture. The advance of the Reds was so swift that at one point, near Poltava, the bulletin said that they were able to rescue 16,000 Russian civilians who had been rounded up for forced labor in Germany.

Capture of Slavgorod, on the extreme southern front, placed the Russian forces only fifteen miles from the Dnieper.

RAIDERS HIT FRANCE

London, Sept. 21 (A. P.).—Striking into France in daylight with a protecting escort of R. A. F. Spitfires, American medium bombers gave the Nazis' Beauvais-Tille air base, halfway between Paris and the coast, its second hammering in four days today.

The attack was made soon after the German radio reported a night nuisance foray by R. A. F. bombers into Germany.

Allied heavy bombers have not been out since Thursday when the Fortresses hit the Nantes area and the R. A. F. bombed the Alpine tunnel at Modane.

A communique announced that R. A. F. Mitchells also bombed the coke ovens and byproducts plants at Lens in northern France this morning. One Maurauder and two Mitchells were lost.

was begun the develop- of the extreme right wing of e immense Allied invasion line now being drawn up from the Aegean Sea in the southeast to the Ligurian Sea facing Genoa and the French Riviera on the west.

In front of this line, curving 500 miles or more, stood a whole series of doors to Southern Europe, opening one after another all the way from the Balkans across to lower France.

The occupation of Kos airfield by British airmen and the fact that they already were operating from there, directly menacing such German positions as Crete, was disclosed in an Allied communiqué from the Cairo command, which told also of air attacks on Crete. A little later Allied landings on the islands of Samos and Leros also were officially confirmed.

Possession of the airfield at Kos meant that a relatively small but highly dangerous part of the 4-to-1 Allied air superiority, of which Prime Minister Churchill spoke in Commons today, had been carried to a point where it could be instantly effective against the southeastern corner of Adolf Hitler's captive continent.

The position of the Germans on Crete was compared here with that of the Nazis who occupied Sardinia, and there was speculation that the Germans might soon find Crete untenable. This estimate, however, was conceded to be optimistic.

Sardinia was doomed when the Italian Fleet surrendered and Allied warships swept up the whole of the Tyrrhenian Sea. Crete, on the other hand, is close enough to Greece to get considerable supplies by air if the Nazis wanted to try it that way.

Nazis Report Mussolini On Way to Northern Italy

Say He Likely Will Announce New Government in a Week

LONDON, Sept. 21 (AP).—German broadcasts reported today that Benito Mussolini had left Germany for northern Italy "after a conversation with Der Fuehrer lasting several days" in order to study developments on the spot. The broadcast said Mussolini was expected to announce the composition of his newly proclaimed government within the coming week and was devoting his attention to reconstruction of the Fascist militia, around which will be built a new republican Fascist army.

Although Mussolini, in a speech attributed to him by the German radio Saturday, denounced King Victor Emmanuel III and the House of Savoy, the radio said it was not certain that he would take upon himself the title of Chief of State as well as Chief of Government.

After reporting several days ago the escape of Mussolini's son-in-law, Count Galeazzo Ciano, to Germany, the radio declared today it was untrue that he had been rescued and he was assumed to be "missing." This apparently was an admission that Ciano was caught by Italian authorities before reaching the safety of Germany. The radio said Carlo Scorza, former Fascist party secretary, also had "disappeared."

FOG GRENADE CONCEALS NAZI ARMY MOVEMENTS

Weapons throwing the grenades are fully motorized but are lighter than ordinary artillery, the speaker said, while their many barrels and electrical fuses permit mass firing.

The bursting grenades, however, were described as less accurate and less effective against machine gun nests than artillery.

Expect Allied Move in Balkans

LONDON, Sept. 21 (AP).—Unmistakable signs appear that closely guarded Allied military and diplomatic moves now are being shaped toward a major explosion in the Balkans.

Events as apparently unrelated as the Archbishop of York's visit to Moscow and an underground rendezvous of Allied military men with Balkan guerrillas can be fitted into a general pattern which well may end in another huge breach in the wall of Hitler's European fortress.

Referring to the current swift moves, one well informed diplomat here said that the next two or three weeks would see the Allies passing through a critical period in world diplomacy.

ARCHBISHOP OF YORK AT MOSCOW SERVICE

Joins in Nativity Celebration in Yelokhov Cathedral

GILMORE

MOSCOW, Sept. 21 (AP)—Amid incense and pageantry, the Archbishop of York participated today in the celebration of the Nativity of the Madonna in Moscow's old Yelokov Cathedral.

The white-bearded, berobed Patriarch Sergius officiated, with four Metropolitans, almost as lavishly robed, in attendance.

As in recent ceremonies of the Greek Orthodox Church in Moscow, large crowds packed the church, standing elbow to elbow, with hundreds turned away. These filled the streets about the cathedral and stared at the Archbishop, the British Ambassador and other foreign notables attending the ceremony.

The morning's golden sunlight filtered through little windows in the high domes and slanted down upon the gold-spangled decorations. Two choirs filled the cathedral with beautiful Slavic Church songs.

Incense lay like a cloud over the audience, about 60 per cent of whom were women wearing the traditional white scarf or shawl over their heads. There were some Red Army men in attendance.

It was the first public appearance of the Archbishop of York since he reached Russia and the first time such a high British prelate had appeared in a Russian church since the revolution.

British Bid to Russian Church

MOSCOW, Sept. 21 (AP).—The rejuvenated Russian Orthodox Church was invited today to send a delegation to London to return the visit which its leaders now are receiving from the Archbishop of York. The invitation was signed by the Archbishops of York and Canterbury.

Sabotage in North Italy Increasing Against Nazis

Germans Now Compelled to Guard Railroad Workers

BERN, Switzerland, Sept. 21 (AP).—Italian troops in Piedmont are increasing their resistance to German forces, a dispatch from Italy to the "Corriere del Ticino" at Lugano said today. Fighting in the Turin area was described as "very violent," while elsewhere in northern Italy guerrilla warfare and sabotage was said to be increasing. Italy's railroad network has been broken in several places, imperiling German supply lines, the dispatch said, and in some areas Nazi patrols are compelled to guard railroad workers.

23 TRAITORS SENTENCED

BERN, Switzerland, Sept. 21.—(AP) A Swiss military court today sentenced 23 persons on charges of treason committed between November, 1941, and October, 1942. One defendant was given a life sentence, the others terms of from several months to 15 years.

Salerno a Stigma for Nazis

Defeat Impresses Spaniards, Who Expect New Reverses in Russia

MADRID, Sept. 21 (AP).—Spanish correspondents in Berlin said today that the Salerno campaign in Italy was a "military and propagandistic defeat" for Germany, and made these other statements and predictions, remarkable both for their content and origin:

The German Ukrainian administrative government already is evacuating Kiev.

The "threat of evacuation hangs over Smolensk," and a Russian penetration there would force the Germans to lift the siege of Leningrad.

Advices from the French border said the landing of French commandos in Corsica had led to spontaneous and widespread increase in sabotage of German communications in France.

Galeazzi in Lisbon

LISBON, Sept. 21 (AP).—Enrico Galeazzi, Governor General of Vatican City, arrived here today en route from London to Rome. He passed through Lisbon two weeks ago on his way to Great Britain on an undisclosed mission, arriving here Sept. 8 and leaving the following day.

Clocks To Be Turned Back In Sicily, Tunisia

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Sept. 21 (AP)—Clocks throughout Algeria, Tunisia, Sicily and all other regions under control of the Allied Fifteenth Army Group will be turned back one hour, effective at 2 A. M. Sunday, the military commander announced today.

The change will put the area on the same time as the British Isles and five hours ahead of Eastern War Time in the United States.

Spare Parts Slapped Together Serve 5th Army as Locomotives

By John O'Reilly

New York Herald Tribune Correspondent

For the combined American press

WITH THE 5TH ARMY IN ITALY, Sept. 19 (Delayed)—American engineers startled soldiers and Italians alike today, in the American sector of the Allied beachhead, by appearing with two makeshift locomotives made from trucks and train parts. These engines are known as the "Fireball" and the "Engineer's Limited."

A railroad runs from the beachhead, but there were no locomotives available. The engineers got two two-and-a-half-ton trucks and took the wheels off. They got some box car wheels and cut out the inside. Next they welded the rims of the box car wheels onto the rims of the truck wheels. They matched the width to fit the railroad gauge, and the thing worked.

They found that their makeshift engines could pull four loaded Italian box cars. They had to make two engines, because there is no place on the railroad in the sector where the locomotives could turn around. One engine pulls the train, dragging the other engine which is attached to the rear. At the end of the line, the process is reversed for the return journey.

American soldiers laugh at the contraption, but the Italians can't get over this evidence of American engenuity.

3 AEGEAN ISLANDS SEIZED BY ALLIES

MACARTHUR

Hitler's 'Iron Ring' of Defenses Broken by Capture of Bases.

CAIRO, Egypt, Sept. 21 — (AP) The Allies announced tonight that British forces had taken over the islands of Coo, Lero and Samos, thereby breaking open the "iron ring" of defenses which Hitler had erected to seal off the Aegean and the Greek mainland from attack.

The announcement of occupation of Coo and Lero in the Italian Dodecanese and the Greek island of Samos gave no details, but it was stated that Royal Air force fighter planes already were operating from Coo.

Manned by Italians

All these islands were manned by Italians, who were said to be cooperating with the British. There were no Germans on any of the three.

All three islands are valuable strategically. The possession of Coo gives the Allies airfields in the heart of the Dodecanese only 50 miles northwest of German-occupied Rhodes and 120 miles northeast of Crete. From there Allied air force can strike deeper into the Germans' Aegean stronghold.

Lero, just to the north and known as the "Malta of the Dodecanese," gives the Allies an important naval base for light craft. The chief Italian naval base in the Dodecanese, Lero was extremely well fortified over a period of years and is honeycombed with ammunition dumps.

All three islands—Coo, Lero and Samos, are within sight of the Turkish shore. Coo lies at the mouth of the Turkish Gulf of Kereme.

The occupation of these islands was the most important development in many weeks in this section of the Mediterranean.

Thus was begun the development of the extreme right wing of the immense Allied invasion line now being drawn up from the Aegean sea in the southeast to the Ligurian sea facing Genoa and the French Riviera on the west.

In front of this line, curving 500 miles or more, stood a whole series of doors to southern Europe, opening one after the other all the way from the Balkans across to lower France.

BRITISH TROOPS LAND ON THREE ÆGEAN ISLES

Allied Planes Are Already Operating From Kos Near Rhodes.

SAMOS AND LEROS OCCUPIED

Venice Bombed by U. S. Flyers —Other Targets in Area Are Also Blasted.

Cairo, Sept. 21 (A. P.).—British forces have landed on the Ægean islands of Kos and Lero and Samos off the coast of Turkey, it was announced officially today. At the same time it was disclosed that American four-engined Liberators from the Middle East bombed Venice, Italy, for the first time yesterday.

The confirmation of the reported occupation of Kos and Leros in the Italian Dodecanese group and the Greek island of Samos immediately to the north, which has been current for several days, followed an R. A. F. communique announcing that the R. A. F. had seized the Kos airdrome and is now operating from there.

Officials telling of the bombing of Venice, said one explosion there was followed by a column of smoke 5,000 feet high, but the full results of the attack were obscured by clouds.

The U. S. air communique said that Pescara and Castel Franco Venito, near Venice, also were targets of the heavy bombers in raids carried out during daylight Monday.

At Pescara the bombers attacked the airdrome and marshaling yards. Bursts were seen near the hangars and administration buildings and among parked aircraft on the field. Direct hits were scored upon both approaches to the highway bridge.

At Castel Franco Venito, bombs were dropped upon the marshaling yards. Explosions and dense clouds of smoke were seen, but clouds made detailed observation of results impossible.

A formation of German fighters approached but made no serious attempt at interception. All of U. S. planes returned safely.

Kos, on which the R. A. F. flyers land is fifty miles northwest of German-occupied Rhodes, largest island capital of the Dodacanese group in the Ægean Sea. It is about five miles from Turkey. The Italian personnel of Kos is co-operating in the occupation, the communique said.

"During the past few days several enemy air attacks have been beaten off," the communique continued, adding that in the last few days a Heinkel 111 and a Ju-88 had been shot down, while attempting to attack the island."

Capture of the Kos airdrome gives the Allies an air base in the very center of the Dodecanese group and on the north side of the Nazi Mediterranean outpost of Crete.

A few days ago it was announced that the Italians had taken over the island of Leros, some distance north of Kos. The allied announcement did not say when the Kos airdrome was taken over by the R. A. F.

Turks See Delay Until Spring

ISTANBUL, Sept. 20 (Delayed) (AP).—Turkish press dispatches from Budapest said today that recent developments had convinced the Balkans that an Allied invasion of southeastern Europe now is unlikely before next spring.

"Mussolini's return, the slowness of developments in Italy and the Germans' severe action against the Allies have materially and morally influenced the situation within the fortress of Europe and especially the Danubian Basin," wrote a Turkish news agency correspondent.

"The general opinion just after the announcement of the Italian armistice was that the military movement would rapidly approach the River Po and that in the Balkans—at least in the region immediately back of the Adriatic—developments were in store.

"It is believed that the German Army's rapid intervention against General Eisenhower's armies has delayed dangerous developments in the Balkans at least until spring, although these measures have cost Germany dearly upon the eastern front."

NEW DELHI, India (Delayed) (AP)—First Lieut. William T. Larkin of East Rutherford, N. J., has received the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Air Medal.

Among others awarded Air Medals were Capt. Alden L. McMurtry of Plainfield, N. J., and First Lieut. Thomas S. Ingham Jr. of Newark, Del.

NEW DELHI, India (Delayed) (AP)—The Tenth United States Air Force, based in India, has awarded sixty-nine Distinguished Flying Crosses, five Oak Leaf Clusters to the Distinguished Flying Cross, forty-five air medals and twenty-one Oak Leaf Clusters to the Air Medal.

Among those honored were:

Distinguished Flying Cross

BAWOL, CHESTER M., first lieutenant, Sauquoit, N. Y.

KASS, ALLAN, first lieutenant, 2680 Heath Avenue, The Bronx.
DUFFY, JAMES F., second lieutenant, Elmhurst, L. I.
FRANZ, HUGO R., Jr., second lieutenant, Saranac Lake.
RYAN, ELLIOTT J., staff sergeant, Jamaica, L. I.

AUSTRALIANS LAND IN AIR TRANSPORTS FOR 60-MILE GAIN

Enemy Driven Out of Kaiapit Area 70 Miles from Madang.

JAP BASE OUTFLANKED

Daring Maneuver Sends Allied Force Past Finschhafen Harbor.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Wednesday, Sept. 22.—(AP) Australians landed by big American transport planes have seized Kaiapit, 60 miles above newly-captured Lae, New Guinea, and only 70 miles south of the enemy base at Madang, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today.

The transports swept down on a grassy field last Saturday night and Sunday, disgorging Australians who repulsed enemy counter-attacks and drove the Japanese out of the immediate area. Such a daring move outflanks the enemy's base at Finschhafen on the Huon peninsula.

Kaiapit is inland on the Huon peninsula northwest of Finschhafen.

Enemy Repulsed

"Our ground forces, transported by air, seized and occupied Kaiapit approximately 60 miles above Lae, repulsing several counter-attacks and forcing the enemy to retire," today's communique said.

This swift ground action, emulating in part the airborne and seaborne pincers which enveloped Lae within 12 days, was coupled with reports of air action on a more extensive scale than it has been in many months both in the south and southwest Pacific.

American heavy bombers wreaked havoc on supply lines just above the newly won ground base of Kaiapit and the Japanese struck counter-blows both on New Guinea and in the Solomons. Enemy action was particularly heavy in the Solomons.

Two Bases Bombed

Ninety-seven tons of bombs were dropped on enemy bases at Wewak and Madang, New Guinea, by American heavy bombers and the description of the attacking units included the now familiar "with a fighter escort."

The attackers dropped 43 tons of bombs on two airdromes around Wewak, where more than 400 enemy planes have been destroyed since mid-August. One plane was destroyed on the ground, an undetermined number of others were set on fire and two out of seven interceptors were shot down.

In the Madang sector, fighter-escorted heavy and medium bombers struck in considerable force at Japanese communication lines south of Madang. They dropped 54 tons of bombs and expended 120,000 rounds of ammunition in prolonged strafing sweeps.

Bridges Destroyed

Four bridges were destroyed, three damaged, the enemy's supply road along the coast was torn up in places and between 20 and 30 trucks were set on fire. A warehouse was destroyed and two coastal barges sunk. All the raiders returned, three of them damaged.

It marked the second straight day of air blows reported for the area most immediately menaced by the new air bases won at Lae and Salamaua. Yesterday's communique reported heavy airstrikes nearer Lae at Finschhafen and across Dampeir strait on New Britain.

The communique also reported a continuation of enemy air action in the Solomons. Twenty Japanese planes were downed in new raids on American-occupied Vella Lavella island.

On Arundel island, adjacent to New Georgia, which American forces in the Solomons are attempting to occupy completely, increased enemy resistance was reported. The Japanese recently have moved in barges at night to reinforce their garrison on northern Arundel, a point within artillery shelling distance of the enemy's garrison at Vila, Kolombangara.

The Japanese airforce, which has been moving in reinforcements at Bougainville, also raided the Munda airfield on New Georgia, Arundel and Guadalcanal.

MACARTHUR FACES SECONDARY ROLE

Ready to Accept Strategy Decision if Mountbatten Leads Drive on Japan.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Sept. 22—(Wednesday)—(AP) General Douglas MacArthur, commander of Allied forces in the southwest Pacific, said today it was agreeable to him to play a subsidiary role in the war.

Commenting on press reports that his command was to be made secondary and subsidiary since the appointment of Lord Louis Mountbatten to head the southwest Asia command, the general said:

Wants Only Victory

"It makes little difference whether I or others wield the weapons just so the cause for which our beloved country fights in victorious."

(The comment came prior to publication of an Associated Press copyrighted story from Washington saying that General George C. Marshall, United States chief of staff, is tentatively slated to become virtual global commander of all Anglo-American forces in the field, ground, sea and air).

"However subordinate may be my role, I hope to play it manfully," General MacArthur said.

"My strategic conception for the Pacific theater, which I outlined after the Papuan campaign and have since consistently advocated, contemplates massive strokes against only main strategic objectives, utilizing surprise, and air and ground striking power, supported and assisted by the fleet.

"This is the very opposite of what is termed island-hopping, which is gradually pushing back the enemy by direct frontal pressure with consequent heavy casualties which will certainly be involved.

"Key points must, of course, be taken but a wise choice of such will obviate the need for storming the mass of islands now in enemy possession.

"Island-hopping, with extravagant losses and slow progress — some press reports indicating victory might be postponed as long as 1949—is not my idea of how to end the war as soon and as cheaply as possible.

"New conditions require for solution and new weapons require for maximum application new and imaginative methods. Wars are never won in the past.

"I have no personal military ambitions whatsoever, and am perfectly content in such role as may be prescribed for me."

Presents Medal to Hero

A SOUTH PACIFIC BASE, Sept. 15 (Delayed) (AP).—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt at a Navy hospital today presented the Navy Cross, the Purple Heart and the Gold Star in lieu of a second Purple Heart to Navy Lieutenant Hugh Barr Miller, thirty-three years old, of Tuscaloosa, Ala.

Lieutenant Miller, who quarterbacked the University of Alabama in 1931 to a 24—0 Rose Bowl victory over Washington State, saved the lives of two men during the sinking of the United States destroyer Strong in Kula Gulf in the Central Solomons the night of July 4. Injured by depth charges, Lieutenant Miller lived for more than a month in Japanese territory, was strafed in the neck by a Japanese plane, killed five Japanese with their own grenades and finally was rescued by naval airmen.

Mrs. Roosevelt in Honolulu

Says the Rehabilitation of War Wounded Is Delicate Problem for America.

Honolulu, Sept. 21 (A. P.).—Rehabilitation of the war wounded poses a serious and delicate problem for America now and in the post-war years, and it must be solved, says Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt.

Here after a 20,730-mile flying tour of the Pacific war theater during which she visited hospitals at every opportunity, the president's wife told reporters yesterday that:

"We will have more handicapped men—who have lost arms, a leg, an eye—after this war than we ever have had before."

Returning these wounded and crippled men to the nation's social life will be a problem, she conceded, adding:

"We can prepare now to place these men in useful jobs after the war. Employers already have been called upon to use handicapped workers. They will have to be asked to take more—and they will be willing to do it.

"The problem that concerns me most is how these returning men will re-enter their social lives."

She cited an incident to her knowledge of a soldier whose face was badly scarred on one side. He took a girl companion into an Australian restaurant. Patrons stared at him. One woman looked, turned away and began weeping. The soldier arose abruptly and walked out.

"That's an illustration of the problem I mean," Mrs. Roosevelt said. "One's natural reaction at seeing men like this is first to feel sorry for them and then draw away."

Mrs. Roosevelt remarked smilingly that she had found occasional trouble between Americans and Australians or New Zealanders because of girls." Aside from that, she said, the Americans were received very hospitably.

She told of seeing in a hospital yesterday a young Brooklyn soldier who had been pinned for an hour under an overturned tank and lost a leg.

"I told him 'you're going to get well,'" she said. "He didn't respond much at first. Then I said 'if you'll promise me you're going to get well, I will go see your mother and tell her.'

"His face lighted up. 'Will you really go see her?" he asked. 'If you do, I'll promise to get well.'"

HALIFAX CHANNEL MINED BY U-BOATS

Ottawa, Sept. 21 (A. P.).—German submarines attempted to close Halifax harbor to shipping last June by sowing magnetic mines at the entrance, but were foiled by the vigilance of Canadian and British minesweepers, Angus MacDonald, Navy Minister, disclosed today.

Though the Nazi undersea raiders laid some sixty mines in the channel, they were discovered so promptly that not a single ship of importance was sunk and no lives were lost, a statement by MacDonald declared.

Jap Premier Slates "Important" Speech

New York, Sept. 21 (AP)—The Berlin radio today reported in a broadcast recorded by OWI that the Japanese Premier, Hideki Tojo, would make an important speech tomorrow to announce "drastic measures and changes within the home front to meet the present serious war situation."

The Japanese Cabinet was reported to have held an "extraordinary conference" lasting from 10 A. M. until 7 P. M. today, with only a half-hour interruption.

ENLARGE ARMY

NEW YORK, Sept. 21 — (AP)—Japan has amended its military service law to provide for the immediate medical re-examination and recruitment of Japanese who had been rejected between 1925 and 1930, the German news agency DNB said today in a wireless dispatch to European newspapers reported by U. S. government monitors.

Churchill Says New Nazi Arm Is First Remote-Control Bomb

SEP 22 1943

By Howard W. Blakeslee
Associated Press Science Editor

The new German weapon described yesterday by Prime Minister Churchill in his Commons speech is the first remote control bomb. It probably is a prelude to the winged bomb.

An airplane, described by Churchill merely as a "parent aircraft," either launches or turns loose a glider. The size of this glider is not given, but it is sufficient to carry a bomb or bombs.

The glider is powered by a rocket, that is, it has a rocket engine of some sort. The parent plane steers this glider by remote control, which means by electronic devices, to the vicinity of the target.

Churchill did not say how close the glider comes to the target, but he indicated that at some unnamed height over the target, a height which under the circumstances may be small, or might even be large and still effective, the glider releases its bomb. The release presumably is done by remote control by the bombardier back in the parent plane.

The effectiveness of the new weapon was not described. Churchill said only that it was being used "at close quarters on ships close to the coast."

Remote control of small, powered, pilotless airplanes has been accomplished in experiments long since. The devices that would permit the parent plane pilot to release the bomb at will would not be difficult to make.

How the remote bombardier knows when his glider is exactly over his target is not explained by any published scientific experiments. With telescopes and ranging devices he might do a good job from quite a distance.

The rocket motors of the German bomb gliders may use burning powder, or one of the more efficient fuels with which German rocket engineers have been experimenting for a dozen years. These German rocket experiments were covered by secrecy long ago. One of the more efficient fuels is gasoline and liquid oxygen.

Up to the time when their publication of experiments ended, the Germans had not reported rocket flights of much length. A mile certainly would be possible; perhaps the range is more.

Edward F. Chandler, Brooklyn engineer and rocket experimenter, points out that the weapon described by Churchill is a close approach to the long-talked-of winged bomb or winged torpedo.

Instead of a glider carrying a bomb or tropedo, the bomb would be an integral part of the glider. The bomb would have wings sufficient to carry it right to the target, and would be driven by rocket propulsion. Remote control could be installed to guide this winged explosive the same as in the German rocket glider.

An advantage of the winged bomb would be greater speed of impact than is possible to a free-falling bomb, which is slowed by air resistance. A winged bomb might develop some of the penetrating power of a big naval shell, provided its course was downward at a sharp angle.

JAPANESE PLANES RAID GUADALCANAL

Washington, Sept. 21 (A. P.).—Japanese planes raiding American positions on Guadalcanal in the Solomons caused slight damage and minor casualties, the Navy reported today. The raid, the third in a week upon Guadalcanal, apparently was of the nuisance variety and probably was carried out by bombing planes on a reconnaissance mission.

NEUTRALS WARNED NOT TO BUY FROM NAZI FINANCIERS

Allies Block German Move to Unload Property Holdings in Italy.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21 — (AP) The United States and Britain warned neutrals today against pulling German financial chestnuts out of the fire of invasion in Italy, and apparently set a pattern for handling German interests in territories to be reconquered later.

Disclosing that the Germans are trying to dump their Italian investments in neutral territory, the British-American statement warned that the two governments would not recognize such deals.

The democracies "reserve the right to treat as invalid any transfer to neutral ownership of any enemy-owned rights or interests in property in Italy," said the statement from the State department.

All Neutrals Notified

The announcement went to all neutral governments in Europe and to Argentina.

German interests systematically have moved into the business of conquered nations, particularly France where the Nazis reportedly took over parent companies to divert the country's industrial wealth to German holdings.

The threat that Italy soon will be in Allied hands apparently prompted the Germans to try to cash their holdings through neutral sales now and escape the risk of complete loss to the invading Allies. However, the joint United States-British announcement probably will cut the market out from the Nazi industrialists.

Following is the text of the State department's announcement:

"It has come to the knowledge of the governments of the United States of America and the United Kingdom that certain concerns in neutral countries, in anticipation of the early occupation of Italy by Allied forces, contemplate acquiring or purporting to acquire enemy-owned shares in Italian companies, and other enemy assets in Italy. The two governments reserve the right to treat as invalid any transfer to neutral ownership of any enemy owned rights or interests in property in Italy. Nationals, or firms in neutral countries, acquiring or purporting to acquire such rights or interests render themselves liable to all sanctions at the disposal of the governments of the United States of America and the United Kingdom."

U. S. TO IMPORT OIL

Washington, Sept. 21 (A. P.).—Senator Butler (R.-Neb.) said today the United States plans to import substantially more crude petroleum from South America next year to meet its growing military and civilian needs.

Mr. Butler said he was informed on a recent tour of 20 South American nations that present schedules call for increasing production in Venezuela alone from the present 500,000 to 1,000,000 barrels daily in 1944, with most ofthat nation's output to be shipped to this country. Chile and Bolivia will furnish additional oil for export here, he added.

On the basis of testimony yesterday before a Senate agriculture sub-committee that present United States production is now about 4,000,000 barrels daily, imports from South American sources probably will represent a fifth of the nation's 1944 supply, Mr. Butler said.

Davis Tells Taber Axis Calls O. W. I. Effective

Retort to Critic Cites Tokio and Berlin Statements

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21 (AP).—Elmer Davis, director of the Office of War Information, made a sharp reply today to Representative John Taber, Republican, of New York, who has renewed his criticism of the information agency.

"Congressman Taber is wrong as usual," said the O. W. I. director. "He says that our overseas activities are getting worse instead of better. The German and Japanese propaganda agencies take a different view.

"For testimony as to our effectiveness, we can cite, among many others, a Japanese broadcast on Sept. 9 by a spokesman of that government who declared that 'we must realize how skilfully the propaganda of the United States and Britain is working, and we must see in the collapse of Italy an example of this in sharp reality."

"Mr. Taber's earlier attacks on the agency (O. W. I.) have been extensively and approvingly quoted by our enemies." Mr. Davis continued, "the July 4 issue of 'Das Reich,' magazine of the German Propaganda Ministry, said that 'the attack of Congressman Taber has caused the American public to look more closely into the O. W. I., its men, and its dollar-devouring giant machinery.

"An attack on the war agency that conducts American propaganda against the enemy is of vital interest to Dr. Goebbels, who has found our activities increasingly effective. Mr. Taber, in his attacks on O. W. I., can count on a cheering section in Berlin and Tokio."

Representative Taber, calling O. W. I. operations a "continuing menace," urged reorganization of the agency and replacement of Mr. Davis with "a trained executive."

SENATE POSTPONES DRAFT BILL VOTE TO NEXT TUESDAY

Wheeler Insists on Showdown Despite Army, Navy Opposition.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21 — (AP) The Senate today postponed consideration of the Wheeler father draft deferment bill until next Tuesday—only two days before the Oct. 1 deadline set by the War Manpower commission for the general induction of men with children.

Should the bill clear formidable Administration opposition in the Senate, it would face further legislative dela in the House which might draw out final action long into next month.

Insists on Showdown

Despite the Army and Navy High command's opposition to the legislation, Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.), the author, insisted on a showdown vote. He agreed, however, to Majority Leader Barkley's request to let the debate go over until next week so members can study testimony already taken from high Army and Navy officials, as well as that to be received from Bernard M. Baruch, Presidential advisor, tomorrow afternoon.

Senator Wheeler announced he would question Mr. Baruch closely on reported hoarding of labor by plane plants and ship construction yards.

Before a vote is had on the Wheeler bill, there will be a test first on a p posal for a major change in it.

Senator Taft (R.-Ohio) submitted an amendment today which would call for the induction of fathers under 30 before any over that age are taken. Senator Wheeler's original measure simply would defer all pre-Pearl Harbor fathers for the rest of 1943.

Senator Taft said he did not believe the induction of the younger fathers would disrupt the domestic economy as much as would the drafting of those over 30.

Senator Truman (D.-Mo.), chairman of the Senate committee investigating the war program, told the Senate in a speech that he believed the Army and Navy could cut their manpower requirements by several hundred thousand men without harm to the striking force.

Although Senator Truman has announced his opposition to the Wheeler bill, he urged that the armed forces reduce their manpower demands to a bare minimum and utilize their present personnel to the fullest before "disrupting families and civilian industries."

FULBRIGHT BILL ADOPTED BY HOUSE

Rollcall Vote on Post-War Collaboration Measure Is 360 to 29.

SEP 22 194

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—(AP) With only 29 members dissenting, the House voted today for a United States post-war policy of international collaboration.

The historic expression came in a top-heavy roll call vote of 360 to 29, for the Fulbright resolution which would record Congress in favor of having the United States work with other nations to "establish and to maintain a just and lasting peace."

Senate to Act Next

The action moved the resolution over to the Senate, where it will be considered by the Foreign Relations committee along with approximately a dozen other foreign stand statements similar in purpose but different in scope and language.

Three Democrats and 26 Republicans voted against the resolution at the climax of two days of debate, during which its advocates argued that America could remain aloff no longer from world affairs while its foes protested against "entangling" alliances.

The brief resolution, sponsored by Rep. Fulbright (D-Ark.), says:

"Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring), that the Congress hereby expresses itself as favoring the creation of appropriate international machinery with power adequate to establish and to maintain a just and lasting peace, among the nations of the world, and as favoring participation by the United States therein, through its constitutional processes."

'Scandalous' Profiteering Is Charged by Hatch

Senator Proposes Single Board to Pass on All War Contracts

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21 (AP).—Senator Carl Hatch, Democrat, of New Mexico, declared today there is "scandalous" profiteering from some war contracts and proposed creation of a seven-member government board to pass on all contract negotiations.

Before the House Ways and Means Committee, meantime, Robert P. Patterson, Secretary of War, testified that renegotiation of war contracts to prevent improper profits would be unnecessary "if you can get all excessive profits by taxes or other means without collateral ill effects."

A House group headed by Representative Melvin J. Maas, Republican, of Minnesota, has proposed that the contract renegotiation law be eliminated after this year and be replaced by a super-tax against excessive profits in war contracts after allowing reserves for conversion to peace-time production. The present excess profits tax is 90 per cent, of which the taxpayer gets 10 per cent as a post-war credit.

Mr. Patterson criticized skyrocketed salaries of some war-plant officials—"some of them jumping from $5,000 to $50,000 a year"—and said the executive pay-roll increases should be taken into consideration in renegotiation of contracts. He said renegotiation was less necessary on contracts awarded through competitive bidding than on other types, but urged that the Army be allowed to grant cost-plus-fixed-fee contracts in exceptional cases.

Senator Hatch's proposal would place a single board in control of contract negotiations now handled by the War, Navy and Treasury Departments, the War Shipping Administration and four subsidiaries of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. The present system, he said, provides no uniform standard for determining whether profits are excessive.

Navy Ends Dog Training

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21 (AP).—The Navy announced today discontinuance of the Coast Guard's dog-training program, and said additional patrol dogs would be obtained through the Army's training facilities. The Coast Guard has maintained dog-training stations at Elkins Park, Pa., and Hilton Head, S. C.

Washington, Sept. 21 (A. P.).—The Navy announced today fifty-five casualties, including twenty dead, one wounded and thirty-four missing.

The names of two men whose status has changed from missing to dead, and wounded to missing are included.

This brings to 29,698 the total of Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard casualties reported to next of kin since December 7, 1941. The latest total included 10,255 dead, 5,214 wounded, 10,084 missing and 4,145 prisoners of war.

The casualties announced today included:

999 Italian Captives Upstate

Many of Group Clad in Shorts on Arrival at Pine Camp

PINE CAMP, N. Y., Sept. 21 (AP).—The arrival of 999 Italian prisoners of war at this northern New York Army post was announced today by Colonel Hugh D. Selton, commanding officer.

He said the majority of the prisoners, captured in North Africa, "were without serviceable clothing. Many of them were clad in shorts and had no undergarments." Warm clothing was issued.

The prisoners appeared glad "to get a good place to sleep for the first time since the start of the war," Colonel Selton added.

It was not announced how the prisoners will be utilized.

Bonus for Guadalcanal Veteran

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 21 (AP).—New Hampshire's first state bonus of this war was paid today to Donald Elliott, nineteen years old, of Plymouth, who served eighteen months in the Marine Corps and was wounded at Guadalcanal. State Treasurer F. Gordon Kimball gave him a check for $100 in the presence of Governor Robert O. Blood and other state officials. More than 200 other veterans of this war have submitted claims for the state bonus, limited to $100, regardless of length of service.

Moinet, and were ordered held under bond of $50,000 each.

Mrs. Leonhardt's husband, Carl Leonhardt, has pleaded guilty.

The Leonhardt home, Federal investigators said, was a meeting place for members of the group indicted.

Mrs. von Moltke is the wife of Heinrich A. von Moltke, suspended Wayne University instructor.

GREAT OFFENSIVES ABOUT TO BEGIN, LEGION INFORMED

Gen. Marshall Tells Convention War Will Expand in Europe, Asia.

SEP 22 1943

OMAHA, Sept. 21.—(AP) Chief of Staff Gen. George C. Marshall told the 25th national convention of the American Legion today that great offensives were "just about to begin" against the enemy in Europe and Asia, and his commander-in-chief, President Roosevelt, urged increased effort in civilian defense and other phases of the national program.

Both cautioned that the war was not yet won, President Roosevelt reiterating that the end "is not in sight until unconditional surrender has become a reality."

Bradley Tells of Battles

Lt. Gen. Omar Bradley, recently returned from Sicily, in a review of combat experiences declared that the Germans encountered by American troops are "cunning, unscrupulous, and somebody to be exterminated." Gen. Bradley and Lt. Gen. Simon B. Buckner, who has been directing American operations in Alaska, accompanied Gen. Marshall to the convention.

Speaking after receiving the Legion's Distinguished Service medal, Gen. Marshall said:

"Now at last we are ready to carry the war to the enemy, all overseas, thank God, with a power and force that we hope will bring this conflict to an early conclusion.

"But please remember that this phase is just about to begin, a point which seems not to be understood by our people here at home, possibly because they are far removed from the agonies of war except for those whose sons or husbands have been engaged in the fighting.

Navy Forces Released

Successes in the Mediterranean, Gen. Marshall said, will free huge naval forces for the war against Japan.

"We are similarly engaged in planning regarding other forces, particularly air," he said, "and it will probably interest you as much as it will discourage the Japanese to learn that our most difficult problem is to find sufficient bases from which to operate the vast forces which are to be poured into the Pacific x x x"

President Roosevelt, in a message read to the convention by the Legion's national commander, Roane Waring of Memphis, said every American's duty, both to himself and to his country, was "in increasing his effort in the war job he has, or in getting into a war job if he hasn't already done so."

"In certain fields particularly where the need might not at the moment look large but where we shall not have time to prepare should the actuality arise, increased effort and awareness are needed," he went on. "Civilian defense is an example of this sort of latent need. We don't wait until the house catches fire to be sure that our community has an up-to-date active fire department."

A three-point program, to insure world peace after the war and to safeguard the vital interests of the United States, was advocated by Louis Johnson, former assistant secretary of War. He proposed in a prepared speech:

A good neighbor policy effective throughout the world.

An arrangement for "more or less continuous discussion and examination between all nations of any situations which may give cause for trouble or which may menace war."

An agreement that all the nations will use the force they have to assist in seeing "that the law is kept and the peace maintained."

Text of Gen. Marshall's Address to Legion

OMAHA, Sept. 21 (AP).—The tex of the address of General George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff, before the American Legion convention today follows:

A few days ago I submitted a report which pretty well covered the operations of the Army during the last two years, the why and wherefore of our various moves. There is little to add to that statement at this time except that there must be no lessening of the momentum which it has taken us three years to develop. The press and radio are keeping you well informed as to the progress of affairs in the Mediterranean and on the Russian front. You are given most of the details of the heavy bombing we are administering to the industries in Germany and the Axis satellites throughout Europe, as well as the destruction of the enemy fighter planes opposed to these devastating raids. New Guinea, somewhat like the Aleutians, is an unhealthy locality for the enemy and his planes, barges and soldiers. As a matter of fact, the entire western Pacific has become a critical problem for the Japanese. For the first time we are getting under way with the war as we would have it conducted and I hope that from now on we shall rarely be on the receiving end except as is inevitable when trading punches in battle contacts.

Says Public Misunderstands

It has seemed to me from reading the papers recently that there is some misunderstanding as to the degree of success we have attained in the prosecution of the war. One gathers the impression that our various moves of late were the final steps in the conflict.

Perhaps it might be well for me to outline the present state of our deployment. For most of the past year and a half we have been engaged in establishing bases for future operations. Comparatively speaking, large combat forces of the ground army have not yet been engaged. As I endeavored to show diagrammatically in my recent report, our shipping has been largely employed in getting our air forces into action and in building up the tremendous installations required all over the world both to maintain the combat forces already moved into the various theaters and to provide for the very much larger forces to come. These preparations have now been practically completed and it is the last-t mentioned detail to which I would refer this afternoon.

We have prepared in North Africa and in Sicily, and we are about to prepare in Italy, for the supply and maintenance of heavy ground forces. For a long time we have been making similar preparations in the United Kingdom, and throughout the Pacific the same process has been under way since January, 1942. Meanwhile there has been built up in this country a formidable force of divisions and army corps with all the supporting troops, disciplined, highly trained, hardened, ready for embarkation for the great and final deployment of our armies against the enemy. Save for assaults in the air, only a small portion of our combat strength has been engaged. Now at last we are ready to carry the war to the enemy, all overses, thank God, with a power and force that we hope will bring this conflict to an early conclusion. But please remember that this phase is just about to begin, a point which seems not to be understood by our people here at home, possibly because they are far removed from the agonies of war except for those whose sons or husbands have been engaged in the fighting.

Would Welcome an Excess

Concerning the public reactions of the moment I find myself in a curious state of mind. For three years or more it has been a daily struggle of striving to meet the demands without the available means. There has been the constant problem of weighing the priorities of this theater against that one, of sending men to the front for whom training ammunition had been lacking or similar deficiencies. Now I find myself in the position of being questioned, if not investigated, for having too much of something or other. I don't know yet exactly what this excess is, but I do know that I am profoundly grateful that for once in the history of the United States there is suggested the possibility that we may have too much of something or other with which to support our armies. It will require considerable proof to assure me that such an unusual state of affairs actually exists. And I would add this view—my consideration is for the American soldier, to see that he has every available means with which to make successful war, that he is not limited in ammunition, that he is not limited in equipment, and that he has had sufficient training and medical care; in other words, to see that for once in the history of this country he is given a fair break in the terrible business of making war. So I must confess that rather than being disturbed by the doubts that now seem to be arising in the public mind at the present time, I am vastly relieved that they should be of that particular character rather than the usual recriminations over tragic deficiencies of every kind and nature.

There is another phase of the present situation which I believe it will do no harm to refer to publicly and probably will be of interest, especially to you gentlemen who bore the full burden in France of our unpreparedness for war. We have been engaged for a number of months, and very properly so, in plans for the further development of the war in the Pacific with the additional means as they become available from the struggle in the European theater. The first transfer made possible by our battles in the Mediterranean will result from the elimination of the Axis navy in that region. That means more naval power in the Pacific and that, in turn, means additional bases and equipment which have to be planned and provided for long in advance. We are similarly engaged in planning regarding other forces, particularly air, and it will probably interest you as much as it will discourage the Japanese to learn that our most difficult problem is to find sufficient bases from which to operate the vast forces which are to be poured into the Pacific for the rearrangement of the affairs of the son of heaven with his military clique.

Considering the fact that each day the war means both a colossal expenditure of money and a constant expenditure of human life, it is evident that we must not lose an hour in making our transfers from one theater to another. We are proceeding on the basis that nothing is to delay this flood of power to be added to the forces which already outnumber the enemy and are steadily growing stronger day by day. But I would add that these matters are not the affair of a moment, the result of a campaign of propaganda, or of temporary enthusiasms or special interests. We must proceed in the most businesslike manner possible to make this war so terrible to the enemy, so overwhelming in character that never again can a small group of dictators find a sufficient following to destroy the peaceful security of a civilized world.

LONDON, SEPT 21-(AP)-FRENCH TROOPS WERE BATTLING ON THE SOIL OF METROPOLITAN FRANCE TODAY FOR THE FIRST TIME SINCE THE COLLAPSE OF THE REPUBLIC IN THE SPRING OF 1940 AS COMMANDOS FROM NORTH AFRICA FOUGHT SIDE BY SIDE WITH PATRIOTS OF THE MOUNTAINOUS ISLAND OF CORSICA AGAINST THE GERMAN GARRISON.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE LANDING OF THE COMMANDOS, SOME OF THE FORCES WHICH TOOK PART IN THE TUNISIAN CAMPAIGN, CAME IN A TERSE COMMUNIQUE ISSUED LAST NIGHT IN ALGIERS BY GEN.HENRI GIRAUD. THE COMMUNIQUE GAVE NO DETAILS OF THE FIGHTING, BUT SAID IT HAD "TAKEN A FAVORABLE TURN."

THE STOCKHOLM SVENSKA DAGBLADET, PUBLISHING DISPATCHES FROM GERMAN-CONTROLLED MARSEILLE, SAID, HOWEVER, THAT FRENCH FORCES HAD OCCUPIED AJACCIO, CORSICA'S CAPITAL AND AN AIR AND NAVAL BASE, AFTER A SHARP FIGHT WITH THE GERMANS. THE NAZIS WERE SAID TO HAVE

RETIRED TO THE EASTERN SHORE OF THE ISLAND, WHERE THEY WERE RECEIVING REINFORCEMENTS FROM THE ITALIAN MAINLAND AND THE ISLAND OF ELBA. THE GERMAN GARRISON ALSO WAS AUGMENTED BY TROOPS WITHDRAWN FROM SARDINIA, SEVEN MILES TO THE SOUTH, FROM WHICH THE NAZIS WERE DRIVEN OVER THE WEEKEND BY ITALIAN FORCES.

IT WAS HOPED HERE THAT THE FRENCH FORCES, BULWARKED BY ITALIAN TROOPS, WOULD QUICKLY SUBDUE THE NAZIS, ESTIMATED TO NUMBER ABOUT TWO DIVISIONS OR BETWEEN 25,000 AND 30,000 OFFICERS AND MEN.

PRIOR TO THE COLLAPSE OF FRANCE, CORSICA WAS HEAVILY FORTIFIED BY THE FRENCH AND HAD MANY UNDERGROUND INSTALLATIONS AND ANTI-AIRCRAFT BATTERIES. AFTER THE AMERICANS INVADED NORTH AFRICA IN NOVEMBER, 1942, THE ITALIANS SENT IN APPROXIMATELY 40,000 MEN AND OCCUPIED THE ISLAND. NAZI SUBMARINES WERE SAID TO HAVE USED AJACCIO AS A SUBMARINE BASE AND OTHER GERMANS WERE GARRISONED THERE. SEP 22 1943

AFTER THE ITALIANS TOOK FULL CONTROL OF CORSICA, A STATE OF SIEGE WAS PROCLAIMED. ALTHOUGH THERE WERE FREQUENT REPORTS OF PATRIOT RESISTANCE TO THE AXIS FORCES, THE ISLAND, BIRTHPLACE OF NAPOLEON, HAS BEEN VIRTUALLY ISOLATED FROM THE WORLD.

CONTROL OF CORSICA--A DEPARTMENT OF METROPOLITAN FRANCE--WOULD GIVE THE ALLIES FACILITIES FOR CARRYING THE WAR CLOSER TO THE GERMANS BOTH IN FRANCE AND IN NORTHERN ITALY.

THE ISLAND IS LOCATED ONLY 50 MILES FROM THE NAZI-HELD ITALIAN MAINLAND IN THE VICINITY OF THE LA SPEZIA NAVAL BASE AND THE GREAT PORT OF GENOA. LONG-RANGE FIGHTER PLANES AND BOMBERS BASED IN CORSICA COULD FREELY ATTACK THE PO VALLEY, WHERE THE GERMANS ARE EXPECTED TO MAKE THEIR MAJOR STAND IN NORTHERN ITALY.

FURTHER, THE ISLAND IS LESS THAN 200 MILES FROM THE FRENCH MAINLAND AND INDUSTRIAL CITIES OF THE RHONE VALLEY, WHICH WOULD THUS BE BROUGHT WITHIN EASY BOMBING RANGE. SEP 22 1943

THE ANNOUNCEMENT THAT FRENCH COMMANDOS HAD LANDED ON CORSICA FOLLOWED SHORTLY A BROADCAST FROM ALGIERS IN WHICH GIRAUD WARNED THE GERMANS THAT ANY MAN WEARING A WHITE BRASSARD WITH A BLACK DEATH'S HEAD MUST BE CONSIDERED "A REGULAR SOLDIER OF THE FRENCH ARMY."

UNDER INTERNATIONAL LAW, ALL REGULAR SOLDIERS MUST BE TREATED AS PRISONERS OF WAR WHEN CAPTURED. CIVILIAN SNIPERS OR SABOTEURS, ON THE OTHER HAND, FACE THE POSSIBLE PENALTY OF SUMMARY EXECUTION.

CORSICA IS ABOUT 114 MILES LONG AND 52 MILES WIDE AND HAS AN AREA OF 3,368 SQUARE MILES.

THE ROAD TO EBOLI WAS LITTERED WITH ANIMATE AND INANIMATE LEAVINGS OF THE BATTLE WHICH HAD RAGED IN THIS AREA FOR NINE LONG DAYS.

SEVERAL MILES FROM THE SEA WE CAME ACROSS THE REMAINS OF A GERMAN TANK AND ARMORED CAR ATTACK ON OUR LINES TWO NIGHT AGO. EIGHT ARMORED CARS AND TWO TANKS HAD BEEN BLASTED BY GUNS AND MINES AND HAD SCATTERED THEIR HUMAN AND OTHER CONTENTS OVER THE FIELDS. CHARRED BODIES, UNIFORMS, SHOES, POSTCARDS, GAS MASKS AND MEDICAL KITS WERE STEWN ALL OVER THE PLACE. THE ODOR OF THE BATTLEFIELD PERMEATED THE HOT MIDDAY AIR AND IT WAS NOT PLEASANT.

FARTHER DOWN THE ROAD WE MET 31 SURVIVORS OF AN OUTFIT WHICH HAD BEEN TRAPPED BEHIND ENEMY LINES SINCE MONDAY NIGHT, FIVE DAYS. THEY HAD LAIN IN BUSHES NEAR SELERVER, LIVING ON DRIED CORN AND ONIONS AND SUFFERING THE EXASPERATING EXPERIENCE OF BEING STRAFED AND BOMBED BY OUR OWN PLANES. GERMAN ARTILLERY, MORTARS AND MACHINE-GUNS WERE WITHIN 200 YARDS OF THEM MANY TIMES, [illegible]

SGT.VAUGHN TAYLOR OF HUGHES SPRINGS, TEX., CORP. EDDIE GUTKOWSKI OF CHAPEL HILL, TEX., AND JOSEPH MASON OF COLONY, VA., WERE AMONG THE TIRED, UNSHAVEN CITIZENS WE MET COMING BACK FROM "THE MISSING."

THIS SUNDAY MORNING AROUND EBOLI WAS AS CALM AS IT MUST HAVE BEEN BACK HOME. ONLY AN OCCASIONAL GUN BANGED IN THE FAR DISTANCE AND ONCE THERE WAS A SUDDEN LOUD AND SHORT-LIVED DOG-FIGHT IN WHICH WE SAW A SPITFIRE KNOWCK DOWN A MESSERSCHMITT WHOSE PILOT PROMPTLY BAILED OUT AND FLOATED SOFTLY EARTHWARD.

THE ONLY PERSONS WE SAW AS WE APPROACHED EBOLI WERE A FEW STRAY GROUPS OF PEASANT AND HOMEWARD BOUND EX-SOLDIERS. FARMS WERE UTTERLY DESERTED EXCEPT FOR A FEW ANIMALS.

FORMER MEMBERS OF THE ITALIAN ARIETE DIVISION SAID THEY HAD FOUGHT FOR TWO DAYS AROUND ROME FOLLOWING OUR LANDING. THE FIRST DAY, THEY SAID, THEY MANAGED TO CAPTURE A LARGE NUMBER OF GERMANS AND TRANSPORT IN THE FIGHTING AROUND RIVOLI, FUMINCINO AND OSTIA. THE SECOND DAY, THEY SAID, TWO GERMAN COLUMNS ARRIVED AND CAPTURED PART OF THE ARIETE DIVISION, BUT THE LUCCA GROUP OF ARTILLERY, WHICH BELONGS TO THE ARIETE DIVISION, DISPERSED THE GERMANS AND FREED THEIR FELLOW-ITALIANS.

AT THIS MOMENT, THEY DECLARED, HIGH ITALIAN OFFICERS, WHOM THEY DESCRIBED AS FASCISTS, SUDDENLY GAVE THE ORDER TO LAY DOWN THEIR ARMS AND DISBAND. THEY BLAMED THE COLLAPSE OF ITALIAN RESISTANCE AROUND ROME ON THESE OFFICERS, WHOSE NAMES REMAIN TO BE ASCERTAINED.

EBOLI, ITALY, SEPT 21-A FEW SCORE OF THE 14,000 ITALIANS WHO EVACUATED EBOLI TWO MONTHS AGO WHEN THE GERMANS CONVERTED IT INTO A MILITARY CENTER RETURNED TODAY TO FIND IT IN RUINS.

PROBABLY NO OTHER CITY EVER WAS SO SYSTEMATICALLY BOMBED BY AIR AND SHELLED BY LAND AND SEA AS EBOLI. I WALKED THROUGH IT TODAY AND FOUND IT A CEMETERY OF HOUSES--A GRIM TRIBUTE TO THE ACCURACY OF THE ALLIES' ALLOUT BLASTING OF GERMAN POSITIONS SETUP IN THIS TOWN.

IT WAS DIFFICULT TO CLIMB THROUGH THE TOWN AS THE STREETS HAD DISAPPEARED BENEATH DEBRIS. I CAME ACROSS A CARABINIERO STANDING GUARD IN FRONT OF A HEAP OF RUBBLE AND ASKED HIM WHAT HE WAS GUARDING. HE REPLIED, "I AM GUARDING THIS BANK."

HE POINTED TO A PILE DUST AT HIS FEET WHERE I COULD BARELY MAKE OUT ON A TWISTED METAL PLAQUE THE WORDS "BANCO DI NAPOLI."

THE GUARD SAID THE VAULT, WHICH WAS NOT IN EVIDENCE, STILL CONTAINED A LARGE SUM OF MONEY.

A SCORE OF BUILDINGS, PERHAPS, WERE STANDING BUT THEY HAD BEEN CUT IN HALVES LIKE DOLLHOUSES SO THAT THEIR CANDY COLORED INTERIORS WERE EXPOSED TO VIEW.

MANY AIRBOMB CRATERS IN EBOLI ARE WIDE DEEP ENOUGH TO HOLD A HORSE AND WAGON.

ALLIED TROOPS TODAY WERE FEEDING THE ITALIAN INHABITANTS WHO CAME BACK TO EBOLI WITH WHAT THEY COULD SPARE FROM THEIR RATIONS.

WITH THE U.S. FIFTH ARMY IN ITALY, SEPT 20-(DELAYED)--THREE LITTLE HEINIES WENT TO MARKET AND THREE LITTLE HEINIES WISHED THEY HAD STAYED AT HOME.

THE REASON WAS THAT THE MARKET WAS IN A TOWN IN NO-MAN'S-LAND. THE THREE HAD LINED THEIR HELMETS WITH GRAPES AND MELONS AND ONE HAD TWO CHICKENS TIED TO HIS GUN. THEY WALKED MERRILY DOWN THE STREET.

BUT COMING IN THE OPPOSITE DIRECTION WERE PVT.CHARLES CHRISTENSEN OF 1536 NORTH KEELER AVE., CHICAGO,ILL.; PVT.CARL DUNPHY OF 64 SUNSHINE ROAD, UPPER DARBY,PA., AND PVT.STANLEY LEAVY OF 321 RURAL

THE THREE DOUGHBOYS SAW THE GERMANS FIRST AND QUICKLY DODGED AROUND A CORNER.

SEP 22 1943

THEY WAITED UNTIL THE GERMANS CROSSED TO THEIR SIDE OF THE STREET AND THEN STEPPED OUT.

LEAVY SAID: "THEY WERE SO SURPRISED AND FRIGHTENED THEY JUST DROPPED THEIR MAKESHIFT MARKET BASKETS AND HELD UP THEIR HANDS. IT WAS A FAST SURRENDER."

DUNPHY EXPLAINED "WE WERE ON PATROL AND JUST GOING THROUGH TOWN CHECKING ON ANY STRAY HEINIES WHO MIGHT BE ABOUT."

CHRISTENSEN SAID "THEY MADE NO TROUBLE AND WE BROUGHT THEM THROUGH NO-MAN'S-LAND WITHOUT THEIR ONCE TRYING TO ESCAPE ALTHOUGH AT ONE POINT WE HAD TO HIDE FROM A GERMAN PATROL WHICH WAS THREE TIMES THE SIZE OF OURS. EVEN SO THEY DIDN'T ATTEMPT TO YELL, BUT THEY KNEW WHAT WOULD HAVE HAPPENED IF THEY DID."

THE PRISONERS WERE HANDED OVER TO THE FIFTH ARMY COMMAND THIS MORNING WHEN THE THREE DOUGHBOYS RETURNED.

WITH ALLIED FORCES ON A MEDITERRANEAN ISLAND, SEPT 15-(DELAYED)- LATE AT NIGHT, WHILE THE MOON WAS HIDDEN AND A THIN FOG HUNG LOW OVER THE WATER AND ONLY THE BEACON OF VESUVIUS WAS VISIBLE ON THE HORIZON, WE SLIPPED OUT OF THE HARBOR AND, WITH A FLOTILLA OF RAIDING CRAFT, SET OUT TO CAPTURE ANOTHER ISLAND FOR THE ALLIES.

THIS ONE WAS THE ISLE OF PROCIDA AND ITS SIGNIFICANCE LAY NOT IN ITS SIZE--IT IS ABOUT AS BIG AS STATEN ISLAND--NOR ITS POPULATION OF AROUND 10,000 BUT IN ITS POSITION LESS THAN THREE MILES FROM THE NEAPOLITAN SHORE. IT WAS JUST THE NIGHT FOR RAIDING.

THERE WAS NOT A MAN ABOARD WHO DID NOT FEEL THE THRILL OF SO DARING AN ENTERPRISE.

OUR BOAT WAS BRITISH BUT THE CHIEF OF THE EXPEDITION WAS AN AMERICAN WHO HAD CHOSEN TO MAKE THIS HIS FLAGSHIP. FOR THE FIRST HALF HOUR NOTHING HAPPENED. AS THE NIGHT WORE ON MYSTERIOUS SOUNDS BEGAN TO COME TO US.

BRILLIANT FIRE SUDDENLY FLAMED ON OUR PORT BOW, BLAZED FIVE SECONDS AND DISAPPEARED. TWO CANNON SHOTS RANG OUT NOT FAR AWAY, NOBODY KNEW FROM WHAT SOURCE. WE KNEW ENEMY CRAFT WERE IN THE VICINITY.

OVER THERE ON OUR SHIPS WERE MANY OLD AND NEW FRIENDS. "JUMPING JOE" SAVOLDI, 215-POUND HEAVYWEIGHT WRESTLER AND ONE OF KNUTE ROCKNE'S ALL-AMERICANS AT NOTRE DAME TURNED UP THIS AFTERNOON ON ONE CRAFT.

SAVOLDI'S HOME IS HARBERT, MICH., BUT HE SAYS CHICAGO WILL REACH HIM. ANOTHER CHICAGOAN WITH HIM WAS NAVAL LT.JOHN SHAHEEN OF THE LASALLE HOTEL, CHICAGO. ANOTHER WAS ENSIGN HAROLD NUGENT OF 5825 WINTHROP AVENUE, CHICAGO, AND MOTOR MACHINISTS MATE WILLIAM CHARLES MOEN OF 611 SOUTH AVENUE, SYCAMORE, ILL.

WITH THEIR SKIPPER, LT.CECIL SANDERS OF LANCASTER, KY., THEY HAD SUNK ONE 6,000-TON ITALIAN TRANSPORT BEFORE THE ARMISTICE. THEY WERE USING A PATROL TORPEDO BOAT.

SEP 22 1943

ON STILL ANOTHER CRAFT I FOUND ENSIGN JIM BORWINKLE OF 5304 CORNELL AVENUE, CHICAGO, ENSIGN JOHN PAUL MAHER OF 5655 SOUTH HOMAN AVENUE, CHICAGO, AND A NEIGHBOR OF MINE FROM TEXAS, LT.SKIPPER EDWIN A.DUBOSE OF 2001 HILLCREST, FORT WORTH.

1943

THEY WERE BUSY TALKING TO THE CREWS OF A NUMBER OF ITALIAN "MAS" BOATS, SIMILAR TO OUR P-T'S, WHO HAD COME OVER TO US WITH THEIR CRAFT AND WERE PRESSING TO BE TAKEN ALONG AND GIVEN A CHANCE TO FIGHT THE GERMANS.

AMONG THE OFFICERS WHO ACCEPTED THE SURRENDER OF THESE ITALIANS WAS LT.COMM.DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS, JR.

MOONLIGHT GLINTED ON THE BAYONETS OF THE LANDING PARTY AS WE SLIPPED INTO PROCIDA HARBOR.

OUR FRIENDS, THE PROCIDANS, WERE COMING OUT IN ROWBOATS TO MEET US WITH FRENZIED HANDCLAPS AT FIRST BECAUSE THEY COULD BARELY DISCERN OUR LINES, THEN WITH CHEERS AND AN OFFICIAL RECEPTION. ALONGSIDE THE DOCK CAME ONE LARGER ROWBOAT AND OUT JUMPED A LITTLE MAN IN FORMAL CUTAWAY. COMING TO ATTENTION THE LITTLE ITALIAN USED HIS WHOLE STOCK OF ENGLISH TO SAY:

SEP 22 1943

"GOODBYE. I AM PODESTA OF PROCIDA. GOODBYE. GOODBYE."

WE LEARNED THAT MOST OF THE ITALIAN DEFENSE FORCES HAD RUN AWAY JUST BEFORE WE LANDED BECAUSE THEY THOUGHT WE WERE GERMAN. ONE SWEATING LITTLE PROCIDAN PROMISED TO TAKE US TO THE CITY HALL WHERE WE WOULD BE GIVEN AN OFFICIAL SURRENDER OF THE ISLAND. HE SAID IT WAS JUST AROUND THE CORNER. ACTUALLY IT WAS NEARLY TWO MILES AWAY UP A STEEP COBBLE-STONE STREET. WHEN WE ARRIVED WE FOUND "ALL PROCIDA" THERE, MILLING, TALKING, GESTICULATING AND DRIPPING SWEAT UNDER TWO GREAT PICTURES OF KING VITTORIO EMANUELE III AND GIUSEPPE GARIBALDI. THE USUAL BROOKLYN ITALIAN-AMERICAN TURNED UP PROMPTLY--THIS TIME NAMED FRANK S.LAVINA, WHO HAS BROTHERS LIVING AT 75 PRESIDENT STREET, BROOKLYN, AND 2117 BEVERLY ROAD, BROOKLYN. AMID MUCH HEAT, DIN AND CONFUSION WE WERE ASSURED OF THE LOYALTY AND AFFECTION PF PROCIDA, WHILE OUR C.O. DID WHAT HE COULD TO GET INFORMATION OF VALUE FROM OFFICERS. ##

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA SEPT 21-(AP)-THE NORTHWEST AFRICAN AIR FORCES CONCENTRATED THEIR ATTENTION YESTERDAY ON THE SALERNO BATTLE AREA IN ITALY AND WITHOUT OPPOSITION PRACTICALLY WIPED OUT A LARGE CONVOY OF ENEMY MOTOR VEHICLES.

FIFTY GASOLINE AND OIL LADEN TRUCKS TRAVELING WEST OF POTENZA WERE BOMBED AND STRAFED AND WHEN FIGHTER BOMBERS PULLED AWAY 30 BIG TANK TRUCKS WERE AFIRE AND OTHERS WERE DAMAGED. OTHER MOTOR TRANSPORT ALSO WAS ATTACKED, AND THE DAY'S BAG WAS 67 DESTROYED AND AS MANY DAMAGED.

BOMBERS ATTACKED ROADS AND RAILWAYS WITHIN A SHORT DISTANCE OF THE FRONT AND ONCE AGAIN NOT A SINGLE GERMAN AIRCRAFT CAME UP TO TRY TO STOP THEM.

AMERICAN FLYING FORTRESSES HIT THE RAILWAY YARDS AT TORRE ANNUNZIATA, THE TRACKS SOUTH OF POMPEI AND THREE ROADS SOUTH OF SARNO. MITCHELLS ATTACKED THE ROAD JUNCTION AT CASTELNUOVO AND AMERICAN MARAUDERS SUCCESSFULLY RAIDED THE BOTTLENECK BETWEEN TWO RAILWAY YARDS AT FORMIA HALTING SOUTHBOUND TRAFFIC.

THE NIGHT BEFORE, IN THE FACE OF BAD WEATHER, RAF BOSTONS STARTED FIRES, HIT ROADS AND RAILWAY JUNCTIONS CLOSE TO THE BATTLE AREA. YESTERDAY MITCHELLS BOMBED AVELLINO AND CALABRITTO IN THE REAR OF THE BATTLE FRONT. A LARGE EXPLOSION TOOK PLACE AT THE AVELLINO ROAD JUNCTION. U.S.AAF INVADERS KNOCKED OUT SOME GUN POSITIONS.

LAST NIGHT RAF AND RCAF WELLINGTONS BOMBED ROADS AND RAILWAY YARDS IN BENEVENTO.

SEP 22 1943

THERE WERE NO LOSSES IN YESTERDAY'S RAIDS AND SINCE THERE WAS NO OPPOSITION NO GERMAN PLANES WERE SHOT DOWN.

IN THE NAPLES AREA UNESCORTED FORTRESSES CONTINUED TO POUND GERMAN SUPPLY LINES WITH AN ATTACK ON COMMUNICATIONS AT SARNO AND TORRE ANNUNZIATA, SOUTHEAST OF NAPLES. THE RAILROAD AND THE MAIN HIGHWAY INTERSECTION AT SARNO WERE MADE UNSERVICEABLE, CREWS REPORTED, AND

AT TORRE ANNUNZIATA TWO ROAD JUNCTIONS AND A ROAD BRIDGE WERE HIT.

AT FORMIA ROAD JUNCTIONS AND RAILROADS NORTHWEST OF NAPLES WERE BOMBED BY UNESCORTED MARAUDERS OF THE U.S.A.A.F. AND THE CREWS REPORTED SEVERAL HITS ON THE ROAD JUNCTION. THE MARAUDERS' HIGH EXPLOSIVES CUT THE RAILROAD. HITS WERE SCORED ON THE ROAD INTERSECTION AND OTHER HITS WERE REPORTED SOUTHEAST OF THE NORTHEAST JUNCTION.

BOSTONS OF THE TACTICAL AIR FORCE IN BAD NIGHT-FLYING CONDITIONS STRUCK TARGETS OF OPPORTUNITY AT NAPLES, BENEVENTO, AND POTENZA ON THE NIGHT OF SEPT.19-20. THE MOST SATISFACTORY RESULTS WERE OBTAINED AT BENEVENTO WHERE THE CROSSROADS WERE PLASTERED AND A LARGE EXPLOSION AND A GREAT SHEET OF FLAME WERE REPORTED.

A DIRECT HIT WAS SCORED ON THE RAILWAY STATION AT CASTELNUOVO AND A SMALL CONCENTRATION OF MOTOR TRANSPORT WAS BOMBED. THE KEY FOUR-ROAD JUNCTION AT MONTESARCHIO, FIVE MILES WEST OF PESCOPAGANO, WAS WELL COVERED WITH BOMBS. THE CROSSROADS IS THE JUNCTION INTO WHICH RUNS THE MAIN ROAD EXTENDING NORTHEAST FROM EBOLI.

MOSQUITO AND INTRUDER AIRCRAFT AND RAF NIGHT FIGHTERS OPERATEGV WITHOUT INCIDENT.

TACTICAL AIRFORCE FIGHTER-BOMBERS AND MEDIUM BOMBERS CONTINUED THE OFFENSIVE IN DAYLIGHT YESTERDAY AGAINST ENEMY COMMUNICATIONS AND TRANSPORT EAST AND NORTHEAST OF THE BATTLE AREA WHERE CONSIDERABLE MOVEMEMTN NORTHWARDS WAS SEEN.

MITCHELL BOMBERS FLEW THROUGH INTENSE AND ACCURATE FLACK TO ATTACK AVELLINO WHERE THEY SOUGHT TO CREATE ROAD BLOCKS. THE ROAD JUNCTION WAS ACCURATELY BOMBED AND A LARGE EXPLOSION FOLLOWED.

A MITCHELL PILOT, LT.M.R.SHADWELL OF BLUEMONT ST., MANHATTAN, NEW

OTHER MITCHELLS BOMBED THE JUNCTION TOWN OF CALABRITTO UNDER DIFFICULT CONDITIONS. FIRST LT.GEORGE J.LOOK OF (900 CLARKSON ST.) DENVER, COLO., SAID THAT THE LEAD BOMBARDIER HAD DIFFICULTY IN FINDING THE TARGET, "WHEN IT SHOWED UP IN MY SIGHT I QUICKLY SALVOED MY WHOLE LOAD RIGHT ONTO IT. OUR BOMBS STARTED A BIG FIRE."

TAKING ADVANTAGE OF RECENT CONQUESTS IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC, THE ALLIES ARE STRIKING WITH INCREASING AIR POWER AGAINST JAPANESE BASES ON NEW BRITAIN AND NEW IRELAND, MAIN ISLANDS OF THE BISMARCK ARCHIPELAGO, NORTHEAST OF NEW GUINEA.

AMERICAN AND AUSTRALIAN FIGHTER PLANES ARE MAKING LARGE-SCALE ATTACKS AGAINST ENEMY STRONGHOLDS ONCE WITHIN THE RANGE OF HEAVY BOMBERS ONLY.

THE TUESDAY COMMUNIQUE OF GENERAL DOUGLAS MACARTHUR REPORTED EXTENSIVE ACTIVITY BY FIGHTERS AT KIMBE BAY, ABOUT HALF WAY UP THE NORTH NEW BRITAIN COAST TOWARD RABAUL, THE MOST VITAL JAPANESE AIR AND SHIPPING BASE IN THE AREA ADJACENT TO NEW GUINEA AND THE SOLOMON ISLANDS.

BEAUFIGHTERS, MANNED BY AUSTRALIANS, RAINED 20,000 ROUNDS OF AMMUNITON INTO SURFACE CRAFT, SUPPLY DUMPS, AN AIRDROME AND ANTI-AIRCRAFT POSITIONS AT KIMBE BAY ON SUNDAY.

FLYING FORTRESSES AND LIBERATORS DROPPED 94 TONS OF BOMBS ON THE NIPPONESE AIRFIELD AT CAPE GLOUCESTER, 120 MILES NORTHEAST OF LAE, NEW GUINEA, ON THE SAME DAY. THIS BASE, ON THE WESTERN TIP OF NEW BRITAIN, HAS BEEN SUBJECTED TO NUMEROUS BOMBINGS.

AT CAPE ST.GEORGE, NEW IRELAND, MEDIUM RECONNAISSANCE UNITS BOMBED AND STRAFED A 1,900-TON ENEMY FREIGHTER AND A BARGE.

ON NEW GUINEA, WHERE THE ALLIES CAPTURED LAE AND SALAMAUA LAST WEEK, MEDIUM UNITS CASCADED 22 TONS OF BOMBS ON JAPANESE BASES IN THE FINSCHHAFEN AREA, ONLY 40 MILES FROM LAE.

THE AIR ACTIVITY EXTENDED INTO THE SOLOMONS WITH ATTACKS ON ENEMY POSITIONS ON KOLOMBANGARA ISLAND, ABOUT 20 MILES NORTH OF THE MUNDA AIRDROME ON NEW GEORGIA ISLAND, WHICH AMERICAN FORCES TOOK EARLY IN AUGUST.

AMERICAN POSITIONS AT MUNDA AND ON VELLA LAVELLA ISLAND, 45 MILES NORTHWEST OF NEW GEORGIA, WERE THE OBJECTS OF SEVERAL ENEMY RAIDS. MINOR DAMAGE RESULTED BUT THERE WERE NO CASUALTIES.

(THE NAVY DEPARTMENT IN WASHINGTON ALSO REPORTED THE THIRD JAPANESE RAID IN A WEEK ON GUADALCANAL IN THE SOUTHERN SOLOMONS ON SEPTEMBER 19. SLIGHT MATERIAL AND PERSONNEL CASUALTIES WERE SUSTAINED.)

SEP 23 1943

BY WILLIAM F.BONI

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 22-(AP)-MILITARY STRATEGY IN THE PACIFIC HAS BEEN BROUGHT TO THE FORE BY REPORTS, OF WHICH GEN.DOUGLAS MACARTHUR HAS TAKEN OFFICIAL RECOGNITION, THAT THERE MAY BE CHANGES IN COMMAND WHICH WOULD GIVE HIM A SUBORDINATE ROLE.

SEVERAL TIMES AT PRESS CONFERENCES, GENERAL MACARTHUR HAS OUTLINED IN HIS PLANS FOR THE PACIFIC WAR THAT RECAPTURE OF THE PHILIPPINES IS ONE OF HIS KEY OBJECTIVES.

TO DO THAT, HE NEVER HAS PLANNED AN ISLAND-HOPPING, BUT RATHER WHAT MIGHT BE CALLED AN ISLAND-SKIPPING, OFFENSIVE.

HIS CONCEPTION OF WAR AGAINST JAPAN ALWAYS HAS BEEN BASED ON THE IDEA THAT THIS THEATER PROVIDES IN AUSTRALIA THE ONLY GENUINELY SUITABLE BASE FOR A MAJOR OFFENSIVE. AS MACARTHUR AND OTHER MILITARY FIGURES OF THIS AREA REGARD THE PACIFIC-WIDE PICTURE, THE OFFENSIVE FROM THE ALEUTIANS WOULD HAVE TO FALL BACK ON THE NORTH-WESTERN UNITED STATES FOR A REAL BASE; AN OFFENSIVE FROM PEARL HARBOR SIMILARLY WOULD HAVE TO RELY ON THE PACIFIC COAST SUPPLIES AND INDUSTRY; AN OFFENSIVE THROUGH CHINA WOULD NECESSITATE, BY ANY MEANS, ESTABLISHING LONG SUPPLY LINES, EITHER OVERLAND ON

1943

30.24- 8679

SUCH ROUTES AS THE BURMA ROAD OR SOME SEABORNE SOURCE THROUGH MALAYA.

AUSTRALIA, ON THE OTHER HAND, PROVIDES A SELF-CONTAINED BASE BOTH FROM A MILITARY AND ECONOMIC STANDPOINT.

SEP 22 1943

NOR DOES MACARTHUR CONSIDER THE PACIFIC OFFENSIVE TO DATE ONE OF ISLAND-HOPPING. WE BEGAN THE FIGHTING ON NEW GUINEA AND NOW HOLD MORE THAN EVER OF THAT ISLAND. WHEN THE JAPANESE HAVE BEEN ENTIRELY CLEARED FROM THE ISLAND IT WOULD BE THE MOST NATURAL AIM TO REACH FOR THE STRATEGIC PHILIPPINES AND BY-PASS JAPANESE-HELD EAST INDIES.

THE PHILIPPINES, WHOSE RECAPTURE IS WHAT MACARTHUR HAS TERMED THE "ONLY PERSONAL DESIRE" HE HAS IN CONDUCT OF THE WAR, WOULD PROVIDE A BASE FROM WHICH THE JAPANESE VITAL SUPPLY LINES COULD BE DOMINATED, CONTROLLED AND EVENTUALLY SEVERED.

ON A MINOR SCALE, THE RECENT SALAMAUA-LAE OFFENSIVE ILLUSTRATED THE GENERAL'S CONCEPTION OF THE WAR IN WHICH KEY POINTS CAN BE TAKEN WITHOUT INCURRING HEAVY CASUALTIES INCIDENT TO FRONTAL ATTACKS. THE JAPANESE COMMANDERS WERE TRICKED INTO BELIEVING THE MAIN BLOW WOULD BE AIMED AT SALAMAUA, HENCE DRAINED THEIR LAE GARRISON TO REINFORCE THAT POINT. INSTEAD, SALAMAUA VIRTUALLY WAS BY-PASSED AND BOTH OBJECTIVES FELL IN SHORT ORDER.

"NEW CONDITIONS REQUIRE FOR SOLUTION AND NEW WEAPONS REQUIRE FOR MAXIMUM APPLICATION NEW AND IMAGINATIVE METHODS," GENERAL MACARTHUR SAID IN HIS STATEMENT TODAY.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, SEPT.21-(AP)-JAPAN PAID A HIGH PRICE IN MEN AND EQUIPMENT WHILE LOSING LAE AND SALAMAUA ON NEW GUINEA. NOW THAT THESE AIR BASES ARE FIRMLY IN GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HANDS, ENEMY GARRISONS IN THE AREA ARE BEGINNING TO UNDERGO ATTACKS BY FIGHTER-ESCORTED BOMBERS AND TO SEE MORE STRAFING ALLIED FIGHTERS THAN THEY HAVE EXPERIENCED BEFORE.

JUST HOW MANY OF A JAPANESE ARMY ONCE ESTIMATED AT 20,000 MEN WERE SLAIN AS SALAMAUA FELL SEPT. 12 AND LAE SEPT. 16 REMAINS TO BE DISCLOSED IN OFFICIAL REPORTS. BUT A SPOKESMAN FOR GENERAL MACARTHUR SAID TODAY THE ENEMY, CAUGHT IN A JUNGLE ENCIRCLEMENT MOVEMENT, LOST HEAVILY.

SEP 22 1943

HE SAID EVIDENCE HAS BEEN FOUND THAT THE JAPANESE LOST AN ENTIRE REGIMENT, ORDINARILY AVERAGING 2,200 MEN, IN KILLED AND HOSPITALIZED DURING THE OUTPOST BATTLES AT WAU, MUBO AND KOMIATUM LEADING UP TO THE LARGER SCALE FIGHTING AT SALAMAUA AND LAE.

JAPANESE SOLDIERS WHO FLED NORTH FROM LAE NOW ARE BEING ADDED TO THE MOUNTING LIST OF ENEMY DEAD. AMERICAN AND AUSTRALIAN SOLDIERS WHO PLACED ARMED BLOCKADES ACROSS THE JUNGLE TRAILS ABOVE LAE, IN EXPECTATION OF JUST SUCH A RETREAT, NOW HAVE CONTACTED THESE FUGITIVES. AND ALLIED SOLDIERS MOVING BEHIND THEM FROM LAE ALSO HAVE CAUGHT UP WITH THEM.

TODAY'S COMMUNIQUE TOLD OF EFFECTIVE AIR RAIDS ON ENEMY AIR INSTALLATIONS AT FINSCHHAFEN, ONLY 60 MILES UP THE HUON PENINSULA FROM LAE; AT CAPE GLOUCESTER, ACROSS DAMPIER STRAIT ON NEW BRITAIN, 120 MILES FROM LAE; AND OF EXTENSIVE FIGHTER ACTIVITY IN THE NORTH NEW BRITAIN COASTAL AREA OF KIMBE BAY, ROUGHLY HALF WAY ALONG THE ROUTE TO THE CHOICEST TARGET ON THAT ISLAND -- THE BIG AIR AND SHIPPING STRONGHOLD OF RABAUL. AUSTRALIAN-MANNED BEAUFIGHTERS POURED 20,000 ROUNDS OF AMMUNITION INTO AN AIRDROME, SUPPLY DUMPS, ANTI-AIRCRAFT POSITIONS AND SURFACE CRAFT SUNDAY AT KIMBE BAY. THIS IS PERHAPS THE FIRST TIME THESE FIGHTERS HAVE APPEARED IN SUCH AN EFFECTIVE ROLE IN THIS AREA.

IT GIVES EXCEEDINGLY TO WONDER WHETHER THE AUTHORITATIVE ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL HASN'T OPENED THE CLOSET DOOR ON A RATHER GRIM INTERNATIONAL SKELETON BY ITS SENSATIONAL ASSERTION THAT POWERFUL INTERESTS WOULD LIKE TO REMOVE CHIEF OF STAFF GENERAL GEORGE C.MARSHALL FROM THE WASHINGTON SCENE.

"ACTING UNDER THE PRESIDENT'S INSTRUCTION," EXPLAINS THE JOURNAL," HE (MARSHALL) HAS LABORED ZEALOUSLY TO INSURE THE FULLEST MEASURE OF COOPERATION WITH OUR ALLIES AND ESPECIALLY THE BRITISH, A POLICY BASED ON THE PRESIDENT'S AND HIS OWN APPRECIATION OF THE NECESSITY OF SAFEGUARDING AMERICAN INTERESTS. XXX THINKING ONLY OF WINNING THE WAR IN THE SHORTEST TIME AND OF SAVING EVERY AMERICAN LIFE POSSIBLE. IN CONNECTION WITH THE BLOODY OPERATIONS WHICH IT CALLS FOR, GENERAL MARSHALL, OF COURSE, HAS COME INTO CONFLICT WITH POWERFUL INTERESTS WHICH WOULD LIKE TO ELIMINATE HIM FROM THE WASHINGTON PICTURE, AND PLACE IN HIS STEAD AN OFFICER MORE AMENABLE TO THEIR WILL."

THAT'S A NASTY PICTURE. WHO ARE THESE POWERFUL INTERESTS? THE JOURNAL LEAVES IT TO US TO FIGURE IT OUT FOR OURSELVES. THE GENERAL PUBLIC HAS LEARNED OF ONLY ONE DIFFERENCE OF OPINION BETWEEN MARSHALL AND CRITICS.

THE CHIEF OF STAFF IS SAID TO HAVE HELD FIRMLY TO THE CONVICTION THAT WESTERN EUROPE SHOULD BE INVADED DIRECTLY FROM ENGLAND. OTHER STRATEGISTS, PARTICULARLY THOSE ON THE BRITISH SIDE OF THE TABLE, HAVE FROWNED ON CROSS-CHANNEL INVASION. TIMING OF THE DRIVE ALSO IS SAID TO HAVE CAUSED SOME DISSENSION.

WELL, IT CERTAINLY IS INTERESTING TO KNOW WHERE GENERAL MARSHALL HAS STOOD ON SUCH INVASION, FOR THAT HAS BEEN ONE OF THE MAJOR ISSUES OF THE WAR, AS MOSCOW HASN'T ALLOWED US TO FORGET. READERS OF THIS COLUMN OVER A CONSIDERABLE PERIOD WILL RECALL THAT IT PERSISTENTLY HAS POINTED OUT THAT THE QUICKEST WAY TO VICTORY WOULD BE THIS ADMITTEDLY HIGHLY DANGEROUS OPERATION--ALWAYS PROVIDED THE ALLIES WERE PROPERLY SET FOR IT. NOBODY WITH ANY KNOWLEDGE OF MILITARY AFFAIRS WOULD SUGGEST SUCH AN INVASION SHORT OF FULL PREPAREDNESS. # CONTINUATION UNAVAILABLE

FIFTH ARMY FANS OUT

Steady, Cautious Advance Upon Smouldering Naples Faces Heavy Fire.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 22 — (AP) The American Fifth army in Italy drove slowly tonight into the last mountain barrier before blazing Naples as U. S. "Commando" troops joined the French in mopping up the island of Corsica and the British won Potenza and control of all south Italy below an arc from Salerno to Bari.

The Germans were evacuating Corsica after leaving 1,000 dead on the battlefield and several hundred prisoners. A French communique said enemy survivors of their original 12,000 men were being compressed into the northeast corner of the French island in retreat from the Levie and Bonifacio-Porto Vecchio region in South Corsica.

The German escape route and its terminal ports of Bastia on Corsica and Leghorn on Italy were bombed heavily by American Liberators recently transferred to this theater from Britain.

"An American Commando unit (probably Rangers) is fighting by the side of patriots and regular French troops," Gen. Henri Giraud's command said. "The Germans left more than 1,000 dead on the battlefield. Several hundreds of prisoners fell into our hands."

Sardinia Seizure Complete

Sardinia, the big Italian island seven miles south of Corsica, apparently was under control of American and friendly Italian troops. (German broadcasts repeated that Sardinia had been evacuated.)

American and British troops of the Fifth army captured Campagna, San Cirpriano and Montecorvino-Rovella — all strategic points on the widening Salerno front 20 airline miles below Naples. The Allied communique said "the Fifth army continues to regroup and move forward."

Campagna is 20 miles inland from Salerno and six miles northeast captured Eboli. San Cipriano is eight miles east-northeast of Salerno and 35 miles short of Naples. Montecorvino-Rovella, capture of which was reported in field dispatches yesterday, is 12 miles east of Salerno.

A funereal pall of smoke shrouded the great metropolis of Naples. Allied troops 12 miles across the bay on the Sorrento peninsula could see large fires burning in and near the city of 925,000. The Germans appeared to be burning, destroying and looting anything that would be valuable to the oncoming Allies. The enemy had established strong defense lines on the southern and eastern approaches of Naples, which were under constant pressure.

Vital Center

The British Eighth army captured Potenza, which an Allied spokesman likened to "a man's heart so far as that part of Italy is concerned—it is the center of everything."

Five primary roads radiate from Potenza. The city of 25,000 lies 56 miles east of Salerno, 64 miles southwest of Allied-held Bari on the Adriatic, and 58 miles inland from the Gulf of Taranto which washes the instep of the Italian boot.

Many German motor convoys had been seen fleeing northward from Potenza in recent days. Its fall meant that all lower Italy was dominated by the Allies.

A small British patrol had boldly stowed away on an Italian train and reached the outskirts of Potenza three or four days before it fell. The British hid in the hills and furnished information of German activity which was instrumental in our capture of the town," a headquarters spokesman said.

Heavy Nazi Fire

Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark's American and British troops of his Fifth army fanned out steadily and cautiously north and northeast of Salerno. They encountered heavy German artillery and mortar fire. East of Salerno, only small rearguard detachments were encountered.

The Germans were in strong mountain positions guarding Naples. Their continued control of volcanic Mt. Vesuvius and its bottleneck coastal routes presented General Clark with much the same strategic problem that Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery had in Sicily in the final coastal drive upon Messina past Mt. Etna.

"The first phase of the Salerno battle now is definitely over," the military spokesman said. "We have inflicted upon the enemy heavy losses in killed and captured and in equipment. Many prisoners have been taken who were Poles, Czechs and others impressed into Hitler's army. This would appear to indicate a serious German manpower shortage. The terrain we now have entered is more difficult than anything we encountered in Tunisia or Sicily."

The frantic German demolitions in Naples and nearby showed the enemy was well aware of the importance of the last mountain barrier he holds before the broad lowlands leading directly into Naples. Approachces to the city were heavily mined. The present fighting area was so rugged that Allied troops had to haul their heavy equipment by hand up steep sides of mountains, through gorges and ravines.

Steady Allied Reinforcements

(The Berlin radio said the Fifth army was constantly being reinforced and already had ten divisions. Fighting presently was described as local. General Clark was said to be concentrating large artillery forces before allowing his divisions to "launch new large-scale attacks in areas no longer within naval artillery range." The British Eighth army was said to have occupied an east-west line from Altamura through Potenza to Buccino.)

Allied airpower intervened not only in Naples and Corsica battles, but in the extreme eastern Mediterranean as well.

British planes attacked German airdromes near the Greek capital of Athens, on Crete and on Rhodes —queen island of the Dodecanese.

Rail and road bridges at Benevento, Capua and Cancello in the Naples area were bombed. Troop concentrations, transports and gun emplacements in the battle zone were hit. Four planes were lost, two of them in the eastern Mediterranean.

French troops, Corsican patriots, the Americans and many of the 40,000 Italians garrisoning the French island were inflicting particularly heavy losses on the Germans fleeing Corsica.

Troop Ships Aflame

Liberators set afire crowded German troop ships and smaller craft in the harbors of both Leghorn and Bastia, turning the Corsican port into a minor Dunkerque. One ship at Bastia was blown up. The Germans gave poor air cover to the troops fleeing the 75-mile seaway between Bastia and Leghorn and threw up but little flak over the ports. British and Canadian Wellington bombers followed up the day-light attacks on Bastia with night raids.

It was the first appearance of Liberators as part of the Northwest African Air force, and an official statement said:

"The B-24 Liberators will considerably augment the striking power of the Northwest African Air force, which already has a large number of heavy bombers."

said the communique, which read:

"In Corsica regular French troops and patriot detachments are continuing to harass the enemy, who is withdrawing from the Bonifacio-Porto Vecchio region toward the northeastern corner of the island.

"In the course of the last few days the Germans left more than 1,000 dead on the battlefield. Several hundreds of prisoners fell into our hands. In the Levie sector the Germans were obliged to withdraw with heavy losses after violent fighting.

"An American Commando unit is fighting by the side of patriots and regular French troops."

The Germans, meanwhile, were throwing a defensive ring around Naples, to retard Allied armies pressing onward from the Salerno bridgehead. They appeared to be burning and looting. Huge fires and demolitions scarred the port city.

A military spokesman said the enemy was establishing a strong defense line on the approaches to Naples from the south and east, but the extent of their demolitions in and near the city appeared evidence that the Germans hoped to hold back Allied attack toward the city from the Salerno area.

The Fifth Army, meanwhile, fought its way steadily east and northeast from Salerno with American troops capturing the towns of Campagna and Montecorvino-Rovella while the British chased fleeing Germans from the town of San Cipriano.

[In a broadcast picked up at New York today by CBS, the British radio quoted the United Nations radio at Algiers as saying that "a body of Italian troops are fighting the Germans fifty miles south of Turin." London also reported from Algiers that "thousands of Italians from Rome and southern Italy are flocking daily to the Allied lines," and quoted the Swedish newspaper Socialdemokraten as saying: The Germans are sending to Germany Italians who refuse to work in Italy, but thousands of men and boys have taken to the mountains to escape the deportation order."]

12,000 Germans on Corsica.

On Corsica French soldiers and native patrols pursued a German garrison estimated at 12,000 men toward the eastern shores while American Liberator bombers blasted at the principal avenue of German evacuation from the island—the Corsican harbor of Bastia and the Italian port of Leghorn.

Another menace to the Germans on the Italian mainland, Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's Eighth Army, drove northward and inland and occupied the key highway and rail center of Potenza. Occupation of Potenza, which is a junction point of five main roads, gave the Allies control of the entire inland highway and rail systems south of a line extending eastward from Salerno.

Fighting Hard in Places.

Front-line reports told how Fifth Army troops, steadily beating a path through the rugged mountain barrier north and northeast of Salerno, were encountering fierce enemy artillery and mortar fire.

To the east of Salerno, however, Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark's victorious troops met only small enemy rear-guard detachments, and the Germans there appeared British Capture Key Railroad Junction—Americans Take Three Towns in Fiercely Contested Drive.

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Sept. 22 (A. P.).—The French High Command said today an American unit is helping French forces drive the Germans toward the northeastern corner of Corsica, and already more than 1,000 of the enemy have been slain.

Several hundred German prisoners have been seized, depending primarily upon extensive mining and demolitions to hinder the American advance and to give their own troops the opportunity to withdraw.

First Phase Over.

A military spokesman, declaring "the first phase of the Salerno battle now is definitely over," added "we have inflicted upon the enemy heavy losses in personnel killed and captured and in equipment."

Many prisoners taken in attacks which already have wiped out the last vestiges of German lines to the east of the original beachhead were found to be non-German even though from enemy combat units. Ordinarily in the past, even in Tunisia, Poles, Czechs and other non-German Europeans who had been impressed into Hitler's armies were relegated to non-combat roles and the military spokesman drew the only possible inference: "It would appear to indicate a serious German man power shortage."

The spokesman reported fighting particularly stubborn in the hill areas north and northeast of Salerno in terrain which gave the enemy strong defensive advantages. At some points, he declared, all equipment for Allied troops must be manhandled up steep sides of mountains and through gorges because even tracked vehicles are unable to travel terrain "more difficult than anything we encountered in Tunisia or Sicily."

An Important Position.

Control of this mountain barrier would give Gen. Clark positions looking down on the broad lowlands leading directly into Naples. The frantic German demolitions showed the Germans were well aware of the fact.

Indications that the Germans found themselves unable to withdraw all their forces from danger spots in southern Italy came with the announcement that small British patrols pushing northward in the vicinity of Taranto killed fifty Germans, destroyed three armored cars and took a number of prisoners in sharp engagements.

The capture of Potenza brought to light one of the Italian campaign's boldest exploits by a small British patrol which stowed away on an Italian train and rode it northward to the very outskirts of that rail and road junction while it still was in enemy hands. The patrol hid in the hills directly overlooking the town and stayed there three or four days, sending back what the military spokesman called "very valuable information of every German activity in and around Potenza, all of which was instrumental in our capture of the town.

Heart of Italy.

Emphasizing the value of Potenza to the Eighth Army, the spokesman said the town "is like a man's heart so far as that part of Italy is concerned—it is the center of everything."

Capture of Campagna carried the American forces twenty miles inland from Salerno to a point about six miles northeast of Eboli, capture of which was announced yesterday. San Cipriano is about eight miles northeast of Salerno and Montecorvino is about twelve miles east of Salerno.

The Northwest African Air Force continued to smash at targets in the battle zone, at communications behind the enemy lines, and at harbor installations at Leghorn and Bastia, on the northern end of Corsica.

Operations in the Leghorn-Corsica area were patently in support of the French troops on the French island and were designed to prevent the Nazis from reinforcing the island garrison.

Light and medium bombers maintained almost ceaseless patrol over the Salerno battle area, the light craft pounding roads and enemy transport while the medium ships attacked troops concentration and gun positions.

There was no further information in Corsica. A French general headquarters communique last night disclosed that more than half of the big island was already in the hands of the French Army and Corsican patriots who led the revolt. The Germans, the bulletin said, had been driven into the coastal areas on the eastern side of the island with the French troops closing in rapidly.

Demidov Falls in Bitter Fighting as Reds Drive on White Russia.

NAZIS PUSHED TO KERCH

SEP 24 1943

Soviet Forces Seize Anapa, One of Last Remaining Crimean Exits for Foe.

LONDON, Thursday, Sept. 23—(AP) The Red army stormed down a railroad toward Kiev to capture the village of Lyeski, 18 miles from Russia's fourth largest city, Moscow announced today, as the towers of Kiev, high on the banks of the Dnieper river, loomed in Soviet gunsights.

Far to the north, in one of the bitterest battles of the summer, Soviet forces captured Demidov, 42 miles northwest of Smolensk and only 21 miles from the border of White Russia. Premier Stalin issued an order of the day to commemorate the victory, saying the German defenses fell Tuesday after a 48-hour fight.

The Germans launched 12 counter-attacks in their desperate attempt to hold Demidov, said the Moscow midnight communique, recorded by the Soviet monitor, but they could not hold out against the Soviet attack and one Nazi division was routed.

More than 8,000 Germans fell in the fight, 300 prisoners were taken and large quantities of war material were seized by the Russians, it was declared.

Nazi Battalion Wiped Out

In another area of this sector one German battalion was completely wiped out and another regiment routed, leaving 25 field guns and other material behind.

Other Soviet spearheads were last reported 18 miles from Smolensk, once Adolf Hitler's headquarters in the east, where the Germans appeared to be fighting as desperately as anywhere in Russia.

In general advances of 12 to 15 miles in some sectors, the Russians won back 864 hamlets and villages, moved within five miles of the middle Dnieper river at one point and peeled German protective layers from Dnepropetrovsk, Zaporzhe and Gomel.

Far to the south, the Nazis backed up to the Kerch strait in their last foothold in the Caucasus, already doomed by other Soviet gains. The communique announced the capture of Anapa, one of the last few evacuation ports to the Crimea.

In the Kuban fighting 1,200 Germans were killed, 200 captured, thousands of rounds of ammunition, 49 artillery guns and miles of telephone cable were taken before the Germans could destroy them.

Soviet planes wiped out two battalions of Germans and smashed 120 trucks and 15 German field guns.

Major Nazi Defense Center

Stalin's order of the day on the capture of Demidov, broadcast by Moscow radio and recorded by the Soviet monitor, called the town "oneof the strongest German defense centers."

The communique told of the capture of Berezan, 39 miles due east of the great city. Fifty miles southeast of Kiev, Red columns won the town of Pereyaslav, five miles from the Dnieper, and 85 miles to the south captured Zolotonosha, eight miles from the river.

Oster, 37 miles north of Kiev on the marshy shores of the Desna, was taken in a push that brought the Rusians nine to 12 miles nearer the Ukrainian capital.

Other Soviet forces were dashing for the Dnieper banks in the southern Ukraine, where Novo-Ukrainka, eight miles northeast of the river town of Zaporozhe, was captured.

Foe's Resistance Softer

German resistance was softer in the fight to reach Gomel, inside White Russia, south of Smolensk.

Advances of as much as 15 miles took more than 260 populated places including Starodub, 70 miles east of Gomel. Pochep, 110 miles east of Gomel on the railroad from Gomel to captured Bryansk, also was taken.

Of the Roslavl sector, between Gomel and Smolensk, the Soviet communique said only the advance continued two to three miles with the capture of 80 populated places. But Moscow dispatches said Roslaval was under immediate threat. With the capture of Liubovka the Russians were but five and a half miles from the city.

In the southern Ukraine, with the Russians only five miles from the Dnieper at one point, the next few days were expected to settle the question whether the Soviet summer offensive would be halted at the Dnieper river line.

If the Russians can cross the river and continue the victorious pace that has rolled back the Nazis from thousands of square miles of Russian territory and which has taken almost 5,000 hamlets and villages in the last five days, a new phase in the summer offensive, now in its third month, will begin.

In addition to reaching Pereyaskav, five miles from the river south of Kiev, the Russians were only 14 miles from the eastern bend at Dnepropetrovsk. Here Soviet troops advanced up to 12 miles to capture Novo-Moskovsk and 90 other villages. At Zaporozhe, to the south, they were eight miles from the river.

In the far south the Russians already were within three miles of the Crimean railroad at Melitopol, but military sources in London pointed out this did not cut off the Nazi escape from the Crimea. Since their occupation of the Crimean peninsula the Germans have completed a second single track railroad line across the Perekop land bridge northwest to Kherson.

Kuban Bridgehead Collapsing

But the Kuban bridgehead definitely was at the liquidation stage, with the Germans expected soon to move their forces back to the Crimea. A Berlin broadcast admitted the evacuation of Anapa a few hours before the Russian announcement of its capture.

Other German broadcast took a gloomy view of the Russian fighting, announcing that "exceedingly heavy fighting on the eastern front underwent no weakening of the centers of gravity x x x. German troops stood up to the furious onslought of the Russians in a struggle which often demanded their last ounce of strength."

FOE REELS BACK ON DNIEPER

Cossacks Water Their Horses in River on the Southern End of Line.

SEP 23 1943

London, Sept. 22 (A. P.).—The gilt church domes of Kiev, glistening in brilliant sunshine, now are visible to Soviet troops through crystal clear autumn weather, dispatches from Moscow said today. Thus the Red Army had another goal of its great summer offensive in sight, the capital of the rich Ukraine.

Meanwhile the German Information Bureau said in a Berlin broadcast today that the Germans had evacuated the harbor of Anapa, tiny Kuban port on the Black Sea. Anapa is about twenty-five miles northwest of Novorossisk, which already has fallen to the Russians.

Tonight the Russians announced the capture of Anapa, one of the last few evacuation ports for the Germans on the Kuban Peninsula, and declared that their armies had swept forward along the entire Dnieper River front, capturing the town of Pereyaslav in the Kiev region only five miles from the Dnieper. Further south at the Great Bend of the Dnieper, they announced, they also captured Novo-Ukrainka, just eight miles from Zaporzhe, key railway center for the southern front.

Nazis Badly Mauled.

The communique, broadcast by the Moscow radio and recorded by the Soviet monitor here, also listed the capture of Yantsevo, nine miles northeast of Zaporzhe. In the Smolensk sector, the encirclement of that northern anchor of the Dnieper front tightened with the capture of Demidov, forty miles northwest of Smolensk, the statement continued. The Russians were apparently driving south behind the Nazi bastion from Velizh, captured a few days ago.

[The British radio declared today, in a broadcast picked up at New York by CBS, that a Berlin spokesman admitted to foreign correspondents that "the German retreat in Russia has taken on the proportions of a large-scale operation," because of "the power of the Russian assaults, the lack of German reserves and the Allied landing in Italy." In their drive for Smolensk, London continued, the Russians are developing a vast pincer movement and are driving a huge wedge between Smolensk and Velizh, to the northwest.]

Dangerously weakened by the incessant hammer blows of Russian artillery, tanks, infantry and planes, the once invincible German legions apparently were being broken up into isolated units and nowhere, according to the latest Moscow war bulletin, were they able to halt the surging Red Army tide.

The last formidable barrier before the Dnieper on the central front was battered down yesterday when a savage Soviet drive slashed across the Desna River line between Bryansk and Kiev. With the capture of Chernigov, most important German base on the lower reaches of this river, the way was open for Red Army forces to strike directly at Kiev and Gomel. The latter, eighty miles northwest of Chernigov, is the gateway to White Russia.

Thirty Miles From Dnieper.

At Chernigov, the Russians were thirty miles from the Dnieper, twenty-five miles from the southern border of White Russia, while the old Polish border was less than 160 miles to the west. Stalingrad, high water mark of the German advance, is more than 600 miles southeast of Chernigov.

In their drive to push the invaders from Russian soil, the Red Army spearheads were within eighteen miles of Smolensk, which was slowly being flanked on the north and south.

Kiev, the great German bastion on the central sector of the long front, was menaced by Soviet thrusts from three directions.

In the south, Red artillery was shelling Melitopol, on the Crimean Railway, from emplacements three miles away. Front dispatches said that on the lower stretches of the Dnieper, Cossack patrols were so close at some points that they were breaking through at night to water their horses in the river.

SIX PEACE POINTS, EDEN DISCLOSES

Objectives of Strange, Secret Diplomatic Mission Told in Commons.

By WILLIAM SMITH WHITE

LONDON, Sept. 22.—(AP) Rudolf Hess, Germany's former deputy Fuehrer sitting now in dejected obscurity in Britain as a prisoner of war, brought with him six specific proposals for peace on his weird flight to Scotland on May 10, 1941.

He proclaimed that Hitler wanted "to stop fighting," but was prepared to smash Britain and put her in perpetual bondage unless she took the opportunity of calling off the war.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told the story in Commons today in a government statement after two years of official silence.

The peace proposals formed the central disclosure of the story of the strangest diplomatic mission in history—a one-man mission that descended in a parachute from the skies to a Scottish farm and was met, not by gold braid and striped pants, but by a popeyed plowman with a pitchfork.

Victory Hopes Gone in 1941

The facts of the case indicated that high German leadership—perhaps even Hitler himself, although Hess disclaimed that he was acting with the Fuehrer's knowledge—by May 10, 1941, had given up hope of defeating the British people.

And at that time Britain had recovered only slightly from her lowest depths of the war. Battered London that night received her greatest pounding from Germany's bombing fleet.

Then Hess was third man in the most powerful military organization in the world. Now in captivity he sits writing verse and occasionally demands that his orderly first taste his food lest he be poisoned.

Mr. Eden's story disclosed that from first to last Hess' journey was one of almost fantastic ineptness, and that he had tried three times before to fly to Scotland, the first time in December, 1940, "but had been turned back by weather or various other reasons."

It revealed also for the first time why Hess sought out the Duke of Hamilton, a young and thoroughly patriotic R.A.F. wing commander, but a man of no political importance in Britain. Hess told the Duke that his friend, Dr. Karl Haushofer, German geopolitical theorist who is believed to have greatly influenced Hitler's ideas, had told him (Hess) that the Duke was "an Englishman who would understand his point of view."

Commended for Loyalty

The Duke of Hamilton since has been commended officially for his loyalty to Britain.

Giving his "word of honor" that Hitler had never entertained any designs against the British empire, that he would "sincerely regret" its collapse, and that he did not aspire to world domination, Hess proposed these six peace points:

1. Germany should have a free hand in Europe.

2. England should have a free hand in the British Empire; ex-German colonies should return to Germany.

3. Russia should be included in Asia, but Germany had "certain demands" to make of her which would have to be settled either by negotiation or war. It was not true that Hitler planned an early attack on Russia. (He attacked Russia the following month.)

4. The British should evacuate Iraq.

5. The peace agreement must contain provision for reciprocal indemnification of British and German nationals whose property had been expropriated as the result of the war.

6. The proposal could be considered only if it were negotiated by a different British government from the present one, because "Churchill, who had planned the war since 1936 and his colleagues who had lent themselves to his war policy, were not persons with whom the Fuehrer would negotiate."

in an official Government statement after two years of silence, during which Hitler was allowed to worry over what his deputy might be telling the British.

(Hess was No. 2 in the Nazi party but placed by Hitler below Goering in the Government.)

The official account, made available to the House of Commons today by Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, revealed very few facts that had not leaked out at least in outline to the public. It did, however, contain a specific list of six peace terms, one of which stipulated Hitler's refusal to negotiate with Prime Minister Churchill, who was accused of planning the war since 1936.

What Germany wanted from Britain, Hess said, was a free hand in Europe and especially with Russia, but the forebodings of a long war, for which Germany was ill-prepared, were seen in Hess's statement.

On his arrival in Scotland in May, 1941, Hess told the Duke of Hamilton that "Der Fuehrer does not want to defeat England and wants to stop fighting." He said he made the flight without the knowledge of Hitler, a fact that had been suggested by the confusion of German propagandists in dealing with the situation when Hess's arrival was announced by the British.

The official statement said nothing about Hess's present whereabouts or his state of health, but it concluded: "Hess has been dealt with as a prisoner of war since his arrival in this country and will so continue to be treated until the end of the war."

Said Hitler Didn't Know.

Hess insisted that he came to Britain without Hitler's knowledge.

He told Hamilton, who interviewed him on May 11, 1941, at Maryhill Barracks, that he had come to Britain on a "mission of humanity." Hamilton, who was a wing commander in the R. A. F. and did not recall having met Hess before, flew to London and reported the conversation.

Hamilton told the authorities he believed the prisoner was Hess. This fact was confirmed by I. A. Kirkpatrick of the Foreign Office, who had known Hess and who talked to him on May 13, 14 and 15.

Hess's aim was to convince responsible British persons that England could not win and its ever of any negotiations with Hitler or his government.

In the official account of the sensational flight, the Government related:

Before he reached Scotland in 1941, Hess told the Duke of Hamilton, he tried to arrange a meeting in Lisbon and three times previously attempted to fly to Dungavel, Scotland, near the Duke's home. Hess said he met the Duke at the 1936 Olympic games in Berlin.

The first time he attempted a flight was in December, 1940, but he was turned back by the weather and other factors.

He did not want to come at the time of British successes in Libya, he told the Duke after he was incarcerated at Maryhill Barracks, lest it appear a sign of weakness on the part of Germany. He waited until German was again gaining successes—that is, in the Balkans

Second, England should have a free hand in the British Empire, except that former German colonies should be returned to Germany.

Third, Russia should be included in Asia, but Germany had certain demands to make on Russia which would have to be satisfied either by negotiation or by war. There was no truth in rumors that Hitler planned an early attack on Russia. (Germany attacked the following month, in June.)

Fourth, that the British should evacuate Irak.

Fifth, a peace agreement would have to contain a provision for reciprocal indemnification of British and German nationals whose property was destroyed by war.

Sixth, Hitler would not negotiate peace with Winston Churchill and his colleagues, who he said planned war since 1936, but only with a new British Government.

Hess emphasized that Hitler wanted a permanent understanding with Britain on the basis that she retain the empire intact. He pictured his flight as intended to give Britain a chance to open conversations without loss of prestige.

Warning to Franco Revealed.

Mr. Eden also disclosed to the Commons today that Sir Samuel Hoare, British Ambassador to Spain, had warned Generalissimo Franco that the presence of the Spanish Blue Division on the Russian front was a "serious obstacle to the development of cordial Anglo-Spanish relations."

"The Spanish Government have undertaken to look into the complaint," Mr. Eden added, "and we look to them for an early improvement in the situation."

The statement was taken as foreshadowing the possibility that the Communist-hating Franco regime might withdraw its forces now fighting against Russia from the eastern front.

Ranging over a wide field of foreign relations questions connected with Allied military progress, Mr. Eden reported that Sir Samuel, on the eve of his departure from Spain for London, had drawn to Franco's attention the complaints which the British Government had made of Spanish discrimination against British interests. Mr. Eden reported that "some of the complaints had been remedied" before this conference and that "things" are "better than they were with Spain."

Meanwhile, he said, the Government is constantly reviewing the situation in Tangier, where the Spaniards unilaterally took control of the international zone in 1940, and takes a "serious view" of the use being made of the zone by German agents.

Agreement Made With Russia.

Mr. Eden announced that the British and Soviet governments had decided jointly not to make any post-war agreements with any of their European allies "for the present." He said that the decision had been reached last year when Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov was visiting in London. Mr. Eden added he intends to discuss the matter further with the Soviet Foreign Minister at the forthcoming tripartite conference.

A member questioned Mr. Eden about the proposed trip of President Eduard Benes of Czecho-Slovakia to Moscow for the purpose of concluding an agreement with Russia. Mr. Eden declared that Dr. Benes had been informed that the "British Government understood that both governments held the view that it was preferable for neither of them to conclude any such agreement for the present." He said that Russia had also been informed and that Dr. Benes's trip had been postponed.

boy, also visiting cards of Dr. Karl Haushofer and Dr. Albrecht Haushofer, his son. No other documents or identifications were found on the prisoner.

On Sunday, May 11, at 10 A. M., Wing Commander the Duke of Hamilton arrived at Maryhill Barracks and visited the prisoner, with the interrogating officer and military officer on guard.

At the prisoner's request the latter two officers withdrew. He then stated to the wing commander that the latter had lunched in his house in Berlin at the time of the Olympic Games in 1936, and added, "I am Rudolf Hess."

The wing commander had no recollection of the prisoner and was not aware that he had ever seen or met Rudolf Hess.

Made Humanity Plea

The prisoner then proceeded: "I am on a mission of humanity. The Fuehrer does not want to defeat England and wants to stop fighting."

His friend Haushofer, he stated, had told im that the wing commander was an Englishman who would understand his point of view. He had tried tc arrange a meeting in Lisbon. He had three times before tried to fly to Dungavel, the first time being December, 1940, but had been turned back by weather or various other reasons.

He did not want to come during the time of British successes in Libya lest it should appear that it was the weakness of Germany which ompted his flight, but that Germany had had some success there (Libya) he was glad to come.

He stressed that his presence showed his sincerity and German willingness for peace.

His main theme was that Hitler was convinced Germany would win sooner or later and that he (the prisoner) wanted to stop unnecessary slaughter.

He asked the wing commander to get together leading members of his party to talk over things with a view to making peace proposals.

He then stated that he could tell him what the Fuehrer's peace terms would be.

The wing commander pointed out that there was now only one party in Great Britain.

The wing commander immediately flew to London and reported this conversation, stating that

Hess Offered Britain 'Peace' or Destruction

F. L. DANIELL

London, Sept. 22 (A. P.).—The full story of Rudolf Hess's flight to Great Britain disclosed today that more than two years ago, when Britain still was near its lowest depths in this war, the third in command of the Nazis declared that Adolf Hitler wanted to call off the fight without making any "oppressive demands" on Britain.

The story of the No. 3 Nazi's fantastic flight "on a mission of humanity" to Scotland was told Alternative Was Enslavement.

If the peace terms offered by Germany were rejected, Hess told officials, Hitler expected to destroy Britain utterly and keep the country in a state of permanent subjection. He later restated the terms in writing, adding a provision for a simultaneous peace with Italy.

Throughout the conversation with Hess, the Government said, it was made clear to him that there was no question whatsowisest course was to make an immediate peace.

Hess's 'Peace Plan.'

Hess stressed Germany's power in the air and in U-boats and averred that Britain would be beaten by a blockade at least within two or three years. He expressed horror at a prolongation of the struggle. He gave his "word of honor" that Hitler never intended to wreck the British Empire or dominate the world.

Hess's "peace plan" was this:

First, Germany should be given a free hand in Europe.

Text of Statement by Eden on Hess

LONDON, Sept. 22 (AP)—Following is the text of the Government's official statement on Rudolf Hess:

Hess flew to Great Britain in an ME-110, from which he landed by parachute in the evening of May 10, 1941, at Eaglesham in Scotland.

He was wearing the uniform of a captain of the German air force. He gave his name as Alfred Horn and stated to the home guard and police that he was on a "special mission" to see the Duke of Hamilton, and that he had intended to land at Dungavel, twelve miles distant from the spot where he landed.

The prisoner was taken to Maryhill Barracks, and among his possessions were found photographs of himself and of a small though he could not be sure he believed the prisoner was in fact Rudolf Hess.

Identified by Foreign Office

Mr. [I. A.] Kirkpatrick of the Foreign Office, who had during the period of his official duties in Berlin before the war become acquainted with Hess, was at once flown up to Scotland to identify the prisoner. He had three interviews, on May 13, 14 and 15. At the first of these he confirmed that the prisoner was Rudolf Hess.

During these interviews Hess further elaborated the object of his visit. He stressed the enormous power of Germany in the air and in U-boats, which later, he stated, would grow much greater. He affirmed the certainty of England's defeat by blockade, if not very quickly, in the course of two or three years.

He expressed his horror at the prospect of prolongation of the struggle. He had come, he said, without the knowledge of the Fuehrer, to convince the responsible persons that since England could not win, the wisest course was to make peace at once.

He gave his word of honor that the Fuehrer had never entertained any designs against the British Empire, nor had he ever aspired to world domination. The Fuehrer would sincerely regret the collapse of the British Empire. Hitler had declared to him as recently as May 3 that he had no oppressive demands to make on England.

The solution Hess put forward was as follows:

1. That Germany should be given a free hand in Europe.

2. That England should have a free hand in the British Empire, except that former German colonies should return to Germany.

3. That Russia should be included in Asia, but that Germany had certain demands to make of Russia which would have to be satisfied either by negotiation or as result of war. There was, however, no truth in rumors that the Fuehrer contemplated an early attack on Russia.

Objected to Churchill Government

4. That the British should evacuate Iraq.

5. The peace agreement would have to contain a provision for reciprocal indemnification of British and German nationals whose property had been expropriated as a result of the war.

6. The proposal could only be considered on the understanding that it was negotiated by Germany with an English Government other than the present British Government. Mr. Churchill, who had planned the war since 1936, and his colleagues who had lent themselves to his war policy were not persons with whom the Fuehrer would negotiate.

Hess concluded by emphasizing that the Fuehrer really wanted a permanent understanding with Great Britain on a basis which would preserve the British Empire intact. His own flight was intended to give Great Britain a chance of opening conversations without loss of prestige.

If this chance were to be rejected it would be the Fuehrer's duty to destroy Great Britain utterly and to keep the country after war in a state of permanent subjection.

These so-called "terms" were restated by Hess in a signed document dated June 10. The only new point made in this document was a provision that a simultaneous armistice and peace must be concluded with Italy.

It was throughout made clear to Hess that there was no question whatever of any talks or negotiations of any kind taking place with Hitler or his Government.

Hess has been dealt with as a prisoner of war since his arrival in this country and will so continue to be treated till the end of the war.

Close British-Soviet Link Urged By Eden In Commons

Allies Have Chance to Reach Lasting Understanding, He Declares.

LONDON, Sept. 22—(AP) Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden said today that within the next few months Britain, the United States and Russia would have an opportunity to reach a lasting understanding of such a nature that "even the horrors of this war will not have been in vain."

The Foreign secretary covered a wide field in carrying the House of Commons war debate into the second day with the same frankness which characterized Prime Minister Churchill's opening address Tuesday.

He rebuked critics of Britain's dealings with Russia and declared that confidence could not be created by one side alone. He repudiated any allegations that AMG —the Allied Military Government for Occupied Territory—had maintained Fascist officials in office.

He said that Britain did not intend to annex Sicily and he said that the sooner that island could be turned over to an Italian administration the better.

Benes Trip Off

Questioned by a member about the proposed journey of President Eduard Benes of the Czecho-Slovkian government-in-exile to Moscow for the signing of a treaty of alliance, Mr. Eden said the trip had been called off.

The Foreign secretary explained President Benes had been informed the "British government understood that both governments held the view that it was preferable for neither of them to conclude any such agreement for the present." He said Russia had been informed.

In making this disclosure, Mr. Eden said Britain and Russia have decided jointly not to make any post-war agreements with any of their European allies for the present.

Mr. Eden said he wanted to see in Italy itself a government "as broadly based as possible including all elements and all parties which were not Fascist in character."

Self-Rule Favored

In friendly Allied territory, he said, "it is our intention at the very earliest possible moment after landing that the administration shall be turned to the friendly liberated country with whom we are in relation or to some authority representing that country."

Mr. Eden voiced great optimism about the forthcoming tripartite conferences and was especially caustic in replying to critics of the government's dealings with Russia.

"Members have urged upon us that we should seek the closest collaboration with the Soviet government," he said.

"I agree absolutely and entirely. That is our policy and we shall persist in it x x x," he said, adding:

No Reproach

"x x x I have surveyed as honestly and impartially as I can the work that we have sought to do with the Soviet government since the treaty (Anglo-Soviet) was signed last year, and I can honestly say that we do not feel that we have anything to reproach ourselves with in our efforts to give effect to that treaty.

"If there has not been as many personal exchanges by the leading persons of the two governments as we would like, it is fair to say that we have made more than our share of efforts to meet our Allies. It is with this spirit that we shall approach our problems in the future."

The Foreign secretary declared that if the two countries were to understand one another "we must be frank with one another" and he aded "there is too much history of past misunderstanding to pretend that differences do not exist if in fact they do exist."

'Some times our Russian friends say to us, and frequently," he continued, "that we do not understand their point of view.

Forcible Exposition

"On these occasions they express themselves clearly, even forcibly. I make no complaint about that. but there are occasions also when we feel that they do not understand our point of view and I believe it to be in the ultimate interests of our good relations that we should speak out on these occasions."

BRITISH INVASION SET FOR SEPT., 1940

Germans Had 2,500 Barges Ready—RAF, Outnumbered 4 To 1, Blocked It

[By the Associated Press]

London, Thursday, Sept. 23—The Germans definitely planned the first aerial assault on London three years ago this month to set off the invasion of Britain.

The RAF, which had the major task of breaking up the attack, was outnumbered more than four-to-one by the German air force's 3,450 planes.

Now, as England is marking the third anniversary of the epochal battle of Britain, it is possible for the first time to divulge some behind-the-scenes facts of the struggle which could only be chronicled broadly at the time.

2,500 Barges Massed

The Germans were always known to have planned to invade England eventually, but it never previously was disclosed how imminent the invasion was or what a close margin it was thwarted.

The invasion—for which 2,500 barges were massed a ports across the English Channel and in the North Sea during the attack on London—was to have been the climax of a five-week program culminating in mid-September.

The planned preliminary steps were to have been the knocking out of the RAF and then the bombing of London to shatter the will and ability to resist the invasion.

If the invasion had been launched in June, 1940, right after the collapse of France, it might have succeeded. Here is how desperate Britain's air situation was:

After Dunkerque, the RAF had only three squadrons that hadn't been in action on the Continent. It was using squadrons of Defiants, with the World War I gunner-behind-the-pilot arrangement, and a squadron of obsolete Gladiator bi-planes. The fighter command had to borrow pilots from the coastal and bomber commands, and even from the fleet air arm. RAF flying fields were being guarded with 20-mm. cannon, awaiting installation in planes.

The force that battled back 400 German planes on September 15, 1940, and 850 on September 27 amounted to only 29 squadrons—less than 350 planes — some of which fought three times in a day.

Nazis' Sequence Of Mistakes

The RAF's big assets, besides courage, were a radio location system, an unsurpassed operational system, and the German's sequence of mistakes. Here is how the experts summarized it for the first time today:

The Germans counted on dive-bombing, but the evasive tactics which saved the Stukas in Spain didn't work in Britain. Against attack, their bombers didn't have enough armor. The failure forced the Germans into high-level, daylight, pattern bombing in which they didn't believe and which proved too vulnerable to disruption.

Germans Shifted Places

This indicates why the British originally were bearish about the American Flying Fortress and Liberator high-altitude, daylight precision bombing, which subsequently proved not to have the same weaknesses.

The rigid five-week invasion schedule, geared to the tides and the weather, forced the Germans to stop bombing the coast just when it was having some effect. They then went after the airfields, and again left them just when they were making some inroads to go after London.

Vital railroad communications to the capital were just beginning to sustain heavy damage when the Germans shifted to scatter-bombing. They hoped in this way to demolish the city, arouse the people against the Government and classes against each other, and provoke a demand for reprisal bombing of Berlin, which would divert the RAF.

Actually, scatter-bombing on the scale they employed (before the winter night Blitz) would have taken years to destroy a city such as London.

Blitz Brought British Unity

By subjecting all groups of citizens to the same hazards, the Nazis actually brought all classes together solidly behind the Government, and the natural clamor for bombing Berlin was wisely ignored by the RAF.

The big day of September 15, 1940, when of an attacking force of 400 German planes 185 were shot down with a loss of only 25 British planes and 11 pilots, was considered especially significant with regard to the United States. Just after that, an American military mission returned from England with an optimistic report which was believed to have done much to influence American opinion of Britain's chances.

The day the RAF repelled the Nazis' second big attack with 850 planes on September 27, the Germans signed a ten-year pact with Italy and Japan, indicating she had abandoned all hope of invading England and was settling down to a long war.

Balkan Invasion Seen This Year With Blow Over Channel in '44

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 22.—An Allied invasion of the Balkans this year, followed by a full-scale assault on Western Europe next spring, now seems probable in the light of Prime Minister Churchill's war review in Commons yesterday and developments on the fighting fronts.

Despite a vast improvement in the Allied shipping position and Gen. George C. Marshall's assertion in Omaha that American military forces are ready to carry the attack to the enemy with "power and force," there is a general feeling in London that a front in Western Europe cannot be opened before next year unless the German Army suddenly cracks wide open.

On the other hand, an official announcement in Cairo that Allied forces had occupied the Aegean islands of Coo (Cos), Lero and Samos strengthened a growing belief here that a thrust into the Balkans is imminent.

Air Strength Stirs Interest.

London newspapers conjectured that such an offensive might be launched simultaneously from Eastern Italy—where Mr. Churchill said he does not expect more than a delaying battle by the Germans—and from the newly-acquired Aegean bases.

Without exception London morning papers voiced their approval of the Prime Minister's long address to Commons, which made it plain that the Allies intend to strike in Western Europe when they believe the time is ripe—and not before.

Considerable interest was aroused by his statement that the RAF alone is maintaining in action nearly 50 per cent more first-line aircraft than Germany, which came as the first official indication of current British air strength.

The German air force is estimated to have about 5,000 first-line planes, of which 2,000 are in Western Europe and Germany.

Called Best Review.

Editorial writers were almost unanimous in declaring Mr. Churchill's war review the best he has delivered, and commented on its optimistic tone, but all emphasized his warning that "the bloodiest tasks lie ahead."

The News Chronicle described the Prime Minister's address as "the most encouraging survey of events he has yet given to Parliament," while the Daily Express referred to it as "Churchill's most optimistic speech since he took office."

Said the Daily Telegraph: "The sweep and scope of the story captivated the House of Commons. It would have taken a cast iron critic to withstand such good news."

COMMAND DEFINED FOR MOUNTBATTEN

ya and Burma, Reuters Far Eastern affairs writers said tonight, quoting advices from India.

"Sea represents a far larger proportion of Mountbatten's new command than does land," the writer said.

"His command extends over French Indo-China, Siam, (Thailand) Malaya, Sumatra and Burma, and at sea ranges over the Bay of Bengal, the Indian Ocean and the Arabian Sea.

"The sea regions of the command extend from the southeastern coast of Sumatra (excluding the Sunda straits between Sumatra and Java), south along a meridian which entirely excludes Australia and takes in the Bay of Bengal, the Indian Ocean and the Arabian Sea to a western boundary which cuts the Persian coast some 140 miles east of Jask and just misses the easternmost tip of Arabia.

"It runs south down to Albatross island northeast of Mauritius and thence southeastwards, avoiding Rodriguez island.

"Thus, the Madagascar-Reunion-Mauritius group is excluded from the command."

The span across the Indian Ocean from Madagascar's east coast to the east coast of Sumatra is nearly 5,000 air miles wide.

JAPS LAYING PLANS TO GET OUT OF TOKIO

Vast Evacuation Program Is Announced as War Nears New Phase.

ALL HOLIDAYS ARE CANCELED

Enemy Radio Appeals to Nation in One of the Gloomiest Broadcasts to Date.

London, Sept. 22 (A. P.)—The Japanese Government has decided to prepare "for the moving of Government departments, industrial establishments and the civilian population from Tokio as well as other important cities in the interest of improving their defense," the Tokio radio said today.

The broadcast listed a number of drastic measures, including total mobilization of the civilian population and the abolition of age limits to make all persons liable for national service, which it said were announced today by Premier Hideki Tojo and the Government information office "in view of the decisive phase which the war will enter during the coming months."

In addition, the Government announced measures to increase the anti-aircraft defense forces, especially the "air protection in industrial regions"; to provide for the protection of Government buildings and factories in Tokio and other big cities; to strengthen Government control over all industry, and to centralize all traffic on land and water.

In one of the gloomiest broadcasts ever to come from the Japanese capital, the announcement declared:

"The Japanese nation in all its classes and professions must fully understand the seriousness of the present internal and external situation, and must be inspired by an unbending will to victory. The nation's entire strength must be concentrated on the strengthening of the Japanese air force.

"Strict self-sufficiency of Japan and Manchoukuo as regards food supply must under all circumstances be assured.

"Plans for a thorough-going consolidation of the defenses of the Japanese motherland must be drawn up without delay."

The broadcast said that all holidays have been canceled, and that government machinery and industry would be greatly simplified with the cancellation of all administrative activity "deemed unnecessary for the conduct of the war." The mobilization of students would no longer be deferred, the broadcast continued, and the "employment of woman labor will be extended."

JAPS PREPARING TO QUIT KEY CITIES, SAYS TOKYO RADIO

SEP 23 1943

Government Departments to Be Shifted; Other Defensive Steps Taken.

LONDON, Sept. 22—(AP) Japan is getting ready to evacuate Tokyo and other important cities "in view of the decisive phase upon which the war will enter during the coming months," the Tokyo radio said today.

Gloomily forecasting new aerial blows against the Japanese homeland, the broadcast said Premier Hideki Tojo announced that the Japanese government had decided to prepare "for the moving of government departments, industrial establishments and the civilian population" from Japan's major cities "in the interest of improving their defense."

Special emphasis was laid on anti-aircraft defenses particularly the "air protection in industrial areas."

Tojo warned the Japanese people that a "time of emergency" was at hand and declared that far-reaching measures were required to strengthen the empire's home front "in view of the serious war situation."

Several Factors Prompted Move

Stinging Japanese defeats in the Aleutians, the Solomon islands and New Guinea, coupled with a serious depletion of Japan's air power and shipping, were believed to have prompted the series of drastic measures.

Aside from the evacuation of Japanese cities, the program approved by the Tojo cabinet in an all-day session yesterday called for:

1—Total mobilization of the civilian population.

2—Abolishment of age limits to make all persons liable for national service. Mobilization of students will no longer be deferred and the "employment of woman labor will be extended."

3—Strengthening of government control over all industry.

4—"Strict self-sufficiency of Japan and Manchukuo as regards food must under all circumstances be assured." (This apparently was a reference to Japan's shortage of shipping.)

5—Centralization of traffic on land and water.

Concentrate on Arms

6—"The nation's entire strength must be concentrated on the armaments industry, especially on the strengthening of the Japanese Air force."

7—"Plans for a thorough-going consolidation of defenses of the Japanese motherland must be drawn up without delay." (This seemed to indicate fears of an actual invasion of Japan itself.)

8—Cancellation of all holidays.

9—Simplification of all government machinery and industry and cancellation of all administrative activity "deemed unnecessary for the conduct of the war."

"The Japanese nation in all its classes and professions must fully understand the seriousness of the present internal and external situation and must be inspired by an unbending will to victory," the announcement said.

DAYLIGHT RAIDERS ATTACKING EUROPE

London, Sept. 22 (A. P.).—Two big formations of Allied planes roared out over the Strait of Dover early today to attack objectives on the continent in a continuation of the daylight air offensive.

The last large-scale raids were last Thursday when Flying Fortresses hit Nantes and R. A. F. night bombers struck at the Modane Alpine tunnel. American Marauders have borne the brunt of the aerial warfare of the last three days out of four, raining destruction on German air bases.

German air raiders scattered a few bombs over East Anglia and southeast England last night, causing some damage and casualties, the Ministry of Home Security announced today, but the raids were not on a large scale. Slight enemy activity also was reported over northeastern and eastern England, but no bombs fell in those areas.

Two enemy planes were destroyed over Britain during the night, it was announced.

Marauders Hit Deep In France At German Airfield

SEP 23 1943

London, Sept. 22 (AP)—United States Eighth Air Force Marauder bombers made their deepest penetration of Europe today, striking the German airfield at Evereaux-Fauville, forty-five miles west of Paris.

Hundreds of American Thunderbolts hit targets in other parts of France and in Belgium and Holland. RAF and Canadian airmen attacked the Nazi airfield at Brest.

Eleven Nazi planes were reported shot down and Allied losses on all of the missions were two fighter planes.

The Berlin radio said that strong forces of British bombers had raided northern and northwestern German towns early this morning, but there were no Allied reports that bombers were out at that time.

MARAUDERS LASH FRENCH AIRBASE

SEP 23 1943

Making Deepest Penetration, Bombers Raid Field in Paris Area.

LONDON, Sept. 22—(AP) U. S. Eighth Air Force Marauder bombers made their deepest penetration of Hitler's Europe today, striking the German airfield at Evereaux-Fauville, 45 miles west of Paris, during Allied forays across France, Belgium and the Netherlands.

The Berlin radio said in a broadcast heard by the Associated Press that strong forces of British bombers had raided northern and northwestern German towns early this morning.

There were no Allied reports that bombers were out at that time. Berlin, which often mentions "nuisance raids" never announced in London, said; "enemy bombers penetrated northern Reich territory in several waves. Apparently Berlin was to be the target but this attempt failed completely. In many cases diverted enemy bomber formations released bombs over residential localities in northwest Germany."

The late hour of the Berlin report suggested here that this possibly was a new German propaganda technique in an attempt to impress the German home front in the matter of defenses.

64th Marauder Raid

The Evereaux-Fauville action was the 64th raid of the Marauders, medium explosive carriers, in slightly more than two months.

In a puny retaliatory raid tonight a few German planes dropped incendiaries over a northeast England coast town. The bombs all fell in fields near a farm and were extinguished before causing any damage.

Hundreds of American Thunderbolts hit targets in other parts of France and in Belgium and Holland.

R.A.F. and Canadian airmen attacked the Nazi airfield at Brest on the Bay of Biscay.

The Germans sent up a flock of fighters in an attempt to ward off the Allied blows and eleven Nazi planes were reported shot down—eight by Spitfires escorting the Marauders, one by the Marauders and two by Thunderbolts. Allied losses on all of the missions were two fighter planes.

All of the Marauders returned safely, keeping their remarkable record down to 12 losses in 74 raids.

Commenting on the number of German fighters sighted, a briefing officer said the Nazis "are touchy about having anyone flying toward Paris."

Marauder crews reported seeing some of the hottest dogfights they had yet encountered—even some of Air Marshal Hermann Goering's pet yellow-nosed Focke Wulf-190s being engaged.

NAZIS FAIL TO REPAIR MANY BLASTED PLANTS

LONDON, Sept. 22.—(AP) No attempt has been made to repair the damage done to large number of high-priority targets in Germany by the Allied aerial pounding, a Ministry of Economic Warfare official said today.

Despite the high priority that has been given to the construction of locomotives and rolling stock, the official added, reports to the ministry showed the Germans were still behind schedule and production has not been adequate to keep pace with losses.

Nazis Training Troops in Norway

LONDON, Sept. 22 (AP).—Norwegian intelligence officers, piecing together reports from their homeland, concluded today that the Germans, instead of pulling out of Norway, are using the country as a training ground for ten divisions always maintained there and are working at a faster pace than ever in building defenses.

London, Sept. 22 (A. P.).—The Berlin radio reported today that German submarines had sunk three Allied destroyers and two other ships in the Mediterranean, but failed to say when.

Nazis Report Slaying Of Official in Minsk

30.2f 8687

London, Sept. 22 (A. P.).—The Berlin radio reported today that Wilhelm Kube, commissioner general for "White Ruthenia," had been assassinated last night in Minsk.

Maps fail to show "White Ruthenia" and it was assumed here the Germans were using the phrase to refer to White Russia, of which Minsk is the capital.

Allies Said to Have 10 Divisions

LONDON, Sept. 22 (AP)—The Berlin radio said today that the Allied forces in the Salerno area had been expanded in strength to ten divisions with the arrival of three new divisions, including the Eighty-second United States Airborne and the Third United States Infantry Divisions.

Red Envoy Reported Named To French Unit

London, Sept. 22 (AP)—Soviet Russia has appointed high-ranking Adrei J. Vishinsky, Vice-Commissar of Foreign Affairs, as envoy plenipotentiary to the French national committee at Algiers, an authority said today.

The Russian Embassy withheld comment pending any official announcement from Moscow but a British official said it was understood Vishinsky's task specifically was with the Mediterranean Allied Commission.

Appointment of a Soviet envoy to the French committee would mean the Russians have stolen a diplomatic march on Britain and the United States which thus far have accorded the committee only limited recognition.

ITALIAN PATRIOTS FREE U.S., BRITISH PRISONERS

LONDON, Sept. 22.—(AP) The Morocco radio, in a broadcast recorded tonight by the Associated Press, said 20,000 American and British prisoners had been liberated by the Italians and have joined Italian patriots despite Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's offer of 1,800 lire reward for each prisoner handed over to the Germans.

The Morocco broadcast added that recently 3,000 American and British prisoners had crossed into

Escape Into a Joke

LONDON, Sept. 22 (AP).—Prime Minister Churchill was in fine form in the House of Commons today and turned what was intended as a serious question about the kidnaping of Benito Mussolini into a joke.

Asked if he knew any more than was disclosed in his speech yesterday about why the Italian guards failed in their instruction to shoot the former Fascist dictator when he escaped, the Prime Minister replied, "I was not there at the time."

Amid laughter, he added with a smile, "perhaps it's lucky for him."

Churchill Declines Comment.

London, Sept. 22 (A. P.).—Prime Minister Winston Churchill declined to comment in the House of Commons today on reports from Washington that Gen. George C. Marshall had been nominated as global Commander in Chief of the Allied offensive forces.

"No, sir," was the Prime Minister's reply when Major Charles Taylor asked him if he had any statement to make on the matter.

2,098 ALLIED PLANES LOST IN EUROPE IN '43

LONDON, Sept. 22.—(AP) British Air Secretary Sir Archibald Sinclair told Commons today that 1,651 British and 447 American bombers, based in England, were reported lost over northern Europe during the eight months ended Aug. 31.

He added that 306 British and 100 American planes were lost during August and 195 British and 108 American craft in July.

BRITISH PRINCESS TO BE COUNCILLOR

London, Sept. 22 (A. P.).—The House of Commons agreed today that in the future when King George VI is absent from the realm, Princess Elizabeth may serve as one of his Councilors of State.

The King has requested the agreement, which carries forward by one step more the preparation of the Princess for the queenship, and which will give her her first experience of statecraft. She will attain her majority on her 18th birthday on April 21, next.

KNOX BACK IN LONDON FROM ARMY, NAVY POSTS

LONDON, Sept. 22.—(AP) Secretary Knox returned to London today after a four-day tour on which he inspected American and British naval commands.

"Never have I witnessed a finer and more constructive degree of cooperation between officers and men of the two navies than I have seen evidenced on every hand here in Britain between British and American sailormen," Mr. Knox said.

Roosevelt Directs Awards for Work in African Campaign

LONDON, Thursday, Sept. 22 (AP)—By the direction of President Roosevelt, two high ranking British officers have received the United States Army Legion of Merit for work in the North African campaign which "contributed largely to the success of the operations," it was announced today.

Lieut. Gen. Jacob L. Devers, commanding United States forces in the European theatre, presented the awards to Vice Admiral Sir Neville Syfret and Brig. Eric E. Mockler-Ferryman.

Admiral Syfret was flag officer of a force covering the initial landings. Brigadier Mockler-Ferryman participated in planning the landings.

LARGE CANADIAN FORCE ARRIVES IN BRITAIN

AN EAST COAST CANADIAN PORT, Sept. 22. — (AP) Another huge draft of Canadian reinforcement troops and general units which left this port recently for Britain, hard on the heels of Allied successes in the Mediterranean that knocked Italy out of the war, has arrived safely, it was announced tonight.

With the Canadian troops were nearly 300 Army nursing sisters, attached to hospital and medical units going overseas, as well as R.C.A.F. personnel and other United Nations forces. The latter included Norwegian soldiers and airmen and Netherlands fliers who had trained in the Dominion.

There also were large drafts of Royal Navy and Royal Canadian Navy tars and officers.

2 Nazi Soldiers Slain, Rule in Denmark Tightened

By the Associated Press.

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 22.—Advices from Denmark today said that two German soldiers were slain there last week end as the Nazis imposed harsher measures on Danish citizens in an effort to check increasing defiance of German military rule.

The slaying of a soldier Saturday night as he was walking from his camp near Copenhagen to the city brought a fine of 1,500,000 crowns ($100,000 nominally) on the Danish capital, these advices declared.

The Nazis last week imposed a fine of 1,000,000 crowns ($200,000) on Copenhagen for the slaying of another soldier in the city, and the Germans posted an offer of 50,000 crowns ($10,000) reward for information leading to the arrest of the assailant.

When a German soldier was shot on a street in Odense Sunday night, the Nazis retaliated by tightening the state of siege already in effect. All amusement centers were ordered closed until September 24; a curfew was imposed from 7 p.m. until 5 a.m., and restaurants were forced to close their doors at 6 p.m.

Radio transmission from Denmark was broken off at 9:30 p.m. last night without any explanation.

FRENCH IN SWEDEN DEMAND NEW ENVOY

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 22.—(AP) A delegation of 60 Frenchmen who escaped from Germany to Sweden sent a letter to Gen. Charles de Gaulle today asking that the French Committee of National Liberation replace its minister to Stockholm, Devaux St. Cyr.

The group, many members of which are former French soldiers, protested that St. Cyr was associated with Vichy as late as last March, while "Free Frenchmen suffered in German prisons." It asked that St. Cyr be replaced by a "true de Gaulle representative."

Pierre Laval, Vichy chief of government, also has been represented by a legation at Stockholm.

DUCE GOES TO NORTH ITALY

NAZIS RAVAGE CITY OF NAPLES

Refugees Describe Horror of Enemy Rule.

(Distributed by the Associated Press.)

With the Fifth Army in Italy, Sept. 20 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Refugees from Italy who arrived in Fifth Army territory today declared that the Germans are mining the Naples area in expectation of an attack by Fifth Army forces.

One of the refugees who is an Italian captain said he left Naples last night and arrived in the Salerno area this morning. He was dressed in civilian clothes. He asked that his name be kept secret because his family is still in German-occupied territory and the Germans might make reprisals if his identity were divulged.

"I had to escape in civilian clothes," he said. "If they thought I was an army officer the Germans would shoot me on sight."

"Already they are making Italian soldiers do forced labor. In Naples they won't trust us to do any military work because they know we will do everything we can to sabotage their defense against the Americans and the British. The Germans make the Italian soldiers do laborers' work loading trucks, digging ditches and trenches, even digging and covering up latrines. They stand guard with machine guns ready to mow the Italian soldiers down if they refuse to work or try to escape."

Meanwhile, a few score of the 14,000 Italians who evacuated Eboli two months ago when the Germans converted it into a military center returned today to find it in ruins. Probably no other city ever was so systematically bombed by air and shelled by land and sea as Eboli. I walked through it today and found it a cemetery of houses.

I came across a Carabiniero standing guard in front of a heap of rubble and asked him what he was guarding. He replied, "I am guarding this bank."

He pointed to a pile dust at his feet where I could barely make out on a twisted metal plaque the words "Banco Di Napoli." The guard said the vault, which was not in evidence, still contained a large sum of money.

A score of buildings, perhaps, were standing but they had been cut in halves like dollhouses so that their candy colored interiors were exposed to view.

Allied troops today were feeding the Italian inhabitants, who came back to Eboli, with what they could spare from their rations.

With the United States Fifth Army in Italy, Sept. 21 (Delayed). —Emergency measures to relieve the plight of the Italian civilian population in the Salerno area already have taken effect and have served largely to relieve the danger of hunger and disease in this district.

The Germans have made a deliberate policy of stripping every town and village of everything portable, including foodstuffs, linen and other items necessary to ordinary life. The inhabitants of villages and towns who fled to the mountains in order to escape the bombing and shelling find nothing upon their return except piles of rubble. Thus, it is up to us, irrespective of the fact that these people recently were our enemies, to organize food supplies at almost the instant we occupy the place.

We have done this largely by transporting grain and other foodstuffs from outlying districts and from warehouses to the centers of population, and by furnishing local authorities with gasoline with which to operate their own trucks when they have them. Fortunately the Germans had neither the time nor the transport to rob many well-stocked grain stores in the neighborhood.

A tremendous problem will face us as we r[illegible] larger towns and cities, such as Naples, most of which is already close to the hunger line if they haven't crossed it. The sanitary services and food distribution in these places will have to be organized on a grand scale by regular military Government authorities, and the longer it takes us to drive the Germans out of Italy the greater the problem will become.

Fantastic stories of disease and starvation have already reached us from Naples, and although they lack full substantiation, it is known that the situation there is wretched. The water supply in Naples has been cut off on several occasions recently, and the Germans, with a peculiarly fine sense of brutality, have imposed such rigid curfew laws on the city that people emerging from their homes to get food and water actually have been shot down in batches, according to insistent reports.

Two in Jail for Mussolini Death Plot Released.

With the Allied Armies in Italy, Sept. 19 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Two men who many years ago attempted to assassinate Benito Mussolini and were condemned to life imprisonment have been released by Allied authorities from notorious penal islands but one of them, by a ghastly mischance, was killed by a German shell just seven days after he had been at liberty for the first time in sixteen years.

The unfortunate victim was the less well-known of the two. He was an anarchist named Lucetti who, in the early days of the Fascist regime, threw a bomb at the Duce but missed. At that time there was no death penalty in Italy.

Lucetti was confined on the island of Santo Stefano and was freed by Allied forces on September 10. He was taken to the island of Ischia and was awaiting transportation when he was kill[illegible] by a German shell on September 17.

Far more famous was Col. Tito Zaniboni who was on the island of Ponza when he was liberated.

Zaniboni was one of Italy's world war heroes. He was colonel of a regiment of Alpine troops which all combatants in the last was recognized as one of the best fighting units in the world. He had every decoration for valor that Italy could give.

From the beginning of Fascism Zaniboni declared against it.

In 1927 he made up his mind that the best thing he could do for Italy would be to kill Mussolini. He bought the finest high-powered hunting rifle with telescope sights. Zaniboni planned his attempt on Mussolini's life for months.

One of the few places the Duce could be relied upon to appear in public during the first half of the Fascist regime was the balcony of Palazza Chigi, which Mussolini used to use as his prime ministerial office.

Zaniboni finally managed to rent a room about 100 yards from the Chigi balcony and overlooking it. He had practiced with his hunting rifle until he could hit a dime at 100 yards. Mussolini was a doomed man. Zaniboni lived in his room and waited for Mussolini to come out.

It was not to be. Zaniboni had intrusted his secret to one man, but that was one man too many. His friend became panic-stricken at the last minute and just before Mussolini appeared on the balcony agents of Mussolini's secret police broke into his room and overpowered him.

Of Zaniboni's sixteen years in prison, three were spent on San Stefano, which Italians know as their Devil's Island.

WITH THE 5TH ARMY IN ITALY, Sept. 19 (Delayed)—American troops advancing today near the bloody triangle between Sele and Calore Rivers came upon thirty-one American infantrymen who had been trapped there for a week with Germans all around them.

It developed that thesee men were part of a unit that had been overrun by German tanks in the push which caused the Americans to withdraw and consolidate their lines during the early part of the battle for the Salerno beachhead. They had to remain hidden continually and were almost without food.

Patrols moving up after dawn this morning saw the men walking wearily out of a woods. Their helmets identified them as Americans, but their general appearance was one of complete fatigue.

Could Hardly Walked

Their uniforms were covered with dirt and sweat. Hollow eyes peered from behind beards stiff with dust. Their knees bent as they walked, and although they still clung to their rifles, they carried them as though they weighed a ton.

This correspondent happened along as two of them came out of the woods and sank down to rest at the roadside. They were Sergeant Vaughn Taylor and Corporal Edward B. Gutkowski. While resting and eating the canned rations the patrols gave them, they told how they and their comrades had lain hidden in the woods along the river for a week.

They dug holes, over which they placed branches and leaves. They were out of ammunition, and there was nothing else to do but try to escape detection. The Germans kept moving in, and guns and tanks were set up less than 200 yards from their hiding place.

For three days they scarcely moved from their holes. At night they crawled to the river for water. After three foodless days they crossed the river at night. There were even more Germans on that side, but they managed to find an Italian garden with nothing in it but pop corn and onions.

They carried the onions and pop corn back to their holes, and that was all they had to eat for a week. Then the American artillery offensive to drive out the Germans began.

Under United States Shelling

The thirty-one Americans stayed in their holes with shells falling all around them. Then wave after wave of medium bombers came over. The area became like a section of hell.

The bombardment finally eased, and the Germans began pulling out. They left without discovering that they had been almost living with their enemies for a week. This morning there was silence until the sound of American voices was heard, and the thirty-one crawled out from their holes on weakened legs to join their fellow soldiers.

When last seen by this correspondent they were trudging back along the dusty road to a bivouac area and rest. Each man still clung to his rifle.

Jumping Joe Savoldi and Doug Fairbanks Jr. Were With Forces Which Captured Procida

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER.

With the Allied Forces on a Mediterranean Island, Sept. 15 (Delayed).—Late at night, while the moon was hidden and a thin fog hung low over the water and only the beacon of Vesuvius was visible on the horizon, we slipped out of the harbor and, with a flotilla of raiding craft, set out to capture another island for the Allies.

This one was the Isle of Procida and its significance lay not in its size—it is about as big as Staten Island—nor its population of around 10,000, but in its position less than three miles from the Italian shore. It was just the night for raiding.

Our boat was British, but the chief of the expedition was an American who had chosen to make this his flagship. For the first half hour nothing happened. As the night wore on mysterious sounds began to come to us. Brilliant fire suddenly loomed on our port bow, blazed five seconds and disappeared. Two cannon shots rang out not far away, nobody knew from what source.

Jumping Joe in Patrol Boat.

Over there on our ships were many old and new friends. Jumping Joe Savoldi, 215-pound heavyweight wrestler and one of Knute Rockne's All-Americas at Notre Dame turned up this afternoon on one craft. Savoldi's home is Harbert, Mich., but he says Chicago will reach him. His craft had sunk one 6,000-ton Italian transport before the armistice. He's on a patrol torpedo boat.

On another craft officers were busy talking to the crews of a number of Italian Mas boats, similar to our P-T's, who had come over to us with their craft and were pressing to be taken along and given a chance to fight the Germans. Among the officers who accepted the surrender of these Italians was Lieut.-Commander Douglas Fairbanks Jr.

Procidans Meet Flotilla.

Moonlight glinted on the bayonets of the landing party as we slipped into Procida Harbor.

Our friends, the Procidans, were coming out in rowboats to meet us with frenzied handclasps at first because they could barely discern our lines, then with cheers and an official reception. Alongside the dock came one larger rowboat and out jumped a little man in formal cutaway. Coming to attention the little Italian used his whole stock of English to say: "Good-by. I am Podesta of Procida. Good-by. Good-by."

The usual Brooklyn Italian-American turned up promptly—this time named Frank S. Lavina, who has brothers living at 75 President street, Brooklyn, and 2127 Beverly Road, Brooklyn. Amid mush heat, din and confusion we were assured of the loyalty and affection of Procida while our C. O. did what he could to get information of value officers.

Brooklynite With a Villa.

Frank Lavina, one of the Procida residents greeting the American troops as they took over the island, is an American citizen who fought overseas with United States Army troops in the last war, lived in Brooklyn and in 1933 returned to his family villa.

According to his brother, Joseph, owner of the Beverly Pure Food Market, 2117 Beverly Road, Brooklyn, he came to this country about forty years ago. In 1933 he retired from his real estate business and went to live at Lavina Villa on Procida Island, where the whole family of three sisters and five brother were born.

With him at the villa, which is half a mile long, live two sisters and one brother-in-law. His last letter home was in October, 1941, containing only general news. Since 1933 and until the beginning of the war he had made ten trips home to visit his Brooklyn relatives.

Salerno Crisis Failed to Ruffle 'Big Four' of Allied G. H. Q.

Eisenhower, Cunningham, Alexander and Tedder Continued Informal Meetings, With American General Deciding All Differences

By Clark Lee
For the combined American press
Distributed by The Associated Press

WITH GENERAL DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER AT AN ADVANCED ALLIED COMMAND POST, Sept. 22.—When the going at Salerno was at its toughest and our thinly held beachhead was seriously threatened, the Allied high command continued to function at the smooth and effective pace developed over the past ten months.

The Big Four of United Nations armed forces in the Mediterranean—Eisenhower, Cunningham, Alexander and Tedder—had foreseen that the operation would develop just as it did. They had correctly gauged the strength of the German reaction, and they knew what to do to meet it without losing any time.

Admiral Sir Andrew Browne Cunningham sent in his big ships to blast the German counter-attacks in close support of our ground troops. Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Tedder threw all his planes into the struggle, and General Sir Harold Alexander hurried the 8th Army up from the south.

With that assistance, the 5th Army clung to its positions, fought off the Germans, and gradually began to advance inland.

Our high command had anticipated that the period from the third day after the landing to the ninth or tenth day would be critical, and had planned accordingly. It was a question of whether we could get in reinforcements fast enough, and whether our air power could prevent the Germans from bringing down enough strength to drive us off the beach.

There was no nees for any sudden change of plan when the crisis came. The original schedule of operations was followed, and fortunately it was proven that the command had calculated correctly.

In the early stages of an operation like the Salerno landing, the Allied commanders meet every morning for a conference. The temporary location of headquarters is chosen for convenience and time saving, and since the others cannot easily move their bases General Eisenhower shifts his own headquarters to be near them.

Travel by Airplane

All of the Big Four travel a great deal by airplane. Their daily conferences are a continuation of the meetings during the Tunisian campaign, when they were held each morning. The sessions last for an hour or an hour and a half.

When a critical situation arises the meetings are shorter and the officers hurry away to put into effect decisions reached. When a session lasts longer than usual the commanders' aides, who are waiting outside, jokingly remark: "Well, at least they are not making any mistakes in a hurry this morning."

The present meeting place is a "war room" whose walls are covered with aerial maps of Italy. The commanders, accompanied by their senior staff officers, sit at a round table facing the maps. The sessions are business-like but informal.

First names are used. Eisenhower is "Ike," Cunningham is "Andrew," Tedder is "Arthur" and Alexander is "Alex." Lieutenant General Carl A. ("Tooey") Spaatz is always called by his first name, and Major General James H. Doolittle is "Jimmy." Lieutenant General George S. Patton jr. is referred to as "Georgie," while Lieutenant General Mark W. Clark is "Wayne."

Intelligence and Operations of the air, ground and Navy commands open the meetings with reports of current operations and of moves about to be undertaken. Occasionally the chiefs supplement these reports with brief statements giving the high spots of the situation.

When a problem arises, there are discussions among the land, sea and air commanders, each of whom has his particular point of view. For instance, Alexander may ask for more planes over the Salerno beaches, and Cunningham may request additional air cover for his ships. Tedder will reply that if he meets those requests it will mean detaching planes that have been assigned to attack enemy communication and prevent reinforcements from reaching the area.

Eisenhower then decides what is to be done. He acts as moderator, explaining the airman's point of view to the ground and Navy commanders, and vice versa.

Work Faster in a Crisis

In a crisis, the commanders work harder and faster. Each of them thinks of some action he can take to relieve the pressure. Cunningham or Vice-Admiral Henry K. Hewitt, the American naval commander, will offer to supply some ships that had been assigned for another purpose. Tedder will dig up some additional planes somewhere. Alexander will have a plan for speeding up the movement of reinforcements.

Eisenhower is proud of the way the commanders work together, of the absence of rivalry among the various branches and their readiness to assist each other.

Eisenhower gets along on terms of close personal friendship with each of the three British commanders—Cunningham, the typical sailor, salty, pithy and blunt; Alexander, aristocratic and dignified, but with a twinkle in his eye, and Tedder, sound, solid master of air strategy and tactics, with a quiet, dry humor.

Throughout the dark hours at Salerno the headquarters kept functioning as usual, with no signs of strain or worry.

Eisenhower had expected those trying hours. Here was the way he sized up the attack on the eve of the invasion:

No strategic or even tactical surprise was possible. The Germans, by looking at the map, could tell where we would have to land, simply by estimating the range of our fighter planes flying from advance fields in Sicily. So the Germans had their troops in position and their defenses prepared.

Because the distance was so great that our fighter planes (except the P-38s, which could fly for an hour longer) would be able to remain over the attack area for only a limited time, the landing was far more risky than we had undertaken previously.

NAZI ROCKET IN ITALY

Aboard a United States Warship in the Gulf of Salerno, Sept. 16 (Delayed) (A. P.).—The Germans are believed to be using a new type of radio-controlled aerial torpedo against the Allied invasion fleet in the Gulf of Salerno. WHITEHEAD

[This is the first indication that the weopon was used against Italian invasion forces. There have been previous reports that the Germans were experimenting with an aerial torpedo, but this is the first time, it is believed, that it has been used in actual combat.

Spaatz Says Germans Can't Withstand Allied Pressure in Italy

By the Associated Press.

AN ADVANCED ALLIED AIR HEADQUARTERS COMMAND POST IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 22.—Praising the teamwork developed by Allied air, land and naval forces, Lt. Gen. Carl A. Spaatz declared today that the Germans could not hope to withstand the pressure that can be brought to bear on them in Italy.

The usually reticent American air commander said the combination first conceived in North Africa and used in Sicily was now reaching its greatest development in the Salerno battle and was unbeatable.

"We feel that the teamwork established cannot be stopped," he said.

"We feel proud to be part of that highly trained trio of ground and naval forces thoroughly co-ordinated and integrated as a complete unit."

Italian Victory Easier.

A high officer of Gen. Spaatz's command gave this outline of the Allied air situation in the Mediterranean:

The German air force has been knocked out of the air in Italy more easily than at any stage of the Mediterranean war. The air battle in Tunisia and Sicily had been much harder.

The tremendous air power created in this theater was vividly illustrated on September 14 at Salerno when more than 2,600 individual flights were made over the battlefield and the squadrons dropped more than 1,200 tons of bombs.

The air war support of ground troops has settled into a pattern. The first attack is made on airfields to knock off the German air force. Then Allied planes cut communications behind enemy lines, isolating the proposed or immediate battle area, and finally attack enemy troops in the battle area.

German Efforts Smashed.

The job of knocking off the German air force has been progressively easier since the Tunisian campaign.

The Germans made a supreme effort several weeks ago in the Foggia and Rome areas to halt Allied air efforts, but were smashed and since then their resistance has been extremely feeble.

The experience gained by the African air forces since the North African campaign has been a tremendous asset. The flyers learned the technique of hitting and knocking out such difficult targets as bridges, railroad yards and airdromes. This type of work has been tremendously aided by the equipping of medium bombers with new American bombsights, the same as those used in Flying Fortresses.

Some squadrons in this theater are the most experienced in the world and this has been a great asset. For example, one Flying Fortress group was attacked by 70 German fighters in the Foggia area, but beat the Nazis off and lost only one plane.

New Fields for Allies.

A new phase in the air war is in the offing as Allied air forces, of which 70 per cent are American, get fields around Rome and Foggia.

From these fields the vital Ploesti oil fields would be an easy target; every capital of the Balkans would be within range, and Southeastern Germany would be within the range of Flying Fortresses and Liberators.

A two-way air war could be launched from England and Italy which would split German defenses greatly and ease the task of the RAF and United States 8th Air Force in causing the complete downfall of the German air force.

Because of better flying weather in this theater of operations—even winter allows an average of 15 operations a month—most of the bombing war against Germany may come from Mediterranean bases during this winter.

In Sicily alone 1,200 German planes were destroyed or captured on the ground.

home-based Royal Air Force fleets in England.

Winter weather already is hamstringing operations from Britain. During the winter it is considered good if heavy air bombardment fleets can get out in force eight times a month. In the Mediterranean, even during the worst winter months, it is possible to send out large bomber groups more than 15 times a month.

As a matter of fact, the bomb tonnage totals of the Northwest African Air forces have dwarfed the U. S. Eighth Air force effort even during the past summer.

Bombing Germany from this side has obvious advantages. It splits the Nazis' thin fighter defenses, opens new territories in Germany to attack, makes it possible to hit the Nazis twice as often, thereby destroying the German Air force faster, and it brings more pressure on the Germans' bomb-shattered morale.

Bombing fleets ranging over Rome Turin, Milan and Naples by day and night did more than any other factor in cracking the Italian will to resist. Hitler's wobbly but vital Balkan Axis partners now face the same medicine. Every part of Hungary, Bulgaria and Rumania is well within bombing range from Italian bases.

Here are some of the key cities to the German war effort and the flying distance to them from airbases south of the Rome and Foggia areas:

Vienna, less than 400 miles; Munich, less than 400 miles; Budapest, less than 400 miles; Belgrade, 300 miles; Sofia, 350 miles; the Ploesti oil fields in Rumania, 500 miles; and Salonika, 250 miles.

All these points can be reached by Fortresses, Wellingtons and Liberators with full bomb loads. Some of the points are within the range of medium American bombers such as Marauders and Mitchells.

These factors, combined with the fact that the German Air force in the Mediterranean has been beaten into the ground by the air fighters of General Spaatz and Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur William Tedder, make it advantageous to shift a large share of the air war against Germany to this theater.

Winter Air Siege of Germany On Vast Scale from Italy Seen

GALLAGHER

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 22—(AP) The transfer of American Liberator squadrons from England to the North African war theater may foreshadow a winter aerial siege of Germany from the Mediterranean perhaps surpassing the effort made from Britain.

The B-24 Liberators, which previously operated with the British-based U. S. Eighth Air force, joined the Northwest African Air forces yesterday and in their initial action in this area bombed the Corsican harbor of Bastia and the Italian mainland city of Leghorn, leaving troop-crowded German ships and other small craft in both harbors aflame.

The Northwest Africa Air forces under the command of Lt. Gen. Carl A. Spaatz now have a galaxy of heavy bombardment groups unequalled in any theater except the

NAZI CRUELTY

Italian Who Escaped Gives Eyewitness Account Quoted In Army Paper

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Sept. 22—An Italian officer's eyewitness account of extreme cruelties and numerous executions which German troops in Naples inflicted upon Italians was published today by Stars and Stripes. The officer had escaped in a rowboat and joined the American Fifth Army forces on the island of Capri.

In a dispatch from the island, the army newspaper's reporter, John O. Kearney, quoted the officer as saying he saw as many as fifty persons arrested and shot "on various meager pretexts," and said that other refugees declared that the reign of terror in the Italian city equaled the worst Warsaw saw at the hands of the Nazis.

Flogged For Minor Acts

The Italian officer declared that many persons were flogged publicly for minor infractions of Nazi rules. He brought a copy of a proclamation posted by the German commandant in the streets of Naples. It said, in part:

"Anyone who acts against the Germans will be executed and the place where such acts are committed will be destroyed and reduced to ruins. Every German soldier wounded or killed will be revenged one hundred times."

[The Nazi-operated Rome radio said tonight that Field Marshal Albert Kesselring had decreed the death penalty for Italians withholding from the market or charging "disproportionate" prices for food and other necessary daily supplies. Kesselring's ordinance, as reported in the Rome broadcast recorded by the United States Foreign Broadcast Intelligence Service, said less serious violations might be punished by detention.]

BADOGLIO PLEDGES LOYALTY TO KING,

AGAINST FASCISM

Statement of Policy Says Army Takes Orders Only From Victor Emmanuel.

Algiers, Sept. 22 (A. P.).—In a statement of the policy of his Government, Marshal Pietro Badoglio declared today that the King and Royal House of Italy express the will of the Italian people and the nation's armed forces remain faithful to King Victor Emmanuel, obeying him exclusively.

Other points in the Italian Premier's speech broadcast by the United Nations radio were:

The Italian people wish to have nothing to do with Fascism, be it called republican or monarchic.

The Italian people have not betrayed the Germans but have instead been betrayed themselves by the Nazi-Fascist gang.

The citizens and population of the north will never forget the thousands of their sons who were sent to die in Russia and the African deserts in the sole interest of Germany.

The conduct of the Germans after the armistice has rendered inevitable the action of the Italian people and deepens still more the gulf between Italy and Germany. The sooner the Germans are forced out of Italy, the quicker Italy will be free.

War veterans, citizens and workers of all classes, under the leadership of the King and his Government, will forge together the future destiny of Italy. Badoglio said the conditions of the armistice with the Allies were hard "but we must not forget that we have been beaten."

He expressed his determination to run the German aggressors out of Italy, and declared that Mussolini had dragged Italy into wars which the Italians did not want.

Athens Airdromes Blasted

CAIRO, Sept. 22 (AP).—British planes from the Middle East bombed German airdromes near Athens and on the Islands of Crete and Rhodes on Monday night, Allied headquarters announced today. The targets included the airdrome at Hassani, near Athens; Heraklion, on Crete, and Maritza, on Rhodes. Bombs fell among parked aircraft and fires were started.

Two planes were reported missing.

LISBON, Portugal, Sept. 22 (AP)—The National Union organ Diario da Manha, semi-official Government newspaper, said today in an editorial entitled "We Are All Mobilized" that Portugal may "at any moment" have to go to war, "even against her own will."

"There is a limit for our peace," said the newspaper, urging Portugese of all parties and all political feelings to join together in strengthening national unity "in the face of the grave hour and supreme duties to country and leaders."

An editorial in the independent newspaper O Seculo also urged the Portuguese people to cooperate heartily in the coming military exercises.

Lisbon street cars experimented last night with dark blue lights. Many buildings and private houses already are being equipped with water buckets and shovels and are being protected with sandbags.

Allies Outrace Nazis in Seizing Strategic Dodecanese Islands

By STEPHEN BARBER

WITH BRITISH OCCUPATION FORCES IN THE DODECANESE, Sept. 20 (delayed)—(AP) The liberation of the Dodecanese and sister islands in the Aegean from German rule and opening of the backdoor to Hitler's European fortress has begun.

An allied force arrived unobtrusively during the night on Lero, Castelrosso and Coo and the Greek island of Samos also were occupied.

These islands are the Germans' outer defense line in southeastern Europe.

"Our mission is partly to assist the Italians in the Dodocanese to carry out the armistice obligations by defending them (the islands) against German attack and partly for strategic reasons," said the senior British officer commanding this spearhead party, Brigadier F. G. R. Brittorous. "It is a race between us and the Boche."

Already advanced elements including parachutists, an R.A.F. regiment and commandos have seized key points in several islands.

The first to be occupied was Castelrosso at the far eastern tip of the Dodecanese chain. The occupation of Samos, Coo and Lero, which Mussolini once called "the Malta of the Aegean," followed.

The Italians appear to be cooperating well on Lero today.

As I write sitting on a pile of concrete anchors—testimony surely to Italy's steel shortage—Italian heavy trucks and trailers are being loaded with British gear.

Everything has been planned to the last detail. The nucleus of the medical staff is moving into the local hospital. They have brought much needed medical supplies. A contingent of engineers, radiomen and other specialists accompanied the shock troops, the backbone of the mission.

PORTUGUESE WARN OF WAR

Newspaper Says Nation May Be Forced Into Conflict

New Delhi, Sept. 22 (A. P.).—Royal Air Force fighter planes, sweeping over central Burma on offensive patrols yesterday, blasted Japanese rail and river transport in widely separated areas, a British communique said today. No planes were lost in the sweeps.

Successful attacks were made on the railway north of Toungoo, where two troop trains were strafed and heavily damaged.

Other targets damaged or destroyed included a concentration of rolling stock and motor transport at Yeu station. Another motor convoy east of Chauk was raked. The water tower at Myingyan was attacked and river craft on the Chindwin and Kaladan rivers were given a severe lacing.

U. S. Smashes Japanese Raid On China Base

14th Air Force Men Down 15 of 27 Bombers, With 7 More Called Probables

1943

UNITED STATES 14TH AIR FORCE HEADQUARTERS IN CHINA, Sept. 20 (delayed) (UP).—American flyers shot down fifteen enemy bombers and two Zero fighters out of a formation that attacked this headquarters base today—Japanese National Aviation Day.

It was the first attack on this base since May, and the total enemy toll was believed to have been even greater, with seven more bombers probably destroyed and three damaged, and two Zeros probably shot down and four damaged.

No American planes were lost in the action.

Twenty-seven Mitsubishi bombers and between twenty and thirty Zeros took part in the attack. P-40 Warhawk fighters, led by Major Robert Liles, of Jefferson City, Mo., intercepted the raiders before they reached their target, drawing off part of the Zeros.

Later, Captain Roger Pryor, of Starkville, Miss., said: "We all hit them at once. It was the prettiest sight I ever saw—all those big shiny bombers. When the formation left, every plane seemed to be smoking."

At least seventy-five Japanese airmen died in the wreckage of their bombers.

17 ATTACKING JAP PLANES DESTROYED

Chungking, Sept. 22 (A. P.).—Fifteen Japanese bombers and two Zeros were destroyed and seven other bombers and two fighters were probably shot down Monday when a squadron of about thirty enemy bombers escorted by fighters attacked major installations of the Fourteenth U. S. A. A. F. in China, a communique from Lieut.-Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters said today.

On the same day Mitchell bombers attacked docks and shipping installations at the Yangtze River port of Kiukiang and scored a hit on a 225-foot Japanese destroyer. The Allied planes returned safely.

GAUSS AT CHUNGKING

Chungking, Sept. 22 (A. P.).—Away from China since March, when he went home for a consultation with the State Department and for medical attention, the American Ambassador, Clarence E. Gauss, returned to his post today and was greeted by officials of the Chinese Government.

At the same time China's determination to do her full share in defeating Japan was emphasized by Chang Tao-fan, Minister of Information, who said at a press conference that "great attention" should be paid to the recovery of Burma and the reopening of the Burma Road. K. C. Wu, Vice-Minister for Foreign Affairs, said that Prime Minister Churchill's statement that the war against Japan would unfold itself month by month "signifies that we have a prearranged plan."

ALLIES STRIKE SIXTY MILES UP FROM LAE

EVENSON

Anzac Paratroopers Seize Kaiapit on North Side of New Guinea.

U.S. BOMBERS SMASH BRIDGES

Spread Devastation Along Future Path of Allied Conquest for 350 Miles Northward.

SEP 23 1943

Allied Headquarters in the Southwest Pacific, Sept. 22 (A. P.).—Only two days after the fall of Lae, New Guinea, airborne Australian troops of Gen. MacArthur's command seized Kaiapit, a village sixty miles to the northwest, while waves of American bombers wrecked airdromes, bridges, trucks and roads along a path of future conquest for 350 miles north. The seizure of Kaiapit last Saturday night was disclosed in a communique today.

This new stroke, which the Japanese vainly attempted to erase by counter-attacks, and the latest air strikes with ninety-seven tons of bombs and 120,000 rounds of ammunition all the way from a point south of Madang up to wewak, clearly indicated Gen. MacArthur's determination that his victories at Lae and Salamaua shall yield quick dividends.

The Japanese air force, obviously concerned by the upsurge of the Allies on the New Guinea front and the hammering dealt by Admiral Halsey's growing air might in the Solomons, struck back on both arms of the 750-mile battle arc.

Kaiapit Region Cleared.

Captured Kaiapit is inland on the Huon peninsula, behind the Markham Valley positions which the Allied paratroopers seized on September 5 to set in motion the pincers movement that swallowed up Lae in less than two weeks. It is not far from Bena Bena, which some time ago was raided repeatedly by Japanese planes. These raids have never been explained, but indicated the presence of Allied forces at Bena Bena.

The Australians who were landed on a grassy field at Kaiapit on Saturday night and Sunday have now driven the Japanese out of that immediate area.

On Monday, more than fifty Mitchell bombers and Flying Fortresses heavily attacked the communications areas around Astrolabe Bay, some seventy miles above Kaiapit. Four important bridges on the Japs' coastal supply road were blown to bits.

Wewak Raided Again.

On the same day, fighter-escorted Liberators smashed at the airdromes at Wewak, more than 300 miles above Lae. More than 400 Japanese planes have been wiped out since mid-August at Wewak, the last large New Guinea base remaining in enemy hands.

The Japanese Air Force lost three fighters out of a formation of twenty-five which inflicted some damage and casualties in a raid on Nadzab, the airstrip which Allied paratroopers occupied seventeen days ago twenty miles back of Lae. The enemy paid his biggest price of twenty planes in a raid, reported today, by thirty dive-bombers and twenty fighters last Saturday on the American positions at Barakoma, on Vella Lavella Island in the Solomons. In that sector, Japanese plane also struck weakly at the Munda airfield on New Georgia and at the American positions on Guadalcanal.

BIG ALLIED FORCE EFFECTS LANDING NEAR KEY JAP BASE

BONI

Seaborne Maneuver Aimed at Capture of Finschhafen in New Guinea.

JAPS ERASED AT ARUNDEL

Naval Forces Now Within Range of Enemy Garrison at Vila.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Thursday, Sept. 23—(AP) Two new blows have been smashed at the Japanese in the accelerated Pacific offensive — a seaborne landing in force, under fleet and air protection, of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's troops north of Finschhafen, New Guinea, and the complete destruction of the enemy garrison on Arundel island in the Solomons.

The Finschhafen stroke, delivered Wednesday only six days after the fall of Lae 60 miles to the southwest, was aimed at capture of a base which would give the Allies complete control of the Huon gulf — a potential springboard against nearby New Britain.

The destruction of the garrison at Arundel, which is adjacent to American-held New Georgia, puts forces of Admiral William F. Halsey within artillery range of the large Japanese garrison at Vila across the Blackett strait on Kolombangara.

The landing above Finschhafen occurred at dawn Wednesday six miles north of that base in the vicinity of Peacetime Mission headquarters and just below the Song river.

Opposition Reported

There were no details on this action except that the landings were opposed by the enemy.

"Our ground forces have destroyed all remaining enemy forces on the north shores and on nearby Saga Karasa island," the communique reported on the Arundel action.

The Japanese, sensing the peril to Vila, had been moving in reinforcements at night across the narrow strait on barges but in the mop-up six of these barges were sunk by infantry weapons and artillery.

The enemy on Kolombangara then opened up with its artillery, inflicting some American casualties.

Grave Menace to Jap Base

Complete control of this sector, roughly a triangle bounded by the Salamaua air base, captured Sept. 12, the Lae air base, captured Sept. 16 and Finschhafen, once the enemy supply depot for the other two points, would pose a grave menace against New Britain with its enemy stronghold of Rabaul.

This landing beyond Finschhafen followed quickly the seizure by airborne Australians of the enemy base of Kaiapit north and west of both Finschhafen and Lae.

Headquarters today disclosed that a patrol of the troops which captured Kaiapit have killed 120 Japanese.

The Allied air arm struck heavily north of the new operations scene around Madang, making 46 bombing and strafing passes. Nine Japanese planes were downed at Hopoi.

Hopoi is an enemy air strip 20 miles east of Lae, or between there and Finschhafen. From Finschhafen, for which General MacArthur now is bidding, it is only 70 miles across Dampier strait to New Britain.

SEP 23 1943

Jap Cargo Ship Sunk

Today's communique also announced the sinking by air bombardment of a Japanese cargo ship in the Bismarck sea.

Utilization of land, sea and air elements in the Finschhafen attack emphasized the type of warfare which General MacArthur believes will fold up the Japanese the quickest. It has only been recently, however, as in the pincer envelopment of Lae, that the fleet has been able to play much of a role.

"In a coordinated land, sea and air movement, our troops in force have landed six miles north of Finschhafen," today's communique reported.

The two enemy airdromes on New Britain nearest to Finschafen—Cape Gloucester and Gasmata—were heavily raided. Sixty tons of bombs were dropped by four-engined units on areas at Cape Gloucester where planes are dispersed. The planes, including two-engined Mitchell bombers and attack planes which hit Gasmata at dawn, encountered no interception and all got back.

The main target in the Madang sector, northwest of Finschhafen was Japan's coastal supply road. Four more bridges were added to the four blown to bits in raids there Monday. Points where troops are bivouaced and supply installations also were hit.

No Air Opposition

These planes, bombers with a enemy air opposition, attesting to the effectiveness of recent raids on enemy airdromes around Wewak.

The cargo vessel sunk was a 1,500-tonner spotted off Kavieng, New Ireland. At the other end of New Ireland, a 5,000-ton Japanese merchant vessel was bombed and set afire off Cape St. George by an Allied reconnaissance plane.

The communique announced the loss of the Allied transport-freighter John Penn at Guadalcanal. It was bombed and sunk while returning there recently after landing troops and cargo at a forward base.

'Lonely Guinea Hens' Swear Fidelity in Love

A BASE IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Sept. 22 (Wednesday) (AP).—American nurses and Red Cross workers in New Guinea who are separated from their sweethearts by the Owen Stanley Mountain range have formed the Lonely Order of Guinea Hens. Membership requires that the girl be "honest to God in love with her guy" and that she be "tracking fair and no fooling."

Birds of a flighty nature are not permitted to join, but there is no ban on members having an occasional date. The order uses an insigne showing a lonely hen looking longingly at planes flying over mountain tops.

Jerseyman Gets a Zero.

Somewhere in New Guinea, Sept. 22 (A. P.).—Staff Sergt. Theodore Romanonski of Garfield, N. J., was credited with shooting down a Japanese Zero yesterday when American Liberators bombed Wewak.

Allied Headquarters in the Southwest Pacific, Sept. 22 (A. P.).—Newspaper reports that the new Southeast Asia Command of Lord Louis Mountbatten may subordinate the command of Gen. MacArthur were today recognized officially by the latter in a statement expressing willingness to fill any role assigned him and strongly defending his concept of Pacific strategy.

BONI

"I have no personal military ambitions whatsoever and am perfectly content in such role as may be prescribed for me," Gen. MacArthur said. The statement also expressed confidence that Japan should be hit hard at key holdings instead of rolled back slowly and at great cost from island to island.

"Island-hopping, with extravagant losses and slow progress—some press reports indicating victory postponed as long as 1949—is not my idea of how to end the war as soon and cheaply as possible," the General said. Rather, he favors "massive strokes against only main strategic objectives, utilizing surprise and air-ground striking power supported and assisted by the fleet."

"It makes little difference whether I or others wield the weapon, just so the cause for which our beloved country fights is victorious," his statement read. "However subordinate may be my role, I hope to play it manfully."

JAP SNIPERS SHOT WOUNDED OFFICER

[The following story was written by Staff Sergt. Maurice E. Moran of Pittsburgh, a Marine Corps combat correspondent, and distributed by the Associated Press.]

Guadalcanal, Aug. 7 (Delayed).—A young Marine officer who was killed by Jap snipers as he lay already wounded and helpless was honored today by the fighting men he commanded. The officer was Second Lieut. Curtis A. Tatum of Converse, La., killed in action leading his men against the Japs at Bairoko, New Georgia Island.

"We'll never forget him," chorused three young Marine privates he commanded. "He was a great guy, smart and he always was up in front. They didn't come any better than he was and we made them pay for getting him."

1943

Lieut. Tatum's death won the accolade from Rayfield N. Graves, 25 years old, of Washington, D. C.; Michael J. Martin Jr., 21, of 827 East 221st street, New York city, and Harry Maciupa, 23, of Garfield, N. J. Graves and Maciupa, who were with the lieutenant in the action in which he met death, said:

"They got him in the legs first and while he was laying there helpless they finished him off. Those Jap snipers seemed to go for our wounded. Three of our guys tried to get to the lieutenant, but they were killed. He kept trying to tell them to stay away because the Japs had his range."

MacArthur's Statement Criticized in Australia

Discussion of Subordination Called 'Unfortunate'

SYDNEY, Australia, Sept. 22 (AP).—Newspapers here, featuring the statement of General Douglas MacArthur commenting on reports that his role in the Pacific was being subordinated, commented today that the statement was unfortunate.

"The Mirror" asked a clarification of the commands of General MacArthur and Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten in southeast Asia.

"The Herald" said it "regrets that MacArthur has seen fit to comment publicly on rumors recently circulated in the United States regarding future strategy in the Pacific."

AUSTRALIAN BLOC ENDS

Canberra, Sept. 22 (A. P.).—A coalition of the United Australia and the Country parties in the Federal Parliament was ended by mutual consent today. The decision was reached at separate meetings of the two factions.

Robert Menzies, former Prime Minister, was elected leader of the United Australia party and, as such, the leader of the Opposition in Parliament. Arthur Fadden, also a former Prime Minister, was re-elected head of the Country party.

As a result of the recent elections, the Labor Government of Prime Minister John Curtin retained power.

HEAVY RAID TOLL LISTED IN GILBERTS

ERICKSON

Admiral Nimitz Says Four Jap Bases Were Severely Blasted.

PEARL HARBOR, T. H., Sept. 22—(AP) Adm. Chester W. Nimitz disclosed today that four Japanese bases were bombed and damaged heavily in the raid last Saturday night and Sunday (East Longitude time) on enemy-held territory in the Gilbert island area.

Admiral Nimitz, commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet, revealed also that a carrier task force collaborated with land-based Army and Navy bombers in the co-ordinated operation, which covered 500 square miles of Japan's equatorial outpost holdings in the Central Pacific.

The Navy and Army bombers more than 200 sorties against Tarawa, Makin and Apamama islands in the Gilbert group and against Nauru island 400 miles southwest of Makin.

(A bare announcement that the raid had taken place came previously in a communique issued by Admiral Nimitz last Sunday, but no mention was made at that time that the attack had been carried out by air, nor was it then disclosed that Makin and Apamama, as well as Tarawa and Nauru, had been among the targets.)

Four Planes Lost

Four fighter planes shot down were the only losses suffered by our striking forces in the attack, despite heavy anti-aircraft fire and attempted interception by enemy fighters and night fighters, Admiral Nimitz said.

The operation was the first of an offensive nature attempted by United States forces in the Pacific employing both carrier planes and heavy bombers from land bases both in the South Pacific and Central Pacific areas.

In a communique supplementing his first report on the action, Admiral Nimitz said:

"Damage to the enemy included:

"At Tarawa—Airdrome facilities heavily damaged, eight bombers destroyed on the runway, one small vessel sunk;

"At Makin—Airbase damaged, three four-engined seaplanes and one other patrol plane destroyed;

"At Apamama—Enemy camp installations heavily hit;

"At Nauru—Damage to installations.

"In addition to destroying aircraft on the ground, our forces shot down six Zeros, probably destroyed four others and damaged eight more fighters, and shot down two medium bombers.

"Despite attempted interception by day and night fighters and intense anti-aircraft fire encountered, our losses totalled only four planes."

AMBASSADORS RECALLED

Argentina Summons Envoys From Mexico and Vatican

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 22 (AP)—The Argentine Government announced today the recall of Alberto Candiotti, Argentine Ambassador to Mexico, and José Manuel Llobet, envoy to the Holy See.

Two other members of the diplomatic corps were retired. They were Ricardo Oliveira, Ambassador to Vichy, and José Amaya, Minister to Rumania, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia.

The action was a continuation of a diplomatic corps shake-up officially reported earlier to be designed to "eliminate those who have not displayed the required degree of dignity and capacity."

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 22 (AP)—The Argentine Embassy said tonight that Ambassador Candiotti had received a four-month leave, which he had requested in July, and that he would depart for Buenos Aires late in November. The Embassy said that he had not been recalled.

Union Opposes Demand For Immediate Invasion

Toronto, Sept. 22 (AP) — The United Rubber Workers' (CIO) convention voted non-concurrence in a proposed resolution calling for an immediate invasion of western Europe and a march on Berlin.

President Sherman H. Dalrymple opposed the resolution, saying:

"We are primarily concerned with producing the weapons of war, not with strategy on the battle fronts of which we know nothing."

Certain Radio Employes In High Canadian Rating

Ottawa, Sept. 22 (AP)—Canadian selective service officials said today that a high priority rating has been given technicians, announcers and similar radio station employes under recently announced regulations which freeze about 1,500,000 Canadian male workers in high priority occupations.

Like newspapermen, radio station employes will not be able to change their employment without a permit from local selective service officials. Essential radio station workers such as announcers and technicians will have top priority ratings. Lower ratings will be given other station employes, such as musicians, whose services are not essential to continued operation of a station.

CANADA TO GET WARSHIPS

ST. JOHN, N. B., Sept. 22.—(AP) Navy Minister Angus MacDonald announced here tonight that the Royal Canadian Navy would obtain six destroyers from Britain this year, two cruisers from the same source next year and possibly aircraft-carrying vessels as well to augment the Dominion's fleet.

What's Behind The War News

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press War Analyst

Possibilities of critical disaster hang over the German troops east of the upper Dnieper. The Russian break-through to the Chernigov gateway to Kiev and Gomel leaves open to the Nazis no more than four meagre, inadequate crossings of the river. And two of those are already in grave danger.

It seems obvious that something has gone radically wrong with the Nazi high command's plans for a deliberate, orderly withdrawal behind the Dnieper for a winter stand. The eastward bulge of the Desna river from its rise southeast of Smolensk. Through fallen Bryansk, then southwestward to its Kiev confluence with the Dnieper apparently was heavily relied upon to safeguard the great retirement.

Russians forces have broken across both the northern and southern arms of the Desna triangle, however. They appear to be converging from the south and east on Gomel, only 70 miles above Chernigov. Its fall would leave open for Nazi retreat from the Desna bulge only the Mogilev crossing below the Orsha bend of the Dnieper, and the Orsha crossing itself.

The Nazi situation to the north, with Russian forces closing in on Smolensk and already threatening the Vitebsk gateway westward, is hardly less dangerous. If they are to withdraw by the old Napoleonic route to Moscow, the Moscow-Minsk railway and the off-shoot via Vitebsk to Polotsk, heavy detachments must pass across the front of Russian columns everywhere pushing into the Desna bulge.

Moscow advices indicate that the Russians have already shifted the emphasis of their attack to the Smolensk-Vitebsk sector. The Vitebsk gateway was the scene of the Nazi initial break-through above the Stalin defense line on the Dnieper to drive perilously close to Moscow. With the tables turned by the massive Russian summer offensive, that gateway could now become a bloody trap for the invaders.

Red troops are not only within easy gun range of the Smolensk bastion by current Moscow reports. They have been holding Velizh 40 miles or less above Vitebsk for a week or more. North of that a Russian spearhead has been poised in the Velikie Luki-Nevel triangle for months.

It is in this sector, above the Orsha bend of the Dnieper, that the possibility of an ultimate major Russian offensive to turn the Nazi Dnieper river line from the north has always seemed greatest. The Russian surge to Velikie Luki months ago looked like a preliminary move to that end.

It is highly possible, however, that the original Moscow plan contemplated the Vitebsk-Nevel sector as the scene of a winter attack rather than as a part of the summer offensive. Winter will close in first, and in a few weeks, on that sector of the active front in Russia. Winter successes have so clearly demonstrated the superiority of Red armies over their Nazi foes under cold weather conditions that it is quite likely Moscow expected originally to reserve the attack which would crack the Dnieper line itself until the chill season was at hand.

In the summer offensive, however, a critical Nazi weakness between now-fallen Bryansk and Kharkov developed. It has permitted the Russians to stab 200 miles westward within sight of Kiev and at the same time threaten the whole Desna bulge from the south.

The only explanation yet advanced for the startling Nazi weaknes east of Kiev is the theory that it was due to withdrawal of reserves from that front for transfer to Italy or the Balkans. That was the closest large troop pool in Russia on which Berlin could draw immediately when Italy cracked up and capitulated.

In any case, the war in the south along the lower Dnieper seems due for a lull of some sort soon. The autumn rains are on there. The Russians must soon pause to reorganize, re-equip and rebuild rearward communications. And the rising scope of Russian attack in the north about the Smolensk bastion and Vitebsk indicates that the main fight will shift to that critical sector during the probable lull in the south.

STALIN PRAISES U. S. WAR AID IN BOND DRIVE PLEA

Message Seen as Move Toward Tripartite Conference.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—(AP) A personal acknowledgement from Premier Joseph Stalin of the aid the Red armies are receiving in munitions and supplies from "our American friends" added new testimony today to accumulating evidence of warmer Moscow-Washington relations.

Stalin's message, read at a war bond rally here, urged fullest support of the loan to "promote the growth of the military might of the United States and help the joint efforts of the Allies to achieve victory over the bitter enemy within the shortest possible period of time."

It was as strong a declaration of solidarity and amity with the western Allies as the Russian premier ever has made in public.

Termed Major Contribution

The gesture was taken here as a major contribution by Stalin to the establishment of a background of partnership for the Anglo-American-Russian war conferences soon to come.

The Soviet premier's message went specifically, too, into the matter of material aid from the United States, around which a furore centered some months ago Standley stated publicly in Moscow that the Russian people were not sufficiently informed about American aid and the Soviet government had not made sufficient acknowledgement.

After recalling that for 26 months the Soviet people had been engaged in "a war of liberation against our common enemy," and saying that now the Red armies were driving that enemy back from Smolensk to the Black sea, Stalin went on:

"In this struggle the Red army also is successfully employing planes, tanks, guns and other munitions and equipment which are received from the United States and Great Britain. x x x Our American friends who are participating in the manufacture of the ammunition and supplies of provisions are rendering great support in the fight against our common enemy."

Cites Soviet Support

Stalin said the "entire Soviet population is working unceasingly for the front," and by buying bonds is "giving great financial support to the Soviet government."

"It is desirable that the American people, by successful participation in the war loan in the United States," promote the nation's military development and "help the joint efforts of the Allies," he said.

The message was read at the Army's "Back the Attack" bond show by Maj. Gen. A. I. Belyaev, chairman of the Russian Purchasing commission.

Washington, Sept. 22, (AP)—Laurence A. Steinhardt, United States Ambassador to Turkey, has arrived in this country from Ankara, it was learned at the State Department today.

World Relief Job for Lehman

Slated for Director as Second Draft of Plan Goes to Allied Governments.

Washington, Sept. 22 (A. P.).—A second tentative draft for a United Nations relief and rehabilitation organization has been completed and is being sent to Allied governments for approval.

Diplomatic circles predict that Herbert H. Lehman, head of United States Foreign Relief, will be director-general.

Since the original United States draft was turned down by other governments, two important changes have been made.

One revision is based on suggestions from a number of smaller Powers in the United Nations, led by the Netherlands. It makes clear that the central committee composed of Britain, the U. S. S. R., China and the United States would be completely responsible to the council of all United Nations delegates.

The Netherlands rejected the first draft because the committee would be too powerful and the plan did not seem compatible with democratic principles.

The central committee is to function as an interim group when the council is not holding one of its planned semi-annual meetings. The first council meeting may be in November.

Lehman's Position Explained.

Congressional opinion was behind the second change, which makes specific provision that all commitments and agreements by members of the relief organization are to be in accordance with their own constitution and legislative procedures.

Appointment of Mr. Lehman as director general would clear up conflicting reports about whether he will remain at his present job as head of the Office of Foreign Relief and Rehabilitation Operations.

In the wake of recent State Department orders exerting control over all civilian agencies of the Government whose activities impinge on foreign relations, there has been speculation that the former New York Governor would feel hamstrung and resign.

Actually, it was learned at the State Department, Mr. Lehman's present job was never considered more than temporary until the United Nations set-up could be organized.

Mr. Lehman, if named to the New Post, would probably not be responsible to the State Department, not to the American Government directly. He would act in the name of all the nations who join the relief organization.

The organization is to deal with immediate problems of relief in both liberated and Allied nations. It also will set in motion steps for stimulating agriculture and industry in those countries.

C. P. Taft to Head Malay Rehabilitation

Washington, Sept. 22 (A. P.).—The State Department announced today the appointment of Charles P. Taft as head of all United States rehabilitation work for the East Endies and Malaya.

Mr. Taft has been director of the community work services of the Federal security agency since 1941. As representative of the State Department, he will head an interdepartmental committee composed of representatives of various agencies interested in economic problems in each of the two areas after their liberation.

Mr. Taft, a former Cincinnati lawyer was chairman of the Federal Steel Mediation Board in 1937 and has long been connected with Government and community service.

BARUCH FAVORS DRAFTING FATHERS

Give Gen. Marshall What He Wants, F.D.R. Advisor Tells Senators.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 — (AP) White-haired Bernard M. Baruch advsed a roomful of Congressmen today to give General George C. Marshall what he wants to win the war—including the draft of marrie men if they are needed—or else "throw him out."

Manifesting the highest respect for the chief of staff, whom he has known for 25 years, Mr. Baruch laid down this simple formula:

"The man in charge of the job should be given our unqualified support.

"No cheese paring. No trading down. Give him what he needs."

The big-framed financier, who was chairman of the War Industries board a quarter century ago, was invited by the Senate Military committee to give the final testimony on the bill by Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.) to defer pre-Pearl Harbor fathers from induction for the rest of 1943.

Decision Next Week

Even before Mr. Baruch testified, there was a movement on among some members of the committee quietly to shelve the bill. A decision is expected to be deferred until next week.

Now an unofficial advisor of President Roosevelt, Mr. Baruch recently completed a sweeping investigation of the national manpower situation with especial attention to West coast shortages.

Drawing on the facts brought out by that inquiry, he told the lawmakers that to attain "quick and certain victory" two steps must be taken:

"1. Improve our efficiency, which we can do in all fields of endeavor.

"2. Take from the civilians as much as is necessary but leave them at least their needs—not their fancied wants. All must be treated alike. There must be equality of sacrifice."

Those recommendations he laid down in a brief, formal statement. Then the questioning started, and got around to the problem of whether to draft fathers to give the Army the 7,700,000 men the general staff said should be in uniform by the end of this year.

Reynolds Turns Questioning

Gen. Hershey (Selective Service director) testified that he couldn't give General Marshall the men he wanted without taking pre-Pearl Harbor fathers," Chairman Reynolds (D-N.C.), said. "What is your opinion on that?"

" If General Marshall says he wants them, I'd give them to him," Mr. Baruch rapped out.

Without professing to possess any inside information, Mr. Baruch said it was apparent that a great offensive is in the making.

"General Marshall knows what he's doing," he said. "He wants to hit the enemy and hit them hard. You can't fool around with those Germans. They're war lords.

"I'd go to any extent General Marshall wants to go."

Draft Dads, Mother Cries In Senate

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—(AP) A shouted plea from a woman spectator for drafting of fathers closed the Senate Military committee's hearings today on the Wheeler bill.

Rising uninvited at her seat and talking so fast the committee stenographer could not record her remarks in full, she told the committeemen that Senator Wheeler (D., Mont.), author of the bill, was "evading the real issue."

Since the first inductions in the fall of 1940, she said, "thousands of young men have purposely gotten married to avoid military service."

"I am not insisting on the drafting of men who were fathers before that time," she said, "but I do feel that men should go when mere babies are going.

"I am the mother of four sons already in the service and a fifth, a baby of 18, still to go."

The official reporter understood her to give her name as "Mrs. Margaret Horvath" when he asked her to identify herself.

Newspapermen pressed her in vain for the spelling of her name and for her address.

Bernard M. Baruch, principal witness of the day, congratulated her on her statement.

ARMS PRODUCTION TAKES UPSWING, NELSON REVEALS

Battle Equipment Turned Out at Rapid Pace in August.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22. — (AP) Battle equipment—especially arms for invasion—rolled out of American war plants last month at a rate representing the biggest gain since April, the War Production board reported today, but output of warplanes still lagged behind schedule.

In a report so optimistic its tone reportedly caused Army concern, WPB Chairman Donald M. Nelson said "the August showing indicates that production is regaining its momentum" after a slow summer.

The release of the report coincided with Mr. Nelson's arrival in London where he is to integrate further munitions making of the United States and Britain.

It showed August arms production was up four per cent over July. With an 11 per cent gain in heavy bombers and a five per cent increase in fighter planes, overall aircraft production — 7,612 planes — gained three per cent, but remained behind schedule because of manpower problems and design changes.

WPB took an optimistic view of the plane output, however, because the weight and value of new aircraft increased seven per cent over July, a figure which the report said "dramatizes the trend toward heavier models, especially bombers."

"Our (plane) production rate now has grown to a point where interruptions for design changes can be made without seriously threatening the flow of planes to the fighting fronts," the report said. "When performance in battle indicates weakness in design x x x it is far better to adjust the design and take a temporary loss in production than to continue to produce planes with known defects."

Mr. Nelson said "we are still short of current aircraft schedules" and insisted "further rapid increases in the volume of production and further improvement in quality are required."

(During the day, the Senate's Truman War Investigating committee reported that production was "very bad" at the Brewster Aeronautical corporation's plant at Johnsville, Pa. Hugh Fulton, committee counsel, said frequent changes in design were, however, a factor in delaying production.)

Naval Craft Speeded

The WPB report said there were significant gains in the production of naval craft and in equipment vital to a land invasion. Self-propelled artillery increased 32 per cent over July, small arms, infantry weapons and anti-aircraft guns went up four per cent. Motor vehicles gained 10 per cent.

Production of combat vehicles, including tanks, declined six per cent, reflecting a cut in tank schedules.

Deliveries of Navy vessels hit a new record by increasing 40 per cent over July. Production exceeded the one-billion-dollar mark. Minor combat vessels increased 61 per cent, major combat vessels 41 per cent and landing craft 10 per cent. Merchant ship construction held about level.

Ammunition was about unchanged — no increase was scheduled — but the report said "by next spring this category is expected to become one of the outstanding Army ordnance programs, emphasizing the shift from capital to expendable items throughout the war program."

August production on the WPB index was 618 points, which means munitions manufacturing for that month was more than six times that in the pre-Pearl Harbor month of November, 1941.

FULBRIGHT VICTORY PLEASING TO HULL

Washington, Sept. 22 (A. P.).—Secretary of State Hull applauded today's adoption of the Fulbright resolution in the House yesterday by a 360 to 29 vote.

He told his press conference that he believed such overwhelming approval of this post-war cooperative declaration reflected "the determination of the people of the United States to collaborate effectively with other nations after the war to keep the peace."

"It is significant and commendable that in the Committee on Foregn Affairs and on the floor of the House the discussions of this resolution have been on a high plane and have been carried on in a non-partisan spirit," he said.

The Secretary laid particular emphasis on the fact that members of Congress have just reaturned from their constituencies and asserted: "It is exceedingly gratifying that the House passed the Fulbright resolution with such an overwhelming majority."

Tailoring To Insure Passage Of Post-War Bill Planned

Administration Ready to Make Concessions to Obtain Senate Adoption.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 — (AP) Evidence piled up today that the Administration is determined to tailor a proposed declaration of post-war foreign policy to a pattern that will win two-thirds approval in the Senate, even if its final wording is qualified and vague.

That will be the objective of Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky.) and Chairman Connally (D-Tex.) when the Foreign Relations committee begins drafting a statement. A subcommittee headed by Senator Connally will meet tomorrow on the question.

In the end, this may result in a compromise proposal doing little more than recasting into different languages the Fulbright "lasting peace" resolution which swept through the House on a 360 to 29 vote yesterday.

The Fulbright proposal would put Congress on record as "favoring the creation of appropriate international machinery with power adequate to establish and to maintain a just and lasting peace among the nations of the world, and as favoring participation by the United States therein, through its constitutional processes."

This declaration is not acceptable to backers of the Ball-Burton-Hatch resolution which would pledge to preserve the peace by military force. It is also unsatisfactory to those like Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.), who want American participation in world affairs to have constitutional and sovereignty limitations.

Oppose Super-State

Those in the Vandenberg camp want the resolution to preclude American entry into any "world super-state." They want something like the limitation to a "cooperation organization of sovereign nations" which the Republican Post-War Advisory council outlined.

The views of Senator Connally appear to offer the possibility of a compromise.

The Foreign Relations chairman favors the use of economic sanctions against aggressors and, if they fail, the weight of military force. He wants an effective international organization, but not a world superstate.

He is opposed to the establishment of an international police force, preferring armed forces furnished by each nation on a quota basis if and when necessary.

House approval of the Fulbright measure won enthusiastic applause today from Secretary of State Hull, who believed the action reflected "the determination of the people of the United States to collaborate effectively with other nations after the war to keep the peace. The secretary at his news conference read particular significance into such an "overwhelming majority" just after the House members had been at home in contact with their constituents.

VINSON SUPPORTS RENEGOTIATION ACT

Proposes Additional Agencies Be Subjected to Provisions of Measure.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23 — (AP) Chairman Vinson (D.-Ga.) of the House Naval committee, calling for continuation of the war contract renegotiation law, introduced today legislation to extend its provisions to additional agencies, set specific standards and provide for judicial appeals.

His measure would:

1—Bring the contracts of the Agriculture department and the War Shipping administration under provisions of the renegotiation law as well as those of the Army, Navy and Maritime commission which now are subject to the law for recovery of "excessive profits."

2—Call for the setting of specific standards under which contracts will be negotiated.

3—Provide for a judicial review in the Circuit Court of Appeals where contractors are dissatisfied with renegotiation decisions.

4—Require renegotiation officials, on request of the contractor, to furnish him with a statement of findings of facts on which renegotiation decisions were reached.

Foreign Contracts Involved

5—Bring under renegotiation provision pre-Pearl Harbor contracts with foreign governments which were taken over by the Lend-Lease administration.

As Rep. Vinson submitted his measure, Rep. Maas (R.-Minn.) proposed to the House Ways and Means committee that the renegotiation law be eliminated next Jan. 1 and a super-tax against excessive profits on war contracts be substituted.

Rep. Maas suggested imposition of a levy of up to 85 per cent on the 20 per cent net which industry now is allowed to retain (including a 10 per cent post-war refund) after the present excess profits tax is collected. He would allow reserves for conversion to peacetime production before assessing the super-levy.

Committee members said they would try to end the hearings tomorrow.

Army's Radio System a Link With Home

Washington, Sept. 22 (A. P.).—American soldiers overseas have a link with home even when it is only a voice in thin air.

Fiddle-chin Bob Hope, Balding Bing Crosby, Leggsy Betty Grable, and Sunday hymns come out of loudspeakers and radio sets to American soldiers in: Kiska, Chungking, Cairo, New Delhi, London, Oran, Palermo, Khoramahser at the head of the Persian Gulf and in Army huts in Greenland. Those are only a few of the places.

It is a big-scale operation by the Army at home and abroad.

Officers planning the invasion of Kiska telephoned to Washington asking for a radio station, picked it up in Los Angeles, moved it north, and took it ashore the day after the first troops landed.

Headed by experts who were top men in the radio field in civilian life, the job is handled by the Army's special service information branch radio section.

Two of their main jobs are making transcriptions and setting up overseas radio stations to broadcast them.

Where there are as yet no radio stations — Guadalcanal is one — transcriptions are broadcast from this country by short wave, a round-the-clock performance.

The radio section now transcribes thirty-six hours of programs a week on sixteen-inch unbreakable disc records. These are packed seventy-two to a box and delivered by plane wherever possible, one box at a time to one circuit. The Army is shipping out an average of over 2,000 transcriptions weekly to twenty-six circuits.

The Army has placed forty-eight stations of its own abroad and also uses private stations or those owned by other Governments—as in China, Australia and Egypt.

Nearly all the well-known screen, stage and radio stars have appeared on the radio section shows which bring together more talent than you at home may ever have heard on one program.

Two Marylanders Get Army Air Force Awards

Survivors Of Lost Ship Reach San Francisco

Washington, Sept. 22 (AP)—Survivors of a medium-sized United States merchant vessel damaged by an enemy torpedo early in May in the Southwest Pacific have arrived at San Francisco, the navy reported today.

There were no casualties. After the submarine attack, the vessel was towed to an Allied Southwest Pacific port.

Former Jap Agent Gets Year, Fined $9,000

New York, Sept. 22 (AP)—John C. Le Clair, 41, former New York and New Jersey college instructor, was sentenced to a year and a day imprisonment and fined $9,000 by Federal Judge J. Waties Waring today. He had pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with acting as an unregistered paid agent of the Japanese Government.

The fine equaled to the total received by Le Clair from the Japanese from July, 1938, until June, 1941, for articles of a pro-Japanese nature, which he wrote and which were distributed to numerous American newspapers and periodicals.

Jury Warns U. S. Must Tighten Immigration Act

New York, Sept. 22 (AP)—A Federal grand jury, which has spent sixteen months investigating cases involving the German-American Bund, immigration and naturalization says the United States will be placed in the "gravest jeopardy" after the war unless immigration laws are tightened.

Predicting an unprecedented influx of aliens, the jury recommended in a presentment yesterday that the nation adopt a system of "selective immigration," excluding all except those considered likely to contribute to the welfare of the country.

"The paramount consideration," the jury said, "is the welfare of the United States and not that of the immigrant."

WINDSOR DOUBTS EARLY END OF WAR

Boston, Sept. 22 (A. P.).—A belief that the war would end with "unexpected suddenness one day" but that that day would not come in the immediate future was expressed by the Duke of Windsor today.

The former King of England, now Governor-General of the Bahamas, in Boston with his Duchess to visit her invalided aunt, Mrs. D. Buchanan Merriman, who is hospitalized with a broken hip, also expressed regret over the heavy casualties which the American Fifth Army suffered in the invasion of Italy. He warned in a press conference, however, that the Allies must be prepared to suffer even more heavily before Germany is brought to its knees.

The Duchess, still dressed as she was when she stepped off the train this morning, smiled as she said:

"I expect you will see this black suit every day."

She added that clothes were entirely secondary now.

Navy Ordnance Chief Says U.S. Has Answer to Any Desperate Move.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 22.—(AP) The Axis may try to stave off defeat by a desperate assortment of so-called "secret weapons" like its highly touted radio-directed air bomb, but Uncle Sam is "not asleep" where technological developments are concerned, Rear Admiral W. H. P. Blandy said here tonight.

Completing a whirlwind inspection tour of United States Steel corporation plants in the district, the admiral, who is chief of the Bureau of Ordnance, told reporters:

"We have behind us the undivided concentration of research by the greatest group of scientists the world ever has known. I am sure they have the answer to any question a desperate Hitler can advance."

Speaking before a group of representatives of U. S. Steel, the admiral praised the steel industry for its efforts to produce the sinews of war, but said the industry probably would have to increase its output to even greater proportions in the future.

"In 1943 our steel production will total 88,000,000 ingot tons but for next year the strategic needs of your Army, Navy and Merchant Marine require 110,000,000 tons," he said.

Spy Suspect Faints in Court

DETROIT, Sept. 22 (AP).—Mrs. Theresa Behrens, forty-four-year-old social worker, was held for trial on a charge of conspiracy under the espionage act and fainted a few minutes later as she was being led from the courtroom of United States District Judge Edward J. Moinet today. She recovered shortly afterward in the United States Marshal's office. Mrs. Behrens, arrested on Aug. 24 and one of a group of men and women indicted on charges of attempting to obtain information for the German government, stood mute on the conspiracy charge and a plea of innocent was entered for her. She was ordered held in $25,000 bond.

Din of Battle Drowned Command, So Veteran Sergeant Becomes Hero

MEMPHIS, Sept. 22.—(AP) Sgt. David Woody, Memphis' veteran soldier who says he personally knocked out "wave after wave" of German infantrymen in the Tunisian campaign, asserted today that the exploit resulted from his failure to hear an order to retreat.

Wearer of the Silver Star for his heroic job, Sergeant Woody said his officer credited him with killing at least 200 Germans during two hours of bitter fighting near Medjez el Bab. The War department cited him for firing "with such accuracy that he knocked out two enemy mortars and inflicted severe casualties upon wave after wave of enemy infantrymen attacking his position."

Sergeant Woody explained his achievement by saying simply that his machine gun, protected by several riflemen, was covering a ridge over which the Germans charged. "I couldn't count them, but it looked like thousands to me," he said. "Every time they showed up over the ridge I let them have it."

Sergeant Woody said that when his outfit was ready to retreat "they sent word up, but apparently in the noise of firing I never heard it. They all went away and I was alone on that hill."

Remaining at the post until both machine gun and rifle ammunition were exhausted, he ducked from one slit trench to another and made his escape because the Germans "did some awful poor shooting." He said he fired 1500 rounds of machine gun ammunition and 120 rounds of rifle.

He was wounded in a later engagement and is recovering in an Woody has been in the Army 21 of his 38 years.

The resolution identified de Aryan as editor of "The Broom," and declared he was under indictment for sedition but now was out on bail.

Earlier William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, in a speech, pledged the A.F.L.'s full resources "to prevent a single moment's interruption in our production task." He asserted that Legion spokesmen "have at times been guilty of rash and unreasonable statements" with respect to organized labor's war effort.

1918 Army No Match For '43 Edition, Says Vet

OMAHA, Sept. 22—(AP) From "somewhere in the Pacific," J. Norman Lodge took time out from his duties as an Associated Press war correspondent to send word today to his buddies in the American Legion that America's fighting forces in the present war "make us veterans of 1918 look like sissies."

The "old sarge" of the first World war, in a letter to National Commander Roane Waring which was read before today's session of the Legion's national convention, said "our sons are doing one hell of a job against a tough, wily foe.

"In the jungles of the Solomons, in New Guinea and on the seas, we are not asking nor giving any quarter. If the Japs want to fight dirty we fight dirtier, if he has ideas he can scare our kids with frightful tactics, it is the Jap who first quits. And believe me, every one of you can be proud of the job these boys are doing."

LEGION AUXILIARY BACKS U. S. SERVICEWOMEN

OMAHA, Sept. 22 — (AP) The American Legion auxiliary, at its annual national convention, today adopted a resolution denouncing attacks on the character of American women serving in the armed forces and expressing "pride, confidence and sincere admiration" for the work they are doing.

In another resolution the auxiliary deplored what it said was a tendency of mothers of young children to rush into defense plants before the manpower of the country and the mature womanpower is exhausted.

Stettinius Asserts U. S. Will Step Up Lend-Lease

10% of Farm Products Will Be Shipped to Allies in '43

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 22 (AP).—Lend-Lease shipments from the United States to its Allies are being increased, and this nation is doing everything possible to expedite aid to Russia and China, Edward R. Stettinius jr., Lend-Lease Administrator, said today.

Ten per cent of our farm products in 1943 will be exported, he said, compared with 6 per cent last year.

"For the first six months of 1943," he said, "we have been able to export 11 per cent of our eggs compared with the 10 per cent annual rate in 1942; 14½ per cent of edible fats and oils, compared with 13 per cent; 20 per cent of dried fruits, compared with 15½ per cent; the same amount of canned vegetables (8/10 of 1 per cent); about the same amount of dried beans (13 per cent); but a lesser amount of milk, 2.2 per cent, compared with 3.4. Meat exports have increased to the annual rate of 7.7 per cent, compared with 5 per cent in 1942."

Mr. Stettinius gave his summary of Lend-Lease developments in an interview after he arrived to participate in the transfer of a Liberty ship to China, the second such vessel conveyed to that country in recent days.

NAVAL COMM. R.A. PRIOR, ATTACHED

london, sept. 22 (ap)--a british naval commander who escaped after being captured at dieppe and for nine months evaded the germans in FOR NINE MONTHS france, told the house of commons today that hitler's vaunted west wall was strong but that it could be breached by a well-organized and determined assault.

SEP 23 1943

the first-hand report on the horrors being suffered by the french under the nazis and how they look forward to words from prime minsiter churchill for strength to endure came from commander r.a. prior, who walked through france--even paris--dressed as a french workman. AFTER DROPPING FROM A GERMAN RECONNAISSANCE loyal frenchmen, at the risk of their own lives hid him-- even gave him hard-to-get ration coupons-- and with their help prior made his way over the pyrenees into spain where he was jailed ~~xxx~~ but subsequently released through the efforts of the british embassy.

prior, who before the dieppe raid , was awarded the d.s.c. for his part in the evacuation from dunquerque, was elected to commons last june.

SEP 23 1943

prior said he escaped from a hospital train after his capture and dieppe and fled to paris where he spent ten days. later he was recaptured by vichy authorities but escaped again and made his way to spain.

1943

the naval commander said nazi nerves in france "are very bad," [illegible] prior said he had had a chance to inspect part of the west wall.

[illegible]

SEP 23 1943

"it doubtless is very strong," he said, "but in my [illegible] view it could be assaulted and breached by a determined assault, well organized."

the french have been defeated but they have never been vanquished prior said and they "are still ready and willing to take up the fight."

describing his "walk through france" prior said he was asked everywhere "when are you coming to help us?"

SEP 23 1943

prior said he had talked with one man whose eyes had been put out by the nazis because he refused to talk and give away friends. he said he saw prison cells where there was not room enough to lie down and that he saw children wandering about starving, emaciated

"i have seen all these things in france," prior said, "and i find it very difficult to draw a subtle line where the nazi stop and the germans begin."

SEP 23 1943

the germans are looting the country he said and even [illegible] participating in the black market. the naval officer said he talked with a man in paris who told him he bought three tons of sugar on the black market and it was delivered in a german army truck.

paris, he said, was very like its old self--at the first glance--but when you look deeper you detect an uneasy feeling, an atmosphere of underground unrest, disquiet and desperation.

"the uneasy feeling," he said, "is apparent in the cafes. for while jazz bands are playing and everything is outwardly gay, you see people looking for signals out of the corner of their eyes and it is clear enough to you that something strange is going on."

in paris prior lived in a hotel but during the rest of the journey he had a rought time although he said sometimes he was lucky and got into a house of sympathizers.

AT A U.S.ARMY BOMBER BASE IN ENGLAND, THURSDAY SEPT 23-(AP)-A NAZI FIGHTER WHICH VENTURED TOO FAR INTO A FORMATION OF EIGHTH AIR FORCE THUNDERBOLTS 29,000 FEET ABOVE FRANCE YESTERDAY GAVE CAPT.CHARLES J.HOEY OF 874 DEVON ST., ARLINGTON, N.J., HIS FIRST KILL.

LT.JESSE GONNAM, FORMER FARMER OF VERONA, ILL., BAGGED A MESSERSCHMITT-109--HIS FIRST--two MINUTES LATER.

THE THUNDERBOLTS WERE AMONG HUNDREDS OF FIGHTERS WHICH SWEPT THROUGH FRANCE, BELGIUM AND HOLLAND IN SUPPORTING A HEAVY DAYLIGHT ATTACK ON THE GERMAN AIRBASE AT EVREUX-FAUVILLE, 45 MILES WEST OF PARIS.

SEP 24 1943

HOEY, ONE OF THE PILOTS WHO FERRIED THE FIRST EIGHTH AIRFORCE FIGHTERS ACROSS THE ATLANTIC, SAID HE WAS BOTHERED MORE BY INTENSE COLD THAN BY GERMAN FIGHTERS.

"WE WERE FLYING AT 29,000 FEET WHEN SEVERAL ME-109S POUNCED ON US," HE SAID. "ONE PLANE CAME INTO OUR FLIGHT AND I FOLLOWED HIM.

"I STARTED FIRING AND NOTICED HITS IN THE RIGHT WING, PROGRESSING TO THE COCKPIT. THEN THERE WERE RED FLASHES FROM THE COCKPIT FOLLOWED BY A CLOUD OF BLACK SMOKE. THEN SUDDENLY DOWN HE WENT."

SEP 24 1943

GONMAN SAID:

"AN ME-109 CAME INTO ABOUT 275 YARDS AND I LET HIM HAVE IT. THEN I SAW HIM SPINNING DOWN WITH SMOKE TRAILING."

HIS KILL WAS CONFIRMED BY HIS WINGMAN, LT.EDISON G.STIFF OF 301 WILLOW GROVE, HACKETTSTOWN, N.J.

AN ME-109 WAS CLAIMED BY SGT.B.L.PRIOR OF 1198 CHRISTIAN ST., HARRISBURG, PA., TAILGUNNER ON THE "WOLFPACK II" PILOTED BY LT.EDWARD L.MARRIGAN OF 248 AUDABON BLVD., CHATTANOOGA, TENN.

"THE MESSERSCHMITT PEELED OFF AND CAME AT US AT 6 O'CLOCK (FROM THE REAR). IT SHOT OUR SHIP'S RUDDER HALF AWAY, USING TRACERS FROM 400 TO 250 YARDS," SAID PRIOR. "THEN I GOT HIM."

OTHERS ON THE RAID FROM THIS BASE INCLUDED CAPT.EARL J.GARVIN OF 1344 ROLAND AVE., KANSAS CITY, KAS.; LT.R.J.BAKER OF 656 TOKAMA ST., BUFFALO, N.Y.; SGT.CHARLES VACANTI OF 1416 NORTH 17TH ST., OMAHA, NEB., TAIL GUNNER ON THE "SAD SACK," AND MAJ.WILLIAM S.BAILEY OF 900 E.AVENUE, ROCHESTER, N.Y.

WITH THE U.S. FIFTH ARMY IN ITALY, SEPT 19-(DELAYED)--THE GERMAN WITHDRAWAL WENT INTO HIGH GEAR FRIDAY NIGHT. THE TOWN OF EBOLI, LONG A BONE OF BITTER CONTENTION BETWEEN OPPOSING FORCES, WAS OCCUPIED AT 11:30 THIS MORNING. FOUR NEWSPAPERMEN, AN AMERICAN LIEUTENANT COLONEL AND A CAPTAIN ARRIVED 45 MINUTES LATER.

SHATTERED REMAINS OF THE ONCE PRETENTIOUS HILLTOWN, WHICH IN NORMAL TIMES HOUSES 25,000 PEOPLE, WERE QUIET AS OUR PARTY MOVED UP.

LT.COL.JOSEPH R.RUSS OF 1901 NORTH WAYNE ST., ARLINGTON,VA., AND CAPT.CHARLES O.ERWIN OF SANTA ROSA, N.M., WERE THE OFFICERS. YOUR CORRESPONDENT, WHO IS UNFORTUNATE ENOUGH TO SPEAK ITALIAN AND BE IN THE VAN, WAS SWAMPED BY FIVE LOCALS WITH HALITOSIS WHO INSISTED UPON AN EXCHANGE OF KISSES. OVER THE WINE WHICH THEY OFFERED US THEY DESCRIBED THE GERMANS IN TERMS OF ANATHEMA AND SWORE THEY HAD ROBBED THE PLACE DOWN TO THE LAST SUIT OF UNDERWEAR.

THE ROAD TO EBOLI WAS LITTERED WITH ANIMATE AND INANIMATE LEAVINGS OF THE BATTLE WHICH HAD RAGED IN THIS AREA FOR NINE LONG DAYS.

SEVERAL MILES FROM THE SEA WE CAME ACROSS THE REMAINS OF A GERMAN TANK AND ARMORED CAR ATTACK ON OUR LINES TWO NIGHT AGO. EIGHT ARMORED CARS AND TWO TANKS HAD BEEN BLASTED BY GUNS AND MINES AND HAD SCATTERED THEIR HUMAN AND OTHER CONTENTS OVER THE FIELDS. CHARRED BODIES, UNIFORMS, SHOES, POSTCARDS, GAS MASKS AND MEDICAL KITS WERE STEWN ALL OVER THE PLACE. THE ODOR OF THE BATTLEFIELD PERMEATED THE HOT MIDDAY AIR AND IT WAS NOT PLEASANT.

FARTHER DOWN THE ROAD WE MET 31 SURVIVORS OF AN OUTFIT WHICH HAD BEEN TRAPPED BEHIND ENEMY LINES SINCE MONDAY NIGHT, FIVE DAYS.

1943

THEY HAD LAIN IN BUSHES NEAR SELERVER, LIVING ON DRIED CORN AND ONIONS AND SUFFERING THE EXASPERATING EXPERIENCE OF BEING STRAFED AND BOMBED BY OUR OWN PLANES. GERMAN ARTILLERY, MORTARS AND MACHINE-GUNS WERE WITHIN 200 YARDS OF THEM MANY TIMES, THEY SAID. #

HE SPEAKS FRENCH. HE TELLS ME THIS IS NO PLACE TO BE.

MARIO IS IN THE ITALIAN NAVY. HE IS GLAD TO SEE US. HE TELLS ME HIS BUDDIES ARE GLAD TOO. THEY ARE ALL STANDING AROUND NOW NODDING AND GRINNING.

AFTER A BRIEF TOUR OF LERO I CAN TESTIFY THE NATIVES DEFINITELY ARE FRIENDLY -- BOTH THOSE OF ITALIAN AND GREEK STOCK.

I DROVE THIS AFTERNOON FROM THE PORT OF LERO TO ONE OF THE MANY NEWLY-STRENGTHENED BRITISH BASES ON THE ISLAND. THE TRUCK WAS ITALIAN, DRIVEN BY AN ITALIAN.

THE DRIVER, WHO WAS MUNCHING BRITISH ARMY BISCUITS, HAD CURLING BLACK HAIR, A SLICK MOUSTACHE AND A FINE PROFILE. HE TOLD ME HE HAD LOST TWO BROTHERS IN ALLIED AIR RAIDS ON NAPLES.

"WAR IS TERRIBLE," HE SAID SIMPLY.

AS WE DROVE ALONG THE ROADS WE KEPT STOPPING EVERY FEW MINUTES TO HAND OUT SCRAPS OF BRITISH ARMY BISCUITS AND TINNED SWEETS TO MISERABLY THIN, POORLY CLAD PEASANTS. THE DRIVER SAID THE "PEOPLE ARE VERY HUNGRY."

CONSIDERING THE POVERTY OF THE PLACE WE ARE GETTING A ROYAL WELCOME. THE ONLY THING PLENTIFUL IN LERO IS HAIR OIL.

THE LIBERATOR SHIFT MADE CERTAIN THAT HITLERLAND IS GOING TO GET A WINTER AIR OFFENSIVE UNPARALLELED IN MODERN WAR.

IN THE MEDITERRANEAN THE TECHNIQUE OF "PATTERN BOMBING" HAS BEEN FURTHER DEVELOPED. THE EFFECT OF THIS PATTERN BOMBING--DELIVERED FROM A GREAT NUMBER OF SHIPS FLYING IN FORMATION--WHEN USED AGAINST CITIES IS FAR GREATER THAN THE EFFECT FROM THE SAME TONNAGE OF BOMBS DROPPED AT RANDOM.

FOR EXAMPLE, A FLYING FORTRESS CARRYING EIGHT 500-POUND BOMBS AND DROPPING THEM 150 YARDS APART, WILL DEVASTATE AN AREA AT LEAST 100 YARDS WIDE AND 1,200 YARDS LONG. WHEN SCORES OF FORTRESSES FLY SIDE BY SIDE WHOLE SECTIONS OF CITIES CAN BE LEVELLED.

THIS METHOD HAS BEEN USED ON SMALL TOWNS HARBORING GERMAN TROOPS IN ITALY, AND IN BATTIPAGLIA, WHERE IO WAS TRIED ON A SMALL SCALE, EVERY BUILDING IN THE TOWN WAS LEVELLED, TROOPS ENTERING THE PLACE REPORTED. THE METHOD MAKES IT IMPOSSIBLE TO WASTE BOMBS BY DROPPING THEM IN THE SAME PLACE.

DESPITE THE GERMAN USE OF THE NEW "GLIDER BOMB," WHICH IS RADIO CONTROLLED, THE GERMAN AIR EFFORT IN THE MEDITERRANEAN HAS BEEN THE WEAKEST OF ANY CAMPAIGN OF THIS WAR.

THE "GLIDER BOMB" UNDOUBTEDLY IS THE LONG-HERALDED GERMAN SECRET WEAPON, BUT IT HAS THE FUNDAMENTAL WEAKNESS OF ANY OTHER BOMB. IT MUST BE CARRIED BY A PLANE, AND IF THE CONTROL PLANE IS SHOT DOWN THE BOMB IS NO GOOD. THUS FAR THE GERMANS HAVE BEEN ABLE TO USE IT ONLY IN SINGLE-PLANE, SNEAK RAIDS IN WHICH THEY TRIED TO GET THROUGH GAPS IN THE ALLIED AIR COVER.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, SEPT.22-(AP)-PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL GAVE THE UNITED NATIONS A LOT OF NEWS IN HIS ADDRESS TO COMMONS YESTERDAY, BUT HE ALSO BROKE THE HEARTS OF A LOT OF WAR CORRESPONDENTS.

HE DISCLOSED, AMONG OTHER THINGS, THAT THE GERMANS WERE EMPLOYING A NEW RADIO-DIRECTED GLIDER BOMB AGAINST ALLIED SHIPPING. DON WHITEHEAD OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS SUBMITTED A STORY ABOUT THE SAME BOMB A WEEK AGO, AND THE CENSORS IN NORTH AFRICA FINALLY RELEASED IT ONLY TODAY.

HE TOLD THE WORLD THAT AMERICAN TROOPS HAD LANDED ON SARDINIA. CORRESPONDENTS HERE KNEW THAT SOME ALLIED FORCES WERE IN SARDINIA BEFORE THE GERMAN EVACUATION OF THE ISLAND WAS ANNOUNCED, BUT THEY WERE UNABLE TO WRITE A WORD ABOUT IT. TODAY, 30 HOURS AFTER THE BRITISH PREMIER SPOKE, OFFICIAL SPOKESMEN AT HEADQUARTERS HERE FAILED TO GIVE THE PRESS ANY DETAILS.

THE CORRESPONDENTS WERE EVEN MORE UNHAPPY TO LEARN THAT CHURCHILL DISCLOSED THAT ITALIAN AND BRITISH WARSHIPS PARTICIPATED IN THE CORSICA ACTION. THEY KNEW THE FACTS BUT HAD BEEN REFUSED PERMISSION TO MENTION ANYTHING IN THAT CONNECTION EXCEPT THAT SOME UNNAMED FRENCH WARSHIPS PARTICIPATED.

THE CORRESPONDENTS HAD BEEN WARNED AGAINST SAYING ANYTHING ABOUT A INTER-ALLIED COMMISSION TO DEAL WITH ITALY, BUT THE PRIME MINISTER LET THE WHOLE WORLD IN ON WHAT THEY HAD BEEN TOLD WAS A MILITARY SECRET.

MOSCOW, SEPT 22-(AP)-HISTORY TURNED BACK UPON ITSELF TODAY IN THE VALLEY BETWEEN THE DESNA AND DNIEPER RIVERS AS THE RED ARMY PUSHED ON IN THE DIRECTION OF KIEV AFTER CAPTURING CHERNIGOV--FOR THIS WAS THE WAY THE GERMANS TOOK KIEV.

SMASHING THROUGH THE LUSH VALLEY--OF COURSE, IN THE OPPOSITE DIRECTION--THE NAZIS IN 1942 SETTLED THEMSELVES IN CHERNIGOV AND THEN DROVE DOWN UPON KIEV.

HERE IN MOSCOW, WHERE HOPES SOAR WITH THE ROCKETS THAT ARCH SKYWARD IN SALUTE TO THE LATEST VICTORIES, THERE IS A FEELING AMONG THE PEOPLE THAT THE RUSSIANS CAN DUPLICATE THAT TRICK.

CHERNIGOV IS THE GATEWAY TO THE DNIEPER, 20 MILES AWAY. AN OPEN ROAD TO THE DNIEPER WAS AHEAD OF THE RED ARMY AS IT SMASHED FORWARD FROM CHERNIGOV.

SEP 23 1943

AS THE RUSSIANS GRABBED THAT IMPORTANT COMMUNICATIONS CENTER ON THE WESTERN BANK OF THE DESNA, THEY SHUT OFF GOMEL'S LAST RAILWAYS TO THE SOUTH AND SEIZED A SERIES OF HIGHWAYS LEADING INTO WHITE RUSSIA.

THE ROCKETS THAT CUT THROUGH MOSCOW'S CHILLING SKIES LAST NIGHT AND THE GUNS THAT BOOMED THE VICTORY SALUTE PAID TRIBUTE TO THE REMARKABLE DRIVE THAT IN THREE OR FOUR DAYS HAD CARRIED THE SOVIET FORCES 40 TO 60 MILES FROM THEIR JUMPING-OFF POINTS EAST OF CHERNIGOV.

DISPATCHES FROM THE FRONT SAID THE RUSSIANS ENCOUNTERED HARD FIGHTING IN THEIR ADVANCE, PARTICULARLY SOUTHEAST OF CHERNIGOV IN THE DISTRICTS OF KOSHOLIOVKA AND BERESTOVTZI. THEY ALSO DISCLOSED THAT THE FIGHTERS ON THE CENTRAL FRONT WERE HAMPERED BY THE LACK OF ROADS IN THAT REGION.

THE PATTERN FOR SUCH WARFARE WAS SET RECENTLY AT LAE. AFTER FOOLING THE JAPANESE GARRISON THERE INTO REINFORCING SALAMAUA, 18 MILES TO THE SOUTHEAST, BY PRETENDING THE MAIN BLOW WOULD BE STRUCK THERE, MACARTHUR LANDED FORCES UNDER GUNS OF AMERICAN WARSHIPS ABOVE LAE SEPT. 4 AND THE NEXT DAY LOOKED ON FROM A FLYING FORTRESS WHILE AN AIR ARMADA LANDED PARATROOP FORCES BEHIND LAE. THE JAPANESE WERE SO SURPRISED THEY OFFERED ALMOST NEGLIGIBLE OPPOSITION AND LAE FELL SEPT. 16.

ISLAND TO ISLAND MOVEMENT, MACARTHUR SAID, ENTAILS HEAVY CASUALTIES. SUCH ISLAND BY ISLAND MOVEMENT MARKED PROGRESS FROM GUADALCANAL UP THROUGH NEW GEORGIA IN THE SOLOMONS AFTER WHICH THE PROCEDURE WAS VARIED BY THE SURPRISE OCCUPATION OF VELLA LAVELLA, BYPASSING JAPANESE-HELD KOLOMBANGARA.

IN PRESS CONFERENCES, GENERAL MACARTHUR HAS EXPRESSED BELIEF THAT AUSTRALIA IS MORE SUITABLE THAN EITHER HAWAII OR THE ALEUTIANS FOR AN OFFENSIVE AGAINST JAPAN AND THAT, ONCE NEW GUINEA HAS BEEN CLEARED OF THE ENEMY, THE NATURAL THING WOULD BE TO AIM FOR THE PHILIPPINES, BYPASSING JAPANESE HOLDINGS IN THE NETHERLANDS EAST INDIES.

LORD MOUNTBATTEN'S APPOINTMENT WAS ANNOUNCED AUG. 25 AFTER HE HAD ATTENDED THE QUEBEC CONFERENCE. ON AUG. 26 HE WENT TO WASHINGTON TO CONFER WITH ADM. ERNEST J.KING. THE SAME DAY IT WAS LEARNED HE WOULD CONFER IN CHUNGKING WITH GEN. CHIANG KAI-SHEK BEFORE STARTING THE BURMA CAMPAIGN AGAINST JAPAN. HE RETURNED TO LONDON SEPT. 1.

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, SEPT 22 (AP)-A YEAR AGO TODAY, THE JAPANESE BATTLE PLAN CALLED FOR THE OCCUPATION OF PORT MORESBY, AND THE FANATICAL, FEVER-RIDDEN, HALF-STARVED JAPANESE SOLDIERS HAD PUSHED THEIR WAY OVER THE OWEN STANLEY RANGE WITHIN 32 MILES OF THEIR OBJECTIVE.

WHILE ALLIED SOLDIERS FOUGHT IN THE JUNGLE, GENERAL DOUGLAS MACARTHUR'S SMALL BUT HARD-HITTING AIRPOWER WAS PUNCHING THE JAPANESE WITH EVERYTHING THEY HAD--WHICH WAS ONLY A HANDFUL OF THOSE GRAND BOMBERS, B 17'S.

THE B17'S WERE SO SCARCE AND NEEDED SO BADLY THAT THE MORESBY AIRDROME AREA WAS CONSIDERED TOO "HOT" EVEN TO LEAVE THEM THERE OVERNIGHT. SO THEY FLEW HUNDREDS OF MILES FROM AUSTRALIAN BASES TO MAKE BRIEF RAIDS, THEN RE-FUELED AND RETURNED TO AUSTRALIA FOR SAFETY.

THE MEMBERS OF ONE UNIT WHICH FLEW A MISSION OVER LAE THE DAY IT FINALLY FELL TO THE ALLIES, HAVE COMPLETED MONTHS OF COMBAT FLYING AND ARE GOING FOR A WELL-DESERVED REST. BUT THEIR OLD FORTRESSES, ALTHOUGH NO LONGER IN THE BATTLE WITH ZEROS, WILL STAY IN ACTION AS TRANSPORT PLANES.

SOME OF THESE FORTRESSES WHICH CAME BACK FROM THE FAREWELL TRIP OVER CONQUERED LAE ARE FROM THE OLD 19TH AND 7TH BOMBARDMENT GROUPS WHICH CAME OUT OF THE PHILIPPINES AND JAVA. THEY FOUGHT IN THE BATTLE OF THE PHILIPPINES, IN THE JAVA SEA, MACASSAR STRAITS, CORAL SEA, BISMARCK SEA, PAPUAN CAMPAIGN--CLEAR THROUGH TO THE FALL OF LAE.

THE ACTUAL RECORDS OF THESE FORTRESSES WERE STARTED LAST NOVEMBER, SO THAT THEIR 21-MONTH SERVICE RECORDS ARE NOT COMPLETE. BUT HERE'RE THE COMBAT HOURS FOR A FEW OF THE OLD VETERANS:

ONE PLANE HAS 1500 COMBATT HOURS, APPROXIMATING 250 MISSIONS; ANOTHER 331 COMBAT HOURS, 147 MISSIONS; STILL ANOTHER 324 COMBAT HOURS, 95 MISSIONS.

THESE OLD BATTLERS HAVE RETURNED TO THEIR BASES, WITHOUT EXAGGERATION, ON "A WING AND A PRAYER."

THE LATE BELOVED MAJ.KENNETH MCCULLAR, WHO FLEW AS MANY AS FOUR LONG MISSIONS IN ONE DAY, RETURNED FROM A STRIKE AT RABAUL, NEW BRITAIN, WITH THE FUSELAGE RIDDLED, TWO ENGINES OUT, A CREWMAN DEAD, THE HYDRAULICS AND LANDING SYSTEM USELESS. BUT THE PLANE HAD COMPLETED ITS MISSION.

ONE OF THESE PLANES WAS USED TO PERFECT SKIP-BOMBING A YEAR AGO.

OTTAWA, SEPT. 22-(CANADIAN PRESS)-FURTHER CLARIFICATION AND SIMPLIFICATION OF SELECTIVE SERVICE REGULATIONS APPLYING TO FARMERS WAS URGED UPON THE GOVERNMENT BY A DELEGATION REPRESENTING PAPER PRODUCING AND CONSUMING INTERESTS AS A MEANS OF AVOIDING A POTENTIAL 20-PER-CENT PRODUCTION SHORTAGE.

THE DELEGATES TOLD THE GOVERNMENT YESTERDAY THAT FARMERS WHO NORMALLY GO INTO THE WOODS IN THE WINTER TO CUT PUPPWOOD WERE REFUSING TO DO SO BECAUSE THEY FEARED THEIR COMPULSORY SERVICE DEFERMENT AS FARMERS WOULD BE PREJUDICED.

THE DELEGATION WAS REPRESENTATIVE OF THE CANADIAN DAILY NEWSPAPERS ASSOCIATION AND THE PULP AND PAPER INDUSTRY OF CANADA.

AFTER A 2 1/2-HOUR CONFERENCE WITH THE CABINET, THE DELEGATES WERE TOLD THAT THE GOVERNMENT WAS THOROUGHLY AWARE OF THE PROBLEM AND WOULD DO ITS BEST TO MEET IT.

THE PULP AND PAPER DELEGATES TOLD THE GOVERNMENT THAT THERE WAS A POTENTIAL SHORTAGE THREATENED FOR THE COMING CUTTING YEAR OF 1,750,000 CORDS OF PULPWOOD, ABOUT 20 PER CENT OF THE PRODUCTION NEEDED TO MAINTAIN CURRENT REQUIREMENTS.

THEY SAID THEY WERE CONVINCED THAT MANY FARMERS WHO NORMALLY GO INTO THE WOODS TO CUT PULPWOOD WERE STAYING OUT BECAUSE THEY FEARED THEY WOULD LOSE THEIR SELECTIVE SERVICE EXEMPTION AS FARMERS.

THEY REQUESTED THAT FARMERS BE GIVEN THE NECESSARY ASSURANCE THAT THIS WOULD NOT HAPPEN AND STRESSED THAT THIS WOULD NOT TAKE MEN FROM OTHER ESSENTIAL INDUSTRY BUT WOULD MERELY MEAN THE USEFUL OCCUPATION OF FARMERS WHO OTHERWISE MIGHT REMAIN IDLE.

NEW YORK SEPT 22-(AP)-THE CAPTURE OF THE UKRAINIAN CAPITAL OF KIEV --AND TONIGHT IT APPEARED IMMINENT--WOULD MARK A SIGNIFICANT GAIN IN THE RED ARMY'S DRIVE TO SWEEP EVERY GERMAN FROM RUSSIAN SOIL.

KIEV IS RUSSIA'S FOURTH LARGEST CITY AND "MOTHER" OF ALL RUSSIAN CITIES. THE LOFTY, GOLD-COATED DOMES AND ONION-SHAPED TOWERS OF KIEV'S ANCIENT CHURCHES ALREADY WERE IN VIEW OF SOVIET TROOPS.

SPANISH CORRESPONDENTS IN BERLIN REPORTED YESTERDAY THE GERMAN UKRAINIAN ADMINISTRATION WAS EVACUATING KIEV.

KIEV, WHOSE HISTORY RUNS BACK OVER MORE THAN 1,000 YEARS AND TOUCHES ON MANY OTHER BLOODY ERAS, COMMANDS THE WIDE WESTERN BULGE OF THE DNIEPER.

THE CITY, BUILT ON HIGH GROUND, LIES LESS THAN 100 MILES FROM THE EASTERN BOUNDARIES OF NAZI-OCCUPIED POLAND.

SEP 23 1943

IT IS LESS THAN 300 AIR MILES NORTH OF THE STRATEGIC BLACK SEA PORT OF ODESSA. THE CITIES ARE ABOUT TWICE THAT DISTANCE APART AS THE DNIEPER FLOWS.

BEFORE THE WAR, KIEV WAS A CLEAN, NEATLY APPOINTED CITY, WITH WIDE, STRAIGHT STREETS, TROLLEY AND BUS LINES AND HANDSOME, UP-TO-THE-MINUTE BUILDINGS.

FOR TWO MONTHS IN 1941, THE GERMAN WAR MACHINE LAID SIEGE TO THE CITY, WHICH IS ABOUT THE SIZE OF BUFFALO OR MILWAUKEE AND HAD ABOUT 850,000 RESIDENTS. THAT SEPTEMBER, AFTER A VALIANT STAND, KIEV FELL, AND THE NAZIS SWIFTLY INSTALLED THEIR REIGN OF HORROR.

THOUSANDS OF BOMBS HAVE BEEN DROPPED ON KIEV. SHELLS FROM BIG GUNS AND STREET FIGHTING ADDED MORE SCARS TO THE SCENE. IN OCTOBER, 1941, A FIRE RAGED THROUGH THE CITY FOR FIVE DAYS. THE NEXT OCTOBER, PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL SAID 54,000 KIEV RESIDENTS ALREADY HAD BEEN MURDERED BY THE NAZIS.

THE NAZIS, WITH FOOLISH CONFIDENCE THAT THE TIDE COULD NOT TURN, SET UP A BRANCH OF THE GIANT KRUPP STEEL WORKERS IN THE CITY.

FOR THREE YEARS, THE NAZIS REVELLED IN THIS ADDITION TO HITLER'S EMPIRE.

THE BEGINNING OF 1943 SPELLED THE BEGINNING OF THE END OF THAT REVELRY.

SEP 23 1943

IN RUSSIAN HANDS, KIEV WAS A GREAT COMMERCIAL CENTER, DRAWING MUCH OF ITS TRADE FROM THE DNIEPER PLATEAU, WITH ITS FACTORIES AND HOME INDUSTRIES, ITS AGRICULTURE, FRUIT CULTURE AND CATTLE RAISING.

THE OLDER PART OF THE CITY, WHICH ONCE WAS THE CAPITAL OF RUSSIA, OCCUPIES A HIGH, FORTIFIED CLIFF OVERLOOKING THE RIVER. THE LOWER CITY, OPPOSITE THE MOUTH OF THE DESNA WHICH JOINS THE DNIEPER HERE, HAD BEEN CONGESTED WITH THE FLOW OF GOODS BETWEEN THE RIVER AND KIEV'S GREAT RAILROAD PATTERN. KIEV RANKED WITH LONDON AND PARIS COMMERCIAL-LY IN THE MIDDLE AGES.

KIEV ALSO WAS AN EDUCATIONAL CENTER. IN NORMAL TIMES, SOME 25,000

STUDENTS ATTENDED ITS TECHNICAL SCHOOLS, SCIENTIFIC LABORATORIES AND ACADEMY OF SCIENCES. ITS LIBRARY CONTAINED ABOUT 2,000,000 BOOKS BEFORE THE NAZIS CAME.

SINCE THE DAY OF ST.VLADIMIR, WHO ESTABLISHED THE GREEK CHURCH AS THE STATE RELIGION OF RUSSIA IN 988, KIEV HAS BEEN A RELIGIOUS CENTER, CALLED "THE UKRAINIAN JERUSALEM." EVERY YEAR IN PEACE TIME THOUSANDS OF PILGRIMS CAME TO WORSHIP AT KIEV'S CHURCHES.

THROUGH THE CENTURIES THE CITY'S CHURCHES, WHICH HAD INCREASED IN NUMBER TO 150, GATHERED JEWELS AND GOLD AND SILVER VALUED AT $500,000,000. WHEN THE BOMBS FELL THEY FELL TOWARD MANY DOMES OF GOLD.

ONE HISTORIAN SAYS KIEV WAS FOUNDED IN 564 BY THREE BROTHERS, KIY, SHCHEK AND KHORIV. WHEN THEY DIED, TWO SCANDINAVIANS, ASKOLD AND DIR, SEIZED THE CITADEL--AND EVER SINCE, KIEV HAS PAID RICH TRIBUTE TO ITS HOLDERS. IN 1240 KIEV WAS SACKED BY THE TATARS UNDER BATU. FIVE YEARS LATER THE CITY WAS LAID IN RUINS BY CARPINI.

KIEV WAS UNDER POLISH RULE FOR MANY YEARS UNTIL 1654, AND FINALLY WAS INCORPORATED AS PART OF RUSSIA IN 1686.

BRITISH PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL HAS THE KNACK OF HITTING THE NAIL ON THE HEAD, AS HE AGAIN DEMONSTRATED YESTERDAY ON THE MANNER IN WHICH HE DROVE HOME THE POINTS OF HIS NOTABLE TWO-HOUR WAR REPORT TO THE HOUSE OF COMMONS.

OUTSTANDING WAS THE PREMIER'S WARNING OF THE NEED OF CORDIAL RELATIONS BETWEEN THE ANGLO-AMERICAN ALLIES AND THEIR RUSSIAN COLLEAGUE -- A SUBJECT WHICH LONG HAS BEEN DRIVING MANY TIMID STATESMEN TO THE HURRICANE CELLAR. HE BROACHED THE MATTER BY ANNOUNCING THAT NOT ONLY WILL THERE BE A CONFERENCE OF REPRESENTATIVES OF AMERICA, BRITAIN AND RUSSIA "AT AN EARLY DATE" BUT THAT THIS WILL BE FOLLOWED BY A ROOSEVELT-STALIN-CHURCHILL PARLEY, AND OF THIS LATTER PROJECT HE SAID:

"NO MEETING DURING THIS WAR COULD CARRY WITH IT SO MUCH SIGNIFICANCE FOR THE FUTURE OF THE WORLD AS A MEETING BETWEEN THE HEADS OF THE THREE GOVERNMENTS, FOR WITHOUT CLOSE, CORDIAL AND LASTING ASSOCIATION BETWEEN SOVIET RUSSIA AND THEIR GREAT ALLIES WE MIGHT FIND OURSELVES AT THE END OF THE WAR ONLY TO HAVE ENTERED UPON A PERIOD OF DEEPENING CONFUSION."

30.24-8711

SEP 24 1943

MR.CHURCHILL THUS APPROACHED A GREAT ISSUE WHICH IS CAUSING INCREASING ANXIETY -- THAT IS, THE NEED OF IRONING OUT IMPORTANT DIFFERENCES IN VIEWPOINT BETWEEN THE ANGLO-AMERICAN PARTNERSHIP AND OUR SOVIET ALLY. THESE PROBLEMS ARE LARGELY POLITICAL AND UNLESS THEY ARE SOLVED THEY WILL BODE NO GOOD TO A POST-WAR WORLD WHICH WILL BE ENTERING A NEW EPOCH IN THE PROGRESS OF MANKIND.

TO MY MIND THE FUNDAMENTAL FACT TO WHICH ALL PARTIES MUST ADJUST THEIR OUTLOOK IS THAT RUSSIA'S STAR SEEMS TO BE LEADING HER STRAIGHT TO DOMINATION OF MOST OF EUROPE AND ASIA AFTER THIS WAR. LOOK AT IT WHATEVER WAY YOU WILL -- POLITICALLY, ECONOMICALLY OR MILITARILY -- AND THE ANSWER IS THE SAME. THIS VAST, SELF-CONTAINED, INVULNERABLE EMPIRE WILL BE THE MOST POWERFUL UNIT OF THE EASTERN HEMISPHERE. THAT'S A DECREE OF FATE, AND THE ONLY WAY TO MEET IT IS TO RECOGNIZE IT AND STRIVE FOR A FRANK UNDERSTANDING.

AMONG THE QUESTIONS ON WHICH THE SOVIET AND THE WESTERN ALLIES APPEAR TO BE RATHER FAR APART IS THAT RELATING TO THE METHOD OF HANDLING THE DEFEATED AXIS COUNTRIES, AND ESPECIALLY AS REGARDS THE TREATMENT OF GERMANY. AMERICA AND BRITAIN DEMAND UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER, WHICH WOULD BE FOLLOWED BY MILITARY OCCUPATION.

MOSCOW, ON THE OTHER HAND, HAS NODDED APPROVAL OF THE ACTIVITIES OF GERMAN OFFICERS AND OTHERS IN RUSSIA WHO HAVE FORMED COMMITTEES AND ARE TRYING TO PERSUADE THE GERMAN PEOPLE TO OVERTHROW HITLER AND FORM A GOVERNMENT WHICH THEY HOPE MIGHT SECURE A NEGOTIATED PEACE. THE SIGNS ARE, TOO, THAT THE SOVIET DOESN'T CARE FOR THE ALLIED PLANS FOR SUPERVISING ITALY.

SEP 24 1943

UNDERLYING THE ISSUE OF THE POST-WAR HANDLING OF BOTH GERMANY AND ITALY THERE IS, OF COURSE, THE VERY BIG QUESTION OF WHAT FORM OF GOVERNMENT THESE COUNTRIES ULTIMATELY WILL ADOPT FOR THEMSELVES. FROM WHAT FOUNT WILL THEY DRAW THEIR INSPIRATION?

THEN THERE'S THE QUESTION OF THE BALKANS, WHICH RUSSIA REGARDS AS WITHIN HER SPHERE OF INFLUENCE BUT WHICH ALSO FIGURE IN BRITAIN'S INTERESTS IN THE MIDDLE EAST. AND OVER IN IRAN (PERSIA) THE OLD, OLD RIVALRY BETWEEN BRITAIN AND RUSSIA FOR DOMINATION OF THIS STRATEGICALLY SITUATED STATE IS WORKING OVERTIME, AS WAS MADE QUITE CLEAR TO ME DURING MY RECENT VISIT TO THAT COUNTRY. MORE THAN INCIDENTALLY, MANY OBSERVERS HOLD THAT RUSSIA HAS HER EYE ON THE PERSIAN GULF TO PROVIDE HER WITH ONE OF THE WARM WATER PORTS WHICH SHE NEEDS SO BADLY.

SO IT GOES, AND THE FURTHER WE PROCEED IN SURVEYING THE POSITION THE MORE APPARENT DOES IT BECOME THAT THERE MUST BE A MIGHTY LOT OF GIVE AND TAKE AMONG THE ALLIES IF GRAVE DIFFICULTIES ARE TO BE AVOIDED. THAT MUST BE NEGOTIATED BEFORE THE END OF THE WAR, FOR AFTERWARD MAY BE TOO LATE.

GERMANS PREPARE TO EVACUATE CITY AS ALLIES ADVANCE

GALLAGHER

Nazis Put Torch to Industrial Areas of Italian Metropolis.

CORSICA ALMOST FREED

Battle for French Island Enters Its Final Stages.

FIFTH ARMY GAINS

Troops Move Ahead Ten Miles to Straighten Out Line.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 23.—(AP) German torch and dynamite crews demolished the Naples waterfront, scuttled 30 ships to block the harbor and wrecked industrial and rail centers in the great Italian metropolis in apparent preparation for evacuation as Allied armies lunged tonight within sight and sound of the wholesale destruction.

The battle for Corsica was in its final stage. French troops and American Rangers closed in on Bastia, northeast port of the Napoleonic island, and Allied navies and air forces clamped on a tight blockade, cutting off German escape. Gen. Henri Giraud, French commander in chief, predicted that all Germans on the island would be ousted or killed in "from 10 to 15 days."

Allies Straighten Lines

Advances of from 10 to 15 miles in central and southern Italy put great chunks of land behind the straightening Allied lines.

The whole German left flank in the Salerno area, 20 to 40 miles south of Naples, was pried loose and turned inland. The American Fifth and British Eighth armies were advancing and forcing Marshal Albert Kesselring to draw grudgingly back on the interior approaches to flaming Naples.

Ginosa, Avigliano and Acerno fell.

(The British radio said Auletta and Contursi had been captured. Auletta is 36 miles southeast of Salerno on the road to Potenza. Contursi is 26 miles southwest of Salerno, and there the Germans admitted "a dent made by the enemy in our positions.")

A French communique said the Germans lost heavily in men and material near the tiny Corsican seaport of Solenzara, 60 miles south of Bastia on the east coast. A small number of Rangers are fighting alongside the French and Corsican patriots in the battle. Bastia was bombed again, and flight routes between Corsica and Leghorn and Elba were constantly patrolled. The French bulletin said:

Island Blockaded

"Allied navies and air forces are maintaining a very effective blockade of the eastern coast of the island, making it difficult for the enemy to evacuate material or personnel by sea or by air."

German air power over the entire Mediterranean appeared to be in a state of collapse. The Allies battered German ships leaving Corsica, roamed freely over southern Italy to crash high explosives among the fleeing foe, and bombed objectives in Greece, Rhodes and Crete without molestation.

Almost no Nazi aircraft were reported anywhere along the 1,500-mile Mediterranean front, and huge Allied ship convoys moved at will.

Most of the Allied land gains in Italy were north of Taranto and above the instep of the Italian boot as the reinforced British Eighth army and British Fifth corps pushed forward on the heels of Germans retreating northward toward the cluster of major air fields around Foggia.

Ginosa is 25 miles northwest of Taranto and 14 miles inland from its gulf. Avigliano is 50 miles east of Salerno and eight miles northwest of Potenza. Acerno is 18 miles east and slightly north of Salerno.

Thus the continuous Allied line from Salerno on the Mediterranean to above Bari on the Adriatic had been pushed forward eight miles northwest of Potenza, 14 miles north of Sala Consilina and 10 miles west of Mottala, which is north of Taranto.

Small gains were made north of Salerno in the last mountain barrier to the plains of Naples. There the Germans resisted stubbornly while they destroyed everything of value in the once-beautiful city of 925,000. A smoke blanket hung over Naples and approaching Allied troops could hear frequent explosions.

Waterfront Destroyed

Aerial photographs showed the destruction of the Naples waterfront to be worse than were the German demolitions at Tripoli in north Africa.

"At least 30 Italians ships have been scuttled and sunk and practically every usable berth along the docks have been blocked" by Nazi demolitions, an official announcement said.

"Fires have been burning along the docks for several days, apparently the result of demolitions. Charges have been seen to explode among the docks."

The somber pictures also showed that the industrial area north of the docks had been wrecked. Railroad yards were demolished.

"The extent to which this is going on indicates the enemy is determined to make the big port—one of the largest and best of peacetime harbors—completely useless to Allied troops when they occupy it," the Allied air forces stated.

The port of Naples is the principal prize. Its possession will greatly facilitate Allied logistics. A great harbor close to the forward battlelines would simplify the problems of supply and reinforcement, allowing the largest transports and cargo carriers to unload at docks rather than have to ferry their loads to beaches in lighters and landing craft. Experience in North Africa showed that the most thorough demolitions failed to permanently knock out harbors. The thoroughness of the wrecking at Naples, however, quite likely will delay bringing the harbor into effective use.

Allied Armies Advance

Gen. Eisenhower's communique said "both the Fifth and Eighth armies continued to advance," and added:

"The enemy continues to cling hard to his positions in the western sector while tending to withdraw his left flank."

No heavy fighting was reported in Italy, where both sides were regrouping and building up strength for the next critical battle, expected shortly.

The Germans used a small number of tanks to cover their retreat up the Italian boot, but the Allies had little trouble dealing with them. Considerable minefields were encountered in some sectors, but they did not approach the profusion of mines strewn in Tunisia or Sicily.

The increasingly violent air war had been heralded by the transfer of bomber groups from England. Liberators hacked at German air strength by bombing the airdromes of Maritza in Rhodes and Elevsis near Athens without opposition. Only a small number of planes were seen on the ground at these once thickly populated air bases. Wellingtons of the R.A.F. polished off eastern Mediterranean activities by bombing the Maleme airdrome of Crete.

The systematic campaign of the northwest African air forces to wipe out enemy communications leading to the Naples area continued without pause. Bridges, road junctions, highways and moving transport columns were battered at and around Torre Annunziata, Formia, Mignano, Benevento, Grottaminarda, San Martino, Cava, Nocera and Avellino.

American Warhawks strafed enemy shipping in the Adriatic 60 miles northwest of Bari in the Gulf of Manfredonia. They hit a 2,000-tonner twice and shot up the quays and piles of war materiel. Two Allied planes were lost in all and they found only a single German to shoot down.

to uncover the inland approaches to smoke-smothered, dynamite-shattered Naples.

Victorious French soldiers and American Rangers pressed the Germans back farther into the northeastern corner of Corsica.

Allied sea and air power threw a blockade around Corsica, cutting off German troops fleeing from French and American troops closing in on Bastia, the enemy's last seaport. It appeared doubtful that the Germans would be able to hold out on the small island much longer under combined air, land and sea pressure.

Allied warships bombarded the strip of coast where the road of retreat runs close to the sea, and supported the troops which carried out a furious attack near Solenzara, sixty miles south of Bastia.

Allied soldiers were within sight and sound of the systematic wrecking of Naples by German demolition squads. As the sound of frequent explosions from the smoking city rolled over the hills toward the Americans and British, Allied headquarters announced that the Germans had scuttled at least thirty ships at Naples and blocked practically every berth along the docks.

"Fires have been burning along the docks for several days, apparently as the result of demolitions," said the announcement, which was based on aerial reconnaissance. "Charges were seen to burst along the docks."

Photos Show Destruction.

Aerial photographs also showed a large industrial area north of the docks had been wrecked by bombings and the railroad yards demolished.

"The extent to which this is going on indicates the enemy is determined to make the big port, one of the largest and best peacetime harbors in Europe, completely useless to Allied troops when they occupy it," the announcement stated.

German forces defending Naples withdrew further to the north yesterday under the continuing pressure of the Allied armies, which captured the town of Avigliano, sixty miles east of Salerno, headquarters announced. The daily communique said that both the Fifth and Eighth armies continued to advance.

Allies Sweep in Arc.

In the inland sweep British and Americans swung the right of their line forward toward the Adriatic, with Salerno serving somewhat as a hinge, and straightened out several deep mountain bulges.

They advanced ten miles northwest of Potenza, fifteen miles north of Sala Consilina and ten miles west of Mottola which is north of Taranto, capturing the towns of Acerno, Avigliano and Genosa. Acerno is eighteen miles east and slightly north of Salerno and six miles north of Campagna, reported captured yesterday. Genosa is twenty - five miles northwest of Taranto and fourteen miles inland from the Gulf of Taranto.

[Allied Forces in Southern Italy have taken Auletta, on the highway between Salerno and Potenza, BBC said in a dispatch from Allied headquarters. The broadcast, recorded by NBC, said the Allied line east of Potenza still dipped south in a loop but added, that there are no Germans believed inside that loop which will shortly be straightened.]

[The German communique today admitted "a dent made by the enemy in our positions near Contursi" but claimed the break was "cleaned up in counter-attacks. The enemy has brought up fresh forces in the eastern sector of the front without, however, so far commencing an attack." Contursi is between Acerno and Avigliano and apparently somewhat to the rear of the new Allied line.

[The BBC in a broadcast recorded by NBC, said the American Fifth Army had captured Contursi, twenty - six miles southeast of Salerno.]

Nazis Defending Naples.

North and northeast of Salerno, however, the Germans were putting up a stiff and stubborn battle on the direct, shoreline route to Naples and little advance was made.

Speaking of Corsica, Gen. Henri Giraud, French Commander in Chief, just returned by air from a two-day visit there, predicted that all Germans would be ousted or killed on the island in "from ten to fifteen days."

Gen. Rene Chambe, Gen. Giraud's spokesman, in relating details of the French commander's visit to the island, said that the attack had been prepared for six months and that 10,000 Corsicans had been armed with tommy-guns which had been dropped by parachute or taken in by submarine since last February. Eighty thousand Italians on the island were taking orders from the French, he added, but only a handful were fighting the Germans.

Italians Put to Work.

"We have put them to work rebuilding roads and bridges that were blown up, and they must leave Corsica as soon as transportation can be arranged," Gen. Chambe declared at a press conference. The Italians are not prisoners, he said, but under strict control while disposition of their arms awaited the orders of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Meanwhile the Northwest African Air Forces held to their task of mopping up Nazi communications leading to the Naples area, with Mitchells, Marauders and Javaders striking at bridges, road junctions and moving transport.

During the day, American P-40 Warhawks branched out into a new field of operations and swooped down on enemy shipping in the Gulf of Manfredonia, sixty miles northwest of Bari on Italy's east coast. They scored a direct hit on the stern of a 2,000-ton enemy supply ship, then turned their attention to the docks near by.

Fleeing Nazis Bombed.

Other attacks on enemy shipping were carried out by B-25 Mitchells which blasted at Nazi vessels attempting to evacuate German troops from Bastia, in Corsica, to Italian ports. Two ships were left smoking and listing and hits were scored also on a barge and an escort vessel.

Wellingtons attacked a small enemy convoy between the Island of Elba and the Italian port of Leghorn.

In the Benevento area, Mitchells plumped bombs squarely on the bridge at Grottaminarda, and the bridge bottleneck at San Martino was left impassable by a tightly knit bomb pattern.

Railroad communications and installations inland from the seaside resort of Formia, thirty-five miles up the coast from burning Naples, were attacked by bombers last night.

Once again little enemy opposition was encountered in the air. In the day and night operations one Nazi plane was destroyed. Two Allied aircraft were listed as missing.

Gen. Giraud Visits Corsica, Sees Early Victory on Island

French Commander Makes Daring Plane Trip to Battle Zone.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 23—(AP) The first-hand story of how Corsicans boldly planned and bravely executed their military revolt to rid their island home of Germans was brought back today by General Henri Giraud, who spent two days there.

The French commander-in-chief predicted confidently that in "from ten to fifteen days" all the Germans on the island would be ousted or killed.

Flew to Corsica by Plane

Gen. Giraud's spokesman was General Rene Chambe, who related that Gen. Giraud flew to Corsica unannounced last Tuesday night, arriving at dawn, despite the admonition of his staff that the trip was too dangerous for him to undertake.

(The Algiers radio quoted Gen. Charles de Gaulle, co-president with Gen. Giraud of the French Committee of National Liberation, as saying that French forces were ready to take part in the battle of Italy.

("The whole of France," he said, "rejoices because Corsica is basking in the sun of liberation, but the battles in Corsica are only an episode in the battle of the Mediterranean.

("The enemy is linked up with a great battle which our American and British allies are gloriously waging against the Germans on the Italian peninsula and in which an important French army stands ready to participate.")

Organized Revolt

Gen. Chambe said a young captain, Colonna D'Istria, scion of one of the oldest families on Corsica, organized the revolt. He landed on Corsica last February from a French submarine on the orders of Gen. Giraud and maintained constant radio contact with Gen. Giraud in Algiers.

Now the intrepid Captain D'Istria is ill in a hospital at Ajaccio, where he was decorated by Gen. Giraud on his visit.

Since February 10,000 Corsicans had been armed with tommyguns dropped by parachute or brought by submarines.

Gen. Giraud found that when French troops first began to land, the Germans attacked with tanks in an attempt to get Ajaccio, but that the Corsican partisans had beaten off the attack at Cauro and started a retreat which never stopped.

U. S. Rangers in Action

Gen. Chambe said a small unit of American Rangers was employed near Bastia but he did not know how they fared.

The Corsican partisans ranged in age from 15 to 75 and wore armbands with the initials "FT" meaning Franc-Tireur (guervler) and knew if the Germans caught them they would be shot.

In the village of Levie, Gen. Giraud praised a boy of 15 and an old man of 75, each of whom had killed three Germans.

Gen. Giraud visited several battle areas and was greeted with cheers. The Corsicans revived the old friendship sign of their island by throwing handfulls of rice and flowers at the general as he passed through their villages.

Gen. Chambe said there are 80,000 Italians on the island who are taking orders from the French but that only a handful are fighting the Germans.

"We have put them to work rebuilding roads and bridges and they must leave Corsica as soon as transportation can be arranged," Gen. Chambe said at a press conference in the palace where Darlan was shot.

UNECHA CAPTURED

Russian Forces Pound Along Highway to White Russia.

SEP 25 1943

LONDON, Friday, Sept. 24. — (AP) The Red army captured the German fortress of Poltava yesterday after a bitter three-day hand-to-hand struggle, smashed to within artillery range of Smolensk, and tightened its attack arc around the Ukraine capital of Kiev, Moscow announced early today.

A Soviet communique also announced the capture of Unecha, 73 miles southwest of Bryansk on the road to White Russia, and said Russian troops had reached a point only 10 miles from Dnepropetrovsk on the eastern Dnieper bend as 863 more towns and villages were swept up during the day and more than 5,300 Germans were killed.

Moscow Celebrates Victory

The fall of Poltava released a Soviet military wave engulfing a 300-mile stretch of territory bordering the middle Dnieper between Dnepropetrovsk and Chernigov. Marshal Stalin saluted the victory with an order of the day, and also issued a second one last night to celebrate the seizure of Unecha.

The daily bulletin recorded by the Soviet monitor told of the capture of Buzanovo, nine miles northeast of the German central stronghold of Smolensk, and of Pochinok, 19 miles to the southeast. The seizure of Pochinok cut the railway to Roslavl, where Berlin said Soviet troops already were fighting in the streets. Two thousand Germans fell in the battles around Smolensk.

Northwest of Smolensk in a drive aimed at Vitebsk, strategic rail junction, the Russians said their troops had beaten down 20 enemy counter-attacks and forced the Kasplya river. That river empties into the Dvina only 25 miles above Vitebsk.

Kiev Encirclement Pressed

On the approaches to Kiev the Russians killed more than 1,000 Germans at a rail station 24 miles to the northeast, the communique said, and also gained in their encirclement tactics southeast of Kiev.

"Under the blows of our troops the enemy retreats, abandoning guns and huge quantities of shells and cartridges," said the communique of the drive on Kiev. It added that the Russian pace was so swift that six German tanks were captured intact with their crews.

In the surge toward White Russia 1,500 Germans were killed in the capture of Unecha, rail junction midway between Bryansk and Gomel, the communique said. The Moscow radio earlier had said in a broadcast that Soviet troops already had crossed into that territory adjoining Poland.

A Berlin broadcast acknowledged the peril to Smolensk, Kiev, Cherkasi, and other eastern front bastions; admitted the loss of Poltava, said Soviet troops had broken into Roslavl below Smolensk, and also stated "a few small" Russian detachments had reached the Dnieper river.

The German military commentator, Capt. Ludwig Sertorius, said the Red army's offensive was "the most gigantic of the entire eastern campaign," and that the wide Soviet pincers move on the Ukraine capital of Kiev was being pressed with "extraordinary violence."

Sertorius said German troops were "systematically disengaging themselves," but gave no hint as to where the German High Command would decide to make a definite stand.

The Russians now have plunged so far westward that eastern Prussia, the Baltic states, Rumania and Axis targets in Poland and Hungary are within easy Soviet bomber range for the coming three-sided Allied effort to smash the entire German "roof" this winter. The Ploesti oil fields in Rumania are only 435 air miles from the advancing Russians.

Nazi Hold Weakened

The Germans at one time held approximately 500,000 square miles of Russia proper. Now it is estimated they hold only 200.000.

Moscow dispatches said the battle for Dnepropetrovsk had begun with the Red army attacking less than 13 miles from that city, which was the site of Russia's big hydro-electric works. Zaporozhe, to the south, also was imperilled by Soviet units attacking eight miles away.

Of the gains ranging from three to 12 miles in the six key sectors, the Russians made their greatest stride in the push toward Gomel, said the communique recorded by the Soviet monitor.

The fall of Poltava was announced in an order of the day saluting the army of Gen. Ivan S. Konev. Its conquest removed the last major enemy bastion stemming the Russian envelopment of the northern side of the Dnieper bend. The next Soviet goal in the area is Kremenchug, 60 miles below Poltava.

Far to the west the German situation at Kiev was particularly critical, Moscow dispatches said.

18 Miles From Kiev

The Russians are deploying along a crescent position northeast, east, and southeast of the rich Ukraine capital which had a peacetime population of 2,000,000. The Russians at one point are within 18 miles of Kiev.

The Moscow newspaper Izvestia, which was quoted as saying the Red army already was fighting inside White Russia, hailed the Russian drive to the Dnieper with these words:

"The left bank of the liberated Ukraine welcomes you. Two years ago the Germans came to the Dnieper and boasted they would never leave. Our victorious troops are surging forth to the Dnieper. The right bank of the Ukraine will be liberated."

At the top end of the Russian front the Soviet danger to Smolensk was admitted indirectly by a Berlin broadcast which said Smolensk was now in a sector "bulging rather far out towards the east."

Northwest of Smolensk where the Russians were aiming at Vitebsk, in upper White Russia, the Moscow communique said the Red army had gained up to four miles and captured more than 40 localities.

At the southern end of the front in the Kuban district of the western Caucasus the Germans appeared to be doomed to annihilation or flight to the Crimea after the fall of Anapa, the last town of any consequence in that area of the Taman peninsula.

Three-pronged Drive Aimed at Kiev—Great Battle Fought Northwest of Smolensk.

BULLETIN.

London, Sept. 23 (A. P.)—The Russian Army has smashed to a point only nine miles northeast of the German central front bastion of Smolensk and captured more than 300 villages in a drive on Gomel in White Russia, Moscow announced tonight.

London, Sept. 23 (A. P.).—Premier Joseph Stalin announced today that Poltava, in the heart of the Ukraine, had been taken by storm as a smashing Russian offensive carried into the Gomel area of White Russia.

Stalin's Special Order of the Day announced triumphantly: "The troops of the Steppe front, successfully developing their offensive, forced the river Vorskla and after three days of fierce fighting today captured the regional center of the Ukraine, the town of Poltava, a powerful German center of resistance."

Poltava's fall, which the Berlin radio had previously acknowledged, eliminates the last major German base above the vital Dnieper River Bend.

The break-through into White Russia near Gomel had been announced earlier by the Moscow radio. Gomel is a railway center midway between Kiev and Smolensk, a bare fifteen miles from the Dnieper and within 150 miles of the old Polish border.

Record 73-Mile Gain.

Tonight a Russian communique said that Unecha, a railway junction midway between Bryansk and Gomel, also had fallen before the Russian onslaught. Unecha's capture represents a seventy-three-mile gain by a Russian column racing southwest along the railroad from Bryansk toward Gomel.

White Russia, overrun by the Germans in their crushing 1941 drive, is the last great area lying between the triumphant Russians and Old Poland on the central front. It is bounded on the south by the Ukraine and the great Pinsk Marshes, on the east by the provinces of Bryansk and Smolensk, and on the north by the Pskov district of the Leningrad area on the north. Its area is roughly 78,550 square miles and its peacetime population about 6,000,000.

City of 90,000.

Poltava, a city of 90,000, lies on the Vorskla River in the fertile wheatlands of the Ukraine, and is a control center of a network of railways radiating to Kharkov, Kiev, Kremenchug and Dniepropetrovsk. It is eighty moles west of Kharkov, 187 miles southeast of Kiev, sixty-one miles northeast of Kremenchug on the Dnieper and seventy-seven miles northwest of Dniepropetrovsk at the Dnieper Bend.

[Moscow reported that the Red forces are within clear view of the Dnieper. They are within five miles of the river at some points, front-line dispatches said.]

The city was isolated yesterday when Red Army forces stormed the town of Dikana, fifteen miles to the north, and Golovach, six miles to the south. The German broadcast said that Nazi troops destroyed all military installations in Poltava before they continued their retreat westward toward the Dnieper.

Big Battle in North.

With the Red Army charging forward unchecked along the whole 750-mile front, the Berlin radio said in a noon-day news bulletin that the center of gravity had shifted to southeast of Smolensk, the German central front bastion. There, the Germans reported, the Red Army was storming at Nazi positions with strong infantry and tank forces.

Bloody fighting was said to be raging west of Yelnya, some forty miles southeast of Smolensk and in the Demidov region, forty-two miles northwest of the key center.

Three Drives Aimed at Kiev.

Kiev, Russia's fourth largest city and keystone of the German defense wall on the Dnieper River, is menaced from three directions as Red Army forces continue to gain along the 750-mile front from Demidov in the north to the Kuban bridgehead on the Black Sea.

Demidov, forty-two miles northwest of Smolensk and twenty-one miles from the borders of White Russia, was stormed by the Russians yesterday after one of the most sanguinary battles of the Soviet summer drive. Its capture, after two days of bitter fighting, elicited a special order of the day from Joseph Stalin, who called the northern bastion "one of the strongest German defense centers."

More than 8,000 Nazi troops were killed in the struggle for Demidov, Moscow declared. The enemy had launched twelve counter-attacks.

Vitebsk Also Threatened.

Russian possession of Demidov, while increasing the danger to Nazi-held Smolensk, also paves the way for a direct Soviet thrust toward Vitebsk, fifty miles due west of Demidov on the Dvina River.

In the Kiev salient, capture of the village of Lyeski, eighteen miles northeast of the Ukraine capital, brought the church spires of the city within view of the Reds. Other Soviet forces were at Ostroluchye and Pereyaslav, fifty miles to the south and within five miles of the Dnieper. Meanwhile, a Red army spearhead stormed the town of Zolotonosha, thirty-five miles further south and a scant eight miles from the river.

A three-way drive on Kiev, from the north, center and south was imminent, Russian front dispatches indicated, with the center push mounted from captured Berezan, thirty-five miles directly east.

On other sectors along the crumbling front, the Soviet forces were reported to have scored gains of twelve to fifteen miles, storming outer defense lines before Dniepropetrovsk, Zaporzhe and Gomel, just inside the borders of White Russia. Units driving for Gomel had reached Starodub, seventy miles to the east. Moscow advices said that Roslavl, between Gomel and Smolensk, also was under immediate threat from columns which already had seized Liubovka, only five and a half miles away.

PLANES HIT DUNKERQUE, CALAIS AREA

HLL

Another Strong Force Strikes Deeper Inland In Continent

U. S. Fortresses In Twin Raids On Submarine Base At Nantes

SEP 25 1943

[By the Associated Press]

London, Friday, Sept. 24—A great concentration of British bombers made a pulverizing assault against Hitler's west wall defenses between Dunkerque and Calais early today while another strong force roared out for a new and deeper assault within the continent.

Great explosions shook the English coast twenty miles away. Scores of enemy searchlights and bursting shells stabbed the skies while the bombers poured tons of explosives on the fortifications guarding the French invasion coast.

European Radios Silenced

The roar of heavy bombers as they went out in a long procession over Dover straits continued more than an hour. Within a few minutes after the flights started, the Berlin, Koenigsberg, Leipzig, Paris and Luxembourg radios were silenced.

These night assaults capped a tremendous twenty-four-hour bombing offensive—perhaps the greatest yet—against German continental air and sea bases and industrial targets on a front 500 miles long and more than 200 miles deep from the west coast of France to the north coast of Germany.

During that period at least fourteen targets were blasted by heavy and medium bomber armadas.

German planes made insignificant raids on areas of East Anglia and the northeast coast. Neither property damage nor casualties were reported.

Fortress Double-Header

The United States Eighth Air Force staged its first double-header in fourteen months of operations with twin daylight raids on the Nazi submarine base at Nantes by Flying Fortresses, while Marauders ranged deep into France for two attacks on German airfields.

A joint British and American communique said the Fortresses in their morning attack on docks and shipyards at Nantes destroyed nine enemy fighters while four more fell to the guns of escorting American Thunderbolts. Two more Nazi fighters were shot down in a Fortress raid on the Kerlin-Bastard airfields in France.

In addition to the double blow by the Fortresses at Nantes, the widespread operations were marked by the RAF's heavy, concentrated raid last night on the German industrial and railway center of Hannover, in which a great tonnage of bombs was dropped in thirty minutes.

Meet Swarm Of Fighters

The Germans threw up a considerable swarm of fighters in an effort to stave off today's assaults on the Nantes area, but only one Fortress was lost in the morning raid.

The Fortress fleet often has hit several different targets in a day, but this was the first time it had hammered the same target twice in a day. It indicated the Allies had begun applying the pressure in earnest in their campaign against important Nazi facilities.

The blows fell rapidly between yesterday evening and dusk today, and the drive apparently continued into tonight when coastal observers on the English Channel reported more large formations of planes were swarming across to the Continent and the Berlin radio quit the air.

Path Of Destruction

Here was the path of destruction from the North Sea to the Bay of Biscay:

Hannover—Metropolis of about 500,000 persons west of Berlin on the key Berlin-Cologne railroad line; site of Germany's largest rubber works and big locomotive and tank plants.

Emden—North Sea port previously hit several times by United States Flying Fortresses.

Oldenburg—Important military and communications center west of Bremen.

Nantes—French Atlantic port and key base for Nazi submarine and naval operations and coastwise shipping, attacked twice.

Vannes-Meucon—Coastal air base, seventy miles northwest of Nantes, attacked by the Fortresses.

Kerlin-Bastard—Air base farther northwest near Brest; hit by a collateral branch of Fortresses.

Beauvais-Tille—French air base received its sixth pasting this month.

Evreaux-Fauville—Air base forty-five miles northwest of Paris; hit by United States Marauders in the first raid of the series late yesterday.

Brest—Air base hit simultaneously by RAF Typhoons.

Conches—Air base sixty miles west of Paris; sixty-fifth target for the Marauders in little over two months.

Air bases in northwest Germany and France hit by RAF night intruders.

The big RAF night attack on Hannover was officially described only as a "very strong force" of bombers, but it was authoritatively estimated that more than 2,000 tons of explosives might have been dropped in the half-hour raid.

65 Tons Per Minute

This would mean more than sixty-five tons a minute—fifteen more per minute than during the record attack on Hamburg.

The concentration of bombing—which the Germans signally failed to achieve in their attack on Britain—is considered an important factor in the success of the raids.

The Hannover bombing was the fourth big blow at Germany's vital rubber sources in less than three months. In June Flying Fortresses hit the big synthetic plant at Huls. In July, they hit Hannover's Continental Gummiwerke plant. Last week, the RAF bombed the big Dunlop rubber factory at Montlucon, France.

Typhoons Attack Shipping

The RAF lost twenty-six bombers last night. The Marauders in their push nearly to Paris knocked out eleven planes of the Germans' interference.

During the daylight attacks on France, detachments of RAF Typhoons swung off into the outer Schelde channel among the islands off the Dutch coast to attack shipping and installations in the Wemeldinge canal.

the second and third made by Fortresses in eight days on that important Nazi submarine, naval and coastal shipping base. They hit the same target last Thursday, sinking a new enemy destroyer and scoring possible hits on several big merchant ships.

This daylight activity followed a mass raid by the Royal Air Force on the German city of Hanover last night.

Emden Also Hit.

The Air Ministry said "a very strong force" of Britain's biggest bomb carriers roared into north central Germany during the night to attack the important railway and factory city of Hanover. Twenty-six of the bombers were listed as lost.

"Preliminary reports show that a highly concentrated attack was completed in thirty minutes, leaving very large fires with smoke rising to a great height," a Ministry communique said.

Smaller British bomber formations attacked the port of Emden, in the extreme northwest corner of Germany, and inland Oldenburg, a big army, airforce and railroad center east of Bremen.

The American Fortresses, crossing the Channel at dawn even before the British formations had returned, attacked naval installations at Nantes on the Bay of Biscay, and two airfields at Vannes-Meucon and Kerlin-Bastard in western France.

Following up their long-range visit late yesterday to Evereaux-Fauville, forty-five miles west of Paris, American Marauders this morning attacked airfields at Conches, sixty miles west of the French capital.

Rubber Works Target.

There was a little enemy activity over the coastal districts of east and northeast England, a joint Air Ministry and Home Security communique said. Bombs were dropped at a few points. Only slight damage was done and there were no casualties.

London, Sept. 23 (A. The attacks on Nantes were

The British night raid on Hanover was the fourth big Allied air blow in three months against Nazi rubber sources. Amid Hanover's big industrial concentration of refineries, locomotive and tanks works is the Continental Gummiwerke, Germany's largest rubber factory.

Out in force for the first time since the Dunlop rubber factory at Montlucon, France, was blasted a week ago, the big R. A. F. bomb carriers also struck a blow at Germany's internal communications in hitting at Hanover. Located 158 miles west of Berlin, the city, which has a population of about 472,000, stands on the east-west railroad line between Berlin and Cologne. A big locomotive works is located there and many oil tanks are in the vicinity. It was Hanover's forty-eight raid of the war.

Hanover was a frequent target of the R. A. F. in the early days of the war, but it has been left mostly to itself in recent months except for a raid July 26 by American Flying Fortresses which hit an important rubber works in the metropolitan area.

Raid Breaks Lull.

The night attack was the first time the R. A. F. had gone after targets in Germany since the night of September 15 when scattered points were hit by comparatively small raiding forces. The most recent heavy assault on the Reich was directed at Munich the night of September 6.

[Today's German communique said "Hanover and Oldenburg report casualties among the civilian population as well as considerable damage to public buildings. Anti-aircraft forces shot down twenty-one enemy bombers."]

R. A. F. fighters swept into Holland and northwest Germany on intruder patrols during the night, the Air Ministry announced, and destroyed one enemy aircraft. Enemy air bases were the chief targets of the fighters.

YUGOSLAV TROOPS DRIVE ON TRIESTE

Slovene Units Enter Port City, Battle Nazi Garrison.

SEP 24 1943

LONDON, Sept. 23—(AP) Slovene troops of the Yugoslav army were reported tonight to have penetrated the Italian Adriatic port of Trieste, fighting the German garrison there with the aid of inhabitants.

Yugoslavs having communication with partisan armies fighting bloody battles in northwestern Yugoslavia said other Slovene formations occupied Idria, 30 miles northeast of Trieste and 50 miles north of Fiume, exerting pressure on both Italian ports.

Heavy Fight Rages

Elsewhere troops were said to be fighting heavy engagements on a 50-mile front from Bistrica to Ljubijana.

(The Algiers radio said the Yugoslavs were shelling Fiume from Susak, just across the frontier, and reported street fighting in Trieste. The broadcast was repeated by BBC, which was recorded by CBS.)

The Budapest radio, quoting a Zagreb dispatch, declared the Germans had captured Susak. This broadcast was recorded by the Associated Press.

Area Under Siege

An area 55 miles north of Durazzo was reported under siege by Montenegrins after they captured the coast town of Ucinj and the summer resort of Petrovac. The Italian "Taurinence" division, with its commanding general was said to have gone over to Yugoslav partisan units now fighting the Germans.

In a wide area around Banja Luka, Croatian divisions were said to have destroyed German railway facilities at Nova Gradiska and Novakapel.

The German airforce and artillery practically destroyed Novomesto on the Krk river, 20 miles northeast of Banja Luka, a Yugoslav authority here said.

There were some estimates that the war equipment of about four out of 20 Italian divisions in the northern part of the country had now fallen into the hands of the Yugoslavs.

Madrid quoted reports from both Italian and Balkan sources which said that not only Fiume but the whole German grip on the Istrian peninsula was threatened by swift-moving, well-armed guerrilla bands in communication with partisan forces holding Susak and part of the Adriatic coast.

A number of Adriatic island craft were said to have been armed with guns left by Italians. At Novi a landing party of nearly 100 German sailors was reported wiped out and its launches seized.

(The British radio said "At least seven separate engagements are now being fought in the Fiume area." It said Idria was the seat of one of the biggest mercury mines in Europe.)

Mussolini Gives Graziani a Post In His 'Cabinet'

Berlin Announces Names, List Even Includes Under Secretary of the 'Navy'

LONDON, Sept. 23 (AP).—The Berlin radio said today in a Rome dispatch that Marshal Rodolfo Graziani had become Minister of Defense in "the new Fascist government" headed by Benito Mussolini as premier and foreign minister.

The Berlin broadcast said Guido Buffarini, former Under Secretary of the Interior, had been named Interior Minister, and former Under Secretary of Finance Domenico Pellegrini was named Finance Minister.

[A Berlin broadcast reported by the Federal Communications Commission said the seat of the "new republican Fascist government" would be established temporarily in a city in southern Germany. The radio said that "it would be unwise and contrary to national interests" to establish the new regime in Italy because its functioning would be subject to interruptions by air raids and war operations.]

Graziani, one of the Italian Army's highest ranking officers, had previously held a number of posts, including the viceroyalty of Ethiopia and the governorship of Libya.

Other Appointments Listed

Other appointments were: To the Justice Ministry, General Antonio Tringali-Casanavo, former head of a special court set up to try persons arrested for attempts on the life of Mussolini; Under Secretary of the Navy, Admiral Legnari; Under Secretary for Air, Commander Botto, like Legnari an unknown quantity; Minister of Agriculture, Dr. Moroni, also an unknown; Public Works, Giuseppe Peverelli, former Minister of Public Transport; Education, Professor Carlo Biggini, who formerly held that post; Popular Culture, Fernando Mezzasoma, former vice-secretary of the Fascist party; under secretary to the Premier, Francesco Maria Barracu, "wearer of the military gold medal."

The arrest of Buffarini by the government of Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio had been reported earlier this month. He was made a member of the directorate of the Fascist party in 1942.

The Berlin radio said that Crown Prince Humbert of Italy had contacted the German government for support of his ascent to the throne "after King Victor Emmanuel's abdication," and added that the Nazi reply "was absolutely negative."

The broadcast said: "It is certainly no coincidence that Crown Prince Humbert is now being made the object of the severest German press attacks while formerly the attacks were made chiefly on King Victor Emmanuel and Marshal Badoglio."

Nazis Say Humbert Asked Aid.

London, Sept. 23 (A. P.).—The Berlin radio said today that Crown Prince Humbert of Italy had sought the German Government's support for his ascension to the throne "after King Victor Emmanuel's abdication," but that the Nazi reply "was absolutely negative."

Berlin added: "It is certainly no coincidence that Crown Prince Humbert is now being made the object of the severest German press attacks while formerly the attacks were made chiefly on King Victor Emmanuel and Marshal Badoglio."

Berlin earlier quoted a Rome dispatch as saying that Marshal Rodolfo Graziani had become Minister of Defense in "the new Fascist government" headed by Benito Mussolini as Premier and Foreign Minister.

Guido Buffarini, former Under-Secretary of the Interior, has been appointed Minister of the Interior and a former Under-Secretary of Finance, Domenico Pellegrini, has been made Finance Minister, Berlin added.

Graziani, one of the Italian Army's highest ranking officers, had previously held a number of government posts. He was Viceroy of Ethiopia and at another time, Governor of Libya.

Other appointments were: Minister of Justice, Gen. Antonio Tringali-Casanova, former head of a special court set up to try persons arrested for attempts on the life of Mussolini; Under-Secretary of the Navy, Admiral Legnari, an unknown; Under-Secretary for Air, Commander Botto, an unknown; Minister of Agriculture, Dr. Moroni, an unknown; Public Works, Giuseppe Peverelli, the former Minister of Public Transport; Education, Prof. Carlo Biggini, who formerly held that post; Popular Culture, Fernando Mezzasoma, former vice-secretary of the Fascist party, and Under-Secretary to the Premier, Francesco Maria Barracu, "wearer of the Military Gold Medal."

West Wall Can Be Broken, Dieppe Escapee Declares

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 23.—The House of Commons was told yesterday by a man who saw Hitler's vaunted West Wall from the inside that "it doubtless is very strong," but not so strong that Allied invaders couldn't break through.

Naval Comdr. R. M. Prior, a Briton who escaped after being captured at Dieppe and finally reached safety by way of Spain after nine months of wandering in France, declared:

"In my view, it could be assaulted and breached by a determined assault, well organized."

Comdr. Prior walked through France disguised as a French workman after dropping from a German hospital train. He said that during his flight he had opportunity for a close inspection of part of the wall.

ITALIAN FLEET'S STATUS IS NOT YET DECIDED

LONDON, Sept. 23—(AP) Viscount Cranborne, colonial secretary, told the House of Lords today that the Italian fleet did not surrender to the Allies but "moved to designated points under the terms of the armistice."

"The future of the fleet," he added, "is under consideration."

His assertion caused surprise since previously the Admiralty, in a message to Admiral Sir Andrew Browne Cunningham, Mediterranean commander-in-chief, said "on the occasion of the surrender of the Italian battle fleet their lordships send x x x their warmest congratulations."

Cranborne Tells Why Crete Wasn't Seized

London, Sept. 23 (AP)—The Germans have 30,000 troops on Crete, Viscount Cranborne, colonial secretary, told the House of Lords today.

In replying for the Government to questions on why Rhodes and Crete had not been seized after Italy's capitulation, Cranborne said the Allies were in touch with the Italians on Rhodes and had expected them to take over the island. It would have taken a large expeditionary force that could not be spared to capture Crete, he added.

Pope May Become A 'Prisoner' Again

SEP 25 1943

London, Friday, Sept. 24 (AP)—A Reuters dispatch from Zurich said today it was reliably reported from Rome that Pope Pius XII intends to become a voluntary prisoner in the Vatican by reestablishing the conditions prevailing before the Lateran Treaty.

The Germans have established a guard at the entrance to the Vatican.

From 1870, when church states were incorporated in the Kingdom of Italy, until 1929 the Popes remained in self-constituted imprisonment in the Vatican. Then Pope Pius XI signed the Latern Treaty with the Government of Italy, headed by Benito Mussolini, which recognized the Pope as sovereign of the city of the Vatican.

Belgians, Dutch Agree On Post-War Money Plan

London, Sept. 23 (AP)—The Belgian and Netherlands governments-in-exile announced today they had agreed on a post-war monetary stabilization plan.

Under the plan each government will place at the other's disposal their respective currencies and will establish a stable rate of exchange between the currencies.

"The agreement is the first concrete step toward realization of the international monetary plan now being prepared in Washington to which both governments are favorably inclined," the announcement said.

It further stated that Dutch-Belgian negotiations on the development of post-war trade had been in progress for some time.

ALEXANDER HAILS SPAATZ

Cites 'Magnificent Air Support' Given Fifth Army at Salerno

LONDON, Sept. 23 (AP)—Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, deputy Allied Commander in Chief in the Mediterranean area, has sent a message of thanks to Lieut. Gen. Carl A. Spaatz, commander of the Northwest African Air Force, expressing the United States Fifth Army's thanks and appreciation "for the magnificent air support given them" during the Salerno operations, it was announced here today.

"Not only have your tremendous air attacks strengthened the morale of the ground and naval forces but they have inflicted heavy losses in men and equipment on the enemy," Alexander wrote.

"They have seriously interfered with his movements, interrupted his communications and prevented his concentration of forces to launch large-scale attacks."

Bevin Says Priority Is Given Plane Plants To Meet '44 Struggle

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 23.—Urging that every provision be made for "the titanic struggle facing us in 1944," Labor Minister Ernest Bevin said today that the British cabinet had given priority to aircraft construction and urged women up to 50 to go to work in plane factories at once.

In a review of Britain's manpower situation before the House of Commons he reported that:

Mobilization has reached a stage not excelled in any other country.

Nearly 23,000,000 out of 33,000,000 persons between 14 and 64 who are available for work are in the armed services, civil defense of part-time employment.

Seven million women are doing part-time work. More than 1,000,000 women are doing voluntary, nonpaid jobs.

Ninety-one per cent of Britain's unmarried women between 18 and 40 are employed. More than 80 per cent of childless married women in that group also are working.

More than 1,000,000 men and women over 65 are in the war effort.

Two and a quarter million more persons are employed in munitions making than at the end of the last war.

British Steps in India Defended by Wavell

By the Associated Press.

WINCHESTER, England, Sept. 23.—Field Marshal Viscount Wavell, Viceroy-Designate of India, told a Winchester audience today that Britain has little to be ashamed of and much of which to be proud in her dealings with India.

Speaking during a ceremony at which he received the freedom of the city, Marshall Wavell asserted: "We have made mistakes in India, mistakes of manners and mistakes of judgment once or twice, but very rarely blunders due to greed or fear."

"The good we have done," he added, "in giving India a peace as never before, in uniting India as never before, in encouraging a national spirit, in leading India a long way down the road toward her great destiny, has been one of the finest pieces of government and administration ever accomplished in this world of difficulties and dangers. * * *

"For the moment the outlook in India seems dark and the right road hard to find; if we can lead India a little further, through a few more troubles, we shall have set the seal on a great task and can let her direct her own footsteps to the great and prosperous future for which we hope and, we hope also, in co-operation and partnership with the other nations of our commonwealth."

Six Ride Fortress To Belly Landing Because One Could Not Bail Out

[By the Associated Press]

At a United States Bomber Base in England, Sept. 23—Six crewmen rode a Flying Fortress to a belly landing with a full load of two tons of bombs recently because one of their number found, when ordered to jump from the flaming plane, that his parachute had been ruined by enemy fighter shells.

Four men had left the ship—"Mister Five by Five"—on the order of the pilot, Capt. Kee H. Harrison, of Lombard, Ill., when Sergt. James H. Curtis, of Redwood Falls, Minn., shouted over the intercommunicating system that he could not go because his parachute was burned.

Oxygen System Knocked Out

Fighters in twos and threes had knocked the Flying Fortress out of formation and torn in from all sides when they saw that it was on fire. The first cannon attack had caused an explosion behind the pilot's seat, knocked out the oxygen system and crippled the top turret guns.

"Because of the lack of oxygen and the fact that we were blinded by smoke we had to get down in a hurry," said Lieut. David H. Turner, copilot, of De Ridder, La.

"While I was getting rid of the fire by stamping and beating the flames as best I could," said Turner, "Harrison was getting downstairs as quickly as he could.

Chipping Us To Pieces

"Those fighters were chipping us to pieces, but none of the crew was hurt. It looked hopeless, though, and Harrison gave orders to jump."

Four men jumped before Curtis discovered his 'chute was useless.

"We sure couldn't jump and leave Curtis in the ship, so Harrison decided to land her, bombs and all," said Turner.

"And what a landing he made. He just greased it in and there wasn't one of us hurt, but boy, were we scared."

Those who rode the ship down in addition to Harrison, Turner and Curtis were Sergts. Charles H. McNemar, of Weston, W. Va., radio gunner; Jefferson D. Polk, of Oklahoma City, ball turret gunner, and Richard H. Lewis, of Chicago, right waist gunner.

Clark Gable Earns Air Medal

Returns From Raid on Nantes Announcing He Is Soon to Leave for U. S.

A Flying Fortress Base in England, Sept. 23 (A. P.).—Capt. Clark Gable, who went on today's raid on Nantes, France, disclosed after his return that he will leave for the United States soon with a gunnery training film he has been directing. He also said he hoped to see active service in some other theater before the war is over. "But, you know, I just do whatever the Army tells me to," he added.

In today's raid the former movie star participated as a combination camera man and gunner. The ship was hit by anti-aircraft fire, but none of the crew was wounded.

"I didn't hit a damn thing," Capt. Gable said.

The raid was his fifth and earned for him the Air Medal. The peacetime matinee idol looked like anything but that when he stepped from the plane in wrinkled green coveralls. His collar was open, his shoes scuffed and his hair was ruffled, and he said that what he wanted most was a cup of coffee.

He flew in the Duchess, lead ship at this base, with Lieut.-Col. Robert W. Burns of Ecru Miss.

Assigned to Make Picture.

When Capt. Gable came to England, the impression got around that he was to be a regular Fortress gunner.

What actually happened was that, with a view to capitalizing on his movie experience and the following he commanded, he was sent over here to make a moving picture about gunners' work that would be accurate and intimate and help in recruiting good[illegible]n for gunnery training.

A cam[illegible] crew and one of the movies' [illegible] writers, Lieut. John Lee Mahin, were assigned to help him.

SEP 24 1943

Capt. Gable went on raids to see just what it was like, and to ascertain the chances of getting movies of planes and men in actual combat.

He has found that it is a tough job. It is so cold that it's hard to work. The cameras have to be specially rigged so they won't freeze instantly. The necessity of being connected with an oxygen tank all the time at high altitude hampers moving around the plane when anything happens, like an enemy plane attacking from an unexpected angle at a rate of closure of 700 or 800 miles an hour, whizzing past in a flash, it's well-nigh impossible to get a picture of it.

Has Excellent Results.

The rest of the time Capt. Gable has been shooting pictures on practice flights and working on the ground.

His knottiest problem to date is that he has gotten some pictures too good to believe. He got a shot of a bombardier in the nose of a Fortress firing a machine gun. A few days later, invited by the Catholic chaplain to visit a mass, he heard a beautiful tenor voice coming out of the choir. It was the same fellow. He got some good sound pictures of the boy singing "Ave Maria." The obvious thing is to put the sequences together—firing the machine gun, and then in the choir, singing.

But the combination is so dramatic he's afraid people would think it was faked somehow.

GERMANS EXTEND DANISH DEFENSES

Belt of Forts, Pillboxes Is Built Along Coast of Jutland.

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 23—(AP) The Germans are extending their network of fortifications along the Danish western coast of Jutland, apparently because of new invasion fears.

Camouflaged as peasant homes and barns and in other ways, a belt of forts and pillboxes has been developed deep into the countryside.

Danish workers, in the main, are doing the construction work and receive high wages. Costs of fortifying the coast are paid by the Danish National bank as part of the occupation burden through Nazi requisitions.

The island of Fanoe, outside the only important west coast port of Esbjaerg, also is heavly fortified.

The entire west coast has been well mined, making sea travel dangerous. The Danish Press service said the German army had announced a ban on hunting effective Sept. 29 along the coastal stretch from south of Frederikshaven, on Jutland.

Hunting and shooting within 20 miles of points where German soldiers are located also were prohibited. No reason for the prohibition was given, but it was obviously intended to keep the Danes out of military zones to prevent attacks on the Germans.

Vovo And Katia, Driven From Smolensk Two years Ago, Now Living With Aunt

GILMORE

[By the Associated Press]

Moscow, Sept. 23—A group of children was playing in the late afternoon sun along the old Smolensk road down which Napoleon once fled.

In the window of a house beside the road a boy, about 7, was holding a girl's hand. She was about 9. They sat silently.

Face Toward The Sun

The girl's white face was turned toward the sun. You wondered why it did hurt her eyes.

You stopped and talked as you would to a couple of children anywhere. There were the usual questions—What is your name? Is this your sister? Is this your brother?

They were brother and sister and their names were Katia and Vovo.

Suddenly you realized why Katia was staring into the sun and not blinking or squinting—Katia was blind.

Full Of Information

Vovo was full of information.

His father? No he did not have a father any more. He was killed by the Germans.

His mother? The last he had seen of her was when an aunt took him and his sister from their home in Smolensk. His mother was sick and some friends were taking her away in a truck. Yes, there was a lot of bombing and shooting that day in Smolensk—that day a couple of years ago.

As her brother talked of bombs, Katia turned her head. "I could see before the bombs," she said.

That was one of those statements that you don't know how to answer.

The boy said he and his sister were sitting in the sunlight while his aunt put her other children to bed and fed them.

"She's got three besides us," Katia volunteered, "but I am more trouble than the baby because I can't see."

FASCISTS KILL BADOGLIO MEN

Nazis Say Humbert Sought Their Aid to Throne.

Berne, Sept. 23 (A. P.).—Nazis and Fascists have joined hands in a program of revenge against Italian anti-Fascists, reports at the Italian frontier said today. Again emerging into daylight with the protection of Nazi machine guns, Fascists were reported to be attacking the homes of anti Fascist leaders who became known during the time Premier Badoglio ruled in Rome. When the men sought are not found, the reports said, their homes are stripped and members of their families seized as hostages.

One of the first prominent victims was said to have been Giuseppe Roveda, whose body was left on the principal street of Turin after his assassination. Roveda had been appointed Vice-Commissioner of Industrial Organizations under Badoglio. He had spent many years in prison for his opposition to Fascism.

Rome Lost Without Fight As Traitors Aided Nazis

BRUTTO

Generals Refused to Oppose Germans Marching Into Italian Capital.

ON THE SWISS - ITALIAN FRONTIER, Sept. 23.—(AP) Rome was betrayed into German hands almost without a fight by "generals unwilling to resist and traitorous high officials," a Milan dispatch to the newspaper Libera Stampa at Lugano said tonight.

Sharp sporadic fighting flared in the Italian capital—a fact demonstrated by pictures appearing in Swiss newspapers showing blazing tanks in the background and smoke billowing up from the streets—but it was isolated, almost without direction. The bitterest fighting was between Ostia and Rome, the Milan dispatch said. Defending Italian grenadiers lost more than 1,400 dead, it stated.

The Milan account of the events said:

Rome Well Armed

1—The problem of resisting the Nazis was not military but political. Rome had arms. Weeks before the armistice, military authorities prepared for defense of the city. Fifteen days before the armistice on Sept. 8 three army corps totaling about 180,000 men, of which nearly 100,000 were first line fighting troops, had been concentrated about Rome.

(Dispatch did not bring out how such concentrations could have been gathered about the capital in this period, when the Italian government was reporting Rome was demilitarized and seeking to have out immediately but it was isolated.

5—The Fascists also took a hand in the deliverance of Rome to the Nazis. Blackshirted Fascists sided with the Germans and fired on Italian troops.

The Milan dispatch said there were similar occurrences at Turin, Genoa, Milan and Bologna. In each instance, a relatively small German force was aided in defeating Italian troops by "generals who were unwilling to resist, commanders who sabotaged and high officials who betrayed."

YANKS 'SHOCK' FOE OFF HILL AT ALTAVILLA

Oust Germans From Key Height With Bayonets, Grenades And Tricks

SEP 24 1943

By RELMAN MORIN

[Associated Press Correspondent]

With the Fifth Army in Italy, Sept. 19 (Delayed)—The battalion is sleeping tonight in the hills of Altavilla.

The town below them is theirs. They aren't occupying it, and they weren't the first troops to enter after the Germans had left, but Altavilla is theirs. They took it when they took the slope above, and held it through the darkness and a furious fight.

So let somebody else have the town. What counts is the high ground. It is here on this slope that the Germans were beaten and forced to retreat.

A Town Of Stone

Altavilla is a stone town, so gray and weatherbeaten that even in daylight you can almost mistake it for a pile of rock bulging on the brow of the mountain. Beneath it on one side a straight cut valley reaches clear to the sea. A military highway crosses the plain on the other side.

Therefore, we had to have that town and the mountain where it is niched. We had to have it because of the valley and the plain and to secure the highway.

And we did have it, in the sense that troops had fought their way in and held the buildings. But the Germans held the slope above Altavilla and so no supplies nor heavy weapons could come to these combat teams. They fought until their ammunition was gone and then they had to withdraw.

Battalion Arrives

Late one afternoon the battalion came into the hill.

It was not a large unit but it was heavily armed, belted and strapped with all the weapons that a man can carry. It was a shock unit and its mission was to shock the Germans off the slope.

At sundown the battalian began to move through the scrub pine and the olive groves, inching ahead toward the foot of the hills. With the first move of the first man, German guns came into action.

They seemed to search out hole and cranny, every ditch, every place where a man could hide. Later the battalion learned the reason.

The whole area around Altavilla, each point within range, had been a training site for artillerymen.

Italians Had Charted It

Long before, the Italians had charted it virtually to the inch, measuring distances and calculating angles. When the Germans came and took it from them, there was nothing to do but lay the guns and lock them on the targets. Nothing to do but load and pull the lanyards.

The battalion came through this. It was there the men began to climb, clawing upward toward the ridges. The 88s were silent now and the German machine guns had taken over. They flamed and chattered in sudden bursts and then they waited and fired again.

Nazis Well Placed

The German machine gunners were well placed to command the slope. They were experienced and cool veteran soldiers and they must have felt secure in the sheltered nest, sweeping the ground with their fire.

The battalion came through this, too.

A major has disappeared. "Last we saw of him," said the men, "he had a tommy gun and was shooting it out with a machine gunner."

They broke up into teams to knock out these nests, working with hand grenades and finally bayonets. In one of the teams was Private A. G. Ostrom, of 2218 Kentucky avenue, Baltimore.

One by one they silenced the machine guns and bulled their way to the top. Now they were on Hill 424. The Germans were there, too. It was all close work up there in the darkness, close work with knives and bayonets and clubbing rifles.

Alive With Snipers

And then suddenly it was quiet on the hill.

The Germans seemed to have gone, but every time a twig cracked or the leaves rustled a bullet would sing over some soldier's head and sometimes it didn't pass overhead. The brush was alive with snipers.

The Germans then tried to rush the hill.

Pvt. Peter Schneider, of the Bronx, New York, speaks German fluently. He heard an officer yell, 'Get up, you yellow so-and-so, get up and go for them."

And he heard the German soldiers argue: "They're all snipers. Everyone is a sharpshooter."

"Helps" The Germans

But the Germans did come and Private Schneider helped to direct them. He called out "This way—this way," and when they came into view he and Sergt. Earl Clow, of Albion, Ohio, shot them. They shot fourteen Germans.

So it went through the night.

A message came to the colonel of the battalion: "Withdraw to the next ridge."

He sent the runner back with an answer, "We've got the high ground and we're holding it."

Americans Hid In Trenches as Tanks Crossed

Clung Grimly to Positions Near Salerno to Wait for Crack at Infantry

By Relman Morin

For the combined American press
Distributed by The Associated Press

WITH THE 5TH ARMY IN ITALY, Sept. 21 (Delayed) (AP).—An American force has driven deep into the mountains on the Eboli-Battipaglia line after enduring 100 hours of continuous shelling and beating off a series of German assaults unequalled in this campaign for fury and determination.

When the unit moved forward it was virtually the first time in five days that the men had left their slit trenches.

"Tanks ran right over some of them," said Major Theodore Klein, of 3330 Eighty-seventh Street, Jackson Heights, New York, "but they were still in the trenches and fighting when German infantry came up behind."

The battle took place on the plain below the towns of Eboli and Battipaglia, where the Germans made their greatest and last effort to drive the American forces to the sea and split the Allied armies holding the Gulf of Salerno beachhead.

The Nazis held the hills and mountains overlooking the plain and had the high ground bristling with artillery. The Germans fired on every visible target below them and no movement was possible without enemy observers spotting it.

German artillery fire was practically continuous. Two or three times a day it would increase to a thunderous crescendo and then the tanks would rumble out from behind their cover at the foot of the mountains and hit the American positions.

The men never cracked or moved back out of line even though their front positions were held only by infantry without anti-tank units. It was during these assaults that the tanks frequently passed over the trenches.

"It was the damnedest thing to see the men pop up from their holes behind the tanks and open up on the German infantry," said Lieutenant Joseph Driscoll, of Dorchester, Mass. "It takes plenty of guts to stay in your trench and let nearly forty tons of steel run over you, but they did it."

Private John Smith, of 3070 Thirty-second Street, Astoria, Long Island, who endured this experience several times, said, "You haven't got time to worry. You hear and feel an awful roar, and then if the trench hasn't caved in on you it's all over."

German infantry attempted to come with or close behind their tanks, but when the armored assaults couldn't drive the Yanks to cover the enemy soldiers were "sitting like ducks" for machine guns.

Detail's of Italy's Surrender Withheld as Potential Dynamite

SEP 24

By CLARK LEE,
Representing the Combined American Press.
Distributed by the Associated Press.

WITH GEN. EISENHOWER AT AN ADVANCED ALLIED COMMAND POST.—For the last 10 days we have been up to our neck in big shots.

There has been so much brass and braid, rank and title around headquarters that any officer with only one star on his shirt collar looked practically naked.

All of the principal actors in the thrilling Italian drama of the last month have been in this vicinity and every one of them had a marvelous story to tell. They have been duly told and recorded, but you haven't read them in your papers yet and probably won't until after the war because most of the information is potential dynamite and the Army doesn't want to risk touching off any unnecessary explosions.

When Dave Brown, representing the British press, and I did get a story something almost invariably prevented it from reaching its destination.

Interviewed Castellano.

If we put it aboard a plane the pilot would forget to put it off or the plane would land at some other airfield. If we used the wireless the current would be turned off or a sudden storm would blow up or the censors here would hold the story so long that it would be announced in London, Washington or somewhere else. But at least, as the cliche has it, we have met some interesting people, and for me, this has been old home week, with unexpected reunions with friends from many parts of the world.

One of the interesting characters who will go down in history is Brig. Gen. Guiseppe Castellano, who negotiated and signed the armistice under which Italy got out of the war.

Castellano is a short, swarthy Sicilian in his late 40s. His thin, dark hair is slicked back on both sides, leaving a V-shaped expanse of baldness. He has been a staff officer during most of his career and did not see action in Ethiopia, the African desert or Sicily. He was worth his weight in gold to the Allied cause because the armistice certainly saved us many lives and softened our landings in Taranto and the boot of Italy.

At the request of Gen[illegible]ower, Castellano granted Br[illegible] myself an interview. He k[illegible] waiting for a half-hour. When he turned up he was wearing a double-breasted blue coat, gray flannel slacks, green socks, low brown shoes, a white shirt with thin brown stripes and a red and blue figured tie. He told us we could have a half-hour but after 5 minutes we could see that the time would be wasted both for him and us.

Saw Italians Dining.

Castellano did not want to talk, although he did express interest in the journalistic rights to this story. What we wanted was the true story of Mussolini's downfall for immediate publication, and, for later use, the inside information about the Italians' part in the armistice negotiations.

I had noticed Castellano and another officer on the eve of our Salerno landings when they were seated in the headquarters mess nibbling tentatively at hamburgers—or what passes for hamburgers in this part of the world. With them was a youngish, handsome American brigadier general. I suspected the others were Italians and went over to ask the general. He shook hands and said, "Don't you remember me?" I didn't. "I'll give you just 2 minutes to remember and if you do I'll give you a good story, provided my superiors approve." At the end of 2 minutes I still couldn't recall him.

"I'm Maxwell Taylor," he said, "and you almost rented my house in Tokio five years ago in April."

Jack Benny in Area.

He was a captain then. Later Taylor did tell me his story of his daring trip into Rome under the noses of the Germans together with Col. William Tudor Gardiner. Gardiner hadn't mentioned it and Taylor didn't know until I told him that Gardiner was a former Governor of Maine.

Jack Benny came to this area, not to headquarters, but to perform before 10,000 soldiers at an airfield where, incidentally, Bruce Cabot, another Hollywood boy and now an air force lieutenant, is stationed. Benny and Larry Adler have covered Central Africa and the Middle East in their four-month trip, playing at least one town a day, and they liked it so much they postponed broadcasts at home in order to have a little more time here.

Benny was anxious to play in Italy, possibly to be one up on Bob Hope, who was the first entertainer to go to Sicily.

Admiral Tells How He Led Last Portion Of Fleet To U. S. Base

By ALFRED WAGG
[Associated Press Correspondent]

With the U. S. Navy At An Advanced Mediterranean Base, Sept. 18 (Delayed)—The Italian Admiral Amedo Nomis Di Pollone has shepherded forty-one Italian warships into this American naval base. They represent the final portion of Italy's fleet that was able to sail when ordered to Allied ports.

His ships have already struck back at the Germans and have sunk nine enemy craft. Several fought their way out through German fire to carry out the admiral's command.

Given Orders In Rome

In an exclusive statement to the Associated Press, Admiral Di Pollone told how he had been in Rome on September 7 and there received orders from his government to return to Spezia and take command of a large squadron of destroyers and other craft bound to the port of Maddalena, Sardinia.

Early on the morning of September 9, five warships in dry dock were scuttled. All those that were in commission had left Spezia harbor by 10 A. M. It was only a few minutes later that the Germans breezed into the city and took over the port. Later in the day two small motor launches belonging to the admiral's unit escaped.

Launches Dodge Nazis

I went aboard one of these thirty-six footers that came all the way from Spezia alone looking for their admiral. Commanded by Petty Officer Joseph Cacucci, the small craft slipped out of Spezia dodging machine-gun fire from the breakwater. The navigator of one of these craft was wounded as bullets went clean through flimsy wooden boats. With no maps, with little food—only enough for two days—they found their way from Spezia to this base.

Admiral Pollone continued to tell of how, proceeding to Maddalena, he received orders to change course and proceed to Porto Ferraio, on the isle of Elba, since Maddalena had been occupied by the German army. After a day and a half at Elba they received orders to proceed to this American base.

Trips More Difficult

He explained that as Rome was directing the Italian navy into Allied ports many were scattered and, while much of Italy's fleet sailed into Malta with the British, it was more difficult to make runs from Genoa, Spezia, Elba and Bastia, Corsica, where this large portion of the fleet under his command was based.

Admiral Pollone's fleet of forty-one ships includes destroyers, corvettes and sub-chasers.

SAY NAZIS NOW TRY TO PLEASE VATICAN

Madrid, Sept. 23 (A. P.).—The German forces in Rome, according to reports reaching here from Italy, have received strict orders from Berlin to maintain the best possible relations with the Vatican. The reports indicate that the Nazis are most anxious to avoid any such trouble as might lead to a public appeal from the Vatican asking them to move out of Rome so that it may be considered an open city.

Italian cardinals, it was said, are being allowed free entry and exit through the German lines around the Vatican City, and the Nazis were reported to have offered to supply the Papal State with any foodstuffs it might need. This offer, however, was said to have been rejected.

Madrid, Sept. 23 (A. P.).—The Berlin correspondent of the Madrid newspaper Informaciones quoted a German military spokesman today as saying that "Nazi troops had reoccupied almost all the towns seized by Croat guerrillas in northern Yugoslavia following the Italian armistice. All railways in the region are in German hands and clean-up operations against partisans have begun," it was said.

Rhodes, Crete, Athens Bombed

CAIRO, Sept. 23 (AP).—American Liberators bombed Maritza airdrome on Rhodes and Elevsis airdrome at Athens yesterday, an air communique announced today. Maleme airdrome on Crete also was attacked by Royal Air Force Wellingtons during the night.

Two Enemy Convoys Destroyed In Aegean

Alexandria, Sept. 23 (AP)—Two enemy convoys operating in the Aegean Sea were destroyed recently by light Allied naval forces without loss to themselves, a British navy announcement said today.

The escort of one of the convoys was sunk and vessels protecting the other were damaged, the announcement said.

Allied naval forces have been operating in the Dodecanese Islands in close cooperation with the army and RAF.

Birds Get Airmen All A'twitter

NEW DELHI, (AP)—A description and picture of an Indian bird may soon be added on the enemy plane identification chart now hanging in operation rooms at USAFF airbases in the Gandhi country unless something is done to discourage them from racing combat planes when they take off.

Like houseflies over a cake, these buzzards on two counts .Besides giving the men extra work patching up holes in planes they lose eatable food to the feathered sneak and snitch raiders. Plane mechanics are finding out what the British learned many years ago—that you can't have cake with your tea and eat it too when you are snacking out in the open air.

U. S. And RAF Planes Raid Japs In Burma

New Delhi, Sept. 23 (AP)—Flying through improving Moscow monsoon weather, American medium and heavy bombers and RAF Beaufighters heavily attacked communications and military installations in Japanese-occupied Burma.

A United States air communique today announced "good results" in a medium bomber raid yesterday on freight yards at Sedaw, while B-24 heavy bombers demolished buildings and trackage in the Mandalay area.

All of the American planes returned safely.

The principal British raids were in the Katha district, along the Irrawaddy river, and on Cheduba Island along the coast.

East African Force Reinforces Ceylon

Colombo, Ceylon, Sept. 23 (AP). A large and powerful force of East African troops has arrived to reinforce troops stationed at this British naval base since early last year, it was announced today.

The soldiers, some of them veterans of the East Africa campaign against the Italians in 1941, will serve under Lieutenant General Harry Edward Wetherall, Governor of this island stronghold south of India.

Japanese Troops Fight PuppetPoliceInHankow

Chungking, Sept. 23 (AP)—Clashes between Japanese soldiers and puppet Chinese police in the great central China city of Hankow has led to the imposition of martial law on that city, dispatches said today.

The Japanese-controlled police were reported to have turned on the soldiers, killing three of them, after three policemen were bayoneted by drunken Japanese.

ALLIES CAPTURE NEW FOOTHOLD ON NEW GUINEA

Australians Landed Above Finschhafen, 60 Miles Northeast of Lae.

BIG JAP BASE IS OBJECTIVE

Americans in Solomons Wipe Out Enemy on Arundel and Saga Karasa.

Allied Headquarters in the Southwest Pacific, Sept. 23 (A. P.).—Gen. MacArthur announced today the seaborne landing of Australian troops above Finschhafen, enemy base on the New Guinea coast, sixty miles northeast of Lae; and the destruction of remnants of a Japanese garrison on Arundel Island in the Solomons.

Under protection of warships and planes, the Australians went ashore against enemy opposition at dawn yesterday, six miles above the peacetime mission headquarters and just below the Song River. At dusk of the previous day, Japanese bombers and fighters had sought to attack the ships involved in the operations but were intercepted between Lae and Finschhafen by Warhawks which shot down four bombers and five fighters at a cost of one of our own planes.

Within Shelling Range of Vila.

The capture of Finschhafen, on the Huon Peninsula, which is more suitable for ground action than any other territory previously attacked on New Guinea, would give the Allies control of a gulf within easy over-water striking distance of Japanese-held New Britain and its stronghold of Rabaul.

On Arundel, directly west of New Georgia, American jungle troops destroyed enemy troops and reinforcements on that island's north shore, and also on nearby Saga Karasa Island, and thus moved within artillery shelling distance of the Japanese garrison at Vila, across Blackett Strait on Kolombangara. The Japanese guns at imperiled Vila immediately opened fire.

Where the new blow was struck above Finschhafen, six days after Gen. MacArthur's men had captured Lae, there are no swamps such as bogged the troops at Burma, 170 miles to the southeast. The coastline is comparatively free of reefs, facilitating seaborne reinforcement and supply. There are few beaches but one of these was chosen for the landing.

From the beachhead, the troops have fairly open country through which to fight. The terrain rises gently in a series of almost ladder-like grass terraces. A coconut plantation is about two miles south of the landing site. There is an airstrip about two miles above Finschhafen but, at last report this was not serviceable.

120 Japs Die in Fight.

Sixty miles northwest of Lae at Kaiapit, which airborne Australians captured on September 18, headquarters disclosed that a Japanese patrol of 200 was encountered the night of the transport landings. The Aussies killed 120 of the enemy and routed the others.

Widespread air blows of the Allies augmented the latest ground operations. In the Madang sector, northwest of Finschhafen, the already disrupted coastal supply road took a new pounding on Tuesday which doubled the number of bridges destroyed to eight. Across the Dampier Strait from Finschhafen, Liberators dropped sixty tons of bombs on the airdrome at Cape Gloucester, New Britain, and other planes raided the airdrome at Gasmata.

In the vicinity of New Ireland reconnaissance bombers set a 5,000-ton enemy ship afire, sank a 1,500-ton ship and bombed two other vessels. In the Solomons, forty American dive bombers and torpedo bombers pounded the gun positions defending Vila.

The Japanese Air Force coused slight damage and casualties with eighteen fighter-escorted bombers which attacked Allied positions in the Watut Valley, well inland from Lae.

AUSSIES CAPTURE ENEMY AIRDROME NEAR FINSCHHAFEN

New Guinea Coastal Town Under Artillery Fire.

JAPS LOSE IN AIR BATTLE

40 of Foe's Planes Downed, Allies Lose Three Aircraft.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Friday, Sept. 24. — (AP) Australians who landed from the sea six miles north of Finschhafen, New Guinea, Wednesday have pushed resisting Japanese southward, reached the airdrome only two miles north of the base and have placed the coastal town under artillery fire.

Headquarters announced these developments today in a communique which also disclosed that a heavy air engagement ensued the day of the landing in which 40 Japanese planes were downed and five others probably were destroyed.

Three Allied planes were lost.

6,300 Japs Killed

Headquarters also disclosed a preliminary count since July 1 of more than 6,300 Japanese dead in the fighting which resulted in Allied capture of Lae and Salamaua. This total, coupled with a previous estimate of 6,000 killed in that area before July 1, raised the figure above 12,000.

"Enemy resistance is being rapidly reduced and we are pressing toward Finschhafen which is now under artillery fire," the communique said.

"We have reached the north end of the airfield."

Warships and bombing planes provided cover for Wednesday's landings.

Capture of Finschhafen would put Gen. MacArthur in a strong position, if he so chose, to strike at crescent-shaped New Britain which, in turn, outflanks Bougainville, principal Japanese holding in the Solomons.

The Japanese airforce began attempts to intercept the ships off Finschhafen in mid-morning Wednesday. The landings began at dawn. Two of the first attacking planes were shot down from high altitude.

Attack Landing Craft

The big fight occurred at noon. Japanese planes attacked landing craft.

Anti-aircraft guns on American warships put up a heavy fire. Allied fighters engaged in a 25-minute battle.

Headquarters said not a ship or passenger was damaged or injured. (The Tokyo radio said last night that two Allied cruisers were set on fire and other ships damaged).

Allied medium units and attack planes, closely supporting the landings, dropped 21 tons of bombs and fired 48,000 rounds of ammunition.

The biggest Japanese airforce blow was aimed while the American warships were withdrawing.

"Twenty to 30 enemy bombers, covered by 30 to 40 fighters attacked," the communique related.

"Our fighter cover intercepted with complete success, not a ship or passenger being damaged or injured."

The pilot of one of the three Allied planes downed was saved.

In addition to the Australians moving south on Finschhafen, another force stands between it and Lae, having landed there Sept. 4 to open the operations which ended in Lae's capture Sept. 16.

Today a compilation of preliminary reports on the victorious fight for Lae and Salamaua said more than 6,300 enemy dead have been counted since July 1.

"The final estimates will be very much greater," headquarters said.

Enemy Troops Scattered

"About 600 of the enemy are believed to be scattered in the hills north of Lae. They are being hunted down."

Previously a spokesman for General MacArthur had estimated that approximately 2,000 Japanese were slain in outpost battles leading up to the capture of Lae and Salamaua.

The Japanese army defending Lae and Salamaua at one time was estimated to total 20,000.

Lae, an air base, Salamaua, an air and sea base, together with Finschhafen bound the Huon gulf.

The heavy air losses of the enemy at Finschhafen strongly indicated that the Japanese airforce, rendered virtually impotent over New Guinea during the closing stages of the Lae-Salamaua fight, has been reinforced and intends to strongly resist he latest MacArthur Moves.

Prior to Wednesday's landings above Finschhafen, a formation of enemy planes was sent to attack ships involved in the operation and nine were downed by intercepting P-40s.

Only 85 miles northeast of Finschhafen, the enemy airdrome at Cape Gloucester, New Britain, has been dealt its third heavy bombing since Sunday. Ninety-four tons of explosives were dropped there and on Finschhafen in the latest raids.

New Pacific Emphasis Pleases Australia, Lord Gowrie Says

By the Associated Press.

CANBERRA, Sept. 23.—Australia has every reason to be satisfied with the decision of United Nations leaders to prosecute the Pacific war with the same vigor as in the European theater, Lord Gowrie, Governor General, said today in opening a new session of Parliament.

The Commonwealth government's war policies, he announced, would be governed by the commander in chief's strategical plan of operations, as related to the global strategy of the Allies.

(No further identification of the commander in chief was given.)

Appreciation Expressed.

Lord Gowrie disclosed that the Australian government had expressed appreciation to President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill for their assurance of equal vigor in fighting the Japanese as well as the Germans.

Reviewing the South Pacific campaign, he said:

"United States troops in the Solomons and Australian and United States troops in New Guinea relentlessly are forcing the enemy out of his forward bases. With each advance the range of our air attack becomes more extensive and the enemy's bases to the rear become more vulnerable."

Gains Already Cited.

The Italian surrender, he continued, transformed the naval position in the Mediterranean and this would have its effect on the Pacific theater. Already Allied land forces had established definite superiority over the enemy and had wrested the initiative from him. The allied assault on the enemy New Guinea base of Wewak and the landings near Lae demonstrated the predominance of our air and sea power.

Stating the policies and views of the new government of Premier John Curtin the governor general pledged that assistance to American forces would be continued under reciprocal lease-lend. Primary consideration would continue to insure maximum contributions to the Southwest Pacific, but the commonwealth would contribute food and supplies to other theaters as well.

Natives Rig Tricky Phone

WELLINGTON, N. Z., (AP) — Stories of the ingenuity of the men of the Maori Battalion in the Western Desert were told by Lt.-Col. F. Baker, D.S.O., to the Tin Hat Club, the soldiers' entertainment club in New Zealand.

After dark, he said, they would be out in no man's land often within a few hundred yards of the enemy's position searching for anything that might be useful.

"On one occasion my boys removed every battery and electric bulb from abandoned vehicles and on doing the rounds with the orderly officer that night I found every dug-out was electrically lit," he said.

"The boys had even rigged up a rough telephone system with wire taken from the trucks. There was only one ring — a long one. Everybody answered, of course, and the caller had to get his man by elimination—'No, not you Tom. . .Not you Hori', and so on, till he got the man he wanted. Actually it worked quite well."

Nimitz Gives Details Of Raids on Jap Isles

PEARL HARBOR, T. H., Sept. 23 (AP).—For the first time carrier planes and heavy land-based bombers have teamed up in a smashing offensive against Japanese island possessions.

This was disclosed by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz in amplified reports on operations September 18 and 19 against enemy installations in the Gilbert Islands area.

Land-based planes from both the South Pacific and Central Pacific joined with carrier planes in making more than 200 sorties over a 500-square-mile area against islands near the equator about 2,400 statute miles southwest of Hawaii.

In a communique yesterday, Admiral Nimitz also disclosed that these attacks took in Makin and Apamama Islands as well as Tarawa and Nauru.

He made this summary of the results:

Tarawa, easternmost Jap outpost and the hardest hit—airdrome damaged heavily; eight grounded bombers destroyed; a small vessel sunk.

Makin, 100 miles north of Tarawa —Airbase damaged; three four-engined seaplanes and a patrol plane destroyed.

Apamama, 80 miles southeast of Tarawa — Camp installations hit heavily.

Nauru, directly west of Gilberts and about 800 statute miles northeast of Guadalcanal—Installations damaged.

Six Zermos and two enemy medium bombers were shot down, four other Zeros probably were downed and eight damaged at a cost of four American planes.

Gripsholm Quits Montevideo

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Sept. 23 (AP).—The Swedish liner Gripsholm sailed today with more than 160 Japanese diplomats, business men and journalists from the United States and Chile en route to Mormugao, Portuguese India, where a diplomatic exchange will be made with North and South American residents of the Far East.

El Salvador Uses U. S. Dimes

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador, Sept. 23 (AP).—Circulation of United States dimes in El Salvador was authorized by the government today to alleviate a shortage of fractional money. The 10-cent pieces will be accepted as the equivalent of 25-centavo coins.

Retroactive Wage Boost In Puerto Rico Invalid

San Juan, Puerto Rico, Sept. 23 (AP)—The Supreme Court of Puerto Rico today held unconstitutional retroactive wage increases for sugar workers ordered by the Insular Minimum Wage Board.

The wage increase contested by eighty-three sugar companies and individuals was ordered last February 23 by the board and made retroactive to February 6, 1942.

Longest Stage Mail Route In World Opens

Dawson Creek, B. C., Sept. 23 (AP)—United States Army trucks opened today what is described as the longest stage mail route in the world — the 1,000-mile overland route from Dawson Creek to Whitehorse, Yukon territory, along the Alaska highway.

The seventy-two-hour trip includes two mountain ranges. A daily northbound and southbound schedule is planned.

PACE OF AIR WAR IN PACIFIC MOUNTS OVER WIDE AREA

U. S. Planes Hammer Jap Bases from Burma to Gilbert Isles.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Japanese strongholds from Burma to the Gilbert islands, spanning nearly 5,000 miles, have suffered heavy blows this week in a convincing display of the magnitude of Allied air operations in the Pacific and Far East.

A U. S. Air communique issued at New Delhi Thursday reported that American bombers, flying through improving monsoon weather, raided freight yards at Sedan with "good results" and destroyed buildings and trackage in the Mandalay area of Burma. British Beaufighters made attacks in the Katha district and on Chedura island, along the coast.

Gilbert Islands Bombed

These raids at the western front of Japanese military activity followed by four days the heavy assault on four of the Gilbert islands, the easternmost of the enemy bases.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz in a communique on Wednesday disclosed that carrier-based planes and heavy land bombers teamed up for the first time in an offensive against Japanese-held islands.

In raids on Tarawa, Makin, Apamama and Nauru, at least 20 enemy planes were destroyed, two airdromes damages, a small vessel sunk and installations crippled.

Between these extremes of activity the Allied offensive in the south Pacific went forward with a seaborne landing north of the Japanese base of Finschhafen, New Guinea, in a move to isolate that supply point, 60 miles northeast of Lae, which was captured last week. In the central Solomons Americans gained complete control of Arundel island by wiping out the last of the enemy garrison. This made more precarious this position of the Nipponese at Vila, Kolombangara island, their only remaining base in the central Solomons.

The Navy department in Washington reported the fifth enemy raid of Guadalcanal since Sept. 13 and the largest in many weeks against that southern Solomons American air base. Two enemy bombers, out of a force of 12 to 16, were shot down. There were no United States casualties and damage was light.

Indications that Japanese propagandists have started an intensive campaign to mobilize Nippon's fighting spirit and increase war production have been made by the Tokyo radio, the Office of War Information said in New York. Previously plans for the evacuation of many civilians from Tokyo and other large cities had been announced.

BREAD RATION INCREASED

The German radio announced last night that the bread ration in the protectorate of Bohemia and Moravia — formerly Czechoslovakia —would be increased by 400 grams (14 ounces) monthly in October. The broadcast, which quoted a Prague dispatch, was recorded by the Associated Press.

What's Behind the War News

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press War Analyst

There are strong intimations in the war news from Italy that the Nazi retreat up the narrow boot leg is destined to continue north of Naples.

No Nazi except stragglers or suicide rear-guard units are reported south of the Salerno-Auletta-Potenza-Matera-Taranto highway, nor east or south of the northward offshoot of that road to Bari from Massafra, just above Taranto. Nazi demolition in Naples leaves little doubt that it also is to be surrendered and that the Anglo-American advance, swinging now like a gate on the Salerno hinge, will meet its next formidable opposition somewhere north of the Naples-Foggia line.

At a guess that projected Nazi defense front below Rome might run along the north bank of the Volturno river in the west, linking up with the lower Calore and the upper Tammaro to reach the crest of the Apennines near Campobasso. The line would join the Fortore river, east of the mountains, at that point to reach the Adriatic coast north of Lake Dilesina. It would represent a river and mountain front less than 100 miles long but would be dangerously close to Rome.

The obvious Allied answer would be a leap-frog jump by sea up the coast beyond Naples to overrun the Volturno plains and outflank the line even before the retreating Nazi can reach it for a stand. Seizure last week of Ischia and Procide islands, off the tip of the Naples promontory suggested that such a move might be in prospect, following the pattern of the 7th army leap-frog jumps along the north coast of Sicily which proved so successful in that campaign.

Allied tactical air forces appear to be concentrating on the Nazi supply and escape routes from Naples, particularly northward along the Volturno crossings. That might be another indication that General Eisenhower intends to bypass Naples, and the tremendous bulk of Vesuvius south of it, to strike by sea again along the coast of the Gulf of Gaeta rather than work his way forward frontally at probably heavy life cost to his armies.

It is still not clear just how far the Allied occupation of Italy is intended to go. There are good military arguments [illegible] where, perhaps [illegible] Foggia short line, [illegible] the foe elected to make his next stand north of that position he would be followed up.

Military reasons alone cannot shape the campaign in Italy. Good political grounds can be advanced for pushing on into Rome itself as General Clark told his army after the Salerno bridgehead fight would be done.

The final decision probably rests in any case on what the Germans attempt to do, and also upon the relation of the Italian campaign to the next contemplated major Allied move in other sectors.

London comment still harps on the possibility of a Balkan drive. There is nothing on this side of the Atlantic nor in Prime Minister Churchill's war review to Parliament to sustain that conjecture. On the contrary, Mr. Churchill laid his main stress on cross-channel invasion preparations in Britain. Seasoned Allied troops from the Mediterranean theater would be useful in the west when that comes.

Again, however, what happens within Italy, on the Greek peninsula or in the Balkans within the next few weeks must effect Allied military plans. With the Russians virtually at the Dnieper, the war in the east could roll so close to Rumania and Bulgaria soon as to force them out of the Axis orbit by internal upheavals. The Allies must stand ready to take prompt advantage militarily of any new "windfall."

There are two disengaged British armies of formidable proportions standing-by across the Mediterranean, the 9th and 10th in Syria and Iraq. The effect of a Balkan internal collapse upon Turkish neutrality also might provide an important factor in the situation there.

And the proven genius of Allied strategic plans thus far has been to a large extent the fact that they were flexible enough to absorb any unexpected development, good or bad. They have met both kinds in the recent past without a breakdown.

2 JAPS SHOT DOWN OVER GUADALCANAL

Washington, Sept. 23 (A. P.).—Shooting down two enemy bombers, American fighter planes drove off a Japanese bombing raid on Guadalcanal, the Navy reported today. The enemy group, largest reported over the island in many weeks, was composed of "twelve or sixteen enemy bombers," but only slight material damage and a few casualties had resulted before the Japanese were driven off on Tuesday morning, the communique declared.

The Navy also reported another raid by six Japanese planes which dropped bombs near the air strip on Guadalcanal on Monday. Only light damage was caused and no casualties were suffered in that raid.

The two attacks raised to five the number of Japanese raids in the Guadalcanal area since September 13.

U. S. Ship Sunk Off India

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23 (AP).—The Navy announced today the torpedoing of a medium-sized United States merchant vessel by an enemy submarine in the Indian Ocean in mid-June. Survivors have been landed at Key West, Fla.

Members Are Called Traitors

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23 (AP).—All the members of Mussolini's "New Fascist Government," including Mussolini, one authority here said today, are legally traitors, liable to execution by the Italians should they be captured by the Allies. They have violated the armistice signed by the legitimately constituted Badoglio government.

Marshal Graziani's appointment as Minister of Defense was surprising. Presumably he was chosen because he has been a high army officer, who once collaborated wholeheartedly in Mussolini's military adventures. He was supposedly in disgrace, however, after his implied criticism of the Mussolini regime in his 1941 report explaining how the British defeated the Italians in Cyrenaica.

Steinhardt in Washington

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23 (AP).—Laurence A. Steinhardt, American Ambassador to Turkey, returned to Washington today for a series of conferences viewed as especially significant, in view of military and political developments in the Balkan and eastern Mediterranean areas.

He reported to Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, and is expected to confer with other high officials. His assignment in Turkey has been of particular importance in view of that neutral country's position between Soviet Russia, the German-dominated Balkans and the Allied positions in the Near East.

PACIFIC PLAN IS M'ARTHUR'S

Washington Source Comments On Statement—Overlapping Command Denied

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 23—Gen. Douglas MacArthur suggested the strategy now used against the Japanese in the Pacific, it was said in high quarters today, and the major blows at present are being delivered under his immediate command.

At the same time Secretary Stimson asserted that the commands of MacArthur in the Southwest Pacific and of Lord Louis Mountbatten in southeast Asia do not overlap.

Statement Raised Question

The question of the extent of MacArthur's command, and of the extent to which his advice has been heeded or ignored by the high command, drew attention because of the statement issued by MacArthur two days ago, implying that he has been relegated to a subordinate position and that his plans for smashing at the vitals of the enemy have been by-passed for a more cautious approach.

The statement stirred up a public furor, coming on the eve of expected big offensives against the Japanese, not only in the Pacific, but under Mountbatten's command in Burma and the Indian Ocean, where the end of the monsoon season this month opens the weather for large-scale operations.

MacArthur's statement seemed to puzzle Washington officialdom. The impression, however, is that it was directed, not at the Allied high command, but at comments of Australian newspapers opposed to the Government of Prime Minister Curtin.

Linked To Island-Hopping

These papers had asserted that Mountbatten would overshadow, and might even supersede MacArthur—a development, incidentally, which would have been as unpopular in Australia as in this country. Furthermore, they tagged MacArthur with sponsoring "island-hopping" strategy.

The latter alone was enough to infuriate MacArthur, who has consistently opposed the tedious process of tightening the ring around Japan by methodical seizure of island outposts, and has instead advocated what he terms broad and massive strategic strokes.

However curious its terms, then, MacArthur's statement is regarded here as an answer to Australian newspapers—and possibly also to similar implications in a statement made in the Southwest Pacific by Senator Chandler (D., Ky.).

No Rift With Department

In the wake of all the clamor, it can be stated on high authority:

1. There is at present no controversy between MacArthur and the War Department or between MacArthur and the high command.

2. Nothing happened at Quebec to change MacArthur's status, the Quebec conference confining itself—as far as the war with Japan is concerned—to plans affecting Mountbatten's new command and to operations in China.

3. As far as operations in the Southwest and South Pacific, and the coordinated operations in the Central Pacific, are concerned, the broad decisions were reached at Casablanca. Details were settled at a conference of Pacific staff officers in Washington last spring.

MacArthur's plan was adopted virtually intact, and MacArthur is now engaged in carrying it out. Northern Pacific operations are outside his realm.

Line Set Between Theaters

Geographically, the extent of MacArthur's command was made more clear by a London announcement today that Mountbatten's southeast Asia theater stops at a line running south from Indo-China through the China Sea, passing between Sumatra and Java. Eastward of this line, and to Guadalcanal Island in the Solomons, the responsibility is MacArthur's.

Eventually, some adjustment of responsibilities may have to be made, but both MacArthur and Mountbatten must retake large portions of conquered territory before their respective theaters can conceivably overlap.

Both apparently aim at an eventual break-through into the China Sea, where the shipping lifeline between Japan and the territories she has seized could be cut by sea and air action.

WAR RELIEF PLAN REVEALED BY HULL IN MEETING CALL

Allied Nations Invited to White House to Sign Agreement.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23 — (AP) A revised scheme of global relief for victims of global war was projected tonight by the State department in inviting Allied nations to a White House meeting to sign an agreement.

Secretary of State Hull made public the text of the proposed agreement, which provides power for a director general of relief and rehabilitation to operate all over the world within limits set by a central committee from the United States, Britain, China and Russia.

Responsible to Council

This central committee, in turn, is made responsible to a council from all participating nations in which small and large alike are given equal voice.

Representatives of 42 united and associated nations and the French Committee of National Liberation were invited to send representatives here for the signing early in November.

Secretary Hull noted that the agreement has been considerably modified since the first tentative text was submitted last June. Suggestions made by various governments had been incorporated, he said.

The chief modification appears to have been in making the big four central committee responsible to the council. The Netherlands government, as one of the smaller countries, had protested that the first draft granted too much power to the committee and did "not seem compatible with democratic principles."

Another major change, stemming in part from Congress, is a specific provision that commitments made by members of the relief organization shall accord with their own constitutional and legislative procedures.

Secretary Hull told a press conference that, inasmuch as nearly a year has been consumed in preliminary discussions and in revision of the draft text to conform with the desires of various governments, it will not be necessary to hold a United Nations conference to discuss general problems of relief or further revision of the agreement.

The formal meeting at the White House, he explained, will be simply for the ceremony of signature "if the draft is acceptable to the other governments." Later it is planned to hold the first meeting of the council somewhere in the United States outside of Washington.

Under the agreement each participating government or authority is entitled to one representative on the council, which will be the policy making body. The council's first meeting will be for the purpose of organization and election of officers, including a director general previously nominated by unanimous vote of the central committee.

FOREIGN PROGRAM PROPOSED BY U. S. TO END SHORTAGES

Expansion of Moves Already Started Is Suggested in Note to Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23 — (AP) The government is contemplating a sharply increased program of developing foreign food productive resources to help meet war and post-war rehabilitation needs.

Such a program was inaugurated by the United States last year. Authority over it was divided, however, between the Office of Economic Warfare and the Agriculture department.

As a move to expand the program, the Office of War Mobilization has prepared an executive order transferring Agriculture department phases to the OEW. The order is now on President Roosevelt's desk, and officials at both agencies said today they expect it to be signed by this week end.

Can Recommend Programs

Under the present administrative setup, the OEW has authority to recommend programs designed to encourage production of foods in foreign lands. But those programs can not be put into operation without approval of the Agriculture department, particularly the latter agency's Commodity Credit corporation, because it provides the necessary funds.

During the past year, the CCC often turned down OEW recommendations upon the contention that the food production and purchase programs either were uneconomic or involved the guarantee of excessive prices.

Vast Possibilities

The OEW, on the other hand, drew pictures of vast food productive possibilities in foreign lands. The Agriculture department, with its Office of Foreign Agricultural Relations and corps of foreign agricultural experts, took a less optimistic view.

This difference of opinion cropped up recently in a report issued by a food advisory committee headed by E. W. Gaumnitz, then an official of the OEW. That report scored what it called the failure of the United States and Great Britain to tap foreign food resources.

The Agriculture department apparently was putting up no opposition to the proposed transfer of its functions. It was understood that the Presidential order would give the State department general supervision over the foreign food program insofar as foreign policy is concerned. In the past, the State department has leaned heavily on the Agriculture department's Office of Foreign Agricultural Relations for advice on agricultural problems in other lands.

Reports were circulated that the OEW would ask W. I. Myers of Cornell university, to take over the program. Mr. Myers formerly was governor of the Farm Credit administration.

Marshall Warns Against Being Lulled Into "Fake Sense Of Easy Victory"

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 23—Gen. George C. Marshall asserted tonight that "we face grim months of fighting on all fronts all over the globe" and admonished the nation against being lulled by initial successes "into a false sense of easy victory."

The chief of staff, in an address at the army "Back the Attack" exhibit of war weapons here, referred to recent actions on far-flung fronts, and then said "we are, for the first time since the war started, ready to deploy the tremendous American army which the purchase of war bonds has financed."

Advances Accelerated

Reporting that Allied advances in the southwest Pacific and Solomons areas have been greatly accelerated, Marshall added that "in the China-Burma theater we are getting into a position to carry heavy fighting to the Japanese."

The present war, Marshall said, surpasses any in history in the wastage of military equipment.

"No previous war," he said, "has approached such requirements as the present awful struggle. Tanks, jeeps, trucks, airplanes and artillery are inevitably destroyed by the hundreds on the battlefield even when the going is good.

Losses Serious Problem

"So far we have been extraordinarily fortunate, but even so the losses present a serious problem. The weapons and equipment must be replaced immediately without delay, if the advance is to continue and if we are to give the soldiers who depend on these weapons a fair break on the battlefield.

"There will be no end to these requirements for weapons until the last battle is victoriously completed."

NEW YORK-MOSCOW PHONE CALL IS $21

Washington, Sept. 23 (A. P.).—Direct telephone service has been established between New York and Moscow.

This became known today with the filing of a tariff with the Federal Communications Commission by the American Telephone & Telegraph Company.

The cost of a call between New York and Moscow is on the basis of $21 for three minutes.

The tariff filed with the FCC gave no details as to eligibility of persons for using the new service. This service, like all other overseas communications, will be subject to censorship.

Stimson Hails Allied Successes Of Week

Washington, Sept. 23 (AP)—Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of War, said today successes for Allied arms during the last week in all world battle areas will "make possible further deployment of our forces for a possible ultimate penetration of enemy defenses on all fronts."

Stimson asserted the Allied positions in the Salerno area are now "reasonably secure" against German counter-attack.

The advance of the Allies in the Mediterranean, Stimson commented, undoubtedly has accelerated the German retreat in Russia. He said the fall rains in Russia may prove more of an obstacle to Russian advances than German rear-guard action.

300,000 Draft Eligibles Hold U. S. Jobs, House Group Told

Committee's Counsel Charges Non-Fathers Have Not Been Called For Induction

SEP 24 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 23—Counsel for a Congressional committee investigating draft deferments for Government workers charged today that approximately 300,000 draftage non-fathers were in Government service, and had not been called up for induction although less than half actually had been given deferred status.

Ralph Burton, counsel for the House Military subcommittee directed to study the Government's own deferment policies, made the charge.

Representative Costello (D., Cal.), subcommittee chairman, asserting he was surprised by Burton's allegations, said a full investigation would be made.

Review Group Quizzed

Burton submitted his figures during committee questioning of members of the three-man review committee set up by the President to pass on deferments of Federal workers.

"They are available for call," said Robert M. Barnett, chairman of the review group, when Representative Harness (R., Ind.) asked: "How in the name of common sense can that many single men be working down there when they are talking about drafting men with children?"

Barnett said his committee had no responsibility in the matter, its jurisdiction being limited to pass on key positions and to determine which agencies should use replacement schedules.

116,935 Deferred

"We have wondered why they have not been called for induction," he commented with respect to non-inducted Government workers who have not been deferred.

Burton said Selective Service figures indicated that 197,656 draftage, non-fathers were employed by the Government as of August 15, with many agencies unreported. The committee's own estimate, he said, was that the total was closer to 300,000. Employes given deferments as of August 15, Burton said, approximated 116,935.

Barnett asserted that many men listed as Government workers and charged against the Government in deferment tables were not actually Government employes. Particularly was this true, he said, in the case of the War Shipping Administration, against which is charged deferment of merchant seamen and merchant cadets.

Asked by committee members if his group had received many complaints from departments because of its attitude in handling deferment cases, Barnett said there had been complaints that the review committee was "too tough."

The Petroleum Administration for War, headed by Interior Secretary Ickes, "complained rather loudly about it," he added.

Taken To White House

Col. Edward A. Fitzpatrick, selective service representative on Barnett's committee, said the Interior Department had submitted a list of 6,000 key positions for which deferment was sought, and complained when many of them were turned down. Some of the complaints, Fitzpatrick said, were taken all the way to the White House, without apparent result.

Fitzpatrick accused the Interior Department of having failed to "readjust itself to the war effort."

RENEGOTIATION ACT MAY BE RETAINED

Modifications Hinted But Basic Law Will Remain in Force.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—(AP) The House Ways and Means committee appeared definitely inclined today toward retention of the renegotiation law for recapture of "excessive profits" in war contracts, notwithstanding numerous petitions for its repeal.

Both Chairman Doughton (D-NC) and Rep. Knutson (R-Minn), leading Republican member, expressed the view that Congress would keep the law, after considering some important modifications.

Rep. Doughton and Rep. Knutson expressed their opinions as the committee completed 12 days of public hearings on proposals for repeal or revision of the law.

Some members said it appeared a majority of the committee would favor amendments providing for court appeals from decisions of renegotiation boards, raising the limit of contracts subject to renegotiation from $100,000 to $500,000 a year, exempting standard commercial products and having one board instead of six pass on renegotiation cases.

In addition, these members believed the committee might recommend some plan for compensating contractors who, in good faith, lose money through war contracts.

Senate Committee Delays Action on Fulbright Plan

Expects to Produce Own Measure Within a Month

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23 (AP).—A Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee delayed today for at least a week any action on a dozen or more pending post-war policy proposals, including the House-approved Fulbright resolution.

Senator Guy M. Gillette, Democrat, of Iowa, predicted the committee would act within "three or four weeks" on a resolution of its own. He said there was some feeling in the Senate that the House had gone out of bounds in passing the Fulbright measure.

Senator Gillette told reporters that while he welcomed the House action he believed the Senate would desire to pass a resolution of its own. The Senate holds the constitutional authority to advise the President in the negotiation of treaties, which cannot become effective until ratified by a two-thirds vote of the Senate.

Senator Carl Hatch, Democrat, of New Mexico, who is not a member of the committee, told reporters he regarded the House-approved Fulbright measure as unsatisfactory because it lacks a definite pledge to use military force to prevent future aggression.

The Fulbright proposal would put Congress on record merely as favoring United States participation in "appropriate international machinery" with power adequate to maintain peace.

The proposal to use military force is the keynote of a resolution offered by Senator Hatch and Senators Lister Hill, Democrat, of Alabama, Joseph H. Ball, Republican, Minnesota, and Harold H. Burton, Republican, of Ohio, which the subcommittee is considering. Their resolution, the Fulbright measure, and other pending proposals appear likely to give way in the committee to a compromise statement expected to be offered later by Senator Tom Connally, Democrat, of Texas, chairman, of the full committee.

Brooklyn Man's Son Honored

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23 (AP).—The Navy announced today the awarding of the Silver Star to Lieutenant Webster R. Robinson, of Berkeley, Calif., for gallantry on war patrols in the Pacific area. He is the son of W. R. Robinson, 8701 Ridge Boulevard, Brooklyn.

Sweden Has Lost 222 Merchant Ships

New York, Sept. 23 (AP)—Sweden's merchant marine lost 222 vessels, amounting to 577,000 gross tons, from the beginning of the war until the end of August, the American Swedish News Exchange announced here today.

Included were 25 ships of 46,000 gross tons seized by German prize courts and 16 fishing boats of 800 gross tons.

A total of 1,191 lives were reported lost.

U. S. And Chile Discuss Permanent Trade Treaty

New York, Sept. 23 (AP)—Chilean Foreign Minister Joaquin Fernandez said today that he and Secretary of State Hull had discussed the possibility of a "permanent trade unity" between the two nations.

The Foreign Minister said after a brief visit here and in Canada he would return to Washington to continue discussions with Secretary Hull regarding the pact and other state affairs.

The Chilean leader said that his Government was trying to effect a common policy for the South American democracies "not only for this difficult moment but also for the no-less complicated moments in the post-war period."

World Freedom Talk Is Dream, Taft Says

New York, Sept. 23 (AP)—Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) said tonight "when we talk of bringing freedom—or the four freedoms—to the rest of the world, we are talking in a dream language."

He said he was opposed to a British-American-Russian military alliance to keep peace on the ground that domination of the world by force would be inconsistent with any true freedom.

WAR LOAN DRIVE TO END ON OCT. 2, MORGENTHAU SAYS

Remaining Nine Days Dedicated to Gen. Clark's Fifth Army.

NEW YORK Sept. 23—(AP) Dedicating the remaining nine days of the Third War Loan to General Mark Clark's "gallant Fifth army" battling in Italy, Secretary Morgenthau said tonight the $3,000,000,000 that still must be raised might seem impossible but declared:

"To some, not very long ago, beating Germany seemed impossible. The invasion of North Africa, of Sicily, of Italy, seemed impossible. It seemed impossible for the Russians to drive the Nazi forces out of their land. But all these things were done."

He added, in a CBS radio address, that he was just as confident "our home front army of 5,000,000 volunteer salesmen" would be able to sell $25, $50 and $100 bonds to "millions of people" to attain the goal.

"Nor will we forget that every extra billion will end the war just that much sooner," he asserted.

Drive Ends Oct. 2

The Oct. 2 closing date for the drive announced by Secretary Morgenthau was the first time a termination date had been set.

In Washington, meanwhile, the Treasury reported a "most gratifying" upswing in small bond purchases as it announced a gain of $522,000,000 in sales during the day to bring the total to $12,222,000,000.

Pointing to a five per cent overnight rise in bond sales to individuals—now 44 per cent of the $5,000,000,000 goal for that category—National Director Ted Gamble said "It is apparent that the individuals—the people—are behind this drive."

"The small bond buyers are going to carry the third war loan to success," he declared.

With the campaign scheduled to close Oct. 2, bond sales during the remaining nine days will have to average over $300,000,000 a day to reach the $15,000,000,000 quota.

Ohio Nears Quota

Ohio, with three of its principal cities—Cleveland, Columbus and Cincinnati—already over their quotas, showed most promise tonight of joining Maryland and Rhode Island in the 100-per cent-plus column. Sales there were reported at 93 per cent. Maryland climbed to 116 per cent in the latest breakdown, with Rhode Island up to 106.

LEGION BACKS POST-WAR PLAN

Indorses U. S. Participation And Administration Manpower Policies

[By the Associated Press]

Omaha, Sept. 23—The American Legion today indorsed participation by the United States in an association "of free and sovereign nations" in the post-war world, and at the same time threw its support behind Administration war manpower policies, which include drafting of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers.

The indorsements were contained in committee reports accepted at the closing session of the twenty-fifth annual convention, which elected Warren H. Atherton, Stockton (Cal.), advocate of a universal service act, as national commander.

Adopted By Voice Vote

Participation with other nations in a post-war association was recommended in a report by the Legion's foreign relations committee and adopted by the convention in a voice vote.

The report emphasized that such a move is the method by which "our nation can best serve and protect its natural interests," and added that such cooperation should be "implemented by whatever force may be necessary" to maintain peace.

1943

Support of present draft policies was contained in a report presented by the national defense committee, which declared that Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, has stated that 7,700,000 men are needed by December 31, 1943.

Strategic Plan

"As this figure has been based upon a definite strategic plan and worked out by experts, any authority who undertakes to change this figure, recommended as a minimum for the plan envisaged, must assume the responsibility for the effect upon the plan which may result from such change," the report said.

Former Governor John Steele of Illinois demanded from the convention floor whether that portion of the report should be interpreted as giving one hundred per cent. cooperation to General Marshall in present manpower-draft plans.

Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, retired, of Chicago, who delivered the report, replied "yes" and affirmation came also from Waring. The convention then approved the report by voice vote.

Admiral King Talks

The Foreign Relations Committee report said "it would be premature now to state with particularity how the peace shall be implemented and enforced, but it must be obvious now to all the world that no peace can be lasting and secure for nations that are not fully prepared to maintain peace."

The action preceded a speech by Admiral Ernest J. King, commander in chief of the United States fleet, who told the convention that shattering blows against the enemy "with all weapons that can be brought to bear, synchronized and coordinated with overwhelming assault," constitute the aim of the navy.

No Holding Operation

Later, Admiral King in an interview declared that Allied forces in the Pacific "are not fighting a holding operation against the Japanese," but are performing offensive operations that will increase as more means are allocated to the Pacific theater.

He asserted that Allied forces in the Pacific will "throw more and more monkey wrenches into the machinery of the enemy as we get more and more monkey wrenches to throw."

Bases Will Be Aid

He asserted that in the Pacific theater bases are being taken away from the Japanese and will be an aid when the time comes to press against the enemy.

War material taken from the enemy, such as the Italian fleet, will be used by the Allies "according to its capabilities," Admiral King said. He estimated that "about two thirds" of the Italian fleet, as it existed a month ago, was in Allied hands.

MRS. ROOSEVELT TELLS OF HER TRIP

Says Improvement Of U. S. War Equipment In Pacific Is Apparent To All

[By the Associated Press]

San Francisco, Sept. 23—Looking tired after her 23,000-mile trip to the South Pacific and Australia, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt told a press conference today she was glad to be home, adding "I don't think I ever worked as hard in my life."

She arrived from Honolulu by plane at 12.20 P. M., five weeks and two days after leaving the country on the longest and hardest of her many journeys.

Did she have any comment on General MacArthur's recent statement about being willing to take a subordinate position in forthcoming strategy?

Answers Anyway

A military aide shook his head at the question, but she replied.

"No, I wouldn't have any comment, except, of course, I'm quite sure there isn't an officer in that area who, if he thought conduct of the war would be improved if he should be shifted to another position, would hesitate for a moment to take it."

Mrs. Roosevelt was asked whether the men and officers feel the Pacific front is regarded as less important than the one in Europe.

"They know it is important; they know how big it is," she answered. "I think they do feel we at home don't know how big it is. In order to make gains possible, of course, there is a great deal of work done just to hold places that are not in combat, and I think the men in some of those posts do have a forgotten feeling.

Cites Improved Equipment

"As for equipment, they know their equipment is enormously increased, and very excellent. The change is so marked they all can see it."

The trip had three purposes, she explained: Accepting a long-standing invitation from Australia and New Zealand to see the work women were doing in the war there; gathering information for the Red Cross on how it is functioning and what it needs most, and carrying out her husband's suggestion that she "see as many of the men as you can, and see how things are going with them."

Tells About The Girls

She said the Australian lads have much of the British attitude of aloof formality with women, and find that American boys are "just walking away with their gals."

"They hardly know what to make of the Americans' fast work," she said. "The boys told me of one lad who got on a bus, sat down by a pretty girl and said by way of introduction, 'Angel, what heaven did you drop from?'

"That was something new in Australia."

CULMINATING IN MID-SEPTEMBER.

THE PLANNED PRELIMINARY STEPS WERE TO HAVE BEEN THE KNOCKING OUT OF THE RAF AND THEN THE BOMBING OF LONDON TO SHATTER THE WILL AND ABILITY OF THE BRITISH PEOPLE TO RESIST.

THIS INFORMATION, OBTAINED FROM SOURCES WHICH MAY NOT BE SPECIFIED, PRESENTED A BROADER PICTURE OF EVENTS THAT OCCURRED DURING THOSE DARK DAYS THAN IT WAS POSSIBLE TO GIVE THEN OR SINCE.

THE DARING AND TIRELESS PILOTS OF THE RAF CARRIED THE MAJOR BURDEN OF THROWING THIS ENEMY INVASION PROGRAM AWRY--THE MEN WHO LONG AGO WERE IMMORTALIZED BY THE WORDS OF WINSTON CHURCHILL: "NEVER IN THE FIELD OF HUMAN CONFLICT WAS SO MUCH OWED BY SO MANY TO SO FEW."

THE RAF THEN WAS OUT-NUMBERED FOUR TO ONE BY THE GERMAN AIRFORCE'S 3,450 PLANES.

THE FORCE THAT BATTLED BACK 400 GERMAN PLANES ON SEPT. 15, 1940 AND 350 ON SEPT. 27 AMOUNTED TO ONLY 29 SQUADRONS--LESS THAN 350 PLANES--SOME OF WHICH FOUGHT THREE TIMES IN A DAY.

BESIDES COURAGE, THE RAF'S BIG ASSETS WERE A RADIO LOCATION SYSTEM, AN EFFICIENT OPERATIONAL SYSTEM, AND THE GERMANS' SEQUENCE OF MISTAKES.

london, sept. 23-(ap)-jan stanczyk, polish labor minister who has addressed miners at scranton, pa. and other united states mining centers, said today that the world should realise that germany is attempting "biological destruction" of poland by killing off and deporting polish children.

he told a press conference in a prelude to a mass protest meeting ~~without~~ that 40 of each 100 polish children were dying before their first birthday because of lack of food, fuel and clothing coupled with german persecution.

"we appeal to the britiah and americans as true humanitarian peoples to do all in their power to keep our children from perishing," he said.

30.24 8727

count edward raczynski, ambassador to london, declared the world was unable to imagine the actuality of the horrors inflicted on polish children as the government was able to picture it from disjointed reports received from ~~xxxxxxxxx~~ the occupied country. he added that no propaganda effort on the part of the poles was able to match the reality as they learned it.

fro m time to time, he said, the germans intensify their campaigns deporting children to germany, using youths in forced xx labor and "germanizing" children in nazi schools.

london, sept. 23-(ap)-private ray adler of ponchatoula,la., has been doing guard duty in front of u.s. army headquarters for hearly a year here, but he isn't sure whether he's in the army or n o t.

he learned today for the first time of a medical discharge,which had been filed for hi~~m~~ a year and a half ago before he even shipped overseas, when his mother wrote that his allotment home had been stopped.

adler suffered a fractured pelvis in an automobile accident in january, 1942 and was given a discharge a ~~xxhz~~ month later.

neither he nor his commander were notified, however, and adler rejoined his infantry outfit on leaving the hospital and was sent overseas.

london, sept. 23-(ap)-wright bryan, who left his desk as associate editor and managing editor of the atlanta journal to become a war correspondent, arrive in london looking for action.

he was accompanied across the atlantic by four other additions to the american corps of correspondents covering the war.

1943

bryan said his assignment was indefinite, "but i definitely hope it will last until the invasion of europe gets going."

"we got off to a bad start," he added. "for on our atlantic crossing we didn't see any excitement whatever. the biggest shock i've gotten so far has been the difference in georgia and english weather."

other ############ correspondents arriving today were gilbert hammond, boston herald and ######## traveller; winston phelps, providence journal; kenneth crawford, of news week; and tommy webber, photographer on special ass ignment for look magazine.

bryan is the second atlanta newspaper executive to come to london in recent weeks. ralph mcgill, editor of the constitution who made the visit under the auspices of the ministry of information, returned home in august after a months stay.

A U.S. BOMBER BASE IN ENGLAND, SEPT. 23-(AP)-THE GAYEST GUY IN THE U.S. AIRFORCE IS "COWBOY" BILL DALY OF LANSDALE,PA., WHO HAS COMPLETED HIS REGULAR TOUR AS A PILOT WITH 70 DAYS OF "PERFECT" FLYING FORTRESS BOMBING AND NOW WANTS TO GO BACK TO THE UNITED STATES TO FLY "REAL BIG BOMBERS."

LT. DALY, 21, WHO WEARS THE AIR MEDAL AND THREE CLUSTERS AND HAS TWICE BEEN RECOMMENDED FOR THE DISTINGUISHED FLYING CROSS, SAID FORTRESSES HAD "KNOCKED HELL OUT OF" HANGARS, REPAIR SHOPS AND OTHER BUILDINGS OF THE JU-88 SQUADRON BASE AT LORIENT THAT HAS BEEN INTERFERING WITH LONG-RANGE ALLIED BOMBERS.

LT. DALY, WITH THE PROSPECT OF RETURNING SOON TO AMERICA AFTER A YEAR OF RAIDING SOME OF THE TOUGHEST TARGETS IN EUROPE, TOOK A LITTLE TIME TO TALK OF HIS PLANS BEFORE BOARDING THE TRAIN FOR LONDON AND A CELEBRATION.

"AS SOON AS I GET A BIT OF CELEBRATING IN I'M GOING TO TRY TO GET BACK TO THE STATES AND GET ON ONE OF THOSE REALLY BIG BOMBERS THEY'RE TALKING ABOUT AND SHOW THE JERRIES AND JAPS WHAT HELL FROM THE SKY REALLY IS," HE SAID.

"IF I DON'T MAKE THAT I'D SURE LIKE TO BE ONE OF THE GUYS IN THE AIR RESCUE SERVICE--FINDING FELLOWS WHO HAVE COME DOWN IN THE DRINK.

MADRID, SEPT 23-(AP)-BERLIN'S OFFICIAL SPOKESMAN TODAY TOLD SPANISH CORRESPONDENTS HOW MUCH BETTER ADOLF HITLER COULD HAVE MANAGED THE ITALIAN OFFENSIVE THAN GEN. DWIGHT D.EISENHOWER, HAD THE FUEHRER BEEN COMMANDING ALLIED FORCES.

"HITLER," HE SAID, "WOULD HAVE TAKEN ADVANTAGE OF THE FIRST DAYS OF CONFUSION AFTER THE ARMISTICE TO HAVE LANDED AT LEGHORN OR GENOA AND TODAY WOULD HAVE THE WHOLE PENINSULA IN HIS POWER."

THE DISPATCHES QUOTED THE SPOKESMAN AS SAYING THAT HITLER WAS FAR MORE ORIGINAL ON THE OFFENSIVE THAN THE ALLIED GENERALS.

HE DID NOT DISCUSS THE FUEHRER'S ORIGINALITY ON THE DEFENSIVE WHICH, AS THE SPANISH CORRESPONDENTS OBSERVED, IS THE GERMAN POSITION ON BOTH THE EASTERN AND MEDITERRANEAN FRONTS TODAY.

CORP.WELDON CARLOCK OF JOSHUA, TEX., A COMMUNICATIONS MAN, TOLD THE COLONEL THE PORTABLE RADIO WAS OUT, SO MESSAGES HAD TO BE CARRIED OUT OF THE HILLS TO THE NEAREST AMERICAN TROOPS IN THE REAR BY RUNNERS.

THE MORTAR SHELLS WERE CRASHING ALL AROUND THEM AND ALL THE MEN WERE HUDDLING IN HOLES, BUT WHEN A RUNNER WAS CALLED HE HAD TO COME OUT OF HIS SHELTER AND GET THE MESSAGE AND TRY TO CARRY IT OUT.

FIVE RUNNERS WERE WORKING. ONLY TWO OF THEM WENT AND CAME BACK. THEY WERE P.F.C. DONALD L.LEONARD, OF 136 MILTON AVE., YOUNGSTOWN, OHIO, AND CORP.DONALD KELLEY OF CLOVER ROAD, MILWAUKEE, OREGON (CORRECT).

ANOTHER MAN JUMPED OUT OF HIS FOX HOLE WHEN HE SAW AN OFFICER FALL WOUNDED. HE MADE HIS WAY THROUGH THE SEEMINGLY SOLID FENCE OF SHELLS, PICKED UP THE OFFICER AND CARRIED HIM BACK. HE WAS SGT.HOWARD JONES OF 914 WEST CUCHARRAS ST., COLORADO SPRINGS, COLO.

ONE "MEDIC" WAS ON THE HILL WITH THE BATTALION, WORKING FEVERISHLY IN THE DARKNESS BESIDE THE MEN, DOING WHAT HE COULD WITHOUT LIGHT AND WITH ONLY FIRST AID EQUIPMENT FOR THE WOUNDED AND THE DYING. HE WAS CORP. WILLIAM J.CAIL, OF TERRY PARK ST., FORT MYERS, FLA.

THE GERMANS TRIED TO RUSH THE HILL THEN TO REGAIN THAT HIGHER GROUND.

ADD WITH 5TH ARMY (NDORIN) XXX GUNS

"WE HAD TWO AT EITHER END OF ONE SECTION OF THE LINE AND WE CUT THEM DOWN LIKE WHEAT EVERY TIME THEY HIT THERE," SAID LT.GEORGE EVANS, OF 1410 WAVERLY ST., SAN ANTONIO, TEX.

EVANS SAID THAT AN OKLAHOMA INDIAN, SGT. JACK BLOOMER OF ARDMORE, JUMPED FROM BEHIND HIS POSITION A NUMBER OF TIMES AND LUGGED HIS MACHINE-GUN SQUARELY IN THE CENTER OF A RAILROAD TRACK THAT WINDS ACROSS THE PLAIN, AND DROVE BACK ENEMY INFANTRY FROM THAT EXPOSED POSITION.

HE'S UP FOR PROMOTION AND THEY'VE CITED CORP. VIRGIL STANBROUGH OF MARLOW, OKLA., IN DISPATCHES FOR STANDING AT A ROAD JUNCTION THROUGH FIVE HOURS OF UNINTERRUPTED BOMBARDMENT, DIRECTING TRUCKS CARRYING AMMUNITION AND RATIONS TO A FORWARD AREA.

THERE WAS ANOTHER INCIDENT, WHERE A JEWISH BOY BORN IN GERMANY AND LATER NATURALIZED, "WENT OUT LOOKING FOR BRASS," SOLDIER TALK FOR A HIGH-RANKING OFFICER. THIS LAD'S PARENTS ARE IN A GERMAN CONCENTRATION CAMP.

DURING THE DARKNESS OF THOSE TERRIBLE FIVE NIGHTS HE CRAWLED FROM THE TRENCHES EVERY NIGHT "TO GET SOME BRASS."

"WE DON'T KNOW HOW MANY GERMAN OFFICERS HE KILLED," SAID THE BOY'S COMMANDING OFFICER, CAPT. JAMES CHEEK OF MANGUM, OKLA., "BUT HE SEEMED TO FEEL THAT HE HAD JUST ABOUT EVENED THE SCORE FOR WHAT THEY DID TO HIS MOTHER AND FATHER."

CAPT. CHEEK SAID THE BOY DIDN'T RETURN FROM A FORAY THE NIGHT BEFORE THE FORCE MOVED UP.

ARTILLERY OF ONE AMERICAN UNIT WHICH FIRED 670 SHELLS IN LESS THAN FOUR HOURS, BACKED BY SHELLING FROM WARSHIPS, FINALLY FORCED THE GERMAN GUNS FROM THEIR POSITIONS AND DROVE BACK THE ENEMY INFANTRY ITSELF.

BUT NOT BEFORE A FURIOUS ARTILLERY DUEL THAT EXCEEDED EVEN THE WORST PERIODS OF THE FIVE PRECEDING DAYS AND ONE MORE TANK ATTACK.

ONE GERMAN TANK CHASED CORP. WILLIAM HOLSCHER, OF 60 HENDRICK ST., STATEN ISLAND, N.Y., RIGHT AROUND A TREE BEFORE SGT. RUSSELL PRICKETT, OF 1401 E. 14TH ST., OKLAHOMA CITY, GOT IT WITH AN ANTI-TANK WEAPON.

MEN. HE CARRIED ALL FOUR MEN ON HIS BACK AND THREE SURVIVED. ONE DIED ON THE WAY BACK FROM THE LINES.

THE AMERICANS HAVE THAT MOUNTAIN TERRAIN NOW AND ARE DRIVING FORWARD WITH MURDER IN THEIR EYES. THE GERMANS ARE STILL SPASMODICALLY SHELLING AMERICAN POSITIONS, HOWEVER, AND A COUPLE OF 88S WHINED OVER OUR HEADS WHILE WE WERE TALKING WITH LT. JOHN GOLDONI, OF 157 CLERK ST., JERSEY CITY, N.J.

WITH THE FIFTH ARMY IN ITALY, SEPT. 22-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THE VILLAGE CARPENTER WAS MAKING COFFINS.

HE HAD TO MAKE THEM SWIFTLY FOR PEOPLE WERE WAITING. THEY HAD COME OUT OF THE MOUNTAINS AFTER THE BATTLE HAD PASSED AND FOUND THEIR DEAD LYING IN THE STREETS OR BURIED BENEATH THE WRECKAGE OF STONE HUTS. AND SO THEY WAITED OUTSIDE THE CARPENTER'S SHOP.

HE WORKED FAST, NAILING ROUGH BOARDS TOGETHER WITH A FEW QUICK BLOWS. IT TOOK A LITTLE MORE TIME TO MAKE A CROSS FOR EACH ONE AND TACK IT ON THE COVER. THEN HE WOULD GESTURE TO THE PEASANTS AND THEY WOULD TAKE ANOTHER COFFIN AWAY.

THIS WAS IN ALTAVILLA SHORTLY AFTER THE AMERICANS OCCUPIED IT.

BATTIPAGLIA HAS BEEN VIRTUALLY WIPED OFF THE MAP. THERE'S NOT A SINGLE HABITABLE DWELLING NOR USABLE BUILDING. IT'S BEEN BOMBED AND SHELLED OUT OF EXISTENCE.

FROM BATTIPAGLIA TO EBOLI STRETCH FIELDS WHERE THE AMERICANS DUELLED WITH GERMANS, USING TANKS, HEAVY ARTILLERY AND GIANT BOMBS. THE ROAD IS SO PITTED WITH CRATERS THAT IT'S HARDLY PASSABLE. IT PASSES A FIELD SO CHEWED AND TORN THAT IT LOOKS LIKE PLOUGHED GROUND.

SEP 24 1943

FOR MILES AND MILES THE BROWN CLAY HAS BEEN THROWN UP IN MOUNDS OVER THE GRASS AND WHEAT.

CONCRETE CULVERTS ARE SMASHED BEYOND RECOGNITION. BROKEN WIRES FROM AN ELECTRIC RAILWAY HANG FROM POLES STILL STANDING. RAILS ARE TWISTED UPWARD LIKE THE CURVED EAVES OF A CHINESE TEMPLE.

EBOLI IS A MINIATURE BATTIPAGLIA. FIRES STILL ARE BURNING THERE, CRACKLING IN THE SILENT STREETS.

"LET THEM BURN," SAID AN ITALIAN POLICEMAN. "PERHAPS ITS BETTER THAT PEOPLE FIND NOTHING WHEN THEY COME BACK."

THE PEOPLE ALL LEFT BATTIPAGLIA AND EBOLI WEEKS AGO WHEN THE BOMBERS FIRST BEGAN COMING AND WHEN THEY KNEW THE WAR WOULD PASS THIS WAY. THEY ARE TRUDGING BACK OUT OF THE HILLS NOW, CARRYING THEIR BUNDLES, LEADING CHILDREN BY ONE HAND AND PERHAPS A DONKEY OR GOAT BY THE OTHER.

BUT IN ALTAVILLA MOST OF THE PEOPLE STAYED.

THAT IS WHY THE HORROR IS GREATER THERE. THEY SCOOPED OUT HOLES IN THE DIRT FLOORS OF THEIR HOUSES AND COVERED THEM WITH TIMBERS AND STONES, AND LIKE ANIMALS THEY CLUNG TO THEIR HOMES. DEATH AND MUTILATION FOUND THEM AS THE SHELLS AND BOMBS FELL AND THE WALLS TOPPLED. FEAR STILL STAMPS THE FACES OF THE LIVING.

AMERICANS HAD SET UP A FIRST AID STATION AND PEOPLE CAME CRAWLING PAINFULLY OVER THE WRECKAGE IN THE STREETS TO GET THEIR WOUNDS BANDAGED.

SEP 24 1943

MOTHERS AND FATHERS APPEARED CARRYING THE LIFELESS FORMS OF CHILDREN. DOCTORS GENTLY SENT THEM AWAY. A WOMAN WALKED DOWN THE CENTER OF A STREET, HER EYES GLAZED AND STARING. SHE MURMURED OVER AND OVER: "MARIA! MARIA!" SUDDENLY SHE SCREAMED AND BEGAN SMASHING HER HEAD AGAINST A WALL. A SOLDIER LIFTED HER AND CARRIED HER TO A HOSPITAL.

AS GROUPS PASSED CARRYING COFFINS PEOPLE CROSSED THEMSELVES AND AVERTED THEIR EYES.

A SUDDEN EXPLOSION SOMEWHERE IN THE HILLS ABOVE SENT THE STREET INTO A PANIC. PEOPLE RAN, STUMBLING AND FALLING OVER EACH OTHER.

WHEN AN AIRPLANE PASSED OVERHEAD THEY TREMBLED AND ASKED THE SOLDIERS: "AMERICANO?"

THE SOLDIERS TOLD THEM YES AND THAT THE WAR NOW HAD GONE AHEAD--AWAY FROM THEIR VILLAGE--AND THAT THEY HAD NOTHING FURTHER TO FEAR.

WITH U.S. FIFTH ARMY IN ITALY, SEPT 23-(AP)-PRECEDED BY A BIG ARTILLERY BARRAGE, ALLIED FORCES PUSHED FORWARD NORTH OF SALERNO TODAY IN AN ATTEMPT TO CRACK THE GERMAN DEFENSE LINE ACROSS THE MOUNTAINS DOMINATING THE NAPLES PLAIN.

AMERICAN UNITS JABBED INTO ENEMY POSITIONS NORTHEAST OF SALERNO.

THE BATTLE NOW HAS DEVELOPED ALMOST EXCLUSIVELY INTO A STRUGGLE FOR THE MOUNTAIN PASSES GIVING ACCESS TO THE LEVEL GROUND AROUND NAPLES. NEITHER SIDE HAS BEEN ABLE TO USE TANKS EXTENSIVELY AND ARTILLERY IS TRANSPORTED MAINLY BY MULEBACK. THE ALLIED INFANTRY IS CARRYING THE BURDEN ALMOST EXCLUSIVELY, PLUGGING FORWARD THROUGH A SERIES OF SAWTOOTHED PEAKS WHERE THERE IS LITTLE FREEDOM OF MOVEMENT.

NEVERTHELESS, BOTH WINGS ARE MAKING STEADY PROGRESS.

A PULVERIZING BARRAGE WAS POURED INTO ENEMY HILL POSITIONS PRIOR TO THE ATTACK BEFORE DAWN. FLASHES FROM THE GUNS KEPT UP AN ALMOST SOLID ILLUMINATION OF THE SKY FOR MILES AROUND AND THEN THE INFANTRY HIT. THE TROOPS PRESSED AHEAD QUICKLY TOWARD THE PASSES.

(THE BRITISH RADIO, IN A BROADCAST HEARD BY NBC, REPORTED TONIGHT THAT "ALLIED PRESSURE WAS STEPPED UP ALL ALONG THE FIFTH ARMY FRONT." THE RADIO REPORT SAID ALLIED WARSHIPS JOINED IN THE SHOOTING AND THAT THE GERMANS ARE "FIGHTING BACK HARD."

CONSIDERABLE RESISTANCE WAS ENCOUNTERED AT ALL POINTS ALONG THE GERMAN LINE.

AS EXPECTED THE ENEMY HAS MADE A SLOW AND FIGHTING RETREAT.

THE GERMANS NOW ARE HOLDING A PRACTICALLY SOLID LINE WITH THEIR LEFT FLANK ANCHORED IN THE APPENNINES. THE LINE RUNS WESTWARD TO THE MOUNTAIN BARRIER ABOVE THE NAPLES PLAIN.

AN AMERICAN FIGHTER BASE IN ITALY, SEPT.21-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THE YANKEE FIGHTER-BOMBERS WHOSE STRAFING IS FORCING THE GERMANS TO ABANDON DAY MOVEMENT OF ROAD CONVOYS TOOK THE PRESSURE OFF OUR OWN DOUGHBOYS TODAY BY SMASHING A NAZI TANK AND INFANTRY COUNTERATTACK FORMING NORTHWEST OF SALERNO.

THE OFFENSIVE ACTION, WHICH IS JUST ONE OF THE MANY WAYS IN WHICH ITALY-BASED ALLIED AIRPOWER--NOW SUPREME OVER THE INVASION SKIES--HAS BEEN HELPING GROUND FORCES EXTEND THEIR ADVANCES, WAS DESCRIBED BY LT EUGENE SANTALA, 24, OF HIBBING, MINN., WHO LED THE SECOND FLIGHT OF A-36 INVADERS OVER THE TARGET AREA.

"WE HAVE BEEN THERE BEFORE AND EXPECTED HEAVY FLAK," SAID SANTALA WHO IS AN ACCOUNTANT IN CIVIL LIFE. "JUST AT THE CRUCIAL MOMENT WE SWUNG OUT FROM BEHIND A CLOUD.

"AN 88 OPENED UP ON SOME SPITFIRES NEAR US AND THE REST OF THE GERMAN ACK-ACK GUNS FOLLOWED ITS EXAMPLE. THAT WAS A LUCKY BREAK FOR US--WE WERE THEN FREE TO OPERATE.

"WE DROPPED DOWN ON THEM AND HIT AN OLIVE GROVE IN WHICH THEY WERE LINING UP TANKS & STRAFED WITH EVERYTHING WE HAD A CONCENTRATION OF TRUCKS AND OTHER VEHICLES AS WELL AS INFANTRY MOVING ALONG A ROAD.

"I DON'T KNOW HOW MANY TANKS WE KNOCKED OUT WITH OUR BOMBS. THEIR POSITION WAS WELL CAMOUFLAGED AND WE HAD TO BE CAREFUL OF THE DIRECTION FROM WHICH WE STRAFED AND BOMBED AS WE WERE WITHIN LESS THAN A MILE OF OUR OWN LINES AT THE TIME. WE SAW TWO OF OUR BURSTS HIT DIRECTLY ON THE ROAD--MAKING IT IMPOSSIBLE FOR THE GERMAN COLUMN TO MOVE UP IMMEDIATELY TO ATTACK.

"WE ALSO WERE ABLE TO LAY A LOT INTO THAT OLIVE GROVE. IT BLEW UP WITH A LOT OF DUST AND NOISE AND THERE WAS SO MUCH STUFF FLYING THROUGH THE AIR YOU COULDN'T SEE THE GROUND.

SEP 24 1943

"ANYTHING IN THERE WAS WELL BEATEN UP.

"AFTER THAT ATTACK THE GERMANS HAD TO PULL BACK. WE DIDN'T SEE A SINGLE ENEMY PLANE AND DIDN'T PICK UP ANY FLAK OURSELVES."

THE AMERICAN INFANTRY WAS CLOSE ENOUGH TO SEE AND ENJOY THE ENEMY CATCH THIS PASTING FROM THE AIR. THE TWELFTH AIR SUPPORT COMMAND, IN A MESSAGE OF COMMENDATION TO THE INVADER DIVE BOMBER PILOTS WHO FLEW IN THE TWO MISSIONS, SAID "OUR TROOPS STATE THAT THE ENEMY WAS UNABLE TO ADVANCE OWING TO THESE BOMBING ATTACKS."

THAT IS THE SWEETEST MUSIC POSSIBLE TO THE EARS OF THESE FIGHTER PILOTS--RECOGNITION AND PRAISE FROM THE DOUGHBOYS WHOM THEY GUARD FROM THE AIR.

FLYING WITH SANTALA WERE LIEUTENANTS GEORGE HUTCHINGS, FORTH WORTH, TEX.; WILLIAM H.LIBBERT, ROUTE 2, NEWBURGH, IND.; KENNETH O. CHILSTROM, ELMHURST, ILL.; LESLIE SOKAY, LOCKPORT, N.Y.; EDMUND GRIFFIN, ROCKHILL, S.C.; AND FRANK L.MACFADDEN, OF NEAR PITTSBURGH.

THIS MORNING I WENT ABOUT THE HARBOR VISITING MEMBERS OF THIS FORMER ENEMY NAVY, WHICH NOW LIES SMARTLY IN AN ALLIED HARBOUR. THEY ARE FLYING THEIR FLAGS AND THEY ARE ARMED JUST AS THEY WERE WHEN THEY CAME INTO OUR CUSTODY. THIS SURRENDER IS MORE OF AN AGREEMENT TO QUIT HOSTILITIES AND TALK THAN ANYTHING ELSE AND IT IS APPARENT HERE THAT THE BINDING FACTORS OF THIS AGREEMENT ARE MUTUAL HATRED OF GERMANY AND THE FACT THAT ITALIAN NAVY MEN CONSIDER THEMSELVES FIRST GENTLEMEN, THEN SAILORS.

ADMIRAL POLLONE INVITED THIS CORRESPONDENT, THROUGH THE U.S. NAVAL AUTHORITIES, ABOARD THE ITALIAN FLAGSHIP. WITH ME WENT THE OFFICER INSTRUMENTAL IN DEVELOPING THE EXTREMELY CORDIAL RELATIONS WITH THIS BIG SECTION OF ITALYS FLEET.

IN THIS WAR HE HAS BEEN SUPREME COMMANDER OF CONVOY ESCORTS BETWEEN AFRICA AND ITALY. HIS MAIN FIELD ALWAYS HAS BEEN DESTROYERS AND HIS THREE HOMES IN TORINO, ITALY, HAD BEEN BOMBED OUT.

HE SAID THAT THE ITALIANS WITH HIM WERE HAPPY THE WAR WAS OVER

"HOWEVER WE OF THE ESCORT NAVY HAVE FOUGHT HONORABLY AND OUR CONSCIENCE KNOWS WE HAVE DONE OUR DUTY AS BEST WE CAN," HE SAID. "WARS CAN BE WON AND LOST, BUT IT IS IMPORTANT TO LOSE WITH HONOR AND THIS WE HAVE DONE."

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, SEPT. 23-(AP)-THE VITAL ROADS ALONG WHICH GERMAN TROOPS HAVE BEEN MOVING IN THE VICINITY OF NAPLES WERE SEVERED, ENEMY SHIPPING IN THE ADRIATIC SEA WAS BLASTED AND ENEMY MOTOR CONVOYS WERE BOMBED AND STRAFED YESTERDAY IN WIDESPREAD RAIDS BY THE NORTHWEST AFRICAN AIR FORCE.

AMERICAN P-40 WARHAWKS, BRANCHING OUT INTO A NEW FIELD OF OPERATIONS, SWOOPED DOWN ON ENEMY SHIPPING IN THE GULF OF MANFREDONIA, 60 MILES NORTHWEST OF BARI ON ITALY'S ADRIATIC COAST, AND SCORED DIRECT HITS ON THE STERN OF A 2,000-TON SHIP. OTHER BOMBS HIT QUAYS AND THE WARHAWKS THEN STRAFED STORES OF ENEMY WAR MATERIAL PILED ON THE DOCKS.

ROADS AT MIGNANO, 40 MILES NORTHWEST OF NAPLES ALSO WERE BLASTED AND ALL AVENUES OF TRAFFIC IN THAT AREA WERE SEVERED, AT LEAST TEMPORARILY.

SEP 24 1943

SHARP-SHOOTING AMERICAN B-25 MITCHELLS WERE CALLED UPON FOR PINPOINT BOMBING OF KEY BRIDGES AND HIGHWAY BOTTLENECKS WELL BEHIND THE GERMAN LINES.

OTHER ATTACKS ON ENEMY SHIPPING WERE CARRIED OUT BY B-25 MITCHELLS WHICH BLASTED AT NAZI VESSELS ATTEMPTING TO EVACUATE GERMAN TROOPS FROM BASTIA, IN CORSICA, TO ITALIAN PORTS. TWO SHIPS WERE LEFT SMOKING AND LISTING AND HITS WERE SCORED ALSO ON A BARGE AND AN ESCORT VESSEL.

WELLINGTONS ATTACKED A SMALL ENEMY CONVOY BETWEEN THE ISLAND OF ELBA AND THE ITALIAN PORT OF LEGHORN.

IN THE BENEVENTO AREA, MITCHELLS PLUMPED BOMBS SQUARELY ON THE BRIDGE AT GROTTAMINARDA, AND THE BRIDGE BOTTLENECK AT SAN MARTINO WAS LEFT IMPASSABLE BY A TIGHTLY-KNIT BOMB PATTERN.

THE TENTH DAY OF WIDE SWEEPS BY THE TACTICAL AIRFORCE SAW NEGLIGIBLE FIGHTER OPPOSITION, BUT HEAVIER FLAK WAS ENCOUNTERED OVER SOME OF THE TARGETS.

allied headquarters in north africa,sept.23-(ap)-- while nazi artillery shells plowed up the area and enemy fighters and bombers attacked nearby allied guns,united states army surgeons on the beaches of the salerno bridgehead calmly performed three delicate brain operations,it was disclosed today.

that was only a single incident in the story of an american field evacuation hospital unit which went ashore immediately behind the assault wave on the beaches,set up their tents under almost continuous attack from enemy ground and air forces,and began saving the lives of hundreds of wounded soldiers.the heroic story of the unit,commanded by lieut.col.paul sauer of new york city,was related in an official dispatch to allied headquarters medical officers.

german shells and bullets were popping on the beaches when sauer led his troops ashore."it's funny," he said later," to have landed under fire and then watch the tanks and the rest of the infantry come ashore.hell,wet ought we were there to support them!"

although exhausted by two days and nights of bombing, strafing and mortar fire with which the enemy attempted to dislodge the americans from the beach, sauer's men finally assembled scattered equipment and worked all night setting up portable operating rooms and tent wards. then they began unending day and night treatment of the wounded.

major howard a. patterson, new york city, formerly with the surgical staff of roosevelt hospital and a veteran of battlefield surgery in the tunisian campaign, led the staff at the operating tables.

because the nurses were n o t due to be landed for several days, the hospital's enlisted men pulled on gowns and sterilized masks and toiled long, hot hours at the surgeon's elbows.

sgt. francis hopkins, waukegan, ill., chief enlisted technician, was among those pressed into service to help with the operations. he had only two hours sleep in three days. corp. richard j. ranft, bellevue, ky., got his first brief nap at the end of two days and sergeants simon smith, hartford, ill., john meglyn, st. cloud, minn., and ernest ~~hamathan~~ homuth, elgin, ill.,, worked three days stopping only to dash into the mess tent for hot meals and a rare few minutes nap.

the casualties piled up in such degrees during the ten days of fighting for the bridgehead that the hospital was expanded by the addition ~~xxx~~ of a surgical team and medical battalion and today the evacuation hospital is prepared for any surgical or medical service of a large, metropolitcan hospital.

a field laundry, ~~xx~~ attached to the hospital, worked on a day and night basis, cleaning ~~x~~ and sterilizing dressings~~x~~, bandages, sheets, and gowns and the mess also functioned without interruption.

THESE AIRCRAFT ARE CALLED "PHOTO JOES." THEY ARE THE EYES OF THE TENTH U.S.AIR FORCE.

THE YOUNG MEN WHO PILOT THE "PHOTO JONES" ARE BUSIER THAN A ONE-ARMED PAPER HANGER WITH THE ITCH. THEY SIT IN ONE PLACE -- UNABLE TO SQUIRM MORE THAN TWO INCHES IN ANY DIRECTION--FOR AS LONG AS NINE HOURS. THEY DO THEIR OWN NAVIGATION. THEY TAKE THEIR OWN PICTURES. WHEN OVER ENEMY TERRITORY, THEY SCAN THE SKY CONSTANTLY FOR JAPANESE FIGHTER PLANES, IN ADDITION TO KEEPING CONSTANTLY ALERT FOR JUICY TARGETS.

COMMANDER OF THE "PHOTO JOES" IN INDIA IS MAJOR DALE L.SWARTZ, 39, OF SPOKANE, WASH., WHO HAS BEEN FLYING ALL TYPES OF AIRCRAFT SINCE 1928. SWARTZ SHUNS PERSONAL PUBLICITY, BUT JUMPS AT ANY OPPORTUNITY

TO PRAISE "THE BOYS."

"THEY ARE DOING THE TOUGHEST KIND OF FLYING IN THE WORLD, AND I THINK THEY'RE JUST ABOUT THE BEST IN THE WORLD," SWARTZ DECLARED.

SWARTZ, WHOSE WIFE AND THREE CHILDREN LIVE AT 239 WEST CLEVELAND STREET, SPOKANE, ATTENDED THE UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO BEFORE TAKING UP FLYING AND PHOTOGRAPHY. HE HAS ROLLED UP MORE THAN 100 HOURS OF COMBAT FLYING SINCE COMING TO INDIA IN AUGUST, 1942.

"THE BOYS HAVE PHOTOGRAPHED VIRTUALLY EVERY INCH OF BURMA," SWARTZ SAID. "IN ADDITION, THEY HAVE 'SHOT' PICTURES OF IMPORTANT OBJECTIVES ELSEWHERE."

SEP 24 1943

THE "PHOTO JOE" PILOTS EACH FLY OVER BURMA TWO OR THREE TIMES A WEEK. THEY SELDOM ARE INTERCEPTED BY THE JAPANESE BECAUSE THEY FLASH PAST LONG BEFORE THE ENEMY CAN GET INTO THE AIR.

"THE JAPS FIRED SOME ACK-ACK AT ME ONE DAY," SAID LT.ROBERT MARTIN, 28, OF ST.LOUIS, "BUT I DIDN'T KNOW ABOUT IT UNTIL I LANDED BACK AT BASE AND FOUND THREE HOLES IN MY PLANE."

CAPT.DON P.WEBSTER, 25, OF CLEBURNE, TEX., WHO GRADUATED FROM THE UNIVERSITY OF TEXAS IN 1939, TOLD HOW HE WAS INTERCEPTED OVER RANGOON ONE DAY.

"I LOOKED UP FROM MY INSTRUMENT PANELS AND SAW A ZERO ON MY RIGHT AND ONE ON MY LEFT. I PUSHED THE THROTTLES FORWARD AND DOVE. THE ZEROS COULDN'T KEEP UP. THEY FOLLOWED ME MANY MILES, BUT DIDN'T HAVE A CHANCE OF CATCHING UP WITH ME -- THANK GOD! THE ONLY WAY THEY CAN GET US IS BY SURPRISING US -- AND WE DON'T SURPRISE EASILY."

SEP 24 1943

LT.RUSSELL MIKSCH, 24, OF VISALIA, CALIF., SAID HE HAD BEEN FLYING OVER BURMA A YEAR WITHOUT INTERCEPTIONS.

"SOMETIMES, JUST TO BREAK THE MONOTONY, I WISH THE JAPS WOULD TRY TO CATCH ME," MIKSCH SAID. "I'D LIKE TO SHOW 'EM UP."

THE "PHOTO JOES" FLY IN ALL KINDS OF WEATHER, EVEN WHEN BOMBERS AND FIGHTERS TURN BACK.

SEP 24 1943

"THE WEATHER OVER THE AREA WHICH WE WISH TO PHOTOGRAPH MAY BE GOOD, SO WE PLOUGH THROUGH AND SEE," MIKSCH EXPLAINED.

OTHER PILOTS OF "PHOTO JOES" INCLUDE LIEUTENANTS WARREN S.BOLLMEIER OF PLATTSMOUTH, NEB.; JOHN E.BUFFIN OF CARLISLE, PA.; GERALD E.CHELIUS OF READING, PA.; ROBERT L.DEVLIEG OF SALEM, ORE.; DONALD M.LARSON OF ELLSWORTH, IA.; PHILLIP O.ROBERTSON OF MANISTIQUE, MICH.; AND SECOND LIEUTENANTS MELVIN L.BATES OF ELYRIA, O., AND FRANK H.TILCOCK OF COFFEYVILLE, KAS.

OFFICERS WHO HANDLE GROUND OPERATIONS FOR THE "PHOTO JOE" SQUADRON INCLUDE CAPTAIN ERNEST B.EPSTEIN OF SIOUX CITY, IA.; LIEUTENANTS EUGENE ALLISON OF ROYAL OAK, MICH.; WARD E.DUNCAN OF ALMA, ILL.; DEFOREST E. STARKEY OF GREENWICH, O.; AND CHARLES F.WILSON OF WORTHINGTON, O.; SECOND LIEUTENANTS HAROLD J.BOWEN OF (1744 EAST 72ND) CHICAGO; LAWRENCE A.FERGUSON OF LANESBORO, MINN.; RICHARD J.RITTER OF (1128 EAST TABOR) INDIANAPOLIS AND ROBERT G.ROGERS OF LYNDHURST, O.

KEY ENLISTED MEN WHO KEEP THE CAMERAS AND THE AIRPLANES ROLLING INCLUDE: FLIGHT CHIEFS, CAMERA SECTION -- STAFF SERGEANTS JACK SCHNEIDER OF BELLEVILLE, ILL.; CYRUS O.WEDGER OF MENOMINEE, MICH.; AND CARROLL WOODS OF TAYLORVILLE, ILL.; FLIGHT CHIEFS, ENGINEERING SECTION -- T/SERGEANTS RICHARD MCKENZIE OF (2361 VINE) DENVER; HOWARD MEAD OF RICHLAND CENTER, WIS.; AND FRED NOTTINGHAM OF MUNCIE, IND.;

U.S.14TH AIRFORCE HEADQUARTERS IN CHINA, SEPT.23-(AP)-TWENTY-SEVEN JAPANESE BOMBERS AND BETWEEN 20 AND 30 ESCORTING ZEROS WHICH RAIDED THIS HEADQUARTERS BASE MONDAY WERE INTERCEPTED BY A FORMATION OF AMERICAN P-40'S COMMANDED BY MAJ.ROBERT LILES, OF JEFFERSON CITY, MO.

PART OF THE ZEROS WERE CHASED OFF BY LILES' GROUP BEFORE THEY REACHED THE TARGET.

OTHER P-40 FLIGHTS LED BY CAPTAINS MATTHEW GORDON OF PUEBLO, COLO., AND ROGER PRYOR OF STARKVILLE, MISS., THEN TORE INTO THE TWIN-MOTORED MITSUBISHI 97 BOMBERS ALONG WITH LILES AND HIS MEN.

IN THE ENSUING CONFLICT LILES, GORDON AND PRYOR ALL BECAME ACES AS THE ENEMY SUFFERED THE HEAVIEST LOSS TO DATE--15 BOMBERS AND TWO ZEROS DEFINITELY DOWNED AND THREE BOMBERS AND FOUR ZEROS DAMAGED--IN ATTACKS ON AMERICAN AIRDROMES IN THIS THEATER.

LILES SHOT DOWN ONE ZERO AND ONE BOMBER CONFIRMED AND CLAIMED ONE PROBABLE BOMBER AND ONE ZERO DAMAGED. THE TWO DEFINITELY SHOT DOWN RAISED HIS TOTAL TO FIVE.

"WE HIT THEM ONLY ONCE," SAID PRYOR. "WE ATTACKED THE WHOLE LENGTH OF THE FORMATION."

PRYOR CHALKED UP TWO BOMBERS CONFIRMED AND TWO PROBABLES, GIVING HIM A TOTAL OF FIVE CONFIRMED AND THREE PROBABLES.

"TWO OF MINE," HE SAID, "WENT DOWN FLAMING. THE OTHER TWO WERE SMOKING. WHEN WE LEFT IT LOOKED LIKE EVERY SHIP IN THE FORMATION WAS SMOKING."

GORDON NAILED A BOMBER AND PROBABLY ONE ZERO, RAISING HIS TALLY TO FIVE CONFIRMED AND THREE PROBABLES.

A HEADQUARTERS ANNOUNCEMENT SAID THE RAID CAUSED ONLY MINOR DAMAGE, SOME BOMBS STRIKING A VILLAGE. THERE WERE NO AMERICAN CASUALTIES.

WITH UNITED STATES GROUND FORCES ON SAGE KARASA ISLAND, SOLOMONS, SEPT. 20-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THE JAPANESE GAVE UP ANOTHER IMPORTANT STRATEGIC SPOT TODAY, THEIR INFANTRY FLEEING IN THE EARLY MORNING DARKNESS FROM THIS TINY ISLAND DURING A HEAVY ARTILLERY EXCHANGE.

THE CAPTURE OF THE ISLAND, WHICH THE JAPANESE ONCE APPARENTLY INTENDED TO DEFEND TO THE LAST MAN, GIVES THE UNITED STATES POSITIONS ONLY 1,200 YARDS SOUTH OF KOLOMBANGARA ACROSS BLACKETT STRAIT. THE JAPANESE HAVE AN AIR BASE AND A GARRISON, RINGED WITH GUNS, AT VILA ON KOLOMBANGARA.

THE JAPANESE FLIGHT OCCURRED WHILE AMERICAN MORTARS POUNDED THEIR POSITIONS. BARGES FROM KOLOMBANGARA EVACUATED THEM BUT NOT EVERY JAPANESE BOAT GOT BACK.

ONE JAPANESE BOAT BLUNDERED ON TO A PORTION OF SAGE KARASA BEACH HELD BY UNITED STATES FORCES. WHAT HAPPENED WAS DESCRIBED THUS BY PVT.PAUL FREDERICKS, OF LITTLE FALLS, N.Y.:

SEP 24 1943

"IT WAS ALONG AFTER MIDNIGHT AND VERY DARK. I AND SOME OTHER MEN WERE WATCHING OUR BEACH FACING KOLOMBANGARA. WE HEARD SOMETHING OUT IN THE WATER AND PRETTY SOON MADE OUT IT WAS A BOAT.

"WE KNEW THERE WEREN'T ANY AMERICAN BOATS OUT THERE SO WE GOT OUR GUNS READY AND WAITED. WHEN THEY GOT 20 YARDS OFFSHORE, WE FIRED, I USING MY CARBINE WHICH SOUNDS LIKE A JAPANESE RIFLE.

"THE JAPS OUT ON THE BOAT STARTED HOLLERING. I THINK THEY THOUGHT WE WERE JAPS BECAUSE OF THE SOUND OF OUR GUNS, BUT WE SOON CHANGED THEIR MINDS."

(A COMMUNIQUE ON THURSDAY FROM HEADQUARTERS OF GEN.DOUGLAS MACARTHUR ANNOUNCED THAT REMNANTS OF JAPANESE ON THE NORTH SHORE OF ARUNDEL ISLAND, WEST OF NEW GEORGIA, AND ON SAGE KARASA ISLAND, 200 YARDS OFF ARUNDEL, HAD BEEN WIPED OUT).

NEW YORK, SEPT. 23-(AP)-TOKYO BROADCASTS TODAY, THE OFFICE OF WAR INFORMATION SAID, INDICATE THAT JAPANESE PROPAGANDISTS HAVE BEGUN AN INTENSIVE CAMPAIGN TO RALLY THEIR PEOPLE BEHIND THE NEWLY ANNOUNCED PROGRAM TO MOBILIZE THE NATION'S FIGHTING SPIRIT.

THE CONTROLLED TOKYO PRESS, AUTOMATICALLY REACTING TO THE PROGRAM LAID DOWN BY PREMIER HIDEKI TOJO IN A RADIO SPEECH YESTERDAY, ISSUED SIMULTANEOUS APPEALS TO THE JAPANESE PEOPLE TO BACK UP THE GOVERNMENT, THE BROADCASTS DISCLOSED. STRESS WAS LAID ON TOJO'S DEMAND THAT THE NATION'S LABOR POWER BE MOBILIZED TO THE UTMOST AND THAT THE AIRPLANE AND MUNITIONS OUTPUT BE INCREASED.

IN HIS RADIO SPEECH THE JAPANESE PREMIER HAD ANNOUNCED THAT UNNECESSARY GOVERNMENT OFFICES, FACTORIES, SCHOOLS, AND CIVILIANS

WOULD BE EVACUATED FROM TOKYO AND OTHER LARGE CITIES AS A PRECAUTION AGAINST EXPECTED AIR RAIDS.

TOJO, ACCORDING TO THE OWI RECORDING OF A DOMEI DISPATCH, WARNED THE JAPANESE PEOPLE THAT THE UNITED STATES AND BRITAIN ARE "PERSISTENTLY ATTEMPTING TO COUNTER-ATTACK US WITH THE INTENTION OF OVERWHELMING IMPERIAL JAPAN...BY OVERCOMING EVERY POSSIBLE DIFFICULTY," AND THAT "THE WAR SITUATION IS GAINING IN FEROCITY DAY BY DAY."

DOMEI QUOTED THE TOKYO NEWSPAPER SHIMBUN AS SAYING THAT THE GOVERNMENT'S PROGRAM PLACED THE ENTIRE NATION ON THE "FOREMOST FIGHTING LINE" WHILE MAINICHI CALLED ON THE GOVERNMENT TO ENFORCE ITS DRASTIC MEASURES "WITHOUT LOSS OF TIME." OTHER NEWSPAPERS FOLLOWED THE SAME LINE, DOMEI SAID, ACCORDING TO OWI.

IN ANOTHER DISPATCH REPORTED TO OWI, DOMEI SAID THE NEW JAPANESE MANPOWER MOBILIZATION PROGRAM CALLS FOR THE SUBSTITUTION BY MAY 15, 1944 OF WOMEN FOR ALL MEN BETWEEN THE AGES OF 14 AND 40 INCLUSIVE, IN AT LEAST 25 "LESS-ESSENTIAL" OCCUPATIONS. THE DISPLACED MEN WILL BE MOVED INTO THE ARMED FORCES OR WAR INDUSTRIES, DOMEI SAID.

UNDATED SHIPS

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

FIRENCH AND ITALIAN WARSHIPS ADDED TO THE UNITED NATIONS FLEET IN LESS THAN A YEAR INCLUDE AT LEAST NINE BATTLESHIPS, 17 CRUISERS, 35 DESTROYERS AND 33 SUBMARINES AND A HOST OF OTHER CRAFT.

THE TOTALS IN THE HEAVIER CATEGORIES MAY BE STILL HIGHER, SINCE MILITARY SECRECY VEILS THE REPARATION OF SOME FRENCH SHIPS DAMAGED IN THE ALLIED LANDINGS AT CASABLANCA AND ORAN.

THE FRENCH SCUTTLED THE MAJOR PORTION OF THEIR FLEET AT TOURLON WHEN THE GERMANS BEGAN OCCUPATION OF THE NAVAL BASE NOV. 27, 1942.

BUT SINCE THEN THE FRENCH COMMITTEE OF NATIONAL LIBERATION HAS AT ITS DISPOSAL, ALTHOUGH MANY ARE STILL UNDER REPAIR, FOUR BATTLESHIPS AT DAKAR, ALEXANDRIA, MARTINIQUE AND ALREADY IN ITS POSSESSION. IN ADDITION IT HAS NINE CRUISERS, EIGHT DESTROYERS, 13 SUBMARINES, A SUBMARINE TENDER AND AN AIRCRAFT CARRIER. DAMAGED AT ORAN AND CASABLANCA WERE A BATTLESHIP, A CRUISER, FOUR DESTROYERS AND A SUBMARINE, OF WHICH SOME MAY HAVE BEEN SALVAGED.

THE SURRENDER OF THE ITALIAN FLEET UNDER ARMISTICE TERMS GAVE THE ALLIES AT THE LAST COUNT A TOTAL OF 77 ADDITIONAL CRAFT. THESE INCLUDED FIVE BATTLESHIPS, EIGHT CRUISERS, ONE SEAPLANE CARRIER, SUBMARINES, 27 DESTROYERS, 12 TORPEDO BOATS, SIX CORVETTES AND ONE AUXILIARY CRUISER.

THE FRENCH CONTINGENT WILL CERTAINLY BE OF IMMEDIATE USE AND MANY HAVE TAKEN PART IN ALLIED ACTIONS FOR MONTHS. THE USE OF THE ITALIAN VESSELS MUST AWAIT A DECISION ON CREWS TO MAN THEM, AMMUNITION TO FIT THEIR GUNS AND REPLACEMENTS READY TO FIT THEIR MACHINERY.

HOWEVER ADMIRAL ERNEST J.KING SAID IN AN INTERVIEW AT OMAHA THURSDAY THAT WAR MATERIAL SUCH AS THE ITALIAN FLEET WOULD BE USED "ACCORDING TO ITS CAPABILITIES" AND ESTIMATED THAT TWO-THIRDS OF THE ITALIAN FLEET AS IT WAS A MONTH AGO WAS IN ALLIED HANDS.

ONE OF THE MANY THINGS THE WORLD LIKES ABOUT GENERAL DOUGLAS

30.24 8745

MACARTHUR IS THAT THIS GREAT SOLDIER SPEAKS HIS MIND AS BEFITS A MAN OF ACTION, BUT HIS UNUSUAL STATEMENT IN AUSTRALIA THAT HOWEVER SUBORDINATE MAY BE HIS ROLE IN THE WAR, HE HOPES TO PLAY IT MANFULLY, LEAVES ONE WITH FEELINGS OF DEEP PUZZLEMENT AS TO WHY HE THOUGHT IT NECESSARY TO ISSUE IT.

SEP 22 1943

THE GENERAL'S DECLARATION IS WHOLLY CRYPTIC TO THE AMERICAN PUBLIC, AND THE USUAL NEWS SOURCES IN WASHINGTON PROFESS TO BE EQUALLY AT A LOSS. THERE'S NO INDICATION OF WHAT INSPIRED IT BEYOND THE FACT THAT OBVIOUSLY SOMETHING IS TROUBLING HIM.

IS IT THAT THE SUPREME COMMANDER OF ARMY, NAVAL AND AIR FORCES OF THE ALLIED NATIONS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC (TO GIVE HIM HIS FULL, RATHER TERRIFYING TITLE) FEELS THAT HE HAS BEEN IN SOME WAY BELITTLED? IF THAT IS WHAT HE THINKS, HE'S WRONG, FOR HIS POSITION IN THE ESTEEM OF THE AMERICAN PEOPLE IS AS HIGH AS THE SKIES. HE IS ONE OF OUR GREAT NATIONAL HEROES AND HIS PLACE IN OUR HALL OF FAME IS SECURE.

ALL SORTS OF GUESSES ARE BEING MADE AS TO EXACTLY WHAT IS IN MACARTHUR'S MIND. BUT NOBODY HAS GOT CLOSER TO IT THAN THAT APPARENTLY HE FEELS HE IS BEING CIRCUMSCRIBED SOMEHOW IN CARRYING OUT HIS STRATEGIC CONCEPTION FOR THE PACIFIC THEATER. THIS, AS HE SAYS, "CONTEMPLATES MASSIVE STROKES AGAINST ONLY MAIN STRATEGIC OBJECTIVES," WHICH WOULD "OBVIATE THE NEED FOR STORMING THE MASS OF ISLANDS NOW IN THE ENEMY'S POSSESSION." ONE OF HIS MOST CHERISHED OBJECTIVES, OF COURSE, IS RECAPTURE OF THE PHILIPPINES.

MANY OBSERVERS THINK PERHAPS MACARTHUR IS TALKING ABOUT THE COMING BURMA DRIVE, AND THE APPOINTMENT OF ADMIRAL LORD LOUIS MOUNTBATTEN AS ALLIED COMMANDER IN SOUTHEAST ASIA. WELL, IT'S HARD TO SEE HOW MOUNTBATTEN'S APPOINTMENT COULD SUBORDINATE MACARTHUR OR DETRACT FROM THE LATTER'S COMMAND. IT MIGHT EASILY BE, HOWEVER, THAT THE STAGING OF THE BURMA SHOW, WHICH WILL CALL FOR THE MASSING OF VAST STRIKING-POWER IN THE INDIAN THEATER MIGHT TEMPORARILY DEPRIVE THE GENERAL OF RESOURCES WHICH HE WOULD LIKE FOR HIS OWN OFFENSIVE.

BE ALL THAT AS MAY, THE ALLIED HIGH COMMAND SAYS THE BURMA SHOW IS TO GO FORWARD. THAT'S IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE GENERAL STRATEGY LAID OUT LONG AGO. AS THINGS NOW STAND, ONE OF THE FIRST THINGS WHICH MUST BE DONE IN THE GRAND OFFENSIVE AGAINST JAPAN IS TO DRIVE THE MIKADO'S LITTLE MEN OUT OF BURMA AND REOPEN THE FAMOUS BURMA ROAD--CHINA'S LIFELINE TO THE OUTSIDE WORLD.

SEP 22 1943

IT'S ONE OF THE MIRACLES OF THE WAR THAT THE SEVERANCE OF THIS COMMUNICATION HASN'T ALREADY FORCED THE CHINESE TO CAPITULATE, DESPITE THEIR HEROIC FORTITUDE. THEY'VE IN A MANNER OF SPEAKING BEEN FIGHTING WITH BARE FISTS AND TIGHT BELTS. IF THE CHINESE SHOULD BE KNOCKED OUT IT WOULD PRESENT THE ALLIES WITH BLEAK PROSPECTS.

WE ARE LOOKING TO CHINA TO SUPPLY THE FIGHTING MEN TO OUST THE JAPS FROM THE CONTINENT, AND AIR BASES FROM WHICH WE CAN OPERATE AGAINST THE INVADERS AND AGAINST JAPAN ITSELF. WE MUST FEED AND ARM THE CHINESE. WE NEED BURMA AS A BASE; WE NEED ITS RESOURCES, ESPECIALLY THE OIL WHICH IS SO BADLY WANTED FOR CHINESE OPERATIONS. VAST QUANTITIES OF SUPPLIES MUST GO UP THE IRRAWADDY RIVER FROM RANGOON ON THE ROAD TO MANDALAY, AND FINALLY BE LOADED ON TRUCKS WHICH WILL CRAWL OVER THAT WINDING HIGHWAY THAT LEADS THROUGH THE MOUNTAINS TO CHINA.

SEP 22 1943

EVICTION OF THE JAPANESE FROM THEIR POSITIONS IN THE BURMESE JUNGLES REPRESENTS A VAST OPERATION. IT CALLS FOR AN AMPHIBIOUS EXPEDITION WHICH WILL TAX ALLIED RESOURCES IF IT'S UNDERTAKEN BEFORE THE END OF THE EUROPEAN WAR, AS WE ARE LED TO BELIEVE IS THE INTENTION UNLESS HITLER COLLAPSES IN THE NEAR FUTURE. PERHAPS MACARTHUR'S OWN OPERATIONS MIGHT BE DELAYED BY THIS, THOUGH ONE WOULD HOPE THAT HE MIGHT SEE BOTH OFFENSIVES GOING AT ONCE, THUS PLACING THE NIPPONESE IN A VISE.

IT'S ABOUT 5,000 MILES FROM THE INDIAN THEATER TO NEW GUINEA WHERE GENERAL MACARTHUR HAS BEEN DOING SUCH GRAND WORK, AND THAT'S A LONG, LONG TRAIL FOR ANY ONE HEADQUARTERS TO COVER.

RUSSIANS REACH DNIEPER RIVER ON 300-MILE FRONT

Nazis Report First Red Move to Cross Stream Repulsed.

SMOLENSK MENACED

Town Captured Seven Miles Northeast of Big Rail Center.

LONDON, Saturday, Sept. 25.—(AP) The battle for the Dnieper river defense line began today as the Russians surged forward in force along a 300-mile front on the eastern bank and knocked at the gates of Smolensk in the north and Kiev in the south, Moscow announced.

German reports said the Russians had tried to cross the Dnieper only one mile above Kiev where the Desna joins the Dnieper but the Soviet communique made no mention of a crossing, nor an attempt to cross.

First Reports Incorrect

The Soviet monitor, incorrectly transcribing a Moscow broadcast of the communique, first said the Dnieper had been crossed in the Gomel sector but later changed its version of the communique to tell of a crossing of the Iput river, some 70 miles east of the Dnieper.

Nevertheless, the Russians, according to Moscow reports, were already at the river in many places and the Germans themselves mentioned an attempted Soviet crossing below Gomel at a point where the Pripet river enters the Dnieper.

In the fighting for Smolensk Moscow announced the capture of Korelly, seven miles northeast of Hitler's former headquarters and on the northwest they tightened another tentacle that may soon throttle that big rail center prize. The Roslavl-Smolensk high road also was seized.

Reds Close in on Kiev

Kiev, capital of the Ukraine, heard the thunder of approaching Soviet guns at Borispol, 17 miles to the southeast. The Russians had already swept through Lyeski, 18 miles northeast.

The Moscow communique said that in the Kiev battle the Germans launched several counterattacks "but after losing over 400 officers and men killed were forced to roll back."

The communique also told of retreating Germans in many sectors, retreating so rapidly they were abandoning artillery, infantry, armaments and munitions. The enemy "is compelled to abandon one position after another. x x x A Soviet formation pursuing the Germans advanced nine miles. x x x Breaking down enemy resistance our troops successfully forged ahead. x x x As they retreat the Germans abandon artillery x x x," the communique said.

A Moscow radio commentator, recorded by Reuter, said the "roads leading to the west are jammed with German transport columns, offering excellent targets to the Soviet airforce which is holding enemy communications in the rear under a steady hail of fire."

Nazis Retreat at Kerch

Other Red army gains saw the Germans backing up to the Kerch strait on their last feeble foothold in the Caucasus. The last town on the southern coast of the Taman peninsula fell to the Russians as they captured Blagovyeschchenskaya, 15 miles north of Anapa. The road center of Gostagaevskaya, northeast of Anapa, also fell to the Russians.

The Russians also closed on Zaporozhe, Dnepropetrovsk, Kremenchug and Cherkasi, all important Ukraine towns on the lower Dnieper.

German broadcasts painted a dark picture of the Nazi plight in the east.

Another Soviet drive took the Red army to within three miles of the borders of White Russia with the capture of Tarasenki.

German broadcasts, painting a dark picture of the Nazi plight in the east, indicated that the Germans were evacuating the Kuban bridgehead into the Caucasus, while far to the north the Nazis said the Russians were attempting to "break through along the whole front at Smolensk and particularly on both flanks."

The Moscow communique, recorded by the Soviet monitor, said the Russians had captured the town of Korelly, seven miles northeast of Smolensk, and five other large populated places in an advance up to three miles that took a total of over 50 towns and hamlets.

Northwest of Smolensk, where the Soviets were flanking the Nazi stronghold, the communique said 20 settlements were taken.

The communique, however, was more cautious than Moscow newspapers and German broadcasts, which told of Red army advances far beyond points claimed by the official bulletin.

Red Forces Superior

Col. Ernst von Hammer, German front correspondent whose dispatch was broadcast by Berlin radio and recorded by the Associated Press, said that on the Smolensk front "the Soviets were favored in their bringing up reinforcements by the fact that unfavorable weather conditions prevented the employment of the German Luftwaffe (airforce), so that the German ground troops had to bear the brunt of the hard defense struggle.

"The German formations here were faced with the extremely difficult task of holding their positions against the numerically superior enemy. At only a few points, however, did the Russians succeed in gaining ground x x x."

The first Russian announcement that the Red army had reached the middle Dnieper came from the army newspaper Red Star, which said Soviet columns drove through Novomoskovsk to the banks of the great stream and also reached it at other points.

The Soviet communique told of the capture of Borispol, 17 miles southeast of Kiev, and of two towns about 45 miles northeast of Kremenchug, middle Dnieper town between Kiev and Dnepropetrovsk. In the drive on Gomel the Soviets reached Klimov, 48 miles from that White Russian city and 15 miles south of Novozybkov.

The Red army took 466 towns and hamlets in the days' drives.

The communique also told of the capture of Tsarichanka, 17 miles from the Dnieper north of Dnepropetrovsk, and of continuing advances up to five miles in the Caucasus.

Moscow's Forces Capture Korelyi, Only Seven Miles From Smolensk, and Are Reported One Mile From Kiev.

Moscow, Sept. 24 (A. P.).—The Red Army has reached the Dnieper in force, and other Soviet units northwest of Smolensk have reached the village of Tarasenki, only three miles from the border of White Russia, Soviet dispatches said today.

With the Red Army only nine miles from Smolensk, after capturing Luzanovo, the Germans were in immediate danger of losing their central front citadel, which they have held since the early days of their smash toward Moscow.

[The German High Command said the Russians already were making heavy thrusts in efforts to cross the Dnieper, but declared they were repulsed.

[In a communique broadcast by the Moscow radio and picked up by the Soviet monitor at London tonight the Russian High Command announced that the Russian forces, sweeping down from the north to flank the Nazi bastion of Smolensk, captured the town of Korelyi, only seven miles northeast of that central front bastion, and that other Russian troops continued their advance in the Kuban Peninsula and surged forward by as much as twelve miles in the Dnepropetrovsk direction at the Great Bend of the Dnieper River.

[Moscow also claimed the capture of the district center of the Dnepropetrovsk region, Tsarichanka, forty miles northwest of Dnepropetrovsk and seventeen miles from the Dnieper, and added that more than ninety populated places were taken in this area, while in the advance toward Kromonchug, important enemy-held railway center on the left bank of the Dnieper, the Russians pushed forward by from six to eight miles, capturing over 100 populated places.]

Strong forces of Soviet troops have arrived on the banks of the Dnieper at other points, Red Star said.

Fight on East Bank.

As the Russians reached the Dnieper from Novomoskovsk the Germans threw in everything they had in an attempt to halt the Red Army drive west of Poltava, capture of which was the high spot of yesterday's Russian forward surge.

"The Germans attempted to protect the Poltava district," said the Red Star dispatch, "whence to some extent they could tie up the operations of our troops who advanced to the Dnieper River from the left and right."

[The German military commentator, Ludwig Sertorious, today declared that "the Red Army is now only one mile from the Ukraine capital of Kiev," the British radio said today in a broadcast recorded at the CBS listening station.

[According to German reports, "Russian troops in their advance along the coast of the Azov Sea, are already beyond Melitopol," the British radio said today.

["This means that they have cut the main route which the Germans could use to escape from the Crimea, this route being the one along the railroad to Zaporozhe, and must therefore either use the Perekop-Kherson Railroad or else try to escape by sea."]

This afternoon's Russian communique for the first time announced that Soviet forces were fighting in the direction of Kremenchug. This is a large city on the east bank of the Dnieper, fifty-eight miles southwest of Poltava and sixty-two miles up the river from Dniepropetrovsk.

Thrown back to the Dnieper in force throughout this southern Ukrainian sector, it now remains to be seen whether the Germans are going to try to make a desperate bid to hold their positions up and down the river, with Kiev as the center of the line.

The Dnieper is considered to be an excellent defense line, especially when defended from the western bank which looks down upon the lower eastern shore.

Break-through at Poltava.

The key to the great Red Army advance upon the Dnieper was the break-through at Poltava, which was accomplished in dramatic fashion.

Front dispatches related how the fall rains had made seas of black and through which the troops and machines had to move. The heavy mud clung to the fighters' boots, to the tires of motor transport and even hampered the machines equipped with caterpillar treads.

The crossing of the Vorskla River was accomplished with near-herculean efforts. Late on the afternoon of September 22 the Red Army forces prepared to cross the water barrier protecting the city.

Fog enveloped the river as Soviet engineers made ready the rafts and barges and constructed temporary bridges in the cold water.

The Red Army crossed the Vorskla protected by heavy artillery fire but met just as stiff a reception from German heavy guns. A charge into the city followed immediately after the crossing was completed.

Reds Push Forward.

Meanwhile to the north of Poltava other units smashed through the German defenses and approached the Dnieper. Still other units to the south of Poltava cut forward, throwing more Nazis back to the river's bank. The German commanders in Poltava then found themselves in a near-trap, surrounded from three directions.

Red Star said that Poltava was in flames when the Red Army reached it in a still dense fog. When the defense of Poltava finally crumbled many Germans were found to have been cut off from the main body of the enemy.

Moscow hailed the recapture of ancient Poltava. It was the real German Bastion in the southern Ukraine. It was the center of many-sided operations of the German Army and was highly important to their forces in the great area east of the Dnieper.

Capturing more than thirty places in the Dniepropetrovsk sector further to the south, other columns of the Red Army were dangerously close to the important power city on the Dnieper. Advancing from three to six miles yesterday, the Soviet troops in some places were three or four miles from Dniepropetrovsk itself.

Red Star said that the Russian forces are deployed along the Dnieper over a stretch of 300 miles from Zaporozhe in the south to the Chernigov sector in the north.

Abandon Kuban Bridgehead.

London, Sept. 24 (A. P.).—German forces are abandoning their Kuban bridgehead in the Caucasus, the Berlin radio announced today as surging Russian troops threatened to engulf Nazi positions along the lower Dnieper and still further north moved within artillery range of Smolensk.

In a broadcast recorded by Reuters the Nazi transocean news agency said:

"The Germans are systematically evacuating heavy equipment, important installations and civilians from the Kuban bridgehead.

This German admission followed by some thirty-six hours a Russian announcement of the capture of Anapa, the last Black Sea port held by the Nazis on the Taman Peninsula.

Berlin admitted mounting peril to Smolensk, as well as Kiev, Cherkasi and other strong points on the Dnieper line and said that at 'some points' a few small detachments of Russian troops had reached the river itself.

Capt. Ludwig Sertorius, Nazi military expert, said in a broadcast that the Soviet offensive was the "most gigantic of the entire eastern campaign."

Dispatches from Moscow said there was an atmosphere of expectancy in the capital, with some of the greatest victories of the war believed to be at hand.

CORSICA CAMPAIGN NEARING ITS END, NAZIS TRY TO FLEE

Bonifacio, Porto Vecchio, Southern Towns, Fall to Allied Forces.

SHIP SUNK AT VALONA

Motor Torpedo Boats Slip Into Albanian Harbor for Surprise Attack.

ITALIAN FIGHT RAGES

American Troops Gain Slowly in Mountains in Bitter Battle.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 24—(AP) The American Fifth army, in full offensive, lunged toward tortured Naples tonight behind a violent artillery and air barrage which reduced stout German mountain positions and blocked enemy roads just behind the "bitter and severe" fighting.

Bonifacio and Porto Vecchio, main towns of southern Corsica, fell to French troops, patriots and American Rangers who were steadily herding the Germans to the northeast corner of the island from which they were trying desperately to escape by air and sea.

Ship Sunk at Valona

The vulnerability of the German held Balkans to Allied attack across the Adriatic was demonstrated by a bold raid of motor torpedo boats which sank a loaded ammunition ship and another vessel in the Albanian bay of Valona. They damaged two more and escaped without damage or casualty before costal guns could find their range.

The American and British troops of Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark's Fifth army exerted so much pressure before Naples that the British Eighth army was able to mop up virtually all Italy south of a line east of Salerno to the Adriatic above Bari. Impeded only by demolitions, the Eighth army captured Altamura, 42 miles northwest of Taranto, and Matera, ten miles south of Altamura. An arm of the Fifth army scooped up the mountain town of Oliveto-Citra, 24 miles east of Salerno.

(The United Nations radio at Algiers, meanwhile, said "the Germans have been compelled to regroup their forces in Italy."

Italians Follow Badoglio

(In another broadcast, recorded in London by the Associated Press, the radio said that Italian officers answered the appeal of Premier Badoglio by reappearing in parts of Italy to lead patriot forces in open fighting against the German army and sabotage Nazi defenses. The broadcast said these efforts to liberate Italy were now going on at a far greater scale than at any time since the Italian armistice was signed, and were hampering seriously German attempts at reinforcement.)

The main body of the Fifth army made slow progress in the mountains north of Salerno. There was evidence of ground gained within sight of smoking Mount Vesuvius.

An air force statement said American Mitchell bombers "blocked roads and hit targets just behind the enemy lines near San Severino and Sarno." Sarno is 19 miles east and slightly south of Naples on the east side of Vesuvius. San Severino is seven miles north of Salerno.

Gun Positions Bombed

Indicating that the Germans had been forced to move their artillery back from their original lines, the air force bulletin announced that fighter-bombers had pummeled gun positions west of Avellino, a road junction 16 miles north of Salerno and 25 miles east of Naples.

(This suggested that Gen. Clark was hurling his main weight toward Avellino in a wide flanking movement to the east of Naples and Vesuvius. The volcano compresses the main highway from Salerno to Naples into a narrow coastal defile.)

The heavy pressure of the Fifth army threatened the roads leading into Naples, second largest Italian port of 925,000. German demolitions have wrecked the waterfront and blocked the docks with the hulks of at least 30 Italian ships. Industrial and rail centers also have been put to the torch.

Gen. Clark's men encountered heavy artillery and mortar fire and extensive minefields in their forward drive. They struck at dawn to open a new phase in the battle for Italy after firmly consolidating their hard-won hold on the Salerno sector, 20 to 40 miles below their current objective.

A military spokesman said:

"The enemy obviously intends to hold on as long as possible. Progress is slow north of Salerno, but the fighting is bitter and severe. The enemy has reconstructed his whole line and put strength where it is needed. The Eighth army has been able to advance 30 miles northward because of Gen. Clark's operations."

Reinforcements Arrive

Reinforcements and supplies were being landed constantly on the Salerno beaches to increase the power of Gen. Clark's smash. Gen. Eisenhower's communique gave few details of the offensive, stating merely that "The Fifth army is exerting increased pressure."

The Germans were ensconced in strong mountain positions, but beyond this final range lay the flat plains of Naples on which tanks and self-propelled artillery could maneuver easily.

The conquest of Corsica, the French island just 100 miles south of France itself, was near its end. Besides Bonifacio and Porto Vecchio, the hardy Corsican patriots, French and U. S. troops seized Murato and Santo Stefano. The escape port of Bastia, to which the survivors of the estimated 12,000-man German force were in flight, was rendered virtually useless by air attacks.

Two ships loaded with weapons, ammunition dumps and numerous tanks along the quayside awaiting embarkation were destroyed. The French communique said its air force was participating in the Corsican operation but did not say whether the planes were using island airports.

Seven Nazis Shot Down

R.A.F. Beaufighters shot down seven, and possibly more, big Nazi transport planes crammed with evacuating troops flying toward Leghorn. Allied naval forces were on the watch for shipping attempting to escape from Bastia. Fliers reporting sighting many small boats attempting to run the blockade. The French disclosed that two cruisers, six destroyers and three submarines of the French fleet had aided operations. One cruiser was from Martinique.

The Germans already were beset with the problem of trying to keep well-armed bands of Albanian and Yugoslav patriots under some degree of control, and they were jolted anew by the Mosquito fleet raid into the bay of Valona.

The foray appeared to give conclusive evidence that the Germans could not dare to move shipping along the Adriatic side of the Balkans, which are barely 50 miles from Allied bases on the heel of Italy.

The northwest African air forces appeared for the time being to have driven the Germans from the skies over the battlefront. They hammered roads and junctions, gun emplacements and bridges, troops and transports, as well as railways throughout the battle area. Principal targets were around Avellino, Benevento, Cancello and Capua—all in the Naples area.

Night bombers flew north beyond Leghorn to attack rail yards and an airport at Pisa. Mosquitos hit the Vitero base north of Rome.

Marauders shattered a bridge at Cancello, exploding a truck crossing it at the time. A road junction at Capua was tangled. Ten trucks were demolished on the road linking Benevento and Avellino.

Middle East bombers pounded the Maritza and Calato airdromes on Rhodes in the Dodecanese.

American Invader dive bombers were credited with breaking up a German infantry attack with a barrage of 500-pound explosives east of Salerno. An Army message said:

"The enemy was unable to advance because of this attack, which was most successful. Hits were observed among infantry."

ENEMY TROOPS IN FULL FLIGHT FROM CORSICA

Seven Big Transport Planes Shot Down as Evacuation Goes On Day and Night.

FRENCH DRIVE NAZIS NORTH

Giraud Returns From Visit to Isle Revealing Part Played by His Fleet and Local Patriots.

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Sept. 24 (A. P.).—Allied Beaufighters intercepted a Nazi air fleet evacuating German forces from Corsica and shot down seven transport planes, it was announced today.

Air Force headquarters said that the evacuation was going on day and night. It was the third time since May that the Germans were on the run by air and sea. The first time was from Tunisia and the second from Sicily. In each instance their air transport losses were extremely heavy.

Meanwhile today an official French communique declared that the Germans are continuing their northward retreat on Corsica, and that the Allied forces have occupied Bonifacio and Porto Vecchio.

It was also revealed today that a French fleet of eleven warships, including the cruiser Jeanne d'Arc, formerly based at Martinique, had assisted in landing French troops on the island to wrest possession of it from the Germans.

Brought Down in Flames.

The destruction of the German air transports was the highlight of the day's events on and near Corsica.

"Three separate attacks were made against the transports, some of which were Junkers 52s and some Savoia Marchetti 82s," an Air Force communique declared.

"The first destroyed all three of a formation. The second two out of six. The third brought two out of five down in flames.

"At other times during the day several score enemy transports were observed making an evacuation trip and on the sea a large number of small boats were seen by reconnaissance aircraft."

The Allied airmen's preoccupation with the mainland offensive in Italy precluded further inroads into these formations, it was understood here.

French Fleet and Flyers Active.

French Air Force units, it was disclosed, took part in the operations leading to the capture of the occupied towns of Bonifacio and Porto Vecchio, which are at the southern end of the isle. At the same time it was stated in the French communique that Bastia, on the northern tip of the 112-mile long island, has been rendered almost useless to the enemy, through continued air raids. Several ammunition dumps and numerous tanks on a quayside, awaiting embarkation, were destroyed, the French High Command announced.

The disclosure concerning the French fleet of two cruisers, six destroyers and three submarines, and the part they had played in landing troops came as Gen. Henri Giraud, the French Commander in Chief, declared on his return from a two-day flying trip to Corsica that he expected all the Nazis on the island to be ousted or slain within ten or fifteen days.

Pays Tribute to Corsicans.

Through his spokesman, Gen Rene Chambe, Gen. Giraud paid high tribute to the Corsicans who planned and executed the military revolt to rid the island of the Nazi invaders. Gen. Chambe said that Gen. Giraud flew to Corsica last Tuesday night against the advice of his staff that the trip was too hazardous.

Capt. Colonna d'Istria, young scion of one of Corsica's oldest families, organized the revolt, Gen. Chambe said. On Giraud's orders he landed on the island in February of this year from a French submarine and maintained constant radio contact with Gen. Giraud in Algiers until the actual fighting began. Today the captain is ill in an Ajaccio hospital, where he was decorated by Gen. Giraud just before the latter left for Africa.

Gen. Chambe said that enough Tommy guns had been dropped by parachute or landed by submarines on the island since February to arm 10,000 Corsicans. When the French troops first began to land on Corsica, he said, the Germans attacked with tanks in an attempt to capture Ajaccio. The Corsican partisans, however, beat off the attack at Cauro and the Germans started a retreat that never stopped.

The Corsicans all wore armlets with the initials "FT" (Franc Tireur) and knew if the Germans caught them they would be shot.

Gen. Chambe said that of the 80,000 Italians living on the island, only a handful are fighting the Germans.

"We have put the rest to work building roads and bridges," he added. "But they must leave Corsica for Italy as soon as transportation can be arranged."

Gen. Charles de Gaulle, co-president of the French Committee of National Liberation, tonight hailed the liberation of Corsica as France's contribution to the Allies "one war for one victory." Gen. de Gaulle said that Corsica enthusiastically supported the National Committee and added in a broadcast that it was only for the committee to decide on substitutions among Corsican officials and on punishment for those replaced. He thus once more asserted his view of the committee as the civilian authority over and above the military.

There have been reports of subsurface tension within the committee over the issue of the treatment to be accorded former Corsican officials, some of whom are reported to have been freed by Gen. Giraud after they had been imprisoned by Corsican patriots.

FIFTH ARMY OPENS GREAT OFFENSIVE

British Rush Forward as Clark Rivets Foe

1943 —Allied Bombers Attack Pisa Rail and Air Facilities.

SEP 25 1943

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Sept. 24 (A. P.).—The Fifth Army launched a full-scale offensive against the German mountain positions guarding the route to Naples, it was announced today.

Both the Eighth Army and the Fifth advanced steadily and captured two towns.

The Fifth Army forces of Lieut.-Gen. Mark W. Clark overran the inland mountain town of Oliveto-Citra, twenty-four miles due east of Salerno and ten miles southeast of the town of Acerno, which was yesterday reported to have fallen. Matera, thirty-six miles northwest from Taranto, fell to the British forces, representing an advance of eleven miles from captured Ginosa.

Bombers Attack Pisa.

On the other hand, Allied bombers last night ranged into northern Italy to Pisa, and attacked the railway yards and airfield there, the Air Command announced.

Mosquito intruders of the Royal Air Force also plastered parked aircraft at the Viterbo Airdrome north of Rome.

Squadrons from both the tactical and strategic air forces paced Gen. Clark's attack. American Marauders blasted a bridge at Cancello and Warhawks wiped out ten motor trucks on the Avellino-Benevento Road, while Invaders were credited with breaking up a German counter-attack with a barrage of 500-pound bombs that fell among the Nazi infantry east of Salerno.

Fierce Attack Concentrates Foe.

Driving northward into strongly defended saw-toothed positions, Gen. Clark's troops encountered heavy artillery and mortar opposition as well as minefields, and a spokeman said that they were making slow progress.

"The fighting is bitter and severe," he declared. "The enemy obviously intends to hold onto Naples as long as possible."

The attack, which had been in full progress from daybreak yesterday, was strongly supported by artillery and mortars.

While Gen. Clark threw nearly his full strength into the ferocious attack, the Germans were forced to concentrate almost entirely in that area, and the British Eighth Army to the south was able to advance more swiftly and almost at will.

Reinforcements Pouring In.

"The enemy has had to reconstruct his whole line and put strength where it is needed," said the spokesman. "The Eighth Army has been able to advance thirty miles northward because of Gen. Clark's operations."

A naval announcement said that Allied vessels are still pouring reinforcements into the Salerno area and added that the Eighth Army is being supplied across the Straits of Messina.

The onslaught by Gen. Clark's American and British soldiers from their hard-won Salerno positions against Naples, Italy's second greatest port, was launched after a period of consolidation of the Allied springboard and while the Germans were reported engaged in large-scale demolitions, apparently with a view to making the harbor installations useless when the Allies occupy the city.

11 French Warships in Invasion

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 24 (AP)—Two French cruisers—including one recently based eat Martinique—six destroyers and three submarines helped land the French forces now driving the Germans from Corsica.

Among the French ships participating in the invasion landing, an official announcement said, was the 6,500-ton training cruiser Jeanne d'Arc, one of the naval units based at Martinique before that Caribbean island severed its ties with Vichy.

It was the first intimation that any of the vessels from the Martinique squadron were operating in Mediterranean waters.

The large destroyers Le Fantasque and Le Terrible, which have attained speeds of 43 to 45 knots, also were used to run troops into Ajaccio almost under the noses of the Germans. Both formerly were stationed at Dakar.

Other ships that participated were the 7,600-ton cruiser Montcalm, the destroyers L'Alcyon, Le Fortune and Basque, all of 1,378 tons; the Tempete, 1,319 tons, and the submarines Casablanca, 1,479 tons; L'Aperle 669 tons, and Arethuse, 660 tons. The Casablanca, which escaped to North Africa from Toulon last fall, is one of the world's fastest submarines with a surface speed of 18 knots.

The Jeanne d'Arc, Le Fantasque and Le Terrible all had been refitted in United States navy yards preparatory to going into action in the Mediterranean.

R. A. F. FLYERS BOMB 4 CITIES IN REICH RAID

SEP 25 1943

32 Bombers Fail to Come Back From Second Big Blow in 24 Hours.

INDUSTRIAL CENTERS TARGETS

Mannheim, Aachen, Darmstadt and Ludwigschafen Blasted in Night Attack.

London, Sept. 24 (A. P.).—In their second heavy blow in twenty-four hours against Nazi industrial and transportation centers, a fleet of big R. A. F. bombers blasted four German cities last night, heavily bombing the twin cities of Mannheim-Ludwigshafen and hitting Darmstadt, thirty-five miles northeast of Mannheim, and Aachen, near Cologne.

Thirty-two bombers failed to return.

The twin cities at the junction of the Rhine and Nekar rivers, shuddered under the impact of 1,500 long tons (1,730 United States tons) in forty-five minutes—seventeen tons a minute less than the record load dumped on Hamburg—in a sequel to the Wednesday night attack on Hanover.

American Marauders carried the latest big-scale aerial assault into its third day with another daylight raid on the Evreux-Fauville air base forty-five miles west of Paris which they also hit Wednesday. Today's operation was the Marauders' seventh in seven days.

Other formations of bombers crossed the coast during the eary afternoon to continue the daylight attacks.

It was the second big attack in less than three weeks on Mannheim-Ludwigshafen, Germany's second largest inland port, through which large quantities of coal and other vital supplies are transshipped to Italy. Aachen, hit sixteen times before, is a key railroad and highway point, through which moves much of Hitler's supplies and reinforcements for the west wall.

The three-pronged attack rounded out smashes by American Flying Fortresses and medium Allied bombers yesterday to make the twenty-four-hour raids probably the heaviest day-and-night operation of the war.

Nantes, French Atlantic port, was raided twice in daylight yesterday by the big American bombers, their first repeat raid within twelve hours of the war.

Intruder aircraft, joining the R. A. F.'s big bombers in last night's raiding, swept northern France and Germany and shot down four enemy planes, the British announced. Fortifications along the French coast shook in explosions reminiscent of the earlier days of the war.

The Vichy radio, in a report not confirmed by any Allied source, said that "American planes" attacked Paris last night, starting a fire in the Magasin du Midi store. It said one of the raiders was shot down.

The British Air Ministry reported slight enemy activity over Britain last night, mainly over the coastal districts of eastern England. Bombs were dropped, but the Ministry report said no damage or casualties had been reported.

Four German Cities Bombed In Big Night Attack By RAF

Medium Planes Follow With Raids On France In Third Day Of Steady Assault

TILL SEP 25 1943

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sept. 24—A big fleet of RAF night bombers hit four big German industrial centers—including the important twin cities of Mannheim - Ludwigshafen — and American Marauders again raided Evreux - Fauville airfield, near Paris, in daylight today, carrying the Allies' latest large-scale round-the-clock aerial assault from Britain into its third straight day.

A joint British-American communique said that during the day Eighth Air Force Marauders attacked Nazi airfields at Evreux-Fauville and Beauvais-Tille while RAF Mitchells blasted a railway center at Amiens and airfields at Brest-Lanvoc, Brest-Guipvas and St. Omer-Longeunesse. Typhoon bombers also bombed the latter airfield. At the same time, United States Thunderbolts made supporting sweeps over France and Belgium.

RAF, Dominion and Allied fighters escorting the bombers shot down twenty enemy planes and the Marauders destroyed one. Nine Allied planes were missing.

Other German night targets were Aachen (also known as Aix-la-Chapelle, near Cologne) and Darmstadt, near Mannheim.

32 Bombers Lost

The RAF lost thirty-two bombers, two less than when it hurled 1,500 tons of explosives in forty-five minutes on the twin cities less than three weeks ago.

Nazi night fighters again used the tactic of dropping myriad flares along the ingoing and outcoming bomber lanes, making the night almost as bright as day, one pilot reported.

Mannheim-Ludwigshafen, on the western German border at the junction of the Rhine and the Neckar rivers, is an important transshipment point for supplies to Italy. Darmstadt is on the main supply route to the Belgain and French coasts.

The quadruple night assault was another blow in the RAF's new drive against Nazi consumer goods and finished-product factories, as contrasted with those plants which do first stage processing of raw materials for the enemy's war machine.

Big Chemical Works

Mannheim - Ludwigshafen has been cited by the British Ministry of Economic Warfare as a typical final-stage manufacturing center turning out tanks, trucks, Diesel engines and armorplate. At Darmstadt are the Merck chemical works, one of Germany's leading drug and medicine producers. At Aachen consumer items like cloth, glass, pins and needles were made before the war in factories which now are likely converted to important small war implements.

The Marauders new foray was their third in two days. Yesterday they hit both the Conches and the Beauvais-Tille airfields.

PATRIOTS BATTLE GERMAN TROOPS IN TRIESTE STREETS

GOLDBERG

Yugoslav Armies Also Fight Nazis for Control of Split.

LONDON, Sept. 24.—(AP) Yugoslav patriots still are fighting the Germans in the streets of Trieste in northeastern Italy and struggling to control Susak near Fiume in northwestern Yugoslavia, advices from partisan leaders said tonight.

The advices said the patriots were inflicting severe punishment on the Nazis in those battles as well as in the Yugoslav drive to regain Split, about 150 miles southeast of Fiume along the Adriatic shore.

Earlier, the Budapest radio said in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press that the Germans had recaptured Susak.

(British broadcasts recorded in New York by CBS said Nazi attempts to rescue their Fiume garrisons "have been frustrated" and quoted a Yugoslav people's army communique tonight as saying fighting at Goritza and Ljubljana was "particularly severe."

(BBC said strong Nazi detachments tried to smash through the port of Split but were thrown back towards the Cetina river and the town of Imotski 40 miles inland. The patriots also were said to have repulsed Nazi efforts to land troops on the two islands west of the Dubrovnik naval base, sinking a Nazi ship. Two German troop trains were reported wrecked along with two and a half miles of railway track near Sarajevo.)

One report said guerrillas had hurled tanks into a battle against Nazi tank forces near Ljubljana and destroyed two German tanks without losing any. Where the partisans obtained the tanks was not explained but the German radio said in one broadcast that Italian troops had joined the fight against the Nazis, and that British agents also were getting into the battle.

The Free Yugoslav radio said that a full Italian division was cooperating with the patriots in one area.

A German overseas news agency broadcast said without confirmation that German forces had entered the Dalmatian harbor of Sidenik, midway between Zara and Split.

forces were reported fighting German troops today in the streets of Trieste and threatening Fiume in an apparently co-ordinated drive against the two Italian ports at the northern end of the Adriatic.

The action was part of a series of new flareups by partisan armies against Nazi occupying forces at scattered points along some 400 miles of the eastern Adriatic shore, all conceivably inaugurated with Allied approval.

[According to an announcement from Allied headquarters in North Africa, a force of Allied motor torpedo boats speeded into the Bay of Valona on the Albanian coast directly across from the Italian heel Tuesday night and sank two enemy vessels and hit two others, an Allied communique said today.

[The opening of the Adriatic to Allied naval forces was vividly pointed up by the foray into Valona harbor across the strait from the Italian heel. This was the first time Allied naval forces had struck in that direction since the fighting in Albania and Yugoslavia in 1941. The bold raid coincided with the campaign of Allied forces in the Middle East who have seized Samos and two islands in the Dodecanese.]

Yugoslav sources here said that Slovene irregulars struck some twenty-five miles into Italy from the Yugoslavian border and penetrated Trieste, with oppressed inhabitants of that former Italian naval base joining their ranks to attack the Nazi garrison.

Occupy Italian Town.

These same sources reported other Slovene formations had occupied Idria, Italian mountain town four miles east of the Yugoslav border and twenty-eight miles northeast of Trieste, while farther to the east in northwestern Yugoslavia heavy fighting was said to be in progress along a fifty-mile front between Bistrica (Feisstritz) and Ljubljana.

The British Broadcasting Corporation, quoting a broadcast by the Algiers radio, said that Fiume was being shelled by partisan artillery set up in Susak, a mile and a half away across the frontier.

In a broadcast heard by the Associated Press, however, the Budapest radio quoted a Zagreb dispatch to the effect that the Germans had captured Susak.

The partisans reported engaged around Trieste and Fiume apparently were operating under command of the Montenegrin guerrilla chieftain, Josip Broz, familiarly known as Tito, but the forces of Gen. Draja Mihailovic were said to be fighting further south in the interior.

Yugoslavs here, however, said that while there evidently was some co-operation between the two guerrilla armies, they were not operating under a joint command or with unified plans.

Madrid dispatches quoted Italian and Balkan reports as saying that not only Fiume but the whole German grip on the Istrian peninsula, which juts into the northern Adriatic between Fiume and Trieste, was threatened by swift-moving, well-armed guerrilla bands.

Report Fighting in Bosnia.

Yugoslav authorities here reported other new fighting in Bosnia and along the Montenegrin-Albanian border.

Croatian divisions, operating in a wide section of Bosnia around Banjaluka, were said to have destroyed German railway facilities at Nova Gradiska and Novakapel.

German planes and artillery, apparently striking at one major center of resistance, virtually destroyed Novomesto, on the Krk River, fifty miles northeast of Fiume, this information said.

Some estimates here were that war equipment of about four Italian divisions has now fallen into the hands of the partisans.

Talk 'Cold Turkey' In Preparation For Tripartite Conference

DANIEL

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sept. 24—As a result of conferences under way in London recently, Anglo-American-Russian relations have been put on a franker, firmer, more realistic basis in preparation for the approaching tripartite conference, but neither the time, the place, the agenda nor American representation for the conference have been yet fully decided.

With vital post-war problems coming to a head and demanding positive decisions, representatives of the three countries have been "talking cold turkey" to each other, as demonstrated by Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden's frank, blunt speech to Commons and Prime Minister Churchill's two recent firm declarations that the United States and Britain will not be stampeded into a Western front.

Response From Kremlin

That this policy of frankness has drawn a favorable response from the Kremlin is suggested by reports from the United States that Churchill and President Roosevelt sent their Western front plans to Premier Stalin and obtained his indorsement.

These reports have not been confirmed officially—but they passed through both British and American censorship.

The frankness of the British response to Russian prodding reached its apogee in Eden's comment on a recent Soviet article averring that British workers did not put their whole hearts into the war effort until Russia joined battle.

"If you believe that, you will believe anything," Eden said, quoting a quondam remark of the Duke of Wellington.

Urges Frankness

"We must be frank with one another," said the Foreign Minister, who is the first of three representatives so far publicly designated for the conference.

His statement is characteristic of an attitude which many observers have noted developing in Britain. This is that the British are perfectly willing, as Eden said, to collaborate in full friendship with the Russians but will not be continually badgered and belittled by Russian propaganda.

Growing British-American respect for their own military accomplishments — particularly the singular defeat of Italy—in comparison with Russia's admittedly magnificent success, has contributed to this tough mindedness.

The British and Americans very positively feel that the attack in southern Europe and the threat in the west have made a substantial contribution to German withdrawal in the east, and they are telling the Russians so. Those in London who know the realistic minds of the Russians believe this sort of plain talk is received in good spirit rather than otherwise.

Post-War Problems

Post-war problems, which it is believed will form the core of the agenda for the forthcoming conference, are being approached in the same incisive manner. Eden made it very plain in his earlier remarks in Commons that the British Government depended on Russia not to step outside the framework of the tripartite to make two-way agreements with lesser European partners in the anti-Nazi alliance. Czecho-Slovakia was a case in point.

Settlement of European economic, political and territorial problems on a continent-wide basis appears to be the desire of all parties, but there are difficulties which might require them to be dealt with on a regional basis.

These difficulties have delayed a written agenda for the tripartite conference, which the Russians insist upon. One of the difficulties is believed to be a divergence of views, particularly between Russia and the United States, as to whether this is the time to discuss the Soviets' territorial claims, especially in Poland and the Baltic.

Mediterranean Commission

An approach has been made to such difficulties by the creation of a Mediterranean commission which Stalin proposed. The Russians are being given representation on the commission in recognition of their interests in the Mediterranean—particularly in the Balkans and the Black Sea—despite the fact that they have made no direct contribution to its reconquest thus far.

The Mediterranean commission represents the first united effort of the three powers to deal with European settlement.

PACIFIC STRUGGLE GREAT SEA WAR, KNOX DECLARES

Third of Jap Cargo Fleet Sunk, Navy Chief Tells British.

LONDON, Sept. 24.—(AP) Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox told naval-minded Britain today that the present struggle in the Pacific is the greatest naval war ever fought either by Britain or the United States and that already "a full third" of the Japanese merchant fleet has been sent to the bottom.

The American secretary told a press conference that the British press should emphasize the necessity of winning the Pacific war. On the other hand, he conceded that the United States had not concerned itself sufficiently with the necessity of a European victory.

"Nothing would more disturb the growing American confidence in British cooperation than to believe the British feel that when Hitler is disposed of it all will be over," Secretary Knox declared.

He added that during his current visit to England he had found that the attitude here is that "the real war is in Germany and the other a sideshow." In dispelling that belief, he declared:

"In addition to the fact that the Japanese have a good fleet and handle it well, it is a very important fact that their main islands lie 7,000 miles away, and that every pound of material and every ship and every weapon has to be transported over that vast distance.

"The mere establishing of adequate bases alone has been a herculean task and one which has consumed months and months of time and was carried out only under the greatest difficulties.

"You are a naval people, and the war in the Pacific is the greatest naval war that ever has been fought by either of us in the most difficult circumstances and against the best armed foe."

Secretary Knox told the conference that United States newspapers should "bring home the conviction that never again can we withdraw entirely from the rest of the world."

Beaverbrook Is Returned to British Cabinet

Friend of Russia Is Lord Privy Seal; Shifts Give Anderson Treasury Post

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Sept. 24.—Lord Beaverbrook, one of Russia's best friends in Great Britain and an outspoken advocate of a second front in western Europe, returned to Prime Minister Churchill's Cabinet tonight as Lord Privy Seal, as 10 Downing Street announced a series of changes.

Beaverbrook, owner of "The London Daily Express," held the Ministries of Aircraft Production, State and Supply in 1940 and 1941. In February, 1942, he was named Minister of War Production, but declined to enter the Cabinet because of ill health. Oliver Lyttelton took the post.

The new changes apparently were caused by the death this week of Sir Kingsley Wood, Chancellor of the Exchequer. Downing Street announced the appointment of Sir John Anderson to succeed Wood, and Richard K. Law was named Minister of State.

The return to the Cabinet of the sixty-four-year-old Canadian-born Beaverbrook as Lord Privy Seal makes him available for any special assignment. It was said, however, he would not be a member of the War Cabinet.

The reshuffling, which Downing Street said would be followed by "certain consequential appointments," saw no major changes in the leadership of the fighting services, but was a general strengthening of Churchill's team in the over-all war machine.

Viscount Cranborne, whom Beaverbrook succeeded as Lord Privy Seal, was named Secretary of State for Dominion Affairs, the announcement said, adding that he would retain his post as leader of the House of Lords.

The announcement said that Major Clement R. Attlee, leader of the Labor party, who has been Dominions Secretary, will continue as Deputy Prime Minister and assume the office of Lord President of the Council, a post formerly held by Anderson.

The new Chancellor of the Exchequer, Anderson, will be a member of the War Cabinet, the announcement said. Wood had not been a member of that group.

The new Minister of State, Law, who has been serving as Under Secretary of State for the Foreign Office, will assist the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, Anthony Eden. R. G. Casey, who has been serving as Minister of State, now becomes Minister of State "Resident in the Middle East," the announcement said.

U.S. PRODUCTION TOPS AXIS OUTPUT, NELSON DECLARES

WPB Chief Tells British of Gains in Building War Goods.

LONDON, Sept. 24—(AP) Donald M. Nelson, War Production board chairman, told the British tonight that American war production this year would be at least one and a half times the combined output of Germany and Japan and next year probably would be twice as great.

Speaking at a dinner given by the British government in his honor, the American production chief said he thought his figures might interest the Germans as well as his audience.

He said the United States alone produced 110,000 military planes since Jan. 1, 1942, "and the production curve is still rising."

"Very soon we will be turning out a completed plane every five minutes around the clock, every day of the month."

60,000 Tanks Built

Also since Jan. 1, 1942, Nelson said, America produced 60,000 tanks and tank chassis, 53,000 scout cars and carriers and 1,100,000 trucks and trailers.

"More than 21,000,000 deadweight tons of merchant vessels and nearly 3,000,000 displacement tons of naval vessels have come from our shipyards during this time," he said.

As for artillery and ammunition, he said enough had been manufactured "to let us fire nearly 2,000 shots at every soldier in the Axis armies."

Speaks of U. S. Production

Emphasizing that he was speaking only of American production exclusive of the other United Nations, Mr. Nelson said:

"Let the German people exercise their imagination on the total of our combined war production. Let them understand how hopeless is the struggle they are waging in a war where mechanical production is the foundation of every military campaign."

Mr. Nelson struck sharply at what he termed "the diplomacy of squeeze and grab," saying that already in some quarters peace was being discussed in terms of new power combinations by which one group of nations could get the better of another.

"I wonder how long the people of the world will tolerate that negative and dangerous attitude," Mr. Nelson said.

"I have a feeling that the time is here when frankness and simplicity will prove to be the most effective tools of international statement."

Nazis Report British Sub Sunk In Effort to Torpedo Tirpitz

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 24.—An audacious foray by a British "pig boat" in an attempt to sink the German battleship Tirpitz in a Norwegian fjord was reported today by DNB, official German news agency.

The agency report, which was broadcast by the Berlin radio, said a British submarine "of the smallest type" stole into the Norwegian island area, but was caught and destroyed before it could carry out its mission.

"This enemy attempt which was obviously intended to make amends for the setback which the British Navy suffered through the daring deed of Guenther Prien in Scapa Flow, was a complete failure," DNB asserted.

Prien commanded the U-boat which slipped into Britain's great Scapa Flow naval base and sank the battleship Royal Oak on October 14, 1939. The Germans reported that Prien failed to return from a subsequent operation.

The Germans did not say on what part of the island-studded Norwegian coast the British submarine attack was made, but the 35,000-ton Tirpitz was reported recently to have holed up in Alta Fjord in Northern Norway. The entrance to Alta is guarded by a cluster of islands.

In addition to the Tirpitz, Germany's 26,000-ton battleship Scharnhorst and a number of cruisers and destroyers have been using bases in Northern Norway.

POPE IS REPORTED IN PRISONER ROLE

London, Sept. 24 (A. P.).—A Reuters dispatch from Zurich today said that it was reliably reported from Rome that Pope Pius XII intends to become a voluntary prisoner in the Vatican by re-establishing the conditions prevailing before the Lateran Treaty.

12 Destroyers and 9 Merchant Ships Are Reported Sunk

LONDON, Sept. 24 (AP)—The Berlin radio reported today that German submarines had made a surprised attack on a heavily escorted Allied convoy en route to America, sinking twelve destroyers and nine merchant ships totaling 46,500 tons.

The German broadcast, which was recorded by The Associated Press, was unconfirmed by any Allied source, but it recalled Prime Minister Churchill's statement in the House of Commons Tuesday that an Allied convoy was at that moment under attack.

Mr. Churchill made his statement in disclosing that the Allies had not lost a single ship to enemy submarines in the North Atlantic in the four months ending Sept. 18, a fact that later was confirmed unofficially by the German radio.

In addition to the vessels the Germans reported today they had sunk, they listed three destroyers as damaged and probably sunk and two other merchant vessels as hit.

19 More Frenchmen Reported Executed

London, Sept. 24 (AP)—A Madrid dispatch said tonight that an order of Gen. Otto von Stuelpnagel, Nazi commander in France, had been published Tuesday in the Pariser Zeitung announcing the executions of sixteen Frenchmen for guerrilla activities and three more for "contact with the enemy."

Meanwhile, the Netherlands news agency Aneta quoted the Dutch Nazi newspaper Het Nationale Dagblad as saying that Anton Mussert, Dutch Nazi party chief, had admitted that more than 1,000 of his followers had been slain by Dutch patriots.

CHANNEL GUNS DUEL

LONDON, Saturday, Sept. 25—(AP) British and German guns based on opposite sides of the straits of Dover exchanged shell fire for about 15 minutes today shortly before 4:30 a. m. The Germans fired the initial volley. Some shells landed in the Dover area.

Exchange Ship Leaves China

LONDON, Sept. 23 (AP).—The Tokio radio reported that the Japanese exchange ship Teia Maru, en route to Portuguese India with 600 Americans, 50 Canadians and 30 Chileans aboard, left Hongkong today for Manila.

Claim Capture of Island.

London, Sept. 24 (A. P.).—The German news agency DNB broadcast today that German troops had captured the island of Cephalonia, in the Ionian Sea off the west coast of Greece. It reported hard fighting against numerically superior Badoglio troops.

ROLE OF ITALIAN FLEET STUDIED

London, Sept. 24 (A. P.).—A statement by Colonial Secretary Viscount Cranborne that the Italian fleet did not surrender but "moved to designated points under the terms of the armistice" aroused speculation today as to the probable next moves by the former enemy vessels.

On that score, the Secretary told the House of Lords in his statement yesterday that "the future of the fleet is under consideration."

Although no official amplification of the remark was forthcoming, the suggestion was advanced that Lord Cranborne's purpose was to leave open the possibility for Italian seamen to man the ships against the Germans rather than be held as war prisoners.

Lord Cranborne's assertion caused surprise since the admiralty had messaged Admiral Sir Andrew Browne Cunningham, Mediterranean Naval Commander in Chief, "on the occasion of the surrender of the Italian battle fleet their Lordships sent their warmest congraluations."

LONDON, Sept. 24 (AP).—The Swiss radio said today that Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, German commander of northern Italy, has chosen Verona as his headquarters.

Gen. Crawford Gets Service Medal

London, Sept. 24 (A. P.).—The Distinguished Service Medal was awarded today to Major-Gen. Robert W. Crawford for his services as commanding general of the United States Army Service Forces in the Middle East where he served until last June. He is now deputy commander and chief of staff of the Army Service Forces in the European zone.

The medal was presented by Lieut.-Gen. Jacob L. Devers, commander of American forces in the theater.

Canadian Private Executed

LONDON, Sept. 24 (AP)—Eugene Gauthier, a private in the Canadian Army, was hanged today for the murder last March of Mrs. Annette Pepper, the wife of a British prisoner of war. The Crown charged that Gauthier, from Quebec Province, was jealous of Mrs. Pepper because of her friendship with another soldier.

WOUNDED GUNNER BLASTS AT NAZIS

Sergeant's Leg Shot Off But He Keeps Firing at Foe.

AT A U. S. BOMBER BASE IN ENGLAND, Saturday, Sept. 25. — (AP) The Flying Fortress "Briny Marlin" has returned to this base despite 600 bullet holes in its fuselage, wings, and tail and 15 direct hits by cannon shells—largely because Gunner Sgt. Donald D. Partridge, 25, of Peoria, Ill., kept blasting away at attacking Nazi fighters long after his right leg was shot off.

Partridge didn't lose consciousness when machinegun bullets from one of the swarm of Messerschmitts attacking the Flying Fortress on the recent raid over La Pallice, France, hit him. He pulled up, steadied himself on the other leg and fired away until another shell knocked him out.

The Fortress crew knocked down four of the enemy fighters which swarmed in for the kill after the "Briny Marlin" caught a burst of flak in the gas tank and Pilot Donald R. Andrews, 22, Glenn Ellyn, Ill., cut out one motor.

Low on gas, with one engine out, and another leaking gasoline, with fire damaging the inside of the plane, and bullet holes throughout, the Fortress headed for England. Unable to reach his home field, Andrews topped off the day by putting the plane down on a runway built for fighters.

Pranksters Paint Up Shakespeare's Town

By the Associated Press.

STRATFORD - ON - AVON, England, Sept. 24.—William Shakespeare's home town was painted red last night—apparently by one who believes Francis Bacon actually wrote the works attributed to Shakespeare.

Stratford inhabitants awoke today to discover crimson letters 2 feet high on the Shakespeare Memorial Theater: "Bacon Memorial Theater." Lady Macbeth's statue bore a red face and the head and feet of Hamlet's monument had been painted.

Paint was thrown about on the pavements, and to top it all, the flag staff on the townhall was flying a woman's underwear.

Dnieper Line Called Not Short Enough

Stockholm, Sept. 24 (AP)—The Berlin correspondent of the Stockholms-Tidningen reported today that "one thing sure is that the Dnieper line is not short enough to make it practical to conserve troops."

This dispatch appeared to be a hint that the Germans plan to establish a shorter winter defense line behind the Dnieper.

There is speculation that the Germans, desperately short of reserve troops since drawing on the east front to reinforce Italy and the Balkans, may try to stop the Russians on a line running from Riga on the Baltic to Odessa on the Black Sea.

EDOUARD HERRIOT DEAD

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 24—(AP) The death in a hospital in southern France of Edouard Herriot, former French premier, was reported today in a dispatch from Berlin to the Svenska Dagbladet.

Danish Town Fined For Killing Nazi

Stockholm, Sweden, Sept. 24 (A. P.).—The Germans fined Odense, the largest town on the Danish island of Fyn, 1,000,000 corwns (about $222,000) for the slaying of a German corporal on September 19. This is the second 1,000,000-crown fine imposed on Odense.

Archbishop Of York Affirms Worship Is Free In Russia

Anglican Prelate Expresses Conviction Soviets Will Not Interfere With Religion After War

[By the Associated Press]

Moscow, Sept. 24—The Archbishop of York, visiting the Soviet Union at the invitation of the Russian church, said today he had found complete freedom of worship and had seen no indications why it should not continue after the war.

At a press conference in a hotel, across the square from the Kremlin, the Archbishop was asked to what he attributed the current interest in religion in the Soviet Union.

"I believe," he said, "that the Government feels the people of Russia are a religious people and that the Russian church is earnestly throwing itself into this international cause."

Certain Of Church Freedom

To another question, the Archbishop replied "I most certainly believe freedom of worship exists here. I am also quite sure the churches can freely hold services."

The Archbishop said he had brought an invitation to Russian churchmen to visit England and that the invitation had been accepted, although dates and names of the delegates had not been decided upon.

Further commenting on the religious services in the Russian churches, two of which he said he had attended, the Archbishop declared he had been greatly impressed by the size of the congregations and their "obvious earnestness."

Thinks It Will Continue

"I believe," he said, "that this current freedom will exist after the war."

Replying to another question, he said he saw no indication that the church was currently being exploited as part of the war effort.

"The church is playing a great part in the national life," he continued, "and Premier Stalin as a great statesman has recognized this fact."

The British churchman said he had been told by Russian prelates that from forty to fifty churches are open now. Heretofore the best information correspondents in Moscow had was that twenty-six churches were open. This, of course, would indicate that others have been opened recently.

Found Middle-Aged At Church

The Archbishop said he had not gone into the question of reopening the former Anglican church here, but added, the community must be very small now.

Speaking of the services he had attended, the English churchman said that before coming to Russia it had been his impression that most of the people attending churches here were old, but that this was not his impression now, as a majority of the congregations appeared to be between 35 and 45 years of age.

He said he would like to comment on the "great friendliness of the people." The Archbishop exhibited an ikon of St. George and the Dragon which had been presented to him by a Moscow priest.

His Grace said he had heard little second-front talk in his conversations.

He may see Russian leaders other than churchmen during his visit.

KREMLIN ROOF DAMAGED AS STORM HITS MOSCOW

MOSCOW, Sept. 24—(AP) High winds which swept through Moscow last night, breaking windows and uprooting trees, tore off a part of the Kremlin roof.

Damage was done to buildings which overlook the United States embassy, but it was not heavy. A window was blown out of Spasso house, home of the United States ambassador.

ITALIAN ROYALTY MAY BE IN GENEVA

Berne, Sept. 24 (A. P.).—The Swiss Telegraphic Agency retracted today an earlier announcement that Queen Helena of Italy had arrived in Geneva with the Crown Prince Humbert. The announcement was withdrawn an hour and a half after its issuance.

In its later account the agency said that the Queen and the Crown Prince were probably in Sicily.

[The Berlin radio declared at about the same time the first announcement was made in Berne that Queen Helena and Humbert reached Geneva with Princess Maria Pia and Princess Yolanda, the wife of Count Calvi di Bergolo, the Governor of German-occupied Rome.]

Meanwhile today the Corriere del Ticino of Lugano, Switzerland, published a report that Count Carlo Sforza, former Italian Foreign Minister, would enter the Badoglio Cabinet as the representative of an anti-Fascist organization active abroad for the past twenty years. The newspaper said that he was reported already en route to Palermo, Sicily, which had been designated the provisional seat of King Victor Emmanuel's government.

Count Sforza has lived in London and New York.

On the other hand, it was officially announced today that some 20,000 Italians, both soldiers and civilians, have crossed the border into Switzerland since the Italian capitulation. A special committee has been organized in the Italian-speaking section of Switzerland to aid the refugees.

The whereabouts of King Victor Emmanuel has not been announced, but Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons this week that the King and his government "are now established behind our advancing lines."

The Berlin radio said yesterday that the Axis had rejected suggestions that Humbert become King "after the abdication" of Victor Emmanuel.

Meanwhile today the daughter of Count Sforza denied at her home in New York that the Count would enter the Badoglio Cabinet.

"My father, who is out of town but in this country, telephoned me this morning and instructed me to deny emphatically reports he was en route to Italy," Miss Fiammetta Sforza said, "and he certainly would never take any part in a government with Badoglio."

Miss Sforza said that her father, an anti-Fascist exiled by the Mussolini government, was out of town on business and would return to New York within a few days.

The newspaper said he was reported already enroute to Palermo, Sicily, which, it said, had been designated as the provisional seat of government of King Victor Emanuel III.

20 Belgians Sentenced To Death or Prison

Nazis Warn Italian Officers.

At The Italian Frontier, Sept. 24 (A. P.).—Despite the formation of the new Mussolini government, dispatches from Italy indicated today that the occupied areas remain firmly in the hands of Germany's military commanders. Italian officers were warned in a High Command proclamation that they must decide whether they will fight with the German Army. "All who are not with the Reich are against the Reich," it said.

Internal conditions were reported worsening for the Italians. A frontier dispatch to La Suisse of Geneva said that the threat of famine was growing in northern Italy where food can be purchased only on the black market. Italian youths, hiding in the mountains to escape being transported to Germany for forced labor, were said to be forming partisan bands, but their position was described as desperate because of lack of food.

GENERALS CONFER ON ITALIAN FRONT

Montgomery, Clark Discuss Battle Plans of Two Armies.

WITH THE FIFTH ARMY IN ITALY, Sept. 24.—(AP) Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery conferred today with Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark on what the latter afterward described as future plans and the relationship between the British Eighth and the Fifth armies.

The meeting, held in Gen. Clark's headquarters, lasted more than one hour.

Gen. Montgomery, dressed in his favorite black beret and a grey sweater, appeared smiling and optimistic. He said he was unable to make any predictions of the future, but declared:

"The Eighth army is moving along very well."

Gen. Montgomery said he had wagered a correspondent five shillings ($1) against his spending Christmas at home, and added "Just where we will spend it I don't know."

In Gen. Montgomery's presence, as they stood in a dusty field outside the tent, Gen. Clark said the Fifth army's proud march alongside the Eighth of Montgomery was going to teach the American force a lot of tricks the Britishers learned fighting the Germans.

As the British general entered his automobile to leave, Gen. Clark said:

"Thanks very much for coming over. It's been a big help."

Some indication of the grand strategy of the Allies at the inception of the campaign appeared in Gen. Clark's statement that his Fifth army's landing had greatly facilitated the Eighth army's progress.

Slow but steady gains have been registered in the battle for the mountain passes leading into the plain of Naples. The Allies are digging in and blasting the Germans out of one defile after another and tightening the pressure on the big port.

Doctor Delivers Baby At U. S. Field Hospital

Wounded Italian Mother Was Found by Ambulance Crew

WITH AMERICAN 5TH ARMY IN ITALY, Sept. 23 (delayed) (AP).—Amid the hustle and hurry of a big American field hospital where doughboys were getting treatment for battle wounds, a baby's wail sounded today.

Her name is Teresa Maria Russo, but the American nurses already have nicknamed here "K-Ration Tessie." The reason is that an empty ration box is serving as Tessie's bassinet.

Tessie's mother was brought to the field hospital terribly torn by shrapnel. Caught between the American and German lines, she had lain helpless for several days before an ambulance party found her.

While she was being prepared for an operation for the removal of shrapnel, it was discovered she was about to give birth to a child.

There was a peace-time pediatrician present, Major Charles Better, of Memphis, Tenn. With the assistance of Lieutenants Mary Kilpatrick, of Philadelphia; Dyle Croninweth, of Perrysville, Pa., and Every Anderson the major delivered the baby.

Yanks Find Ex-New Havener Tending Bar on Isle of Capri

By DON WHITEHEAD

CAPRI, Sept. 23 (Delayed) —(AP) When American occupation forces arrived on this sirens' isle across the Bay from Naples they found great banners atop Luigi's bar reading:

"Welcome at last" and "welcome to the liberators."

Luigi Gargulo who used to run a restaurant on Church street in New Haven, Conn., has been operating a bar here since the United States went dry.

All drinks were on the house when the Americans first came to town.

But now that the Americans have discovered Capri, Capri is discovering that Americans are loaded with cash.

Although its glitter has been tarnished by the war, Capri otherwise has hardly been touched. No bombs have fallen here.

Luigi, known on the island as an anti-Fascist, said he had spent "damn near as much of my time in jail as I did in my place of business," for "every time some big Fascists would come to Capri they'd throw me into jail."

His place is the ... gathering place of the Americans and he acts as guide, interpreter and adviser to the visitors.

Referring to his departure from New Haven, Luigi said:

"When the country went dry I just couldn't get on, so I left and returned to Capri."

ROMA TOLL PUT AT 1,400

Survivors of Italian Battleship Say 500 Others Were Burned

MAHON, Balearic Islands, Sept. 23 (Delayed) (AP)—Survivors of the sinking of the Italian battleship Roma said today that 1,400 crewmen were killed and some 500 others were burned seriously when a German plane scored a hit squarely in the vessel's stack.

Italy's newest and largest warship "exploded like a bomb," one sailor said, as she sped southward toward Algiers shortly after the Italian capitulation.

Escorting cruisers and gunboats rescued about 700 of the survivors, some of whom were landed here, and a few others were picked up by launches from the Balearics.

An Italian cruiser and four gunboats are interned here and a German U-boat is reported to be keeping a watch from adjacent waters to prevent any break for freedom.

American Army's victory at Salerno ma ygo down in history as shattering the last glimmer of hope and confidence that Nazi army and party propagandists were able to stir in the German public, neutral travelers from Germany said today.

Nazi propaganda had warped the Salerno battle into a German "victory" mainly for consumption in the Balkans and neutral countries, they said, but the news swept all of Germany. Then, when it became clear that the Allies were far from being hurled into the sea and were, in fact, attacking, German morale hit an all-time low, these travelers said.

They also said that the fact that the Germans are retreating on both the Russian and Mediterranean fronts is beginning to strike home to the Germans despite official communique descriptions of tactical evacuations and closing of breaches.

Spanish correspondents in Berlin have described the German reaction as "resigned," but travelers who were in Berlin this week described the Germans as "listless, despondent and hopeless." Foreign workers have done much to alter German morale by their attitude toward the German press, planting doubt in the minds of millions of Germans as to its accuracy, they said.

German retreats on two fronts, the repeated bombings and the growing doubt of the press had weakened morale even before Salerno, they added.

The battle of Salerno had an immediate and obvious reaction in German war production, with many factories dropping off sharply in the last week, one traveler said.

Others said that a story now current in Berlin is that the official account of Mussolini's spectacular rescue by parachute troopers was pure propaganda, and that he was actually released through bribery. His Italian guards in the Abruzzi Mountains were guaranteed their personal security by Nazi go-betweens, according to this story.

Rising morale in occupied France also is giving Nazi party and Army leaders much trouble, frontier reports said. Desperate measures were reported being taken to halt sabotage and executions have increased. They told of a Paris announcement of the execution of nineteen Frenchmen recently for "acts of terror," and said that German forces guarding the Riviera road and rail bottlenecks into Italy had already shot an estimated thirty persons.

Naval Activity at Gibraltar

MADRID, Sept. 24 (AP).—Unusual naval activity at Gibraltar, in which fifty merchant ships anchored in the bay were joined by two airplane carriers and two large transports, was observed from the neighboring town of La Linea, dispatches said today.

The carriers arrived from the Mediterranean and the two transports, evidently carrying additonal troops to the Mediterranean theater, arrived from the Atlantic.

Allies Sink Two Ships In Albanian Port Raid

Surface Attack at Valona First in Area Since '41

By the Associated Press.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 24.—A force of Allied motor torpedo boats speeded into the Bay of Valona on the Albanian coast directly across from the Italian heel Tuesday night and sank two enemy vessels and hit two others, an Allied communique said today.

The daring motorboat foray to the Albanian shore marked up an Allied move in a new direction against the German forces in Southeastern and Southern Europe.

A naval announcement said the larger of the two vessels sunk was laden with ammunition. Shore batteries opened fire on the torpedo boats during their retirement, causing some damage to one vessel, but all returned to base without casualties, the announcement said.

The opening of the Adriatic to Allied naval forces was pointed up by the foray.

The raid coincided with the campaign of Allied forces in the Middle East who have seized Samos and two islands in the Dodecanese.

Egyptian King Pilots Plane Carrying Royce

Cairo, Sept. 25 (AP)—King Farouk of Egypt personally piloted the plane in which he took Maj. Gen. Ralph Royce and United States Minister Alexander Kirk on a recent sightseeing trip, an American spokesman disclosed today.

Royce, who commands United States Army forces in the Middle East, invited the young King to fly the American craft. The King drove Royce and Kirk to the airport in a jeep recently presented him, and once in the air Royce turned over the controls to him.

Farouk flew to Alexandria, where they viewed the Italian fleet at anchor in the harbor.

Bomb Rhodes Drome.

Cairo, Sept. 24 (AP).—The Middle East Air Command announced today that British Liberators and Halifaxes again had bombed German airdromes at Maritza and Calato on the island of Rhodes Wednesday night.

Fires started at Calato were visible for twenty minutes to the departing airmen, the communique said. Bursts were observed on the runways and in dispersal areas of both airports.

counted for by the defenses of this island only one hundred miles from Greece, it is estimated.

Speedy Italian MAS boats, or speedboats, small caiques, hydroplanes and marine and aviation repair shops of the Italians already are performing useful work for the Allies.

In the British landing it is doubtful if more than half a dozen shots. Much of the story of this island's activity behind enemy lines cannot yet be told. But so far it is evident that almost everywhere the Italians are welcoming British troops, naval forces and aircraft. Silently and without fuss, they are mopping up Germans who are seeking to force them to break faith with the armistice.

REPORT HUNGARIAN CABINET WILL QUIT

Istanbul, Turkey, Sept. 23 (Delayed) (A. P.).—The Rumanian radio told listeners yesterday that the Hungarian Government was about to resign and quoted Swiss dispatches as declaring that the Hungarians were seeking a separate peace.

[A British broadcast, recorded by CBS in New York today, reported that "a Cabinet crisis in Budapest, brought about by the people's wish to follow Italy out of the war, is taking place.

["A new ultimatum from Hitler is expected any moment," the British broadcast said, adding that Hungary's Chief of Staff, Gen. Ferenc Szombathelyi, had returned to Budapest from a two-day visit at Hitler's headquarters. The visit followed Hitler's demand last week for fifteen Hungarian divisions to be sent to Dalmatia and Croatia.]

The Rumanian radio broadcast, which included vigorous comment on the suffering of Rumanians under Hungarian rule in Transylvania, gave the impression that Rumania was trying to convince Germany that Hungary was about to quit the war and that Transylvania consequently should be returned to Rumania.

1,000,000 HUNGRY IN BENGAL FAMINE

New Delhi, Sept. 24 (A. P.).—More than 1,000,000 hungry and destitute persons are being fed one meal daily in Bengal, the Provincial Food Minister estimated today in outlining the gravity of a famine in the most densely populated section of India.

Fifty deaths a day are attributed to starvation in Calcutta alone. However, during the week ending September 11 there were 1292 deaths against a five-year average of 589 for the corresponding week. Calcutta has about 2,500,000 of Bengal's 60,000,000 population.

Not all of Bengal is suffering from famine, but the shortage of rice is so great that all sections are critically affected.

Approximately 150 food kitchens are being operated in Calcutta by private organizations and are feeding 55,000 persons every day, while the Government is operating 2,200 additional kitchens outside the city. An army of the hungry approximating 100,000 is wandering in the city, spending the nights on the streets or in the shelter of doorways and overhanging roofs, and begging by day.

A population long accustomed to eating rice is having a difficult time converting its diet to wheat, which is the main relief grain being shipped into the famine sectors. Bengal formerly received rice from Burma, now under Japanese control.

British And Italians Stand At Attention Together On Isle

Coo, Dodecanese Islands, Sept. 22 (Delayed)—British and Italian soldiers stood at attention together in the picturesque market square of Coo, capital of this Dodecanese island of the same name, tonight at the sound of "last post" from the walls of the fortress while the flag was lowered from Italian headquarters.

This touch of ceremony is typical of the reciprocal courtesies exchanged between the island's Italian garrison and the British occupation forces who have penetrated Hitler's Aegean island chain.

Six enemy air attacks thus far have been repulsed from the island by the combined gunfire of British and Italian batteries. At least half a dozen raiders have been ac-

Higher Moral Standard For Chinese Students

Chungking, Sept. 24 (AP)—Smoking, drinking and dancing were forbidden for Chinese students today in an order of the Ministry of Education warning against "bad deportment and acts in violation of wartime thrift and economy." Permanent waves were proscribed for girl students.

The order enjoining a higher moral standard for students set up disciplinary measures including dismissal. Students from occupied China were told their rice allowance and other privileges would be withdrawn if they offended the order.

AIRDROME CAPTURED

Allied Bombers Pound Enemy Fleeing in Markham Valley.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Saturday, Sept. 25 — (AP) The airdrome at Finschhafen, New Guinea, has been captured by Australian veterans of desert warfare who now are within three-quarters of a mile of investing the Japanese coastal base itself, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today.

The Australians, who overran the third air base to fall into MacArthur's hands since Sept. 11 — the Salamaua airdrome was seized on that date, Lae five days later — now are exchanging fire with the Japanese across the Bumi river just north of Finschhafen.

Met Enemy Fire Coolly

These Aussies landed Wednesday under warship and bomber cover, six miles north of their objective and headquarters disclosed today that they coolly ran into Japanese mortar and machinegun fire. A half hour later they had wiped out the opposition and held a strong beachhead.

Then they moved steadily south and put Finschhafen under artillery fire.

While pressure was being increased on Finschhafen's garrison, Mitchell medium bombers flew low in a sector some 70 miles to the west to hammer the rear door of the Markham valley where enemy remnants may be trying to retreat after the fall of Lae and Salamaua.

Many tons of bombs and 41,000 rounds of ammunition started fires in enemy villages, exploded ammunition dumps and silenced anti-aircraft positions. Much of this damage occurred in the vicinity of Ragitsuma, about 80 miles northwest of Lae.

Planes Meet No Opposition

Encountering no enemy fighter opposition, all the Mitchells returned.

Other air activity was on a greatly reduced scale.

Patrolling Catalinas attacked a Japanese destroyer in the Bismarck sea in the New Britain vicinity Sept. 23 and cargo vessels south of Cape St. George, New Ireland. Results were not given.

On Kimbe bay, midway along the north shore of New Britain toward the enemy stronghold of Rabaul, Beauforts fired supply dumps and exploded ammunition at the Cape Hoskins airdrome.

The tiny island of Gasmata, off New Britain's south coast, was divebombed by P-40's.

Third Base Menaced

Gen. MacArthur's forces on the Huon peninsula now are on the verge of capturing their third New Guinea coastal base this month by using the simple rule of checkers that a king can jump a man from any direction.

Salamaua and Lae fell last week after the Allies jumped over them with paratroopers and around them with amphibious forces and then attacked from the front instead of the rear.

Now Finschhafen, 60 miles above Lae, is within the grasp of Australians who were landed in front of the enemy by American naval units.

Each time the Nipponese have been caught by surprises, just as they were in the Aleutians when Kiska was by-passed and cut off by the capture of Attu and in the Solomons when Kolombangara island was isolated by the occupation of Vella Lavella to the north.

Third Nipponese Airdrome in Two Weeks Is Near.

Allied Headquarters in the Southwest Pacific, Sept. 24 (A. P.).—Australian artillery pounded the Japanese today in the New Guinea coastal base of Finschhafen, arching shells over frontline patrols which have beaten down rapidly fading enemy resistance to reach the edge of an airfield two miles north of their objective.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur thus confronted the Japanese with the threatened loss of their third air base since September 12 in a jungle sector where the enemy already has expended more than 12,000 men.

Today Gen. MacArthur permitted release of the first details of the amphibious operation against Finschhafen, only seventy over-water miles southwest of New Britain, a key position of the Japanese.

Australians began landing on a beach six miles north of Finschhafen at dawn Wednesday, six days after the fall of Lae and ten days after the capture of Salamaua.

Fleet Shells Enemy.

American warships bombarded enemy positions beyond the beachhead. Bombers dropped twenty-one tons of explosives on Finschhafen. Attack planes fired 48,000 rounds of ammunition.

Eighty-five miles northeast, the Japanese air units at Cape Gloucester, New Britain, were prevented from interfering. For four hours there, big American bombers blasted with seventy-three tons of bombs and attack planes poured out 15,000 rounds of bullets.

Not until mid-morning did any Japanese planes appear. Two were shot down from high altitude. At noon, as the ships were withdrawing, between twenty and thirty Japanese bombers arrived with an escort of upward of forty fighters.

Forty Jap Planes Downed.

The warships filled the sky with puffs of anti-aircraft fire. American fighters piled into the enemy formations. Forty Japanese planes were downed for certain. Five more were believed destroyed. Only three Allied planes were lost and the pilot of one was saved.

Not a ship was damaged by the enemy. Not a passenger was injured. Headquarters emphasized that in today's communique.

While Australian soldiers and American paratroopers hunted down 600 Japanese who fled into the jungles above captured Lae, headquarters reported today a preliminary count of more than 6,300 enemy soldiers slain since July 1 in the Lae-Salamaua sector. Six thousand more were estimated previously to have been killed there before July 1.

"Final estimates will be very much greater," the communique stated.

Allied air action reported in the communique included a twenty-three-ton raid on an airdrome on Amboina, 600 miles north of Australia; downing of six enemy fighters in a raid on the Kai Islands; sinking of an enemy cargo ship off Kavieng, New Ireland; destruction of nine barges and setting afire of a cargo ship near Choiseul Island in the Solomons; wiping out of eight grounded planes at the Kahili airdrome, Bougainville, and bagging of two enemy fighters over Buka.

Japanese bombers, at a cost of one plane, made unsuccessful night raids on American positions on New Georgia and Vella La Vella.

Checkerboard Strategy

General MacArthur's forces on the Huon peninsula now are on the verge of capturing their third New Guinea coastal base this month by using the simple rule of checkers that a king can jump a man from any direction.

Salamaua and Lae fell after the Allies jumped over them with paratroopers and around them with amphibious forces and then attacked from the front instead of the rear.

While the troops were going ashore near Finschhafen Allied bombers dropped twenty-one tons explosives on the town, fighter s fired 48,000 rounds of am- ion and United States warships shelled the Japanese beyond the beachhead.

Other American bombers prevented the enemy air force at Cape Gloucester, eighty-five miles northeast on New Britain, from helping the Finschhafen defenders. The New Britain base was kept busy with a four-hour air attack during which seventy-three tons of bombs were dropped.

The Japanese lost at least forty and possibly five more planes in this engagement.

Choice of Base in Pacific To Determine War Course

SEP 26 1943

MacArthur's Statement Stirs Discussion of Strategy Against Japs.

By C. YATES McDANIEL

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Saturday, Sept. 25—(AP) The vital issue brought into the open by Gen. Douglas MacArthur's statement implying that his role in the war might be curtailed, is not who is to direct the major assault on Japan, but from what base or basic area such an offensive is to be mounted.

Expected official reaction has not been forthcoming from Washington, London or Canberra, but a London announcement did set a dividing line between the commands of General MacArthur and Lord Louis Mountbatten in southeast Asia.

MacArthur Silent on Statement

Gen. MacArthur, immersed in prosecuting the war from forward headquarters and consolidating Allied strategic gains in New Guinea, has made no further reference to his statement of Wednesday nor the reasons behind its issuance.

When Gen. MacArthur said he was willing to accept a subordinate role, discussion immediately arose as to whether the major attack against Japan would be made by Lord Mountbatten's forces in India or those under the southwest Pacific command.

Gen. MacArthur said he favored "massive strokes against only main strategic objectives" instead of "island hopping, with extravagant losses and slow progress."

Thus he brought into the open the question that still is up in the air — what direction will Allied strategy follow in order to achieve the maximum damage to the enemy at the lowest cost in men and material?

Four Base Areas Available

There are four available base areas from which the Allies could pivot striking forces against Japan's far-flung empire. These are Alaska-Aleutians; Hawaii-Midway; Australia-New Guinea - Solomons; and India-Ceylon.

The Aleutians are somewhat more distant from the centers of American production and supply than Hawaii, but Kiska and even Dutch Harbor, are much nearer than other bases to the heart of Japan proper. Aleutian - based bombers have already demonstrated that they are within the range of Japanese-held Kurile islands but the difficulties of rough and foggy weather there have not been overcome.

It would be a daring commander indeed who would venture to lead an invasion fleet across 2,250 statute miles of open seas, from Midway to the main island of Japan. Over two-thirds of the distance the invasion fleet would not only be dependent upon carriers for airplane cover but would be within range of enemy planes based on islands.

The Australian and Indian base areas are both distant from Japan proper and approximately equidistant from the enemy's newly won sources of vital war materials. Both areas are approximately the same distance from British and American sources of supply.

India, as a base for large scale operations, has an apparent advantage over Australia in that it offers a land bridgehead into Japanese-held east Asia and that it possesses a vast reservoir of native fighting and labor power.

India's land connection with Burma threatened to prove a weakness last year but now the British have made India reasonably secure from invasion. India still represents definite weaknesses. Chief of these is its native population of subject peoples among whom discontent is prevented from open eruption by stern repressive measures.

India Has Food Shortage

Adding to this discontent, and weakening India's potential usefulness as an operating base, is the country's chronic lack of food sufficient even for the native populace.

Even if these weaknesses could be overcome — as they no doubt would be if major attention were focused there—the chances of success of such an undertaking should be weighed against basic geographical and military facts which still are discernable through the mental fog generated by the very sincerity and urgency of our desire to give effective succor to long-suffering China.

All leaders seem to agree that we must, to achieve a decisive, smashing victory over the Japanese military machine, make the fullest use of China's bases, her manpower and above all her unbreakable will to fight to victory.

Heroic exertions might succeed in pushing the Allied armies across northern Burma to the Chinese border. That would mean the reopening of the Burma road. Those of us who worked in Burma and China during the bitter pre-Pearl Harbor years know that the Burma road, far from being an end in itself, was the last and least efficient supply route resorted to by the Chinese in the hope of maintaining minimum resistance after the lifelines from Hongkong, Tonkin gulf and northern Indo-China had been successively cut by the Japanese.

Allied engineers could increase its carrying capacity many times but it would have to carry a volume that would pale its pre-war traffic into insignificance.

Lord Mountbatten is unlikely to disclose the method or objectives of promised operations by the east Asia command.

Ceylon Is Allied Base

Existing and well established bases at Ceylon, only a thousand miles from the tip of Sumatra and a little further from the narrow waist of the Malayan peninsula, however, would suggest the possibility of at least a strong feint toward the northwestern end of Sumatra and a stronger thrust designed to cut Japanese communications between Siam and Singapore.

Such a daring move would strike at the heart of the enemy's military and economic hold in southeast Asia but it likely would prove costly. Even if successful it would still leave the Allies with the necessity of undertaking equally ambitious overland and amphibious campaigns to become firmly established in the Hongkong area.

Now that the dark days of threatened invasion are past, laymen and officials of Australia are seeing their country, not as a defensive battleground, but as a base from which the Allies could commence the formidable task of rolling back the Japanese tide.

There is much to support this conception of Australia's role. The commonwealth's population is a mere fraction of India's but Australia's 7,000,000 people are almost wholly British or of long absorbed European stock among whom no fifth column or dissident movement has or is likely to make headway.

Australians Mobilized

This population, though unable to provide a combat army large enough to launch a major offensive, is probably as thoroughly mobilized for war effort as any member of the British commonwealth or the United States.

Unlike India, Australia can feed a much larger civilian and military population than she now supports. Furthermore her admitted weakness in heavy industry and lack of certain essential war materials can be overcome by shipments from abroad over air and sea routes which so far have been subject to little worse than harrassment.

From a strictly military viewpoint is should not be forgotten that American and Australian divisions already in the southwest Pacific form the core of a reconquest army.

Veterans of Pacific Battles

The southwest Pacific command moreover is comprised of a team of land, air and amphibious experts who aggregate more practical experience with our enemy in the Pacific than probably all other commands together could muster.

Some critics have written off the achievements in the Solomons and New Guinea as "island hopping." Strictly speaking some of these thrusts—all of which have been successful—were island hopping.

But, as Prime Minister Churchill said of a similar island hopping venture—the invasion of Sicily—the Guadalcanal, New Georgia and New Guinea moves were essential preliminaries to the main assault.

Gen. MacArthur has not considered any of his advances to date as anything but preparatory. Even the reconquest of New Britain and the web of bases hinged on Rabaul would be a preliminary move designed to remove the strong but reduceable Rabaul fortress which now prevents any deep penetration of the Japanese empire from the east.

Might Move on Philippines

The strategy of Gen. MacArthur envisions one or a series of massive strokes, which instead of involving the costly capture of island after island, would carry a powerful Allied force over and around numerous islands as far as the southern Philippines.

Reoccupation of Mindanao might prove costly but probably no more than a seaborne invasion of southern Burma or Malaya and possibly far less costly than a series of Gudalcanal campaigns.

Occupation and maintenance of a hold on Mindanao or another of the larger Philippine islands would require a tremendous Allied effort.

Naval raids, on a larger scale than attempted so far, against Truk, Saipan and other of the enemy's flanking bases would greatly facilitate Allied development of the southern Philippines as a base whence not only could the enemy's supply lines between the Indies, Malaya and Japan be effectively dealth with, but also strong pressure could be exerted against Japan's strategically vital bases around the South China sea.

Such a strategy if matched by formidable exertions from India and Ceylon against the west coast of the south Asian mainland could result not only in complete isolation of Japan from its sources of raw materials but also enable the Allies to gain a foothold along the seaboard of China.

Such an achievement wouldn't cause the collapse of Japan overnight but would be the most decisive stride in that direction yet undertaken.

Halsey and Lodge Visit Advanced Solomons Bases

By the Associated Press.

UNITED STATES HEADQUARTERS IN SOUTH PACIFIC, Sept. 24.—Admiral William F. Halsey, jr., has returned to his South Pacific headquarters, it was announced today, after a hazardous inspection trip to the most advanced combat areas in the Solomon Islands, including New Georgia, Vella Lavella and newly captured Arundel.

Accompanying him were members of his staff and United States Senator Lodge, Republican, of Massachusetts.

"Two days after his visit to Arundel," a headquarters statement said, "organized resistance by Japanese forces to Army troops on that small island ceased on the afternoon of September 21.

"Admiral Halsey and his official party underwent aerial bombing by enemy planes at both Guadalcanal and Munda."

Most of Admiral Halsey's journey was made by air although trips to Arundel and Vella Lavella were by surface craft.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Sept. 24 (AP)—The Silver Star has been awarded by Lieut. Gen. George C. Kenney, commander of Allied Air Forces in the Southwest Pacific, to First Lieut. NEW YORK FLYER DOWNS TWO JAPS

Guadalcanal, Sept. 21 (Delayed) (A. P.).—A southern coast artillery unit teamed up with American flyers early today to down two Japanese twin-engined bombers and drive others away during an enemy air raid that had an appreciative ground audience.

The artillery unit, made up mostly of Georgia soldiers, caught the bombers in their searchlights, and Second-Lieut. Henry Meigs, 22 years old, of 1165 Fifth avenue, New York city, shot them down from his P-38 fighter plane.

Soldiers, sailors and Marines watched the aerial duel, and cheered as the enemy planes came down in flames. Two other eyewitnesses were Admiral William F. Halsey Jr., commander of United States South Pacific Forces, and Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, visiting the island at the time.

The tail of Meigs's plane was hit and a fifteen-inch square torn out early in the fight, but he said:

"I never had a better time in my life."

The young pilot, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Jobson, won promotion to first lieutenant and was awarded the Army's Silver Star shortly after his aerial victory.

Lieut. Meigs, a former insurance underwriter, received praise from all hands. One radio message from the nearby Russell Islands, where the flaming enemy bombers were seen, said: "Congratulations. Damn nice night's work."

Lieut. Meigs has been interested in aviation since he was a boy, according to his mother, Mrs. Alfred Jobson. She said that, after being graduated from the Staten Island Academy and the Northwood School at Lake Placid, he decided not to go to college because he did not consider himself a good student.

"He worked for the United States Aviation Underwriters here as an office boy for a while," Mrs. Jobson said, "then decided he wanted to be a flyer and studied hard for it. He found out he was a student after all."

Mrs. Jobson said that her son

became interested in aviation partly because of his uncle, Paul D. Meyers, a lieutenant-colonel in the Air Corps and a veteran of the first world war. Col. Meyers used to take him up for plane rides.

Lieut. Meigs joined the Air Corps in January of last year and was sent overseas last March. His mother said that he shot down his first Japanese bomber on August 15.

Jap Forces Evacuate Another Key Island In Solomons Area

U. S. Troops Gain Posts Only 1,200 Yards South Of Kolombangara

By the Associated Press.

WITH U. S. GROUND FORCES ON SAGE KARASA ISLAND, Solomons, Sept. 20 (Delayed).—The Japanese gave up another important strategic spot today, their infantry fleeing in the early morning darkness from this tiny island during a heavy artillery exchange.

The capture of the island, which the Japanese once apparently intended to defend to the last man, gives to the American forces positions only 1,200 yards south of Kolombangara across Blackett Strait. The Japanese have an air base and a garrison, ringed with guns, at Vila on Kolombangara.

The Japanese flight occurred while American mortars pounded their positions. Barges from Kolombangara evacuated them, but not every Japanese boat got back.

One Japanese boat blundered on to a portion of Sage Karasa beach held by United States forces.

(A communique yesterday from headquarters of Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced that remnants of Japanese on the north shore of Arundel Island, west of New Georgia, and on Sage Karasa Island, 200 yards off Arundel, had been wiped out.)

Uruguay To Export Meat To All United Nations

Montevideo, Sept. 24 (AP)—Minister of Agriculture Arturo Gonzalez Vidart today announced that under an Anglo-Uruguayan meat contract now nearing signature in London, Uruguay will export all its available meat supply there until October, 1944, with an increase in prices over the previous contract of 3.33 per cent.

Britain is acting as the representative of all the United Nations, Vidart said.

The minister said that under the fourth wartime contract ended last October 31, Uruguay had exported 32,500 tons of frozen beef and 4,500 tons of frozen mutton, but under additional quotas through last December, the exports had been increased by 3,500 tons of frozen beef and 2,500 tons of frozen mutton. Added additional quotas exported last year were 12,000 tons of corned beef and 5,000 tons of army rations, he said.

Canadian to Appeal Death Penalty for Killing 27 Years Ago

By the Associated Press.

MONTREAL, Sept. 24.—After the most unusual murder trial in the history of Canadian courts, counsel for Luigi Stabile moved today to appeal his conviction of killing his brother-in-law, Carmeno Festa, 27 years ago.

Stabile—father of 12 children—was sentenced to death by Justice Wilfrid Lazure yesterday shortly after a 12-man jury reached a verdict in the strange case dating back to Festa's mysterious disappearance at St. Hubert in 1916.

Damase Cote, Stabile's counsel, immediately announced he would apply for an appeal today. The appeal probably will not be dealt with for several weeks.

Skeleton Found in Cellar.

The cause of Festa's death was never established. No motive was introduced at the trial. All evidence was circumstantial.

Stabile, who lives at Ville las Salte, told the court during the trial that he had "nothing to say." He bowed to the judge after the latter sentenced him to be hanged January 14 and said a quiet "Thank you."

A police investigation started July 21 when a skeleton and clothing found by workers installing an artesian well in the cellar of a farmhouse formerly occupied by Stabile at St. Hubert, were identified as those of Festa.

Festa's children, Joseph and Frank, now grown, testified they arrived in Canada from their native Italy with their mother in 1916. They went to live on the Stabile farm at St. Hubert, where their father already was working.

Urged Widow to Remarry.

One day Festa disappeared. Witnesses related that Stabile took no part in the search and a few days later moved the Festa family to Montreal.

Crown Prosecutor Claude Prevost, K. C. told the jury that Stabile must have known of Festa's death. He quoted a statement purportedly made by the accused to the victim's widow: "You may as well forget about your husband; if you have a chance to remarry you should take advantage of it." These words, the prosecutor declared, were incriminating in that Stabile would not have spoken them had he reason to believe his brother-in-law was still alive.

Furthermore, he said, Stabile had taken the only photograph of Festa on the pretense of instigating a police investigation. Records showed, police said, that no such report had been made.

Mrs. Stabile was in a state of near-collapse yesterday and had to leave the courtroom before her husband was sentenced.

Ottawa, Sept. 24 (AP)—Labor Minister Humphrey Mitchell late today announced a change in procedure for dealing with citizens of the United States under mobilization regulations in Canada, whereby an American citizen after three months' residence in the Dominion will be required to report for service either with the Canadian or American armed forces if he is in a category liable to compulsory military service in Canada.

The statement said this action was taken on order of the Labor Minister, who was authorized by the Governor-in-Council to fix the time during which an American citizen may live in Canada without becoming subject to compulsory military service.

Previously, Mr. Mitchell said, the rule had brought an American under Canadian regulations only after he had lived in Canada twelve months.

REELECTED BY WORKERS

Canada's War Loan To Have Two Maturities

Ottawa, Sept. 24 (A. P.).—Finance Minister J. L. Ilsley announced today that Canada's Fifth Victory Loan, opening on October 18 with a minimum objective of $1,200,000,000, will be in two maturities—a 15-year-and-two-months issue and a three-year-and-six-months issue.

De Gaulle Accuses Giraud of Engineering Coup in Corsica Uprising.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24 — (AP) Don Hollenbeck, NBC correspondent in Algiers, tonight quoted "reliable sources" as saying that a dispute had flared between Generals Giraud and deGaulle over the Corsican campaign and that Gen. deGaulle cried "You stole my Corsica!" and tried to have Gen Giraud ousted as French commander-in-chief.

Hollenbeck said Gen. deGaulle was said to have been "particularly incensed at what he feels is Gen. Giraud's unfair attitude toward the Italians on Corsica."

Slighted Italians

The correspondent quoted "reliable informants" as saying that "Giraud is accused of slighting the real contribution made by the Italians towards the success of the present drive against the German forces, and has given them credit only as labor troops."

Hollenbeck reported that information indicated that the Corsican campaign began entirely as a "home grown affair, staged by Corsican patriots who had no particular interest in either general .... The moment the uprising became known in Algiers, Gen Giraud rushed a battalion of soldiers to the island, and was immediately accused by Gen deGaulle of trying to engineer a coup."

The correspondent quoted informants as saying the disagreement came to a head during a stormy meeting of the French Committee of National Liberation.

Surrendered Arms

The NBC correspondent said that according to impartial Frenchmen, the Italians on Corsica were the really decisive factor in the uprising's success. He added that those of the garrison of 40,000 Italians who did not fight actively turned their equipment over to patriots who did, and that the Nazis promptly recognized the uselessness of attempting to defend the island and began to withdraw at once behind rearguards.

Hollenbeck said that the reappearance of the "old row" between the two generals meant that hoped-for unity in the committee "has taken a bad kick in its first real test in Corsica."

"Personalities still seem bigger than France to the men who are trying to win France back," Hollenbeck said.

What's Behind The War News

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
(Associated Press War Analyst)

The Nazi flight to the Dnieper before the amazing Russian summer offensive is an accomplished fact along most of the 800-mile front from Orsha to the sea—and even that defense line is creaking at critical points.

South of beseiged Kiev, Red army guns are already lobbing shells across the wide stream less than 50 miles from Bel Tserkov, the gateway between the Dnieper and the Bug through which the Nazi hordes poured in August, 1941, to overrun the great Dnieper plateau. Through the town runs the main railway south of the Dnieper to the Dnepropetrovsk crossing and the Rostov corner on the Don. It is the main supply and escape route for all German forces in the Dnieper elbow or south of it and in the Crimea.

A Russian lunge across the Dnieper to Bel Tserkov would threaten the whole southern wing of the Nazi army with entrapment. It is a fair conclusion that Nazi evacuation of the Crimean peninsula and of the whole Dnieper plateau is already in progress to escape a supreme military disaster.

Northward up the Dnieper, where both the Smolensk bastion and the Vitebsk gateway fortress are tottering under mighty Russian blows, the Nazi situation is no less critical. The Red army surge is promising to unhinge the whole enemy front west of Leningrad to the Baltic and force German evacuation of all northwestern Russia.

But it is the peril to the middle Dnieper line in the Bel Tserkov region that deserves greater attention because of the effect a fresh Nazi disaster there might have on the situation in the Balkans and upon the European war as a whole. It can hardly be questioned that Russian success in breaching the Dnieper line at that point, compelling a Nazi desperation flight from the Dnieper plateau, would touch-off smouldering anti-Nazi fires in Rumania and Bulgaria. It could leave Rumanians in no doubt that Russian armies soon would again be standing on the Dniester and surging into Bessarabia.

The only Nazi hope of a slow paced withdrawal from the half encircled Dnieper plateau lies in the fall rains. By Moscow account it took Herculean labors to get men and guns through the clogging mud above the Dnieper for the capture of Poltava and the march on the vital Kremenchug crossing below it. It will be weeks before winter cold hardens the ground in the south to offer good traction for war machines.

The Russians have overcome the most formidable obstacle in reaching the left bank of the Dnieper, however. That is the low bank. It is fringed by marshlands. On the Nazi-held high right bank conditions for maneuver are better but the river line itself is a formidable position to take.

Time is of the essence for the Russians if they are to spring the Bel Tserkov trap on the foe but the probabilities are that they are not yet in a position to force the Dnieper front at any critical point. That may give the enemy time to fall back in reasonably good order from the Crimea and the Dnieper plateau.

With that clearly foreshadowed further German retreat in South Russia, nevertheless, the Balkan pot is more than apt to boil over as did that in Italy, and it will be the Nazi who gets burns when it does.

43 COUNTRIES GET RELIEF BID

Conference on Plan Set for Early November.

Washington, Sept. 24 (A. P.).—The burden of foreign relief operations, now devolving mainly on the United States, would be apportioned among all the United Nations under a projected agreement announced today by the State Department.

Representatives of forty-three allied and associated nations and the French National Liberation Committee have been invited to come to the White House early in November and sign the document, which sets up what is to be known as the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration.

Publication of the text of the agreement made it clear that Congress will have complete control over United States contributions.

Since thorough discussions have been held with the nations concerned, and approval already has been obtained from Britain, Russia and China, it is expected that the agreement will be adopted without further change.

Lehman May Be Director.

Consultations also have taken place between the State Department and congressional foreign affairs committees, and Secretary Hull said that when the United Nations have signed the agreement a joint resolution will be put before Congress to authorize presidential expenditure of whatever money it may later appropriate.

Complete reorganization of the Office of Foreign Relief and Rehabilitation Operations was foreseen in connection with the setting up of a permanent council.

It has been reported that Herbert H. Lehman will be chosen director-general of the Council. Most of the present functions of the agency he heads would be taken over by the Allied group.

The agreement provides for a central committee composed of the United States, British, Russian and Chinese delegates and a council representing all member nations. Commented Secretary Hull:

"I believe this unanimous desire to work together in meeting the urgent human needs of the victims of war augers well for the future of international cooperation in other fields."

The Role of Congress.

UNRARA as a whole would decide what was required to provide relief in distressed areas, after which each participating nation would signify what proportion of such assistance it was able to contribute to the pool.

In the case of the United States, Congress would have the say-so on the American proportion through control of appropriations for the work. Similar control would rest with the corresponding body in each of the United Nations.

ADMIRAL STANDLEY ARRIVES IN CAPITAL

1943

U.S. Envoy Home from Moscow, May Not Return to Embassy.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—(AP) Ambassador William H. Standley arrived by plane today from his post in Moscow amid persistent reports that he will not return to the Soviet capital which is soon to be the scene of important Anglo-American-Soviet conferences.

Admiral Standley came home for consultation, the State department said, "in connection with discussions which are being carried on with the British and Soviet governments."

For some months there have been reports, however, that the ambassador, who is 70 years old, did not want to spend another winter in Russia and that he would resign for personal reasons. W. Averell Harriman, Lend-Lease representative in London, is expected to succeed him.

Admiral Standley did not immediately call at the State department on his arrival, but has an appointment to report tomorrow to Secretary of State Hull. Presumably he will report on the situation American and British diplomats will face when they go to Moscow to confer with Foreign Commissar Molotov on war and post-war objectives.

Prime Minister Churchill said the conference would be held soon to seek an agreement among the three powers, with any lingering points of difference to be left for a contemplated meeting of President Roosevelt, Mr. Churchill and Premier Stalin.

With Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden designated to represent Britain, there was talk tonight that Secretary Hull might head the American delegation to the preliminary meeting. His participation in the conference has been in doubt, but friends say he wants to go, if possible.

At least two State department experts on European affairs are expected to accompany the American representative. These probably will be Harrison Freedman Matthews, chief of the European division, and Charles E. Bohlen, who has served in the Moscow embassy.

POST-WAR PLAN DELAY SOUGHT

Connally Feels Foreign Policy Debate Should Await Allies' Views

SEP 25 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 24—With the backing of Senator Connally (D., Texas), chairman, a strong move developed within the Senate Foreign Relations Committee today to delay action on pending declarations of post-war foreign policy until the views of America's chief Allies have been sounded out.

Without mentioning either the forthcoming tripartite meeting of Allied foreign ministers or the possibility that President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin may get together before the end of the year, Connally declared the committee has no desire at this time to "afford an opportunity for intemperate and trouble-making debate on the floor of the Senate."

"Ill-considered debate," he said in a statement, "might produce irritations or vexations at a critical period in the prosecution of the war."

Senator George Feels Likewise

"It is known to all well-informed men that the utmost freedom of debate is permitted under the Senate rules," Connally said. "It is further known that Senators do not hesitate to avail themselves of that unlimited freedom."

Connally's view that the committee ought to proceed cautiously, despite the overwhelming approval given by the House to the Fulbright resolution, was shared by Senator George (D., Ga.), who preceded Connally in the chairmanship.

In addition, Senator Thomas (D., Utah), a stanch Administration supporter, said that if the committee is to draw a more detailed statement of foreign policy than that expressed in the Fulbright proposal, it ought to await developments at the Moscow conference of foreign ministers.

Would Put Congress On Record

The Fulbright resolution would put Congress on record as favoring American participation, by constitutional processes, in "appropriate international machinery" to preserve the peace. It has been marked for a pigeonhole in the Senate committee, which expects to bring out its own version.

Connally's reluctance to act at this time found support in the stand of Senator Nye (R., Ind.), who told reporters he did not believe any statement of American intentions ought to be made until after Britain and Russia have made their post-war aims clearer. Senator La Follette (Prog., Wis.) also has argued against consideration of any declaration now.

On the other side, Senator Gillette (D., Iowa) has said that he believes it extremely important for Congress to act, so that the view of the Senate might be known before the Moscow meeting.

Ball Favors Action

Senator Ball (R., Minn.), one of the authors of a pending resolution to pledge this country's participation in international machinery to maintain the peace by force, if necessary, said he and others of like views would fight to bring the issue before the Senate promptly.

"How can our representatives say to Stalin 'we are in favor of collective security to maintain future peace' if the Senate has not acted?" Ball demanded. "He will say to them 'what about the Senate?'"

"What we need," he continued, "is a clear declaration of American foreign policy that will help the Moscow conference accomplish some results."

Independence For Philippines At Once Urged

SEP 25 1943

Administration Backs Drive in Congress to Recognize Island Self-Rule Now

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 (AP).—A Roosevelt administration-backed move was launched in Congress today to give the Japanese-occupied Philippines immediate independence from the United States.

Senator Millard E. Tydings, Democrat, of Maryland, and Representative C. Jasper Bell, Democrat, of Missouri, introduced identical resolutions for recognition of the islands as a self-governing nation. Senator Tydings told the Senate he had conferred with President Roosevelt, Cordell Hull, Secretary of State: and Manuel Quezon, President of the Philippine Commonwealth government-in-exile, and that all agreed immediate independence would be 'salutary."

He said the Japanese intend to offer "independence" to the island through a puppet government and observed: "I don't think many Filipinos will be deluded by that plan."

Mr. Quezon called resolution "the best, wisest and noblest measure that the Congress of the United States can pass at this time regarding the Philippines."

"It is the reaffirmation of America's policy which won the eternal gratitude of the Filipino people and because of which they fought and are still fighting against Japan," he said. "Filipinos will recognize this step as the logical recognition of their war record in the struggle against Japan."

The Tydings resolution would authorize the President to open negotiations with the President of the Commonwealth for proclaiming Philippine independence within thirty days after Congress adopts the resolution. The independence act of 1934 calls for the islands to become independent July 4, 1946.

President Roosevelt, in a broadcast to the islands last month, told the Filipinos they would receive independence "the moment the power of our Japanese enemies is destroyed."

"When the Filipino people resisted the Japanese invaders with their very lives," Mr. Roosevelt said, "they gave final proof that here was a nation fit to be respected as the equal of any other on earth, not in size or wealth, but in the stout heart and national dignity which are the true measures of a people."

ROLE OF MARSHALL DECLARED DECIDED

Protests Won't Bar His New Assignment, Says Army And Navy Register

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 24—The Army and Navy Register says protests from Congress and other quarters will have no effect on the assignment of Gen. George C. Marshall as commander of the Anglo-American forces in the field.

In an editorial for its issue appearing tomorrow, the authoritative but unofficial weekly service paper declares that Marshall's role already has been decided. Details have not been communicated to Congress, it adds, and many of them probably will become known only as they are disclosed by the development of military offensives.

"Greatest Compliment"

Terming the assignment, which was disclosed Tuesday by Kirke L. Simpson, of the Associated Press, "the greatest compliment that could be bestowed upon any soldier, up to this time, in any period of war," the Register adds that it shows President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill are in full agreement that Marshall is the best-qualified officer available to put into effect the grand strategy developed during conferences at Casablanca, Quebec and Washington.

Journal's Viewpoint

Last week the Army and Navy Journal, likewise an unofficial but authoritative publication, said "powerful interests," whom it did not identify, would like to eliminate Marshall from the Washington scene. At that time speculation centered mainly on an assignment for Marshall to direct a European invasion from England, and the Journal said this would actually be a reduction in the general's authority.

The Register's editorial says "the exact nature of the role he is about to assume remains to be divulged." It continues:

"If it is command of all American and British forces, both military and naval, in the world, he will have under him the most stupendous array of forces ever engaged in warfare at one time, numbering in men from 18,000,000 to 20,000,000 on the ground, in the air and on the sea, of all categories.

Job A Staggering One

"It is a job of such responsibilities as to stagger almost anyone, but not General Marshall."

It is possible, the editorial suggests, that Marshall's new command instead of being global in scope might consist of all Allied forces except Russians employed directly against Germany, but it adds:

"In some military circles there is the opinion that restriction of his jurisdiction to the European command would not be a promotion from his place as chief of staff of our army, but only removal from Washington, where it is said that some concerned with strategy do not want him.

Differences Over Strategy

"General Marshall and Mr. Churchill and his staffs are known to have had some differences over strategy, nevertheless the decision to place him in charge of forthcoming offensives in accordance with the strategical program indicates that the British are satisfied with his views.

"General Marshall himself is the least concerned over the squabble in which he is the central figure. His one purpose is to do what he can to win the war. What he has done already toward that end is tremendous. What he does from now on in whatever position he is put, undoubtedly will add to his achievements."

Might Retain Title

The Register notes that Marshall might retain his title of chief of staff, with the deputy chief, Lieut. Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, becoming acting chief of staff during his absence, but asserts "that is not considered to be either desirable or workable."

"Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower appears, at this time, to be the most likely successor to General Marshall as army chief of staff," the editorial concludes, "but it is understood that Harry Hopkins (Presidential adviser) prefers Lieut. Gen. Brehon B. Somervell, now commander of the army service forces.

"Lieut. Gen. Lesley J. McNair, commander of the army ground forces, also has been mentioned as thoroughly qualified for the head place in our army, as has also Lieut. Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, deputy chief of staff."

ber rate of construction would be sufficient to meet goals set for 1943 and 1944. This year's program calls for about 19,000,000 dead weight tons, with about 1,000,000 more tons next year.

Holden Heads Post-War Aid To Scandinavia

The committee will develop plans and programs dealing with post-war supply and other problems.

Barry Urges a Pacific Charter

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 (AP).—A Pacific Charter on the principles of the Atlantic Charter is proposed by Representative William B. Barry, Democrat, of New York, in a resolution. A six-man committee would be directed to "study and determine upon the principles and policies which should be observed in order to assure to the peoples of the Pacific area the greatest possible measure of peace, freedom and security in the future and at the earliest practicable date, recommend to Congress . . . a Pacific Charter embodying and enunciating such principles and policies, using the Atlantic Charter as a model so far as is practicable."

LAND WOULD LIMIT AXIS TRADE FLEETS

Washington, Sept. 24 (A. P.).—Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, chairman of the Maritime Commission, said today he favors limiting the size of the post-war merchant fleets of the Axis powers. If he had his way, he told a press conference, "they would be left with very little." But he emphasized that he was expressing only his own views and that the fate of the Axis merchant fleets would be decided over an international conference table.

By the end of 1944, he said, American shipyards will have delivered approximately 50,000,000 deadweight tons of merchant shipping since the start of the commission's construction program in 1938. He said the program has reached the "leveling off" stage and that the Septem-

U. S. to Move Henry-Haye

Vichy Envoy Will Be Taken to Hotel at Warm Springs, Va.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 (AP).—The State Department announced today that former French Ambassador Gaston Henry-Haye and French official personnel now interned at the Hershey Hotel, Hershey, Pa., will be transferred soon to the Three Hills Hotel at Warm Springs, Va.

The department did not disclose how many Vichy French officials are still interned in the United States, but said that several had been released since the rupture of diplomatic relations last November and that "many" of these "have offered their services in the military effort of the United Nations against the enemy."

American officials interned by the Vichy government in France last November and later taken to Germany are still held there. The State Department "has been and is still endeavoring" to obtain their release, the announcement said.

Washington, Sept. 24 (AP)—Italian officials captured in North Africa who have been maintained under guard near Staunton, Va., will soon be transferred to Hotel Shenvalee at New Market, Va., the State Department announced today.

At Staunton, the Italians were kept with German officials who were captured at the same time. As a result of the transfer the two groups will be separated.

Sees U. S. 'Pacific Policeman'

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 (AP).—Representative Warren G. Magnuson, Democrat, of Washington, chairman of a special House naval subcommittee, called today for permanent acquisition of sea and air island bases now in order to make the United States Navy an effective post-war "policeman of the Pacific." "We're not building the largest navy in the world just to sink it after the war," he declared in an interview. "And we're not building it to keep it chained to the shores of this country to rust away after victory is won."

Labor Urges Aid to Jews

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 (AP).—American labor leaders urged the government tonight to "bring immediate aid and succor to the Jews of the Nazi-occupied countries." A letter asking the government to warn Germans that those responsible for "acts of savagery against the Jews and other peoples" will be treated as war criminals was presented to Cordell Hull, Secretary of State. It was signed by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor; Phillip Murray, president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations; David Dubinsky, head of the International Ladies' Garment Workers, and Adolph Held, of the Jewish labor committee.

LEND-LEASE SENDS MORE FOOD ABROAD

Washington, Sept. 24 (A. P.).—Lend-lease exports of food this year will take a somewhat higher proportion of the country's total production than the 6 per cent shipped abroad in 1942, Edward R. Stettinius Jr., lend-lease administrator reported today.

But he added that the 1943 exports still would be a relatively small proportion of the American supply, although records for the first seven months showed that 38 per cent of the dry skimmed milk and 33.3 per cent of the canned fish had gone overseas. These were by far the largest percentages for any foods.

The principal meat being shipped under lend-lease is pork, exports of which were 13.5 per cent of the supply from January through July, compared with 11.3 per cent in 1942.

Much less cheese is being exported, however. Overseas shipments totaled 23.1 per cent of the supply last year, but so far this year they have been only 9.3 per cent.

FEDERAL WORKERS FACE DRAFT CALL UNDER NEW BILL

Bailey Seeks to Force Non-Fathers Into Armed Forces.

WOULD END DEFERMENTS

Defeat of Wheeler Measure Looms in Senate Vote Tuesday.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24—(AP) Senator Bailey (D-N.C.) is drafting a bill aimed at stripping the Federal payroll of able-bodied non-fathers of draft age and steering them into the armed forces.

The veteran North Carolina legislator said tonight that his proposal would be offered next week as a substitute for the Wheeler bill to postpone induction of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers until Jan. 1.

Vote Scheduled Tuesday

This bill, by Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.), has been scheduled for a vote Tuesday. Administration leaders are confident of sufficient votes to send it back to the Military committee.

While details of his substitute are yet to be worked out, Senator Bailey said it would forbid deferments on occupational grounds of bachelors and married men without children in the government, and cancel deferments now in effect except in cases where superior officers can offer "proof of indispensability."

"Provisions also will be included to force the transfer to combat service of uniformed men down at the War department capable of bearing arms and whose services in their present desk jobs are not absolutely indispensable," Senator Bailey declared.

Opposes Wheeler Bill

He opposes the Wheeler bill as "class legislation" and said that if fathers are needed "they must be taken," but that "single men in the service first in the line of battle" is his objective.

Earlier, Chairman May (D-Ky.) of the House Military committee disclosed the abandonment of efforts in the House to forbid the drafting of fathers. He came out instead for a plan to cushion the impact on family life by driving what he called "an army" of Federal employes into the service.

Rep. May disclosed that Draft Director Lewis B. Hershey would be called next week to explain why non-fathers of draft age (18-38) are still on the government payroll when their departments have not requested their deferment. A subcommittee has deported there are som 300,000 such men.

Senator Bailey said he does not know how many draft-age non-fathers have been deferred on the request of superiors, but that he hopes to drive "most of that group into the service, too."

"My proposition is to make the jobs of those non-fathers available to fathers," he said.

Chairman Costello (D-Calif.) of the House sub-committee which reported the 300,000 figure said that with allowance for physical defects and the like "at least half of them, it seems, could be put into uniform, and that would mean 150,000 pre-war fathers would not have to be drafted now."

were announced at the White House at a press conference held by James F. Byrnes, war mobilization director.

Mr. Byrnes issued a statement by the President saying that the chiefs of staff had created a joint production committee to keep the production of weapons constantly adjusted to the requirements and lessons of the battlefronts.

"With critical shortages in material and manpower," the President said, "we must see that we produce only what we need and that the waste, unavoidably present in war, is kept to a minimum."

In commenting on the new committee, which will have two members to be named by the Army and two by the Navy, Mr. Byrnes emphasized a savings in manpower expected to be made by eliminating manufacture of munitions no longer required in such quantities as formerly and by shifting the skilled workers thus released to other jobs where they are urgently needed. He mentioned specifically the need for steadily growing output of airplanes.

Mr. Byrnes said he does not expect any improvement in civilian supplies to result from the scaling down of manufacture of some military and naval items but that he does anticipate cash savings, as yet unestimated, to the taxpayer.

Without adjustment of production to changes in the military situation, he said, the nation would finish this war as it did the last one with warehouses jam-packed with supplies for which it had no military use.

Questioned about how labor supply would be shifted from one area to another, the war mobilization director commented, "That question will have to be studied more and more from now on." He added that he believes present methods will prove satisfactory in transferring at least the bulk of men to be released for more essential work.

Mr. Byrnes also said that the U. S. Production to Be Adjusted To Meet Strategic War Needs

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—(AP) President Roosevelt made a new attack on the critical manpower shortage today by ordering creation of machinery to hold war production closely to strategic needs from here on.

The order and the fact that it has been carried out by the joint (Army and Navy) chiefs of staff Army, Navy and Maritime commission are getting away from the cost-plus contract, which he said makes holders of such contracts indifferent to how many workers they employ, and substituting what he called incentive or man-hour contracts under which the government shares with the contractor any savings made under a "target price" fixed in the beginning.

Kerr Committee Scoffs At Roosevelt's Rebuke

Will Continue to Investigate U. S. Employees' Loyalty

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 (AP).—Dismissing a Presidential rebuke as "nonsense" and "absurd," a House Appropriations Subcommittee investigating the loyalty of government employees served notice today it intends to continue its work..

Representative John H. Kerr, Democrat, North Carolina, chairman, declared the group, which tangled with President Roosevelt over the dismissal of three Federal workers, would meet soon to take up its work where it left off last summer.

It was on recommendation of the Kerr committee that the House voted to cut off the salaries of Dr. Goodwin Watson, William E. Dodd jr. and Robert Morss Lovett unless Mr. Roosevelt submits their renomination to the Senate by Nov. 15 and the Senate approves. Messrs. Watson and Dodd are Federal Communications Commission employees; Mr. Lovett is government secretary of the Virgin Islands. Their poiltical and economic philosophies had been questioned by the Dies committee on un-American activities.

President Roosevelt sent a message to Congress assailing the House action as an encroachment upon the executive and judicial branches. He said there were no findings of incompetence against the trio, pointed out that no impeachment proceedings had been instituted, and described the legislative action as similar to a bill of attainder (sentence without trial).

"That stuff about a bill of attainder is a lot of nonsense," said Representative Kerr. "We fully heard every one of those men and every one so admitted."

Representative Frank B. Keefe, of Wisconsin, a Republican member of the Kerr committee, said the three men had assured the committee they felt they had received a "good, fair hearing."

40,000 NEWSPAPERMEN SERVE IN ARMED FORCES

NEW YORK, Sept. 24—(AP) More than 40,000 employes of United States daily newspapers now are serving in the armed forces, a survey by Editor and Publisher, newspaper trade publication, disclosed today.

The survey showed that 766 daily newspapers had 20,267 in the armed forces, with an additional 1,075 contributed by the three major wire services. The article added that "it is reasonable to assume the remaining 900 dailies have contributed an equal number of men."

NEW BOMBS ARE DESIGNED

'Entirely Different' Blockbusters Tested at Picatinny

DOVER, N. J., Sept. 24 (AP)—Development of more deadly aircraft cannon and more destructive aerial bombs is going on night and day under the cooperation of the Ordnance Department and the Army Air Forces.

This was disclosed in a statement here by Col. W. B. Larned, commander of Picatinny Arsenal, who said the arsenal's role in the program was in the development and loading of bombs and bomb fuses.

The new blockbusters will be an "entirely different design," he said. "Tests and experiments are also going forward rapidly on heavy-caliber aircraft cannon of an entirely new principle of operation," Colonel Larned explained.

ADD LONDON - RUSSIAN (HILL) EX CAUCASUS

ONE BERLIN BROADCAST RECORDED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS ADMITTED THAT THE BATTLE "RAGING IN THE WHOLE SMOLENSK REGION HAS BECOME VERY EMBITTERED INDEED," BUT SAID THAT "THE BATTLE FOR THE DNIEPER RIVER LINE INTO WHICH THE ENEMY HAS ENTERED WITH GREAT EXPECTATIONS IS IN ITS INITIAL PHASE ONLY.

"ON THE WHOLE," THE BROADCAST CONTINUED, "THE PRESENT FIGHTING IS STILL GOING ON BEFORE THE GREAT WATER BARRIER. IT IS BY NO MEANS CERTAIN THAT THE GERMAN HIGH COMMAND HAS THE INTENTION OF LETTING THE ENEMY APPROACH THE RIVER AT ALL POINTS BEFORE SHOWING THE SOVIETS WHAT CAN BE DONE IN THE WAY OF RESISTANCE WITH THE HELP OF THE STRATEGICAL DEFENSE LINE EQUIPPED WITH ALL THE FACILITIES THAT MODERN TECHNIQUE HAS TO OFFER AND FAVORED BY TERRAIN EXCELLENTLY SUITED FOR DEFENSIVE OPERATIONS."

THE BROADCAST, DISCUSSING THE MOST IMPORTANT MILITARY QUESTION IN RUSSIA TODAY--WHETHER THE SOVIET OFFENSIVE COULD FORCE THE DNIEPER LINE--CONTENDED THAT THE RAINY AUTUMN SEASON WILL BEGIN WITHIN A FEW WEEKS AND TURN THE BLACK EARTH DISTRICT EAST OF KIEV, KREMENCHUG, DNEPROPETROVSK AND ZAPAROZHE "INTO A BOTTOMLESS SWAMP."

IT SAID THAT IN THE CAUCASUS THE GERMANS "DISENGAGING MOVES"--OR RETREAT--ARE PROGRESSING ACCORDING TO PLAN. AT THE SOUTHERN BEND OF THE DNIEPER, THE BROADCAST SAID THE SOVIETS FAILED TO REACH THE RIVER WITH MAJOR FORCES, INDICATING THAT AT LEAST SOME FORCES HAD ARRIVED AT THE EASTERN BANK.

BETWEEN POLTAVA AND KREMENCHUG THE RED ARMY SPEARHEADS ARE STILL A CONSIDERABLE DISTANCE FROM THE RIVER, THE GERMAN VERSION SAID, BUT EAST OF KIEV SOVIET FRONTAL ATTACKS HAVE "INCREASED IN INTENSITY."

IT DESCRIBED THE RUSSIAN ATTACK ON KIEV AS A PINCER MOVEMENT. "SOVIET VANGUARDS OPERATING FAR AHEAD OF THE BULK OF THEIR FORCES HAVE TRIED TO CROSS THE RIVER AT THE MOUTH OF THE DESNA AND THE PRIPET MARSHES," IT SAID. "THEY WERE EITHER REPULSED OR ELSE CUT OFF FROM THEIR REAR COMMUNICATIONS AND WIPED OUT."

MORE SIGNIFICANT, PERHAPS, WAS AN EDITORIAL IN HIS DAILY EXPRESS WEDNESDAY WHICH SAID, IN COMMENTING ON CHURCHILL'S RECENT SPEECH IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS:

"MR. CHURCHILL CALLED THE MEDITERRANEAN FRONT THE THIRD FRONT.

"THE SECOND FRONT, HE SAYS, ALREADY EXISTS POTENTIALLY AND IS RAPIDLY GATHERING WEIGHT. ITS TIME IS COMING. THE NATION MUST AWAIT THE CHOICE OF A DATE.

"A DIRECT ATTACK ON WESTERN EUROPE IS DECIDED. THE SECOND FRONT IS TO BE BROUGHT INTO BEING."

ANDERSON, WHO IS 61, IS ONE OF CHURCHILL'S MOST VALUED ADVISERS. HE WAS APPOINTED TO THE POST OF LORD PRESIDENT OF THE COUNCIL IN 1940 AND STAYS IN THE WAR CABINET WITH TONIGHT'S ANNOUNCEMENT THAT THE CHANCELLOR OF EXCHEQUER WOULD BECOME A MEMBER OF THAT GROUP.

IN RAISING THE STATUS OF LAW FROM UNDERSECRETARY AT THE FOREIGN OFFICE TO THAT OF MINISTER OF STATE, CHURCHILL IS LOOKING TO THE GROWING VOLUME OF INTERNATIONAL QUESTIONS. LAW, 42, HEADED THE BRITISH DELEGATION AT THE UNITED NATIONS FOOD CONFERENCE AT HOT SPRINGS IN MAY. BUDGET-SCRAPING EQUALS THAT IN U.S.HOMES (650)

BY WILLIAM SMITH WHITE

(ADVANCE) LONDON-(AP)-DESK AND STAFF OFFICERS HERE WHO OPERATE THE GREAT HEADQUARTERS OF THE AMERICAN DRIVE IN THE EUROPEAN THEATER HAVE BUDGET TROUBLES AS SHARP AS THOSE OF ANY WORRIED AMERICAN HOUSEWIFE BACK HOME.

THROUGH NO ONE'S FAULT, BUT BY THE IMPACT OF AN IMMENSE EFFORT DRAWING MEN HERE FROM AROUND THE WORLD, THIS CITY--STAID AND GRACIOUS OLD LONDON--HAS TO ITS OWN ASTONISHMENT TAKEN ON SOME OF THE QUALITIES OF AN OIL BOOM TOWN BACK HOME.

LIVING, DESPITE THE LONG AND MAINLY SUCCESSFUL BRITISH EFFORT TO KEEP PRICES FROM GETTING OUT OF HAND, IS A TREMENDOUSLY EXPENSIVE BUSINESS FOR THE AMERICAN OFFICER AND PARTICULARLY THE JUNIOR OFFICER.

THEY DON'T TALK MUCH ABOUT IT AND WHATEVER COMPLAINTS THEY HAVE ARE MILD AND RELUCTANT, BUT THE FACT IS THAT FROM MAJOR ON DOWN THEY HAVE TO EXERCISE A DEGREE OF THRIFT WHICH THEY DOUBT IS EQUALLED BY THAT OF AMERICAN OFFICERS ANYWHERE ELSE IN THE WORLD.

IT IS TRUE THAT THE POST EXCHANGES HAVE VERY LOW PRICES ON WHAT THEY SELL--FOR EXAMPLE, AMERICAN CIGARETTES AT TEN CENTS A PACKAGE. BUT THEY ARE LIMITED. THE LIMIT ON CIGARETTES IS SEVEN PACKS A WEEK. A FAIRLY HEAVY SMOKER ACCUSTOMED TO HANDING THEM AROUND THE CIRCLE HAS GOT TO PIECE THIS RATION OUT WITH BRITISH CIGARETTES.

POPULAR BRITISH CIGARETTES COST ABOUT 50 CENTS.

EATING OUTSIDE THE OFFICERS' MESS (THE MEALS THERE ARE GOOD, AMPLE AND INEXPENSIVE BUT AN OFFICER CAN'T ALWAYS GET THERE BY REASON OF INACCESSIBILITY OR BEING TIED UP ON ASSIGNMENT) IS A HIGHLY EXPENSIVE BUSINESS.

DINNER FOR ONE IN AN ACCEPTABLE PLACE FOR ONE POUND--THE CURRENT EQUIVALENT OF $4.04--IS CONSIDERED NOT AT ALL UNREASONABLE AND TO THIS MUST BE ADDED A TIP WHICH BY BRITISH CUSTOM RUNS TO ABOUT TWO SHILLINGS, OR 40 CENTS, FOR EACH PERSON SERVED. THIS IS OF COURSE EXCLUSIVE OF ANYTHING LIKE A COCKTAIL OR WINE--WHICH REALLY RUN HIGH.

SEP 26 1943

(BY BRITISH REGULATION THERE IS A FIVE SHILLING, OR ONE DOLLAR, LEGAL LIMIT ON THE PRICE OF A MEAL BUT THIS DOES NOT MEAN MUCH IN THE FACE OF EXTRA CHARGES FOR COFFEE, SALAD, "SERVICE" AND SO FORTH.)

PRICES FOR ITEMS WHICH THE GOVERNMENT DEEMS NOT ESSENTIAL AND THUS NOT COVERED BY ANY LEGAL PRICE CEILING--CLIMB TO RATHER ASTONISHING ALTITUDES. FOR EXAMPLE, ONE MIGHT BE ASKED $4.20 FOR A SINGLE CANTELOUPE, OR MORE THAN A DOLLAR FOR A SINGLE PEACH.

THESE, OF COURSE, ARE EXCEPTIONAL PRICES--AND FEW AMERICANS GO AROUND HUNTING SUCH DELICACIES.

SEP 26 1943

BUT EVEN ON THE ESSENTIALS A GREAT DEAL OF SCRATCHING AROUND MUST BE DONE TO GET BY.

SUITABLE QUARTERS FOR AN OFFICER LIVING ALONE CAN HARDLY BE FOUND FOR LESS THAN $5 A DAY; AN OFFICER SHARING AN APARTMENT WITH OTHER OFFICERS CAN MANAGE ON ABOUT $3 A DAY, BUT NOT MUCH LESS.

ANOTHE ABSOLUTE ESSENTIAL HERE IS AN OCCASIONAL TAXI--LONDON IS SPREAD OUT HUGELY AND SUBWAYS STOP RUNNING NOT LATER THAN MIDNIGHT AND MOST BUSES BY 10:30 P.M. OR EARLIER. NORMAL RATES ARE CHEAPER ON THE AVERAGE THAN IN NEW YORK, BUT AT NIGHT, WHEN CABS ARE VERY SCARCE AND ELDERLY DRIVERS ARE TAKING ALL SORTS OF CHANCES IN THE BLACKOUT, IT IS AN UNWRITTEN RULE THAT THE PATRON GIVES ABOUT TWICE THE FARE.

MILD ENTERTAINMENT REQUIRES MUCH SHELLING OUT. A SINGLE SEAT IN AN ORDINARY FIRST-RUN MOVIE WILL RUN UP TO $2.50.

AGAINST ALL THESE FACTS ARE THESE: A MAJOR'S LIVING ALLOWANCE, OR PER DIEM, IS $6 A DAY. IT IS $5 FOR CAPTAIN, AND SO ON DOWN.

OFFICERS SAY THAT NEARLY ALL OF THEM MUST DIG DEEPLY INTO THEIR PAY--WHICH IS MODEST, RUNNING TO ABOUT $265 A MONTH IN THE CASE OF A SECOND LIEUTENANT MAINTAINING A WIFE AND HOME IN AMERICA--TO LIVE ON EVEN THE MINIMUM SCALE. THEN THERE ARE THE DEMANDS OF INSURANCE, WAR BONDS AND THE LIKE.

IN SUCH MATTERS AS THE DOUBLE TAXI FARE, THEY POINT OUT, LOCAL CUSTOM MUST BE FOLLOWED. "OTHERWISE," AS ONE REMARKED, "WE'D HAVE THE CAB DRIVERS SIMPLY QUIT STOPPING FOR AMERICAN UNIFORMS."

"THERE IS ANOTHER ANGLE ON IT, TOO," SAID THIS OFFICER--A MAN WHO HAS BEEN OVER HERE MORE THAN A YEAR. "IT IS NOT ONLY PLEASANT AND NORMAL BUT ESSENTIAL THAT WE MAKE AND KEEP BRITISH FRIENDS SINCE EVERYBODY IS TOGETHER IN THIS.

"WELL, MANY A TIME A BRITISH FRIEND HAS TAKEN ME HOME TO A DINNER WHICH I KNEW HE COULDN'T AFFORD AND WHICH USED UP HIS LITTLE STOCK OF FOOD COUPONS. IN A CASE LIKE THAT IT'S ABSOLUTELY UP TO ME, AND TO ALL OF US, TO RECIPROCATE IN KIND JUST AS FAR AS WE POSSIBLY CAN. IF I TAKE MY BRITISH FRIEND TO A DINNER COMPARABLE TO WHAT HE GAVE ME,

30.24- 8761

IT WILL COST ME VERY CLOSE TO $16."

"I KNOW," HE WENT ON, SMILING HALF-APOLOGETICALLY, "THAT WE'RE NOT IN THE FOXHOLES AND THAT WE ARE IMMEASURABLY BETTER OFF AS TO COMFORTS AND ALL THAT OUR MEN OUT IN THE FIELD. BUT THEN WE CAN'T HELP BEING HERE; WE'D LIKE TO BE IN THE FIELD, TOO, BUT SOMEBODY MUST DO THIS WORK AND THERE ARE CERTAIN CUSTOMS AS TO HOW AN OFFICER MUST LIVE. NOT BELLY-ACHING, FELLA, BUT IT'S NOT EASY."

BRITISH 9TH ARMY

IN THE OFFING

GUERRILLAS TOLD

"NOW IS THE TIME" (900)

BY JOHN F.CHESTER

(ADVANCE) LONDON,SEPT.21-(AP)-UNMISTAKABLE SIGNS APPEAR THAT CLOSELY GUARDED ALLIED MILITARY AND DIPLOMATIC MOVES NOW ARE BEING SHAPED TOWARD A MAJOR EXPLOSION IN THE BALKANS.

EVENTS AS APPARENTLY UNRELATED AS THE ARCHBISHOP OF YORK'S VISIT TO MOSCOW AND AN UNDERGROUND RENDEZVOUS OF ALLIED MILITARY MEN WITH BALKAN GUERRILLAS NOW CAN BE FITTED INTO A GENERAL PATTERN WHICH WELL MAY END IN ANOTHER HUGE BREACH IN THE WALL OF WHAT HITLER ONCE CALLED HIS IMPREGNABLE EUROPEAN FORTRESS.

REFERRING TO THE CURRENT SWIFT MOVES, ONE WELL INFORMED DIPLOMAT HERE SAID THAT THE NEXT TWO OR THREE WEEKS WOULD SEE THE ALLIES PASSING THROUGH A CRITICAL PERIOD IN WORLD DIPLOMACY.

BEHIND THIS AND DIRECTLY CONNECTED IN THE DIPLOMATIC SENSE IS THE BATTLE FOR ITALY.

MEN HERE WHOSE JOB IT IS TO KEEP ATTUNED TO DEVELOPMENTS READILY CONCEDE THAT NOT ONLY THE BALKANS, WHERE THE RESULT IS VITAL, BUT NEUTRAL COUNTRIES, AS WELL, HAVE BEEN CLOSELY WATCHING THE TERRIFIC CONFLICT AROUND SALERNO AS A GUIDE TO THEIR OWN FUTURE COURSE.

SOME EXPRESS THE OPINION THAT THE REASON BEHIND THE BLOODY NAZI RESISTANCE TO LT.GEN.MARK W.CLARK'S FIFTH ARMY LANDINGS AT SALERNO WAS AS MUCH DIPLOMATIC AS MILITARY.

CERTAINLY THE GERMANS EXPLOITED TO THE FULL THEIR FALSE CLAIMS OF A SALERNO VICTORY. CERTAINLY, TOO, THE DIPLOMATIC UNCERTAINTY FELT HERE DURING THE TIME THE ALLIES WERE HANGING TO THE BEACHHEADS BY THEIR EYELIDS HAS BEEN RESOLVED NOW THAT THE NAZIS ARE RETREATING.

IT WAS REPORTED THAT GERMAN FORCES IN THE WESTERN BALKANS WERE TAKING STRONG MEASURES TO SMASH YUGOSLAV PARTISAN TROOPS. THE PARTISANS NOW ARE MAKING A BID FOR LIBERATION ALONG THE ADRIATIC FROM THE SEAPORT CITY OF SPLIT, NOW IN PATRIOT HANDS, TO THE ITALIAN CITY OF FIUME, 160 MILES TO THE NORTH.

THERE WERE REPORTS ALSO OF ILL FEELING BETWEEN NAZI SATELLITE NATIONALITIES. ACCORDING TO WORD RECEIVED IN CIRO, THE CROATS BEGAN A PRESS AND RADIO CAMPAIGN AGAINST HUNGARY FRIDAY TO GET BACK THE MEDJUMURJE DISTRICT OF YUGOSLAVIA WHICH WAS GIVEN BY HITLER TO HUNGARY

SEP 22 1943
SEP 22 1943
SEP 22 1943

IN 1941.

SINCE THIS DISTRICT HAS A CROAT MAJORITY, THE CROATS LONG HAVE BEEN DISGUSTED BY ITS TRANSFER TO HUNGARY BUT NEVER HAVE BEEN ALLOWED BEFORE TO VOICE THEIR FEELINGS. THEIR NEW PRESS AND RADIO CAMPAIGN IS ONE OF SEVERAL FORMS OF PRESSURE HITLER IS SAID TO BE BRINGING TO BEAR ON HIS WAVERING HUNGARIAN ALLY.

SEP 22 1943

REPORTS REACHING SWITZERLAND SAID HUNGARY, CAUGHT BETWEEN INCREASED PRESSURE FROM GERMANY FOR ADDITIONAL WAR MANPOWER AND A DESIRE FOR PEACE, WAS IN THE THROES OF AN INTENSE POLITICAL AND PARLIAMENTARY CRISIS. THERE HAS BEEN A STRONG OFFICIAL ATTEMPT, THESE REPORTS ADDED, TO CURB THE GROWING TENDENCY IN HUNGARY FOR WITHDRAWING FROM THE WAR.

SEP 22 1943

HERE ARE SOME OF THE EVENTS LINKED UP DIRECTLY AND INDIRECTLY WITH THE ALLIED MOVES TO DRIVE THE NAZIS FROM THE BALKANS WHERE THEIR POSITION WILL BECOME INCREASINGLY UNCOMFORTABLE AND UNTENABLE AS THE ALLIES TAKE OVER ITALY AND HER SCORES OF AIRFIELDS:

1--THE BRITISH N NTH ARMY, PURPORTEDLY TRAINED IN THE MIDDLE EAST FOR A BALKAN INVASION, WAS REPORTED BY THE AXIS TO BE ON THE MOVE. THIS IS NOT OFFICIALLY CONFIRMED, BUT THERE HAVE BEEN REPORTS OF ALLIED LANDINGS ON ISLANDS IN THE AEGEAN SEA.

(ANKARA REPORTS LAST WEEK, WHICH NEVER WERE CONFIRMED BY ANY ALLIED SOURCE, SAID ALLIED FORCES HAD TAKEN THE ISLANDS OF LERO, COS AND SAMOS, TO THE NORTH OF RHODES).

2--THE UPSURGE OF ACTIVITY BY YUGOSLAV AND GREEK GUERRILLAS WHO HAD BEEN TOLD BY GEN.SIR HENRY MAITLAND WILSON, BRITISH COMMANDER IN CHIEF IN THE MIDDLE EAST, TO HOLD THEIR FIRE UNTIL THE PROPER TIME.

3--SECRET MEETINGS OF ALLIED COMMANDERS IN GUERRILLA HIDE-OUTS WITH GREEK AND YUGOSLAV FIGHTERS STRENGTHENED THE BELIEF IN SOME QUARTERS THAT THE GUERRILLA FORCES HAD BEEN RELEASED FROM THE ALLIED ORDER TO HOLD THEIR FIRE AND HAD BEEN TOLD THAT "NOW IS THE TIME."

4--FRANTIC MOVEMENTS OF SCATTERED GERMAN DIVISIONS IN THE BALKANS AFTER THE ITALIAN CAPITULATION, AND THEIR CALL TO CROATS AND BULGARIANS TO HELP DEFEND THE AREAS WEAKENED WHEN ITALIAN SOLDIERS LAID DOWN THEIR ARMS.

SEP 22 1943

5--THE SIGNIFICANT WARNING CARRIED IN THE COMMUNIST PART NEWSPAPER PRAVDA THAT SOVIET PATIENCE WITH BULGARIA, WHICH SO FAR IS NOT AT WAR WITH RUSSIA, HAD A DEFINITE LIMIT. THE ARTICLE ADDED THAT THE TIME HAS COME FOR THE BULGARIAN PEOPLE AND ARMY TO OVERTHROW THE "GERMAN GOVERNING CLIQUE."

6--THE WIDELY DISTRIBUTED ASSERTION OF EDUARD BENES, PRESIDENT OF THE PROVISIONAL CZECH GOVERNMENT, THAT "WHEN WE CALL UPON THE CZECHO-SLOVAK PEOPLE TO STRIKE THEY WILL BE READY."

7--THE VISIT OF THE ARCHBISHOP OF YORK AND TWO OTHER ANGLICAN CLERGYMEN TO MOSCOW AT THE INVITATION OF THE RUSSIAN ORTHODOX CHURCH FOLLOWING PREMIER MARSHAL STALIN'S RAPPROCHEMENT WITH THE CHURCH AND THE INSTALLATION OF METROPOLITAN SERGEI AS PATRIARCH. MEMBERS OF CENTRAL EUROPEAN REFUGEE GOVERNMENTS HERE HAVE INTERPRETED THIS AS AN EFFORT TO WOO THE BALKANS, SINCE THE ORTHODOX CHURCH IS STRONG THERE. THE ORTHODOX CHURCH HAS DECIDED TO EXCOMMUNICATE ANYONE AIDING THE ENEMY--A BAN WHICH TECHNICALLY EXTENDS TO BALKAN COMMUNICANTS AS WELL AS RUSSIAN.

30.24-8763

8--CONTINUED NEGOTIATIONS TOWARD AN EARLY BRITISH-SOVIET-AMERICAN PARLEY, IN CONNECTION WITH WHICH BALKAN PROBLEMS ALREADY HAVE BEEN DISCUSSED MINUTELY. ASSOCIATED WITH THIS HAS BEEN THE CREATION OF A MEDITERRANEAN COMMISSION GIVING RUSSIA CONTINUING VOICE IN THE ITALIAN SITUATION AND CLOSELY CONNECTED BALKAN FIELD.

PRIME MINISTER BOBRI BOJILOV HAS ANNOUNCED THE DECISION OF THE NEW BULGARIAN CABINET TO CONTINUE COLLABORATION WITH GERMANY, THE GERMAN NEWS AGENCY DNB REPORTED FROM SOFIA.

MEANWHILE, ACCORDING TO ADVICES REACHING CAIRO BULGARIAN TROOPS HAVE OCCUPIED THAT TERRITORY IN SOUTHERN YUGOSLAVIA WHICH INCLUDES THE TOWNS OF TETOVO, GOSTIVAR, DEBAR AND PRIZREN AND LIES EAST OF ALBANIA. THIS REGION HAD BEEN GIVEN TO ITALY AFTER THE DEFEAT OF YUGOSLAVIA.

SEP 22 1943

(ADVANCE)...LONDON-(AP)-TODAY, FOUR YEARS AFTER HITLER CONQUERED POLAND, GERMAN SOLDIERS STILL ARE NOT ALLOWED TO WALK THE STREETS OF WARSAW ALONE.

AFTER FOUR YEARS OF PERSECUTIONS AND CRUELTY THE GESTAPO STILL CARRIES ON MASS MURDER, MASS DEPORTATIONS AND MASS ARRESTS. BUT THE GERMANS STILL ARE AFRAID OF HUNGER-STRICKEN POLAND.

THE STORY OF WHAT LIFE IS LIKE IN WARSAW HAS BEEN BROUGHT HERE BY A FORMERLY WELL-TO-DO POLE WHO ESCAPED TO JOIN THE POLISH ARMY HERE AS AN OFFICER.

SEP 22 1943

TO DESCRIBE HIM FURTHER WOULD BE TO INVITE GERMAN RETALIATION ON RELATIVES OF ANY MISSING MAN WHO MIGHT FIT THE CLASSIFICATION.

HE SAID THAT THOSE WHO KNEW WARSAW IN PRE-WAR DAYS WOULD NOT RECOGNIZE THE WELL-KNOWN STREETS IN THE SHAPELESS RUINS STRETCHING FOR MILES THE PEOPLE, A COLORLESS CROWD, TIRED-LOOKING, DRESSED IN RAGS, WITH PALE SICKLY FACES AND NERVOUS FURTIVE MOVEMENTS.

WARSAW WAKES UP AT 6 A.M. WHEN THE PEASANT CARTS BEGIN CLATTERING ON THE COBBLED STREETS OF THE SURBURBS, BRINGING VEGETABLES FOR GERMANS ONLY. POLES CANNOT BUY VEGETABLES OR FRUIT. ALL THEY HAVE IS WHAT THEY CAN GROW IN THE NARROW STRIPS OF SOIL ALONG THE CITY PAVEMENTS WHICH ONCE WERE PARKWAYS.

SIMULTANEOUSLY WITH THE PEASANT CARTS APPEAR THE FIRST CITY-DWELLERS, MORNING SHIFT WORKERS ON THEIR WAY TO TOIL FOR THE INVADER. IN THE TRAM-CARS THE FIRST TWO BENCHES, RESERVED FOR GERMANS, ARE STILL EMPTY, SO THE POLES CAN TALK A LITTLE MORE FREELY--EXCHANGING LOCAL NEWS AND FURTIVELY WHISPERING BITS OF INFORMATION HEARD OVER-

SEP 22 1943

NIGHT ON THE RADIO FROM THE UNITED STATES OR BRITAIN.

BY 8 O'CLOCK THE STREETS ARE CROWDED WITH PEOPLE GOING TO WORK, STARTING ON A HUNT FOR THE MEANS TO LIVE, OR SIMPLY THOSE WHO HAVE NO HOMES.

SEP 22 1943

B108UNLIKE THE OCCUPIED COUNTRIES OF HOLLAND, BELGIUM AND FRANCE, POLES GET NO CLOTHING COUPONS. PEOPLE GO ON WEARING THEIR PREWAR CLOTHING. PRODUCTION OF LEATHER SHOES IS FORBIDDEN AND THE STREETS ECHO WITH THE CLATTER OF WOODEN SHOES.

A WARSAW HOUSEWIFE NEEDS WITS, COURAGE AND PLENTY OF MONEY. OFFICIAL FOOD RATIONS FOR POLES CONSTITUTE A STARVATION DIET. A GROWNUP IS ENTITLED TO 6 OUNCES OF MEAT, 6 OUNCES OF FLOUR, 2 EGGS, AND 6 OUNCES OF BEETROOT JAM PER M O N T H. HE GETS FOUR OUNCES OF BREAD A DAY. THERE IS NO MILK OR FAT RATION. NOR IS THERE ANY FUEL ALLOCATCON. ELECTRICITY IS CUT OFF EXCEPT FOR THREE HOURS IN THE WINTER AND TWO IN THE SUMMER.

COUNTLESS TRAINLOADS OF FOOD LEAVE POLAND DAILY FOR GERMANY OR THE RUSSIAN FRONT. SHOPS SUPPLYING GERMAN CLIENTS ARE FULL OF FOOD. GERMAN SOLDIERS SEND PROVISIONS TO THEIR FAMILIES BACK HOME.

THE GERMANS HOLD POLISH WORKERS TO THEIR PRE-WAR WAGES, YET PRICES ON SOME ITEMS HAVE INCREASED 50 TIMES.

IN AN EFFORT TO SURVIVE, THE PEOPLE SOLD THEIR POSSESSIONS, THEN FOUND THAT TRADE WAS A POSSIBLE ESCAPE FROM STARVATION. SOCIETY WOMEN, UNIVERSITY PROFESSORS AND SEAMSTRESSES VIED WITH PEDDLERS. SOME WENT FROM HOUSE TO HOUSE. OTHERS OPENED SMALL SHOPS. TODAY 80 PER CENT OF THE POPULATION TRADES.

SEP 22 1943

THIS KEEPS MONEY FLOATING FROM HAND TO HAND, LEAVING A NARROW MARGIN FOR THE TRADER. BUT SHOP KEEPERS ARE FACING NEW DISASTER. WITH THE ALLIED BOMBARDMENT OF THE RUHR, MANY THOUSANDS OF GERMANS WERE EVACUATED TO POLAND. TO HALT THEIR GRUMBLING, GERMAN AUTHORITIES ARE EVICTING POLES FROM THEIR SHOPS AND TURNING THEM OVER TO THE EVACUEES.

SEP 22 1943

THE "BLACK MARKET"--A NAME DESPISED IN FREE COUNTRIES--HAS AN ALMOST PATRIOTIC MEANING IN POLAND. EVERY DAY THOUSANDS OF SMUGGLERS, RISKING GREAT DANGER, TRAVEL SOMETIMES HUNDREDS OF MILES FROM WARSAW TO RETURN WITH FOOD TO HELP THE CITIZENRY SURVIVE.

ON THE SURFACE, DAYTIME LIFE APPEARS MORE OR LESS NORMAL. STREETS ARE SHABBY, BUT PEOPLE GO ABOUT THEIR BUSINESS. CHILDREN GO TO SCHOOL, ALTHOUGH ONLY PRIMARY AND TRADE SCHOOLS HAVE BEEN LEFT OPEN AND SUBJECTS LIKE HISTORY, RELIGION, GEOGRAPHY AND POLISH HAVE BEEN DISCONTINUED.

BUT UNDER THIS SURFACE OF SEEMING NORMALCY RUNS A CURRENT OF CONSTANT VIGILANCE. PEOPLE NEVER RELAX. THEY KNOW THAT A FEW DAYS PEACE IS JUST A SHORT INTERVAL BETWEEN NEW BLOWS THAT BRING MISERY TO COUNTLESS FAMILIES.

SEP 22 1943

THERE IS A WORD WITH A NEW MEANING IN THE POLISH DICTIONARY--"LAPANKA", MASS ROUNDUPS OF HUMAN BEINGS. THERE ARE TWO KINDS--POLITICAL "LAPANKAS" DURING WHICH THE GESTAPO ARRESTS ALL PERSONS, B109THE GERMANS DO NOT EVEN OBSERVE THEIR OWN REGULATIONS AS TO WHO IS LIABLE TO FORCED LABOR. THE LOCAL GERMAN CHIEF OF LABOR, UNDER INSTRUCTIONS FROM BERLIN TO DELIVER A CERTAIN QUOTA OF LABORERS INTO GERMANY, MERELY ORDERS THE ARREST AND DEPORTATION OF ALL MEN AND WOMEN CAUGHT IN A "LAPANKA", REGARDLESS OF AGE OR PHYSICAL CONDITION.

A NUMBER OF TRUCKS FILLED WITH POLICE AND GESTAPO AGENTS SURROUND

30.24 8765

A CHOSEN LOCALE. MEN, WOMEN AND CHILDREN CAUGHT WITHIN THE AREA ARE DRIVEN AWAY IN TRUCKS TO A GESTAPO DEPOT. THERE THEY ARE KEPT IN HUGE HUTS WITHOUT FOOD. IN POLITICAL "LAPANKAS" THOSE WHO DO NOT SATISFY THE GESTAPO ARE SENT TO CONCENTRATION CAMPS. IN LABOR ROUNDUPS MEN, WOMEN AND CHILDREN OVER 14 YEARS OF AGE ARE PACKED INTO TRUCKS AND DEPORTED TO GERMANY.

THERE WAS THE INSTANCE OF THE GERMAN ATTEMPT TO BREAK UP TRADING IN A MARKET PLACE KNOWN AS THE "KERCELAK" IN WARSAW'S POORER SECTION. IN THIS EQUIVALENT OF LONDON'S FAMOUS CALEDONIAN MARKET ONE FORMERLY COULD BUY OR SELL ANYTHING FROM PUPPIES TO WORN OUT PHONOGRAPH RECORDS.

A BIG "LAPANKA" EXPEDITION SET OUT ONE MORNING INTENDING TO CATCH THE TRADERS BY SURPRISE. BUT THE POLES HAD THEIR SENTRIES AND WHEN THE GERMANS ARRIVED THE DISTRICT WAS EMPTY. IT HAPPENED SEVERAL TIMES. THEN, INSTEAD OF USING THE FAMILIAR TRUCKS, THEY SENT A MILITARY UNIT, PRECEDED BY A BAND, INTO THE DISTRICT. THIS CAUGHT THE TRADERS UNAWARE AND THE SOLDIERS TRAPPED SEVERAL THOUSANDS. BUT OTHER TRADERS WERE IN THEIR PLACE THE NEXT DAY.

THEN ONE MORNING A BIG GALLOWS GRACED THE SQUARE. THE TRADERS GAVE UP AND FOUND A NEW DISTRICT.

STREETS ARE CROWDED IN LATE AFTERNOON AFTER WORK. CURFEW IS AT 8 P.M., AND POLES HAVE BUT TWO HOURS TO VISIT FRIENDS. EVERYWHERE AT STREET CORNERS THERE ARE BANDS OF UNEMPLOYED MUSICIANS, STUDENTS AND DEMOBILIZED SOLDIERS. TWO THEATERS ARE OPEN TO POLES BUT NO PLAYS BY ANY ALLIED AUTHOR CAN BE PRODUCED, NOR CAN ANY POLISH MUSIC BE HEARD. CAFES OWNED BY POLES ARE JAMMED.

AS 8 P.M. APPROACHES THE PEOPLE RUSH HOME TO THE KITCHEN, WHERE IT IS WARMEST, AND TO LISTEN FOR THE DREADED SOUND OF HEAVY BOOTS ON THE STAIRS, FOR THE GERMANS ESPECIALLY LIKE TO CARRY OUT ARRESTS AND SEARCHES AT NIGHT.

THE ESCAPED POLE SAID HE WANTED TO MAKE CLEAR THAT WHAT IS HAPPENING IN POLAND NOW--THE KILLING OF GESTAPO MEN, SABOTAGE IN FACTORIES, DESTRUCTION OF RAILWAY BRIDGES--ARE NOT SPONTANEOUS ACTS OF INDIVIDUALS OR GROUPS OF PATRIOTS, BUT ARE THE REGULAR WORK OF AN ORGANIZATION, POWERFUL AND BIG, SPREADING OVER THOUSANDS OF VILLAGES AND TOWNS, EMBRACING MANY THOUSANDS OF MEN AND WOMEN.

THE NEWBOY WHO JUMPS ON THE STEPS

THE NEWSBOY WHO JUMPS ON THE STEPS OF A MOVING TRAMCAR SHOUTING "GERMANS CHASED OUT OF TUNISIA. CHEER UP FOLKS. IT WON'T BE LONG NOW" IS NOT JUST A LAD TRYING TO SELL PAPERS. HE IS A MESSENGER, A SOLDIER OF THE POLISH UNDERGROUND.

NOT LONG AGO NOTICES APPEARED SAYING THAT, AS PUNISHMENT FOR SLACK WORK IN THE FACTORIES, THE GERMANS HAD ORDERED REMOVAL OF THE MONUMENT TO KILINSKI, WARSAW'S SPECIAL HERO. THE NEXT DAY A HUGE HAND-PAINTED NOTICE WAS POSTED ON ANOTHER MONUMENT, THAT OF NICOLAUS COPERNICUS, FAMOUS POLISH ASTRONOMER. IT READ: "AS PUNISHMENT TO THE GERMANS FOR SHAMELESS THEFT OF KILINSKI'S MONUMENT, I EXTEND WINTER ON THE RUSSIAN FRONT FOR ANOTHER THREE MONTHS. SIGNED--COPERNICUS."

ON THE LAST ANNIVERSARY OF POLAND'S NATIONAL DAY, MAY 3, THE GERMAN BROADCAST OF NEWS WAS SUDDENLY INTERRUPTED WITH THE PLAYING OF THE POLISH ANTHEM--"POLAND HAS NOT PERISHED." #

AT A U.S. BOMBER BASE IN ENGLAND, SEPT 24-(AP)-THE MEN WHO FLEW THE FLYING FORTRESS "WABBIT TWACKS" HAVE RECEIVED NINE SILVER STARS, SEVEN DISTINGUISHED SERVICE CROSSES AND FIVE PURPLE HEARTS, TO BECOME ONE OF THE MOST DECORATED AMERICAN CREWS IN THE EUROPEAN THEATER.

THE AWARDS CAME AFTER THE SHIP RECEIVED 500 BULLET AND ANTI-AIRCRAFT HOLES WHILE SHOOTING DOWN SEVEN GERMANS CONFIRMED AND FOUR PROBALES IN A SINGLE RAID.

SEP 25 1943

THIS WAS ONLY ONE OF THE "TWACKS'" EXPLOITS BUT ON IT THE CREW SAID THAT PILOT CAPT. WALTER E.FLAGG OF 610 ROOP ST., SUSANVILLE, CALIF., DID "ONE OF THE SWEETEST JOBS OF FLYING EVER SEEN," MANEUVERING HIS CRIPPLED PLANE HOME DESPITE THE ATTACKS OF 25 NAZI FIGHTERS.

IN ADDITION TO THE HIGHER DECORATIONS ALL TEN MEMBERS OF THE CREW WEAR MEDALS, MOST OF THEM WITH TWO OAK LEAF CLUSTERS, AND THREE MEMBERS OF THE CREW NOT NOW HAVING DISTINGUISHED FLYING CROSSES, INCLUDING FLAGG, HAVE BEEN RECOMMENDED FOR THEM.

THE NEWLY DECORATED CREW MEMBERS AND THEIR DECORATIONS ARE:

CO-PILOT LT.MAXWELL P.BARRET OF 123 WEST TODD ST., FRANKFORT, KY., SILVER STAR, DISTINGUISHED FLYING CROSS.

SEP 25 1943

NAVIGATOR CAPT.MERLE L.HAMILTON OF ORCHARD, NEB., SILVER STAR, DISTINGUISHED FLYING CROSS.

BOMBARDIER CAPT.ROBERT P.MILLIKIN OF 406 FERGUSON AVE., ADRIAN, MICH., SILVER STAR, PURPLE HEART.

RADIOMAN SGT.WILLIAM E.MORGAN OF 617 EAST PHILADELPHIA BLVD, FLINT, MICH., SILVER STAR, DISTINGUISHED FLYING CROSS, PURPLE HEART.

TOP TURRET GUNNER SGT.BORDEN W.CHRISTENSON OF CORNING, CALIF., SILVER STAR, DISTINGUISHED FLYING CROSS.

BALL TURRET GUNNER SGT.JOHN SOLINSKY OF CLEVELAND, OHIO, SILVER STAR, PURPLE HEART.

SEP 25 1943

WAIST GUNNER SGT.JOHN F.WAGNER OF 6903 SUNDERLAND AVE., CLEVELAND, OHIO, SILVER STAR, DISTINGUISHED FLYING CROSS, PURPLE HEART.

"WABBIT TWACKS" WAS TEN MINUTES AWAY FROM ITS TARGET, A GERMAN AIRFIELD IN FRANCE, ON JULY 11, WHEN THE PROPELLOR OF NUMBER ONE ENGINE WENT OUT. UNABLE TO REMAIN IN FORMATION, THE PLANE WAS IMMEDIATELY ATTACKED BY 25 NAZI FIGHTERS. AT 24,000 FEET FLAGG SIDESLIPPED, SPEEDED, SLOWED AND DOVE TO THROW OFF THE GERMAN AIM UNTIL THE PLANE WAS ONLY 20 FEET ABOVE THE ENGLISH CHANNEL.

"HE DID THE SWEETEST JOB OF FLYING I'VE EVER SEEN, EVEN AFTER THE SHIP WAS RIDDLED AND HARD TO HANDLE," HAMILTON SAID. "ALL THE WAY DOWN FLAGG KEPT TALKING INTO THE INTERPHONE IN SUCH A WAY WE JUST COULDN'T GET EXCITED. HE KEPT SAYING, 'HOW ARE THE BLANK-BLANK-BLANKS DOING? WHY DON'T THEY COME CLOSER SO WE CAN REALLY GO TO WORK ON THEM? EVERYTHING UP HERE IS UNDER CONTROL. KEEP UP THE GOOD WORK.'"

WAIST GUNNER WAGNER SAID THAT DESPITE THE VIOLENT MANEUVERS FLAGG FLEW THE SHIP SO SMOOTHLY "IT WAS LIKE SHOOTING FROM A TABLE." HE SAID FLAGG WAS THE COOLEST MAN IN THE CREW AND ADDED:

SEP 25 1943

"I'LL FLY WITH HIM ANY PLACE HE WANTS TO GO. WE WOULDN'T HAVE GOTTEN BACK IF IT HADN'T BEEN FOR HIM. TIME AND AGAIN HE SLIPPED AND SWERVED AND A 20 MILLIMETER SHELL WOULD BURST RIGHT WHERE WE HAD BEEN."

SEP 25 1943

WAGNER HAD SPLINTERS IN HIS EYE DURING THE FIGHT. A 20 MILLIMETER SHELL WOUNDED BOTH HIM AND THE BALL TURRET GUNNER. HE PLACED THE GUNNER ON THE FLOOR AND OPERATED BOTH THE RIGHT AND LEFT WAIST GUNS ALONE, GETTING ONE NAZI ON EACH.

THE EXPLODED AMMUNITION BOX STARTED A FIRE FED BY THE SEVERED OXYGEN OIL LINES. WAGNER MANAGED TO PUT IT OUT BETWEEN INTERVALS OF WORKING THE GUNS. IT TOOK SIX HOURS TO GET THE SPLINTERS OUT OF HIS EYE AFTER THE RETURN.

A 20 MILLIMETER SHELL ALSO BURST INTO THE BALL TURRET WOUNDING THE GUNNER IN THE LEGS. HE KEPT FIRING AND COVERED THE TAIL OF THE SHIP WHEN THE TAIL GUNS WENT OUT. NOT UNTIL THE ATTACK STOPPED DID HE CRAWL OUT FOR FIRST AID. THEN HE SAW HOW BADLY THE SHIP WAS RIDDLED.

SEP 25 1943

"EVERYWHERE I LOOKED I COULD SEE DAYLIGHT. THIRTY-NINE SHELLS HIT THE SHIP AND ALL EXPLODED. THERE WERE INNUMERABLE MACHINEGUN HITS AND AT LEAST FOUR HOLES IN EVERY GAS TANK. THE WINGS WERE RIDDLED AND THE WHOLE TAIL ALMOST SHOT OFF."

GROUND CREWS WHO INSPECTED "WABBIT TWACKS" SAID IT SEEMED IMPOSSIBLE THAT THE SHIP COULD HAVE RETURNED.

REFUGEES FROM ESTONIA REPORTED THIS WEEK THAT THE GERMANS WERE WORKING FEVERISHLY ON FORTIFICATIONS ALONG THE NARVA RIVER IN EASTERN ESTONIA. SOME GERMAN COLONISTS HAVE BEEN MOVED OUT OF ESTONIA AND LATVIA, INDICATING THAT THE NAZIS MIGHT RETREAT FROM AT LEAST PART OF THOSE COUNTRIES.

STOCKHOLM, SATURDAY, SEPT. 25-(AP)-A BERN DISPATCH TO STOCKHOLM SAID TODAY THAT NAZI FIELD MARSHAL GEN. ALBERT KESSELRING HAD PLACED UNDER HOUSE ARREST THREE CARDINALS LIVING IN ROME ON CHARGES OF "HAVING RECEIVED ENEMIES OF THE NEW REPUBLICAN FASCIST REGIME."

THE NAMES OF THE CARDINALS WERE NOT REVEALED, THE DISPATCH SAID, ADDING THAT KESSELRING GAVE THE ARREST ORDER AFTER THEIR HOUSES WERE SEARCHED.

STOCKHOLM, SEPT. 24-(AP)-VAINO TANNER, FINLAND'S FINANCE MINISTER AND SOCIAL DEMOCRATIC PARTY HEAD, DECLARED TONIGHT THAT IF FINLAND "COULD GET A GUARANTEE THAT WE WILL NOT BE THREATENED BY PERMANENT DANGER" FROM RUSSIA "WE WOULD BE READY TO ESTABLISH NORMAL RELATIONS."

IN A SPEECH AT THE HELSINKI COMMUNITY HALL, TANNER SAID "OUR OPPONENT, THE SOVIET UNION, IS MUCH STRONGER THAN THE WORLD HAD THOUGHT," AND CONTINUED:

SEP 26 1943

"IT (RUSSIA) CANNOT BE CONQUERED MILITARILY. AS REALISTS, WE MUST TAKE THAT INTO CONSIDERATION IN OUR FOREIGN POLICY.

"WE MUST START FROM FACT IN THE FUTURE AND WILL HAVE TO LIVE AS NEIGHBORS TO STRONG RUSSIA. WE SHOULD TRY TO ESTABLISH AS GOOD RELATIONS AS POSSIBLE WITH THE SOVIET UNION. IF WE COULD GET A GUARANTEE THAT WE WILL NOT BE THREATENED BY PERMANENT DANGER FROM THAT DIRECTION WE WOULD BE READY TO ESTABLISH NORMAL RELATIONS."

TANNER ASSERTED THAT WHILE FINLAND'S AIM WAS TO GET OUT OF THE WAR "IT IS QUITE CLEAR THAT WE CANNOT BE SATISFIED WITH ANY OTHER PEACE EXCEPT ONE WHICH GUARANTEES OUR SAFETY IN THE FUTURE." HE SAID THE KREMLIN WAS "AS SILENT AS A SPHINX" IN THE MATTER, AND ADDED THAT IF RUSSIA WISHED TO CONVEY ITS IDEAS "IT SURELY WILL FIND CHANNELS."

HE DISCOURAGED THE DISCUSSION OF PEACE WITHIN FINLAND, SAYING SUCH TALK WAS PROGRESSING EVERYWHERE IN THE LAND AND ADDING "IT IS DIFFICULT TO SEE WHO COULD GAIN BY IT...THE CLEVEREST THING WOULD BE IF WE AT HOME STOPPED DISCUSSING PEACE. IT CANNOT HELP IT FORWARD, BUT COULD ONLY BE OF USE TO THE ENEMY."

TARANTO, ITALY, SEPT. 22-(DELAYED)-GEN. SIR BERNARD L. MONTGOMERY TOLD HIS BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY TROOPS TODAY THAT THEY WOULD "STEP ON THE GAS AND GET GOING" ON THEIR NEW JOB, WHICH IS FIGHTING THE GERMANS IN ITALY.

GEN. MONTGOMERY ADDED: "IT'S US OUT HERE AND WHAT WE DO THAT KEEPS THE MORALE HIGH ON THE HOME FRONT. IF THE MORALE AT HOME WENT DOWN WE MIGHT WELL LOSE THE WAR."

WELCOMING TROOPS OF THE FIFTH ARMY CORPS, WHICH HE ONCE COMMANDED IN ENGLAND AND WHICH CAME HERE AS PART OF THE BRITISH FIRST ARMY AND ARE NOW INCORPORATED IN THE EIGHTH ARMY, MONTGOMERY SAID:

"YOU WERE FIGHTING IN NORTH AFRICA AND TUNISIA WHEN I WAS FIGHTING ACROSS THE DESERT TO MEET YOU, BUT WE'VE NOT MET UNTIL NOW. I WANT TO WELCOME YOU INTO THE EIGHTH ARMY AND TELL YOU HOW PLEASED I AM TO HAVE THE FIFTH CORPS. THE EIGHTH ARMY IS ONE GREAT BIG FAMILY AND THEREIN LIES ITS STRENGTH. IT IS A GREAT ARMY, NOR ALWAYS STRONG IN NUMBERS BUT IT HAS GREAT MORAL STRENGTH. WE NEVER GO INTO BATTLE WITHOUT EVERY SOLDIER KNOWING WHAT IS WANTED."

MONTGOMERY SAID THAT IN THE PAST TWO MONTHS THE COURSE OF THE WAR HAD UNDERGONE A GREAT CHANGE WITH SICILY CAPTURED, THE ITALIAN MAINLAND INFADED, AND THE GERMANS FIGHTING DEFENSIVELY FOR THEIR LIVES ON THE RUSSIAN FRONT.

SEP 26 1943

"WHEN WE BEGAN--FOR WE DID NOT START IT--I DIDN'T THINK IT WAS POSSIBLE TO TELL HOW IT WOULD END. TODAY YOU CAN SEE DEFINITELY HOW THIS WAR IS GOING TO END," HE CONCLUDED.

AN AMERICAN FIGHTER PLANE BASE IN ITALY, SEPT 18-(DELAYED)-(AP)-A YOUNG INVADER PILOT TOLD TODAY HOW AMERICAN FIGHTER PILOTS DESTROYED A DOZEN GERMAN MESSERSCHMITTS THEY SURPRISED ON A FIELD BELOW ROME.

"WE HAD BEEN PATROLLING NORTH AND EAST OF SALERNO LOOKING FOR ROAD CONVOYS AND WHEN WE DIDN'T SEE ANYTHING WORTH GOING AFTER WE WENT ON FURTHER UNTIL WE SAW THIS FIELD," SAID LT.JOHN GEE, CROPSEY, ILL., THE FLIGHT LEADER.

"IT HAD BEEN VISITED BY OUR BOMBERS AND SOME 10 OR A DOZEN BIG ENEMY SHIPS HAD BEEN KNOCKED OUT ON THE FIELD. BUT WE ALSO SAW THAT SOME 20 TO 25 MESSERSCHMITTS HAD JUST LANDED AND HADN'T HAD TIME TO DISPERSE.

SEP 26 1943

"THEY WERE IN TWO GROUPS. WE BUZZED DOWN ON THEM AND THREE OF OUR SHIPS SCORED DIRECT HITS ON ONE GROUP AND THERE WAS A VERY NEAR MISS ON THE OTHER GROUP.

"ALL YOU COULD SEE WAS PARTS AND DUST FROM THE FIRST GROUP. WE CIRCLED AROUND AND COULD SEE THE FIRST GROUP WAS COMPLETELY WIPED OUT. WE WOULD SAY CONSERVATIVELY THAT WE DESTROYED 12 PLANES AND DAMAGED SEVERAL OTHERS.

"WE HAD DIVED TO WITHIN A FEW HUNDRED FEET BEFORE PULLING OUT. SOME SOLDIERS STANDING IN FRONT OF THE OPERATIONS BUILDING DIVED FOR COVER. THEY PUT UP QUITE A BIT OF SMALL ARMS AND MACHINE-GUN FIRE.

SEP 26 1943

BUT WE GOT AWAY BEFORE THEY GOT ORGANIZED."

LT.ROY A.JENSEN, JAMESTOWN, NORTH DAKOTA, ANOTHER A-36 FLIER WHO PARTICIPATED IN THE RAID, SAID THE AIPORT WAS GRASS FIELD NEAR FROSINONE, 45 MILES SOUTHEAST OF ROME.

SEP 26 1943

"IT WAS THE FIRST CIRCULAR AIRPORT I EVER SAW," JENSEN SAID. "THESE ARE HARD TO KNOCK OUT BECAUSE YOU CAN'T DO IT BY PUTTING A BOMB ON THE RUNWAY. THEY CAN TAKE OFF ANY PLACE ON THE FIELD, BUT WE SURE TOOK THEM BY SURPRISE. WE MOPPED UP A COMMAND CAR AND A RECONNAISSANCE CAR ON THE GROUND JUST BEFORE WE HIT THE AIRPORT."

OTHERS ON THE FLIGHT WERE:

LIEUTS. DONALD ("BUTTON") SMITH, GREEN BAY, WIS.; MILTON S. GRIFFIN, WEST ROXBURY, MASS.; WILLIAM L.DOTSOM, DENVER, COL.; THURMAN C.DUVALL, DOUGLAS, GA., AND WILLIAM W.HUMPHREY, HAMILTON, ILL.

THIS AGGRESSIVE FIGHTER OUTFIT SPARKED BY THE COMMANDING OFFICER, MAJ.CHARLES CASSIDY JR. OF DENVER, COLO., HAS BEEN A THORN IN THE SIDE OF THE GERMAN AIR FORCE ON NUMEROUS OCCASIONS BEFORE AND SINCE THE INVASION OF ITALY.

SEP 26 1943

CIRCLING IN TRAFFIC PATTERN AND PREPARING TO LAND, CAPT.ROBERT M.DUNCAN OF OREGON, MO., SAW A FLOCK OF FW-190S ATTACKING NAVAL VESSELS. ALTHOUGH CARRYING BOMBS ON HIS WINGS HE DISREGARDED THIS DISADVANTAGE AND PURSUED AND SHOT DOWN ONE OF THE ENEMY PLANES WITH HIS FIRST BURSTS.

EIGHT OF THE INVADERS TOOK ON 20 GERMAN AIRCRAFT OVER BATTIPAGLIA AFTER COMING OUT OF DIVES. LT.GERALD C.THOMPSON OF ALTAMONT, KANS., BROUGHT DOWN ONE FW-190 AND CHASED AWAY TWO MORE. IN ANOTHER SWEEPT LT.ROBERT B.WALSH OF FELT, IDA., BATTED DOWN A GERMAN RECONNAISSANCE PLANE.

BY HAL BOYLE

(ADVANCE)..AN AMERICAN AIRBASE IN ITALY, SEPT 18-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THIS IS ITALY. IT IS A SUNNY, WARM LAND AND THE TROOPS LIKE IT BETTER THAN NORTH AFRICA BECAUSE IT REMINDS THEM MORE OF HOME.

YOU CAN SLEEP AT NIGHT UNDER ONE BLANKET AND NOT BE TOO COLD.

YOU CAN SLEEP AT NIGHT UNDER ONE BLANKET AND NOT BE TOO COLD.

WHEN YOU WAKE UP IN THE MORNING YOUR CLOTHES ARE DAMP BECAUSE OF THE HEAVY DEW. THE LANDINGS WERE MADE ALONG A NARROW, FERTILE STRIP CRISS-CROSSED BY NUMEROUS IRRIGATION DITCHES FED WITH COLD, CLEAR WATER FROM THE NEARBY MOUNTAINS WHICH RUN UP ITALY LIKE A CENTRAL SPINE.

SEP 26 1943

THE LIFE-GIVING WATER FEEDS MANY CROPS BUT MOST OF ALL THE MOSQUITO CROP. THE PESTS ARE HERE IN ALMOST INTOLERABLE NUMBERS AND FOR AGES HAVE MADE THIS ALL BUT PERFECT LAND A BREEDING PLACE FOR ENERVATING MALARIA. THE MOSQUITOS HAVE SILENCERS ON THEIR MOTORS AND BUZZ IN FOR A LANDING WITHOUT A SOUND.

THEY LOOK LIKE A P-38 FIGHTER PLANE WITH A LANDING GEAR AT THE NOSE BUT THIS IS CAMOUFLAGE. IT IS NOT FOR LANDING AT ALL BUT IS A NEEDLE-POINTED STILETTO THAT RAISES A BUMP ON YOUR SKIN AS BIG AS A SMALL TURTLE. THESE MISQUITOS DO NOT GIVE IN EASILY. THEY ARE AS HARD TO CATCH AS A HIP-WEAVING HALF-BACK IN A BROKEN FIELD. IT TAKES ONE BLOW TO CRUMPLE A WING AND TWO MORE QUICK ONES TO FINISH HIM OFF.

THEY DIE GAMELY, TRYING TO GIVE YOU A LAST STAB WITH THEIR NOSE DAGGER. THERE IS NO "UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER" IN THE ITALIAN MOSQUITO'S VOCABULARY.

30.24-8771

THE FIELDS ARE RICHLY BURDENED NOW WITH GARDEN CROPS AND FRUITS AND YOU NEVER HAVE TO WALK MORE THAN 100 YARDS IN ANY DIRECTION TO FIND GRAPES, APPLES, MELONS OR TOMATOES. THE PURPLE GRAPES ARE NOT AS LUSH AS THE AMERICAN CONCORD VARIETY AND ARE USED MORE FOR MAKING WINE THAN FOR THE TABLE. ONE VARIETY OF GREEN GRAPE IS POPULAR WITH THE SOLDIERS BECAUSE OF ITS ODD SHAPE.

LOCAL PRODUCE GROWERS ARE FINDING AN ALMOST UNLIMITED MARKET IN ARMY MESS COOKS WHO ARE USING THE TOMATOES AND ONIONS TO SPICE THE MONOTONY OF "C" RATIONS.

SEP 26 1943

THE APPLES ARE SMALL AND HARD AND DISTINCTLY INFERIOR TO A HALF-DOZEN WELL KNOWN AMERICAN-GROWN BRNDS.

THE BOYS FROM CALIFORNIA AND TEXAS ARE HAVING A FIELD DAY CLIMBING BROADLEAFED FIG TREES TO PLUCK THE SOFT PURPLE FRUIT. TROOPS FROM THE NORTHERN STATES ARE ABOUT 50-50 ON THE QUESTION OF EDIBILITY OF FRESH FIGS. HALF OF THEM LIKE THEM AND HALF OF THEM DON'T. SOME PREFER TO MUNCH THEM AFTER THE FIGS ARE DRIED.

THERE IS MORE TURF AND PASTURELAND THAN IN TUNISIA OR SICILY AND AS A RESULT THERE ARE MORE DAIRY CATTLE AND HORSES. THE UBIQUITOUS DONKEY AND GOAT ARE ALSO PRESENT IN NUMBERS. THERE ARE MANY OXEN, GREAT GOLDEN BROWN-SKINNED ANIMALS THAT LOOK AS BIG AS THE BROOKLYN BRIDGE AND ARE JUST ABOUT AS SLUGGISH. THEY ARE SO HUGE AND POWERFUL ONE WONDERS WHY THEY DON'T HOOK A HORN INTO THE FARMER WHO DRIVES THEM AND TOSS HIM A COUNTRY MILE. THEIR HORNS ARE AS WIDE AS A JEEP BUT THEY ARE ALL AS MEEK AS FERDINAND, FOR THEY HAVE PEDDLED THEIR STRENGTH FOR A FULL BELLY.

THE DAIRY CATTLE ARE ON A GRAND SCALE TOO. GREAT WHITE CREATURES WHICH ARE GIVING THEIR ALL TO THE TROOPS, MANY OF WHOM HAVEN'T HAD A GLASS OF FRESH MILK SINCE LEAVING THE UNITED STATES.

THE BATTLE AGAINST THE GERMANS HAS DISLOCATED THE LOCAL DAIRY MARKETS AND THE FARMERS WOULD HAVE TO WASTE TOO MUCH OF THEIR MILK EXCEPT FOR THE SOLDIERS.

MOST OF THE FARM DWELLINGS ARE OLD STONE HOUSES HELD TOGETHER BY CAKED DIRT AND COBWEBS, BUT THERE ARE SOME MODEL COMMUNITIES WITH NEAT NEW HOMES OF YELLOW AND CREAM PLASTER, WINDOW-SCREENED TO KEEP OUT SWARMING FLIES AND MOSQUITOS.

KEEPING TO THEIR OLD WAYS, SOME OF THE PEASANTS STILL PILE THE FRONT ROOM FULL OF UNSACKED WHEAT AND PERMIT THE CHICKENS AND OTHER BARNYARD DENIZENS TO WANDER ABOUT THE ROOMS AT WILL.

A TYPICAL HOME OF THE BETTER CLASS WILL HAVE THE LIVING ROOM HUNG WITH CHEAP COLOR PRINTS OF LIFE IN THE DAYS OF ANCIENT ROME AND THE BEDROOM WALLS ARE DECORATED WITH NUMEROUS RELIGIOUS PICTURES. SYMBOLS OF THE CROSS ARE EVERYWHERE, FOR RELIGION PLAYS A GREAT ROLE IN THE LIFE OF THIS CATHOLIC COUNTRY AND THE PRIESTS HAVE GREAT RESPECT AND AUTHORITY.

SEP 26 1943

TOBACCO IS ONE OF THE CHIEF CROPS IN THE SALERNO AREA WHERE THE LANDINGS WERE MADE. LONG RACKS IN GREAT WAREHOUSES OPEN TO THE WIND ARE HUNG WITH DRYING LEAVES AND THE FRAGRANT PLANTS ARE FLOWERING IN THE FIELDS.

DON WHITEHEAD OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS, WHO HIMSELF IS A PRODUCT OF HARLAN, KY., EXAMINED SOME OF THE DRYING TOBACCO AND PRONOUNCED IT DISTINCTLY INFERIOR TO THE BEST KENTUCKY LEAF.

SEP 26 1943

I MYSELF DON'T SMOKE AND SO HAD TO TAKE HIS WORD FOR IT.

THE ITALIAN HILL VILLAGES ARE CRUSTED WITH CENTURIES OF DIRT. NARROW COBBLESTONED STREETS TWIST LIKE SLEEPY SNAKES PAST MALODOROUS

DARK STONE HOUSES BUILT INTO THE MOUNTAINSIDE IN SUCH A WAY THAT THEY ARE LITTLE MORE THAN CAVES.

LITTLE DIRT-FLECKED CHILDREN TWO AND THREE YEARS OLD RUN ABOUT NAKED. THEY CRY WHEN TOO MANY FLIES CLUSTER ON THEIR SORES. LITTLE GIRLS, EAGER TO ASSUME THE MATERNAL DUTIES THAT BURDEN THEM THROUGH LIFE CARE TENDERLY FOR THEIR BABY BROTHERS AND SISTERS.

THE ITALIANS THEMSELVES ARE MORE RESERVED THAN THE SICILIANS. THEY DO NOT PAW OVER THE TROOPS. IN A COUNTRY WHERE MANY WERE MADE WEALTHY AND INFLUENTIAL BY FASCISM IT IS TOO MUCH TO EXPECT THAT ALL WILL WELCOME THE ALLIES.

SEP 26 1943

AMERICAN SOLDIERS GOING INTO A NEWLY-TAKEN TOWN REMARK THAT THERE ARE ALWAYS SOME UNFRIENDLY FACES AMONG THE THRONG WHO GATHER TO GREET THEM. THE PEOPLE AS A WHOLE, HOWEVER, SEEM GLAD TO SEE THE TROOPS.

THE ITALIANS AS A WHOLE HAVE REALLY LOST INTEREST IN THE WAR EXCEPT AS IT AFFECTS THEIR INDIVIDUAL CONCERNS. THEY TAKE NO ACTIVE PART IN THE FIGHTING AND THEY ARE GLAD THE GERMANS ARE BEING DRIVEN FROM THEIR COUNTRY. BUT IN THE SECTIONS WHERE THE NAZIS ARE STILL ENTRENCHED THERE ARE NO GREAT MASS UPRISINGS TO ROOT THEM OUT.

THE ITALIAN PEOPLE FIGURE THE ALLIES ARE A NEW BROOM AND THEY ARE SITTING BACK WAITING FOR IT TO SWEEP THEIR NATION CLEAN AGAIN.

SEP 26 1943

(ADVANCE) AN ALLIED AIRBASE SOUTH OF SALERNO, SEPT.14TH-(AP)-(DELAYED)- ONE OF THE FIRST AIRPLANES TO LAND IN THE ALLIED BRIDGEHEAD SOUTH OF SALERNO WAS PILOTED BY A 21-YEAR-OLD ITALIAN FLIER WHO ESCAPED FROM AN AIRFIELD IN NORTHERN ITALY BECAUSE HE PREFERRED TO PITCH IN WITH THE AMERICANS RATHER THAN THE GERMANS.

"WE LISTENED TO BROADCASTS FROM ROME, LONDON, BOLOGNIA AND BERLIN," HE SAID, "AND MOST OF US DECIDED TO JOIN YOU. WE KNEW THAT IF WE STAYED WHERE WE ERE THE GERMANS WOULD FORCE US TO FLY IN GERMANY OR AGAINST RUSSIA."

THE YOUNG PILOT, WHO LIVED IN GENOA, SAID THAT SOME ITALIAN FLIERS HAD NEARLY CHANGED INTO CIVILIAN CLOTHING. HE HIMSELF CLIMBED INTO A FIGHTER TRAINER SHIP AND TOOK OFF AS THE GERMANS CAME TO TAKE OVER THE FIELD. ALTHOUGH HE HAD BEEN IN THE ARMY 14 MONTHS HE HAD NEVER FLOWN IN COMBAT.

SEP 26 1943

HE MADE THE 300-MILE HOP IN TWO HOURS, HE SAID, AND FIRST CIRCLED THE NAPLES AREA INTENDING TO LAND THERE.

"THINGS DIDN'T LOOK QUITE RIGHT SO I CONTINUED ON UNTIL I SAW YOUR INVASION FLEET," HE SAID. "I CIRCLED AROUND IT AND THEN CAME ON AND LANDED AT THE FIRST FIELD I SAW."

HE TALKED TO LT.COL. VINCENT SHEEAN, AUTHOR AND NEWSPAPERMAN WHO SPEAKS ITALIAN. THE YOUNG FLIER WAS PUT IN AN AMERICAN UNIT THAT CAME UNDER GERMAN ARTILLERY FIRE A DAY AFTER HE LANDED. HE SEEMED TO ENJOY THE EXPERIENCE AND TWICE SHEEAN HAD TO SHEPHERD HIM TO COVER.

YOUR LIFE SEEMS MUCH MORE VALUABLE TO YOU WHEN SOMEONE IS TRYING TO TAKE IT AWAY FROM YOU. WHATEVER FATE MAY BEFALL THE TROOPS BATTLING TO SECURA AND EXTEND WHIS BRIDGEHEAD IN ITALY, THERE IS LITTLE PROSPECT OF THEM DYING OF BOREDOM. EVERY MANJACK HAS BEEN WITHIN REACH OF NAZI ARTILLERY FIRE SINCE COMING ASHORE. THE SOUND OF SHELLFIRE HAS BEEN ALMOST CONTINUOUS, AND WHEN IT DOES FADE TO A MUTED THUNDER THE SKIES ARE CLOUDED BLACK AND WHITE WITH BURSTING ACK-ACK AND THE THUMPING ROAR OF ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUNS.

IN THIS HELL OF SOUND AND DUST AND BATTLE FURY THE TROOPS HAVE BEEN FIGHTING ALMOST WITHOUT REST SINCE THEY STORMED INTO ITALY ALMOST A WEEK AGO UNDER THE FRONT LINE FIRE OF GERMAN MOBILE 88 MM GUNS SET UP ON THE BEACHES.

SEP 26 1943

FIELD COLUMNS FLUNG OUT BY THE ALLIES HAVE SEIZED AND HELD COASTAL STRIPS ADJOINING THE LANDING BEACHES FOR SEVERAL MILES. THE GERMANS ARE ENTRENCHED IN BORDERING HILLS FROM WHICH THEY MAKE PERIODIC SORTIES WITH TANKS AND INFANTRY. THE FIGHTING HAS BEEN OF GREATER FEROCITY THAN ANY PREVIOUS AMPHIBIOUS OPERATION IN THIS THEATER. IN ADDITION TO THEIR GROUND SORTIES THE NAZIS HAVE TRIED, WITH HIT-RUN AIR RAIDS AND NIGHT BOMBER ATTACKS, TO BREAK UP BRITISH AND AMERICAN ADVANCES AND OVERRUN THEIR POSITIONS IN STRONG COUNTER THRUSTS.

BUT ALLIED AIR POWER HAS BEEN SUPREME. IT HAS BEEN THE DECISIVE FACTOR--A MIGHTY FIST CLOSED AND ABLE TO MASS ITS MOBILE POWER AT ANY POINT. BRITISH AND AMERICAN FLIERS BY DAY AND NIGHT ARE KEEPING ENEMY AIRCRAFT AWAY OR SHOOTING THEM DOWN OVER THE LANDING POINT, STRAFING AND DESTROYING ENEMY SUPPLY COLUMNS AND BLASTING ENEMY STRONG POINTS AND TANK CONCENTRATIONS. YOU CAN SEE OUR PLANES OVER-HEAD--THE SKY IS NEVER EMPTY OF THEM--AND YOU CAN HEAR AND SOMETIMES WATCH THEM SMASH THEIR BOMBS ON THE GERMANS IN THE SMALL ACTION PACK-ED BATTLE ARENA. TWICE IN THE LAST TWO DAYS I HAVE WATCHED THEM RIDDLE ENEMY PLANES IN THE TWILIGHT, AND SAW THE FLAMING NAZI CRAFT PLUMMET DOWN LIKE FLYING STARS.

THE BITTERNESS OF THIS FIGHT, INTO WHICH THE GERMANS HAVE THROWN EVERY OUNCE OF THEIR STRENGTH, HAS STIRRED THE BATTLE SPIRIT OF EVERY SOLDIER ENGAGED, MAKING HIM REALIZE THAT HERE INDEED IS THE REAL WAR FOR SURVIVAL. FOR THE SECURING OF THIS BEACHHEAD SPELLS THE BEGINNING OF THE END FOR HITLER AND WHAT HE STANDS FOR.

WATCHING ONE FLIGHT OF AMERICAN B25 BOMBERS HURLING TONS OF EXPLOSIVES AT THE NAZI FOREMAN, A CHAPLAIN SHOUTED EXCITEDLY:

"I HOPE THEY ARE HITTING THEM!"

"THAT'S A FINE THING FOR A CHAPLAIN TO SAY," ONE OF HIS FRIENDS SAID JOHINGLY.

SEP 26 1943

"WHAT DO YOU MEAN?" THE SKY PILOT ANSWERED. "CHAPLAIN OR NO CHAPLAIN, IF WE DON'T HIT THEM THEY'RE GOING TO HIT US. THAT MAKES SENSE TO ME."

THAT'S THE WAY EVERY SOLDIER FEELS ABOUT IT IN THIS BATTLE, WHERE YOUR THREE BEST FRIENDS ARE YOUR GUN, YOUR HELMET AND YOUR FOXHOLE--AND YOUSLEEP WITHIN REACH OF ALL THREE.

SEP 25 1943

(ADVANCE) ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, SEPT 22-(AP)-OUT OF THE ASHES OF THE ITALIAN ARMISTICE HAS COME THE FIRST GREAT POLITICAL MESS OF WORLD WAR II, FAR DWARFING THE ALLIED ACCEPTANCE OF ADMIRAL JEAN DARLAN AND POSING THE GREATEST ETHICAL PROBLEM OF THE WAR.

THESE ARE FACTS EVIDENT IN AFRICA AND IN ITALY.

A FEW DAYS AGO THE ITALIANS WERE DEADLY ENEMIES.

TODAY SOME ARE FIGHTING BESIDE THE ALLIES. SOME ARE FIGHTING BESIDE THE GERMANS, SOME ROAM AFRICA AND ITALY AS "TECHNICAL [redacted]NEMIES," BUT FREE TO COME AND GO AS THEY PLEASE IN THE UNIFORMS OF THE ITALIAN ARMED FORCES.

DIVISIONS IN SARDINIA FOUGHT THE GERMANS AS THOUGH THEY WERE FIGHTING AT THE SIDE OF THE ALLIES. PREMIER BADOGLIO, IN A SPEECH OVER AN ALLIED-CONTROLLED ITALIAN RADIO, SAID "NOW, SIDE BY SIDE WITH

30.24-8775

THE ANGLO-AMERICANS, THERE IS ITALY. X X X WE ARE COOPERATING SIDE BY SIDE WITH THE ANGLO-AMERICANS, WHO ARE NOW ACCEPTING OUR ASSISTANCE IN THE TASK OF DRIVING THE GERMANS FROM THE COUNTRY."

BADOGLIO SURRENDERED UNCONDITIONALLY, BUT IN HIS SPEECH HE ADDED: "DO NOT FORGET THAT ALL TALK ABOUT UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER IS OUT OF DATE AND IRRELEVANT TO CHANGED CONDITIONS OF TODAY."

THERE ARE FEW PRECEDENTS IN INTERNATIONAL ARRAIRS FOR A WHOLE GOVERNMENT TO CHANGE FROM ONE SIDE TO ANOTHER IN THE MIDDLE OF A WAR, PARTICULARLY A GOVERNMENT HEADED BY MEN WHO AT ONE TIME OR ANOTHER PROSECUTED A POLICY OF AGGRESSION SO AVIDLY AS THE PRESENT MEMBERS OF THE ITALIAN GOVERNMENT.

SEP 25 1943

BADOGLIO BROUGHT THE FIRST ACT OF AGGRESSION, THE ETHIOPIAN CAMPAIGN, TO A SUCCESSFUL CONCLUSION AND HIS FASCIST ARMIES UNSUCCESSFULLY TRIED TO OVERRUN THE STOUT GREEKS.

EXCEPT FOR A ROOSEVELT-CHURCHILL STATEMENT THAT THE FATE OF THE ITALIANS DEPENDS ON THEIR BEHAVIOR FROM THE TIME OF THE ARMISTICE ON, THERE IS NO DEFINITE INTERNATIONAL POLICY SET DOWN BY BRITAIN, RUSSIA AND THE UNITED STATES FOR DEALING WITH THE DEFEATED FOE.

IN AFRICAN PRISON CAMPS ARE THOUSANDS OF ITALIAN SOLDIERS CAPTURED BEFORE THE ARMISTICE.

SEP 25 1943

SEP 25 1943

IN AFRICA AND ITALY ARE THOUSANDS OF ITALIAN AVIATORS, SOLDIERS AND SAILORS WHO, IF NOT ACTIVELY FIGHTING AT THE SIDE OF THE ALLIES, ARE ALLOWED TO MOVE AS THEY PLEASE BECAUSE THEY SURRENDERED ON TIME.

WHAT THE ALLIES WILL DO TO FASCIST SOLDIERS FIGHTING BESIDE THE GERMANS, IF AND WHEN THEY ARE CAPTURED, NO ONE KNOWS.

ITALIAN GROUND AND NAVAL FORCES BROUGHT INTO THE ALLIED CAMP AFTER THE ARMISTICE WERE NOT DISARMED. IN TARANTO, ITALIAN ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUNS FIRE AT GERMAN PLANES. NOT SO LONG AGO THE SAME GUNNERS BLASTED THE SKIES ABOUT ALLIED PLANES.

IT IS PRESUMED THAT UNDER THE PRESENT SITUATION THE REGIMENTS AND DIVISIONS WHICH TWO YEARS AGO INVADED GREECE WILL NOW FIGHT ON THE ALLIED SIDE---WITH THE GREEKS IF THE GREEKS WOULD HAVE THEM, WHICH IS DOUBTFUL. AND IT IS DIFFICULT TO PICTURE THE YUGOSLAV GUERRILLAS WELCOMING ITALIAN TROOPS WITH OPEN ARMS.

THE MOST STRIKING EXAMPLE OF THE POLITICAL FOG OF THE ARMISTICE IS BADOGLIO'S COMMAND OF SARDINIA WHERE THE ITALIANS DROVE OUT THE GERMANS AND ARE NOW ON THE SIDE OF THE ALLIES.

CONTRARY TACTICS OF DEALING WITH THE ITALIANS UNDER THE DIFFERENT CIRCUMSTANCES HAS LEFT AMERICAN AND BRITISH TROOPS AS WELL AS THEIR ALLIES, SUCH AS THE FRENCH, IN A STATE OF POLITICAL CONFUSION.

PRESUMABLY THIS "LOCAL SOLUTION" POLICY HAS BEEN FOLLOWED ON THE GROUNDS OF "MILITARY EXPEDIENCY," BUT MANY WHO WERE READY TO RECOGNIZE SUCH A REASON FOR DEALING WITH DARLAN ARE NOT READY TO DO SO WITH THE ITALIANS, WHO AT BEST ARE CERTAINLY OF DOUBTFUL MILITARY VALUE AS ALLIES.

SEP 25 1943

WHILE GEN. DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER IS THE MAN DEALING WITH BADOGLIO'S GOVERNMENT, HIS ACTIONS ARE DIRECTED BY PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT AND PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL. #

ALGIERS, SEPT. 24-(AP)-FRENCH MEMBERS OF THE PROVINCIAL "FINANCIAL DELEGATION" UNANIMOUSLY APPROVED TODAY AN INCREASE IN TAXATION AND THE EXPENDITURE OF AN ADDITIONAL 257,000,000 FRANCS (ABOUT $5,140,000) FOR THE FRENCH WAR EFFORT AFTER GOVERNOR GENERAL GEORGES CATROUX HAD DISSOLVED THE NATIVE BRANCHES OF THE DELEGATION.

CATROUX'S ACTION, ANNOUNCED PRIOR TO THE BUDGET VOTE, SWEPT OUT

30 ARABS AND KABYLES (MOUNTAIN DWELLERS) LEAVING ONLY 40 FRENCH MEN ON THE COUNCIL WHICH IS CHARGED WITH PASSING THE PROVINCIAL BUDGET.

CATROUX REFERRED TO THE ABSENCE OF THE ENTIRE NATIVE DELEGA[illegible] FROM THE PRECEDING COUNCIL MEETING, WHICH ACTION HE SAID WAS FOMENTED BY FERHAT ABBAS AND SAYAH ABDELKADER, ARAB LEADERS ARRESTED YESTERDAY, AND ADDED THIS ABSENCE FORCED HIM TO ORDER THE DISSOLUTION UNDER THE LAW OF 1898.

CHUNGKING, SEPT. 24-(AP)-THE JAPANESE ARE SEEKING SITES IN THE SOUTH CHINA COASTAL PROVINCES OF KWANTUNG AND FUKIEN FOR LARGE AIRFIELDS TO COUNTER POSSIBLE ALLIED BASES IN EAST CHINA FROM WHICH JAPAN COULD BE BOMBED, MAJOR GENERAL PAO KAI, CHINESE ARMY SPOKESMAN, TOLD A PRESS CONFERENCE TODAY.

THE SPOKESMAN ASCRIBED A RECENT JAPANESE ATTACK ON SANTAO ISLAND, SOME 40 MILES NORTH OF FOOCHOW, TO FEAR THAT THE HARBOR THERE WAS BEING USED AS AN ALLIED SUBMARINE BASE. HE DECLARED THE JAPANESE WERE DRIVEN OUT THE SAME DAY THEY LANDED.

HE ADDED 13 ENGAGEMENTS HAD OCCURRED ON DIFFERENT CHINESE FRONTS IN THE PAST WEEK, WITH THE JAPANESE TAKING THE INITIATIVE IN FIVE AND THE CHINESE IN EIGHT.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, SEPT.24-(AP)-TWO AMERICAN FLIERS WHO DISREGARDED THE ODDS TO PILE INTO JAPANESE PLANES HAVE BEEN AWARDED THE SILVER STAR BY LT.GEN.GEORGE C. KENNEY, COMMANDER OF ALLIED AIRFORCES IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC.

THE HONORS WENT TO CAPT.MARTIN P.ALGER, 1901 TENTH AVE., FORT DODGE, IA.., AND FIRST LT.JOHN G.O'NEILL, GASPORT, N.Y.

CAPTAIN ALGER, LEADING A FLIGHT OF P-38S OVER NEW GUINEA LAST APRIL 12, ATTACKED A FORMATION OF ESCORTED JAPANESE BOMBERS. AFTER SHOOTING DOWN ONE ENEMY PLANE, ALGER NOTED FIVE JAPANESE PLANES ATTACKING HIS COMRADES. HE ATTACKED THEM AND BROKE UP THE FORMATION, SUSTAINING DAMAGE TO HIS OWN PLANE BUT SUCCEEDING IN LANDING WITH ONE ENGINE OPERATING.

LIEUTENANT O'NEILL LAST MARCH ATTACKED FOUR JAPANESE BOMBERS MAKING A RUN OVER ORO BAY, NEW GUINEA, AND SHOT DOWN THE LEAD PLANE. WITH TWO ZEROS ALREADY ON HIS TAIL, HE ATTACKED A FLIGHT OF FOUR ENEMY FIGHTERS AND CONTINUED THE ENGAGEMENT UNTIL THE ENEMY FORMATION WAS BROKEN UP.

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA,SEPT 24 (AP)-MAJOR CHARLES GALLUP OF CHICAGO, ILL., WHO HOLDS DOWN AN OFFICE JOB WITH THE FIFTH AIR FORCE, WANTED A "LITTLE EXCITEMENT." WELL, HE GOT IT.

GALLUP HOPPED INTO A P-38 WHEN WORD CAME THAT 20 TO 30 JAPANESE BOMBERS, WITH AN ESCORT OF 30 TO 40 FIGHTERS, WERE ATTEMPTING TO DISRUPT LANDINGS OF AUSTRALIAN TROOPS ON THE BEACH NORTH OF FINSCHHAFEN, NEW GUINEA, TWO DAYS AGO.

SO HE HAD A FRONT SEAT TO THE FLAMING SPECTACLE THAT FOLLOWED AS AMERICAN LIGHTNINGS, MARAUDERS AND P-40'S SHOT DOWN 40 ENEMY PLANES AND PLACED FIVE MORE IN THE "PROBABLE" CLASS.

(TODAY'S ALLIED COMMUNIQUE SAID THE AIR BATTLE LASTED 25 MINUTES, AND THAT WE LOST THREE PLANES, SAVING ONE PILOT.)

"OUR FIGHTERS," SAID GALLUP, "HIT THOSE NIPS LIKE A TON OF BRICKS--ONLY A LOT FASTER AND HARDER."

GALLUP FLEW ALONG WITH ONE FIGHTER ELEMENT IN A PLANE DUBBED "TAIL END CHARLIE. THE PILOTS FIRST SIGHTED THE ENEMY AT ABOUT 12,000 FEET, AND THEN, GALLUP RELATED, "PLANES FROM ALL OVER THE SKY POURED DOWN IN HOT DIVES TO GET INTO THEM.

"WE SAW THUNDERBOLTS AND P-40'S TEARING INTO THE JAPS, SENDING BOMBERS AND FIGHTERS FLAMING INTO THE BRINK. SOME OF THOSE FIGHTERS ALMOST GOT INTO THE SEAT WITH THE JAPS, THEY FIRED AT THEM SO CLOSE."

AFTER DROPPING BOMBS FROM LOW ALTITUDE, THE JAPANESE ATTEMPTED TO GET AWAY, BUT GALLUP SAID OUR FLIERS SAW FIVE OR SIX ENEMY FIGHTERS HEADING FOR HOME AND TOOK AFTER THEM.

SEP 25 1943

"THE FIRST PART OF OUR FLIGHT KNOCKED THEM DOWN. THEN ONT OF THE BEST SPLIT SECOND DEALS I HAVE EVER SEEN HAPPENED. ONE JAP DECIDED TO TEAR AROUND THE OTHER SIDE OF A HUGE CLOUD TO TRY AND GET AWAY. A THUNDERBOLT COMING FROM THE OPPOSITE DIRECTION MET HIM AND HIS 50 CALIBERS DEMOLISHED THAT GUY IN SECONDS."

FLIGHT LEADERS IN THE FIGHT INCLUDED CAPT.CHARLES W.KING, COLUMBUS, OHIO; CAPT.HARTLD M.MCCLELLAND, 917 WEST HILL, AVON PARK, FLA., AND MAJOR DAVID A.CAMPBELL, PLATTSBURGH, OHIO.

GUADALCANAL,SEPT 21 (DELAYED) (AP)-A GEORGIAN COAST ARTILLERY UNIT TEAMED UP WITH YANKEE FLIERS EARLY TODAY TO DOWN TWO JAPANESE TWIN-ENGINED BOMBERS AND DRIVE OTHERS AWAY DURING AN ENEMY AIR RAID THAT HAD AN APPRECIATIVE GROUND AUDIENCE.

THE ARTILLERY UNIT, MADE UP MOSTLY OF GEORGIA SOLDIERS, CAUGHT THE BOMBERS IN THEIR SEARCHLIGHTS, AND 2ND LT.HENRY MEIGS, 22, OF 1165 FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK CITY, SHOT THEM DOWN FROM HIS P-38 FIGHTER PLANE.

SOLDIERS, SAILORS AND MARINES WATCHED THE AERIAL DUEL, AND CHEERED AS THE ENEMY PLANES CAME DOWN IN FLAMES. TWO OTHER EYEWITNESSES WERE ADMIRAL WILLIAM F.HALSEY, JR., COMMANDER OF U.S. SOUTH PACIFIC FORCES, AND SENATOR HENRY CABOT LODGE OF MASSACHUSETTS, VISITING THE ISLAND AT THE TIME.

TWO MEN WERE KILLED ON THE GROUND AND A SMALL NUMBER WOUNDED.

(THE NAVY, IN WASHINGTON, REPORTED THE ENEMY RAIDING GROUP WAS COMPOSED OF "12 OR 16 ENEMY BOMBERS," LARGEST REPORTED OVER THE ISLAND IN THE CENTRAL SOLOMONS IN MANY WEEKS.)

SEP 25 1943

THE TAIL OF MEIGS' PLANE WAS HIT AND A 15-INCH SQUARE TORN OUT EARLY IN THE FIGHT WITH THE JAPANESE BOMBERS, BUT HE SAID THE DAMAGE DIDN'T BOTHER THE LIGHTNING'S EFFICIENCY.

"I NEVER HAD A BETTER TIME IN MY LIFE," HE SAID LATER.

THE YOUNG PILOT, SON OF MR. AND MRS.A.P.JOBSON (CORRECT), WON PROMOTION TO FIRST LIEUTENANT AND WAS AWARDED THE ARMY'S SILVER STAR SHORTLY AFTER HIS AERIAL VICTORY.

THE SEARCHLIGHT UNIT RECEIVED A "WELL DONE" FROM THE SOLOMONS AIRCRAFT COMMANDER.

SEP 25 1943

COL.JOHN E.STODDARD, WASHINGTON, GA., COMMANDED THE ARTILLERY UNIT. HIS EXECUTIVE OFFICER WAS LT.COL.JACK G.JOHNSON, THOMSON, GA. LT.COL.ALFRED MONSALVATGE (CORRECT), AUGUSTA, GA., WAS IN DIRECT COMMAND OF THE SEARCHLIGHTS.

MEIGS, A FORMER INSURANCE UNDERWRITER, RECEIVED PRAISE FROM ALL HANDS. ONE RADIO MESSAGE FROM THE NEARBY RUSSELL ISLANDS, WHERE

THE FLAMING ENEMY BOMBERS WERE SF N, SAID: "CONGRATULATIONS. DAMN NICE NIGHTS WORK."

FOUR STRINGS OF BOMBS FELL ON THE ISLAND. THEY CAUSED NO SERIOUS DAMAGE OTHER THAN TO SCATTERED A LUMBER PILE. BODIES OF SOME OF THE ENEMY PERSONNEL SHOWED THEM TO HAVE BEEN NAVY AIRMEN.

THE SAME NIGHT, THE JAPANESE RAIDED MUNDA ON NEW GEORGIA ISLAND BUT THE ATTACK PROVED INEFFECTIVE. IT WAS THE SAME STORY ELSEWHERE: SIX LARGE AND MANY SMALL BOMBS DROPPED ON SEGI ALL FELL INTO THE WATER. BARAKOMA ON VELLA LAVELLA RECEIVED SEVERAL ATTACKS; ALL THE BOMBS LANDED IN THE WATER.

"WITH A SUCCESSION OF FLIGHTS RANGING FROM 5,000 TO 15,000 FEET, WE DROPPED 34 TONS.

"AT THE SAME TIME APPROXIMATELY, NAURU RECEIVED ATTENTION OF ANOTHER BOMBING GROUP IN WHICH NAVY LIBERATORS PARTICIPATED AND STRUCK JAP PHOSPHATE PLANTES, DISPERSAL AREAS AND THE DOCK AREA--PHOSPHATES ARE VERY GOOD FOR MAKING RICE GROW, ALSO FOR MAKING MUNITIONS.

SEP 25 1943

AFTER THE ARMY SOFTENED UP TARAWA, NAVY PLANES ATTACKED IT FOR 10 HOURS "ALMOST WITHOUT INTERRUPTION," HOLZAPFEL SAID. WHEN THE ARMY PLANES CAME BACK THE NEXT DAY, THEY MET BOTH ANTI-AIRCRAFT AND ZEROS.

AIR GROUP COMMANDER LEONARD B.SUTHERLAND, 38, OF FORT PAYNE, ALA., HAD A WORD TO ADD FOR THE NEW GRUMAN HELLCATS.

A NAVY MAN, SUTHERLAND SAID SOME OF THE FIGHTERS WHICH TEAMED WITH NAVY DIVEBOMBERS IN ATTACKING TARAWA "CAME BACK WITH PALMS AND GRASS IN THEIR GUNS."

"GRASS?" I ASKED.

MEXICO CITY, SEPT. 24-(AP)-ALL MEXICAN WORKERS EARNING LESS THAN 10 PESOS ($2.06) A DAY WERE GRANTED SALARY INCREASES RANGING FROM FIVE TO 50 PER CENT TODAY UNDER A DECREE SIGNED BY PRESIDENT AVILA CAMACHO.

THE PRESIDENT'S ACTION WAS AN EFFORT TO CLOSE THE GAP BETWEEN WAGES AND PRICES WHICH WERE FROZEN SEVERAL DAYS AGO.

URBAN WORKERS WILL RECEIVE INCREASES RANGING FROM FIVE PER CENT FOR THOSE EARNING BETWEEN NINE AND TEN PESOS TO 50 PER CENT TO PERSONS EARNING LESS THAN ONE PESO. FARM WORKERS WERE GRANTED INCREASES OF FROM 40 TO 50 PER CENT.

PAY CUTS IMPOSED IN 1937 ON EMPLOYES OF THE GOVERNMENT OIL ADMINISTRATION WILL BE ELIMINATED AND GOVERNMENT SALARIES ALSO WILL BE RAISED.

IF SALARIES HAVE BEEN INCREASED SINCE JAN. 1 THE NEW RAISES NEED NOT BE GIVEN BY PRIVATE INDUSTRIES UNLESS THEY ARE BELOW THE AVERAGE SET IN A TABLE OF THE DECREE.

SALARIES ALSO WERE FROZEN UNDER THE DECREE, WHICH WAS ISSUED IN WAR-TIME SUSPENSION OF THE CONSTITUTION.

ANOTHER SECTION OF THE DECREE GAVE LOCAL GOVERNMENTS 30 DAYS TO CLOSE ALL SALOONS AND OTHER "VICE CENTERS" WITHIN A MILE OF WORK CENTERS. THIS STEP WAS TAKEN TO INCREASE PRODUCTION.

VIOLATIONS OF THE DECREE MAY BE PUNISHED BY GOVERNMENT INTERVENTION IN THE BUSINESS OR BY FINES UP TO $10,000.

THE CONVENTION WAS TOLD THAT THE FOUR WORKERS--JOHN A.DECKER, ROY A.COOK, GENEVIA HERRING AND FLOSTELLA JUSTICE--WERE SUSPENDED FROM

SEP 25 1943

WORK AND FROM THE UNION FOR THEIR PARTICIPATION IN A THREE-DAY WORK STOPPAGE IN THE U.S. RUBBER PLANT, DETROIT, OVER THE INTRODUCTION OF NEGRO WOMEN WORKERS INTO THE PLANT.

THE WORKERS SINCE HAVE BEEN RE-INSTATED, AND ONE OTHER,

TODAY THE CONVENTION UPHELD THE BOARD'S STAND AND THE RIGHT OF THE PRESIDENT TO SUSPEND A UNION MEMBER WHO ENGAGES IN STOPPAGES AND SLOWDOWNS.

IN THE DEBATE ON THE QUESTION JOHN MARMON, PRESIDENT OF THE DETROIT LOCAL, SAID: "THERE IS NO DOUBT THAT THE MANAGEMENT IS TAKING ADVANTAGE OF OUR NO-STRIKE PLEDGE. THE ONLY LANGUAGE THEY CAN UNDERSTAND IS FORCE, BUT TODAY, NO MATTER HOW WE FEEL, WE MUST USE ANOTHER KIND OF FORCE--GOVERNMENT AGENCIES."

S.H.DALRYMPLE OF AKRON, INTERNATIONAL PRESIDENT OF THE UNION, SAID THAT WORK STOPPAGES WERE IN DIRECT VIOLATION OF AN ORDER OF PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT AS WELL AS A VIOLATION OF UNION-COMPANY AGREEMENTS AND "THE ONLY WAY TO PUNSIH THOSE WHO INSTIGATED THE STRIKE WAS TO SUSPEND THEM FROM THEIR WORK."

WILLIAM IRWIN, A MEMBER OF THE DETROIT LOCAL, SUPPORTED THE CLAIM FOR EXONERATION. HE SAID THAT INVESTIGATION OF THE CASE BY THE UNION OFFICIALS WAS INCOMPLETE AND THAT SOME WERE SUSPENDED BECAUSE THEY HAD "HAD WORDS WITH THE UNION OFFICIALS--NOT BECAUSE THEY REFUSED TO GO BACK TO WORK."

"UNION POLITICS ARE INVOLVED IN THE DECISION," HE ADDED.

L.S.BUCKMASTER OF AKRON, INTERNATIONAL VICE-PRESIDENT, SAID THAT ANY WORKERS WHO WENT BACK TO WORK WITH THE NEGRO WOMEN WERE CLEARED BY THE UNION--ONLY THOSE WHO REFUSED WERE SUSPENDED.

HUGH GIBSON, FORMER UNITED STATES AMBASSADOR TO POLAND, BELGIUM AND BRAZIL AND COLLABORATOR WITH FORMER PRESIDENT HERBERT HOOVER ON THE BOOK, "THE PROBLEMS OF LASTING PEACE," SAID THAT IT WAS HIS AND HOOVER'S VIEW THAT "THE GREATEST THREAT TO ANY PLAN LIES IN PRECIPITATE ACTION," AND THAT A PLAN SHOULD BE EVOLVED ONLY WITH "THE GREATEST OF DELIBERATION AFTER AN INTERIM PERIOD OF PROVISIONAL PEACE."

RUTH BRYAN OWEN ROHDE, FORMER UNITED STATES MINISTER TO DENMARK, OUTLINED A PLAN CALLING FOR A CONGRESS OF NATIONS, CONSISTING OF UPPER AND LOWER HOUSES, A CHIEF EXECUTIVE, A SUPREME COURT OF THE WORLD AND A POLICE FORCE INTERNATIONAL IN SCOPE.

SEN.JOSEPH H.BALL (R-MINN), CO-SPONSOR OF THE SO-CALLED BALL PEACE RESOLUTION PENDING BEFORE CONGRESS, ADVOCATED A WORLD ORGANIZATION, WITH THE UNITED STATES AS A NUCLEUS, AND A MILITARY FORCE "TO MAKE ITS RULES OF CONDUCT BINDING ON WOULD-BE OUTLAWS."

REP. J.W. FULBRIGHT (D-ARK) SAID HIS RESOLUTION, PASSED BY THE HOUSE MONDAY, WAS NOT A "PANACEA" BUT RATHER "THE FIRST SMALL STEP IN THE PROCESS OF BUILDING A FOREIGN POLICY." CRITICISM THAT AN INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATION WOULD SACRIFICE NATIONAL SOVEREIGNTY, HE SAID, WAS "A VERY RED HERRING."

SEP 25 1943

JOHN FOSTER DULLES, CHAIRMAN OF THE COMMISSION TO STUDY THE BASIS OF A JUST AND DURABLE PEACE, SPONSORED BY THE FEDERAL COUNCIL OF CHURCHES OF CHRIST IN AMERICA, SAID AN OVER-ALL WORLD ORGANIZATION MUST HAVE A MILITARY POWER OF ITS OWN.

CLARENCE K. STREIT, FOUNDER AND CHAIRMAN OF FEDERAL UNION, SAID THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS FAILED BECAUSE OF BELIEF IN "ABSOLUTE NATIONAL SOVEREIGNTY," AND BECAUSE OF MECHANICAL FAULTS. HE SAID SIMILAR MISTAKES WOULD LEAD TO WAR AGAIN.

ELY CULBERTSON, AUTHOR OF THE WORLD FEDERATION PLAN, SUGGESTED A "QUOTA FORCE PRINCIPLE," WHEREBY THE UNITED STATES WOULD SUPPLY 20 PER CENT OF THE INTERNATIONAL FORCE AND OF THE TOTAL WORLD PRODUCTION OF HEAVY FIGHTING MACHINERY.

isle of capri, sept. 19 (delayed)-(ap)-aged senator benedetto croce, generally regarded as italy's greatest living philosopher and historian, and anti-fascist leader since the first days of benito mussolini's rise to power, has taken refuge with his family on this island.

a british launch rescued croce and his family from their mainland home at sorrento after a fascist broadcast had threatened vengeance on the old man for his decade of opposition to fascism, the 77-year-old historian, who had resigned as italian minister of instruction in 1922 in protest against fascism, arrived here in the dead of night.

alert and sout-hearted, but half in the young man and woman who have been his unorganized supporters ########## throughout italy, croce came to capri with his wife and four comely daughters.

"i hope," said croce to his daughter elena who translated his words, "that every system of totalitarian or authoritarian government will emerge defeated from this war and i hope that the supremacy of liberal regimes will be reestablished.

"the failure of the peace of versailles should teach us something, the lesson is: do not take vengeance; do not chain entire peoples.

1943

"the object should be to create for both vanquished and the conquerors -- men all of them--a condition of common existence wherein it will be possible to settle differences peacefully and to thrive peacefully."

croce recalled his first suspicion of the fascist movement. he said that fascism began to manifest its character fully in 1924, showing itself as anti-liberal and tyrannical.

he voiced his opposition in the roman senate, honorary body to which all outstanding artists, writers and scientists were elected, and for 20 years he warned the people in his writings.

from those years came his "history of liberalism." he was so famous abroad that the fascists deemed it inadvisable to silence him.

on the subject of liberty as the principle involved in common freedom and common justice, croce had this to say:

"the true idea of liberty is not bound to any particular economic interest but approves and accepts any economic measures and regulations which intensify and extend human freedom and augment the blessings of civilization. liberty as we think of it is a religious principle which renews and governs the whole of man's soul. it is that which inspires the best works in every field of human activity."

UNDATED DNIEPER RIVER--BEHIND THE NEWS

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

REACHED YESTERDAY (FRIDAY) BY THE VANGUARDS OF THE ADVANCING RED ARMY, THE DNIEPER RIVER FORMS A FORMIDABLE NATURAL BARRIER IN THE PATH OF A FURTHER SOVIET ADVANCE.

IT GUARDS THE GREATER PART OF THE RICH UKRAINE, THE BALKANS AND THE ENTRANCE TO THE GERMAN INNER STRONGHOLD, IT LIES SQUARELY ACROSS THE ENTRANCE OF THE CORRIDOR FORMED BY THE CARPATHIAN MOUNTAINS TO THE SOUTH AND THE PRIPET MARSHES ON THE NORTH. THIS CORRIDOR LEADS DIRECTLY TO THE HEART OF ADOLF HITLER'S INNER FORTRESS.

FLOWING FROM NORTH TO SOUTH, THE DNIEPER RISES IN SWAMPY LAND APPROXIMATELY 150 MILES WEST OF MOSCOW AND FLOWS ABOUT 1,400 MILES TO EMPTY INTO THE BLACK SEA, PASSING THROUGH A BASIN IN WHICH 14,000,000 PEOPLE WERE ESTIMATED TO LIVE PRIOR TO THE WAR.

IT WATERS THE FAMOUS "BLACK-BELT" OF THE UKRAINE AND FURNISHES MUCH OF THE REGION'S TRANSPORTATION.

THE TREMENDOUS DNEPROSTROY DAM ACROSS THE RIVER BELOW DNEPROPETROVSK RAISED THE RIVER'S LEVEL BY 120 FEET MAKING IT NAVIGABLE FROM ITS MOUTH TO ABOVE KIEV, CAPITAL OF THE UKRAINE. PREVIOUSLY, THE RAPIDS, 60 MILES BELOW DNEPROPETROVSK, HAD EFFECTIVELY DIVIDED THE RIVER, AS FAR AS TRAFFIC WAS CONCERNED, INTO TWO SECTIONS.

COMPLETED IN 1932, THE DAM WAS BLOWN UP BY THE RUSSIANS IN AUGUST, 1941, IN AN EFFORT TO STEM THE NAZI ADVANCE.

ALONG THE BANKS OF THE DNIEPER ARE SOME OF RUSSIA'S MOST IMPORTANT TOWNS. IN THE NORTH, ORSHA, ABOUT 125 MILES NORTHEAST OF MINSK, CAPITAL OF WHITE RUSSIA, IS REPORTED TO BE ONE OF THE MAIN NAZI SUPPLY BASES AND COMMUNICATIONS CENTERS FOR THE ENTIRE EASTERN FRONT.

APPROXIMATELY MIDWAY ALONG THE RIVER, KIEV IS DIRECTLY MENACED BY THE RUSSIAN ADVANCE. FURTHER SOUTH, BOTH CHORKASI AND KREMENCHUG ARE IMPORTANT GERMAN COMMUNICATIONS CENTERS.

DNEPROPETROVSK AND ZAPOROZHE, ALSO UNDER SOVIET FIRE, LIE ON THE RIVER'S GREAT BEND TOWARD THE EAST. SOUTH OF ZAPOROZHE, THE DNIEPER SWINGS BACK IN THE OPPOSITE DIRECTION AND FLOWS TO THE SOUTHWEST TO THE BLACK SEA.

ASSOCIATED PRESS WAR ANALYST

THE GREAT WITHDRAWAL OF HITLERIAN FORCES ON THE RUSSIAN FRONT HAS TAKEN ON SO MUCH OF THE NATURE OF A ROUT AS TO RANK WITH DUNKERQUE AS ONE OF THE PIVOTAL CRISES OF THE WHOLE WAR.

WHAT STARTED OUT AS A PLANNED WITHDRAWAL HAS DETERIORATED SO RAPIDLY UNDER THE PILE-DRIVER BLOWS OF THE RED FORCES THAT THE GERMAN HIGH COMMAND IS NOW FACED WITH THE PROBLEM OF WHETHER THE NAZI ARMIES CAN REACH THEIR PREPARED DEFENSES WEST OF THE DNIEPER RIVER AND AVERT A MAJOR DISASTER. IF THEY DO ACHIEVE THAT HAT-TRICK, THEY STILL MUST LOOK BACK ON ONE OF THE MOST COSTLY RETREATS OF HISTORY, BOTH IN MEN AND MATERIEL.

AS THIS IS WRITTEN THE UNBELIEVABLE RED ARMIES ARE ALMOST AT THE LINE OF THE DNIEPER AT SEVERAL POINTS. THEY'RE JUST ABOUT WHERE THEY WERE TWO YEARS AGO WHEN HITLER WAS SMASHING THEM BACK WITH ARROGANT ASSURANCE.

THE WHOLE UNWIELDY GERMAN RIGHT WING, STRETCHING 750 MILES FROM SMOLENSK IN THE NORTH TO THE CRIMEA IN THE SOUTH, IS SHIVERING AND CRACKING UNDER THE FIERCE RED ASSAULTS. THE RUSSIANS ARE CLOSE TO KIEV AND SMOLENSK, STRATEGIC STRONG-POINTS IN THE NAZI FRONT.

MOSCOW IS WATCHING THE BATTLE FOR THESE TWO CITIES CONFIDENTLY, EXPECTANTLY. SMOLENSK IS ONE OF THE IMPORTANT CROSSINGS OF THE UPPER DNIEPER. THIS ANCIENT CITY OF BORIS GODUNOV, LONG A PRIZE OF WARS, IS THE GATEWAY TO MOSCOW. BUT IT'S A GATEWAY THAT SWINGS BOTH WAYS, AS BONAPARTE DISCOVERED WHEN HIS SHATTERED TOOPS FLED BACK THROUGH THERE IN THE SNOWS OF 1812. KIEV, CAPITAL OF THE GOLDEN UKRAINE FOR WHICH HITLER SOLD HIS SOUL TO THE DEVIL, IS ALSO A DNIEPER CROSSING WHICH IS A LIFE-LINE FOR THE HARD PRESSED INVADERS.

THIS MUCH MUST BE SAID FOR THE GERMAN RETREAT: ONLY GENERALSHIP OF THE HIGHEST ORDER COULD HAVE PRESERVED EVEN THE SEMBLANCE OF A LINE IN FACE OF THE TERRIFIC RUSSIAN STRIKING POWER. MORALE OF THE NAZI TROOPS ALSO MUST HAVE BEEN STEADY TO PERMIT OF SUCH AN OPERATION.

THE QUESTION NOW IS WHETHER THE GERMANS CAN STEADY THEMSELVES ON THE DNIEPER LINE AND HOLD. IT WOULD BE RASH TO JUMP TO THE CONCLUSION THAT THEY CAN'T DO THIS, ESPECIALLY WITH THE FALL RAINS COMING TO SLOW THE RUSSIANS DOWN. HOWEVER, WE'RE JUSTIFIED IN NOTING THAT THEY ARE IN A PRECARIOUS POSITION.

SEP 25 1943

WHETHER THE NAZIS HOLD ON THE DNIEPER, WE ARE WITNESSING THE BREAKING UP OF HITLER'S POWER. HE IS DEFINITELY ON THE DEFENSIVE, AND WILL SO CONTINUE, WITH LESSENING RESISTANCE, UNTIL THE END.

30.24-8787

SEP 25 1943

THIS DOESN'T MEAN THAT WE MIGHT NOT SEE HIM UNDERTAKE FURTHER OFFENSIVES, BUT ANYTHING OF THAT NATURE WILL BE AN ACT OF DESPERATION AND STILL DEFENSIVE.

SEP 25 1943

ALL THE SIGNS ARE THAT THE FUEHRER'S ROLE NOW IS TO BATTLE FOR TIME--TIME WHICH HE HOPES MAY IN SOME WAY ENABLE HIM TO MANEUVER HIMSELF INTO A FAVORABLE POSITION FOR A NEGOTIATED PEACE. IT'S A SAFE BET RIGHT NOW THAT HE WOULD JUMP AT ANY ALLIED TERMS WHICH WOULD GIVE HIM A LEASE OF LIFE AND ALLOW HIM TO RETURN TO HIS OLD BOUNDARIES. WHY, BECAUSE THE GERMAN WAR LORDS, WHO REPRESENT SOME OF THE BEST MILITARY BRAINS IN THE WORLD, KNOW THEY ARE BEATEN.

THAT DOESN'T MEAN, THOUGH, THAT THEY AREN'T GOING TO FIGHT ON. THEY ARE BOUND TO CONTINUE RESISTANCE UNTIL INVASION OF THE REICH IS IMMINENT. THEN ONE WOULD EXPECT THEM TO RUSH FOR THE BEST PEACE TERMS POSSIBLE IN AN EFFORT TO AVERT FIGHTING ON HOME SOIL.

SO FAR AS THE PRUSSIAN MILITARISTS ARE CONCERNED THEY WOULDN'T HESITATE TO SACRIFICE HITLER IF IT WOULD SAVE THEIR OWN SKINS. THEIR TROUBLE IS THAT THE ALLIES HAVE DECREED THEIR ELIMINATION ALONG WITH HITLER AND HIS ISM. THEREFORE THEY TOO MUST BATTLE AND TRY TO FIND AN AVENUE OF ESCAPE.

SEP 25 1943

CAN THE GERMAN PEOPLE TAKE IT? THEY WILL STAND PLENTY UNTIL THEY REALIZE THERE'S NO HOPE. THEN THE CORD MAY SNAP.

WE CAN'T JUDGE THE PRESENT POSITION BY THE COLLAPSE OF CIVILIAN MORALE IN THE LAST WAR. THAT WAS IMPELLED IN LARGE DEGREE BY STARK HUNGER--AND FEW THINGS ARE MORE DESTRUCTIVE OF MORALE, ESPECIALLY WHEN CHILDREN ARE SUFFERING. THUS FAR THE GERMAN PUBLIC APPEARS TO HAVE SUFFICIENT FOOD, MUCH OF IT STOLEN FROM STARVING CONQUERED PEOPLES OF COURSE, BUT STILL NOURISHMENT.

(ADVANCE FOR USE IN PMS OF FRIDAY, SEPT.24)

BY CLARK LEE

REPRESENTING THE COMBINED AMERICAN PRESS

(DISTRIBUTED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)

SEP 25 1943

(ADVANCE)-WITH GEN.EISENHOWER AT AN ADVANCED ALLIED COMMAND POST IN THE MEDITERRANEAN--(NOT DATED)--ADMIRAL SIR ANDREW BROWNE CUNNINGHAM, WHO HAS JUST WON ONE OF THE GREATEST FIGHTS IN BRITISH NAVAL HISTORY, THE BATTLE OF THE MEDITERRANEAN, IS THE PERSONIFICATION OF THE BRITISH SAILOR.

A GOOD MANY BRITISH OFFICERS, BRAVE MEN AND GREAT SAILORS, LOOK AND ACT MORE LIKE GENTLEMEN THAN SEAFARERS. CUNNINGHAM WAS BORN IN A DISTINGUISHED FAMILY BUT THAT FACT IS ENTIRELY IRRELEVANT. REGARDLESS OF HIS FAMILY BACKGROUND HE WOULD STILL BE, IN LOOKS AND ACTION, EVERY INCH A SAILOR.

THE ADMIRAL IS WHAT THE BRITISH CALL A "TOUGH" MAN. BY TOUGH THEY MEAN OF STRONG CHARACTER. IN ALL MATTERS PERTAINING TO DUTY AND TO THE PRIDE OF HIS LIFE, THE ROYAL NAVY, CUNNINGHAM IS ABSOLUTELY RUTHLESS IN DEALING WITH SHIRKERS, AND HIS SUBORDINATES UNDOUBTEDLY DAMN HIM AT TIMES AS A STERN MARTINET. BUT THEY ADMIRE HIM AND ABOVE ALL RESPECT HIS KNOWLEDGE AND COURAGE.

SEP 25 1943

SOME CALL HIM THE GREATEST BRITISH ADMIRAL SINCE NELSON.

"ONE OF THE REASONS WE LICKED THE 'EYTIES' AND THE GERMAN SUBS AND AIRFORCE AND WON THIS FIGHT," A BRITISH OFFICER SAID TO ME AS WE WATCHED THE SURRENDERED ITALIAN BATTLE FLEET STEAM BY US OFF THE COAST OF AFRICA."

SEP 25 1943

JUST THEN CUNNINGHAM TOOK OFF HIS DARK GLASSES WITH BLACK TORTOISE-SHELL SIDE-SHIELDS AND I UNDERSTOOD WHAT THE OFFICER MEANT. THE ADMIRAL HAS THE LOOK OF A BLOODHOUND. HIS EYES SLANT STEEPLY AND THERE IS A DEFINITE SUGGESTION OF FLAPS IN HIS JOWLS. HIS CHEEKS ARE RUDDY WITH HUNDREDS OF RED AND PURPLE VEINS.

AT THE TIME, WATCHING THE ITALIAN FORCE WHICH WAS THE SYMBOL OF HIS HISTORIC VICTORY, CUNNINGHAM WAS SMILING AND JOVIAL, BUT THERE WAS AN UNMISTAKABLE STERNNESS IN HIS FACE.

IN BATTLE CUNNINGHAM HAS ONE MOTTO "CLOSE THE RANGE." HE IS NEVER HAPPY, HIS ASSOCIATES SAY, UNLESS THE SHELLS ARE FALLING AROUND HIM.

ONLY A FLEET LIKE THE BRITISH, UNDER AN ADMIRAL LIKE CUNNINGHAM, COULD HAVE WON THE BATTLE OF THE MEDITERRANEAN. THE FLEET WAS THOROUGHLY INDOCTRINATED WITH THE TRADITION WHICH DICTATES THAT YOU DON'T BACK OUT OF AN ASSIGNED JOB UNTIL YOU ARE STOPPED BY AN ENEMY 15-INCH SHELL OR A BOMB.

SEP 25 1943

AFTER ITALY ENTERED THE WAR IN THE EARLY SUMMER OF 1940 CUNNINGHAM TRIED TO LURE THE ITALIAN FLEET OUT FOR A FINISH FIGHT IN THE MEDITERRANEAN. FORTUNATELY, AS IT HAS NOW TURNED OUT, WITH MOST OF THE ITALIAN NAVY SAFELY IN OUR POSSESSION, HE NEVER QUITE SUCCEEDED, ALTHOUGH HE DID HIT THEM OFTEN ENOUGH AND HARD ENOUGH TO PREVENT THEM FROM BEING ANY REAL MENACE TO BRITISH SHIP MOVEMENTS.

THE LUFTWAFFE, OF COURSE, WAS ANOTHER STORY.

CUNNINGHAM'S FAVORITE STORY CONCERNS THE BATTLE OF MATAPAN. HE SENT HIS CRUISERS OUT TO LURE THE ITALIAN BATTLESHIPS INTO RANGE OF THE BIG GUNS OF THE BRITISH BATTLESHIPS. INSTEAD OF LURING THE ENEMY HEAVY SHIPS TO DESTRUCTION THE BRITISH CRUISERS FOUND THEY WERE BEING OVERTAKEN BY THE SWIFT ITALIAN DREADNAUGHTS.

THE ADMIRAL HAD TO LAUNCH HIS PLANES FROM LONG DISTANCE TO ATTACK THE ITALIAN BATTLESHIPS AND SAVE HIS CRUISERS FROM DESTRUCTION. LATER THE WARSPITE "PUT ONE IN THE STOMACH" OF THE ITALIAN FLAGSHIP AND STILL LATER THE FLEET AIR ARM ATTACKED THE ITALIAN NAVAL BASE AT

TARANTO, SINKING ONE BATTLESHIP AND DAMAGING TWO.

IN ISOLATED FIGHTS SEVERAL ITALIAN CRUISERS AND DESTROYERS WERE SUNK AND BY THE END OF 1940 THE ITALIAN FLEET WAS NEARLY OUT OF ACTION AND THE BRITISH WERE RUNNING CONVOYS TO MALTA.

THEN IN JANUARY OF 1941 THE LUFTWAFFE ARRIVED TO TAKE A HAND AND THE BATTLE OF THE MEDITERRANEAN WAS NO LONGER A CLASSIC FIGHT OF SHIPS AGAINST SHIPS BUT A TEST OF AIRPOWER AGAINST AIRPOWER AND AIRPOWER AGAINST SEAPOWER.

SEP 25 1943

GERMAN PLANES WERE ABLE TO PROTECT THE ROUTES OVER WHICH ITALIAN SHIPS WERE RUNNING SUPPLIES TO ROMMEL'S ARMY IN AFRICA AND THE GERMANS TEMPORARILY WON THE BATTLE OF SUPPLY, ENABLING THEIR DESERT ARMIES TO ADVANCE AND THROW THE BRITISH ALL THE WAY BACK TO THE BORDER OF EGYPT.

SEP 25 1943

FOR THE BRITISH THE PROBLEM BECAME A DESPERATE ONE OF HOLDING MALTA OR MALTA WENT THE BATTLE OF THE MEDITERRANEAN WAS LOST.

CUNNINGHAM KEPT RUNNING CONVOYS INTO THE BESIEGED ISLAND, STARTING ONE GROUP OF SHIPS FROM THE WEST AND ONE FROM THE EAST AND PRAYING ENOUGH OF THEM WOULD GET THROUGH TO KEEP MALTA'S MEN AND GUNS SUPPLIED.

IN 1941 CAME THE DISASTROUS BATTLE OF GREECE AND CRETE. THE ROYAL NAVY TOOK THE IMPERIAL TROOPS INTO THOSE PLACES AND VERY SHORTLY TOOK THEM OUT AGAIN, SUFFERING HEAVY LOSSES FROM GERMAN AIR ATTACKS BUT REMAINING COMPLETELY UNMOLESTED BY THE ITALIAN FLEET WHICH HAD GONE BACK TO HARBOR AFTER THE BATTLE OF MATAPAN.

WHEN MALTA STOOD THE RAF, RN FLEET AIR ARM, SURFACE SHIPS AND SUBMARINES BASED ON THE TINY ISLAND BEGAN TO WIN THE BATTLE OF SUPPLY. EVENTUALLY THEY DID WIN IT AND GENERAL SIR BERNARD L.MONTGOMERY WAS ABLE TO SURGE OUT OF EGYPT AND CHASE THE GERMANS BACK ACROSS THE DESERT.

SEP 25 1943

THE AMERICAN LANDINGS IN NORTH AFRICA LAST FALL MADE THE FINAL OUTCOME CERTAIN AND THE LONG STRUGGLE FINALLY ENDED WITH THE SURRENDER OF THE ITALIAN FLEET.

NO ONE KNOWS BETTER THAN CUNNINGHAM HOW IMPORTANT A ROLE AIR POWER PLAYED IN THE FINAL VICTORY. DURING THE "REVIEW" OF THE ITALIAN SHIPS AN AIRPLANE CAUGHT HIS EYE. EAGERLY HE POINTED IT OUT TO GEN. EISENHOWER WHO STOOD BESIDE HIM ON THE BRIDGE OF THE DESTROYER HAMBLETON.

SEP 25 1943

"THERE'S A P-38. SEE THE TWIN TAIL." HE SEEMED TICKLED TO DEATH THAT HE HAD IDENTIFIED IT.

AWAY FROM HIS JOB CUNNINGHAM IS VERY GENIAL AND LIKEABLE. HE HAS A QUICK WIT, A ROUGH AND READY SENSE OF HUMOR AND LOVES TO ENGAGE IN THE OLD ENGLISH SPORT OF PULLING SOMEONE'S LEG. HE IS NOT ADVERSE TO A BIT OF HORSEPLAY SUCH AS PUSHING A MIDSHIPMAN OVERBOARD. ONCE A MIDSHIPMAN TURNED THE TABLES BY PULLING THE ADMIRAL IN AFTER HIM. FROM THE DECK OF A SMALL CRAFT.

TWO OF CUNNINGHAM'S PALS IN THE MEDITERRANEAN ARE A PAIR OF STRANGE OLD CHARACTERS--THE CAPTAIN AND FIRST OFFICER OF A SMALL BRITISH MINE-SWEEPING CRAFT WHICH IS FREQUENTLY CALLED ON FOR HIGHLY DANNNNNNS MISSIONS.

SEP 25 1943

THESE "PIRATES", WITH THEIR HUGE MUSTACHES AND BUSHY EYEBROWS, HAVE SERVED TOGETHER FOR 37 YEARS. THEY ROSE FROM THE RANKS AND HAVE BEEN UNDER CUNNINGHAM FOR MANY YEARS.

WITH THE ADMIRAL'S INDULGENCE, THE TWO MAKE THEIR OWN RULES. WHEN THE WHOLE MEDITERRANEAN FLEET IS WEARING WHITES, THEY STUBBORNLY KEEP ON THEIR KHAKI UNIFORMS. IF THEIR SHIP RUNS OUT OF WHISKY AND GIN, THEY GET IN A SMALL BOAT AND PUTT PUTT AROUND TO ALL THE OTHER BRITISH CRAFT NEARBY, BEGGING FOR A WEE DROP OF SOMETHING TO DRINK.

WHENEVER CUNNINGHAM IS IN THEIR VICINITY HE CALLS ON THEM AND IS GREETED WITH ALL THE FORMS AND CEREMONIES DECREED BY NAVAL CUSTOM. THE ADMIRAL CALLS THEM HIS "TWO OLD RASCALS."

CUNNINGHAM'S RULING PASSION IS HIS LOVE OF THE SEA, AND ESPECIALLY THE MEDITERRANEAN.

SEP 25 1943

NO MAN ALIVE HAS A MORE THOROUGH KNOWLEDGE OF THE MEDITERRANEAN THAN THIS ADMIRAL WHO HAS NOW TURNED MUSSOLINI'S "MARE NOSTRUM" INTO AN ALLIED LAKE. THE ADMIRAL KNOWS THE DATES AND PERSONALITIES OF THE GREEK, TROJAN AND ROMAN CAMPAIGNS AS WELL AS HE KNOWS THE HISTORY OF THE PAST FOUR YEARS. HE CAN TELL YOU ABOUT THE CORRUPT CARTHAGINIAN SENATE TWO THOUSAND YEARS AGO, AND EXACTLY WHAT MISTAKES HANNIBAL MADE.

CAPTAIN HENRY CARR, BRITISH ARTIST WHO WAS PAINTING CUNNINGHAM'S PORTRAIT, MADE THE MISTAKE OF SITTING CUNNINGHAM NEAR A WINDOW. BY BENDING HIS HEAD A LITTLE, THE ADMIRAL COULD SCAN A CORNER OF HIS BELOVED SEA.

THE RESULT WAS THAT HE WAS CONTINUALLY LEANING FORWARD TO STUDY THE HARBOR AND PASSING SHIPPING.

SEP 25 1943

WHEN CARR FINISHED THE PORTRAIT, THE ADMIRAL COMMENTED, "YOU'VE MADE ME LOOK TOUGH."

"YOU ARE TOUGH, SIR," CARR REPLIED. "AFTER THE WAR, IF YOU WISH, I'LL DO YOU AS A BENIGN OLD GENTLEMAN. BUT RIGHT NOW. YOU ARE TOUGH."

SEP 25 1943

"OH, ALL RIGHT," SAID THE ADMIRAL. "BUT I DON'T THINK MY WIFE IS GOING TO LIKE THIS ONE."

SMOLENSK FALLS, RUSSIANS ADVANCE ON MINSK HIGHWAY

SEP 27 1943

Capture of Fortress Cracks Center of German Defense Line.

CITY TAKEN BY STORM

Day of Street Fighting Sends Enemy Reeling in Defeat.

SEIZURE OF KIEV NEAR

Town Ten Miles Away Overrun by Reds in Bitter Battle.

LONDON, Sunday, Sept. 26. — (AP) Soviet columns pounded on past captured Smolensk, the Red army's greatest 1943 victory, in pursuit of the fleeing Germans, Moscow dispatches said today, as some reports said Russian spearheads had cracked the great Dnieper river line at a half dozen points from Smolensk to tottering Kiev.

An Associated Press dispatch from Moscow said Gen. Vassily Sokolovsky's troops which battled down the last German defenses of Smolensk and Roslavl, 66 miles to the south, pressed on immediately along the Moscow-Minsk highway which Napoleon travelled in and out of Russia.

Aim at Orsha, Vitebsk

They were aiming now at Orsha, 65 miles beyond the fallen central front bastion, and also at Vitebsk on the highway to Latvia. At Vitebsk, 75 miles northwest of Smolensk the Germans have erected powerful defenses around the Vitebsk lakes.

Moscow shook with the thunder of 224 guns saluting the victory and crowds cheered the broadcast of Premier Marshal Joseph Stalin's order of the day calling Smolensk "the most important strategic center of German defenses in the western direction."

A brilliant display of fireworks lit up the chilly streets of the capital as crowds shouted "Smolensk is Soviet."

The Moscow communique, recorded by the Soviet monitor, said Sokolovsky's troops dislodged the Germans from the fortifications covering the approaches to Smolensk and then broke into the northern outskirts of the once-vital Nazi stronghold on Friday.

"Fierce street fighting ensued. By the end of the day the whole northern part of the city had been cleared of the enemy. This morning (Saturday) the city was carried by assault.

"In this way Smolensk, the most important enemy center of resistance, has been liberated from the Germans."

Northern Flank Turned

The capture of Smolensk turned the northern flank of the Dnieper river line the Germans once expected to hold as an east wall deep in Russia.

No natural obstacles bar a Russian westward drive in the area and the Soviet army can continue its advance without risk of a Nazi counter-attack from the south because the left flank will be protected by the Pripet marshes.

Henry C. Cassidy, Associated Press correspondent in Moscow, cabled that the highway leading west from Smolensk, the finest in the Soviet union, was reported littered with beaten German troops and broken machines.

The communique also announced continuing Soviet advances northwest of Smolensk where 60 towns and villages were captured and over 600 Germans killed. A break in German morale in this area was indicated when 65 Germans came over to the Red army with their arms.

Reds Cross Dnieper

Meanwhile London newspapers, quoting Reuters dispatches from Moscow, said that Russian troops were fighting their way across the Dnieper at several points. They did not make clear, however, whether the west bank had been reached and held. The capture of Smolensk involved a crossing of the Dnieper at its headwaters where the stream was narrow and its strategic value as a barrier was less important than in the south.

The communique reported advances toward Dnepropetrovsk, Kiev, Kremenchug and Gomel.

In the Dnepropetrovsk fight the Germans were resisting fiercely from previously fortified positions. Petrikovka, 10 miles from the river and 23 miles northwest of the river city, was captured in addition to Elizavetovka, only seven miles from the river and 19 miles north of Dnepropetrovsk.

In the Kremenchug sector the Soviets captured Kobelyaki, 35 miles east of Kremenchug, and sent the Germans retreating in disorder, abandoning large quantities of arms.

Kiev, a prize almost as rich as Smolensk, appeared ready to fall into Soviet hands soon as hard-driving Soviet columns pounded into Brovari, 10 miles east of Kiev. The communique told of violent engagements there, ending in German defeat and the death of about 1,000 Nazis.

55 Miles from Gomel

Other Russian forces were 55 miles east of Gomel after recapturing 350 villages, including Klintsi.

But the capture of Smolensk, which the Germans held since 24 days after their June 22, 1941, attack on Russia, marked Germany's darkest day in the east and Moscow's greatest hour.

There was no indication how soon the Germans would be able to attempt a new stand or how long the Russians would be able to maintain the terrific force of their offensive in the worsening weather of the rainy Russian autumn.

Stalin's announcement termed Roslavl "an important junction of communications and a powerful strongpoint of German defenses."

The Nazis now hold only three per cent of Russia's 8,800,000 square mile area, having been torn from all but 230,000 of the 700,000 square miles they dominated at the peak of their victories.

The Russian summer offensive has regained 125,000 square miles of territory from the Germans.

As in the fall of Bryansk, the Germans again sought to minimize the disaster at Smolensk, declaring in a communique, hours before the Russian announcement, that the city had been "evacuated" after they had destroyed all military installations.

Col. Ernst von Hammer, military correspondent of the Nazi International Information bureau with the German armies at the eastern front, said evacuation measures were started three weeks ago and were speeded up in the past few days while Nazi rearguards fought a successful defense battle.

Bridges, Roads Destroyed

Berlin said the evacuation was completed early today after the covering forces blew up bridges and crossroads and the last German transport had left the city.

Since the epic of Stalingrad nine months ago, the Red army has driven the Nazis westward 650 miles and now stands only 150 miles from the old Polish border.

The Berlin radio said tonight the Russians had made numerous attempts to cross the lower Dnieper, where it stands between them and the stronghold of Kiev.

Roslavl, Strongpoint and Rail Center, Also Captured—Kiev's Seizure Imminent—German Dunkirk On in Kuban.

London, Sept. 25 (A. P.). — Smolensk, among Europe's most heavily fortified cities and backbone of German central Russian defenses, fell to Soviet forces today in one of the greatest victories of the Russian war, Moscow announced tonight.

Roslavl, sixty-five miles southeast of Smolensk on the Desna River defense line, also has fallen to the smashing Russian attacks, the announcement said.

The victory of Smolensk's recapture after German forces there had menaced Moscow for more than two years was announced in a special order of the day by Premier Marshal Joseph Stalin.

City Taken After Big Battle.

Marshal Stalin's announcement said the great fortress had been taken in stiff battles, in direct contrast to an earlier Berlin announcement that Nazi forces had evacuated the city after demolishing its war installations.

Stalin's announcement termed Smolensk "the most important strategic center of German defenses in the western direction." It termed Roslavl, where it said Nazi defenses broke after two days of fierce engagements, "an important junction of communications and a powerful strongpoint of German defenses."

Col. Ernest von Hammer, Nazi military correspondent, had said earlier in a broadcast that evacuation of Smolensk had begun three weeks ago.

In celebration of Moscow's greatest hour since the winter of 1941—when Hitler himself directed the German offensive from Smolensk which he had captured in fifty-five days—the capital echoed to salvos from 224 victory guns, 100 more than touched off for any other victory.

Other Towns Also Taken.

Petrikovka, ten miles from the Dnieper and twenty-three miles northwest of Dnepropetrovsk, near where the Russians dynamited their greatest dam during the 1941 defeat, also was recaptured in the smashing offensive, the communique broadcast from Moscow said. Five other large populated places fell to the Soviets closing in on the great Dnieper River bend, said the announcement.

[A dispatch from Moscow by direct telephone to the Associated Press in New York said the conquering Red Army had stormed into the very suburbs of Kiev, according to dispatches in the Red Star, Soviet Army organ, today. Soviet troops have driven in upon Brovari, most important junction on the eastern side, immediately opposite the city, just ten miles from Kiev proper.

[Reports continued to circulate that the Germans, seeking to extricate their forces isolated on the Kuban bridgehead, were attempting to emulate the British in their evacuation of Dunkirk. Russian troops were driving down from their positions in the Caucasus to harass them from the rear. As the Germans struggled to bring out their troops by barges and boats they were constantly at the mercy of raiding Russian planes, Red Star reported.

[Berlin admits that Russian warships are interfering with the evacuation of German and Rumanian troops from the Kuban bridgehead, a London broadcast reported, which quoted the Russian Army newspaper Red Star as writing today: "In the lower Kuban the Germans are abandoning their guns and even their infantry weapons." CBS recorded the broadcast.]

Nazis Removed War Plants.

Col. von Hammer said that the Germans had successfully removed all their war plants to the west, while the communique declared that they had destroyed all military installations in the city.

"In the general front sector west of the railway junction of Unecha and south of Smolensk violent defense fighting took place and is still going on," the communique added.

The German war bulletin said that Nazi columns were attacking in the Lake Ladoga region in the Leningrad salient and had repulsed Soviet tank-supported counter-attacks on the Murmansk sector in the far north.

Strong Russian attacks on German bridgeheads on the eastern bank of the middle Dnieper River were hurled back with heavy tank losses, the communique asserted, and Soviet columns operating north of Cherkassy were smashed, it was claimed.

A Disastrous Defeat.

The fall of Smolensk was regarded here as one of the most disastrous defeats suffered by German forces in the current Russian offensive.

[The Germans have not yet told their own people of the abandonment of Smolensky, BBC said in a broadcast recorded by CBS today.]

1943

Berlin said Smolensk's evacuation was completed early today and that covering forces blew up bridges and important crossroads after the last German transport had left the city.

In the nine months since a badgered Red Army threw back the Germans from Stalingrad, the Russians have accomplished two-thirds of their task of hurling the invaders from Soviet soil. Hitler's steadily retreating forces have now given up all but about 230,000 of the 700,000 square miles of Soviet territory they held at the height of their successes, and hold only about 3 per cent of Russia's 8,800,000 square-mile area.

Even in its easternmost penetration at Stalingrad the Germans occupied only about 9 per cent of that vast nation.

Since then the Red Army has driven them westward 650 miles and now stands a bare 150 miles from the old Polish border. Another 150-mile retreat would place the Germans on the "Ribbentrop-Molotov" line, the springboard of Hitler's invasion of Russia on June 6, 1941.

The fall of Kiev also appeared imminent. The charging Red troops there were separated only by the breadth of the Dnieper River from the enemy, Moscow announced in its regular daily war bulletin.

The Soviet communique had announced the capture of Korely, seven miles northeast of Smolensk, around which the famous Todt engineers had constructed a vast system of defense.

Smolensk, which has two railroads entering it from the west and three from the east, fell to the Germans on July 16, 1941—fifty-five days after they invaded Russia.

City Fiercely Contested.

Marshal Semeon Timoshenko threw thousands of his best troops into a tremendous battle to recapture the city in December 1941, but was forced back. Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov tried again the following spring, and was stopped only after the Germans had counter-attacked more than thirty times.

Roslavl, which lies midway between Smolensk and Bryansk, was captured by the Germans soon after Smolensk fell. It is of no great industrial or strategic importance, even though it had been strongly fortified by the Germans as part of the Desna line defenses.

There was every indication that the fall of Smolensk and the expected capitulation of Kiev would mean in cold, hard, tactical truth that Germany has lost her fight with Russia.

Just as surely as the bitter winter campaign of 1941-42 saved Russia and checked the German invasion march; just as surely as the tremendous encirclement campaign of the winter of 1942-43 saved Stalingrad and wrecked Hitler's last eastern offensive, so the loss of Smolensk and Kiev would send the invader reeling back to virtually his boundary of initial aggression.

The Berlin radio said the Russians had already tried to cross the Dnieper River only one mile above Kiev, where the Desna River joins the Dnieper, but the latest Soviet communique made no mention of a crossing, or an attempt to cross.

Nevertheless, the Germans mentioned another attempt by Red Army forces to cross the river below Gomel, at a point where the Pripet River Enters the Dnieper. This could serve as a jumping-off place for a Russian drive into White Russia.

Russia's great seige guns were already mounted at Borispol, seventeen miles southeast of Kiev, and the Ukrainian capital heard the thunder of these giant batteries as they opened fire. To the northeast, Soviet spearheads had already swept through Lyeski, eighteen miles from the great Dnieper base.

Smolensk stands in the Dnieper Valley, which slices in a westerly direction squarely through the central Russian plateau. Sixty-five miles west of Smolensk, at Orsha, an important German supply and communications center, the river turns due south to flow to the Black Sea.

Five rail lines converge at Smolensk, including the main line from Moscow to central Europe.

Smolensk before the war was the center of flourishing copper and iron smelting and machinery industries. It was also the seat of a state university. Its cathedral was completed in 1772.

Because of its strategic position at the southern end of the gap between the protecting line formed in front of the German inner fortress by the Dnieper and the Dvina Rivers, the Russians had battered in each of their successive winter campaigns at the Nazi fortifications of Smolensk.

As an indication of its importance, the Germans had built such a deep defensive system that Fuehrer Adolf Hitler himself had called it one of the most strongly fortified cities in Europe.

Smolensk, 'Key To Russia,' Held 2 Years by Nazis

May Become Springboard for Soviet Advance Into Poland and Baltic States

Variously called the "key to the door of Russia," and the "western gateway to Moscow," Smolensk now may become the springboard for Soviet advance into northern White Russia, Poland and the Baltic States, The Associated Press notes.

The city, on the upper Dnieper River, was the scene of Napoleon's first real engagement in his Russian campaign 131 years ago. Napoleon, too, was unable to defeat the Russians, although he moved on and took Moscow after burning Smolensk.

At Smolensk, Napoleon attempted vainly to reorganize his forces on his disastrous path of retreat from Russia.

The ancient fortress, built by the Muscovite Tatar, Boris Godunov, in 1605, fell to the Nazis on July 16, 1941.

RUSSIA IS LINKED TO U.S. BY PHONE

AP Dispatch Transmitted by Voice from Moscow to New York.

By HENRY C. CASSIDY

MOSCOW, Sept. 25 —(By direct telephone to the Associated Press in New York)—This is one of the first dispatches ever transmitted directly by telephone from the Soviet Union to the United States or sent abroad from Moscow to any foreign country since the start of the war in Russia.

The service has been established especially for the use of government embassies and news services, establishing for the first time immediate contact between the Soviet Union and the United States.

Such service would be of special use in the case of three-power conferences such as has been projected between Soviet Russia, the United States and Great Britain.

The conquering Red Army has stormed into the very suburbs of Kiev, capital of the rich Ukraine, dispatches to the Red Star, Soviet army organ, said today.

Soviet troops have driven in upon Brovari, most important junction on the western side, immediately opposite the city, just one mile from Kiev proper.

Reports continued to circulate that the Germans seeking to extricate their forces isolated on the Kuban bridgehead were attempting to emulate the British in their evacuation of Dunkerque.

Russian troops were driving down from their positions in the Caucasus to harass them from the rear.

As the Germans struggled to bring out their troops by barges and boats they were constantly at the mercy of raiding Russian planes, Red Star reported.

RUSSIA NAMES VISHINSKY TO ALLIED BOARD

London, Sunday, Sept. 26 (AP).—The Soviet foreign affairs information bureau announced it had appointed Andrei G. Vishinsky, Soviet Vice Commissar of Foreign Affairs, as its representative to the new Inter-Allied Mediterranean Commission and revealed that the commission will have its headquarters in Algiers.

The announcement, broadcast by Moscow radio, said Harold MacMillan, Resident Minister for Allied Headquarters in North Africa, would be the British representative. The United States delegate, it added, is expected to be named soon.

The commission, which will examine questions arising from the armistice with Italy and from other territories liberated by the Allies, will also include a representative of the French Committee of National Liberation.

The formation of a Mediterranean commission representing Britain, the United States and Russia, was reported unofficially from Washington last Sept. 4. Prime Minister Churchill also referred to it in his statement to the Commons last Tuesday.

The Russian announcement said the commission was formed "as a result of an exchange of views" among the three governments "which took place in August and September."

RUSSIANS INTERN 7 KURILES RAIDERS

MOSCOW, Sept. 25 (AP)—Seven American planes landed on Soviet territory in Kamchatka on Sept. 12, date of the last bombing of the Japanese Kurile islands, it was announced today.

The announcement said the planes and crews had been interned.

[An American intelligence officer, describing the raid Sept. 13, said five planes were presumed lost and five others might have reached land.]

The Russian announcement said the planes were forced down because of "engine trouble."

New Chief for White Russia

Germans Name Gen. Gottberg Following Assassination of Kube

LONDON, Sept. 25 (AP).—D. N. B., the German official news agency, announced today in a Berlin broadcast recorded by The Associated Press that Schutz Staffel (elite guard) General Von Gottberg, formerly S. S. chief of the Minsk district, had been appointed Governor of White Russia to succeed Wilhelm Kube, who was assassinated by "terrorists" at Minsk Tuesday night.

Fuehrer Adolf Hitler has ordered a state funeral for Kube, on

FIFTH ARMY DRIVE ROLLS NAZIS BACK TO LEVEL COUNTRY

Total of Nazi Prisoners Now Over 2,000, Gen. Clark Discloses.

NAZIS LOSE ON CORSICA

19 Transport Planes Evacuating Troops Shot Down by Allies.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 25—(AP) American and British ground forces have smashed their way to the mountain tops guarding the smoke-filled plain of Naples, headquarters announced today, as Allied airmen took a growing toll of German troops attempting to flee by plane from Corsica to Italy.

The American Fifth army pressed its onslaught day and night against the strong German mountain defense line. The total of Nazi prisoners taken since Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's forces landed at Salerno rose to well over 2,000.

Mules Carry Equipment

The going was slow for the Allied attackers, who sweated up steep hillsides with mules carrying guns and ammunition where neither trucks nor tanks could travel.

But the soldiers who toiled on, rooting out German strongholds as they went, had the satisfaction of looking down from the mountain tops today on low country where the enemy will lose the defensive advantages he now possesses.

Nineteen big Junkers-52 transport planes carrying German personnel from Corsica to the mainland were shot down yesterday by Allied fighter squadrons, which had downed at least seven such craft the previous day.

At least a dozen more of the heavily-laden transports were damaged in the past two days as R.A.F. Beaufighters kept up a vigilant patrol over the route between Corsica and the mainland.

Nazis Trapped on Island

Trapped in the northeast corner of the island by French troops, patriots and American Rangers, the Germans were attempting to escape to the mainland, but were being blasted out of the air just as they were in similar attempts to evacuate Tunisia and Sicily.

A French communique said increasing numbers of French troops had landed on Corsica and were cooperating with the patriots and Americans in exerting heavy pressure on the entrapped Germans. "The combined action of Allied bomber and naval forces is rendering their evacuation very precarious," the bulletin said.

It disclosed that German troops were repulsed in a sharp engagement in the eastern part of the St. Florient area in northern Corsica.

Two Fighters Downed

French fighter planes which moved to the island soon after fighting began shot down two Focke-Wulf 190s in combats resulting when swift enemy fighter-bombers swooped over the district of Ajaccio, French-held capital on the west coast, and dropped bombs at random. The communique said the bombs did no damage.

The destruction of the transport planes was considered especially important because the Germans were believed to have filled them with highly trained technical personnel. A Northwest African Air force announcement said two of the destroyed transports were known to have contained a total of 100 men and the others were believed to have been equally heavily loaded.

Leghorn Harbor Bombed

Allied air power also was turned against the shipping lanes from Corsica to the mainland port of Leghorn, about 55 miles from the northern tip of the island. British and Canadian Wellingtons rained block-buster bombs on Leghorn's harbor last night, starting large fires among ships, and American medium bombers hit two vessels near the port.

One of the richest military prizes in southern Italy—the big chain of air fields around Foggia, where for a long time the enemy concentrated most of his bombers in the Mediterranean area — appeared much nearer the grasp of the Allies after units of the British Eighth army surged up the Adriatic coast road to the outskirts of Molfetto, less than 60 miles from Foggia.

The advance up the east coast was made without opposition and there was nothing in reports from the front to indicate the enemy would try to defend the Foggia airbase.

Roads Choked With Traffic

The effectiveness of the steady blasting of roads behind the enemy's front lines by all kinds of American and British warplanes was proved by reconnaissance. An official air force statement said roads near the lines "are choked with traffic and bombed vehicles are locking the steep winding mountain tracks."

"Destruction by bombing of the railway lines has also led to a shortage of transport," the statement said in elaborating on the difficulties the Germans are having in getting essential supplies to their troops.

"A complete German ammunition train abandoned in a captured railway yard consisted of 30 wagons full of bombs, light and heavy shells and machine-gun and flak ammunition. Allied bombers also had destroyed an electric railway line at several points and thus kept valuable cargo from German troops."

The destruction of trucks by Allied planes caused the Germans to seize all Italian transport, and many towns are dependent upon donkey carts to haul food. Some civilians are reported to have been getting only four ounces of bread daily for several weeks.

The Fifth army's advance, described officially as "several miles," put the Allies in command of several cross roads north and northeast of Salerno.

A headquarters spokesman said Allied troops who mounted the heights overlooking the Naples plain could watch "our air forces knocking hell out of enemy communications in the area below."

"The tempo of the battle," the spokesman said, "will increase tremendously" once Gen. Clark's forces drive the Germans from their mountain positions onto the plains below.

Enemy Casualties Heavy

Official reports said that "very heavy casualties" had been inflicted on the enemy since the drive on Naples began and that the bag of prisoners was growing constantly. American and British losses were described as comparatively light.

(London dispatches quoted German broadcasts as saying the Nazis were putting out new alarms of imminent Allied landings in Italy, either on the Adriatic or Tyrrhenian coast. Berlin propagandists also renewed their campaign regarding Allied casualties, which they declared were 20,000 in the Salerno landing alone.)

In spite of the advance of several miles made by the Fifth army, a headquarters spokesman said the progress was comparatively slow because the terrain was perfectly suited to defense. Although the mountains are unsuited for armored warfare, the Germans were using small groups of tanks to augment their 88-millimeter artillery and heavier guns emplaced in the hills.

5TH ARMY WINS HEIGHTS ABOVE PLAIN OF NAPLES

Allies Shoot Down Nineteen More Nazi Troop Planes Evacuating Corsica.

NEW U. S. LANDING ON ISLE

Meanwhile American and British Flyers Batter Foe in Italy Without Any Opposition.

SEP 27 1943

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Sept. 25 (A. P.).—In a furious day and night offensive supported by heavy artillery barrages and resisted by German tanks as well as strongly emplaced guns, Lieut.Gen. Mark W. Clark's Fifth Army has fought its way onto hills looking down on the plain of Naples, Allied Headquarters announced today.

Meanwhile, Allied fighters shot down nineteen Junkers-52 transports, all heavily loaded with troops, in another sweep against the hard-pressed enemy's air-evacuation movement from Corsica, where French patriots and regulars and American Rangers were pressing him into a tight corner. At least ten more evacuation planes were damaged in the great air ba[illegible]e off historic Elba in which R. A. F. Beaufighters laid siege to the German-held tip of the island and trapped the Nazi air fleets just as t[illegible] did off Tunisia and Sicily.

The German planes were crowded with technicians and key men. Allied reports said that two of the seven transports shot down the day before had had 100 men crammed into each of them.

[American Rangers have landed on the beaches near Bastia, the German Dunkirk near the northern tip of Corsica, the British radio declared today in a broadcast picked up at New York by CBS. Quoting Algiers radio, London added that French troops have cut the railway linking Bastia with the south of Corsica.]

Gain Mountain Foothold.

Struggling forward over terrain so difficult that pack mules were used extensively to carry up guns and ammunition, Gen. Clark's men gained a foothold on the top of mountains extending from Vesuvius and Pompei in their drive on Naples.

The Fifth Army's advance, officially described as of several miles, put the Allied forces astride of several crossroads north and northeast of Salerno. Very heavy casualties have been inflicted on the enemy since the Fifth's big-scale drive toward Naples began, official reports said, and it was stated that the Fifth had captured 2,000 German prisoners since the landing at Salerno on September 9, and that the bag of captives was growing constantly. American and British losses have been comparatively light, it was said.

Despite the unsuitability of the mountains for armored warfare the Nazis were using tanks in small numbers to augment the fire power of sharpshooting 88-millimeter artillery and heavier guns emplaced in the hills.

Night Sky Ablaze With Light.

In the words of the headquarters spokesman the Allied troops could watch "our air forces knocking hell out of enemy communications in the area below." The whole rugged mountain area north and northeast of Salerno was brilliantly lighted all night by the flashes of a terrific artillery duel between hundred of Allied and German guns, front line dispatches said.

Gen. Clark, who appeared to have been swinging somewhat eastward from his previous hard course due north of Salerno in a drive to outflank Naples, now seemed to be thrusting forward with Vesuvius as a beacon. A break-through in this mountain area seemed possible at any time. The headquarters spokesman said that the tempo of the battle will increase tremendously once the Allies drive the enemy onto the plains below.

An indication that the Germans despaired of ever establishing a strong defense line across the whole Italian peninsula, such as would enable them to retain possession of Naples, was seen in the fact that the British Eighth Army advanced fifteen miles up the Adriatic coast from Bari to the outskirts of the town of Molfetta without resistance, and also pushed further inland beyond Altamura, whose capture was announced yesterday.

[In broadcasts picked up today at London, the German radio put out further alarms of imminent Allied landings in Italy, declared that the American and British casualties in the Salerno landing alone were 20,000, and estimated the Allied forces in the Salerno sector at sixteen British and three American infantry divisions, two British brigades, two British and one American "invasion" divisions and two British and one American armored divisions—a total of twenty-six divisions amounting to perhaps 440,000 men. By "invasion" divisions the Germans apparently referred to air-borne troops.]

Corsica Campaign.

On Corsica—the last island barrier to Allied thrusts up to the area of Genoa or the south of France—the Germans appeared about to play out their last hand. In addition to the impressive toll of twenty-six German air transports shot down in two days, evacuation craft were also sunk at sea. Mitchell bombers scored hits on one enemy transport, hit another vessel, sank a barge loaded with machinery and damaged a tug.

The Germans had already been routed from most strong points in Corsica and the desperateness of their situation was indicated by their risking of precious aircraft in the attempt to get the troops out. The Beaufighters sighted the Nazi transports in groups ranging up to fourteen or more, and raced in for the kill. The troop-laden planes were caught like so many sheep, and were sent flaming into the sea.

Tonight a French communique said that combined action by Allied sea and air forces was taking a heavy toll of Germans being evacuated from Corsica, and that French troops and patriots, exerting heavy pressure on Nazi forces still on the [illegible] have pushed them back into the northeastern corner of the island.

Air Force Is Active.

German efforts to supply and reinforce the large force defending Naples was greatly hampered by the steady bombing and strafing of highways, bridges and railroads all the way from the vicinity of the battleground to Pisa, far north of Rome. This hammering may compel the Germans to retreat rapidly.

During all these operations the German air force was never sighted over the battle area.

SOLDIER HONORED FOR SAVING CHILD

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Sept. 25 (A. P.).—Private Robert Pormuy of 1442 Park avenue, New York city, was decorated with the Soldier's Medal today for heroism in halting a runaway jeep which had a small child in its seat.

The award was made by Lieut.-Gen. Carl A. Spaatz, commander in chief of America. air forces in the European theater. He similarly decorated Sergt. Patrick A. Donohue of 121 Blossom street, Newark, N. J., for saving a comrade from drowning.

Private Pormuy's citation read, "On June 12 a small child climbed aboard an unattended Army jeep which was parked on a steep hill and accidentally released the brakes. With the child still aboard, the venicle careened down a crowded street at a dangerous rate of speed, injuring two pedestrians. As it came abreast of Private Pormuy he leaped aboard and succeeded in bringing the jeep to a halt. His initiative and courage in the face of personal danger have reflected great credit upon himself and the armed forces of the United States."

Although not a strong swimmer, Sergt. Donohue plunged into rough surf and brought an unconscious comrade ashore and his citation for the Soldier's Medal said, "Donohue's courage in the face of great personal danger reflects credit upon himself and the armed forces of the United States."

EISENHOWER PURE-BLOODED

G. I. AMERICAN

Speech, Manners And Even His Cuss Words Stamp Him As Such

By CLARK LEE

[American War Correspondent]

[Distributed by the Associated Press]

With General Eisenhower at an Advanced Allied Command Post, Sept. 24 (Delayed)—The first thing that strikes you about Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower is that his speech, manners, gestures and even his cuss words couldn't be anything but American. He has absolutely no sophistication in the European sense of continental manners, polished small talk and meaningless chit chat.

This is not to suggest that he cannot take care of himself in any company. He is as much at home with kings as with doughboys, and he is a man of great tact and understanding. But the essential quality that you feel while talking to him or watching him work are his intense sincerity and honesty.

Qualities Win Respect

It is those qualities that have won the respect and friendship of his associates and which enable him to quarterback with such great success the all-star backfield of Admiral Sir Andrew Browne Cunningham, Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur W. Tedder and General Sir Harold Alexander, all of them famous British commanders when Eisenhower was still a lieutenant colonel.

Eisenhower's headquarters staff is an all-star team, too, and many of his subordinates have had longer military careers than the general.

In planning an operation like the current invasion of Italy, Eisenhower asks and accepts the advice of his associates, but the final decision is his and so is the responsibility.

Goes Ahead Unswervingly

Once his mind is made up and a course of action decided upon, Eisenhower goes ahead unswervingly, using all his knowledge, skill and resources to bring it to a successful conclusion.

Eisenhower's job is essentially a lonely one, its strain unrelieved by the sharp excitement of combat action. For him the greatest period of tension comes between the time an operation is decided upon and its actual beginning.

Most of the personnel at headquarters refer to him as "General Ike," including the British officers. His aides call him "The Boss." The aides are Major Tex Lee, a breezy San Antonian who was formerly an automobile salesman, and Commander Harry C. Butcher, who left a job as vice-president of Columbia Broadcasting to join the navy.

Reading Tastes Confusing

The general's reading tastes are somewhat confusing. He likes anything that is well written. Aboard the plane in which he covers the huge area he commands there is a well-selected shelf of classics.

Eisenhower never sleeps longer than exactly six hours. Then an alarm clock in his busy brain seems to awaken him. If he goes to bed at 10 he is up at 4 A. M. looking for coffee.

The general is as happy as any G. I. when he gets mail from home. In other periods of his army service he has been separated from his family but never for such an indefinite assignment as this one.

Cuss Words Standard

His cuss words are the standard ones that have become part of the American vocabulary. He has no theatrical mannerisms, gestures or expressions and no personal vanity except that he is proud of his excellent physical condition.

On a visit to North Africa some months ago Gen. George C. Marshall ordered General Eisenhower to spend more time away from his office and he now rides horseback and swims once in a while.

He likes good food but eats moderately and has no difficulty keeping his weight at 180 pounds.

Unchanged By Honors

His associates say that his honors, decorations and victories have not changed him at all. He likes bridge but seldom has a chance to play. He is always a few minutes ahead of time for appointments.

Hen[illegible] Finds North of Circus Family Biggest Show of All in War

By DO[illegible]HTEHEAD

CAPRI, Sept. 22.—(Delayed) — (AP) Young Henry Ringling North is having more adventures in the Mediterranean as a lieutenant in Uncle Sam's Navy than he ever had operating the big top with his brother, John Ringling North.

Barnum Bailey's circus is just a sideshow compared with this extravaganza on the invasion front and Lieut. North is top man in one of the daredevil acts.

Two days ago he rescued Tito Zaniboni from the islands of Ponza where he was held as a prisoner because of his attempt on the life of Mussolini in 1926.

Lieut. North brought Zaniboni, his beautiful daughter and the Duke of Camerini from Ponza to Capri, thus saving three of Italy's most bitter anti-Fascists.

Lieut. North was the first American on the island of Ponza, which lies 60 miles north of Capri. He went with a naval task force 10 days ago to see if it still was German-held. German planes flew over the motor launches as they sped toward Ponza but did not attack them.

"We went in about 5 p. m.," Lieut. North said. "We found the Germans had gone but for some reason they had not taken Zaniboni or the Duke of Camerini with them."

When Badoglio assumed military adership in Italy, Zaniboni was released from prison and his daughter came from Rome to live with him.

"When my boat docked I asked if there were any political prisoners on the island and was told that Zaniboni was there," Lieut. North said. "Later the duke arranged dinner and while we sat over a bottle of wine Zaniboni told me of his experiences.

Except for the betrayal of his young secretary, Zaniboni might have ended Il Duce's career that day in Rome when he calmly prepared to assassinate the Fascist chief.

Zaniboni installed a precision rifle in his office across from the balcony on the Palazza Venezia. He knew the exact time Mussolini was to appear. An expert rifle-man, he expected one shot to be sufficient.

Dressed in the uniform of an Alpine regiment and wearing all of his World war medals, Zaniboni came to his office the day Mussolini was to speak. He had plans made for his escape. Everything seemed to be going according to plan.

But he had in his employ a young secretary addicted to gambling. He was 40,000 lire in debt and, unknown to Zaniboni, was desperate for money.

He leaned of Zaniboni's plan to kill Mussolini and then went to the Fascists. He sold out his employer for enough money to cover his gambling debts and police arrested Zaniboni before he could fire a shot.

Would you like to see the secretary now?" Lieut. North asked.

"No," Zaniboni replied. "No, I hold no enmity in my heart."

Zaniboni, who once operated a plantation near Charleston, N. C., some 40 years ago, spent three and a half years in solitary confinement on the island of Santo Stefano and then, so weak he couldn't walk, was moved to Alexandria prison in Piedmont where he was twelve years in solitary confinement. About two years ago he was moved to Ponza.

Lieut. North was unable to take Zaniboni from the island on his first trip but two days ago he returned in a boat skippered by Lieut. Arthur Bryant of Alexandria, Va., and brought him, his daughter and the duke to Capri, along with two R.A.F. and four German pilots picked up at sea after their planes were shot down.

"My only interest now," Zaniboni said, "is to help Italy in her hour of need."

Prior to this mission, North and Lieut. Andre Pacatte of Cleveland, Ohio, went ashore at Amalfi and started to the town of Cava, thinking it was safely in the hands of Allied troops. They walked into a barrage of mortar fire that had them sweating it out for some time and then the Germans dropped shells around them as they made their way back to the boat.

Lieut. North has had too much to do on his Navy job to give much thought to the Big Top.

"Things move to fast over here to worry about the circus," Lieut. North said.

BADOGLIO SWINGS NEAR DECLARATION OF WAR ON BERLIN

SEP 26 1943

Italy Now Fighting Same Historic Enemy, the Germans.

By EDWARD KENNEDY

BRINDISI, Italy, Sept. 25—(AP) The government of Marshal Pietro Badoglio seems moving steadily toward a declaration of war on the Germans.

Badoglio in messages broadcast from the government's radio station at Bari already has called on Italians to fight beside the British and Americans "in the common struggle" to oust the Germans from Italian territory.

Joins Same Old Friends

The government's newspaper, Gazzetta del Mezzogiorno of Bari, asserted that Italy in her "new resurgence" has "the same old historic enemy, the Germans, and the same old historic friends."

While Italy's efforts to be accepted as an ally and virtually one of the United Nations seems to have received some support in Washington, London military men here, both Americans and British, from high officers to privates, are unenthusiastic about having the Italians as new allies.

But being soldiers they will, of course, accept whatever policy is set up by those above.

I asked General Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, who has now all the British troops in this part of Italy under his Eighth army command, how he regarded the political developments and the situation in which Italians, though defeated, retain wide civil powers in the occupied part of their country.

Avoids Politics

"I have nothing to do with the political situation. I leave that to those in charge of those things. I am fighting the Germans in Italy. We are getting everything we want," he replied.

I talked to the general just as he was about to address a group of the Fifth corps in the Taranto area. Gen. Montgomery once commanded the Fifth corps in England. It fought in the Tunisian campaign as a part of the First British army and now has been incorporated into the new and greater Eighth army formed for the continental campaign.

Gen. Montgomery told the soldiers one reason behind the Eighth army's unbroken record of success in the past year was moral strength derived from being "one great big family" in which everyone knew everyone else and also that every soldier was taken into his confidence and told what was expected to be achieved before each offensive.

Badoglio has issued a decree compelling all tradesmen to accept British occupation money. Some shops, however, closed their doors rather than accept this currency.

Italian shopkeepers show a greater willingness to accept American occupation money, pale green bills of 100, 500 and 1,000 lire, looking like cigar coupons.

The objection to English money seems based mainly on Italian difficulty in understanding the British monetary system—shillings and

VICTORY SEEN FOR DE GAULLE OVER GIRAUD

National Committee Is Expected To Name Civilian War Minister

[By the Associated Press]

Algiers, Sept. 25—The French National Committee discussed at length today the appointment of a civilian war minister to relieve Gen. Henri Giraud of his Cabinet duties.

A reliable informant said that action on the appointment—which involved a controversy within the committee over the Corsican campaign—was deferred until Monday.

It was predicted reliably that Monday's session will see a civilian appointment, the committee thus acceding to Gen. Charles de Gaulle's demand for civilian supremacy in the direction of the broad political aspects in the conduct of the war.

Giraud Reports

Some forecast the appointee would be Adrien Tixier, member for labor and social affairs, a one-armed veteran of the First World War and though a strong de Gaullist, highly regarded by Giraud.

Giraud, recently returned from a flying trip to Corsica, gave the committee a report on the situation there and left the session an hour and a half before its close when the committee began discussion on the appointment of a war minister. He was accompanied by Gen. Alphonse George, another member of the committee. It was understood the two considered withdrawal "more tactful."

Cause Of Dispute

The dispute grew up within the committee because the de Gaullists were irritated by some of Giraud's reported actions during his two-day trip to Corsica.

When the French National Committee of Liberation was formed last June, Giraud and de Gaulle were designated cochairmen with Giraud commander in chief of French forces in North and West Africa and de Gaulle commander in chief for forces in other empire territories. This compromise averted a disruptive showdown over military authority at the time.

It is apparent now that the committee has decided to relieve Giraud of his Cabinet duties and only the identity of his successor is undecided.

ALGIERS SIGNS UP FOR LEND-LEASE AID

Algiers, Sept. 25 (A. P.).—A lend-lease agreement whereby French North Africa will receive arms and supplies from the United States for the French forces fighting with the Allies was signed today by the American Minister, Robert Murphy; the French Commissioner of Armament, and the French Foreign Commissioner, Rene Massigli.

M. Massigli said that a similar agreement with Great Britain is being drawn and will be signed shortly. In return, the United States will receive the use of railway and port facilities in North Africa and supplies, such as wheat, iron ore, manganese and phosphates. It was agreed that both sides will pay for the exchange of civilian goods.

Mr. Murphy and M. Massigli said that another lend-lease agreement covering all Empire territory controlled by the French Committee for National Liberation is being drawn.

ALGIERS COMMUNISTS CRITICIZE CATROUX

Attack Dissolution of Native Section of Assembly

ALGIERS, Sept. 25 (AP)—Algerian Communists, augmented by twenty-seven Communist members of the French Chamber of Deputies, issued a statement today criticizing Gov. Gen. George Catroux's dissolution yesterday of the native section of the Provincial Financial Assembly.

The statement called for a more complete explanation of the arrest Sept. 22 of two Arab leaders, Fehrat Abbas and Sayah Abdel-Kader, whom M. Catroux accused of fomenting dissatisfaction that resulted in all the former native members of the Assembly boycotting its meeting.

The statement coincided with reports from Tunis that Ali Djerad, secretary general of the Tunisian Communist party had been arrested. This excited his partisans, who asserted that Djerad was one of the leaders of resistance against the Germans and Italians before the Allied entry of North Africa.

GREEKS SLAY GERMANS.

CAIRO, Sept. 25 (AP).—Greek sources said today that many Germans were being found slain in Messenia Province as Greek patriots fought a reign of terror instigated by the Nazis soon after they replaced Italian occupation troops in Greece.

In reprisal, the Germans were said to be gathering hostages and to have burned the villages of Aetos and Rodakino.

Germans Watch As Corsican Patriots Get Arms By 'Chute

Native Says Nazi Patrols Open Fire But Are Driven From Flare-Lighted Field

SEP 26 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Algiers, Sept. 25—A German patrol of fifty men crept at night up to a flare-lighted field in the mountains of Corsica and saw a chilling sight—guns and ammunition descending by parachutes into the eager hands of patriots.

The Germans opened fire. The patriots replied. In a few moments several Germans were killed. The others fled, and the patriots triumphantly carried away their arms to be hidden until the day came for a real battle.

Henri Maillot, 43-year-old Corsican road contractor, who said he was a cousin of Gen. Charles de Gaulle, and who gave up his business nearly a year ago to devote all his energies to building up the underground organization in Corsica, told that and other stories today.

Just Back From Corsica

"We got Bren guns, machine-guns, light anti-tank guns, rifles, all dropped by parachute or smuggled ashore from submarines," said Maillot just arrived in Algiers from Corsica.

Reluctant to discuss his relationship with De Gaulle, he said "the general didn't even know until about a week ago that he had a cousin in Corsica."

"We have been organizing and training for nearly a year against the day to strike. It came the night of September 8 with the word of Italy's surrender, and we were able to put 15,000 armed men and boys into the field.

"Our orders were to attack the Germans and ignore the Italians. The Germans first had 8,000 soldiers on the island, but these numbers rose to 15,000 or 20,000 after their evacuation from Sardinia."

Boys Trained To Fight

The graying, hawk-nosed Corsican, with the dark eyes characteristic of his island countrymen, grinned as he recalled how the Germans and Italians were unable to prevent the distribution of arms.

"Submarines would bring up fifteen tons of guns," he said. "Then each group sent men with mules to run the guns through the enemy lines to the various neighborhoods. We had to fight our way through frequently. That's how we trained boys of 15 and 16 years old to fight."

The patriots wore no uniforms, but an arm band with a skull and crossbones, old favorite Corsican symbol.

But despite radio warnings from Algiers, the Germans refused to grant the Corsicans the status of prisoners of war. Mailott said he personally knew of 30 patriots taken prisoners who had been shot by the Germans.

Chaplain Chief in Cairo

CAIRO, Egypt, Sept. 25 (AP)—The Rev. Dr. William B. Pugh, Chairman of the General Commission on Army and Navy Chaplains, now on a world tour of American Army installations, arrived here today. Dr. Pugh, the Stated Clerk of the Presbyterian Church in the United States, is carrying on the work started by the late Methodist Bishop Adna W. Leonard, who was killed in a plane crash in Iceland last spring.

GIRAUD REPORTS

Algiers, Sept. 25 (A. P.).—Gen. Henri Giraud, fresh from the Corsican battle front, today reviewed the military situation on that island for the French Committee of National Liberation, but the meeting concluded without immediate signs of any schism between Gen. Giraud and Gen. Charles de Gaulle.

The de Gaullists, who had been irritated by some of Gen. Giraud's reported actions during his two-day trip to the island, had been expected to attempt to force the appointment of a civilian minister of national defense in accordance with Third Republic traditions, but the step was not taken.

Gen. Giraud was reported to have released the Ajaccio gendarmerie chief and port director who had been jailed by patriot guerrillas duringf the Corsican uprising that began on September 9.

Maritza Bombed by Night Third Time in Succession—Crete Airfield Also Attacked

CAIRO, Egypt, Sept. 25 (AP)—Royal Air Force light and heavy bombers attacked the German airdrome at Maritza, Rhodes, for the third successive night Thursday night, an Allied Middle East communiqué said today. A fire was started and was followed by an explosion.

British planes also raided the airdrome at Maleme, Crete. Fires were started. All aircraft returned.

YUGOSLAVS REPEL NAZIS' MOVE ON SPLIT

Report Enemy Suffers Heavy Losses In Effort To Regain Port

SEP 26 1943

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sept. 25—Yugoslav patriot armies have hurled back several more German attacks on the strategic Adriatic port of Split, still hold the greater part of Susak in the north, and have killed hundreds of the enemy and destroyed an armored train, tanks and other equipment, a communique said tonight.

The enemy suffered "heavy losses" in the effort to regain Split, said a Yugoslav liberation army bulletin issued here.

The port could serve as a bridgehead for an Allied invasion of the Balkans, and amid reports of spreading unrest in that shakily held "back door" to Germany there were increasing indications that the Yugoslav fighting had grown out of the guerrilla stage to a major operation, possibly directed by the Allied high command.

Axis Train Derailed

Susak, a port city adjoining Fiume, was seized sixteen days ago by the patriots, and tonight's bulletin said street fighting was con

...Gorizia, north of Italian Trieste, Slovenian troops were said to have yielded the airfield there under heavy German pressure, but before withdrawing they knocked out one enemy armored train and several tanks. The fight continues outside the city.

Pouncing on the Zagreb-Belgrade railroad, other units derailed one Axis train and blew up more than a mile of trackage between Brod and Vinkovci, killing twenty Germans, capturing seven and destroying an engine, twenty-five freight cars and other vehicles.

Tank Column Routed

A German tank column was routed near Idria by Slovene Partisans, the communique said, and in the Province of Lika, in Dalmatia, 200 Germans were killed and booty captured in a successful fight along the Bihac-Knin line.

An Istanbul dispatch said Greek guerrilla chieftains had conferred recently with Allied Middle East military officials at an undisclosed place, and as a result will meet shortly with Gen. Draja Mihailovic or his representatives somewhere in Yugoslavia to plan joint tactics against Axis occupation troops.

[A BBC report from Cairo said the Germans had "burned down one village and are busy collecting hostages" in Messenia Province in Southern Greece after Greek mountaineers there had attacked German troops. The broadcast was heard by CBS.]

Germany Admits Concern

[Another London broadcast quoted Swiss reports to Stockholm newspapers as saying that Italian troops were battering at German supply lines in northern Italy, and that Marshal Albert Kesselring, "surprised by the increasing resistance, has demanded air reinforcements from Germany to protect his supply line."]

[The BBC also quoted a German news agency broadcast as saying that "the Italians had freed several thousand British prisoners of war who were trying to fight their way through to Allied lines."]

Germany again acknowledged its concern tonight over the turbulent situation in the Balkans. A Berlin broadcast recorded by the Associated Press told of a German plan to "recognize Albania's independence, and return the whole national Croat territory to Croats."

Albanian Committee

It said that the Nazi high command thus hoped to pacify "and greatly facilitate the defense of southeastern Europe."

Hans Neubacher, former Mayor of Vienna, was said to be acting as Adolf Hitler's special envoy to set up an "Albanian National Committee." Neubacher was identified as a former German economic adviser to the satellite state of Rumania and the puppet Greek government established in Athens after that country's collapse.

In Washington, the Yugoslav Embassy reported it had received advices that the Italian division Venezia is cooperating with Yugoslav troops in fighting against the Germans in Montenegro.

The towns of Prijepolje, Bjelopolje and Berane in the Lum river valley were wrested from the Germans on September 12 and 14 by Yugoslav troops, the Embassy said. More than 300 Germans were reported killed and wounded in the attack on Prijepolje.

MARAUDERS RAID FRENCH AIRFIELD

British Plane Sinks Nazi Supply Ship Off Holland.

LONDON, Sept. 25—(AP) American Marauder bombers blasted the Longuenesse airfield at St. Omer in northern France today and British planes attacked rail and water transport targets in northern France and Belgium and sank a medium sized supply vessel off Den Helder in North Holland, it was announced tonight.

Allied Spitfires escorted the U. S. Eighth air force bombers on the St. Omer raid which was accomplished without the loss of a plane by the attacking force, a joint British Air ministry-U. S. Army communique said.

The supply vessel sunk off Den Helder was hit by a torpedo from an R.A.F. Beaufighter of the coastal command escorted by Spitfires.

More than a dozen locomotives and several barges were damaged in the offensive patrols over Belgium and northern France carried out by Mustangs, Typhoons and Spitfires. Fighter command Mosquitoes destroyed two Junkers 88s this afternoon. Two Coastal command and three Fighter command planes are missing from these operations, the Air ministry communique said.

Almost 48 hours after the R.A.F.'s heavy attack of Thursday night, fires still were burning late yesterday in the twin German industrial cities of Mannheim and Ludwigshafen, the Air ministry said, adding that the I. G. Farben Chemical works of Ludwigshafen was among the places still in flames. The statement said that "fresh damage done that night was severe, especially in the dock, central and Neckar Stadt areas of Mannheim," the statement said, and added:

"The enormous I. G. Farben chemical works of Ludwigshafen, a plant of the highest priority where about thirty buildings were hit, was still burning."

Fires were still burning late yesterday in the twin German industrial cities of Mannheim and Ludwigshafen almost forty-eight hours after the RAF's heavy attack of Thursday night, the Air Ministry said today.

"Fresh damage done that night was severe, especially in the dock, central and Neckar Stadt areas of Mannheim," the statement said, and added:

"The enormous I. G. Farben chemical works of Ludwigshafen, a plant of the highest priority where about thirty buildings were hit, was still burning."

CABINET POST GOES TO BEAVERBROOK

London, Sept. 25 (A. P.).—Lord Beaverbrook came back into the British Cabinet today after an absence of twenty months in a shuffle designed to strengthen the Government for the direction of post-war planning.

The newspaper publisher, one of the most vociferous critics of the Government since he left his post as Minister of Aircraft Production almost two years ago after a disagreement over the scope of his position, returned as Lord Privy Seal but without membership in Prime Minister Winston Churchill's War Cabinet.

As general utility minister he will assist Mr. Churchill with special administrative work and preside over a number of governmental committees concerned with both war and post-war organization.

The appointment of Lord Beaverbrook was the only one announced by No. 10 Downing Street which occasioned any surprise. One of the major changes was the selection of Sir John Anderson, former Lord President of the Council, for the post of Chancellor of the Exchequer to succeed the late Sir Kingsley Wood, who died Tuesday.

Sir Kingsley was not a member of the War Cabinet but Sir John will retain his post on that select board.

Richard Law was moved up from Under-Secretary of the Foreign Office to Minister of State and will get the responsibility for Foreign Office work concerned with post-war planning. Mr. Law led the British delegation at the United Nations food conference at Hot Springs, Va., last spring.

Nazis Spread New Flood of Peace Rumors

Hint at Pact With Russia, Report Rumania Asking Allies for an Armistice

LONDON, Sept. 25 (AP).—While the breath of military disaster blew cold upon their necks in Russia today, the Germans went to work on another propaganda campaign featuring peace rumors from many quarters.

Highlighting the Nazi-inspired web of rumor was a report from neutral Spain that the satellite Rumanians had sent representatives to Turkey to negotiate an armistice with the Allies.

The main purpose of the weekend campaign appeared to be to frighten the Allies into a belief that some sort of Nazi peace with Soviet Russia was possible.

A report that Germany itself was throwing out peace feelers "in every direction" was brought to London by a traveler from the Mediterranean area.

The London Daily Express, under the heading "Goebbels starts new peace lie," reported that the Germans had begun to whisper in the Balkans that they were withdrawing from Russia by agreement with the Soviet Government.

Having withdrawn to a short line between Russia and Poland—so ran this German story—Hitler would be in favorable position to talk peace with Premier Stalin and draw 2,000,000 men out of the East to confront the Allies in the west and south.

Called "Sheer Fantasy"

This was described here as "sheer fantasy." There was not a single bit of information suggesting the existence of any genuine German peace proposal to anybody.

In the Balkans, where the Yugoslavs have opened a major military campaign against the Germans, the Nazis abetted the circulation of the Rumanian peace rumor, in an apparent effort to cover up the steadily worsening situation in Hungary.

The German radio elaborately denied rumors that changes shortly would be made in the Hungarian Government as the result of an increasingly strong and aggressive democratic movement.

Another German broadcast quoted a Rumanian police official as saying that "Communist leadership" was preparing an attempt to overthrow the present pro-Axis government and install "various personalities of former democratic parties."

Hungary and Rumania, meanwhile, continued to scowl at each other over the possession of Transylvania, and the whole of the Balkans was freighted with mutual dislike and suspicions, to the injury of the Nazis' military situation there.

An article in the influential Turkish newspaper "Aksam" written by Necmeddin Sadak, who is close to the Turkish Foreign Ministry, advised the Bulgarians they would be wise at this time to return some of the territories they had taken from their Balkan neighbors, Greece, Yugoslavia and Rumania.

Knox And Stark Visit Base For Yank Marauders

London, Sept. 25 (AP)—Secretary Knox and Admiral Harold R. Stark, commander of United States naval forces in European waters, today visited a Marauder operational base.

Knox told the combat crews that a fine spirit of cooperation existed among all branches of the service and the Navy Secretary especially praised the achievements of the Marauders against the enemy in France and the Low Countries.

Donald Nelson, head of the War Production Board, who also is here, visited another Marauder base during the day.

...sures Knox on War With Japan

'Daily Telegraph' Says Public Is Aware of Far East Peril

LONDON, Sept. 25 (AP).—In an editorial headed "Side by Side," the "London Daily Telegraph" today responded to the appeal by Secretary of Navy Frank Knox for wider understanding in Great Britain that the war with Japan was "no pushover."

"The people of this country," the "Daily Telegraph" said, "are as conscious as their government that it would be an act of purblind parochialism to throw less than our whole weight against Japan when the hour strikes."

Secretary Knox told a press conference that Prime Minister Churchill's statement concerning Britain's participation in the war in the Far East had not dispelled the belief in America that the British were primarily concerned with the European conflict.

Soldier in AEF 18 Months Hears He's Not in Army

LONDON, Sept. 25 (AP).—PFC. Ray Adler, 26, Ponchatoula, La., came overseas and has been performing duties like any other soldier, including drawing his pay, with everybody, including himself, unaware that he has been discharged since Feb. 27, 1942.

A photostatic copy of a medical discharge granted Adler after an automobile accident in Mobile, Ala., has just arrived—18 months after it was issued.

Adler, whose pelvis was fractured, said the only after-effect of the accident is weariness when he walks too far. He said that if the discharge sticks, he is going to join the Merchant Marine.

Attributes Some War Films To 'Ignorance'

London, Sept. 25 (AP)—Lieut. Col. Frank Capra, USA Signal Corps, three winner of Motion Picture Academy awards, said today that Hollywood "had not done a very good job" on some of its war films, but he attributed this to "ignorance."

Replying at a press conference to questions concerning criticism published in London that Hollywood had at times made "flag-waving pictures that are embarrassing the boys over there and make them squirm," Capra said.

"I hold no brief for Hollywood because I don't think they've done a very good job. They are a long way from the war."

PROMISES PLANE EVERY 5 MINUTES

London, Sept. 25 (A. P.).—Donald M. Nelson, United States War Production Board chairman, told the Allies—and the Axis as well—last night, that United States war industry soon would be completing one military plane every five minutes.

Mr. Nelson, speaking at a dinner given in his honor by the British Government, asserted that American war production this year would be at least one and one-half times the combined output of Germany and Japan. Next year, he promised, it probably will be twice as great.

Expressing belief that his figures would interest the Germans as well as his immediate audience, Mr. Nelson said that the United States alone produced 110,000 war planes since January 1, 1942, and that the production curve is still rising.

In that same period, America produced 60,000 tanks, 53,000 scout cars and carriers and 1,100,000 trucks and trailers, Mr. Nelson said, as well as more than 21,000,000 deadweight tons of merchant vessels and 3,000,000 displacement tons of naval vessels.

Enough artillery and ammunition has been produced in the United States to "let us fire 2,0... shots at every Axis soldier," disclosed.

Nazis Win Race to Get Downed English Flyers

But Lose Two Planes in North Sea Battle With Fortresses

AN AMERICAN FLYING FORTRESS BASE IN ENGLAND, Sept. 25 (AP).—Six Flying Fortresses searching for a Royal Air Force Halifax crew floating in the North Sea a few days ago spotted them just as they were about to be "rescued" by a German Dornier seaplane.

The Fortresses sank the Dornier and also shot down one of two Junkers 88s which tried to interfere. They then engaged in a race with the remaining Nazi plane to get a rescue plane to the Halifax and Dornier crews before another German seaplane could be sent, but the Germans won and captured the Englishmen.

When the Fortresses broke in on the ocean drama, the Dornier was so close to the dinghy from the Halifax that the American gunners were hard put to attack the seaplane without endangering the Englishmen. They manage to shoot the tail off, so the D... went down and the Germ...

had to take to their boat.

When the twin-engined Junkers escorting the Dornier closed in, the gunners polished off one. The other streaked for home, presumably to get assistance.

The Fortress airmen waved reassurance to the floating flyers and took up the race. But the German rescue bases were closer, and when the R. A. F. planes reached the scene the flyers already had been picked up.

GERMAN MORALE CRACKS DESPITE NAZIS' 'CURES'

Mass-Scale Raids Spread Defeatism, Corruption and Confusion.

BY EDWIN SHANKE

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 25—(AP) The Nazis are using most drastic measures in an effort to stiffen morale on the home front, shot through with defeatism, corruption and confusion as a result of mass-scale air raids.

These are the most significant new developments inside Germany during a tense and anxious period for the German people which has seen the fall of Mussolini, Italy's capitulation and the steady German withdrawal on the East front.

The formal placement of full policing powers in the hands of Heinrich Himmler shows what a serious view Hitler and the German army take toward the spreading feeling at home of insecurity, uncertainty and even apathy toward the war effort.

The Germans know well the iron fist of Himmler, who has been growing progressively more powerful.

It was no surprise, therefore, when the Nazi press declared that Himmler's appointment as minister of interior ushered in a period of harshness that would mark the opening of a war against Nazi opposition circles.

What Himmler Means

The "Hakenkreuz" of Banner-Mannheim said:

"Himmler means a program of hardness, clearness and consistency. He is a strong powerful man. To certain small circles, Himmler's appointment will be a warning against any tendencies to overthrow the government and destroy the community. The change occurs at a moment when Germany is undergoing the hardest test, whether in former Poland, Norway, or former Yugoslavia. His ... doubtless means hard realism, ... also fanatical idealism."

Since early September Himmler, with Gen. Kurt Daluege as strong-arm man, has been taking energetic action. He was long prepared for the job of snuffing out potential revolts. His S.S. units are strong, armed, ruthless.

They have taken over strategically located corner stores and apartments as arsenals. No German ministry is without Himmler's S.S. state secretary to keep an eye out for danger signs. There is hardly a field of governmental administration in which Himmler does not wield great influence.

Preparing to meet Allied thrusts on all sides of the so-called European fortress, the army, according to some reports, insisted on the appointment of Himmler in order to make the home front firm.

Propaganda Minister Goebbels has recently been publicizing Himmler's campaign against defeatists. There was a time when Nazi policy suppressed such news because it put dangerous thoughts into German minds and revealed Nazi weakness. But in the last two weeks six executions for defeatism have been prominently noted in the Nazi press.

Firing Squads In Action

This can mean only that defeatism has increased to such an extent that frightening examples are needed to keep ths home front under control. And for every execution made public there doubtless were dozens more. Firing squads went into action from Koenigsberg in the east to Metz in the west and eliminated "enemies of the state," from government employes down to waiters, for "trying to undermine the fighting morale of the home front" by defeatist writings and utterances.

German papers also reflect a general drop in morale. They are full of news of convictions for petty crimes—violations of the blackout, rationing and other wartime regulations—because, under the pressure of hardships and shortages, people no longer care. Himmler is trying to control that with the same harsh action in which life is not worth a dime.

There are other stories of corruption, too, especially among high Nazis dealing in the black market, and of grafting in supplying special permits needed to get supplies and other considerations. A majority of them go unpunished.

Heinrich Hoffmann, Hitler's personal photographer, demonstrated his black market connections by producing all the needed butter, meat, ham, champagne, liquor and other rationed articles from his automobile when he popped in unexpectedly at a party. His host had been apologizing to Hoffman because he did not have enough to eat and drink.

Beyond the physical and mental shock they cause, the heavy RAF and Flying Fortress raids were said to be having an extremely depressing effect on morale because families had been scattered without individual members knowing how to get in touch with one another, nor even whether relatives were still alive. Evacuees had been loaded on trains without being told their destinations.

Effect On Soldiers

But perhaps more important is the effect on soldiers at the fronts, who are worrying about relatives and friends in the bombed cities. The general commandant in Hamburg formed a staff to answer the queries of soldiers about their relatives.

Reliable Swedish newspaper accounts even reported the Germans had now sharpened control of letters from the fronts to families at home and had issued a booklet on "the art of writing field post letters," in which was emphasized the necessity for writing cheery and encouraging letters.

Meanwhile, there is a steady flow of travelers' stories and other reports from Germany which can be summarized thus:

The Germans are tired of war, sickened by losses for which they blame Hitler, and want peace.

LEADER IN FINLAND CHANGES WAR VIEW

Little Nation's International Position Precarious, Ties with Russia Favored.

SEP 26 1943

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 25. — (AP) Finnish Finance Minister Vaino Tanner's frank admission that Finland's international position is precarious, and his new viewpoint on relations with Russia, created surprise among Finnish politicians, reports reaching here said today.

Notably anti-Soviet in the past, Tanner also suggested in a speech last night at the Helsinki community hall that peace discussions within Finland be muffled—a suggestion which brought a sharp rebuke from Finland's newspaper.

The growing opposition group to Tanner in his Social Democratic party maintained that despite his new attitude to Russia the finance minister had waited too long before discarding his old views and that his statements no longer were of any practical influence or importance.

Tanner said that if Finland "could get a guarantee that we will not be threatened by permanent danger" from Russia "we would be ready to establish normal relations." He declared Finns would have to face the fact that in the future they will have "to live as neighbors to strong Russia." He declared that Russia "cannot be conquered militarily."

DALUEGE EXPECTED TO RULE IN DENMARK

German Elite Guard Officer Is Reported in Copenhagen

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Sept. 25 (AP)—Col. Gen. Kurt Daleuge, the successor of the late Reinhard Heydrich, is expected to take over authority in Denmark as German Governor soon after the birthday of King Christian X tomorrow, it was reported here today.

Danes here said that General Daleuge had been in Copenhagen since Thursday. His appointment would mean the introduction of the German Elite Guard regime in Denmark, which is still torn by sabotage and violence.

Leaders of the major Danish political parties and former Premier Eric Scavenius' Cabinet are said to have refused a second German attempt to get them to form a new government. The refusal was given with the approval of King Christian, who, with Queen Alexandrine, is still a prisoner in Sorgenfri Castle.

The King was reported to have received the Danish political leaders at Sorgenfri to hear their report on the German effort to force them to establish a new government. Noting that their attention was attracted by bullet holes in the walls as a result of fighting outside the castle on Aug. 29, the King remarked: "Yes, they were a bit brutal."

King Christian will observe his birthday quietly tomorrow in custody. The Germans have prohibited large demonstrations and the state of emergency remains in effect.

Swedish Labor Groups Oppose Aid for Nazis

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 25—(AP) Some Swedish workers organizations have asked the government to cease selling war materials to Germany.

The labor newspaper Arbetaren said the Swedish Central Labor organization had sent a petition to the government saying "we desire an investigation of the possibility of freeing the country of this compromising position."

Mentioning shipments of iron ore and wood by-products to Germany, the petition said "We and many Swedish workers have the feeling of guilt that our work contributes to the maintenance of the aggressor states' war power."

Allies Direct Balkan Troops

Stockholm, Sept. 25 (A. P.).—A Budapest dispatch to the newspaper Svenska Dagbladet said today that a full-scale military operation was under way against German and Nazi satellite troops in Yugoslavia by a force 180,000 strong under Allied command.

The dispatch said the action had reached the scale where it could no longer be considered guerrilla warfare, and Berlin dispatches said the Germans were rushing reinforcements to the Dalmatian area in an effort to regain control. Nazi military commanders admit, however, the dispatches said, that Yugoslavian forces hold strong mountain positions.

The newspaper listed these principal war zones:

Bosnia, southwestern Serbia and Montenegro; Dalmatia and the Croatian coast, and Slovenia and Istria.

Nazi Retreat In East Laid To Italian Move

Stockholm, Sept. 25 (AP)—A recognized German war commentator said today that Italy's capitulation to the Allies was responsible for the present drastic retreat to shorten the eastern Russian front.

The German propagandist had insisted since the Italian armistice that the fall of the Axis partner would have no effect on the outcome of the war.

The commentator, Dr. Adolf Halfeld, writing in the Hamburger Fremdenblatt, said:

"Military and political changes by German forces have been made necessary by Italy's treason. If King Vittorio Emanuele's Italy as a brother in arms had shown more power and had been more honest, according to all human calculations, it never would have been necessary to shorten the eastern front."

QUISLINGS ARE SPLIT

Stockholm, Sept. 25 (A. P.).—A wide-open split appeared to be developing today in the forces of Vidkun Quisling on the third anniversary of his taking over the Norwegian Government under the auspices of Adolf Hitler.

Information reaching the Norwegian legation in Stockholm from Norway indicated that five of the eight members of his Cabinet were ready to resign after a dispute.

The split was said to have been precipitated by Eivino Blehr, Minister of Food and Supplies. Four other members of the Cabinet were said to have supported Blehr.

Cut in French Rail Traffic

Saboteurs and Nazis Reduce Service on Some Lines to Once a Week

BERN, Switzerland, Sept. 25 (AP).—Because of increasing sabotage and other difficulties and requisitioning of locomotives and rolling stock by the Germans, railroad traffic in France will be cut sharply in October.

City people who go to the country to seek food will be especially hard hit, Swiss dispatches said. Even the Red Cross, which took many children to the country during the summer, now is unable to organize trains to return them home. On some lines trains will run only once or twice weekly.

SWISS MAY LIMIT ITALIAN REFUGEES

SEP 26 1943

Berne, Sept. 25 (A. P.).—A communique announced today that 20,000 civil and military refugees from Nazi-dominated Italy have arrived in neutral Switzerland, but other announcements said that immigration bars now would be strengthened.

The Swiss newspaper Nieuw Zuercher Zeitung reported that the Swiss Federal Council was opposed to unlimited entrance of refugees lest a precedent be established for future waves on other frontiers.

Switzerland, which also adjoins Germany, was said to have warned Italians through its consulate in Milan that henceforth only those who possess valid passports and visas could cross the border.

PEACE FEELERS REPORTED MADE BY RUMANIANS

Representatives Said to Be Meeting Allies in Ankara.

BULGARIA ALSO SEEKS END

United Nations Leaders Direct 180,000 Troops Fighting in the Balkans.

SEP 26 1943

Madrid, Sept. 25 (A. P.).—Reports, some clearly of German origin, circulated here today that representatives of the Rumanian Government are negotiating with Allied representatives at Ankara, Turkey, for an armistice.

The Rumanians first attempted, the reports said, to omit the Russians and negotiate only with the Western Powers, but, failing in this, agreed to meet the tri-power representatives.

There was no indication of the progress of the rumored meetings, but Balkan representatives here feel that such conferences might be linked with Budapest reports of growing tension between Rumania and Hungary over Transylvania, northern Rumanian area ceded to Hungary under Axis pressure.

Bulgarians Also Seek Aid.

[CBS recorded a London broadcast of a report from Istanbul today that a Bulgarian envoy is expected there soon to seek a basis for Turkish intervention with the Allies on Bulgaria's behalf.

The Berlin radio, reporting on Axis activity in the Balkans, said an Albanian National Committee had been formed in that former kingdom to replace the Italian Government there "after the treason of Badoglio and the flight of the Albanian Prime Minister." Germany, it said, has recognized the committee.

Mustafa Merlika Kruja, an Albanian who had spent considerable time in Italy prior to the Italian invasion, was named Premier of the Italian-dominated Government in 1941. The Berlin radio's reference to the "flight of the Albanian Prime Minister presumably referred to him.]

Duce's Fall Started Feelers.

The reports said that Rumania first sounded out the Allies for an armistice shortly after Mussolini's ouster as Italian Premier and again sought an armistice conference immediately after the Italian capitulation.

Although reconciled to unconditional surrender the Rumanians were said to be mainly concerned over the method of surrender and the fate of Transylvania. Earlier reports had told of Rumanian-German friction over Rumania's insistence on moving her reserves toward the Hungarian frontier instead of replacing her heavy losses on the Russian front.

[The German Transocean News Agency "today reported the discovery of a plan for the overthrow of the Antonescu regime, and its replacement by a democratic system," BBC said in a broadcast recorded by CBS. The German report states that the centers of revolutionary activity are Bucharest and Ploesti, BBC continued. Summary executions, says the German report, will be meted out to the leaders of any resistance movement.]

The reports said further that near-panic was aroused among Budapest Government and military leaders when they heard of the Rumanian armistice feelers and that Hungarian contacts with United Nations' representatives may have been made also.

Greek-Serb Attack Planned.

Istanbul, Sept. 25 (A. P.).—Greek and Serbian guerrilla forces are preparing for joint action against German communications and troop concentrations, reliable information from Nazi-occupied Greece disclosed today.

Three high commanders of the Andarts, Greek patriotic organization, conferred recently with Allied Middle East military officials at an undisclosed location, the information said, and as a result they will meet soon with Gen. Draja Mihailovic or his representatives somewhere in Yugoslavia to plan joint tactics.

CHINA LIKELY TO MARK TIME

Army Waiting For America And Britain To Reveal Grand Strategy

C. F. Kinsmoryn

[By the Associated Press]

Chungking, Sept. 25—Apart from small-scale and largely disassociated actions, the Chinese armies are likely to mark time in the war with Japan at least until they can join to the fullest advantage in the big Allied offensive.

Even then their participation probably will be on a plane circumscribed by shortages in air support, heavy weapons and supplies in general, which are likely to persist in some degree long after any reopening of the Burma road.

These are the conclusions to be drawn from day-to-day reports on the war in China, as well as from recent official utterances.

Waiting For Allied Move

Chungking, which gives the impression of calm patience amid a Shanytown squalor enforced by the war, is waiting for the United States and Britain to show their hands in the slow unfolding of grand strategy.

By the declarations of her leaders, however, China is ready to bear her proper share of the burden of the offensive when the time comes.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek declared on September 18 in his first public appearance as President: "Now is the time for us to coordinate our efforts with those of our Allies in launching an all-front counter-offensive to bring our fight to a successful conclusion."

Explains Lull

He indicated that China would not be satisfied merely to continue immobilizing thirty Japanese divisions, which he pointed to as an outstanding achievement by his forces in six years of war.

Chang Tao-fan, Minister of Information, on September 22 emphasized in an extraordinary explanation of the present lull in the fighting that China would fulfill her part at the propitious time. His lengthy comments at a regular press conference were predicated on the fact that "some of our friends have been taken aback by the lull prevailing on various fronts in China."

"In a protracted war," he said, "one is bound to be disappointed if he expects campaigns of great magnitude all the time. These periodic lulls have been the case in many theaters other than China."

Looking For Equipment

He underlined China's great dependence on the Allies for equipment and told the correspondents that "great attention" should be paid to the reconquest of Burma and reopening of the Burma road. "By saying we are looking for equipment for launching an offensive doesn't mean we look to the Allies to fight our battle," he added.

The Chinese press has been busily assessing recent Allied strokes in the Southwest Pacific as a preliminary phase of an offensive which may carry the war to the Japanese mainland, possibly bypassing China in an island-to-island approach.

Questioned On Singapore

One sober-minded spokesman, not a Chinese, who believes China is the only practical avenue of attack on Japan and that the Allies still face a long struggle, said most people were forgetting the need for naval bases in this part of the world before new naval power could be exerted.

"Then, what about taking Singapore first?" he was asked.

"It's going to be pretty tough to retake Singapore when the British couldn't hold it in the first place," he answered dryly.

JAP BOMBER LOSSES HEAVY IN CHINA RAID

Gen. Glenn Says Attack on American Base Took Greatest Toll Yet.

U. S. FLYERS BLAST BURMA

Railway Trackage Is Destroyed and Buildings Hit by Fleet of B-25s.

J. Reilly O'Sullivan

Fourteenth United States Air Force Headquarters in China, Sept. 24 (A. P.)—(Delayed).—The Japanese suffered "one of their most serious losses of the air war in China" in their bombing attack on the 14th U. S. A. A. F. Headquarters September 20, Brig.-Gen. Edgar Glenn announced today. Gen. Glenn, chief of staff to Major-Gen. Claire L. Chennault, made the statement in a review of the week's air operations in this theater.

In the raid on headquarters the Japanese sent over twenty-seven bombers, fifteen of which were shot down, seven probably destroyed and three damaged for the largest bomber score yet turned in by American fighter planes in China. In addition, two Zero fighters were destroyed, two probably shot down and four damaged. Our loss was minor damage to the air base. One P-40 was shot down, but the pilot is safe.

Careful of Bombers.

"This time our fighters engaged and drew off a part of the Zero escort while others hit the bombers almost unmolested," Gen. Glenn said. "The Japanese have been very careful of their bombers, always giving them strong protection. I don't think they are making so many bombers, but are specializing on fighter aircraft."

Gen. Glenn said the Fourteenth U. S. A. A. F.'s attack on the Hankow area caused the enemy to withdraw bombers to airdromes much farther north. "During the last week the Fourteenth continued the offensive in the Hankow area against Yangtze shipping, railroad yards and targets of opportunity, doing much damage with the scale of the force we have," he continued.

The bombings included ammunition and supply dumps southeast of Hankow, a foundry and iron smelting plant at Shinweiyao, and docks and railway yards at Liukiang, where direct hits were made on a 225-foot destroyer or naval auxiliary ship and near misses on a big freighter and other vessels at Nanking. No planes were lost in these operations.

The Japanese retaliated by periodic bombing of auxiliary American airfields in Eastern and Southeastern China where no aircraft are stationed and there are only meager installations.

"These bombings apparently were carried out to save face and as training flights," Gen. Glenn said.

Burma Railwa

New Delhi, Sept. 25 (A. P.).—Heavy damage was inflicted on the Sedaw railway station of Japanese-occupied Burma Wednesday by B-25 medium bombers of the Tenth United States Air Force, a headquarters communique said today.

"Considerable trackage was destroyed in the yard area and direct hits were made on the switch house," the belated report said.

The Mu Canal Bridge was damaged considerably by a bomber in a low-level attack. All aircraft and crews returned safely from the raids.

Finschhafen Airport Captured

Australian Troops Are Less Than Mile From Jap Base on New Guinea.

Allied Headquarters in the Southwest Pacific, Sept. 25 (A. P.).—The Finschhafen airfield has been wrested from the Japanese, giving Gen. Douglas MacArthur a New Guinea base for his planes seventy-five miles from the enemy's strategically important bastion of New Britain.

Australians who landed from the sea in the face of mortar and machine-gun fire six miles north of Finschhafen Wednesday captured the field and now are within three-quarters of a mile of the town, headquarters reported today.

The impending capture of Finschhafen would add sixty more miles of shoreline—that between Finschhafen and Lae—to the New Guinea coastal region under Allied control.

Nearing Rabaul Fortress.

From Finschhafen's airfield, unserviceable recently to the Japanese because of Allied air poundings, it is an eighty-five-mile flight to the enemy airdrome of Cape Gloucester and 165 miles to the Gasmata airdrome—New Britain bases guarding the way up that crescent-shaped island to Rabaul, a stronghold with three airdromes and a harbor capable of accommodating a good sized fleet.

Capture of the Salamaua airdrome on September 11 and the Lae air base on September 16 has been followed quickly by increased fighter and attack plane activity over New Britain.

Set Dumps Afire.

Today's communique reported that fighters identified by a spokesman as P-40s, dive-bombed installations on the tiny island of Gasmata.

Beauforts, medium bombers, set supply dumps afire and exploded ammunition in the Kimbe Bay region, which is 150 miles from Rabaul and slightly more than 250 miles from Lae-Salamaua. Long-range fighters previously have moved into this sector.

In other air activity reported today, Mitchells swung inland along the Markham Valley beyond positions seized by paratroopers on September 5. The bombers dropped many tons of explosives and fired 41,000 rounds of ammunition at Japanese trying a back door escape from the debacle at Lae. The Mitchells roamed as far as Ragitsuma eighty miles northwest of Lae without spotting an enemy plane

AUSSIES CROSS NEW GUINEA RIVER

MacArthur's Troops Close in Swiftly on Jap Base at Finschhafen.

SEP 27 1943

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC Sunday, Sept. 26.—(AP) Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today that Australian troops have fought their way against Japanese opposition across the Bumi river within three quarters of a mile of the enemy air and supply depot base of Finschhafen, New Guinea.

The south shore beachhead was firmly established and the Aussies drove steadily toward the town, which is on the Huon peninsula only 75 miles from Japan's strategic island of New Britain. Enemy resistance was bitter.

Jap Planes Repulsed

The Japanese airforce, which lost more than 40 planes last Wednesday trying to break up the Australians in their amphibious landings six miles north of Finschhafen, tried to hamper the drive but outnumbered Lightnings turned back a strong enemy formation.

"Our ground forces in the face of enemy opposition effected a crossing of the Bumi river and are driving south towards the town," today's communique said.

"Four fighters intercepted a force of nine enemy bombers covered by 30 fighters approaching to attack our ground troops. The enemy planes were forced to jettison their bombs harmlessly before reaching the target. One enemy fighter was shot down and another probably destroyed. We lost two fighters."

Jap Ship Sunk

The communique reported airforce action against Japanese shipping. In a favorite hunting ground for enemy vessels near Kavieng, New Ireland, four-engined reconnaissance planes sank a 2,000 ton cargo ship.

Off the same island near Cape St. George, an enemy cruiser was attacked and three medium cargo vessels were bombed in the north

Solomons area but these were night actions and results were not determined.

The Australians bidding for Finschhafen already have captured the airfield and capture of the town would run the solid line of New Guinea coast in Gen. MacArthur's hands an additional 60 miles—from Lae to Finschhafen.

ARGENTINA HAS PLAN TO FINANCE INDUSTRY

Hopes to Build Up National Defense and Raise Output

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—The Argentine Government has embarked upon a program of industrial stimulation to bolster national defense, seriously compromised during the war by the impossibility of importing materials.

The Ministry of Finance has been instructed to create a credit system designed to encourage the growth of industry in general and of military enterprises in particular. Although this is not expected to produce immediate results, Argentina wants to diminish its dependence on foreign war supplies in the future.

The government also is seeking to encourage industries producing civilian necessities difficult to obtain abroad in wartime, in an effort to raise the country's standard of living through a favorable peacetime trade balance bolstered by exports of manufactured articles.

Normally agricultural and meat products account for nearly 90 per cent of the value of Argentine exports. However, in the past two years the country has increased its exports of textiles, drugs, leather goods and other manufactured articles to Ibero America, the United States and South Africa, and the government hopes to retain and expand these new markets after the war as well as supply an increasing number of articles for home consumption.

To these ends the government has allocated 100,000,000 pesos (about $24,800,000) to discount industrial loans by private banks. The government fund will participate in these loans to the extent of 30 per cent but will also discount up to 60 per cent of an operation. The government will forego its claim as creditor in the event of failure until the banks' claims have been paid.

FLOODS BRING MISE... TO VENEZUELAN AREAS

Thousands Homeless by Overflow of Apure and Orinoco

1943

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—Thousands of people are homeless, vast damage has been done to herds and property, and Venezuela faces her greatest relief problem in fifty years as a result of a three-week rampage of the Apure and Orinoco Rivers.

With property damage estimated in the millions, refugee families huddled homeless and hungry in highland areas, and sickness and plague threatening from the stagnant waters of the slowly receding rivers, Venezuela's government and people are rising to meet the emergency.

President Isaias Medina Angarita has made a personal inspection of the worst of the afflicted area.

With a feeling of helplessness, Venezuelans began receiving reports in mid-July of unusually high waters and heavy rains in the northwest mountain country. It was from those mountain slopes that myriad tributaries rushed brimful into the huge Rio Apure, which drains the area and empties into the Orinoco in the very heart of the nation.

San Fernando de Apure, capital of the state of Apure, was the first to feel the lash. The muddy tide rolled over the city and washed far back over the rich cattle center of Venezuela. Thousands of head of much-needed cattle perished with the flood.

Hundreds of miles down river Ciudad Bolivar, main city of Venezuela's interior and an historic site dear to the hearts of Venezuelans was hard hit.

Aid has taken form in contributions of clothing, money, working hours, everything Venezuelans feel can be of use to their suffering countrymen. From the American, Colombian and other foreign colonies in Caracas have come contributions as well as from the Dutch island of Curaçao and from the Holy See.

The government has come through with about $120,000, while a national committee, the Red Cross, and other charitable groups have been doing yeoman service in getting food, supplies and medicine to the suffering.

Stettinius Is Named Successor to Welles

Foreign Economic Agencies Grouped Under Crowley by Roosevelt Order.

President Roosevelt, in a three-way move to bolster his foreign policy and foreign economic administrations, tonight names 42-year-old Chicago-born Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., as undersecretary of state to succeed Sumner Welles, who resigned.

At the same time, he grouped all foreign economic activities of the government, except those under Nelson Rockefeller's Office of Inter-American Affairs, under another midwesterner, 53-year-old Leo T. Crowley of Wisconsin.

Lehman Named Roosevelt Aide

The third step was the appointment of former Governor Herbert Lehman of New York as special assistant to the President to perfect plans for the Nov. 9 meeting of United Nations on relief.

The President said Mr. Lehman will be urged by this government to become director of the international relief set-up.

In announcing Mr. Welles 'resignation, which had been reported unofficially for several weeks, the President said Mr. Welles asked to be relieved because of his wife's health. Reports of differences between Mr. Welles and Secretary of current.

Mr. Roosevelt expressed "sincere regret" at Mr. Welles' departure and said the New York-born diplomatic career man had served the State department and this government with "unfailing devotion" for many years. Mr. Welles was not mentioned for any new assignment.

Mr. Stettinius, as the new No. 2 man at the State department, moves over from the Lend-Lease administration where as administrator he has supervised the spending of billions for Allied war aid.

Associates of James F. Byrnes, war mobilization chief, who was reported as having been a mainspring in the new Administration shake-up, said the transfer of Mr. Stettinius to the State department was considered an elevation of a loyal Administration worker who stands in well with Congress and who can be expected to add new life to the department. The President said Mr. Stettinius' long experience in business (he was U. S. Steel board chairman at 38) and with America's Allies splendidly equip him for the new job.

Consolidated under Mr. Crowley's new title of administrator the Office of Foreign Economi Administration are his own recently reorganized Office of Economic Warfare, the Lend-Lease administration, Mr. Lehman's Office of Foreign Relief and Rehabilitation Operations, and the Office of Foreign Economic Coordination.

The latter two offices have been under the State department, with Assistant Secretary of State Dean Acheson heading the economic coordination unit.

It was disclosed tonight that Mr. Crowley, who has headed several government agencies, has resigned his $50,000 a year post as chairman of the board of the Standard Gas and Electric company to accept $10,000 as a government salary. He has not accepted any Federal pay thus far in his jobs as OEW head, alien property custodian, and chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation.

Centralization of the foreign economic activities under one head was reported to have grown out of complaints, particularly from the Army, that too many agencies have men abroad operating in the same economic field. This, it was said, has led to delays and much bickering over "who has authority over what."

Praises Crowley

The President said Mr. Crowley is "one of the best administrators" "in or out of the government" and added he took great satisfaction in promoting him to the new position.

Mr. Lehman resigned the governorship of New York in the latter part of 1942 to head the new relief unit in the State department.

The transfer of Mr. Stettinius to the State department as second in command was something of a surprise. His name had not been prominently mentioned in speculation about Mr. Welles' successor.

The White House said it was expected that the United States would urge Mr. Lehman's designation as director of the United Nations' relief and rehabilitation program.

This post could be secured for Mr. Lehman by submitting his name to all the other interested governments. With their approval, Mr. Lehman would be in charge of relief operations for virtually the entire world.

The new foreign economic administration was set up under an executive order.

Letters Not Made Public

The White House departing from the customary practice in announcing resignations of high officials, did not make public the text of Mr. Welles' letter of resignation or the text of Mr. Roosevelt's reply accepting it.

In the order setting up the new economic office, the President said its powers and functions must be exercised in conformity with the American foreign policy as defined by the Secretary of State.

As soon as military operations permit, the order asserted, the foreign economic administration ll assume responsibility for, control of all activities of the States government in liberareas with respect to supplying the requirements of and procuring materials in such areas."

Stettinius, 43, Has Served in Many Key Posts

Was President of General Motors in '34, Became U.S. Steel Chairman in '38

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25 (AP).—Good looks and wide experience go to the State Department with Edward Reilly Stettinius jr., appointed by President Roosevelt to succeed Sumner Welles as Under Secretary of State.

The new second man to Secretary Cordell Hull is tall and well built, with white hair crowning his youthful face. He is only forty-three, younger than most men to have held the many important jobs he has had in and out of government.

Son of the late Edward R. Stettinius, the new under secretary drew notice back in 1938 when he became chairman of the United States Steel Corporation. He was chairman of the War Resources Board in 1939. He became lend-lease administrator before Pearl Harbor and gained experience that prompted the President to move him up again.

Mr. Stettinius was born wealthy but he won success by his own efforts and ability. Chicago is his home town. He was graduated from the University of Virginia in 1924 and was married in 1926. His wife is the former Virginia Gordon Wallace, of Richmond.

Mr. Stettinius was president of General Motors Corporation by 1934 and switched to United States Steel to become its youngest chairman.

Mr. Stettinius' father was a partner in J. P. Morgan & Company and a former Assistant Secretary of War.

Mr. Stettinius is not an all-work, no-play man. He likes raising turkeys on his Virginia farm and is interested in saddle horses and aviation.

Besides administering the lend-lease program, Mr. Stettinius strived constantly to sell it to Congress. He spent many hours before Congressional committees and won the confidence even of some members who objected to certain phases of the work.

"There's no secret about it," he once remarked. "If we get along well with Congress it is because we are completely frank. We have nothing to conceal."

eign Relief and Rehabilitation Operations, and the Office of Foreign Economic Co-ordination.

The latter two offices have been under the State Department, with Dean Acheson, Assistant Secretary of State, heading the Economic Co-ordination unit.

It was disclosed tonight that Mr. Crowley, who has headed several government agencies, has resigned his $50,000 a year post as chairman of the board of the Standard Gas and Electric Company to accept $10,000 as a government salary. He has not accepted any Federal pay thus far in either of his jobs at O. E. W. head, Alien Property Custodian, and chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

Centralization of the foreign economic activities under one head was reported to have grown out of complaints, particularly from the Army, that too many agencies have men abroad operating in the same economic field. This, it was said, has led to delays and much bickering over "who has authority over what."

The complete text of the White House announcement follows:

"The President today announced the resignation of Sumner Welles as Under Secretary of State and the appointment of his successor, Edward R. Stettinius, Lend-Lease Administrator.

"In announcing Mr. Welles's resignation the President stated that he had accepted with sincere and deep regret. He said that Mr. Welles had advised him of his desire to be relieved of his heavy governmental duties in view of his wife's health and he could understand and sympathize with that desire.

"The President commended Mr. Welles's long service in the department and said: 'Mr. Welles has served the Department of State and the government with unfailing devotion for many years.'

"Commenting on the Stettinius appointment, the President said that his broad experience with our allies, both before and after Pearl Harbor, as Lend-Lease Administrator, and his long experience as an executive in business, splendidly equipped him for his new post.

"The President also announced the creation of the Office of Foreign Economic Administration to centralize activities formerly carried by the officers of Lend-Lease Administration, Foreign Relief and Rehabilitation Operations and Economic Warfare.

"In creating this new office, the President announced that Mr. Leo T. Crowley, Director of Economic Warfare, will become the Foreign Economic Administrator. The President said: 'Leo Crowley is one of the best administrators in or out of government and I find great satisfaction in promoting him to a position which will centralize all foreign economic functions in one operating agency.'

"Governor Herbert Lehman has been appointed special assistant to the President for the purpose of perfecting the plans for the meeting of representatives of the United Nations on Nov. 9. It is expected that Governor Lehman will be urged by this government for the appointment of director of United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration."

Pershing Intercession For Marshall Reported

Plea Believed Made to Roosevelt to Retain Chief of Staff

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 25 (AP).—General John J. Pershing has gone personally to President Roosevelt with a request that General George C. Marshall be retained as Army chief of staff, "The St. Louis-Post-Dispatch" said today in a story from Washington.

The paper gave as its source one close to both General Marshall and General Pershing, and asserted General Marshall's collaborators in the Army and Navy believe he will go overseas with his present title.

British officers were quoted as saying Field Marshall Sir John Dill, opposite General Marshall on the combined chiefs of staff, probably will go to London with him if and when General Marshall is transferred.

SESSION LOOMS AS MOST VITAL OF WAR CONFERENCES

Roosevelt May Name New Envoy to Russia Before Delegation Leaves.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—(AP) High importance of the Moscow conference of American-British-Soviet war and post-war collaboration appeared increasingly likely tonight to bring attendance of Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

While Mr. Hull informed report-

's after a meeting with Ambassador William H. Standley and President Roosevelt that neither he nor the government had reached the question of whether he would go to Moscow, some of the secretary's associates termed his presence "imperative."

New Envoy to Be Named

It also appeared possible that a new ambassador would accompany the American delegation, since Admiral Standley intends to resign his post without returning. Determined to get out of diplomacy, the admiral said goodbye to Foreign Commissar Molotov when he took leave of the Soviet capital a few days ago.

W. Averell Harriman, Lend-Lease expediter at London, is expected to succeed Admiral Standley. He attended the conference with Mr. Hull and Admiral Standley which the secretary interrupted to go to the White House.

Mr. Harriman and others have been mentioned for the leadership of the American conference delegation. Britain will be represented by Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden.

An apparent Soviet desire to collaborate with the United States and Great Britain has been reported to the State department and high officials have expressed the view that the meeting calls for an American diplomat of cabinet rank on a par with that of Molotov and Mr. Eden.

Mr. Hull has been described as a poor air traveler but Admiral Standley's appearance indicated that his trip was not uncomfortable and at 71 he is only a year younger than Mr. Hull.

Collaboration Is Aim

The Moscow conference was announced by Prime Minister Churchill as intended to clear the way for an agreement among the three nations on joint war efforts and collaboration after victory.

Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill are seeking a meeting with Stalin later this year to complete an accord.

Importance of the preliminary meeting was heightened by a report that Japan is trying to scare the Russians into a separate peace with Germany by implying that the Germans intend to make a stand on the Dnieper river and seek a separate peace with Russia. Otherwise, the report ran, they would try to negotiate one with the British and Americans.

There is nothing to indicate that the Russians even are considering the rumor. A friendly feeling of the Russian people toward the United States has been reported to the State department, along with an apparent determination to force the Germans out of all Russian territory.

Nazis at Crucial Point

Sweeping Soviet successes on the war front, meanwhile, indicated to some State department sources that the Germans have reached a crucial stage and that the length of the war likely depends on whether they can make successful stands on the Dnieper in Russia and on the Po in Italy.

1943

Should the Germans fail to hold either line, one military expert said the German retreat might develop into a rout, followed by an internal collapse. On the other hand, withdrawal to an inner line about the German frontier might stiffen the resistance against an invasion of Nazi soil.

In view of the possibilities in the war situation, eastern European territorial problems are on the tentative agenda for the Moscow talks as one of the more important postwar questions as well as the economic reconstruction requirements of the Soviet Union in which the other United Nations may be called to participate.

GERMAN OLYMPIC ... IS WOUNDED IN ITALY

NEW YORK, Sept. 25—(AP) The Berlin radio reported today that Rudolf Harbig, former German olympic runner, has been wounded for the second time while fighting in Italy.

Harbig, previously reported wounded on the eastern front, was shot in the knee but escaped serious injury.

A member of the 1936 German Olympic team, he is credited semi-officially with three world records at distances from 400 to 1,000 meters.

SEP 27 1943

Hull Plans to Go to Moscow

Secretary of State, Eden and Molotov to Seek Tri-partite Agreement.

SEP 26 1943

Washington, Sept. 25 (A. P.).—Secretary of State Hull, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov probably will meet soon in Moscow in search of an American-British-Soviet agreement on war objectives and post-war collaboration. Secretary Hull's delegation is likely to include W. Averell Harriman, lend-lease expediter at London, as new American Ambassador to Moscow.

Admiral William H. Standley, retiring ambassador, conferred today with Mr. Hull, in the presence of Mr. Harriman, as well as James C. Dunn, State Department political adviser, and H. Freeman Matthews, chief of the European division. While Admiral Standley declined to discuss his plans, it is known that he is not going back to Moscow, having told Molotov of this decision before he left there.

Hull Confers With Roosevelt.

Mr. Hull interrupted his conference with Admiral Standley, after forty minutes of discussion, to consult with President Roosevelt, indicating that possibly an urgent decision was being made on his mission to Moscow. The Secretary himself is expected to make the trip, since great importance is attached to it at Moscow, as well as in Washington and London. Previously Mr. Hull has shied away from air travel.

Admiral Standley, who at 71 is only about a year younger than Secretary Hull, appeared in excellent health and said that the airplane trip which he had just made from the Soviet capital was without hardship.

A sincere Russian desire for post-war collaboration with the United States and Great Britain has been reported to the State Department. Details of that collaboration and Russia's position in post-war Europe are to be discussed in the Moscow conference, which is expected to be preliminary to a meeting later this year of President Roosevelt with Premier Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill.

Japs Claim to Have Sunk Five Warships

London, Sept. 25 (A. P.).—A Tokio broadcast heard today by the Associated Press asserted that Japanese planes sank three Allied cruisers, two destroyers and a medium transport during the Allied landing north of Finsshafen Wednesday.

The claims were without any Allied confrimation.

Rank Of General Marshall May Have To Be Boosted

SEP 26 1943

Question Raised Whether His Present Standing Is High Enough To Serve Him As "Super Chief"

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 25—Would George C. Marshall have enough stars on his shoulder to do business as a new super-chief of Anglo-American armies?

He now wears the four stars of a full general in the army of the United States, but that might not stack up against the highest rank in the British army, field marshal.

What is more, Marshall's present rank is temporary, or as the army says it, "mex." His permanent rank is major general.

Pershing Stands Alone

Only one man in the United States now outranks the army's four generals—John J. Pershing, who by an act of Congress received the permanent rank of general of the armies in 1919. (And who, incidentally, appears in Britain's "who's who" as "Sir John Joseph Pershing," a title conferred for his distinguished service in the World War.)

Those inclined to worry at this early date over Marshall's insignia in a future bigger job suggest that, as in the case of Pershing, it might take an act of Congress to create a high rank for Marshall. The President can confer rank only as authorized by law, which covers up to and including the rank of four-star general.

Malin Craig holds the permanent rank of general on the retired list, but since his retirement has been recalled to do special work.

Rest Temporary Also

The four-star rank of Dwight D. Eisenhower, Henry H. Arnold and Douglas MacArthur, like that of Marshall, is "mex." How in the army seem to be certain how that term for temporary rank came to be used, although generally accepted explanation is that it arose from the designation for monetary units having a fluctuating value.

[Editor's Note—Oriental countries years ago native currencies, often of doubtful value, were generally dubbed "mex." The term arose from the fact that many of the coins were minted in Mexico.]

In usage, "mex" is the successor to the brevet of the last century and which carried over into but did not outlast World War I days. The brevet awarded was to ... Bliss to enable him to ... the American representative at the supreme war council of World War I.

Recalls Disrepute

The magazine Infantry Journal reports that before the brevet regained its originally intended mission of conferring honors for distinguished service or temporary rank commensurate with an assignment it fell into deep dispute and disrepute.

Congress, the Administration and a half dozen generals including Winfield Scott, bickered over brevets in the long years starting with the War of 1812 and ending after the Civil War.

The practice of breveting a man one or even many ranks above his substantive rank was not confined to the top levels of the early armies. Congress, faced with a flood of such promotions, ordered in the mid '60's that brevets would not entitle their holders to increased compensation. Many of the brevets were awarded for action on the field of battle. For such service, one lieutenant in the Civil War was jumped six ranks to brigadier general.

There were, however, brevets for "paper shuffling or the accurate counting of beans" in the Mexican and Civil Wars, the journal notes.

Nazis Will Move British Prisoners

Award to Flight Engineer

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Sept. 18 (Delayed) (AP)—Tech. Sgt. Warren V. Hoxie of Syracuse, N. "A direct hit and two near misses were scored," the citation said. "Photographs later revealed that the ship sank almost immediately. A second run was made on the town, scoring four hits in the shore installations."

Await Moscow's Post-war Aims

SEP 26 1943

Senators Would Avoid Debate Which Might Complicate Relations of Allies.

Washington, Sept. 25 (A. P.).—The United States Senate, which will write America's ticket in the post-war world, took this apparent attitude today: Let's find out what Moscow thinks and wants before deciding on a definite international setup for maintaining the peace.

This interest in Russia's views was heightened by the arrival of Admiral William H. Standley, who is believed to be ready to resign as ambassador to the U. S. S. R. He had an engagement to talk it over with Secretary of State Hull today.

As Admiral Standley returned to the capital, these facts stood out:

1. A strong trend developed in the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to delay action on any declaration of post-war policy until the views of both England and Russia have been sounded out, fully and publicly. Chairman Connally (D.-Tex.) indicated a belief that "intemperate" debate now would strain relations by its very frankness.

2. Appointment of a new ambassador to Russia, possibly the Lend-Lease expert, W. Averell Harriman, was in the wind, along with selection of an envoy to join the foreign ministers of Britain and Russia in a momentous meeting at Moscow soon. This meeting is intended to pave the way for a conference of Marshal Stalin, Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt. Secretary Hull wants to go but is concerned about the physical strain of such a trip.

Senator Nye (R.-N. D.) summed up the Senate attitude plainly: He said he thought America should hold up any statement of its intentions until after Britain and Russia have made their post-war aims clearer. This seemed to be the tack the Senate would follow for the present, though some members disagreed with it, notably Senator Ball (R.-Minn.) who declared:

"What we need is a clear declaration of American foreign policy that will help the Moscow conference accomplish some results."

The Senate's attitude quashed any expectations of action soon on the House Fulbright resolution which called upon Congress to state that the United States favored postwar collaboration with other nations to stamp out aggression.

NAZI FALL IS NEAR, DOWNEY PREDICTS

Californian Says Many Married Men Slated for the Draft Will Never Serve

VAST PLANE BLOWS CITED

Meanwhile, Wheeler Prepares a Last-Ditch Fight to Balk Draft of Fathers

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25 (AP)—Senator Downey of California predicted today the collapse of Germany within four months, and said that many of the married men, scheduled for induction this fall, would never see combat.

He saw one possible exception—development by Adolf Hitler's ordnance experts of some new anti-aircraft weapon to thwart the Allies' aerial blasting of the Reich.

Declaring enormous damage already has been dealt Germany's munition works, refineries and synthetic rubber plants, Mr. Downey maintained that it was a cold mathematical fact that Berlin and other Nazi cities could be leveled by our bombers.

Fight in Senate Next Week

Meanwhile, in the face of apparently insuperable opposition, Senator Wheeler of Montana prepared a last-ditch fight in the Senate next week for his bill to defer the induction of pre-war fathers for the remainder of 1943.

The debate will start Tuesday, only two days before the Oct. 1 deadline set by the War Manpower Commission for beginning the general draft of married men with children. Opponents expect to send the bill back to committee by Thursday.

Two substitute measures will probably be considered. One by Senator Taft of Ohio would provide for induction of fathers under 30 before taking those above that age. The other, proposed by Senator Bailey of North Carolina, is

Cited for Heroism in Pacific

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS, Southwest Pacific Area, Sept. 16 (Delayed) (AP)—Lieut. Gen. George C. Kenney, commander of the Allied Air Forces in the Southwest Pacific area, has awarded the Oak Leaf Cluster in lieu of an additional Air Medal to these members of the Fifth Air Force:

Second Lieut. Joseph J. O'Connor of 168-41 Eighty-ninth Avenue, Jamaica, N. Y., for meritorious achievement while participating in aerial combat over Oro Bay, New Guinea, in April.

First Lieut. Walter M. Markey Jr. of 450 City Island Avenue, City Island, N. Y., for meritorious achievement while participating in aerial combat over the Bismarck Sea, east of Oro Bay, in March.

Staff Sgt. Anthony A. Borrelli of Rochester, N. Y., and Staff Sgt. Manuel E. Gonzales Jr. of 3820 Third Avenue, Bronx, N. Y., for meritorious achievement while participating in an aerial flight over Wewak Harbor in May, during which their bomber dropped bombs on two vessels which were unloading cargo.

Staff Sgt. Michael Wroniak of Fulton, N. Y., member of a bomber crew which contributed to the complete destruction of an enemy convoy attempting to land reinforcements in New Guinea in March.

Question of Strategy Involved.

London, Sept. 25 (A. P.).—Dispatches from Australia reporting that the statement of Gen. Douglas MacArthur of three days ago raised the issue of the basic strategy of the major assault on Japan, today brought the reaction in London that the attack on Tokio can best be directed from two directions simultaneously.

SEP 26 1943

[C. Yates McDaniel, Associated Press correspondent, said in a dispatch from Allied Headquarters in the Southwest Pacific today that "the vital issue brought into the open by Gen. Douglas MacArthur's statement implying that his role in the war might be curtailed, is not who is to direct the major assault on Japan, but from what base or basic area such an offensive is to be mounted.]

1943

A competent military observer expressed the opinion that if only the route from Australia were followed it would preclude any major use being made of China as a weapon against the Nipponese, and that if China is to be of real use it will be necessary to stage a full scale offensive from India and Burma. The feeling here is that there need necessarily be no conflict in the commands of Gen. MacArthur and Admiral the Lord Louis Mountbatten in Southeast Asia.

There has been little comment here either in the press or in Parliament on Gen. MacArthur's position, although Prime Minister Churchill made a special point of praising him in his speech to Commons Tuesday. On the other hand the selection of Admiral Mountbatten was particularly well received.

Archbishop Spellman Asks Prayers For Pope

New York, Sept. 25 (AP)—Archbishop Francis J. Spellman called upon Catholics today to pray for Pope Pius XII, declaring "he is a prisoner."

Speaking at the dedication of the new Washington Square building of St. Joseph's Academy, Archbishop Spellman said:

"We have prayed for th oly Father because his po h t difficult, and, like S old, and like other pope church, he is a p i He is not free to communica h hi archbishops in dioceses gh the world.

Senators to Return Home This Week from War Tour

Chandler May Raise Issue Over Extent of MacArthur's Authority—Truman and Military Committees to Get Eye-Witness Accounts from War Theaters.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25 — (AP) Back from the war zones next week will come five senators who have seen America's military might at first hand—and the halls of Congress are likely to resound soon thereafter with some sharply worded criticisms of affairs at and near the fighting fronts.

Colleagues expect Senators Russell (D-Ga.), Chandler (D-Ky.), Mead (D-N.Y.), Lodge (R-Mass.) and Brester (R-Me) to bring back with them ammunition for hours of debate on questions ranging from the post-war disposition of military airfields to the extent of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's authority in the Pacific.

Chandler sent word ahead that he intends to make the Senate a platform for an appeal to name MacArthur the supreme commander for the Pacific and Asia, including India, Burma and China.

Seek Aid for MacArthur

Chandler insists the southwest Pacific has not received enough men, planes and guns, and that more military help must reach China if that country is to continue the fight against Japan. His view has had some backing from Russell, chairman of the group.

The Senate will want to know more about the charge made by Brewster in Algiers last month that the American North African Economic Board was contracting for large amounts of wheat there at 50 to 60 cents a bushel higher than in the United States.

Reports Awaited

Returning little more unified than when they left Washigton several weeks ago, the committee members are expected to split into groups for reports to the various committees they represent.

Chandler and Lodge will tell the Military Affairs committee what they know about the disposition of men and materials all over the world.

Mead and Brewster had a mandate from the Truman War Investigating committee to check several subjects, including a report that American commercial planes would be denied post-war landing rights on many airfeilds Uncle Sam has built because ownership will pass to foreign countries after the war.

Russell, selected as a peace-maker between the warring military and Truman committee factions, will report to the Appropriations and Naval committees.

POST-WAR PLANS AIRED AT PARLEY

Caution Urged in Spending; Senator Baldwin Withdraws Resolution.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25 — (AP) State Senator Charles T. Algren of Rhode Island said today that post-war Federal subsidies should be used principally for projects that are part of the overall public works program, and that state and municipally-controlled reservoirs of funds be set up for projects strictly to local benefits.

Addressing the final session of a two-day Northeastern conference of post-war problems in the states, Algren said there probably would be clamor "for greater Federal subsidy for any and every type of project." He recommended that the Federal subsidies go toward main trunk highways, air fields and similar projects.

State Senator Herbert E. Baldwin of Connecticut withdrew a resolution urging the Federal government to "adopt and announce definite measures of post-war planning as early as possible," to expedite post-war planning on the part of the individual states. Some speakers referred to the resolution as antagonistic to the Federal government.

Irving M. Ives, Republican assemblyman of Norwich, N. Y., told the conference that if private business failed to meet the post-war slack in employment, "there will be a demand for government to do it, and government will do it — and that's the end of free government and the free enterprise system."

He termed small business "the backbone" of the whole economic structure, adding that "if it goes down, we're all ready to fold up as far as democracy is concerned." Ives said that if public works programs are undertaken, "they must be necessary, justified and needed," and must not interfere with re-employment of people in free enterprise.

Another speaker, Dr. Thorsten V. Kalijarvi, planning director of the New Hampshire State Planning and Development commission, said that "pyramid building, brush cutting and snow shoveling" projects should be avoided in the post-war planning.

RED CROSS LOADS PRISONERS' SHIP

Relief Supplies for Far East Leave Soon on Russian Vessel.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 25— The first shipment of relief supplies, by Russian ships to Vladivostok, for American military and civilian prisoners of war held in the Far East, will be moving soon from a West Coast port, the American Red Cross has announced.

Large quantities of supplies are being transferred from American Red Cross packing centers in St. Louis and Chicago to the West Coast for the first loading.

The U.S.S.R. has allocated 1,500 tons of shipping space each month to the American Red Cross on its ships bound from West Coast ports to Vladivostok, the Red Cross stated. The relief supplies will be reshipped from Vladivostok for distribution to all Far Eastern points where American civilians and military men and women are held in prison camps.

One thousand women volunteers are engaged in each of the packing centers, turning out a quota of 100,000 prisoner of war food parcels, plus $250,000 worth of medicines. A large quantity of military and civilian clothing and comfort articles will be included in the first shipment.

This relief shipment, the first to go from the West Coast ,supplements a cargo of $1,500,000 worth of food parcels, medicines, clothing and comfort articles now en route via the Atlantic to the Far East on the diplomatic exchange ship "Gripsholm."

Arabian Prince On Way to U. S.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25 (AP) —Prince Amir Faisal, Foreign Minister of Saudi Arabia, is expected in Washington Sept. 30 on an official visit, the State Department announced today.

The Prince, second son of King Ibn Sa'd, will visit Washington, New York and irrigation projects in the southwestern states as a guest of the government. He will be accompanied by his brother Prince Amir Khalid, and by Shaikh Hafiz Wagba, Saudi Arabian minister to London.

Spain Buying Cotton In U. S., Capital Says

Washington, Sept. 25 (AP)—Spain is purchasing limited quantities of cotton in the United States, it was learned today at the State Department.

Information was lacking on the grade of cotton or the extent of the purchases, but reports in regular trade channels, through which the sales have been made, said they would aggregate 19,000 bales.

NEWTON, MASS., GIVES STALIN BONDS

Newton, Mass., Sept. 25 (A. P.).—Residents of Newton presented Joseph Stalin and the Russian people with a gift of $1,300 in United States War Bonds during a Third War Loan "books and bonds" rally in Newton High School auditorium last night.

Acting at the suggestion of columnist Dorothy Thompson, one of the speakers, members of the audience dug into their pockets and paid or pledged the $1,300.

The bonds are to be purchased in the name of the Russian leader and deposited in a Newton bank. Premier Stalin will receive the bond receipts and a scroll listing the names of the contributors.

U. S. Casualties at Salerno Total 3,497 Up to Sept. 15

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25 (AP).—The War Department reported today that American casualties at Salerno up to and including Sept. 15 totalled 3,497 killed, wounded and missing. The total was not broken down.

The announcement noted that this period includes "September 14, the date of the German announcement that 8,000 to 10,000 American soldiers had been killed" and "an equal number captured."

The period covered by the report includes the time during which the Germans made their counter-attacks on the Allied beachheads.

On Sept. 16 Allied forces took the initiative.

Covering about a week, the casualties compared with American losses of 7,445 killed, wounded and missing in the 38-day Sicilian campaign.

Ask Argentina To Break With Axis

Santiago, Chile, Sept. 25 (A. P.).—The Inter-American Student Congress last night unanimously approved a resolution introduced by the Bolivian delegation to send a message to President Pedro Ramirez of Argentina asking that his Government break relations with the Axis.

In another resolution the Congress voted to reaffirm its support of democracy and its principles.

Pearl Harbor Has A New Drydock

Pearl Harbor, Sept. 25 (AP).—The Navy has a new drydock, built in less than a year—one-third the normal peacetime schedule—and capable of handling the Navy's biggest ships, built or building, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander in chief of the Pacific Fleet, termed it a magnificent achievement of construction. Rear Admiral William R. Furlong, commandant of the Pearl Harbor Navy Yard, said the dock, dedicated yesterday, would play an important part in winning the Pacific war.

Buenos Aires, Sept. 25 (AP)—Municipal authorities have banned the showing here of the Warner Brothers' film "Edge of Darkness," featuring Errol Flynn, because of its strongly anti-Nazi tone.

NEW POST FAVORED FOR MACARTHUR

Command of All Forces Fighting Japs to Be Proposed by Chandler.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—(AP) The Army and Navy Journal asserted editorially today that Gen. Douglas MacArthur should be "destined for direction of a far larger sphere of operations in the Pacific than he now commands."

The unofficial but authoritative publication declared that Chairman Chandler (D-Ky) of the Senate Military Affairs committee, upon his return from a tour of theaters of war, will urge in the Senate that Gen. MacArthur be given supreme command of Allied forces in the war against Japan.

It quoted Gen. MacArthur's statement that he favors "massive strokes against only main objectives utilizing surprise and air and ground striking power, supported and assisted by the fleet."

The Journal added that "This can only mean concentric and combined operations directed simultaneously from strategic points in all regions of the Pacific and east Asia. In other words, just as Europe is regarded as a single theater of war, General MacArthur desires the war upon Japan to be so defined."

However, the editorial continued, "Evidently the President and Prime Minister Churchill do not intend to establish such an unified command. At Quebec they created the southeast Asia command under Admiral Mountbatten."

The Journal says that Senator Chandler intends "to urge combination of the numerous Pacific and Asian theaters with General MacArthur as chief x x x the magnificent teamwork of his air, ground and fleet forces has overcome new and horrible conditions and achieved outstanding victories, and they justify the expecta on that he is destined for direction of a far larg-

EIGHT STRIPPED OF CITIZENSHIP

German-Born Defendants Fail to Overcome Bund Stigma

SYRACUSE, Sept. 25 (AP).—Federal Judge Bryant today ordered eight persons, who, the Government contended, were members of the defunct German-American Bund, stripped of citizenship.

The defendants are: Joseph and Maria Beland, Schenectady; Karl A. Bachman, formerly of Albany, now serving in a Federal prison for violating the Selective Service Act. Also five Syracusans: Max Oskar Haas, Otto Fuchs, Rudolph Simon, Anto Zeiler and John A. Rossler.

Bryant's decision stated that the defendants, all German-born, obtained citizenship fradulently in that they made mental reservations of loyalty to their native land.

BRITISH TIRED, BUT HOPEFUL

Believe Beveridge And Other Home-Front Proposals With Turn In War

SEP 26 1943

Edward Weeks, editor of the Atlantic Monthly visited England last month as a guest of the British Ministry of Information. These impressions of his trip are condensed from his article in the October Atlantic.

(By the Associated Press)

Boston, Sept. 25—London may be in the hands of an American army of occupation, as one wag put it, but the lions af Trafalgar still gaze upon a going concern. You step into this place with a feeling of personal excitement which I remember in the Paris of 1917. No one can miss the pulse of London today.

"We are tired—deep down," said the harbor master who had been showing me the London docks. "Don't forget you find us at a cheerful moment. For two years we have been living in a tunnel. Now we begin to see the light at the open end — and, my word, it makes a difference."

In curious ways, you notice the effect of that long pull in the dark. What impressed me was not the desolate waste spaces from which the plaster and wreckage have been cleared; what impressed me was how London goes on about its business, with a clam acceptance of the ruins.

Park Railings Gone

The railings have been stripped from the parks and squares, the famous turf is pitted with trenches and dug up for truck gardens. But there are still stretches where lovers lie and tiraders in Hyde Park still denounce the Government and all its works.

The people are unashamed of their shabbiness and unsentimental about their ruins. They conduct no tours of the bombed areas, no sale of souvenirs. They do not romanticize the war in films as we do.

The British children are pink and full of bounce. I could find no trace of the shock to which so many of them have been exposed. The farther I traveled, the more I wondered whether these city dwellers who have followed their factories into the ccuntry may not be better off for the sunlight and good food.

Thinner And Healthier

Generally speaking, the British are thinner and healthier than they were five years ago. Instead of fish and chips, the fried stuff so dear to the cockney, they have been living on soups, boiled foods—and health bread. The result is noticeable.

Naturally, there is more exasperation than meets the eye.

The British pin their hope on the future. They pin their hope on the new education bill, which will improve what we call the public schools, advance the school age to 16 and supply at least one hot meal to the pupils.

England's attitude toward America has been greatly changed. Gone—well, almost gone—is that certain condescension which so infuriated James Russell Lowell when the Atlantic was a pup. I should be an ingenu were I persuaded that a 300-year tradition of superiority had been supplanted in twenty-two months by a guarantee of equality. But of this I am persuaded—that Britain is prepared to go further and to give more for the sake of reciprocity than we at present believe.

EXPERTS SEE BOOM FOR FARM IN PEAC

Government Economists Say Demand for Foods Will Last Five Years After the War

SEP 26 1943

MORE ACREAGE HELD NEED

Far From Contracting, Growers Must Add 400,000 Acres of Crop Land for Production

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25 (AP)—Government economists and farm officials say that American farmers will have a market far greater than their ability to produce for at lease five years after the war. That is their reply to speculation in some sections of American agriculture whether farmers should begin to plan retrenchment.

Such speculation, heard increasingly in view of talk of a possible United Nations victory in Europe next year, undoubtedly traces to the memory of what happened in the years following the first World War, collapse of an unprecedented war demand for food while American farms were producing at a then record level.

Today agriculture, as in the last war, is producing at new record levels to meet heavy war demands. Next year it will be asked to produce even more.

Would it not be economic wisdom, some farm leaders ask, to start planning a reduction in production before war markets again collapse to bring prices tumbling down on farmers and create a new agricultural depression?

The Government men reply that if the post-war world is able to do anything at all toward carrying out the Atlantic Charter promise of a world free from want, American agriculture will never need to curtail production.

The predictions of a big market in the years immediately following the war are based on the prospect that the United States will have to send abroad for relief and rehabilitation even more food than it is now sending for lend-lease and military purposes.

Permanent Prosperity Likely

The experts' belief in the possibility of permanent agricultural prosperity is based on the facts that the world as a whole never has had enough to eat and that no country, including the United States, has ever supplied its own population with enough of the right kinds of food to sustain good health as a whole.

Agriculture Department economists say that if, at the end of the war, American people are permitted to buy all the food they want at present prices and under conditions of a high level of employment, they will take all that farmers will be producing.

Nothing would be left, they add, for relief and rehabilitation needs of war-ravaged countries, or to meet the nutritional needs of low-income groups.

Farm officials, on the basis of hopes that industrial production will be maintained at high levels after the war, are planning to improve agricultural production and the economic and social conditions of farmers.

Keystone of those plans is a selective expansion of food production, especially of certain livestock products, fruits and vegetables. That expansion would be designed to assure adequate nutrition for all Americans.

Expansion Is Envisaged

Nutritionists estimate that such an expansion would require 40 per cent more dairy products, 80 per cent more truck crops, 20 per cent more eggs and 20 per cent more fruit than the quantities consumed in the 1935-39 period. At average crop yields, these and other needed increases would require about 40,000,000 additional acres of crop land, or about one-eighth more than is now being used to produce food for the home market.

Officials estimate that at least 300,000 new farms would be needed to help supply such food requirements. In contrast to the situation following some of our earlier wars, at the end of the present conflict there will be no unoccupied good land in this country ready for cultivation.

To make additional land available for settlement would require irrigation, drainage and clearing. It is estimated that there are something like 30,000,000 to 40,000,000 acres of such land. Of this total, 10,000,000 to 20,000,000 acres could be reclaimed in Western States through irrigation, and another 5,000,000 acres of fertile land in the Mississippi River delta through drainage. About 15,000,000 acres requiring drainage and clearing are located at various points over the country.

In addition, officials estimate that part of the 20,000,000 acres acquired by the Army and Navy for camps, proving grounds and other purposes could be returned to cultivation to provide farms for at least 25,000 families. It has been suggested that this land, as well as reclaimed land, be held for sale to ex-service men.

Besides helping to meet food needs and providing settlement opportunities for qualified ex-service men, a reclamation program would probably be an important part of any public works plan to provide employment during demobilization.

tempt to rule the world by force.

Hitler must have no doubt of that now — now with the loss of Smolensk, the keystone of Nazi defense on the vast 1,200 mile battle line.

This latest major achievement of the Russian armies opens the door to White Russia, to Nazi-occupied Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia, and smashes home to Hitler the bitter, hard fact that Germany virtually has lost her war with Russia.

At the height of his successes, Hitler held 700,000 square miles of Russia's 8,300,000 square mile area. Today, those gains have dwindled at enormous cost to but 230,000 square miles. Almost all the "living space" Hitler boasted as won by the Wehrmacht for his greater Germany, is lost. And the floundering Nazi armies are now along the Dnieper, not the Volga.

At no time since that September speech a year ago has Hitler or any of his spokesmen had any word of cheer to give the German people. It has been an endless chap-

What's Behind the War News

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press War Analyst

The coming week holds a bitter anniversary for Herr Hitler. Just a year ago next Thursday he opened the annual Nazi winter relief campaign in Berlin by announcing that "We have drafted a very simple program" for 1943. It was, he said:

"First, hold in all circumstances what must be held; that is, let the enemy run against us everywhere we do not intend to advance; and let him storm as long as he wants to; hold adamantly and wait and see who tires out first.

"Second: Absolutely attack in all circumstances where attack is necessary."

At that moment a year ago the battle of Stalingrad was at its height. Nazi troops actually were ter of defeat they have sought to explain away with glib phases. A German army and all its gear was lost at Stalingrad, another in Tunisia. Italian allies have deserted him and Italy is just another Nazi-held state fighting with the United Nations for freedom now. There is no Axis in Europe.

All Africa has been wrested from Nazi control, the Mediterranean freed for Allied use. Balkan satellite states are in near revolt against their Nazi masters and Finland is ready to cut her unnatural ties with Berlin. Japan is reeling back in the southwestern Pacific under preliminary Allied blows.

In Corsica, the bridgehead for a French - American invasion of [illegible] and restore free France is in the making. In Britain the most powerful armed force the world has ever known is mustered to smash across the channel at Berlin itself.

A dozen German cities lie in bomb-blasted ruins in an Allied air campaign that has only started on its deadly work of destruction. At sea Allied shipping has been using the Atlantic freely for months and the kill in U-boats has risen to decisive figures.

For 12 months Hitler's taunt of wait and see who will tire first has been put to the test, and always it has been the Wehrmacht which tired of the struggle and backtracked where it did not surrender. It has held nothing yet, however urgent the orders from Ber-at the Volga. Alexandria was in dire peril with Rommel's army girding for a new attack along the Alamein line only 60 miles away. The battle of Guadalcanal was in progress. Terrible losses had been suffered by Allied convoys to Russia in the Arctic. Italian war craft had made a daring hit-and-run attack at Gibraltar. The Dieppe Commando raid to test the western defenses of the Nazi continental fortress had cost heavily in life. In the Atlantic Nazi U-boats were taking a grim toll of Allied shipping.

Nevertheless, with another Russian winter at hand Hitler elected to announce a halt in his eastward surge, but only a halt until better weather came. He did not know that it was the final halt of his atlin. Its ability to hold even the Dnieper line in Russia or any line in Italy on which it may try to stand is dubious. And its most terrible defense task, to hold in the west against the storm of Allied attack by air, sea and land piling up for action, is still ahead of it.

Dr. Foerster, For Third Time, Warns Of German Menace

Exiled Teacher, Who Foresaw Two World Wars, Says Allied Control Is Vital To Rebirth Of Nation

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Sept. 25—In July, 1939, just six weeks before Germany invaded Poland, the British Foreign Office opened a packet sent from Switzerland by Dr. Friedrich Foerster, an exiled German teacher and philosopher. Inside was a copy of General Halder's final speech of instruction to the German officers who were to invade Poland: It was the blueprint for the start of the second World War.

This was the second time Foerster had warned of war. Through ten years before the first World War he had told English and French officials of Germany's rearming.

Now, at 74, he is living in New York, and unhappily, warning against a third World War. He says the way we handle Germany, come the peace, will cast the die for peace or war in another twenty-five years. He has a thesis. And a plan.

His Thesis Cited

His thesis is this: There is no difference between the Nazis and the German people. His country, he says, is suffering from mass infection, national drunkenness—and, that it must be "deloused" of its militaristic ideas.

His plan has several points. He recalls bits of German history to prove the necessity for the plan.

Dr. Foerster's father was director of the University of Berlin observatory: a man of such international viewpoint that he talked constantly against the growing German belief that Germans are a super people, and therefore should rule the world.

Sided With Father

The son, Friedrich, studied at the university. Half of his family were Junkers and army officers. He's a grand nephew of the old von Moltke. But he sided with his father, and humanism.

He was teaching at the University of Munich in 1895 when the Kaiser made one of those German stem-winder speeches, about how Germany must conquer France.

Dr. Foerster wrote a heated reply in a paper called Ethical Culture. He was jailed and forbidden to teach for fifteen years. So he went to Switzerland to teach at the University of Zurich. He dedicated himself to warning other nations that Germany meant war.

One night an army officer warned him to leave the country immediately. He fled back to Switzerland and he never has returned. This was ten years before Hitler.

Dr. Foerster traces the German drive to conquer the world back to 120 years ago and a book, "Europe and Germany," by Ernst Arndt, which said, that long ago, "Germany needs a military tyrant capable of exterminating entire nations."

Suggests Peace Plan

Here's his peace plan for Germany:

1. All Nazi party members, men and women, and there are about 13,000,000 of them, should be deprived for life of the right to vote, or to work in education, the press or the radio.

2. Youth organizations should continue their work, but their programs should be concentrated on how to build instead of destroy.

3. Germany must be dismembered. But the process should not be imposed from without. Each state should vote. He has good information that Bavaria right now would vote eighty per cent. for separation from Prussia. He thinks the Rhinelands would follow. That would result in five or six regional districts, one being a greatly diminished Prussia.

4. The victims of Germany should be the first to receive help. But there is one German group he hopes will get food "without discrimination," the children under 15 years of age.

5. There must be a rigid military control over Germany, whether Germany is beaten down or blows up from within.

It won't take a big army, he says but the men in charge must never relax or Germany will be off on her old game of playing Russia against the West, or vice versa—divide and conquer.

Must Remain United

As a corollary Russia and the West must remain united on their control of Germany, so that none of the Allies will make secret deals with Germans.

He thinks the military occupation must last until an entire new generation has grown up because "Germany must be disinfected from a whole century of propaganda."

He worries over America's generous spirit every time some speaker says that Hitler and the German people are separable.

TWICE HE HAS BAILED OUT OF SEVERELY DAMAGED BOMBERS. HIS DECORATIONS ARE THE SILVER STAR, DISTINGUISHED FLYING CROSS, PURPLE HEART AND AIR MEDAL WITH THREE OAK LEAF CLUSTERS. NOW HE IS A GUNNERY INSTRUCTOR.

ON THE RESCUE MISSION THE FLYING FORTRESSES FOUND THE DINGHY WITH RAF MEN IN IT, BUT THE NAZI DORNIER ALREADY WAS HOVE-TO PREPARING TO TAKE BRITISH AIRMEN ABOARD. THE FORTRESSES COULD NOT SHOOT RIGHT AT THE GERMAN FLYING BOAT FOR FEAR OF HITTING THE RAF MEN SO THEY JUST POT SHOTTED AROUND THE DORNIER, COMING CLOSE ENOUGH TO MAKE THE GERMANS JUMP INTO THEIR OWN DINGHIES. THEN THE MACHINE GUNS OF THE FORTRESSES SAWED OFF THE TAIL OF THE NAZI PLANE.

THE FORTRESS CREWS HAD BEEN WARNED FROM THEIR HOME STATIONS THAT GERMAN FIGHTERS PROBABLY WERE NEAR BY, BUT THEY STAYED ON. THEN THE JUNKERS ATTACKED AND KELLY GOT ONE. THE OTHER GUNNERS SAID THEY BELIEVED THEY CRIPPLED THE SECOND PLANE, CHASING IT HOME. ALL THE FORTRESSES RACED BACK TO THEIR BASES TO GET RESCUE CRAFT SENT TO THE FLOATING AIRMEN.

THE GERMAN PLANE THAT FLEW AWAY GOT THE NEWS HOME BY RADIO, AND THE HALIFAX CREW FINALLY WAS PICKED UP BY GERMAN RESCUE BOATS OPERATING FROM BASES CLOSER TO THE SCENE THAN THOSE IN ENGLAND.

OTHER CREW MEMBERS ON THE PLANE IN WHICH KELLY WAS TAIL GUNNER ARE: LTS.JOE E.BRADBURY OF BEXLEY, OHIO, PILOT; CARL J.FYLER OF HUTCHINSON, KAN., CO-PILOT; STEVE M.GIBSON OF OAK RIDGE, LA., BOMBARDIER; SGTS.JOHN F.JILLSON OF EAST SANDWICH, MASS., RADIO GUNNER; WALLACE THARP OF BOISE, IDAHO, NOSE GUNNER WHO WAS SUBSTITUTING FOR THE NAVIGATOR; BILL J.ADDISON OF (818 MAIN STREET) DANVILLE, VA., TOP TURRET GUNNER; RAY D.FORD OF (2401 GRAYLAND STREET) RICHMOND, VA., BALL TURRET GUNNER; GEORGE S.FISHER OF (4186 WASHINGTON STREET) BOSTON, MASS., RIGHT WAIST GUNNER, AND MARTIN S.STACHOWIAK OF TOLEDO, OHIO, LEFT WAIST GUNNER.

WITH GEN. EISENHOWER AT AN ADVANCED ALLIED COMMAND POST--FIRST ADD EISENHOWER (BY CLARK LEE) XXX ~~AT 6:25.~~ appointment.

HE IS PUNCTUAL BECAUSE HE REALIZES THAT IF HE IS LATE THERE WILL BE A SIMILAR DELAY ALL DOWN THE LONG CHAIN OF PEOPLE WHOSE MOVEMENTS ARE DEPENDENT ON HIS.

SEP 20 1943

HE LEARNED TO FLY IN THE PHILIPPINES BUT IS NOT A FIRST CLASS PILOT. ONCE IN A WHILE HE TAKES THE CONTROLS OF HIS PLANE IN THE AIR. HE RECENTLY "LANDED" SMALL CABIN PLANE FIVE FEET OFF THE GROUND. THE RESULT WAS A BIG BUMP WHEN THE PLANE SQUASHED DOWN, BUT NOBODY WAS HURT.

EXCEPT ON RARE OCCASIONS, HE PAYS NO ATTENTION TO ENEMY PROPAGANDA. HE IS NOT INTERESTED IN WHAT THE GERMANS OR JAPS HAVE TO SAY. AN EXCEPTION WAS DURING THE SALERNO LANDING WHEN THE BERLIN RADIO CLAIMED ANOTHER DUNKERQUE WAS DEVELOPING. THE GENERAL COMMENTED THAT THOSE CLAIMS WERE NONSENSICAL.

THE TELEPHONE BY HIS BED IS AN EXTENSION OF A LINE IN COMMANDER BUTCHER'S ROOM. BUTCHER ANSWERS CALLS DURING THE NIGHT AND IF THE MATTER IS URGENT ENOUGH GOES IN AND WAKES THE GENERAL. TO GO BACK TO SLEEP EISENHOWER READS A FEW PAGES OF A WESTERN STORY.

RECENTLY A NEW GROUP OF COURIER OFFICERS WERE ASSIGNED TO THE HEADQUARTERS. ONE OF THEM GOT INTO THE GENERAL'S BEDROOM EARLY ONE MORNING AND ASKED: "ARE YOU GEN. EISENHOWER?"

"YES."

"MAY I SEE YOUR CREDENTIALS, PLEASE?"

EISENHOWER PRODUCED HIS CREDENTIALS AND THE OFFICER HANDED OVER HIS MESSAGE.

THE SAME THING OCCURRED THE NEXT MORNING WITH ANOTHER OFFICER WHILE THE GENERAL WAS AT BREAKFAST. AGAIN HE SHOWED HIS IDENTIFICATION. THEN HE ARRANGED FOR ALL THE NEW COURIERS TO HAVE A GOOD LOOK AT "MY MUG."

EISENHOWER LOVES POKER BUT NEVER PLAYS. HE LEARNED THE GAME FROM COWBOYS IN THE MIDWEST WHERE THEY PLAY FOR KEEPS. AS A YOUNG ARMY OFFICER HE WON A LOT OF MONEY. LEARNING THAT A FELLOW OFFICER HAD LOST SO HEAVILY AT POKER THAT HIS CAREER WAS THREATENED, EISENHOWER PERSUADED HIM TO GIVE UP THE GAME AND STOPPED PLAYING HIMSELF.

HE HAS SEVERAL SUPERSTITIONS. HE KEEPS HIS SEVEN LUCKY COINS IN HIS POCKET IN A SPECIAL LEATHER BAG. IN TIGHT SPOTS HE TAKES ONE OUT AND RUBS IT CEREMONIOUSLY. HE THINKS FRIDAY IS HIS LUCKY DAY. THE SICILIAN AND NORTH AFRICA INVASIONS BOTH STARTED THEN, AND SEVERAL OF HIS PROMOTIONS AND APPOINTMENTS HAVE COME ON THAT DAY. WE WENT INTO SALERNO ON THURSDAY.

HE ACCEPTS NO PURELY SOCIAL ENGAGEMENTS. HE IS OF AN AFFECTIONATE NATURE AND VERY FOND OF HIS LOW-SLUNG SCOTTIE. THE DOG'S NAME IS "TELEK," WHICH DOESN'T MEAN ANYTHING, BUT LIKE THE PUPPY IS FRISKY AND SHORT.

TELEK WAS A PRESENT FROM EISENHOWER'S STAFF IN LONDON. TWO DOGS WERE BROUGHT IN, ONE FOUR MONTHS OLD AND THE OTHER BARELY ABLE TO SKID ON UNCERTAIN LEGS. GENERAL IKE CHOSE THE LITTLE ONE AND FOUND OUT LATER IT HAD A PEDIGREE A MILE LONG.

(ADVANCE) WITH THE AEF IN ITALY, SEPT.20-(AP)-(DELAYED)-YOU CAN START AN ARGUMENT IN ALMOST ANY ARMY UNIT NOW BY ASKING THE MEN WHETHER THEY LIKE ITALY OR NORTH AFRICA BETTER.

SIPPING HOT COFFEE FROM THEIR CANTEEN CUPS AS PATROLLING P40 FIGHTERS BUZZED OVERHEAD IN THE EVENING SKY, TWO TEXAS INFANTRYMEN DEBATED THE QUESTION WHILE THE REST OF THEIR UNIT LISTENED.

PRIVE M.C.LOZANO OF 7936 SHERMAN ST., HOUSTON, STUCK UP FOR NORTH AFRICA, WHILE HIS FELLOW TOWNSMAN, FIRST SGT.JAMES H.COLVILLE OF 420 COSMOS STREET, TOLD WHY HE PREFERRED SUNNY ITALY.

"THE TOWNS AND PEOPLE IN NORTH AFRICA ARE MORE LIKE THOSE BACK HOME IN SECTIONS OF TEXAS AND OLD MEXICO," SAID LOZANO. "I ALSO GOT ALONG WITH THE GIRLS THERE. THE FOLKS IN NORTH AFRICA WERE REALLY NICE TO US. LOTS OF THE FRENCH PEOPLE TREATED US JUST AS IF WE WERE PART OF THEIR FAMILY. THEY'D HAVE US IN TO DINNER AND YOU COULD TELL THEY'D SAVED THEIR BEST STUFF FOR US."

"CHEER UP. YOU'LL MEET SOME NICE GIRLS HERE," SAID COLVILLE. "THE PEOPLE HERE ARE GLAD TO SEE US. MOST OF THEM, ANYWAY. THERE IS LOTS OF COOL WATER AND THE WHOLE PLACE IS CLEANER. THESE PEOPLE HAVE A U.S.FORTRESS BASE IN ENGLAND, SEPT. 25-(AP)-SIX FLYING FORTRESSES SEARCHING FOR AN RAF HALIFAX CREW FLOATING IN THE NORTH SEA A FEW DAYS AGO SPOTTED THEM JUST AS THEY WERE ABOUT TO BE "RESCUED" BY A GERMAN DORNIER SEAPLANE.

THE FORTRESSES SANK THE DORNIER AND ALSO SHOT DOWN ONE OF TWO JUNKERS 88S WHICH TRIED TO INTERFERE. THEY THEN ENGAGED IN A RACE WITH THE REMAINING NAZI PLANE TO GET A RESCUE PLANE TO THE HALIFAX AND DORNIER CREWS BEFORE ANOTHER GERMAN SEAPLANE COULD BE SENT, BUT THE GERMANS WON AND CAPTURED THE ENGLISHMEN.

WHEN THE FORTRESSES BROKE IN ON THE OCEAN DRAMA, THE DORNIER WAS SO CLOSE TO THE RAF DINGHY THAT THE AMERICAN GUNNERS WERE HARD PUT TO ATTACK THE SEAPLANE WITHOUT ENDANGERING THE ENGLISHMEN. THEY MANAGED TO SHOOT THE TAIL OFF SO THE DORNIER WENT DOWN AND THE GERMAN CREW HAD TO TAKE TO THEIR BOAT.

WHEN THE TWIN-ENGINED JUNKERS ESCORTING THE DORNIER CLOSED IN, THE GUNNERS POLISHED OFF ONE. THE OTHER STREAKED FOR HOME, PRESUMABLEY TO GET ASSISTANCE.

THE FORTRESS AIRMEN WAVED REASSURANCE TO THE FLOATING FLIERS AND TOOK UP THE RACE. BUT THE GERMAN RESCUE BASES WERE CLOSER AND WHEN RAF PLANES REACHED THE SCENE THE FLIERS ALREADY HAD BEEN PICKED UP.

CHIPS IS A G.I.BATTLE DOG WHOSE WEAPONS ARE A MOUTHFUL OF SHARP TEETH. ATTACHED TO AN INFANTRY COMPANY AS A PATROL DOG OR SCOUT, HE HAS WON A PURPLE HEART AND BEEN RECOMMENDED FOR A SILVER STAR FOR HEROISM DISPLAYED IN SAVING THE LIFE OF HIS TRAINER, PVT.JOHN P. ROWELL, OF SEMINARY, MISS.

THEY ARE FROM THE SOUTHWEST AND THIS IS THEIR FIRST BATTLE ACTION, BUT THEY KNOW THEIR WAY AROUND. THEY ARE VERY GENEROUS AND TOOK US INTO THEIR MESS AS ARMY ORPHANS. ONE DAY WE HAD FRESH CHICKEN FOR LUNCH. THAT NIGHT WE HAD FRESH TOMATOES AND GREEN PEPPERS, CORN, GREEN BEANS, POTATOES, ROAST BEEF, APPLES, BUTTER AND COFFEE. AFTER WADING THROUGH THAT MEAL I WADDLED OVER TO ARMY HEADQUARTERS. THERE, TIRED AND DISCONSOLATE, SAT A ONE STAR GENERAL MUNCHING A CRACKER FROM A BOX OF K RATIONS AND SIPPING AT A CUP OF LUKE-WARM COFFEE. THAT WAS HIS SUPPER. WHEN I GOT BACK I REMARKED HIS PLIGHT TO OUR BENEFACTORS.

"CHIPS IS GENTLE AND FRIENDLY WITH US," SAID ROWELL, "BUT HE DOESN'T LIKE CIVILIANS. HE DOESN'T CARE FOR ITALIANS, IN OR OUT OF UNIFORM. WHEN WE GO ON PATROL HE WARNS US OF SNIPERS AND AMBUSHES."

THE DOG IS FIVE YEARS OLD AND WAS LOANED TO THE ARMY BY A MAN IN HICKSVILLE, LONG ISLAND. CHIPS HAS HIS OWN ARMY RATIONS AND WEARS GI DOGTAG NO. 11A. A THOROUGHGOING DOUGHBOY, HE ONCE BLISTERED HIS PAWS KEEPING UP WITH HIS COMRADES IN A 56-MILE MARCH IN 32 HOURS.

STAFF OFFICERS WERE SO WORRIED BY THE GERMAN COUNTERATTACKS THAT THEY DIDNT HAVE MUCH APPETITE, ANYWAY. BUT THE CORRESPONDENTS CORPS WAS QUARTERED IN AN EIGHT ROOM HOUSE WHICH THEY SHARED WITH A MAJOR GENERAL, A BRIGADIER GENERAL, A STRAY COLONEL OR TWO AND SEVERAL JUNIOR OFFICERS. YOU CAN'T CROWD A MAJOR GENERAL, SO THE CORRESPONDENTS WERE SLEEPING, EATING, SHAVING, AND WRITING THEIR NEWS COPY IN LAYERS AND SHIFTS FOR DAYS. IT WAS A THREE RING MADHOUSE.

THEN A GROUP OF US MADE A RECONNAISSANCE IN FORCE. AFTER AN HOUR WE FOUND A DUPLEX, THE SECOND FLOOR OF WHICH WAS VACANT. A FASCIST FAMILY HAD FLED AFTER THE ARMISTICE, FEARING REPRISALS AT THE HANDS OF THEIR NEIGHBORS. THE PADRONE LET US HAVE THE PLACE, AND AFTER A BAREFOOTED PEASANT HAD SPENT A COUPLE OF HOURS SPREADING THE COBWEBBS A WITTLE THINNER IT WAS CLEAN ENOUGH TO MOVE IN. LT. JOHN SENSENEY OF ST.LOUIS, PAT MORIN OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS AND I HAVE ONE BEDROOM. WE ALSO HAVE A KITCHEN A SUN PORCH AND A WORKROOM, BUT NO BATHTUB. BATHS ARE AS SCARCE AS BATTLESHIPS IN THE SMALLER ITALIAN HOMES. YOU HAVE TO FALL BACK ON YOUR HELMET, THE BEST PORTABLE WASH BASIN YET INVENTED. OUR BEST WINDFALL IN OUR NEW LOCATION, HOWEVER, IS OUR NEIGHBORS, A GROUP OF INFANTRYMEN WHO ARE THE BEST SCROUNGERS IN THE ARMY.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, SEPT 25-(AP)-A FIELD DISPATCH TONIGHT REPORTED THAT FORCES OF THE BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY HAD ADVANCED UP THE EAST COAST OF ITALY TO THE OFANTO RIVER, ONLY 30 MILES SHORT OF THE NETWORK OF NAZI AIRFIELDS CENTERED AROUND FOGGIA.

"TO CANOSA, BACK FROM THE OFANTO'S MOUTH IN THE ADRIATIC, THE RIVER NOW IS FIRMLY CONTROLLED BY THE EIGHTH ARMY ADVANCE GUARD," DE LUCE REPORTED.

TWO BRIDGES ACROSS THE RIVER WERE FOUND BLOWN UP BY THE WITH-DRAWING GERMANS, BUT THIS HINDERED THE ADVANCING EIGHTH TROOPS ONLY SLIGHTLY.

"ONLY LIGHT GERMAN FORCES HAVE BEEN HOLDING THE ADRIATIC COAST IN THE VICINITY OF BARI," THE DISPATCH CONTINUED, "THE RENEWED EIGHTH ARMY ADVANCE HAS SWEPT THE ENEMY BACK UPON FOGGIA WITH EXTREMELY FEW BRITISH CASUALTIES."

DE LUCE ADDED THAT THE FOGGIA AIRBASE, OFTEN BOMBED BY ALLIED AIRCRAFT, HAS NOT BEEN USED IN SOME TIME BY THE GERMAN AIR FORCE AND THAT THERE WAS NOT A SIGN OF ANY ENEMY PLANE IN THE SKY OVER THE EASTERN COAST.

MEANWHILE, ACROSS THE PENINSULA AT THE SALERNO SPRINGBOARD, AMERICAN AND BRITISH GROUND FORCES HAVE SMASHED THEIR WAY TO THE MOUNTAIN TOPS GUARDING THE SMOKE-FILLED PLAIN OF NAPLES.

THE AMERICAN, ETC X X X SECOND GRAF NIGHT LEAD.

DA21SAEW

THE DISPATCH, WRITTEN BY ASSOCIATED PRESS WAR CORRESPONDENT DANIEL DE LUCE FRIDAY, SAID THAT THE TOWN OF CANOSA, A DOZEN MILES INLAND FROM THE ADRIATIC, WAS EVEN THEN IN THE HANDS OF AN ADVANCE GUARD.

THIS REPRESENTED A FURTHER DRIVE OF 23 MILES FROM MOLFETTA, COASTAL TOWN 15 MILES ABOVE BARI, WHERE THE TROOPS OF GEN.SIR.BERNARD L. MONTGOMERY LAST WERE REPORTED.

SGT. G.W.WELLS, 2002 GREENLEAF DRIVE, HOUSTON, TEX., SAID, "WE HIT THE MARSHALLING YARDS SQUARELY. FIRES WERE GOING WHEN WE LEFT. THEN SMOKE BEGAN TO COVER THE ENTIRE AREA."

CAPT. M.K.CALDWELL, QUIVIRA LAKE, KANSAS CITY, KANS., SAID, "OUR FIRST BOMB WAS A PERFECT BULLSEYE AND DESTROYED THE RAILWAY BRIDGES. THAT MARSHALLING YARD WAS BADLY BLASTED."

(AN ALGIERS BROADCAST XXX FIFTH GRAF AS BEFORE.

KA1020AEW

A MILITARY SOURCE EXPRESSED THE BELIEF THAT THE HAMMERING FROM THE AIR, COMBINED WITH THE HEAVY PRESSURE OF THE ALLIED GROUND FORCES, WOULD COMPEL THE GERMANS TO FALL BACK STEADILY TO THE NEXT NATURAL DEFENSE LINE ABOVE NAPLES.

WHILE MEDIUM BOMBERS WERE CONCENTRATING ON THE ENEMY'S EVACUATION PORT OF LEGHORN, AMERICAN FOUR-ENGINED LIBERATORS SMASHED AT RAIL YARDS AT PISA, ENCOUNTERING NEITHER GERMAN FIGHTERS NOR ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE.

MITCHELLS AND MARAUDERS POUNDED BRIDGES, ROAD JUNCTIONS AND HIGHWAYS AT GROTTAMINARDA, MADDALONI, BENEVENTO, AVELLINO, CANCELLO MIGNANO AND AMOROSI IN THE NAPLES AREA. MANY ATTACKS WERE MADE ON ROADS AROUND AVERSA AND TORRE ANNUNZIATA AND ONE GROUP OF AMERICAN FIGHTER-BOMBERS DESTROYED 22 TRUCKS IN A DAYLIGHT ASSAULT ON A LARGE CONCENTRATION OF ENEMY LAND TRANSPORT.

NO GERMAN FITHTERS WERE SIGHTED OVER THE BATTLE AREA DURING ALL THESE OPERATIONS. RETURNING FLIERS SAID A HAZE COVERED THE ENTIRE NAPLES AREA, APPARENTLY FROM FIRES STARTED IN THE CITY BY THE GERMANS IN AN EFFORT TO DESTROY EVERYTHING OF VALUE.

A CAIRO COMMUNIQUE SAID THAT LIGHT AND HEAVY BOMBERS OF THE RAF ATTACKED THE NAZI AIRDROME AT MARITZA ON THE ISLAND OF RHODES THURSDAY NIGHT FOR THE THIRD STRAIGHT NIGHT AND THAT OTHER RAF PLANES RAIDED THE AIRDROME AT MALEME ON CRETE. THESE OPERATIONS WERE CARRIED OUT WITHOUT LOSS.

TO CANOSA, BACK FROM THE OFANTO'S MOUTH IN THE ADRIATIC, THE RIVER IS NOW FIRMLY CONTROLLED BY THE EIGHTH ARMY ADVANCE GUARD.

SEP 26 1943

"THIS OLD CHAP'S AMAZING, ABSOLUTELY AMAZING," A YOUNG RECONNAISSANCE LIEUTENANT TOLD THE ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT.

ROSA "ENLISTED" IN THE EIGHTH ARMY WHEN THE YOUTHFUL LIEUTENANT ENTERED THE HYSTERICAL TOWN OF BARLETTA AT NOON AND CHASED OUT THE LAST GERMANS--FOUR SOLDIERS WITH A TOMMY GUN IN A CAPTURED JEEP.

"I BEEN AMERICAN 30 YEARS IN NEW YORK, PHILADELPHIA AND BOSTON--ALL OVER THE PLACE," HE SAID. "I BEEN ENGLAND SOMETIMES. AMERICANS AND ENGLISH MY FRIENDS. I WANTA FIGHT THEM GERMANS."

THE LIEUTENANT OBJECTED, "YOU'RE TOO OLD TO GET SHOT AT, POP."

THEN AS THE LIEUTENANT RECOUNTED THE STORY TONIGHT, ROSA KISSED HIM LOUDLY ON THE CHEEK AND CONCLUDED THE DISCUSSION.

"I WANTA LIVE. I WANTA FIGHT. DON'T YOU WORRY FOR ME."

WITH ROSA PERCHED ON THE SIDE OF THE ARMORED CAR THE LIEUTENANT SCOUTED THE FOUR-MILE STRETCH OF COUNTRYSIDE BETWEEN BARLETTA AND THE BLOWNUP COASTAL HIGHWAY BRIDGE OVER THE OFANTO RIVER.

GUIDED BY ROSA ALONG THE FARM TRACKS DIVERGING FROM THE HIGHWAY AND ASSISTED BY INFORMATION HE GLEANED FROM THE COUNTRY FOLK THE LIEUTENANT'S ARMORED CAR DROVE THE SCATTERED DETACHMENTS OF GERMANS LIKE SCATTERED GEESE FROM THE SOUTH BANK OF THE OFANTO.

I WATCHED THE DUST RAISED BY THE ENEMY VEHICLES AND THE SMOKE OF OUR EXPLODING SHELLS FROM THE TOP OF A TWO-STORY VILLA IN A VINEYARD NEAR THE SEA.

TWELVE MILES INLAND FROM THE ADRIATIC ANOTHER OFANTO RIVER BRIDGE ON THE OUTSKIRTS OF CANOSA WAS FOUND DEMMOLISHED BUT THE BRITISH ARMORED CAR DROVE ACROSS A DETOUR WITHOUT ANY TROUBLE.

THIS INLAND THRUST PASSED THROUGH THE TOWN OF ANDRIA AT 9:45 A.M. AND THE COMMANDER OF THE COLUMN REPORTED, "WE ARE ABSOLUTELY BLACK AND BLUE FROM THE THINGS CHUCKED AT US BY THE POPULATION--FRUITS AND FLOWERS. THE LAST THING WAS TWO INCHES OF ALMONDS DUMPED INTO THE BACK OF MY JEEP."

THE ITALIAN RAILWAY PERSONNEL CARRIES ON AND I SEE TRAINS RUNNING FOR THE FIRST TIME SINCE ARRIVING IN ITALY SEPT. 3.

CHILDREN SCREAM HAPPILY AND TOSS OLIVE BRANCHES AT EVERY BRITISH VEHICLE MOVING FORWARD ALONG THE FINE THREE-LANE PAVED COASTAL HIGHWAY.

ITALIAN SIGN PAINTERS ARE BUSIER THAN EVER IN THE PIAZZA GARIBALDI AT MOLFETTA. THEY HAVE JUST FINISHED ERASING "DUX DUX" ON THE WALL OF THE GOVERNMENT HOUSE AND ARE PAINTING OVER IT IN ENGLISH: "LONG LIVE THE KING."

ALMOST NIGHTLY ROCKETS RISE INTO THE AIR, GUNS BOOM ALL OVER THE CITY, STRANGE LIGHTS FLICKER UP AND DOWN THE HIGHWAYS AND THE VILLAIN IS GETTING CHASED ALL OVER THE PLACE.

I HAVEN'T EXPERIENCED ANYTHING LIKE IT SINCE THOSE SATURDAY AFTERNOONS OF MY BOYHOOD WHEN I SAT SPELLBOUND IN THE ACADEMY OF MUSIC IN SELMA, ALA., AND WATCHED COWBOYS, INDIANS AND JACK DALTON OF THE UNITED STATES MARINES.

HERE IN MOSCOW, OF COURSE, THE HERO IS THE RED ARMY AND THE VILLAIN IS HITLER AND HIS BAD MEN WHO ARE GETTING CHASED BACK BEHIND THE HILLS.

THE SAME HIGH SPIRITS THAT PROPEL EVERY WESTERN LOVER TO HIS PLACE BEFORE THE SCREEN PREVAIL HERE.

THE HOME BOYS ARE WINNING.

THE FIREWORKS THAT GREET THE RED ARMY'S MOUNTING VICTORIES ARE REAL PYROTECHNICS, SUPER-ROMAN CANDLES AND ARCHING FLARES THAT FINGER THE NIGHT SKIES, AND WITH THE GUNS' FIRST BOOM MUSCOVITES COME ROLLING OUT OF DOORS TO SEE THE FUN.

IT IS AS COLORFUL AS A RIOT IN A PAINT FACTORY.

OLD MEN AND WOMEN, THE MIDDLE-AGED, THE YOUNG AND VERY YOUNG TURN THEIR RUSSIAN FACES INTO THE NIGHT WITH EACH BURST THAT SIGNIFIES NEW VICTORIES.

AS THE RED ARMY CAPTURES CITY AFTER CITY, NAMES OF NEW CITIES FALL FROM THE LIPS OF HOPEFUL CITIZENS--WHO HAVE BEEN MAKING MORE PERSONAL SACRIFICES THAN ANY PEOPLE I'VE SEEN IN A RECENT TRIP AROUND THE WOR

THEY TALK OF MINSK, KIEV, GOMEL, SMOLENSK, DNEPROPETROVSK AND THE CRIMEA, AND WONDER IF THEY MAY NOT SOON BE STANDING ON THE SAME STREETS WATCHING CELEBRATIONS OF THEIR CAPTURE.

MOSCOW PEOPLE STILL FIGHT ON AND NO SIGN HAVE I SEEN OF A LET-DOWN, DESPITE THEIR MANY HARDSHIPS AND THE KNOWLEDGE THAT THIS WINTER IS GOING TO BE A REAL TOUGH ONE--MAYBE THE TOUGHEST YET.

THERE STILL IS ENOUGH FOOD TO KEEP PEOPLE FROM GOING HUNGRY BUT YOU DON'T SEE ANY FAT FOLKS. EVERYONE ADMITS THE POSSIBILITY THAT THINGS MIGHT GET SLIGHTLY WORSE THIS WINTER.

A FEW RESTAURANTS HAVE OPENED WITHIN THE PAST FEW DAYS HOWEVER AND THIS IS A VERY PROMISING SIGN. MOSCOW DIDN'T HAVE ANY RESTAURANTS OPEN LAST WINTER AND THE PAST SUMMER.

STREETS AND YARDS ARE CHOKED WITH WOOD WHICH WOMEN AND GIRLS OF THIS CITY CUT IN THE FORESTS LAST SPRING AND SUMMER.

AND WINTER IS COMING ON, TOO. NIGHTS AND MORNINGS ARE COLD NOW.

BUT DESPITE ALL THE HARDSHIPS THERE IS A GREAT SPIRIT OF CONFIDENCE IN MOSCOW AND HIGH HOPES THAT THE WAR WILL SOON BE OVER.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, SEPT 26 (SUNDAY) (AP)-THE J[illegible]SE NAVY HAS PULLED IN ITS HORNS DURING RECENT WEEKS OF THE ALLIED OFFENSIVE IN NEW GUINEA AND THE SOLOMONS.

ENEMY WARSHIPS, WHICH ONCE DOMINATED THE AREA, HAVE BECOME SO SCARCE THAT NO MENTION OF THE SINKING OF ANY OF THEM HAS BEEN MADE IN THE COMMUNIQUES OF GENERAL DOUGLAS MACARTHUR SINCE AUGUST 7.

DURING SEPTEMBER BOMB HITS HAVE BEEN REPORTED ON TWO JAPANESE DESTROYERS BUT BOTH WERE WELL BACK OF PROTECTING BASES IN NEW GUINEA AND NEW BRITAIN. THIS CONTRASTS SHARPLY WITH THE NUMEROUS NAVAL ENGAGEMENTS DURING THE FIRST MONTH OF THE TWIN-PRONGED AMERICAN AND AUSTRALIAN DRIVE WHICH STARTED LAST JUNE 30.

AMERICAN WARSHIPS AND AIRPLANES SANK FIVE OR SIX ENEMY CRUISERS AND 13 OR 14 DESTROYERS DURING JULY AT A COST OF ONE CRUISER AND TWO DESTROYERS. DURING THE FIRST WEEK OF AUGUST ANOTHER NIPPONESE CRUISER AND TWO DESTROYERS WERE SENT TO THE BOTTOM.

SINCE THEN THE ENEMY UNITS EVIDENTLY HAVE REMAINED IN THE SAFETY OF BASES REMOVED FROM

1943

SINCE THEN THE ENEMY UNITS EVIDENTLY HAVE REMAINED IN THE SAFETY OF BASES REMOVED FROM THE BATTLE ZONE. IN RECENT WEEKS THE JAPANESE HAVE RESORTED ALMOST ENTIRELY TO THE USE OF BARGES TO MOVE SUPPLIES AND REINFORCEMENTS INSTEAD OF CARGO SHIPS CONVOYED BY WAR-CRAFT.

HUNDREDS OF THESE BARGES HAVE BEEN DESTROYED BY ALLIED PLANES AND NAVAL BOATS. MORE THAN 200 HAVE BEEN SUNK OR DAMAGED SO FAR THIS MONTH.

ALTHOUGH THE NIPPONESE HAVE BEEN CONSERVING THEIR SEA POWER THEY STILL ARE RISKING THEIR AIRCRAFT IN LARGE NUMBERS. HEEEEEEEEEEEEEEEEEEE

STILL ARE RISKING THEIR AIRCRAFT IN LARGE NUMBERS. HEAVY REINFORCE-MENTS HAVE BEEN BROUGHT INTO THE NORTHERN SOLOMONS AND CENTRAL NEW GUINEA TO REPLACE LOSSES, WHICH ALLIED HEADQUARTERS SET AS 584 FOR AUGUST ALONE. ALMOST 350 MORE HAVE BEEN DESTROYED DURING SEPTEMBER.

FORTY OF THESE PLANES WERE SHOT DOWN DURING THE ALLIED LANDING NEAR FINSCHHAFEN, NEW GUINEA, ON TUESDAY. THAT LANDING HAS ALREADY RESULTED IN THE CAPTURE OF THE AIRFIELD THERE.

(THE TOKYO RADIO CLAIMED SATURDAY THAT JAPANESE PLANES SANK THREE ALLIED CRUISERS, TWO DESTROYERS AND A TRANSPORT DURING THE FINSCHHAFEN LANDINGS. THE FRIDAY ALLIED COMMUNIQUE SAID NOT A SINGLE SHIP WAS DAMAGED DURING THE OPERATION.)

(EDITOR'S NOTE: JUST WHAT DID GENERAL MACARTHUR HAVE IN MIND WHEN HE ISSUED HIS STATEMENT OF SEPTEMBER 22 COMMENTING ON PRESS REPORTS THAT HIS PART IN THE WAR WAS TO BE CURTAILED AND HIS COMMAND SUBORDINATED? WHILE NO OFFICIAL COMMENT HAS BEEN FORTH-COMING FROM WASHINGTON, LONDON OR CANBERRA, THERE HAS BEEN MUCH PROFESSED BEWILDERMENT IN OFFICIAL CIRCLES. C.YATES MCDANIEL, ASSOCIATED PRESS BUREAU CHIEF AT MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, HERE-WITH OUTLINES THE BACKGROUND FOR THE STATEMENT THAT PROVOKED THE DISCUSSION AND ANALYZES THE REASONS WHY MACARTHUR FAVORS A FULL-SCALE ASSAULT ON JAPAN FROM AUSTRALIA, INSTEAD OF BURMA, HAWAII OR ALASKA.)

BY C.YATES MCDANIEL

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, SATURDAY, SEPT.25-(AP)-THE VITAL ISSUE BROUGHT INTO THE OPEN BY GEN.DOUGLAS MACARTHUR'S STATEMENT IMPLYING THAT HIS ROLE IN THE WAR MIGHT BE CUR-TAILED, IS NOT WHO IS TO DIRECT THE MAJOR ASSAULT ON JAPAN, BUT FROM WHAT BASE OR BASIC AREA SUCH AN OFFENSIVE IS TO BE MOUNTED.

30.24_8817

EXPECTED OFFICIAL REACTION HAS NOT BEEN FORTHCOMING FROM WASHINGTON, LONDON OR CANBERRA, BUT A LONDON ANNOUNCEMENT DID SET A DIVIDING LINE BETWEEN THE COMMANDS OF GENERAL MACARTHUR AND LORD LOUIS MOUNTBATTEN IN SOUTHEAST ASIA.

SEP 26 1943

MACARTHUR, IMMERSED IN PROSECUTING THE WAR FROM FORWARD HEADQUARTERS AND CONSOLIDATING ALLIED STRATEGIC GAINS IN NEW GUINEA, HAS MADE NO FURTHER REFERENCE TO HIS STATEMENT OF WEDNESDAY NOR THE REASONS BEHIND ITS ISSUANCE.

WHEN MACARTHUR SAID HE WAS WILLING TO ACCEPT A SUBORDINATE ROLE, DISCUSSION IMMEDIATELY AROSE AS TO WHETHER THE MAJOR ATTACK AGAINST JAPAN WOULD BE MADE BY LORD MOUNTBATTEN'S FORCES IN INDIA OR THOSE UNDER THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC COMMAND.

MACARTHUR SAID HE FAVORED "MASSIVE STROKES AGAINST ONLY MAIN STRATEGIC OBJECTIVES" INSTEAD OF "ISLAND HOPPING, WITH EXTRAVAGANT LOSSES AND SLOW PROGRESS."

ADDING TO THIS DISCONTENT, AND WEAKENING IN [illegible]OTENTIAL USEFULNESS AS AN OPERATING BASE, IS THE COUNTRY'S CHRONIC LACK OF FOOD SUFFICIENT EVEN FOR THE NATIVE POPULACE.

EVEN IF THESE WEAKNESSES COULD BE OVERCOME -- AS THEY NO DOUBT WOULD BE IF MAJOR ATTENTION WERE FOCUSED THERE -- THE CHANCES OF SUCCESS OF SUCH AN UNDERTAKING SHOULD BE WEIGHED AGAINST BASIC GEOGRAPHICAL AND MILITARY FACTS WHICH STILL ARE DISCERNABLE THROUGH THE MENTAL FOG GENERATED BY THE VERY SINCERITY AND URGENCY OF OUR DESIRE TO GIVE EFFECTIVE SUCCOR TO LONG-SUFFERING CHINA.

THUS HE BROUGHT INTO THE OPEN THE QUESTION THAT STILL IS UP IN THE AIR--WHAT DIRECTION WILL ALLIED STRATEGY FOLLOW IN ORDER TO ACHIEVE THE MAXIMUM DAMAGE TO THE ENEMY AT THE LOWEST COST IN MEN AND MATERIEL?

SUCH A DARING MOVE WOULD STRIKE AT THE HEART OF THE ENEMY'S MILITARY AND ECONOMIC HOLD IN SOUTHEAST ASIA BUT IT LIKELY WOULD PROVE COSTLY. EVEN IF SUCCESSFUL IT WOULD STILL LEAVE THE ALLIES WITH THE NECESSITY OF UNDERTAKING EQUALLY AMBITIOUS OVERLAND AND AMPHIBIOUS CAMPAIGNS TO BECOME FIRMLY ESTABLISHED IN THE HONGKONG AREA.

NOW THAT THE DARK DAYS OF THREATENED INVASION ARE PAST LAYMEN AND OFFICIALS OF AUSTRALIA ARE SEEING THEIR COUNTRY, NOT AS A DEFENSIVE BATTLEGROUND, BUT AS A BASE FROM WHICH THE ALLIES COULD COMMENCE THE FORMIDABLE TASK OF ROLLING BACK THE JAPANESE TIDE.

THERE IS MUCH TO SUPPORT THIS CONCEPTION OF AUSTRALIA'S ROLE. THE COMMONWEALTH'S POPULATION IS A MERE FRACTION OF INDIA'S BUT AUSTRALIA'S 7,000,000 PEOPLE ARE ALMOST WHOLLY BRITISH OR OF LONG ABSORBED EUROPEAN STOCK AMONG WHOM NO FIFTH COLUMN OR DISSIDENT MOVEMENT HAS OR IS LIKELY TO MAKE HEADWAY.

THIS POPULATION, THOUGH UNABLE TO PROVIDE A COMBAT ARMY LARGE ENOUGH TO LAUNCH A MAJOR OFFENSIVE, IS PROBABLY AS THOROUGHLY MOBILIZED FOR WAR EFFORT AS ANY MEMBER OF THE BRITISH COMMONWEALTH OR THE UNITED STATES.

ALL LEADERS SEEM TO AGREE THAT WE MUST, TO ACHIEVE A DECISIVE, SMASHING VICTORY OVER THE JAPANESE MILITARY MACHINE, MAKE THE FULLEST USE OF CHINA'S BASES, HER MANPOWER AND ABOVE ALL HER UNBREAKABLE WILL TO FIGHT TO VICTORY.

HEROIC EXERTIONS MIGHT SUCCEED IN PUSHING THE ALLIED ARMIES ACROSS NORTHERN BURMA TO THE CHINESE BORDER. THAT WOULD MEAN THE REOPENING OF THE BURMA ROAD. THOSE OF US WHO WORKED IN BURMA AND CHINA DURING THE BITTER PRE-PEARL HARBOR YEARS KNOW THAT THE BURMA ROAD, FAR FROM BEING AN END IN ITSELF, WAS THE LAST AND LEAST EFFICIENT SUPPLY ROUTE RESORTED TO BY THE CHINESE IN THE HOPE OF MAINTAINING MINIMUM RESISTANCE AFTER THE LIFELINES FROM HONGKONG, TONKIN GULF AND NORTHERN INDO-CHINA HAD BEEN SUCCESSIVELY CUT BY THE JAPANESE.

ALLIED ENGINEERS COULD INCREASE ITS CARRYING CAPACITY MANY TIMES BUT IT WOULD HAVE TO CARRY A VOLUME THAT WOULD PALE ITS PRE-WAR TRAFFIC INTO INSIGNIFICANCE.

LORD MOUNTBATTEN IS UNLIKELY TO DISCLOSE THE METHOD OR OBJECTIVES OF PROMISED OPERATIONS BY THE EAST ASIA COMMAND.

EXISTING AND WELL ESTABLISHED BASES AT CEYLON, ONLY A THOUSAND MILES FROM THE TIP OF SUMATRA AND A LITTLE FURTHER FROM THE NARROW WAIST OF THE MALAYAN PENINSULA, HOWEVER, WOULD SUGGEST THE POSSIBILITY OF AT LEAST A STRONG FEINT TOWARD THE NORTHWESTERN END OF SUMATRA AND A STRONGER THRUST DESIGNED TO CUT JAPANESE COMMUNICATIONS BETWEEN SIAM AND SINGAPORE.

THERE ARE FOUR AVAILABLE BASE AREAS FROM WHICH THE ALLIES COULD PIVOT STRIKING FORCES AGAINST JAPAN'S FAR-FLUNG EMPIRE. THESE ARE ALASKA-ALEUTIANS; HAWAII-MIDWAY; AUSTRALIA-NEW GUINEA-SOLOMONS; AND INDIA-CEYLON.

THE ALEUTIANS ARE SOMEWHAT MORE DISTANT FROM THE CENTERS OF AMERICAN PRODUCTION AND SUPPLY THAN HAWAII, BUT KISKA AND EVEN DUTCH HARBOR, ARE MUCH NEARER THAN OTHER BASES TO THE HEART OF JAPAN PROPER. ALEUTIAN-BASED BOMBERS HAVE ALREADY DEMONSTRATED THAT THEY ARE WITHIN THE RANGE OF JAPANESE-HELD KURILE ISLANDS BUT THE DIFFICULTIES OF ROUGH AND FOGGY WEATHER THERE HAVE NOT BEEN OVERCOME.

IT WOULD BE A DARING COMMANDER INDEED WHO WOULD VENTURE TO LEAD AN INVASION FLEET ACROSS 2,250 STATUTE MILES OF OPEN SEAS FROM MIDWAY TO THE MAIN ISLAND OF JAPAN. OVER TWO-THIRDS OF THE DISTANCE THE INVASION FLEET WOULD NOT ONLY BE DEPENDENT UPON CARRIERS FOR AIRPLANE COVER BUT WOULD BE WITHIN RANGE OF ENEMY PLANES BASED ON ISLANDS.

THE AUSTRALIAN AND INDIAN BASE AREAS ARE BOTH DISTANT FROM JAPAN PROPER AND APPROXIMATELY EQUIDISTANT FROM THE ENEMY'S NEWLY WON SOURCES OF VITAL WAR MATERIALS. BOTH AREAS ARE APPROXIMATELY THE SAME DISTANCE FROM BRITISH AND AMERICAN SOURCES OF SUPPLY.

INDIA, AS A BASE FOR LARGE SCALE OPERATIONS, HAS AN APPARENT ADVANTAGE OVER AUSTRALIA IN THAT IT OFFERS A LAND BRIDGEHEAD INTO JAPANESE-HELD EAST ASIA AND THAT IT POSSESSES A VAST RESERVOIR OF NATIVE FIGHTING AND LABOR POWER.

GUADALCANAL, SEPTEMBER 7--(DELAYED)--SUNDAY IS SOUVENIR DAY FOR AMERICAN SERVICEMENT ON GUADALCANAL BUT OCCASIONALLY SOME WHO VENTURE FAR INLAND GET A SURPRISE -- THEY CAPTURE A JAPANESE.

EVERY KIND OF JAP BOOTY CAN BE FOUND ON THE BATTLEFIELDS, AND ON JAPANESE SHIPS BEACHED AROUND THE ISLAND, BUT ONCE IN A WHILE SOME OF THE SERVICEMENT DECIDE TO SEE WHAT THEY CAN FIND INLAND, AND IN THE MOUNTAINOUS SECTIONS.

WHEN A JAP IS ENCOUNTERED ON ONE OF THE INLAND EXCURSIONS HE USUALLY IS HALF-STARVED AND SURRENDERS READILY.

RECENTLY, A FAVORITE STORY HAS IT, TWO SEABEES WENT INLAND. THEY CAME ACROSS A MAN WITH A RIFLE, BUT HE WAS SO DIRTY AND DISHEVELLED THEY DID NOT SPOT HIM AS A JAPANESE AS THEY RAN UP TO HIM AND YELLED:

"WHAT'LL YOU TAKE FOR THAT JAP RIFLE?"

THE JAP DROPPED THE RIFLE AND RAN INTO THE JUNGLE, APPARENTLY SCARED TO DEATH, AS THE SEABEES FULLY REALIZED FOR THE FIRST TIME THAT THEY HAD GOTTEN A SOUVENIR, BUT MISSED A CHANCE TO TAKE A PRISONER.

THERE WAS SOME INTEREST IN A DAILY EXPRESS STORY QUOTING A "WASHINGTON WIRE" LISTING MACARTHUR AMONG PRESIDENTIAL POSSIBILITIES. THE STORY SAID HE WAS "QUITE LIKELY TO BE IN THE RUNNING WITH A CAMPAIGN BASED ON ALLEGATIONS OF MISMANAGEMENT OF THE PACIFIC WAR BY THE ADMINISTRATION."

MACARTHUR SAID IN HIS STATEMENT THAT HE FAVORED "MASSIVE STROKES AGAINST ONLY THE MAIN STRATEGIC OBJECTIVES" INSTEAD OF "ISLAND HOPPING, WITH EXTRAVAGANT LOSSES AND SLOW PROGRESS."

THE DAILY MAIL'S UNITED STATES CORRESPONDENT SAID THAT MACARTHUR'S EXPRESSED WILLINGNESS TO TAKE A SECONDARY ROLE IN THE PACIFIC WAS "INSTANTLY ASSUMED BY SHREWD AND RESPONSIBLE COMMENTATORS ALIKE TO REFLECT ON THE RECENT APPOINTMENT OF MOUNTBATTEN."

ORK, SEPT 25-(AP)-BROADCASTING FROM ALGIERS, DON HOLLENBECK, CORRESPONDENT, QUOTED "RELIABLE SOURCES" LAST NIGHT AS REVEALING NERALS HENRI GIRAUD AND CHARLES DE GAULLE ENGAGED IN A HEATED CONTROVERSY OVER THE CONDUCT OF THE CORSICAN CAMPAIGN, WITH DE GAULLE SHOUTING:

SEP 26 1943

"YOU STOLE MY CORSICA."

THE ARGUMENT, IT WAS SAID, ENDED WITH DE GAULLE ATTEMPTING TO HAVE GIRAUD REMOVED AS FRENCH COMMANDER IN CHIEF.

HOLLENBECK SAID DE GAULLE WAS ANGERED BY WHAT HE FELT WAS AN UNFAIR ATTITUDE ON GIRAUD'S PART TOWARD ITALIAN HELP IN THE DRIVE TO OUST NAZI TROOPS FROM THE FRENCH ISLAND.

THE RADIO COMMENTATOR SAID HIS INFORMANTS TOLD HIM THE INDICATIONS WERE THAT THE CORSICAN CAMPAIGN BEGAN ENTIRELY AS A "HOME-GROWN AFFAIR STAGED BY CORSICAN PATRIOTS WHO HAD NO PARTICULAR INTEREST IN EITHER GENERAL.... THE MOMENT THE UPRISING BECAME KNOWN IN ALGIERS, GIRAUD RUSHED A BATTALION OF SOLDIERS TO THE ISLAND, AND WAS IMMEDIATELY ACCUSD BY DE GAULLE OF TRYING TO ENGINEER A COUP."

NEW YORK, SEPT. 25-(AP)-THE MOROCCO RADIO SAID TODAY A COMMUNIQUE BROADCAST BY THE "FREE YUGOSLAV RADIO" REPORTED THAT TANK-SUPPORTED GERMAN FORMATIONS WERE REPULSED IN AN ATTACK ON POSITIONS OF YUGOSLAV PATRIOTS NEAR SPLIT AND THAT THE GERMANS LOST 300 MEN KILLED AND TWO TANKS DESTROYED.

SEP [illegible] 1943

THE MOROCCAN BROADCAST RECORDED BY U.S. GOVERNMENT MONITORS, QUOTED THE COMMUNIQUE AS REPORTING THAT THERE HAD BEEN HEAVY FIGHTING AROUND GORIZIA AND LJUDLJANA, BUT THAT THE GERMANS FAILED TO BREAK THE LINES OF THE "ARMY OF LIBERATION." YUGOSLAV PATRIOTS ALSO REPULSED NAZI ATTEMPTS TO LAND ON THE ISLANDS OF SIPANJ AND MLJET IN THE ADRIATIC SEA, SINKING ONE TROOPSHIP AND ONE SUPPLY SHIP, THE COMMUNIQUE SAID.

THE GRAVE FAMINE CONDITIONS ON THE DENSELY POPULATED EASTERN SEA-BOARD OF INDIA ADD TO THE CONCERN ALREADY FELT OVER THE CONTINUED BRITISH-INDIAN POLITICAL CRISIS IN THIS VAST COLONY WHICH NOT ONLY IS ALLIED ARSENAL OF THE ORIENT BUT PRINCIPAL BASE FOR THE COMING OFFENSIVE AGAINST JAPAN THROUGH BURMA.

LATEST DISPATCHES SAY THAT OVER 1,000,000 HUNGRY PEOPLE ARE BEING FED IN BENGAL PROVINCE WHICH HAS A POPULATION OF 60,000,000. IN THE GREAT PORT OF CALCUTTA ALONE, THERE HAVE BEEN FIFTY DEATHS PER DAY FROM STARVATION. AN ARMY OF HUNGRY FOLK SOME 100,000 STRONG WANDERS IN THE STREETS WITHOUT SHELTER.

THIS PLAGUE OF STARVATION DIDN'T COME WITHOUT WARNING TO INDIA, THE BULK OF WHOSE POPULATION OF 400,000,000 ALWAYS IS HUNGRY EVEN IN BEST OF TIMES. WHEN I RETURNED FROM INDIA AT THE END OF FEBRUARY, AFTER STUDYING CONDITIONS THERE, I REPORTED IN THIS COLUMN THAT THERE WAS A SERIOUS FOOD SITUATION WHICH THREATENED TO GET WORSE.

THE TROUBLE WAS DUE TO SEVERAL FACTORS. AMONG THESE WERE HOARDING OF GRAIN, FAULTY DISTRIBUTION, SHIPMENT OF FOODSTUFFS ABROAD TO FEED TROOPS, AND SHORTAGE OF RICE OWING TO JAPANESE OCCUPATION OF BURMA FROM WHICH INDIA NORMALLY HAS OBTAINED GREAT QUANTITIES OF THIS FOOD, ESPECIALLY BIG BENGAL PROVINCE.

INDIAN AND BRITISH OBSERVERS, FORESEEING A WORSENING OF THE FOOD SHORTAGE, WERE FEARFUL LEST UNSCRUPULOUS PEOPLE SHOULD BE ABLE TO MERGE THE HUNGER SITUATION WITH THE POLITICAL DISCONTENT FOR ULTERIOR PURPOSES. THAT WOULD BE A TERRIBLE COMBINATION.

THE PRISONS THEN HELD THOUSANDS OF INDIANS WHO HAD BEEN CONCERNED IN THE BLOODY DISTURBANCES WHICH FOLLOWED THE INDIAN REJECTION OF THE CRIPPS OFFER OF DOMINION STATUS AFTER THE WAR. THE INDIAN HAD DEMANDED IMMEDIATE INDEPENDENCE. MANY OF THE GREAT NATIVE LEADERS, INCLUDING MAHATMA GANDHI, WERE UNDER LOCK AND KEY. THEY STILL ARE.

NOW THE DREAD SCOURGE OF HUNGER HAS ARRIVED, AND IT AN IRONIC CIRCUMSTANCE THAT IT SHOULD BE STRIKING MOST HEAVILY IN BENGAL. THIS PROVINCE IS AT ONCE THE HOT-BED OF ANTI-GOVERNMENT ACTIVITIES, AND THE PLACE FROM WHICH MANY OF THE ALLIED INVASION FORCES MUST STRIKE AT BURMA ACROSS THE BAY OF BENGAL. OIL AND WATER.

THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA SAYS THE POLITICAL SITUATION IS ABSOLUTELY IN HAND. THE LID IS CLAMPED ON THE DISCONTENTED ELEMENTS AND THERE IS NO DANGER THAT IT WILL BLOW OFF. ENERGETIC MEASURES ARE BEING TAKEN TO MEET THE FOOD CRISIS.

SEP 26 1943

DESPITE THESE ASSURANCES, THERE IS MUCH CONCERN AMONG AMERICAN MILITARY MEN WHO ARE IN INDIA WITH OUR STEADILY GROWING FIGHTING UNITS. THEY ARE RECOGNIZING THAT WHILE ORDER MAY BE MAINTAINED BY FORCE, YOU CAN'T COMPEL MORAL SUPPORT FROM INDIA IF SHE DOESN'T WANT TO GIVE IT. THEY ARE RECOGNIZING, TOO, WITH UNEASINESS THAT MANY AMERICAN ACTIVITIES ARE IN BENGAL, FOR THE CALCUTTA ZONE IS CENTER OF MUCH OF THE AIR COMMUNICATION WITH CHINA.

WHILE THIS CONCERN IS IN AMERICAN MINDS, LITTLE OR NOTHING IS BEING SAID PUBLICLY. AFTER ALL, IT'S A DELICATE SUBJECT IN VIEW OF THE FACT THAT INDIA IS BRITISH TERRITORY. THIS ARTICLE MAY BE AMONG THE FIRST OF ITS KIND, AND IT'S BEING WRITTEN BECAUSE I THINK THE PEOPLE OF THIS COUNTRY AND OUR NEIGHBORS IN NORTH AND SOUTH AMERICA, SHOULD KNOW WHAT GOES FORWARD.

WE DON'T WANT TO INTRUDE IN AN IMPERIAL FAMILY AFFAIR, BUT THE INDIAN SITUATION CEASES TO BE A FAMILY MATTER WHEN IT AFFECTS THE WELFARE OF ALL THE UNITED NATIONS, BOTH NOW AND POST-WAR. ENGLAND'S ALLIES HAVE BEEN EAGERLY HOPING THAT THE INDIAN PROBLEM WOULD BE SOLVED QUICKLY. MY OWN INVESTIGATIONS IN INDIA CONVINCED ME THAT THE INDIAN LEADERS REGRETTED THE COLLAPSE OF THE CRIPPS NEGOTIATIONS AND WOULD LIKE ANOTHER CHANCE.

I BELIEVE THE INDIANS WOULD BURY DIFFERENCES AMONG THEMSELVES AND WITH THE BRITISH, AND JOIN [illegible] PROVISIONAL (A)-G[illegible] (WITHOUT PREJUDICE TO DISPUTED CLAIMS)--IF THEY HAD THE OPPORTUNITY. SUCH OPPORTUNITY WOULD DEPEND ON BRITAIN'S ABANDONMENT OF HER DECISION NOT TO REOPEN THE CASE DURING THE WAR.

I KNOW DISTINGUISHED AND HIGHLY PLACED PEOPLE WHO HOLD THE SAME VIEWS.

REPRESENTING THE COMBINED AMERICAN PRESS

(DISTRIBUTED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)

WITH GEN. EISENHOWER AT ADVANCED ALLIED COMMAND POST, SEPT 11 -(DELAYED)-THIS HAS BEEN THE KIND OF DAY THAT HOLLYWOOD WOULD DREAM UP FOR A WAR CORRESPONDENT, EXCEPT THAT THERE WERE NO SLIM AND BEUTIFUL BRUNETTES IN THE PICTURE, NOT EVEN A REDHEAD.

I WAS IN A MOOD TO COMMIT HARA-KARI ON GEN.DWIGHT D.EISENHOWERS DOORSTEP AND TOLD THE GENERAL SO WHEN I WENT TO SEE HIM AT 7:30 THIS MORNING THERE ARE A HALF DOZEN STORIES OF WORLD-WIDE IMPORTANCE WITHIN A HALF MILE OF HEADQUARTERS BUT IT IS FORBIDDEN TO WRITE THEM.

THE GENERAL SAID HE COULD NOT DISCUSS THE FIGHTING AT SALERNO FOR PUBLICATION BECAUSE IT WAS STILL IN THE STAGE OF TOUCH AND GO THEN HE ASKED WHAT I WANTED TO DO TO GET SOME NEWS.

"FIRST OF ALL ID LIKE TO FLY OUT AND HAVE A LOOK AT THE ITALIAN FLEET THAT'S COMING DOWN TO SURRENDER, THEN SEE ADMIRAL CUNNINGHAM, AND I'D LIKE PERMISSION TO WRITE THE INSIDE STORY OF THE ITALIAN ARMISTICE NEGOTIATIONS AND OF WHAT IS GOING ON IN ITALY. EVERYBODY INVOLVED IS IN THIS AREA NOW AND ALL THE MATERIAL IS AVAILABLE."

GENERAL IKE THEN WAVED HIS MAGIC WAND AND WON A FRIEND FOR LIFE. HE CALLED IN A STAFF OFFICER AND SAID, "PHONE AIR CHIEF MARSHALL TEDDER AND SEE IF HE CAN PROVIDE AN AIRPLANE. PHONE THE ADMIRAL AND MAKE AN APPOINTMENT. PHONE THE CENSORSHIP OFFICE AND GET AN OKAY FOR THE ARMISTICE STORY."

SEP 26 1943

IN A HALF HOUR IT WAS ALL ARRANGED AND DAVE BROWN OF REUTERS AND I GOT THE FIRST INSTALLMENT OF THE ARMISTICE NEGOTIATIONS STORY FROM THE BRIGADIER WHO PARTICIPATED IN THE MEETINGS AS ONE OF EISENHOWER'S REPRESENTATIVES.

I REMEMBER READING THAT OPPENHEIM USED TO DICTATE HIS NOVELS OF INTERNATIONAL INTRIGUE TO A STENOGRAPHER. BUT THE REAL LIFE STORY THAT THE BRIGADIER DICTATED TO A LADY SERGEANT STENOGRAPHER OUT-OPPENHEIMED ANYTHING THE OLD MASTER EVER DREAMED UP.

IT HAS EVERYTHING EXCEPT JOE PALOOKA DISGUISING HIMSELF AS THE EMPEROR OF JAPAN AND FLYING UP TO HEAVEN IN A ROCKET SHIP TO INTERVIEW THE SUN GODDESS.

AFTER THE INTERVIEW THE REST OF THE DAY WAS ARRANGED ON A SPLIT SECOND SCHEDULE.

WE RUSHED OVER TO THE AIRFIELD AT 12:15 P.M., AND CLIMBED ABOARD A B-25 THAT TEDDER HAD ASSIGNED TO US AND TO TWO ARMY PHOTOGRAPHERS. THE PILOT AND CO-PILOT, LTS. J.E.TERRETT OF CANTON, OHIO, AND D.E.BALLARD OF NASHVILLE, TENN., LOOKED AWFULLY YOUNG TO ME-ABOUT OLD ENOUGH TO BE GETTING THEIR FIRST BICYCLES FOR CHRISTMAS PRESENTS, OR MAYBE I'M JUST GETTING OLD.

WE HAD EXACTLY AN HOUR TO FLY OUT AND LOOK AT ONE OF THE GREAT SCENES IN RECENT HISTORY AS THE ITALIAN BATTLEFLEET STEAMED TOWARD MALTA AFTER SURRENDERING AT SEA. THE SHIPS WERE STRETCHED OUT OVER FIVE MILES OF SEA IN THREE PERFECT COLUMNS HEADED BY TWO BRITISH BATTLE WAGONS AND SIX DESTROYERS.

BEHIND THEM WERE THE ITALIAN SHIPS, THE DREADNAUGHTS VITTORIO VENETO AND ITALIA, FIVE CRUISERS AND FOUR CANS. WE HAD EXPECTED TO SEE THREE BATTLESHIPS, BUT WE LEARNED LATER THAT THE ROMA HAD BEEN SUNK BY GERMAN PLANES OFF SARDINIA. ONE OF THE ITALIAN BATTLE-WAGONS WAS TRAILING A BIG OIL SLICK FROM DAMAGE CAUSED BY HEINIE BOMBS, BUT SHE WAS KEEPING HER PLACE.

OUR PILOTS, TERRETT AND BALLARD, AND THEIR CREW HAD SEEN THESE SAME SHIPS MANY TIMES BEFORE. FOR THE PAST MONTH OUR AIRMEN HAVE BEEN FLYING OVER LA SPAZIA EVERY DAY AND PHOTOGRAPHING THE FLEET TO MAKE SURE IT WAS STILL IN HARBOR. IT IS NICE TO SEE THEM WHEN THEY AREN'T SHOOTING AT YOU. THE BRITISH BATTLESHIP WARSPITE CHALLENGED US WITH LIGHT SIGNALS WHEREUPON BALLARD SIGNALLED ME TO PULL THE TRIGGER OF THE VERY PISTOL IN THE TOP OF THE CABIN AND SHOOT OFF OUR IDENTIFICATION FLARES.

THE PHOTOGRAPHERS SNAPPED THEIR PICTURES AND TERRETT OPENED UP THE ENGINES OF THE B-25. IT WAS MY FIRST RIDE IN THE TYPE OF PLANE AND IT CERTAINLY IS A BEAUTIFUL SHIP, STEADY, DEPENDABLE AND EASY TO

WE SAT DOWN ON THE AIRPORT AT 1:29 P.M., JUST ONE MINUTE AHEAD OF SCHEDULE, AND TAXIED OVER TO THE CONTROL TENT. AN RAF OFFICER WANTED ME TO SIGN IN FOR THE PLANE. BUT I TOLD HIM IT WASN'T MY AIRPLANE, I'D NEVER SEEN IT BEFORE AND HAD NO IDEA WHERE IT WAS GOING. THEN WE RAN OVER TO A ROYAL NAVY LIMOUSINE DRIVEN BY A BRITISH MARINE WITH A RED BAND AROUND HIS HAT.

WE GOT DOWN TO THE DOCKS AND ABOARD THE BRITISH DESTROYER HAMBLETON JUST BEFORE IT CAST OFF TO TAKE ADMIRAL SIR ANDREW BROWNE CUNNINGHAM AND GENERAL IKE TO SEE THE ITALIAN SHIPS.

THE GENERAL AND ADMIRAL HAD JUST COME FROM THE DAILY WAR COUNCIL OF THE ALLIED CHIEFS. APPARENTLY THE NEWS FROM ITALY WAS SATISFACTORY BECAUSE THEY WERE SMILING AS THEY WENT UP TO THE CROWDED COMPASS PLATFORM ON THE DESTROYER'S BRIDGE.

THE DESTROYER KICKED UP 25 KNOTS AS IT CHASED OUT OF THE HARBOR AND WITHIN A HALF HOUR WE WERE PASSING DOWN THE OUTSIDE COLUMN OF SHIPS.

WHEN HE NOTICED ME STANDING ON THE BRIDGE EISENHOWER SAID, "I THOUGHT YOU WERE UP IN AN AIRPLANE."

AT AN OPPORTUNE TIME HE CALLED BROWN AND MYSELF OVER AND INTRODUCED US TO CUNNINGHAM WHO HAD BEEN FIGHTING FOR THREE YEARS TO GET THE ITALIAN FLEET OUT OF PORT AND AT THIS MOMENT WAS REALIZING HIS AMBITION. WERE STRETCHED OUT BEFORE HIS EYES WAS A FORCE THAT, SUDDENLY ADDED TO OUR SIDE, ALTERED THE WHOLE GLOBAL BALANCE OF SEA POWER.

CUNNINGHAM POINTED OUT THE WARSPITE AND TOLD ME, "BE SURE AND PUT HER IN YOUR STORY BECAUSE SHE HAD A BIG PART IN BRINGING THIS ABOUT. SHE IS FLYING THE FLAG OF REAR ADMIRAL BISSET."

THEN HE CORRECTED HIMSELF, "NO, SHE IS WEARING THE FLAG OF ADMIRAL BISSET, THAT'S THE WAY WE SAY IT NOW."

REFERRING TO THE FACT THAT THE ITALIAN FLEET WAS MORE OF A POTENTIAL THREAT THAN A HARD HITTING ENEMY DURING THE THREE-YEAR BATTLE OF THE MEDITERRANEAN, CUNNINGHAM SEVERAL TIMES REPEATED THE EXPRESSION," AH, A FLEET IN BEING, YOU KNOW A FLEET IN BEING.

"APPARENTLY THAT IS A NAVAL AXIOM AND I WAS EXPECTED TO KNOW THE REST OF IT, WHICH I DID NOT. BUT IT MUST BE SOMETHING LIKE A FLEET IN BEING REQUIRES A FLEET IN WATCHING.

THE CAMOUFLAGE OF THE ITALIAN SHIPS WAS VERY MUCH LIKE THE BRITISH, BASICALLY DARK GREY WITH BLACK STREAKS. MANY OF THE DESIGNS OF THE RECENTLY PAINTED ITALIAN VESSELS WERE LONG TRIANGLES LIKE THE SPACES ON A BACKGAMMON BOARD. NONE OF THE CRUISERS HAD ANY PLANES ABOARD BUT THERE WERE TWO ON THE AFTER CATAPULOTS OF THE VITTORIO VENETO AND ONE ON THE ITALIA.

SEP 26 1943

THE ITALIAN BATTLESHIPS SEEMED LESS BROAD OF BEAM THAN THE WARSPITE AND VALIANT AND INDEED THEY ARE MANY KNOTS FASTER. THE WATER CURLED UP AROUND THEIR BOWS IN FLOWING WAVES. THE ITALIAN SHIPS, AS CUNNINGHAM SAID, ARE ABSOLUTELY FIRST CLASS AND MANY OF THE FEATURES OF OUR MODERN SHIPS HAVE BEEN ADOPTED FROM INNOVATIONS OF ITALIAN DESIGNERS.

ALTHOUGH OUR ARSENALS DO NOT TURN OUT SHELLS FOR THEIR BIG GUNS, WE CAN REPLACE THE SMALLER STUFF AND ACK ACK BATTERIES WITH OUR OWN CALIBERS.

EISENHOWER KEPT HIMSELF IN THE BACKGROUND. HE GAVE ME THE TEXT OF THE STATEMENT," THE ITALIAN BATTLEFLEET IS ANCHORED UNDER THE GUNS OF MALTA," AND EMPHASIZED," THATS NOT FROM HEADQUARTERS BUT FROM THE ADMIRAL. THIS IS HIS PARTY."

1943

30.24— 8825

I ASKED EISENHOWER IF HE HAD FORMALLY CONGRATULATED THE ADMIRAL."

THERE'S NO FORMALITY BETWEEN US," HE REPLIED.

"BUT HAVE YOU TOLD HIM IT WAS SWELL JOB?"

EISENHOWER LAUGHED. "HE KNOWS IT'S A SWELL JOB, WITHOUT MY TELLING HIM."

I WAS BEGINNING TO LOOK AND FEEL A LITTLE FOOLISH AS I INSISTED.

"FOR THE HISTORY BOOKS, GENERAL, DON'T YOU THINK IT WOULD BE A GOOD IDEA TO SEND HIM A MESSAGE OF CONGRATULATION?"

EISENHOWER AGREED AND DICTATED A TELEGRAM CONGRATULATING CUNNINGHAM ON HIS VICTORY OVER THE ITALIAN FLEET IN THE MEDITERRANEAN. THEN HE CHANGED THE WORDS "ITALIAN FLEET" TO "THE ENEMY," EXPLAINING THAT THE ITALIANS HAD FULLY KEPT THEIR PROMISES AND HE DID NOT WANT TO HURT THEIR FEELINGS.

THEN HE SAID, "OH, WHAT THE HELL! IT WAS THE ITALIAN FLEET. PUT THAT BACK IN."

SEP 26 1943

LATER I TOOK THE MESSAGE BACK TO HEADQUARTERS AND GAVE IT TO EISENHOWER'S AIDE TO SEND TO THE ADMIRAL.

THE BIG MOMENT IN THE REVIEW OF THE CAPTURED SHIPS CAME WHEN WE PASSED ASTERN OF THE ENTIRE FORMATION AFTER CUNNINGHAM HAD WARNED THE DESTROYER'S CAPTAIN, "DON'T TURN TOO SHARP NOW AND SCARE THEM."

THE THREE LONG LINES OF MIGHTY SHIPS STRETCHED OUT NEARLY TO THE HORIZON AND EISENHOWER WHISTLED AND SAID "THAT'S THE WAY YOU SEE THEM IN THE MOVIES."

A SIGNAL CORPS MOVIEMAN GOT A LAUGH FROM THE ADMIRAL BY REMARKING, "I DONT KNOW WHO IS RUNNING THIS SHIP BUT HE COULDN'T HAVE ARRANGED THIS SHOT BETTER."

AFTER THE REVIEW WE GOT BACK INTO PORT, FOUND OUR CAR AND DROVE BACK TO HEADQUARTERS WHERE WE HAD FURTHER LUCK.

THE GENERAL IN COMMAND OF PUBLIC RELATIONS WAS THERE AND HE PROMISED THAT OUR STORIES WOULD BE RUSHED THROUGH. WE TYPED UNTIL MIDNIGHT.

AND TO THINK THAT YOU GET PAID FOR A JOB LIKE THIS.

SEP 26 1943

(ADVANCE) LONDON, SEPT. 24-(AP)-AS A RESULT OF CONFERENCES UNDER WAY IN LONDON RECENTLY, ANGLO-AMERICAN-RUSSIAN RELATIONS HAVE BEEN PUT ON A FRANKER, FIRMER, MORE REALISTIC BASIS IN PREPARATION FOR THE APPROACHING TRIPARTITE CONFERENCE, BUT NEITHER THE TIME, THE PLACE, THE AGENDA NOR AMERICAN REPRESENTATION FOR THE CONFERENCE HAVE BEEN YET FULLY DECIDED.

WITH VITAL POSTWAR PROBLEMS COMING TO A HEAD AND DEMANDING POSITIVE DECISIONS, REPRESENTATIVES OF THE THREE COUNTRIES HAVE BEEN "TALKING COLD TURKEY" TO EACH OTHER, AS DEMONSTRATED BY FOREIGN SECRETARY ANTHONY EDEN'S FRANK, BLUNT SPEECH TO COMMONS AND PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL'S TWO RECENT FIRM DECLARATIONS THAT THE UNITED STATES AND BRITAIN WILL NOT BE STAMPEDED INTO A WESTERN FRONT.

THAT THIS POLICY OF FRANKNESS HAS DRAWN A FAVORABLE RESPONSE FROM THE KREMLIN IS SUGGESTED BY REPORTS FROM THE UNITED STATES THAT

1943

CHURCHILL AND PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT SENT THEIR WESTERN FRONT PLANS TO PREMIER STALIN AND OBTAINED HIS ENDORSEMENT.

THESE REPORTS HAVE NOT BEEN CONFIRMED OFFICIALLY--BUT THEY PASSED THROUGH BOTH BRITISH AND AMERICAN CENSORSHIP.

THE FRANKNESS OF THE BRITISH RESPONSE TO RUSSIAN PROBBING REACHED ITS APOGEE IN IN EDEN'S COMMENT ON A RECENT SOVIET ARTICLE AVERRING THAT BRITISH WORKERS DID NOT PUT THEIR WHOLE HEARTS INTO THE WAR EFFORT UNTIL RUSSIA JOINED BATTLE.

SEP 26 1943

"IF YOU BELIEVE THAT YOU WILL BELIEVE ANYTHING," EDEN SAID, QUOTING A QUONDAM REMARK OF THE DUKE OF WELLINGTON.

"WE MUST BE FRANK WITH ONE ANOTHER," SAID THE FOREIGN MINISTER, WHO IS THE FIRST OF THREE REPRESENTATIVES SO FAR PUBLICLY DESIGNATED FOR TTHE CONFERENCE.

HIS STATEMENT IS CHARACTERISTIC OF AN ATTITUDE WHICH MANY OBSERVERS HAVE NOTED DEVELOPING IN BRITAIN. THIS IS THAT THE BRITISH ARE PERFECTLY WILLING, AS EDEN SAID, TO COLLABORATE IN FULL FRIENDSHIP WITH THE RUSSIANS BUT WILL NOT BE CONTINUALLY BADGERED AND BELITTLED BY RUSSIAN PROPAGANDA.

GROWING BRITISH-AMERICAN RESPECT FOR THEIR OWN MILITARY ACCOMPLISHMENTS--PARTICULARLY THE SINGULAR DEFEAT OF ITALY--IN COMPARISON WITH RUSSIA'S ADMITTEDLY MAGNIFICENT SUCCESS, HAS CONTRIBUTED TO THIS TOUGHMINDEDNESS.

THE BRITISH AND AMERICANS VERY POSITIVELY FEEL THAT THE ATTACK IN SOUTHERN EUROPE AND THE THREAT IN THE WEST HAVE MADE A SUBSTANTIAL CONTRIBUTION TO GERMAN WITHDRAWAL IN THE EAST AND THEY ARE TELLING THE RUSSIANS SO. THOSE IN LONDON WHO KNOW THE REALISTIC MINDS OF THE RUSSIANS BELIEVE THIS SORT OF PLAIN TALK IS RECEIVED IN GOOD SPIRIT RATHER THAN OTHERWISE.

POSTWAR PROBLEMS WHICH IT IS BELIEVED WILL FORM THE CORE OF THE AGENDA FOR THE FORTHCOMING CONFERENCE ARE BEING APPROACHED IN THE SAME INCISIVE MANNER. EDEN MADE IT VERY PLAIN IN HIS EARLIER REMARKS IN COMMONS YESTERDAY THAT THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT DEPENDED ON RUSSIA NOT TO STEP OUTSIDE THE FRAMEWORK OF THE TRIPARTITE TO MAKE TWO-WAY AGREEMENTS WITH LESSER EUROPEAN PARTNERS IN THE ANTI-NAZI ALLIANCE. CZECHOSLOVAKIA WAS A CASE IN POINT.

SETTLEMENT OF EUROPEAN ECONOMIC, POLITICAL AND TERRITORIAL PROBLEMS ON A CONTINENT-WIDE BASIS APPEARS TO BE THE DESIRE OF ALL PARTIES, BUT THERE ARE DIFFICULTIES WHICH MIGHT REQUIRE THEM TO BE DEALT WITH ON A REGIONAL BASIS.

THESE DIFFICULTIES HAVE DELAYED A WRITTEN AGENDA FOR THE TRIPARTITE CONFERENCE, WHICH THE RUSSIANS INSIST UPON. ONE OF THE DIFFICULTIES IS BELIEVED TO BE A DIVERGENCE OF VIEWS, PARTICULARLY BETWEEN RUSSIA AND THE UNITED STATES, AS TO WHETHER THIS IS THE TIME TO DISCUSS THE SOVIETS' TERRITORIAL CLAIMS, ESPECIALLY IN POLAND AND THE BALTIC.

AN APPROACH HAS BEEN MADE TO SUCH DIFFICULTIES BY THE CREATION OF A MEDITERRANEAN COMMISSIOON WHICH STALIN PROPOSED. THE RUSSIANS ARE BEING GIVEN REPRESENTATION ON THE COMMISSION IN RECOGNITION OF THEIR INTERESTS IN THE MEDITERRANEAN--PARTICULARLY IN THE BALKANS AND THE BLACK SEA--DESPITE THE FACT THAT THEY HAVE MADE NO DIRECT CONTRIBUTION TO ITS RECONQUEST THUS FAR.

THE MEDITERRANEAN COMMISSION REPRESENTS THE FIRST UNITED EFFORT OF THE THREE POWERS TO DEAL WITH EUROPEAN SETTLEMENT.

ONLY LIGHT GERMAN FORCES HAVE BEEN HOLDING THE ADRIATIC COAST IN THE VICINITY OF BARI. THE RENEWED EIGHTH ARMY ADVANCE HAS SWEPT THE ENEMY BACK UPON FOGGIA WITH EXTREMELY FEW BRITISH CASUALTIES. IGNORE THIS

FOGGIA'S VITAL AIR BASE HAS NOT BEEN USED FOR SOMETIME BY THE GERMAN AIR FORCE AND THERE IS NOT A SIGN OF ENEMY AIRCRAFT IN THE SKY IN THIS AREA TODAY.

THE ARMORED CAR CAUGHT THE GERMAN TROOP TRUCK LAST NIGHT NEAR ANDRIA RIDDLING IT WITH MACHINEGUN FIRE AND ABOUT A SCORE OF GERMANS FLED INTO THE DARKNESS BUT TWO BODIES WERE LEFT BEHIND.

THE DETACHMENT APPARENTLY BELONGED TO A PARATROOP FORCE THAT FOUGHT THE BRITISH SO FANATICALLY LAST MONTH IN FRONT OF CATANIA, SICILY.

IN THE 20 MILE ADVANCE TODAY ONLY ONE BRITISH ARMORED CAR WAS KNOCKED OUT BY ENEMY GUNS.

THE ITALIAN SHORE OF THE ADRIATIC IS A GIANT FRUIT GARDEN BORDERED BY A WIND-RIPPLED SEA ON WHICH FLEETS OF ORANGE-SAILED FISHING BOATS MOVE GRACEFULLY LIKE THE NEWPORT REGATTA.

TOWN SUCH AS BARLETTA, MOLFETTA, BISCEGLIE, TRANI AND GIOVINAZZO ARE UNHARMED BY THE WAR ALTHOUGH THE METROPOLIS OF BARI WAS SERIOUSLY INCONVENIENCED BY THE GERMAN'S DESTRUCTION OF THE WATER SUPPLY.

BERLIN REPORTS SOVIET FORCES CROSSING DNIEPER

SEP 26 1943

Many Germans Drowned, Hundreds Slain on Battlefield.

NAZI SUPPLIES SEIZED

Trainloads of Food, War Goods Captured Intact by Mobile Columns.

GATES TO WEST OPEN

Fall of Smolensk Clears Path Toward Old Polish Border.

LONDON, Monday, Sept. 27 — (AP) The Red army hurled defeated German troops to their death in the swift-flowing Dnieper yesterday, and smashed forward to the eastern bank of the river opposite Kiev's beckoning domes, Moscow announced early today.

Berlin officially declared that some Russian units already had crossed the 1,400-foot wide river, presumably to begin the encirclement of the glittering Ukraine capital, and a Moscow report quoted by Reuters said:

"There can be no doubt that detachments of Hitlerite plunderers already are fleeing from Kiev like rats from a sinking ship."

The Russians swept up more than 825 more villages on all fronts a bulletin said.

Near Kremenchug, southeast of Kiev, the Soviet communique said "Out units, after overcoming enemy resistance, threw the remnants of Germans into the Dnieper."

Many Nazis Drowned

"More than 600 enemy dead remained on the field of action and a great number were drowned in the river."

The Russians said they killed 800 Germans trying to stem their plunge toward Kiev, battering down strong enemy counter-attacks launched at Brovari, 10 miles to the east.

Near Dnepropetrovsk on the Dnieper's bend the Russians also reached the river, the bulletin said, killing 1,000 Germans in fierce hand-to-hand struggle.

Overrunning another section of the river below Pereyaslavl, 70 miles southeast of Kiev, the Russians said one Soviet formation "smashed an enemy group and pinned its remnants to the river." Two hundred Germans threw down their guns and surrendered there, the bulletin said.

Entering White Russia for the first time since their retreat two years ago, the Russians captured Khomtinsk, 75 miles west of Bryansk. Farther south they seized Novozybkov, a rail junction, and pushed on to take Zlinka, only 27 miles from Gomel in southern White Russia.

Reds Close on Rail Line

Another Soviet column pushing north from Chernigov entered Repki, 44 miles south of Gomel, closing in fast on the anchor of the last north-south railway left to the Germans in that part of western Russia.

The Russian communique was filled with such phrases as "decisive attacks," "routed enemy," and "hurried retreat" in describing the action flaming along the huge front.

Entire railway trains stocked with food and military equipment were captured by the mobile Russian columns in their relentless pursuit of the enemy, and the communique said more than 5,000 Germans were slain during the day.

Berlin's communique telling of a Russian crossing at undisclosed river points said the Red army units had been repulsed, but did not say they had been hurled back to the eastern bank.

The Moscow communique, recorded by the Soviet monitor, merely announced the Russians had broken through to the river near Kiev, Kremenchug, and Dnepropetrovsk, all key areas along a 250-mile stretch of the river.

Between Kiev and fallen Smolensk the Russians said their troops, striking 26 miles west of the Smolensk-Roslavl railway, had captured Monastirshchina, on the edge of White Russia.

This column was aimed toward Mogilev on the Gomel-Orsha-Vitebsk railway—last north-south line between the Russians and the old Polish border barely 100 miles beyond the Soviet vanguard.

Gates to West Open

"The gates to the west are open," declared Pravda, Soviet newspaper, in saluting the fall of Smolensk.

Novozybkov, rail junction only 40 miles from Gomel, fell to the Red army, the communique said.

Russian troops were reported only 25 miles from Vitebsk, in upper White Russia, in a smash paralleling the drive beyond Smolensk to the southeast. The Kaplya river above Vitebsk already had been reached by Soviet units, and repercussions were expected on the enemy's positions near Leningrad in the north.

One German broadcast recorded by the Associated Press said Russian parachute troops were dropping behind Axis positions and it was obvious the entire Dnieper river line was imperilled by the crushing Soviet offensive, which began July 12 and has already regained more than 120,000 square miles of territory.

The Dnieper is the last big natural defense barrier before the Polish border, and Moscow dispatches said the Red army was making sensational progress from Smolensk to the Zaporozhe area, on the river's bend in the south.

Several Crossings Likely

Russian troops now were in a position to force the Dnieper at several points in an effort to oust the Germans from the doomed city of Kiev, high on the bluffs of the western bank, and also to turn southward and envelop huge German armies in the river's elbow to the southeast.

The situation by sectors as disclosed by Moscow:

Vitebsk—A six-mile advance swept through the Smolensk district center of Kaplya and more than 200 other localities in a wheeling movement on the edge of White Russia northwest of Smolensk.

Mogilev—The troops that took Monastirschchina still were 55 miles from Mogilev. Another column farther south took Giankovka, 12 miles west of fallen Roslavl. A total of 250 villages were overrun in both areas.

300 Towns Seized

Gomel—A Red army column sweeping west of Bryansk advanced up to 11 miles and captured more than 300 towns and villages including Novozybkov. This group was only 12 miles from the border of White Russia, which adjoins Poland.

Kiev—The Russians now were within artillery range of the third largest Soviet city and ancient capital of Russia which has been in German hands for more than two years. Berlin has reported several Soviet attempts to cross the Dnieper above and below Kiev during the last few days.

Kremenchug—The fall of this eastern bank city 160 miles southeast of Kiev is expected soon. Soviet units already apparently were encircling it after reaching the Dnieper nearby.

Dnepropetrovsk—The Russians already were within sight and artillery range of this iron and steel center whose maze of chimneys and factories resembles America's Pittsburgh. It lies on the west bank of the Dnieper at the top of the river bend. The ruin of the $110,000,000 American-built dam and hydroelectric plant wrecked by the Soviets during their 1941 retreat is between Dnepropetrovsk and Zaporozhe, 40 miles to the south.

Kuban—Soviet troops captured four more villages in the steady ousting of the remaining German units clinging to a narrow foothold in the northwest Caucasus opposite the Crimea.

AMERICAN TANKS SMASH 30 MILES NORTH OF SALERNO

Allies Register Gains Across Entire Line in Italy.

BRITISH NEAR FOGGIA

Algiers Radio Reports French Have Occupied Port of Bastia.

WFS GALLAGHER

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 26—(AP) American tanks and infantry have smashed their way 30 miles deep into German defenses northeast of Salerno, front line dispatches disclosed tonight as the Allies registered important gains all the way across Italy from the Tyrrhenian sea to the Adriatic.

News of the American advance came only a few hours after the British Eighth army, sweeping 27 miles up the eastern coast in one of the biggest single day's thrusts of the Italian invasion, entered the Foggia plain within 25 miles of that city's elaborate string of air bases which headquarters said already had been abandoned by the Germans.

The 30-mile gain by American troops was made in six days against concentrated German machinegun, mortar and artillery defenses in the roughest kind of mountain country extending east and north of the Salerno beachhead.

Pierce Well Inland

The exact front line position of the American troops was not disclosed for security reasons but their new advance places them considerably inland from the coast.

American forces hold the eastern flank of the Fifth army line while British troops hold the western flank just north of Salerno where they are engaged in the most violent type of mountain fighting.

As the result of the American advance on the Fifth army's right wing and the British Eighth army's entrance into the Foggia plain on the heels of retreating Germans, the Allied line now runs directly across Italy from a point above Salerno northeast to the Adriatic at a point just above the Ofanto river. Thus, hundreds of square miles of southern Italy now are in American and British hands.

The day was one of the most successful since the Alies started the invasion of Italy, with outstanding gains reported from every sector of the fighting fronts.

Allies Hold Initiative

"The initiative is fully in our hands," said a military spokesman at Allied headquarters, "and the Germans are being driven from mountain positions in most difficult terrain just as they were driven from the Salerno beaches."

The French high command threw the dreaded Moroccan Goums, who terrorized German and Italian troops in Tunisia, into the battle of Corsica which mounted in intensity with the French announcing the capture of Oletta, a town less than seven miles southwest of Bastia, only remaining German stronghold in the northeast sector of the island.

French forces, who also captured two other Corsican towns, were driving on Bastia from every side while the Germans tried frantically to get out by sea and air in the face of the Allies' tight blockade.

(The United Nations radio at Algiers said in a broadcast recorded in London by the Associated Press that Bastia had been occupied by French troops.)

Although British forces encountered little opposition in their lightning thrust up the Adriatic coast, Fifth army troops on the western side of the mainland met savage resistance in the third day of their northward drive toward Naples but pushed forward another mile and captured three villages.

(A Berlin broadcast of a dispatch from Naples by Guenter Weber said the adversaries were "interlocked in embittered battle hardly 10 kilometers—less than seven miles—south of Naples. The latest captured position announced by Allied headquarters, however, was 22 miles away.)

At the same time, American Flying Fortresses made a 1,400-mile round trip deep into enemy territory to blast rail installations leading to the Brenner pass at Bolzano, just 30 miles south of the pass, and carry out their first attack on Verona.

Key Rail Yards Blasted

Other Fortresses delivered their heaviest blow of the war on the vital rail yards at Bologna, focal point for traffic through the Brenner pass from Germany as well as from Yugoslavia and Hungary. Verona, in the Alps about 100 miles south of the upper Italian frontier, is where Benito Mussolini was reported to have set up headquarters for his Nazi-inspired "Republican Fascist" regime.

In spite of the stiff opposition by German forces clinging stubbornly to the hills around Naples, Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's Fifth ary troops captured Cava di Tirreni, Tirreni, seven miles northwest of Salerno, and the twin villages of Senerchia and Valva, 25 miles east of Salerno and 10 miles northeast of Campagna.

The towns of Spinazzola and Atella, inland from the east coast, fell to the advancing British, a headquarters communique announced.

"The Fifth army is fighting its way forward through difficult country and the Germans are being forced to give ground slowly," the bulletin from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters said.

A military spokesman said the Germans "are well dug in along the Salerno front in the mountains and it is a question of going forward and wiping out one machine-gun nest after another." Eighth army troops, the spokesman said, are brushing aside Nazi rearguard actions.

1943

Mobile Battle Possible

It is not known where the Germans will try to make a stand, now that they have abandoned the big Foggia air base and its satellite fields. The Foggia plain, extending beyond the city for about 30 miles, is ideal for tank warfare and the Germans might try to make a mobile battle there.

If they pull out of the entire Foggia area they face the danger of being completely cut off in the Naples sector which they are defending so bitterly.

Capture of the Foggia air fields would give the Allies an air base from which their bombers could sweep every part of the Balkans and southern Germany.

The Foggia system consists of one main air field and 12 satellites. The main field is well equipped with night landing facilities and accommodations for a large force of planes.

The satellites vary in size from landing strips 100 by 1,000 yards to considerable fields measuring 450 by 1,700 yards. The larger fields can accommodate up to three squadrons at a time. Some of the fields have dirt runways but it would not be a difficult task to lengthen them for heavy bombardment groups and turn them into all-weather fields with iron matting or concrete.

Bombing Range Widened

Northwest African Air force officials have reported that all of Albania, Yugoslavia and Greece are within close bombing distance of Foggia, while Bulgaria, Rumania, Hungary and Austria are within easy striking distance for aircraft of longer range.

While the fortresses were smashing the rail system linking the northern Italian industrial area with Germany, medium and light bombers and fighters kept up an incessant hammering of bridges, highways and convoys behind the enemy lines with little sign of enemy airmen.

SOLDIERS RESENT ITALIANS AS ALLIES

Eighth Army Newspaper Says People Should Pay Price For Their Folly

By EDWARD KENNEDY

[Associated Press Correspondent]

Somewhere in Southern Italy, Sept. 21 (Delayed)—Italy's conception of her present status as an ally of the United States and Great Britain and virtually a member of the United Nations has met with considerable coldness on the part of American and British soldiers.

[Editor's Note: E. A. Montague, Manchester Guardian correspondent with the British Eighth Army, in a dispatch to The Sun September 13, reported the troops found the Italian attitude too complaisant and forgetful of their hostile action in the past.]

Although Washington and London appear inclined to make concessions in this respect to the government of Marshal Badoglio as an effective way of fighting the Germans, most soldiers are outspoken in asserting they do not want the Italians as their "allies."

Demands They "Pay Price"

This view was expressed in a remarkably outspoken article in the Eighth Army News, which has just begun publishing a "mainland edition" in Italy.

The Eighth Army News demanded that the Italians not be treated as Allies, but be made "to pay the price of their folly."

The editorial followed the publication of greetings from Premier Badoglio to the Eighth Army. In this message Badoglio said: "To the commander, officers and troops of the Eighth Army I send greetings. In the common struggle which awaits us, Italian soldiers will march side by side with British comrades against the German oppressor for the liberation of Italian soil and for final victory."

The Eighth Army News, replying to this, said that the men of this army were entitled to express their own views on this subject.

Quibble Over Exchange

"Italy surrendered unconditionally. Bagdoglio tells us why Italy gave in," the paper said.

"What do we find now? The Italians are our Allies. They therefore claim to exercise independence in internal affairs. A soldier who wishes to change his British occupation money finds it hard, if not impossible, to do so. The Italians are quibbling about the rate of 400 lire to the pound sterling.

"Before Italy was our ally, the army could sequestrate what it wanted in cars, typewriters, printing presses or paper. Now that Italy is our ally, we have to be very careful and in some cases pay for these things.

To Escape Retribution

"Many Italians in fact are under the impression that because they say, 'now we are your allies,' they are going to spare their country the retribution which a just victory normally demands of a defeated enemy and which a defeated enemy expects to make.

"With all due sympathy for Italian sufferings under their self-imposed German friends, we should get their minds straight on this.

"The Italians who sincerely cheer our troops today when they enter a new city also cheered Mussolini.

"Now they find they backed the wrong horse.

War Prolonged A Year

"It took Allied air attacks, the prowess of the Eighth Army and the indomitable spirit of the Royal Navy to make the Italians realize they were wrong. Mussolini, now they say, misled them. Because the Italians allowed themselves to be misled, the war has been prolonged at least a year and caused us untold bloodshed and wealth. We nearly lost the war in the Mediterranean.

"So let us stop this haggling about exchange rates and whether we can borrow this or use that. If it is necessary for beating Hitler, surely we should have it. We would then be doing Italy two good turns: Firstly, we would be getting the Germans out quicker than otherwise would be the case; secondly, by making the Italians pay the price of their folly in believing in Mussolini they will learn not to be foolish again."

Americans Feel Much the Same

Similar views are expressed by American officers and men, although the feeling in this regard is perhaps not quite so pronounced among the Americans as among the British. Many soldiers also assert that the showing made by the Italian army in Africa proves that it would be of little use in driving out the Germans. This scorn for the Italian Army, coupled with the fact that many of their comrades were killed by Italians, makes many soldiers bristle at the idea of having Italians as "allies."

Finding Italians in charge of civil administration and issuing decrees that indirectly affect the Allied forces also seems strange to soldiers who thought that they had defeated the Italians once and for all. Officers of the Allied Military Government, who came here to administer the country and since have found their organization sidetracked while Italian officials control civil power, are likewise resentful. At least one high AMG officer has resigned and others lounge about, saying: "Well, this is a pretty comic war. We came here to do a job but find we are not allowed to do it."

It is difficult here to find just who is responsible for permitting the Italians to retain such powers. Premier Badoglio has his own army with arms, including artillery. The Badoglio government is permitted the use of the Bari radio.

The Badoglio government seems so determined to force itself on America and Britain as an ally that it is considered possible it might declare war on the Germans by independent action as a means of getting into the winning camp and salvaging something in the post-war settlement.

Eager to Fight

It is known here that from the very start of the armistice negotiations Italy wanted not to surrender as an Axis partner, but to join up with the United Nations to fight the Germans.

The Italian delegates were told bluntly they were presumptuous if they thought the American and British governments, and especially the American and British people, were ready suddenly to forget and forgive and welcome the Italians into their side.

But Premier Badoglio seems still to be clinging to the idea of achieving just that.

Vittorio Emanuele and Staff Confer with Allies in Provisional Capital.

SEP 28 1943

By EDWARD KENNEDY

SOMEWHERE IN SOUTHERN ITALY, Sept. 20—(Delayed)—(AP)—King Vittorio Emanuele, Crown Prince Umberto, Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio and his government are in a southern Italian town which in effect is the provisional capital of Italy.

The King arrived here from Rome almost two weeks ago as the Germans were marching on the Eternal city.

British army detachments are in the town. A handful of American officers, including officers of the Allied Military Government of Occupied Territories (AMG), also are here.

It is here that details of the armistice settlements are being worked out and relations among the Americans, British and Italians appear almost cordial, although the suddenness of recent events have left some here rather bewildered.

The townsfolk know the King is here, but there is little excitement. The sovereign has not appeared much in public.

I was the first American newspaper correspondent to arrive in the new capital.

Italian Flag Flying

The Italian tricolor flies over the city and British and Italian standards fly over some buildings.

(In another dispatch from Taranto to Mr. Kennedy said the Italian flag flies over that city, Italian soldiers guard vital points and the Italian commander of the naval base and the prefect of the province appointed by Premier Badoglio —remain in office, charged with administering affairs under Allied occupation.)

Italian soldiers in town are armed and in regular formations, with Italian sentries at all vital points and Italian troops manning the city's defenses. As I passed through these defenses in a borrowed American Army truck, they scrutinized me, then waved me on without asking for credentials.

Many Italian soldiers have arrived at Brindisi, after having broken away from the Germans. Some Greeks who escaped also are now coming into southern Italy.

King Vittorio Emanuele, Crown Prince Umberto and other members of the Italian Royal family left Rome by air Sept. 8, three days before the Germans occupied the city, according to Umberto Cecchi, anti-Fascist journalist who slipped out of the capital after the occupation.

Cecchi said that the King left Marshal Pietro Caviglia in Rome as his representative.

Nazis Violated Pact

The journalist, who said he escaped by a suburban trolley which was still running, declared that the Nazis violated all their terms for the occupation of Rome as soon as they entered the city, occupying all the Italian ministries, seizing records and arresting many anti-Fascists and shooting some.

The terms under which Gen. Calvi di Bergolia's military government in Rome had agreed to the entry, Cecchi said, were that the Germans were to occupy only the radio station, post office, telephone and telegraph centers and the German embassy.

"When the people heard that the Germans were coming in they clamored for arms to fight them at the gates of the city," Cecchi related. "Some of them obtained arms and joined the Italian soldiers who were resisting. They shot several Germans as they entered Rome. The Germans returned the fire.

Anti-Fascists Slain

"Traitor (Marshal Emilio) de Bono rode around Rome with the Germans in a car with a machine gun on it. The Fascists directed the Germans to anti-Fascists, some of whom were machine-gunned.

"The German soldiers then looted shops and department stores. After they had taken the most valuable articles, they permitted the poor people to continue looting these places and had movie cameramen on hand in an apparent plan to blame the looting on the population."

Cecchi said he had been sent out of Rome by the Ministry of War to transmit orders to various Italian divisional commanders for continuing the fight against the Germans.

Berlin Fears New Thrusts at Italy And Allied Landings in Balkans

Outflanking Attack on Either Coast, Particularly Around Leghorn, Expected— Yugoslav Guerrilla Gains Stressed

SEP 28 1943

A. I. GOLDBERG

LONDON, Sept. 26 (AP)—Berlin is taking a grave view of the Allies' improved positions for new landings flanking German defenses in Italy from either the west or east coast, or an invasion of the Balkans from the Adriatic, dispatches from the German capital to neutral countries indicated today.

Spanish correspondents in Berlin said that strong concentrations of Allied air and naval forces in Sardinia and the Allied-held portion of Corsica had aroused fears that a landing in the Leghorn area was an early possibility. Air bases in Sardinia and Corsica could provide a protective umbrella far superior to the aerial protection that the American Fifth Army had at Salerno.

On the Germans' left flank, the Spanish dispatches said, the Allies' possession of such Balkan Adriatic ports as Spalato and Susak and the neutralization of Fiume and Trieste through Yugoslav guerrilla activity would afford protection for Allied landings on the Italian east coast or provide an open doorway to an invasion of the Balkans.

The Yugoslav Government's information bureau said today that guerrilla forces had beaten off new German attacks on Spalato, and still held the greater part of Susak. All German efforts to organize Yugoslav defenses against Allied attacks have been paralyzed by partisan armies, it said.

Most of the fighting around Spalato and Susak has been credited to the People's Liberation Army, but a Swiss dispatch from Budapest said yesterday that the Yugoslav campaign was passing from the guerrilla stage to a full-scale military operation with a force of 180,000 armed men fighting under Allied command. Here is the Yugoslav situation at a glance, as summarized from the Yugoslav Government and neutral sources:

Slovenia—The Province of Ljubljana, formerly under Italian occupation, has been cleared of enemy forces, except for the capital itself. Great quantities of arms and ammunition acquired from the Italians have enabled Yugoslav forces there to thrust toward Idria, the site of Europe's largest quicksilver mines. Advanced groups of these forces have pushed into Trieste, where street fighting was reported.

Croatia—Fighting continues for the port of Susak, with Fiume, just across the Italian frontier, the next goal. Susak is the final station on the Zagreb-Adriatic rail line. Guerrilla forces also hold the Zara area, farther south, and are fighting along the communication lines to Banja Luka.

Dalmatia—Most of Spalato is still in Yugoslav hands, although bitter battles are raging about Sinj and Klis, which command the land approaches to the port. The main rail line into the interior is in guerrilla hands. Yugoslav forces also hold Metkovic, big Neretva River port.

Montenegro — Cattaro, an Adriat

...ic harbor large enough to anchor the entire British Mediterranean Fleet, remains in German hands, although near-by fighting has been reported and rail links with the interior have been cut.

Allied positions in the Middle East and landings on Aegean Islands and in the Dodecanese group have led to a German tightening of eastern Balkan defenses. Reports reaching Istanbul said that German troops were occupying Bulgaria in force and about 60,000 more had been rushed there.

Cairo dispatches said that Bulgarian forces occupying Greece had begun seizing livestock and agricultural produce, leaving Greek farmers virtually nothing.

Nazis Kill Two Italian Anti-Fascist Leaders

London, Sept. 26 (AP) — The Palermo radio said today that two Italian anti-Fascist leaders, Bruno Buozzi and Giovanni Roveda, had been killed by the Germans.

Roveda was vice-commissioner of the Federation of Industrial Workers. Buozzi was a prominent Italian Socialist and labor leader. He was arrested in Paris in May, 1941, and turned over to Italian police.

BLOWN 1000 FEET, ARMY FLIER UNHURT

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 26—(AP) Twenty-three year old Maj. J. C. Gunnison blew up a German ammunition dump so successfully that he went up with it and lived to tell the story.

Major Gunnison, whose home is at San Anselmo, Calif., and the American A-36 invader squadron he commands attacked a camouflaged German bivouac area near Capua, Italy, shooting up vehicles and artillery. Major Gunnison trained his machineguns on the ammunition dump.

"It went off like the Fourth of July and my plane seemed to shoot up about 1,000 feet in the air," he related. "I thought it was blown to pieces, but it still was flying when I came out of it."

He headed out over the sea, but an oil line was broken and the plane caught fire. The young major climbed over the side of the cockpit twice, but each time he wasn't suited with the angle of the plane and reentered to right it before he finally bailed out at 700 feet.

Before his chute opened the plane exploded above him. He was in the water only 30 minutes when his pistol shots attracted an Italian boat which landed him on the island of Ischia off Naples. He hitchhiked a ride to Capri and then to the mainland.

It was Major Gunnison's first mishap in 50 combat missions.

Guns That Failed In Mission Litter

Sicilian Train Restored to Service Four Hours After Allied Landing

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS in NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 26—(AP) The crack U. S. Army's 727th railway operating battalion which had steam up in a captured locomotive four hours after landing behind an assault wave at Licata in Sicily has been cited by Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., for exceptional speed and efficiency in operating Sicilian trains under fire.

The commendation, sent to Brig. Gen. Carl R. Gray, Jr., director general of the military railway service, said that "opening of rail lines and organization of Italian railroad personnel were made so rapidly that rail service was immediately available in the port of Palermo when it opened on July 28 and service was maintained from that port in spite of bombing attacks and sabotage."

The battalion, which previously was cited for extremely meritorious service in the Tunisian campaign, is composed largely of veteran railroaders from the Southern railway.

The battalion's reconnaissance party landed at Licata immediately after assault troops had seized the beachhead was led by two railroaders who already had been decorated with Soldier's medals for the North African exploit. They are Maj. Charles O. Butler of Lakeland, Fla., who went into the flaming wreckage of an ammunitnon train to direct salvage work, and Capt. Marvin L. Horton of Rocky Mount, N. C., whose locomotive dragged wreckage away from other cars.

Four hours after, the landing party made a pioneer run over parts of the railroads in Allied hands and twenty-four hours later full trains laden with vital supplies chugged into the Third division's forward positions, releasing truck transport for other uses.

Thereafter, constant operation was maintained, with the railroaders undergoing bombing, strafing and groundfire and even lifting mines because they could not wait for engineer mine disposal squads.

Sorrento Shore

With the United States Navy at Salerno Beach, Sept. 22 (Delayed) (AP)—Several huge 15-inch Italian shore guns which were intended to repel Allied invasion litter the shore of the Sorrento peninsula where they were knocked out by Allied naval artillery.

The guns, manned by Germans, were Vickers Armstrongs, given to the Italian Government by Britain during the World War and were sisters to the 15-inch batteries that held back General Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's Eighth Army at Catania, Siciliy, for so long.

"Frankie and Johnny," two big German mobile guns which move up and down the roads behind Salerno village lobbing 7-inch shells into the bay, continue to be annoying, however.

From their hinterland hideouts, "Frankie and Johnny," as they have been dubbed by United States navy gunners who carry out daily duels with them, represent the main Nazi resistance to the continuing flow of supplies.

U. S. Soldiers on Capri Barter Way to Luxury

Find Soap and Cigarettes Win Natives' Hearts

CAPRI, Italy, Sept. 23 (Delayed) (AP).—With a good supply of soap and cigarettes an American soldier or sailor can barter his way through Capri's best society and pass a leave in luxury at this Mediterranean beauty spot.

For two years, soap and tobacco have been rarer than tourists on this playground island. Nowadays When ships or boats put in at Capri's small harbor the men wander through the novelty-filled shops, which are doing a rushing business.

Caprians, joyfully anticipating a speedy return of the good old tourist days when the war ends, point out villas owned by Gracie Fields and Mrs. Harrison Williams and think it quite a joke that a British officer has taken over a villa which once belonged to Count Galeazzo Ciano, former Italian Foreign Minister.

Many villas are thrown open to the American visitors in a gay welcome to the "liberators," but there probably is none happier to see the Americans than Mrs. Theodore Catuogno and her daughter, Constance, of Philadelphia, the only American citizens residing on the island. They once came to Capri for a two-week visit, fell in love with the island and have been here six years.

Officer in Sicily Finds Bread-Hungry Royalty

Discovers Servant Taking His Own Loaf to Princess

WITH THE UNITED STATES NAVY AT AN ADVANCED MEDITERRANEAN BASE, Sept. 25 (Delayed) (AP).—Answering the question of whether bread-loving Sicilians are hungry is the story of the princess, her palace and the old family servant.

When the Navy arrived at this base they requisitioned the palace of the principessa, one of Sicily's old reigning families, for billeting. The palace drawing rooms, which have been converted into the Navy Officers' Club, required the help of servants, and the old family servant, whose only name is "Pompeii," was made top man.

Lieutenant William T. Hanley, U. S. N. R., a former New York banker now club secretary for the base, gave the servants small amounts of food to keep them up to snuff.

Today, after receiving a loaf of braed, Pompeii grabbed his hat and was making his way toward the iron gates when he was noticed by Hanley. He sheepishly explained he was taking his loaf to the princess.

Flushing Man's Dialect Gets Him Job in Italy

Ex-Butcher Flown In to Take Over A. M. G. Post

WITH THE ALLIED ARMIES IN ITALY, Sept. 20 (Delayed) (AP).—You could tell by Sergeant Rocco Rizzo's accent that he was from Brooklyn or near it and it turned out that he was from near it—from Flushing, L. I.

A butcher in civil life, Sergeant Rizzo, a six-footer with plenty of brawn was made a meat inspector in the Army, but was rushed to this theater of the war by plane and assigned to A. M. G. (Allied Military Government) because of his knowledge of Italian.

"My mother and father were born in southern Italy near Bari," he explains. "When I was small they used to talk Italian at home, but as my younger brothers were born we talked English and even my parents hardly ever talked Italian except to each other. All the Italian I know is what I can remember talking as a small child."

On arriving in southern Italy, Sergeant Rizzo found his Italian returning to him rapidly, and within a day or two he was getting along with the local population better than some professors of Italian in A. M. G.—for he found he was speaking not literary Italian but the dialect of the country

AP Moves Into Italy's Provisional Capital

Somewhere in Italy, Sept. 21 (AP) (Delayed)—The Associated Press has opened headquarters in this city which now to all purposes is the provisional capital, since it houses the government of Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio.

For reasons of security the city must be nameless.

The office is the first office reopened in Italy by any newspaper or news association whose Italian offices were closed by the war.

Raids Destroyer Off Rhodes

CAIRO, Sept. 26 (AP).—Royal Air Force Beaufighters attacked a destroyer aground off Cape Prasso on the island of Rhodes yesterday, scoring hits with cannon fire and starting fires, an Allied Middle East air communique said today. R. A. F. Hudson and Mitchell bombers raided the German airdrome at Kastelli (Hierapetra) on the island of Crete Friday night, causing fires. All aircraft returned safely.

17 GREEKS EXECUTED

CAIRO, Egypt, Sept. 26—(AP) Greek resistance to German occupation resulted in the execution of 17 Greeks at Larissa Sept. 1, and the burning of the village of Velestinos, Greek exiles reported today.

Reds to Use Egyptian Radio

CAIRO, Sept. 26 (AP).—The Soviet government has been granted permission to use radio transmitters of the Egyptian State Broadcasting System for the sending of Soviet news and propaganda in the Russian language, presumably for the benefit of the large colony of White (anti-Soviet) Russians in Egypt.

FORTRESSES POUND NAZIS' RHEIMS BASE

Day Raiders Meet No Enemy Fighter Opposition For First Time

[By the Associated Press]

London, Monday, Sept. 27—Flying Fortresses hammered a big Nazi airfield and repair base at Rheims, eighty miles northeast of Paris, by daylight yesterday to develop the Eighth Bomber Command's attacks against operational and repair centers in occupied France, it was announced today.

United States Thunderbolt pilots, making large-scale supporting sweeps throughout northern France, for the first time said they found absolutely no fighter opposition.

No American planes were lost.

Text Of Communique

A joint American-British communique said:

"It is announced by the Air Ministry and the headquarters of the European theater of operations of the United States Army that United States Eighth Air Force Flying Fortresses attacked the Champaigne airfield at Rheims Sunday.

"USAAF Thunderbolts and RAF, Dominion, and Allied Spitfires supported the heavy bombers.

"None of our aircraft is missing from the operations.

"Two RAF fighters are missing from an offensive patrol over France earlier in the day."

Crossed By Hundreds

Allied bombers and fighters had swept by the hundreds through the chilly sky over the Channel late yesterday to assault Nazi objectives in northern France in one of the greatest operations of the Allied air offensive.

To veteran coastal observers it was one of the most spectacular exhibitions of Allied air power yet seen.

While Allied air fleets gave the continent a brisk bomb-lashing in demonstration of the overwhelming aerial might achieved in three years, the British people, from King to commoner, paid tribute to the RAF's "few" who won the Battle of Britain.

Day Of Thanksgiving

For the Britons who were on the receiving end of the bombs in the battle of Britain three years ago this Sunday was a day of thanksgiving for their deliverance.

Leading the nation's observance, the King and Queen attended morning service at St. Paul's and during the afternoon stood outside Buckingham Palace and reviewed a parade of civil defense and air craft workers, anti-aircraft, RAF and Dominion air forces.

John G. Winant, United States Ambassador, and Mrs. Winant attended the services at the cathedral.

Baltimorean In Raid

London, Monday, Sept. 27 (AP)—On his return from the Flying Fortress raid on Rheims yesterday, Sergt. Harold Parsons, 22, of 3901 Gwynn Oak avenue, Baltimore, waist-gunner on the "Flak Happy," said "those bombs really rained a beautiful pattern."

BRITAIN ATTACKS ARGENTINE POLICY

Follows U. S. Lead In Criticism Of Foreign Program After Completing Trade Pact

[By the Associated Press]

London, Monday, Sept. 27—Britain followed the lead of the United States today in publicly attacking Argentina's foreign policy after completing a deal to purchase her exportable surplus eggs for two years.

A statement by the Foreign Office said it wished no "political significance" to be attached to the trade with Argentina. That country alone, the statement said, of all American nations, has not broken with the Axis, it has permitted Axis nationals to conspire against the United Nations and it has failed to give British interests and nationals "proper consideration and protection."

Recalls Hull's Letter

The statement recalled Secretary of State Hull's letter to Foreign Minister Segundo Storni on August 30 which led to an Argentine political crisis and the resignation of Storni.

Hull sharply rejected Storni's request for American lease-lend aid.

The British foreign office made its statement in conjunction with an announcement by the Food Ministry of the egg purchase agreement for the 1943-44 and 1944-45 seasons. A meat purchase agreement had been concluded earlier.

Criticism Reported

[Editor's Note—In a special dispatch from Buenos Aires yesterday, Herbert Clark, special correspondent of The Sun, reported that the lack of a statement from the British backing up United States criticism of Argentine foreign policy was keenly felt in pro-United Nations circles there. He implied that considerable political significance was being attributed by many to the British-Argentine trade relations.]

The Foreign Office statement said Britain wished to continue her friendship and commercial intercourse with Argentina but said it never understood why Argentina, alone of the western republics, failed to follow the recommendations of the Rio De Janeiro Conference of Foreign Ministers regarding the severance of relations with Axis powers.

"His Majesty's Government . . . hope that in the international sphere the Argentine Government will at an early date range herself wholeheartedly on the side of the freedom-loving nations," the statement said.

Reece Arrested

The British comment about Argentine failure to give British interests and nationals proper consideration and protection was believed to refer to the recent arrest of William Reece, president of the Northern Electric Light Company in Argentina who later was released. British-owned railways in Argentina also have asserted they will go bankrupt unless the Government authorizes higher rates and grants a more favorable exchange.

While remaining neutral, Argentina has sold practically all her available meat to Britain, thus creating a huge credit in London.

Applied Against Debt

The Argentine Government's recent decision to apply 30,000,000 pounds sterling ($120,000,000) of that credit against sterling foreign debt bonds kept Argentina's financial standing at its usual high.

Under the egg contract it was estimated Argentina will send 450,000,000 eggs to Britain this year—dried or in the shell—compared with about 250,000,000 dried eggs in 1942-3. The agreement was expected to stimulate the production of small as well as big producers in Argentina, where plenty of feed is available because of the lack of shipping. Much has even been burned as fuel.

SABOTAGE HINTED ON NAZI WARSHIPS

Tirpitz, Luetzow, Scharnhorst Reported Damaged by Crews in Norway.

LONDON, Monday, Sept. 27—(AP) Three German capital ships, the Tirpitz, Scharnhorst and Luetzow, are reported to have been sabotaged by their own crews in the Alten fjord of Norway following disclosure of the surrender of the Italian fleet, a Reuters dispatch from Stockholm said today.

The Tirpitz, completed in 1941, is a battleship of more than 40,000 tons mounting eight 15-inch guns. The Scharhornst, completed in 1939, is a 26,000-ton battleship mounting nine 11-inch guns. The Luetzow, completed in 1933, is the former pocket-battleship Duetschland with a displacement of 10,000 tons and carrying six 11-inch guns.

The Alten fjord is on the northern tip of Norway near the North cape and the Arctic ocean. It is near the the town of Hammerfest.

All three ships plus the pocket battleship Admiral Scheer were said by Norwegian sources in London to have taken part in the German naval attack against the garrison of Spitzbergen early this month.

Crews Rebellious

The Reuters account quoted an eyewitness. It added the witness was unable to determine the full extent of the damage. It said the crews were rebellious and disheartened.

Some London quarters said the Stockholm dispatch was creditable on the basis of unconfirmed rumors reaching Britain of disorders and outbreaks among German seamen who feared that Admiral Karl Doenitz, commander of the German Navy, was planning to use the fleet for a suicide venture against British men of war.

HITLER PROMISES NORWAY 'LIBERTY'

Offer Of Post-War Freedom Qualified In Familiar Nazi Pattern

[By the Associated Press]

London, Monday, Sept. 27—Adolph Hitler tried today to bolster enforced allegiance to him in Norway by promising that oppressed country "liberty and independence" after the war.

The German leader's statement, broadcast by DNB on the Berlin radio and recorded by the Ministry of Information, made it clear, however, that the pattern of such freedom pledged out of expediency would be the familiar Nazi kind.

Read To Fuehrer Corps

Hitler's statement, DNB said, was read to the "Fuehrer Corps" of the Nasjonal Samling by Reich Commissioner Joseph Terboven in the presence of Maj. Vidkun Quisling, Norwegian Nazi leader.

The text of Hitler's statement:

"We are engaged in a life and death struggle against Bolshevism and its plutocratic helpmates. The price Anglo-American capitalism is paying to its Jewish allies in Moscow for the massed assault of Bolshevist machinemen against occidental culture and civilization is Europe. (MURE)

London, Sept. 26 (AP)—A provisional free German committee elected at a meeting of Germans here Saturday night is pledged to help "end Hitler's criminal war of conquest."

An appeal to the German army and the German people to oust the Nazis was drawn up. Its lines were similar to those of a manifesto issued recently by the National Committee of Free Germans formed in Moscow.

The committee is headed by P. R. Kuczynski, described as a statistician active in attempting to unite various democratic and progressive forces in Germany before Hitler came to power.

German Historians Defer Textbooks

London, Sept. 26 (AP)—Regardless of what Hitler may think or say, German historians have decided to wait for the facts.

This note of caution was observed in a Berlin radio announcement:

"It will not be possible to issue a definite textbook on history for German schools until the war is over."

Allied Convoy Mentioned By Churchill Reaches Port

Ships Were Under Attack by U-Boats in Atlantic

LONDON, Sept. 26 (AP).—The Allied convoy which Prime Minister Chrchill told the House of Commons last Tuesday was being attacked by U-boats even as he spoke has reached port, it was disclosed today.

The battle's outcome has not been announced by the Admiralty, and a Berlin assertion that twelve destroyers and nine merchant ships totaling 46,000 tons were sunk was viewed here as an exaggeration. The German announcement said the convoy was attacked while en route to America.

Churchill told the House that the Allies has not lost a ship to enemy submarines in the North Atlantic in the four months ended Sept. 18.

Beaverbrook Expected To Visit F. D. R. Soon

London, Monday, Sept. 27 (AP)—The London Daily Herald said today that Lord Beaverbrook, who became Lord Privy Seal in the British Cabinet Friday, might go to Washington soon to confer with President Roosevelt and other Government officials as a special representative of Prime Minister Churchill.

From Washington, the Daily Herald said, Beaverbrook may go to Moscow to see Premier Stalin.

Death Of 5 Men Helped Further Secret Explosive

London, Sept. 26 (AP)—Five Britons, one of them a scientist working with the others to perfect a powerful new explosive, were killed in an arsenal shortly before the outbreak of the war, but their work, ending so tragically, helped to provide the Allies with RDX, a secret explosive more deadly than TNT.

They were killed when a fifteen-inch shell being filled with fifty pounds of RDX exploded, the Ministry of Supply disclosed. The lives of these men, who took capital risks so that Britain might be spared, "were not wasted," the Ministry said.

The names, heretofore withheld for security reasons, included those of F. C. Lewis, the scientist, and Commander P. M. Long, admiralty ordnance assistant. The other men were a laboratory assistant and two factory hands.

RDX, which stands for Research Department Formula X, is being produced now in ever larger quantities in the United States and Canada. Scientists here tried for sixteen years to manufacture the super explosive, succeeding only in 1939.

DUCE CONSCRIPTS LABOR

LONDON, Sept. 26—(AP) A Rome dispatch broadcast by the German radio said today Mussolini's Fascist government had extended compulsory labor service to the 18-33 age classes.

CORRESPONDENT DIES

LONDON, Sept. 26—(AP) Sidney J. Williams, 47, British newspaperman who had been connected with the United Press bureau in London for the last 18 years, collapsed of a heart ailment in a subway station Saturday night and died in an ambulance enroute to a hospital. He is survived by his widow and three children.

STETTINIUS CHOICE LAUDED IN LONDON

LONDON, Monday, Sept. 27—(AP) The Times of London declared in an editorial today that the resignation of Sumner Welles as undersecretary of state would be a "great loss" to the U. S. State department but said the choice of Edward R. Stettinius as his successor could hardly be improved upon.

While serving as Lease-Lend administrator, Mr. Stettinius "has business capacity he possess qualities of political imagination, insight and tact in handling delicate situations which will prove invaluable in his new position," the Times said.

DANES FELICITATE KING ON HIS 73RD BIRTHDAY

LONDON, Sept. 26—(AP) The Spanish radio said today that King Christian X of Denmark, celebrating his 73rd birthday, received thousands of congratulatory letters and telegrams from his people.

Denmark has been under German military government since the Danish army revolted and the Navy scuttled most of its fleet last month.

(A Danish domestic broadcast recorded by the U. S. Foreign Broadcast Intelligence service said a 7 p. m. curfew and been clamped on public places as a result of sabotage of numerous sections of the Jutland railroad Saturday night.

(Another told of the destruction of an oil refinery building at Aalborg, where fire broke out when "oil boiled over by accident.")

Cripps Says Allied Victory Seems Certain

Newcastle, England, Sept. 26 (AP). Sir Stafford Cripps said today that "victory now seems certain. It is only time and the cost of human life that still are in doubt."

In a speech at this coal center the Minister of Aircraft Production declared the length of the war and the number of casualties depended largely on the efforts of British and American workers.

"Sustained and increased effort may bring us an earlier victory . . ." he said. "Slackening off will prolong the struggle with ever-increasing suffering throughout the world."

Record-Breaking Over, Haegg, 'Too Old,' Says

By The Associated Press.

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 26—Sweden's running ambassador of good will, Gundar Haegg, who returned home today by plane, expressed the belief that his world record-breaking days are over.

Haegg, who last raced on Aug. 5 in New York, does not plan to run again this season. Had he returned to Sweden earlier this month as planned, he might have met Arne Andersson, who set an unofficial world record for the mile, 4:02.6, while Haegg was on his American tour.

"I hope to run some next year if I am not too old," the Gavle fireman told interviewers.

Croat Sailors Desert Axis

Madrid, Sept. 26 (AP)—Hundreds of Croat sailors, whom the Germans mobilized and sent to the Black Sea nearly a year ago and then brought back to man Adriatic gunboats and speed launches, have deserted and joined guerrilla forces at Split, it was reported here today. The disruption may cause the Germans to abandon plans for a Croat navy in the Adriatic.

French Print Anti-Nazi Plea

Royalists Paper Publicizes Call to Legion to Help Underground

MADRID, Sept. 26 (AP).—The French Royalist newspaper "L'Action Francaise," has critically publicized an appeal by Francois Valentin, former national director of the Vichy government's French Legion, calling upon Legion members to join anti-collaborationist forces.

Valentin had asked the Legion members to help the underground and, when possible, to join the forces of the French Committee of National Liberation, the publication disclosed.

Classed as collaborationist and anti-Republican, "L'Action Francaise" occasionally breaks into violent criticism of any and all groups in France except the Germans themselves.

Gay Moscow Reopens Its Bolshoi Theater

MOSCOW, Sept. 26 (AP).—With Russian armies hourly chasing the Germans from Soviet soil, Moscow staged its most brilliant theatrical night of the war period at the reopening of the bomb-damaged Bolshoi Theater. The evening's offering was the Russian folk opera "Ivan Susanin," with music by Glinka.

The jammed house was resplendent with generals and soldiers on leave from the front and some civilian leaders. Premier Marshal Josef V. Stalin and many well known figures, however, were not present. The first box on the left-hand side of the house—which Stalin usually occupied—was empty.

Nazis Speeding Occupation of All of Bulgaria

SEP 26 1943

Move Into Aegean Area in Force, Seize Barracks for Major Battleground

ISTANBUL, Sept. 25 (Delayed) (AP).—Germany is moving swiftly to occupy all of Bulgaria in force and is preparing that kingdom as a major Balkan battleground, the first trustworthy news to seep through since the death of King Boris III, said today.

Gustav Beckerle, Nazi Minister, has become virtual gauleiter (district leader) and four additional German divisions, about 60,000 troops, have moved into position in southern Bulgaria facing the Aegean Sea, Turkey and the Black Sea, these reports said.

Bulgarian authorities have been requisitioning large buildings at Sofia and elsewhere, apparently to be used as barracks. New road signs in German have appeared at strategic places.

Attempts to boost the morale of Bulgarian forces also are under way, with the new Minister of War, General Russi Russev, circularizing Bulgarian officers with demands for prompt execution of Sofia's orders.

Beckerle was said to be conferring daily with Bogdan Filoff, former Premier and present member of the Regency, who is the guiding hand of Bulgarian policy. Filoff, the reports said, passes Beckerle's suggestions on to Premier Dobri Bojilov, who follows them slavishly.

Dissension between Queen Mother Ioanna, Boris's widow, and the Regency was said to have reached the point where Ioanna threatened to go into exile in Switzerland. Filoff has warned border guards to stop her if she attempts to flee, it was said.

Continued sabotage by the strongly pro-Russian Bulgarians was reported, their latest exploit being the destruction of railheads on the Danube, severing ferry service between Bulgaria and Rumania.

Dr. Pugh Tells At Cairo of His Tour of Camps

Finds American Soldiers Are 'Lot Different From Their Fathers in 1918

CAIRO, Sept. 26 (AP).—The Rev. Dr. William S. Pugh, who is visiting American troops in the Middle East in the course of a world tour of United States Army installations, said today he had found American soldiers "a lot different from their fathers in the first world war."

Carrying on the work of the late Methodist Bishop Adna W. Leonard, Dr. Pugh, the stated clerk of the Presbyterian Church in the United States, has already visited American troops in England, northwest Africa and Sicily.

Dr. Pugh, who was a chaplain in France during the World War, said the modern American soldier is more intelligent and "weighs matters better than his father; they don't like the job they are doing, but they are putting everything they have into it."

Modern soldiers, he said, "want virile religion that gets down to the reality of their time."

He said he was convinced there was no hatred for the enemy in their hearts, and he cited instances of friendly actions toward Italian prisoners. He acknowledged there was a different attitude toward the Germans.

Dr. Pugh mentioned his visit to Lieutenant General George S. Patton jr. in Sicily and said he had found the American general with a Bible on his desk.

He said he met the Cardinal of Sicily and thanked him for his work and interest in American soldiers. The cardinal replied: "They are good boys and I am glad to do it."

Dr. Pugh conferred with 400 chaplains in Africa and is going on to China and India next week. He is being accompanied by Colonel George F. Rixie, of Washington, deputy chief of chaplains in the United States Army.

He preached three times today, twice to American wounded and once in the American church at Cairo.

Japanese Stress Need to Watch for British Drive

NEW DELHI, India, Sept. 26 (AP)—Mitchell medium bombers of the Tenth United States Army Air Force attacked Japanese barracks in the Maymyo area east of Mandalay in Burma yesterday, a communiqué said today. Four buildings were destroyed and two others were heavily damaged.

Medium bombers also attacked Japanese shipping in a sweep of the upper Irrawaddy River at Katha on Friday. A direct hit was scored on one large ship and several near misses were scored on four others. Considerable trackage and rolling stock was destroyed by another formation in a raid on Naba Junction, northwest of Katha.

One plane was lost in the operations.

Royal Air Force Beaufighters damaged five locomotives and other railway targets in sweeps yesterday over Japanese installations in Burma near Maymyo and Sagaing. A large steamer and more than thirty-five sampans were damaged on the Irrawaddy River north of Prome. All the British aircraft returned.

U. S. Bombers Destroy Four Buildings—RAF Attacks Railway Targets

New Delhi, Sept. 26—American bombers destroyed four buildings in an attack on Japanese barracks in the Maymyo area east of Mandalay in Burma yesterday, while Royal Air Force Beaufighters damaged five locomotives and other rail targets near Maymyo and Sagaing.

An American communique said that medium bombers also attacked Japanese shipping on the upper Irrawaddy river at Katha Friday, scoring a direct hit on one large ship. Another formation destroyed considerable trackage and rolling stock on the Naba junction northwest of Katha.

British planes also damaged a large steamer and more than thirty-five sampans in the Irrawaddy river north of Prome yesterday.

U. S. Flier Missing in Burma

NEW DELHI, India, Sept. 26 (AP)—Capt. Don P. Webster, 25, of Cleburne, Tex., has been missing since he took off Sept. 10 on a photographic mission over Burma. "That's all we know about Webster," said Col. Jerald McCoy of Denver, United States Tenth Air Force photographic officer. "He was one of the finest pilots and officers we ever had."

Stiffened Jap Resistance Slows New Guinea Drive

SEP 26 1943

Encirclement from Rear Threatens Enemy at Finschhafen.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Monday, Sept. 27—(AP) A frontal attack on Finschhafen by tough Australian jungle fighters has slowed before stiffening enemy resistance, but the Japanese desperately defending that east New Guinea coastal base today found themselves simultaneously confronted by the threat of encirclement from the rear.

The Australians, advancing from their landing point to the north, encountered enemy defenses in strength immediately after crossing the wide and swift-flowing Bumi river. The scene of the fighting was on the very outskirts of Finschhafen itself and less than three-quarters of a mile from the heart of the Japanese base.

This, a headquarters spokesman said, has caused a necessarily more cautious approach and brought the Australians up against a system of trenches and strongly constructed earthworks.

Slowdown Voluntary

The spokesman emphasized that the slow-down was voluntary and was ordered to enable the Australians to hit the Japanese positions in force with full assurance of dislodging the enemy.

[illegible] communique disclosed that a second Allied force, moving east and north from captured Lae, some 50 miles below Finschhafen, already has reached the vicinity of Hanisch harbor, half-way to the beleaguered enemy base.

Still a third element, composed of units from the original Finschhafen assault force which landed above the settlement Sept. 22, was reported to have moved west Sept. 24, and to have approached Sattelberg, six miles inland from Dampier strait and ten miles from Finschhafen.

Planes Strafe Villages

The following day Allied planes supporting the ground troops bombed and strafed villages south of the Bumi river. The enemy retaliated with an attack by nine bombers along the Song river, seven miles north of Finschhafen and directly north of the Allied-held Finschhafen airfield. Little damage was caused, the communique said.

Inland and to the west, Allied war planes dropped 46 tons of bombs on enemy camps in the valley of the Ramu river, which empties into the Bismarck sea north of New Guinea in the vicinity of Wewak.

Another bomb load of 29 tons, plastered roads and bridges in the Bogadjim area, 20 miles south of Madang, further hampering the enemy's overland retreat to the north shore of the island.

On the Solomon island warfront to the east, the sharp exchange of air blows was resumed after a three-day intermission. Over Buin, one of the enemy's principal airbases in the Bougainville zone, 60 Japanese fighters rose to intercept an American attack, and nine of them were shot down, General MacArthur's communique said.

Allies Continue Mopping Up

In the central Solomons, where American forces are drawing an ever tighter knot around the enemy's last important position of Vila, Kolombangara island, the cleanup of Arundel island, two miles away, was continued.

A total of 345 Japanese dead have been counted there, the communique said.

In the Bogajim attack on the New Guinea front, described by the communique as directed against "the enemy's main line of communication to the Ramu valley," fighter bombers joined with four-engined warplanes to pit the narrow mountain trail with bomb craters and block it with landslides.

A column of trucks found crawling along the track was machine-gunned almost from ground level.

The assault on the Ramu valley itself was centered on the upper reaches of the river near Marawasa divide which separates its headwaters from those of the Markham river, flowing south and east to Debouch at Lae.

Many Fires Started

Besides the weight of bombs dropped on the enemy's defenses in the area, 84,000 rounds of machine-gun fire were directed against Japanese camps and supply lines through the mountainous jungle. Many fires were started, the communique said.

Cape Gloucester airdrome and other Japanese-held positions on the western tip of New Britain directly opposite Finschhafen came in for fresh aerial attack, as did Selaru, southernmost of the Tanimbar islands to the west of New Guinea.

Avenger torpedo planes and Dauntless dive-bombers with fighter escort made the raid against Buin in the Solomons, "scoring hits on gun positions, destroying buildings and starting fires" in the vicinity of the Kahili airdrome, the communique reported. Two American fighter planes were lost in the ensuing battle with the Japanese interceptors.

At nearby Faisi, other American fighters were said to have destroyed a small enemy freighter with machinegun fire.

U. S. Diplomacy Tightened As Tri-Partite Parley Nears

Naming of Stettinius Regarded as Bold Move to Bolster Position.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26 — (AP) Appointment of Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., as undersecretary of state is regarded here as a bold move by President Roosevelt to prepare American diplomacy for forthcoming tri-partite meetings with Britain and Russia.

The President, it is said, shows by this choice that he means to entrust most of the critical negotiations now developing to men of hard-headed business experience known as friendly to the Russians rather than to more professional diplomatists or to persons whose views toward Russia are based on ideological rather than realistic considerations.

The reports that Mr. Stettinius, who has been Lend-Lease administrator, and W. Averell Harriman, Lend-Lease expediter in London, will accompany Secretary Hull to Moscow next month for a session of the American-British-Russian foreign ministers appear entirely likely to be borne out by events.

Harriman Next Ambassador

Equally possible of fulfillment is the expectation that Mr. Harriman wil succeed Admiral William H. Standley as ambassador to Moscow. Admiral Standley returned to Washington this week, not to go back.

1943

Both Mr. Harriman and Mr. Stettinius may be described as committed to American self interest in international affairs and at the same time friendly in their attitude toward Russia. The vast amount of Lend-Lease material which they have been instrumental in getting to Russia already has given the Soviet government evidence of their cooperative attitude.

Thus, the selection of Mr. Stettinius and the expected assignment for Mr. Harriman seem designed to offset any ill effects that the resignation of Sumner Welles as undersecretary could conceivably have had on Russo-American relations. In some quarters, Mr. Welles had been endowed with a reputation for being virtually the only consequential friend of Russia in the State department. While officials have heatedly denied this, the President and Secretary Hull had been expected to furnish further active evidences of friendly intentions toward Russia.

Situation Critical

The situation is critical at this time because the foreign ministers' meeting next month is to be followed by a conference among Roosevelt, Churchill and Stalin.

The appointment of Mr. Stettinius, 43, a former chairman of the United States Steel corporation, was announced by the White House last night in a statement saying Mr. Welles had resigned, giving as his reason his wife's health.

For several weeks there have been reports that Mr. Welles would leave the State department because of a clash of temperament between him and Mr. Hull.

The choice of Mr. Stettinius brought approval from members of both parties in Congress, where he has become a familiar figure through his Lend-Lease operations.

The White House announcement disclosed also that Leo T. Crowley, 53, a veteran government administrator and business man, has been made chief of the Office of Foreign Economic Administration, including the Office of Economic Warfare which Mr. Crowley has headed for several months.

A further step bearing upon foreign operations was the assignment of former Governor Herbert H. Lehman of New York to be a special assistant to the President. Mr. Lehman will make arrangements for a United Nations relief conference in this country in November.

He has been chief of the Office of Foreign Relief and Rehabilitation Operations. That agency now goes to Mr. Crowley along with OEW and Lend-Lease. Mr. Lehman, meanwhile, is slated to head the international relief agency to be formed at the November meeting.

Not in State Department

Mr. Crowley, as far as the announcement indicated, does not have an official position within the State department, yet the President charged him with dovetailing the policies of his various economic agencies into the broad and controlling foreign policies established by the State department.

The total effect of the Presidential order, therefore, is to give the State department stronger control over foreign economic operations and at the same time to give foreign economic experts, Mr. Crowley and Mr. Stettinius, a powerful voice in the fashioning of foreign policy.

10 Nazi Planes Shot Down By Gun Crew in Convoy Attack

SEP 26 1943

Every Bomb Missed Vessel, So Sharp Was Anti-Aircraft Fire.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26 — (AP) Destruction of 10 enemy planes which attacked a convoy in the Mediterranean was disclosed today by the Navy in making public a letter of praise sent naval gunners from the entire crew of a merchant ship.

The letter, written by Ralph E. Byers, chief steward of the S.S. Anne Bradstreet, and signed by all hands, told of the attack by about 50 German dive bombers and torpedo bombers as the convoy steamed toward Gibraltar on Aug. 13.

"It was a surprise attack, and the planes came into the convoy low and fast, hedge-hopping over the horizon," wrote Mr. Byers, of St. Cloud, Minn.

"The Germans meant business," he continued. "In spite of the point blank fire from the convoy's anti-aircraft guns, they came in head-on a few feet above the water in what looked like a suicidal assault. And that's what it proved to be."

Exploded in Air

A huge four-motored Junkers 88 was the first victim. Roaring in at deck level, the plane banked to launch torpedoes. The momentary target was all the gunners needed. The craft seemed to fall apart in mid-air, burst into flames and crashed into the sea, wrote Mr. Byers.

Meantime, the forward gunners were peppering a Heinkel 111 which dived at a Liberty ship next to the Bradstreet. Barely clearing the mast, the plane loosed its bombs but so distracting was the concentrated fire, said the steward, that the missiles missed their target and the German craft plunged smoking into the water.

Meanwhile, Mr. Byers continued, a Dornier roared in through a wall of fire. As it approached white streaks of smoke streamed from the fuselage but the pilot didn't drop his bombs until he was close enough for the sweating gunners to see his goggles.

Incredibly to the steward, these bombs missed too and the smoking plane zoomed off so close to the water that the crew was certain it also was lost.

No Other Explanation

"There were other planes engaged by our gunners both in this attack and in one that immediately followed," wrote Mr. Byers, "so it is possible that they aided in downing some others. There can be no doubt that it was the concentrated firepower of the Bradstreet that distracted the enemy bombardiers, causing them in every instance to overshoot their mark. There is no other explanation for the incredibly poor marksmanship of the Germans, particularly as in two instances the planes were almost resting on the mastheads of the ships they were bombing.

"The 27 men and commanding officer who comprise the armed guard of the Bradstreet are all volunteers. They are, by and large, in their late 'teens or early twenties, and only one of them had ever been on the high seas before. This hectic engagement was their moment, the time for which they had waited. The score was no ships sunk, two damaged, 10 German planes shot down."

Tugwell Assails Lack of Policy For Puerto Rico

Blames Congress, Warns People Can't Be Kept in 'Colonial Twilight Zone'

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26 (AP).—Governor Rexford G. Tugwell of Puerto Rico said today that the United States' policy toward this Caribbean possession is "not a policy at all;" and spoke out against the dangers of "suppressing an angry people."

Governor Tugwell submitted a thirty-page statement to a Senate subcommittee headed by Senator Dennis Chavez, Democrat, of New Mexico, which investigated social and economic conditions in the island last spring. In it he charged Congress with failure to adopt any set policy toward Puerto Rico and of failing in some instances to act at all; said that if the present trend is continued "an angry people" might feel "somehow they had been wronged"; defended his own administration, which has been under attack repeatedly in the past, and offered a solution for the island's present and future problems.

"The difficulty with the present policy," Governor Tugwell stated, "is that it is not a policy at all. No one can say, no one can even guess, what the intentions of the United States are toward Puerto Rico."

"Why is it that the United States will not move decisively toward such assistance as would bring the possession up to the standards of statehood? Two million people cannot permanently be kept in the twilight zone of colonialism. Or, if closer union is not to be the policy, why is no move made toward independence, as was done in the case of the Philippines?"

Stressing the difficulties of administration during the first year of the war, Governor Tugwell blamed Congress for not acting in setting up subsidies to sugar growers to make them grow food instead of cane and for not helping later when the insular government had spent all it could spare of its own funds "in the belief that if Puerto Rico strained her own resources to the utmost, Federal officials and the Congress would adopt a more sympathetic attitude."

Warning of the danger of ignoring Puerto Ricco's economic problems, Governor Tugwell declared: "It would cost as much to keep peace with an idle and starving population which comes of spirited stock as to furnish the means of reconstruction. The matter must be put thus bluntly. American policy in Puerto Rico has the choice of economic assistance with a rather hopeful prospect or of supressing an angry people who would feel very deeply that they had been wronged."

In defense of his administration, the Governor said that no previous island executive had arrived in office to face an emergency as drastic as the present war. He defended his "social reforms" as something looking toward the creation of new tenterprise and larger sources of income for Puerto Rico."

"It would be better," he said as to future moves, "if first for a few years a deliberate policy of assistance were carried out, at the end of which time the Puerto Rican electorate might be given a chance to express itself. If a desire to become a state was expressed, the Congress might then take definite action. If either the plebiscite or the action of Congress was adverse to statehood, a policy of gradual separation could be worked out, as was done in the Philippines."

CROWLEY STRESSES UNIFYING OF FIELD

SEP 26 1943

Declares Main Aim Is to Avoid Overlapping of Our Manifold Economic Concerns Abroad

LINKED TO HULL'S POLICY

Head of New Consolidation Takes Over Duties as It Faces Critical Decisions

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26 (AP)—Leo T. Crowley, appointed yesterday by President Roosevelt to head the newly created Office of Foreign Economic Administration, told reporters today that his principal objective would be to coordinate all the field activities of the agencies consolidated under his directorship to avoid overlapping.

These agencies are the Office of Economic Warfare, the Office of Foreign Relief and Rehabilitation Operations, the Lend-Lease Administration and the Office of Foreign Economic Coordination.

Mr. Crowley moves up from OEW as it still is in the midst of reorganization to clear up the snarls left by the dispute between Vice President Henry Wallace, head of the old Board of Economic Warfare, and Jesse Jones, Secretary of Commerce, whose Reconstruction Finance Corporation was banker for BEW.

Mr. Crowley still holds the post of Alien Property Custodian, to which he was assigned to settle differences between the Treasury and State Departments over the handling of enemy financial holding in this country. He is also head of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, set up to help restore public confidence in banks after the financial difficulties of the early 1930's.

He takes his new office just as the OFRRO, heretofore operating on emergency funds, approaches the time when it must ask Congress for money and reach a settlement with the Army on the time and extent of economic control in liberated areas; when lend-lease is cutting deeper into tightening food supplies with plans to take 10 per cent of the nation's eatables this year; when the OEW is deeply involved in world-wide operations to obtain strategic materials for this country and to keep them out of Axis hands.

He has the task of correlating all those activities with the policies of the State Department, of which the OFRRO formerly was a dependency, and from which Mr. Crowley also takes over the Office of Foreign Economic Coordination.

Incidentally the new post makes Mr. Crowley one of the Administration's biggest money spenders, with expenditures promising a sharp upturn.

All in all, it looks like a busy winter for the handsome white-haired, 53-year-old bachelor from Madison, Wis., who did not take a Government salary until he was assigned to the present post, and then quit the $50,000 chairmanship of the board of the Standard Gas and Electric Company to work for $10,000 a year.

by our bombers.

Meanwhile, in the face of apparently insuperable opposition, Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.) prepared for a last-ditch fight in the Senate next week for his bill to defer the induction of pre-war fathers for the remainder of 1943.

The debate will start Tuesday, only two days before the Oct. 1 deadline set by the War Manpower commission for beginning the general draft of married men with children. Opponents expect to send the bill back to committee by Thursday.

Two substitute measures probably will be considered. One by Senator Taft (R-Ohio) would provide for induction of fathers under 30 before taking those over that age. The other, proposed by Senator Bailey (D-NC), is designed to send an estimated 300,000 non-fathers now on the government payroll into the Army ahead of men with children.

Collapse of Germany Predicted With Fathers Seeing No Combat

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25 — (AP) Forecasting the collapse of Germany within four months, Senator Downey (D-Calif.) predicted today that many of the married men scheduled for induction this fall never will see combat.

He saw one possible exception—development of Hitler's ordnance experts of some new anti-aircraft weapon to thwart the Allies' aerial blasting of the Reich.

Declaring that enormous damage already has been dealt Germany's munition works, refineries and synthetic rubber plants, Senator Downey maintained it is a cold mathematical fact that Berlin and other Nazi cities could be leveled as the convoy steamed toward Gibraltar Aug. 13.

"It was a surprise attack, and the planes came into the convoy low and fast, hedge-hopping over the horizon," wrote Mr. Byers. "The Germans meant business. In spite of the point-blank fire from the convoy's anti-aircraft guns, they came in head-on a few feet above the water in what looked like a suicidal assault. And that's what it proved to be."

mid-air, burst into flames and crashed into the sea, wrote Mr. Byers.

CHURCHILL BLAMED BY EARL BROWDER

SEP 26 1943

Marshall And Eisenhower Overridden On Second Front, Communist Asserts

[By the Associated Press]

Chicago, Sept. 26—Earl Browder, general secretary of the Communist party in the United States, declared today that Prime Minister Churchill "made the decision not to open the second front" and that President Roosevelt submitted "because he is unwilling to have a public disagreement with Churchill."

Browder, in a speech at a "second front" Communist rally, contended that the Anglo-American armies were "overwhelmingly superior" in strength to the forces the Germans could muster against them and that an attack on the European continent from the west could end the European war "before the year is out."

He contended the British Prime Minister had resisted the "strongest military arguments" of Gens. George C. Marshall and Dwight D. Eisenhower for "an immediate second front" and described Churchill as "indeed a stubborn man, with a confidence in himself that survives many obvious mistakes," he said.

"Prime Minister Churchill, in his report to Parliament in the past week, declared that no amount of clamor for a second front would bring it a minute sooner than he had planned it. . . .

"It is not military weakness that has prevented the Anglo-American combined forces from opening a second front. Some person in position to determine the decision has been unwilling to have the second front opened. The weakness is moral, not military.

Called Churchill's Decision

"It is a heavy responsibility to attempt to assign this default to particular persons. The evidence, however, inescapably indicates that Winston Churchill made the decision not to open the second front and that Franklin D. Roosevelt submitted to that decision because he was unwilling to have a public disagreement with Churchill. I feel sure that any time Churchill is ready to open the second front, he will find no obstacles from the side of Roosevelt. . . .

"The long refusal of effective coalition warfare, of the second front, is Mr. Churchill's decision. Mr. Churchill has finally emerged as that 'military expert' whose opinion prevailed over Generals Eisenhower and Marshall."

Browder said the "one argument" that may "force Mr. Churchill to reconsider his decision to postpone the second front until 1944" was "the steady advance of the Red army on the Eastern front and the prospect that it opens up a decisive Soviet victory in which Anglo-American arms will have won no major share."

Browder said the Russian summer offensive had "proved beyond the possibility of doubt" that with a second front in the west the past spring or summer "Hitler would have been crushed to the earth before this day."

Lists "Delay Supporters"

"Who are the American supporters of Churchill's strategy of delay?" Browder continued. "They range all the way from the State Department within the Administration through the Wheeler and poll-tax sections of the Democratic party, through the Republican Congressional representation, to the whole camp of the America Firsters headed by the Chicago Tribune, Father Coughlin and Gerald L. K. Smith."

If Americans "allow the Soviet Union to win the war without our major military participation," Browder asked, "do you think for one moment that then we can expect the Soviet Union to turn around and lick Japan for us, too?"

"The whole hard truth is this: That unless we get down off our high horse, unless we, the United States, consolidate the alliance with Britain and the Soviet Union on the basis of equality all around, which means everyone doing something like his part in fighting the war, and treating each other with full respect in reorganizing the world after the war, there is not the slightest prospect for us to emerge from this war with anything that can property be called victory."

7 Flyers Killed As Bomber Hits Denver Garage

SEP 26 1943

Liberator Explodes After Crack-Up in Residential Area; 2 Houses Damaged

DENVER, Sept. 26 (AP).—A four-engined Liberator bomber, evidently attempting a pancake landing in a vacant lot, crashed and exploded in flames in a South Denver residential section today, killing seven Army airmen. No civilians were injured.

The B-24, based at near-by Lowry Field, struck a wooden garage adjoining a wide vacant lot and exploded. Two houses a short distance away were damaged after a sheet of flame shot from the wreckage. The plane was on a routine training flight.

The Lowry Field public relations office announced the following list of dead:

Sergeant Lawrence Gaddie; father, Bert F. Gaddie, Seattle.

Flight Officer Raymond Warren Hansen; mother, Mrs. Hans Hansen, Bethel, Conn.

Sergeant George J. Grabowski; mother, Mrs. A. F. Grabowski, Westfield, Ill.

Sergeant Albert J. Leyland; father, Fred Leyland, Woodbury Road, R. I.

Second Lieutenant John Kevin Desmond; mother, Mrs. Margaret T. Desmond, Everett, Mass.

Sergeant Harold L. Stewart; mother, Mrs. Hazel M. Stewart, Elkhart, Ind.

Flight Officer Kenneth Charles Kerkeles; mother, Mrs. P. F. Kerkeles, Nashville, Tenn.

Nazi Prisoner Train Wrecked

Train Wrecked At Shadwell, Va.

SEP 26 1943

Engineer, Fireman Killed, Two War Captives and 7 Soldiers Among Injured

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Sept. 26 (AP).—A passenger train carrying German prisoners of war from a port of debarkation to an inland prison camp was derailed and wrecked at Shadwell near here today, killing the fireman and engineer and injuring seven soldiers of the military guard, two prisoners and three of the train crew.

The dead were Jake Pritchett, fireman, and Charles L. Dillard, sixty-three years old, engineer, both of Charlottesville.

The engine, tender and six cars of the eleven-car train left the track at a point on a built-up roadbed fill where the line had been under repair. Four of the cars plunged down the embankment. The wreck blocked the single-track right of way of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad, and C. & O. trains were being routed over the Southern Railway by way of Orange, Va.

The two injured Germans were taken in an ambulance under guard to the Army's new Woodrow Wilson General Hospital at Staunton, Va. The seven soldiers, two conductors and a brakeman were taken to hospitals in Charlottesville and adjoining University, Va.

Shadwell was the boyhood home of Thomas Jefferson.

1,000 Italian Prisoners To Aid N. Y. Canneries

SEP 26 1943

Will Replace U. S. Soldiers in Food Plants

ROCHESTER, Sept. 26 (AP).—One thousand Italian prisoners of war will go to work soon in western New York food processing plants, it was revealed today by Colonel John M. McDowell, commanding officer of District 4, 2d Service Command.

They will replace American soldiers who have been in this area for nearly two weeks, working in canneries as an emergency measure to meet the labor needs of hard-pressed cannery men. The prisoners, Colonel McDowell said, will be released from Pine Camp near Watertown at an early date.

The prisoners will be employed strictly in accordance with the terms of the Geneva convention relating to employment and treatment of prisoners of war, Colonel McDowell said.

Uncle of Eisenhower Seeks War Job at 73

SEP 26 1943

LUKE FIELD, Ariz., Sept. 26 (AP).—Luther Stover, seventy-three-year-old applicant for civilian work at this Army airfield, was asked if he had any relatives in military service.

Yes, he had.

A son, perhaps?

No, a nephew.

His name and rank, please.

Proudly Stover answered: "Dwight Eisenhower, general."

'Man From Down Under' Now Man On Top In South Pacific

SEP 26 1943

Aussies Have Conquered Swamps, Rivers And Mountains As Well As New Guinea Japs

[By the Associated Press]

San Francisco, Sept. 26—He's known as "the man from down under"—but the Japanese probably wonder why.

Right now, the Australian soldier is the man on top of the war in New Guinea. That's where he has been since September accelerated the Pacific offensive.

Some of the feats these Aussies have performed in pinning back the ears of the Japanese read like pages out of fiction.

They have forded swift, bank-full rivers right under the muzzles of enemy guns. They have lugged their artillery across swamps and through kunai grass higher than their heads. They have toted back-bending equipment over tortuous mountain trails.

Whip Japs At Own Game

They have leaped out of transport planes in ememy territory and liquidated three fifths of a Japanese force waiting for them. They have scoffed at the reputed prowess of the Japanese soldier in the jungle; then they have proceeded to whip him at his own game of infiltration.

These Aussies would be the last ones to take any of the cerdit due their American allies. An American general, Douglas MacArthur, is running their show. Guns of American warships have protected their landing boats. American bombers, fighters and attack planes have blasted enemy positions ahead of them and kept away the Japanese air force.

And American soldiers fought side by side with the Aussies in the slow, tedious work of pushing the Japanese out of the ridges south of Salamaua just before the tempo of the campaign was stepped up. American units also were used in proportionately small force with the Australians against Lae.

Rate Japs Below Germans

But give these Aussies their due. Since they swung into action, things have happened fast on New Guinea—all bad for the Japanese.

Perhaps it's because they had their baptismal fire against the Germans at Tobruk and on many another African battlefield. Associated Press War Correspondent Olen Clements, talking to an Aussie calmly checking up on his gun prior to landing from the sea northeast of Lae September 4, was told these desert warriors rated the Japanese fighting man far below the German.

Fighting Close To Home

Perhaps it's because the Aussies fight better close to home.

But look at what happened:

Those Australians who swarmed ashore above Lae cut to pieces a Japanese plantation force barring their path, lugged their twenty-five-pounders across swamps, forded the rain-swollen Busu river while enemy soldiers fired on them from the south bank, and, slowed more by country than opposition, soon were on Lae's outskirts.

September 5, American paratroopers floated down in the Markham valley twenty miles northwest of Lae and seized an airstrip. With them 'chuted Australian artillerymen. But already on the ground, waiting to greet the 'chutists, was a tough bunch of Aussies who had force-marched fifty-five mountainous miles in five days to be there and wipe out any enemy patrols.

Quickly Assemble Field Pieces

The parachuting artillerymen quickly assembled the parts of their field pieces, also dropped from the planes, and started firing. The American paratroopers cut down Kunai grass and got the airstrip ready for transport planes.

The transports, coming over the Owen Stanleys from Port Moresby, began pouring forth desert-experienced Aussies. From there on in, it largely was an Australian show. What pillbox defenses they couldn't get through they went around, infiltrating more expertly than the Japanese had done on the way to Singapore.

While the Lae pincers was closing, a daring band of Aussies swam the swift Francisco river below Salamaua on September 11 and seized the airdrome. The next day, a larger Australian force occupied the town and harbor.

Took Lae Four Days Later

Lae, an even bigger air base, was swallowed up four days later, and the Aussies proudly ran up their flag.

Two days thereafter, American transport planes swept down on a grassy field sixty miles northwest of Lae at Kaiapit. Out leaped Australians, encountered 200 Japanese, killed 120 and chased away the others.

September 22, Aussies hit the beach six miles north of Finschhafen in a hail of Japanese mortar and machine-gun fire. Supported by American warships and planes, they wiped out the enemy in a half hour. Swiftly they overran Finschhafen's airdrome a mile from the town. Straight into enemy fire they moved across the Bumi river. By the time you read this, these Aussies may well have Finschhafen.

In something like two weeks, they have given MacArthur three air bases and a harbor within easy striking distance of Japan's key position of New Britain.

4 Senators Fly Home After Global War Tour

Long Beach, Cal., Sept. 26 (AP)—Four United States Senators arrived today by plane from Hono-

They are Albert B. Chandler (D., Ky.), Richard B. Russell (D., Ga.), James M. Mead (D., N. Y.) and Ralph O. Brewster (R. Maine). A fifth tourist-Senator Henry Cabot Lodge (R., Mass.) remained in Honolulu.

EX-PRUSSIAN MINISTER WHO FINED HITLER DIES

NEW YORK, Sept. 26 — (AP) Dr. Kurt Rosenfeld, 67, Prussian minister for justice in 1919-20, who once fined Adolf Hitler 1,000 marks for contempt of court, died Saturday night at his home in Sunnyside, Queens.

A prominent anti-Nazi, he came to the United States in 1934. At the time of his death he was chairman of the German-American, a monthly periodical.

The former Reichstag member and Berlin attorney was forced to flee Germany in 1933. He went to Prague and later to Paris.

He is survived by his widow, Alice, and a daughter, Hilda, wife of Dr. Rudolf Neumann of Mexico City.

Spain, Argentina Urged To Break With Axis

New York, Sept. 26 (AP)—Declaring there is "no such thing as being neutral in this war," Mayor LaGuardia today urged President Roosevelt and Winston Churchill to press Spain and Argentina to break with the Axis.

In his weekly radio talk, the Mayor said:

"A country is either with the United Nations or not, and the countries who are with the United Nations should immediately break diplomatic relations with the Nazis."

SFORZA BACKS MONARCHY IN ITALIAN WAR

Says Action Against It May Hamper Battle With Germans

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Sept 26—Count Carlo Sforza, former Italian Foreign Minister, spoke out tonight against any movement at present to destroy the Italian monarchy.

Declaring Italy's first duty was "war to the death against the Germans," Sforza said in an address before a "free-Italy" rally, sponsored by the Mazzini Society and the Union for Democratic Action:

"So long as a government in Italy is loyally engaged in the task of fighting and defeating the Germans and devotes all the resources at its disposal to that struggle, it may be dangerous to weaken now its position or hamper its work."

Wants Rallying Point

Leon Henderson, former OPA administrator, also addressing the rally, said that the Allies should "provide a rallying point for liberal Italians" and "place less reliance on Fascist officials."

Sforza advocated the retention of Lybia, Eritrea, Somaliland and Trieste by Italy, but concerning the Dodecanese islands, he said "we'll be glad to see them go to Greece as a manifestation of our sorrow for the criminal aggression against Greece."

Refers To Libya

Referring to possible loss of Lybia, Eritrea and Smoliland, Sforza asked: "Is it wise to wound the feelings of a nation which voluntarily has begun so bravely to fight the Germans as soon as the traitor Mussolini disappeared?"

He said Italy had a supreme interest in collaboration and friendship with the Yugoslavs, adding:

"It is more in their interest than in ours that I warn them against the danger of certain nationalistic leaders or pseudo-leaders like one who wrote recently: 'It is strange that the citizens of Trieste believe themselves to be Italians, while they are Slav.' "

Sforza said that "for those who know Mussolini, as I know him, the authenticity of his last broadcast is undeniable."

ARCHBISHOP URGES SPARING OF ROME

SEP 26 1943

Devastation of Eternal City Would Be 'Catastrophe for World'.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26 — (AP) Archbishop Francis J. Spellman expressed the hope today that Allied military leaders "will find it possible to spare our Holy Father's city from devastation."

Speaking at the dedication of the Commander John J. Shea Memorial school here, named for the Arlington, Mass., Navy officer who lost his life in the sinking of the aircraft carrier Wasp in the Solomons last autumn, the Archbishop added that "naturally the enemies of God and the enemies of the church would like to see Rome laid in ruins."

"But I am sure that we shall, with the help of God and our prayers for the guidance of the military leaders," he said, "avoid that catastrophe, which would be a catastrophe for the world — a catastrophe for world peace."

After the ceremony when asked to comment further on a statement he made last week that Pope Pius XII was a prisoner of the Germans, Archbishop Spellman replied: "Well, obviously he is a prisoner."

Asked for further details, the archbishop smiled, touched the arm of the reporter who asked the question and said:

"I get all my information from you people."

The ceremony was attended by Mrs. Elizabeth Shea, widow of the Navy hero, and her six-year-old son, Jack; Timothy Shea, Commander Shea's father, and four of the officer's sisters, from Cambridge, Mass.

The words in Commander Shea's last letter to his son: "Be a good Catholic, and you can't help being a good American," appear in each classroom of the school building.

U.S. SEEDS FURNISH BIG CROPS ABROAD

SEP 26 1943

Russia, Britain, China Harvest Vegetables from Gift Shipments.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26 — (AP) Michigan beets, New Jersey tomatoes and Oregon onions are aiding in the fight against the Nazis on the Russian front.

Emil Schram, chairman of the New York committee of the National War fund, estimated today that crops of food totalling almost 4,000,000 tons had been harvested from seed sent to Russia, China and Great Britain through member agencies of the National War Fund.

As a result he said that 15,000,000 Russian families now were getting their first taste of American vegetables. The greatest harvest—about 3,500,000 tons—was achieved in Russia from the field and vegetable seed contributed by American farmers and seedmen through Russian War Relief, he said.

"American seedmen also included in their contributions of seed to Russia large quantities of red turkey wheat and Kherson oats, seeds of which Ukranian immigrants first brought to this country 60 years ago," Mr. Schram said.

Seed shipments to China, through United China Relief, he said, resulted in the harvest of 175,000 tons of food, while Great Britain produced 90,000 tons from 100 tons of seed shipped by British War Relief.

FOOD FOR CHILDREN OF EUROPE URGED

SEP 26 1943

International Commission Head Appeals for American Assistance.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26 — (AP) Dr. Howard E. Kershner, director of the International Commission for the Assistance of Child Refugees, today called upon "the administration to take vigorous action" to feed the "starving children" of Europe's occupied countries.

In a report to Rep. Sol Bloom (D-N.Y.), chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations, Dr. Kershner stated that public opinion both in America and Great Britain was overwhelmingly in favor of action to send food to the children.

Dr. Kershner, who for four years directed child feeding in Europe for the International commission and the Quakers, said in his report:

1. The Germans did not interfere with child feeding in any way during his four years as director. They did not take any of the 18,300 tons of food going to Greece each month. If they should interfere with child feeding, operations would cease immediately.

Ration Cards Necessary

2. Children would be required to exhaust their local ration cards before obtaining the imported food, so that the enemy could not benefit from any reduction in consumption of local food.

3. The food would be paid for by occupied countries themselves from funds now in the United States.

4. Neutral ships not available for the war effort would be used to transport the supplies.

5. Only grain, of which this country still has a surplus, would come from the United States. Meat, fat and milk could be obtained from South America.

6. The International Red Cross, now supervising the successful work in Greece, would take charge of the operations.

Two Air-Raid Alarms Are Sounded In Zagreb

New York, Sept. 26 (AP)—The Budapest radio said tonight two air-raid alarms had been sounded in Zagreb in northern Yugoslavia early this morning.

GEN. EISENHOWER URGES BOND DRIVE SUPPORT

NEW YORK, Sept. 26 — (AP) General Dwight D. Eisenhower, in a message to Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., said today "The success of the Third War Loan drive will be proof of every American's devotion to our cause."

General Eisenhower, replying to a message sent from the war center here last Friday by Mr. Morgenthau that the promise to 'back the attack' by war bond purchases was being fulfilled, said the "unstinted effort of the home front is an incentive to great endeavor in the days ahead."

"Fulfillment of your promise to 'back the attack' is an inspiration to every soldier on the fighting front," the General added.

To Mr. Morgenthau's congratulations on the advance of the Allied forces, General Eisenhower replied, "Hearty thanks."

What's Behind The War News

By ELTON C. FAY

(Associated Press War Analyst)

The German armies in Russia are on the road back, prodded by Soviet bayonets from the east and summoned by the challenge of Anglo-American power from the west.

There is yet no evidence of a German rout on the eastern front, although the crack in soldier morale and organization that betokens such military catastrophes may be near.

Until the Russians report or the Germans admit the taking of large numbers of Nazi prisoners it must be assumed that the great fall-back of Hitler's armies from the Sea of Azov all the way up the central and into the northern front is, as the Germans like to state it, "according to plan" and that in the retreat most of the manpower and the machinery of war is intact.

When great masses of prisoners begin trudging into camp, it means the enemy's organization is breaking up, blocks of his forces are being cut off from support and supply and, hungry and with ammunition gone, are giving up. It means that matters aren't running "according to plan."

Russian force of arms, courage and daring on the part of Red strategists have sent the Nazis staggering back hundreds of miles from the high tide mark of invasion.

But, as Secretary of War Stimson points out, "our success in the Mediterranean has undoubtedly accelerated the German retreat in Russia."

Anglo-American armies are on the European mainland, pressing north along the Italian peninsula. Island by island, the Allies push a half dozen potential springboards for other mainland invasions closer in the Mediterranean from Corsica to the islands off the Balkans. The German garrison of the long Atlantic wall watches for invasion from England—and cries for more manpower.

The manpower for the Atlantic and Mediterranean walls must—and is—coming in great measure from the eastern front. To drain away troops from there, the Nazis must shorten lines, not in small individual sectors of trench but on broad fronts, hundreds of miles long. But when the front begins to straighten, the Russians push forward another great salient and the process must start all over again.

Dnieper Crossed

Currently, the process is on the southern and central fronts. The Dnieper has been reached by the Soviet troops, and over the weekend, crossed at some points according to the Germans' admission. The broad scale fall-back in the center and south is leaving German forces manning an extended salient in the north arcing over to and including the Leningrad and Finnish fronts. Divisions now urgently needed by the Nazis elsewhere are in that most inactive area.

This suggests that the Nazis may find it expedient in the near future to shorten the northern line, withdrawing perhaps as far west as Lake Peipus on the Estonian border. With that 100-mile lake in front of them, the Germans could save manpower at least until heavy ice formations made possible a road for direct Russian advance.

Marshes Valuable to Nazis

Should the Germans find that the Dnieper line can not be held (and the week-end developments strongly suggest that) the Pripet marshes at the Polish-Russian border might assume the same value as Lake Peipus. Taking a position behind the Pripet marshes would, however, involve the distinct possibility that it would be secure only until the Russian frosts harden the ground—and the Germans have learned how well the Russians fight on ice and snow.

The swift surge of the Russian forces to the west, however, is not without danger. An over-extended supply line is the sectre that haunts the military campaigner. An army moving too fast for food and ammunition must contemplate a counter-attack by an enemy much nearer his supply base. Fall rains are bogging roads for troop transports, trucks and guns. In addition, as the Russian army regains territory it is confronted with the necessity of changing back two wide-gauge rail lines which the Nazis converted during their advance to fit their own rolling stock. Morever, the Wehrmacht has considerable experience in demolition.

NAPLES IN RUINS, FACTORIES, PORT LOSE WAR VALUE

Residents, Once Terrified by Raids, Now Apathetic, Shun Shelters.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Naples, its picturesque harbor in ruins and all its factories smashed to rubble by Allied bombers, is the only city of more than 1,000,000 inhabitants in the world to be completely cut off from the outside, the Berlin radio said today, quoting Transocean's war correspondent Guenter Weber.

Air attacks have dealt "such very hard blows to Naples that the city and especially its harbor have lost their importance even to the adversaries interlocked in embittered battle hardly ten kilometers less than seven miles to the south," Weber said.

1943

30.24- 8839

"Naples has no more railway connections," he added.

"The sirens are continuing to screech day and night," he related, "but the inhabitants, who used to be seized by frenzied fright when apathetic today. The underground stations and subterranean tunnels, in which four weeks ago tens of thousands were crammed night after night, are now empty."

"There are only four restaurants open in the city."

Weber said there was "some shooting in various parts of the city, especially near the central railway station" on Sept. 8 and 9, and that "huge military depots in the city were ransacked by civilians in the nighttime so that the German military commander had to take stern measures."

"A few days ago," he added, "Italian soldiers had to make use of firearms in order to defend a big tobacco store against a huge mob."

The population is "cold" toward German soldiers, Weber declared, but after Sept. 9 many people have again become "honest fascists."

AXIS TO MARK DATE OF TRIPARTITE PACT

SEP 26 1943

Fortunes of War Shift in Three Years Since Treaty Was Drawn.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Three years ago today confident Germany, Italy and Japan signed a tripartite pact pledging aid to each other against any new enemy entering either the European or the Chinese war.

Since then the wheel of fortune for the armed forces of the three countries has taken a full turn.

Italy has surrendered unconditionally and has become a battleground. The only vestige of her former partnership with Germany and Japan is the puppet "Fascist republican" government which Benito Mussolini is forming at the bidding of his German masters.

Germany and Japan themselves are on the defensive.

Since the ceremonious signing of the pact at Berlin the United States and Russia have become enemies of Germany—these and a host of other powers. Japan, still maintaining peace with Russia, is locked in a struggle with the land and sea might of the United States and the British commonwealth of nations as well as China in the Pacific.

In the gloomy atmosphere created by a year of reverses, the Axis nations apparently planned to celebrate the anniversary.

Demonstrations by the states that have signed "will be tantamount to a solemn renewal of the pact," said a Transocean news agency dispatch broadcast yesterday by the Berlin radio.

Mentioning the establishment of Mussolini's new puppet Italian government, the broadcast recorded by the Associated Press, said it was safe to assume that all states that had signed the pact would commemorate the anniversary.

The Japanese radio said the signing would be celebrated in Tokyo by German and Japanese officials, with Foreign Minister Mamoru Shigemitsu, German Ambassador Heinrich von Stahmer and "other members of the Axis nations" scheduled to attend an anniversary dinner. This broadcast, recorded by the U. S. Foreign Broadcast Intelligence service, made no direct mention of Italian participation.

JAPS IN BURMA FACE IMMINENT ALLIED SQUEEZE

Next Month May See Start of Allies' Tokyo Drive.

SEP 26 1943

By KENNETH L. DIXON
Associated Press Foreign Staff

Always an unpleasant month in Burma, October may bring some brand new misery to the Japanese there this year.

The monsoon may be followed by Mountbatten.

And Burma may be caught in a three-way Allied squeeze.

Selection of Lord Louis Mountbatten, the British royal sea rover, as supreme Allied commander in Southwest Asia was bad news for the Japanese.

For the cousin of the King also led the famed British commandos, and when the southwest monsoon stops sweeping the drenching rains in from the Indian Ocean next month, Mountbatten and his Allied marauders may be the next to call from across the Bay of Bengal.

But Nippon can't concentrate all her Burma power on the coast, for along the India-Burma battle line to the north, British and American troops are drawn up—bolstered by a hand-picked crew of veteran Chinese soldiers, battle-scarred and hungry for revenge.

Still farther north, up Free China way, are Lieut-Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's men, who might drive south at Mountbatten's command in unison with a sea, land and air sweep from the south and west.

Spawn of the Tigers

And all over Southeast Asia, the American air forces—spawn of the Flying Tigers—and other Allied airmen are ready to strike from skies where the Japanese once flew with almost unchallenged superiority.

Leading the American skyfighters in China is Maj-Gen. Claire Chennault, erstwhile topkick of the Tigers who terrified the Japanese pilots who outnumbered them hundreds-to-one, and who shot down Nippon's planes by ratios sometimes almost that high.

From India, the American air force and the RAF already have been ramming their bomb loads down the Japanese throats from Rangoon to the northern Burmese border.

When President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill met in Washington last May, they planned an Asiastic offensive. When they met in Quebec in August, they picked its leader—Mountbatten, the land-sea-air leader who trained the commandos and set the eventual European invasion pattern.

And when Mountbatten, Stilwell and Chennault landed in the same war hopper, it spelled offensive from the sea and skies as well as on land.

Must Reopen Road

That Burma is the likely spot for the first blow of the new supreme command is borne out by the need to reopen the Burma Road, the blocked supply route from Chungking to the sea. And Stilwell and Chenanult, who think it can be opened and want to do the job, were on hand in Washington when the Asiatic strategy was set.

Also, within Free China are the potential air bases from which Tokyo and all Japan proper could be bombed again and again. The supplies required to do the job could flow over the Burma road to Chungking, and on to scores of Shangri-Las.

Somewhere north of Burma are countless fighting men, under Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, who have waged war against the Axis longer than any other of the United Nations. Only a trickle of the supplies they need now reaches them, by air and roundabout routes. Over the Burma road, it could become a stream.

But the Japanese sit across the road in Burma.

So, Allied military strategists who say the knockout blow at Japan must be delivered from China, always add that the power behind the punch must first be delivered to China—via a reopened Burma road or some other highway.

Battered from Sky

Communiques from New Delhi daily tell of the sky-battering Burma is taking. It is no secret to say that this is a softening-up process—although the blow still might fall elsewhere.

From central India has come the story of thousands of Chinese soldiers, drawn from a dozen battlefields of Burma and China, who have been trained through American ingenuity and patience into a modern fighting force.

In commando-like forays, they already have proved they can take on the Japanese, man for man, and they wait now only for fighting weather to start the drive back into China—through Burma.

Some of them who have been trained are being moved into China, commanded by their own officers, whose schooling was polished off at the same time, despite the countless language and custom difficulties involved.

Where they will strike remains as much a mystery as where Mountbatten will first move in, and how strong the forces at his command will be. But the moist misery of the Monsoon, before which even Mars must give way, will be over in October, and Burma looks like the logical scene for a big Allied squeeze.

BUT SINCE THE GERMANS OCCUPIED ROME THEY HAVE BEEN UNABLE TO GET FUNDS FROM THE SWISS LEGATION.

"BECAUSE WE HAD AN ITALIAN NAME," SAID CONSTANCE, "NOT MANY PEOPLE ON THE ISLAND KNEW WE WERE AMERICANS. WE WANT TO GET BACK TO AMERICA AS SOON AS POSSIBLE."

LT.(JG) GEORGE STEELE, OF FAIRHAVEN, MASS., AND LT. (JG) GEORGE PATTERSON, OF MACON,GA., DROPPED BY TO EAT GRAPES FROM THE CATUOGNO VINEYARDS.

"WHEN WE HEARD THERE WERE AMERICANS ON THE ISLAND," STEELE SAID, "WE DROPPED BY JUST TO BE SURE TO TALK TO SOME ONE FROM THE UNITED STATES."

THEY HAD BEEN ON A SIGHTSEEING TRIP IN TOWN WITH LT. (JG) BOB MCLEOD, OF MINNEAPOLIS, MINN., AND LT. (JG) GILES PERESICH, OF BILOXI, MISS.

"I DID NOT THINK THERE WAS ANY PLACE LEFT IN THE WORLD LIKE THIS," MCLEOD SAID. "YOU CAN SEE NAPLES FROM HERE AND STILL YOU FEEL THE WAR IS FAR AWAY. YET THE GERMANS LEFT THE ISLAND ONLY TEN DAYS AGO AFTER DOMINATING LIFE ON CAPRI."

MRS.CATUOGNO SAID THAT "IF THE GERMANS GOT DRUNK AND CREATED A DISTURBANCE NO ONE DID ANYTHING TO THEM. I GUESS THE FASCISTS WERE AFRAID OF THEM ALTHOUGH MOST ITALIANS HATED THE GERMANS AND WOULDN'T SPEAK TO THEM ON THE STREET."

CONSTANCE CATUOGNO TRIED MAKING HER OWN SOAP WITH A MIXTURE OF OLIVE OIL, MILK, SODA AND TALCUM POWDER.

"I WAS SUPPOSED TO PUT IN SOME PERFUME," SHE SAID, "BUT I DIDN'T HAVE ANY.

"STILL, IT WAS NOT SO BAD UNTIL I WASHED WITH IT AND THE SKIN ON MY HANDS BEGAN PEELING OFF."

MADRID, SEPT.26-(AP)-SPANISH CORRESPONDENTS IN BERLIN REPORTED TODAY THAT GERMAN AUTHORITIES EXPECTED STRONG ALLIED AIR AND NAVAL CONCENTRATIONS ON SARDINIA AND CORSICA MAY MEAN A NEW ALLIED LANDING ON THE NORTHERN PART OF ITALY'S WEST COAST.

THE DISPATCHES, POSSIBLY INSPIRED, ALSO SAID THAT IF BALKAN PARTISANS SUCCEED IN HOLDING THEIR POSITIONS "IT IS POSSIBLE X X X THE ANGLO-SAXON COMMAND MAY DECIDE TO ACT IN THE ADRIATIC IN THE NEAR FUTURE."

IN PUBLISHING AN ARTICLE ON THE FORMER DIRECTOR'S APPEAL SEPT. 21, THE NEWSPAPER ROUNDLY CONDEMNED VALENTIN FOR HIS ACTION, BUT IT GAVE MANY FRENCH LEGION MEMBERS THE FIRST WORD THEY HAD RECEIVED OF VALENTIN'S CALL TO CHANGE CAMPS.

SEP 26 1943

BEFORE THE WAR VALENTIN WAS CLASSED POLITICALLY AS AN EXTREME RIGHTIST AND AN ANTI-REPUBLICAN LEADER. KNOWN FOR HIS TALENT IN ORG IZATION, VALENTIN BROUGHT THE FRENCH LEGION TO ITS GREATEST STRENGTH PRIOR TO THE ALLIED INVASION OF NORTH AFRICA. HE ENJOYED MARSHAL PETAIN'S CONFIDENCE AND MADE THE FRENCH LEGION LARGELY A PERSONAL ORGANIZATION. HIS PRESENT WHEREABOUTS WERE NOT DISCLOSED.

BY EDDY GILMORE

MOSCOW, SEPT. 26-(AP)-SMASHING ON AFTER THE SPECTACULAR CAPTURE OF SMOLENSK, THE RED ARMY NORTHWEST OF THAT FORMER NAZI STRONGHOLD, FOUGHT ON A LINE BARELY MORE THAN 100 MILES FROM THE POLISH BORDER TODAY AND PRAVDA, THE COMMUNIST PARTY ORGAN, DECLARED "THE GATES TO THE WEST ARE OPEN."

SEP 26 1943

THE RUSSIANS WERE MAKING SENSATIONAL PROGRESS WESTWARD ALONG THE LINE OF THE DNIEPER RIVER FROM ITS SMOLENSK SECTOR TO ITS BIG SOUTHERN BEND AT ZAPORZHE.

ON BOTH THE WEST AND EAST BANKS OF THE SWINGING ARC OF THE DNIEPER IN THE SMOLENSK AREA THE RED ARMY FILLED OUT AND CONSOLIDATED HUNDREDS OF POSITIONS.

FROM CAPTURED BROVARI, WHICH COMMANDS THE HIGHWAY ON KIEV'S OUTSKIRTS TO ZAPORZHE THE RED ARMY GIRDED ITSELF FOR THE DIFFICULT TASK OF STORMING ACROSS THE MIGHTY WATERWAY.

THERE WAS NO INDICATION THAT THE RUSSIANS HAD YET CROSSED THE RIVER IN FORCE, ALTHOUGH PATROLS MAY BE FEELING OUT THE DEFENSES ON THE WESTERN BANK IN SOME SECTORS.

(THE BERLIN RADIO IN A BROADCAST OF THE OFFICIAL GERMAN COMMUNIQUE SAID THAT SOVIET TROOPS HAD CROSSED THE DNIEPER AT SOME POINTS BUT "WERE REPULSED IN COUNTERATTACKS." IT DID NOT SPECIFICALLY SAY, HOWEVER, THAT THE RUSSIANS HAD BEEN THROWN BACK ACROSS THE RIVER.

(A LATER BROADCAST QUOTING A GERMAN MILITARY CORRESPONDENT SAID THAT RUSSIAN FORCES HAD ATTEMPTED TO OCCUPY RIVER ISLANDS NEAR DNEPROPETROVSK BUT WERE REPULSED. IT ALSO SAID THAT ATTEMPTS BY TANK UNITS TO REACH GERMAN LINES IN THE KREMENCHUG AREA HAD BEEN BEATEN OFF. PARACHUTE LANDINGS ACROSS THE RIVER FAILED WHEN THE RUSSIANS WERE ROUNDED UP AND ANNIHILATED, THE BROADCAST SAID.

(THE BROADCAST SAID FURTHER THAT RUSSIAN FORCES HAD REDOUBLED THEIR EFFORTS TO DRIVE THE NAZIS FROM THEIR NARROW KUBAN BRIDGEHEAD WITH ATTACKS FROM BOTH THE EAST AND NORTHEAST SUPPORTED BY NUMEROUS TANKS. A SIMULTANEOUS LARGE-SCALE LANDING OPERATION IN THE AREA OF TEMRYUK, OFF THE NORTHERN COAST OF THE PENINSULA, WAS REPULSED, IT SAID, WITH 800 RUSSIANS DROWNED WHEN THEIR LANDING BOATS WERE DESTROYED.

(BBC QUOTED A MOSCOW BROADCAST THAT RED ARMY FORCES WERE STORMING THE RIVER IN "AT LEAST HALF A DOZEN PLACES X X X IN RAFTS AND FLAT-BOTTOMED BOATS.")

THE DNIEPER BETWEEN KIEV AND ZAPOROZHE IS SPANNED BY FIVE RAILWAY AND HIGHWAY BRIDGES. THERE HAS BEEN NO INDICATION THAT THEY HAVE BEEN DESTROYED BY THE RETREATING NAZIS, AND THESE APPEARED TO BE THE MAIN RUSSIAN OBJECTIVES FOR THE MOMENT.

THE CAPTURE OF KOBELYAKI, 21 MILES NORTHWEST OF KREMENCHUG ABOVE DNEPROPETROVSK, GAVE THE RUSSIANS CONTROL OF ONE OF THE TWO RAIL LINES WHICH CROSS THE DNIEPER AT KREMENCHUG.

PETRIKOVKA'S CAPTURE PLACED SOVIET FORCES 25 MILES NORTHWEST OF THE DNEPROPETROVSK CROSSING, MENACING THAT IMPORTANT SPAN FROM THE NORTHWEST AS WELL AS FROM NOVOMOSKOVSK, 15 MILES TO THE NORTHEAST, WHICH WAS CAPTURED THE LATTER PART OF THE WEEK.

TWO BRIDGES ACROSS THE RIVER BETWEEN KIEV AND KREMENCHUG ARE AT KANEV AND CHERKASI, BUT BOTH CITIES LIE ON THE WEST BANK AND SOVIET FORCES IN THOSE AREAS PROBABLY STILL ARE ON THE EAST BANK.

FOLLOWING UP THE GREAT VICTORIES AT SMOLENSK AND ROSLAVL, TROOPS UNDER GENERAL VASSILLY SOKOLOVSKY DROVE ON DOWN THE OLD SMOLENSK ROAD WHICH ENTERS WHITE RUSSIA--THE SAME ROAD ON WHICH NAPOLEON AND OTHER WOULD-BE CONQUERORS OF RUSSIA HAVE RETREATED IGNOMINIOUSLY IN THE PAST.

RED ARMY FORCES THERE APPARENTLY WERE CONSIDERABLE, FOR A PRAVDA DISPATCH DESCRIBING THE OPERATIONS USED THE PHRASE "OUR DIVISIONS" IN TELLING OF THE PURSUIT OF THE ENEMY.

30.24-8845

HISTORICALLY INTERESTING WAS THE PART PLAYED BY DESCENDANTS OF NAPOLEON'S ARMY FIGHTING AT SMOLENSK ON THE SIDE OF THE RUSSIANS THIS TIME.

SEP 26 1943

IN THE MIDST OF AN AERIAL BATTLE RUSSIAN PILOT PINCHUK RAMMED A GERMAN PLANE. LT.DURAND, A FRENCHMAN, SAW HIM PARACHUTING TO EARTH WITH TWO GERMAN PLANES ATTEMPTING TO MACHINEGUN HIM, AND DROVE OFF THE ATTACKERS. OTHER FRENCH PILOTS PARTICIPATING IN THE BATTLE WERE PILOT LE FEVRE AND PILOT ALBERT.

ACTUALLY, THE BATTLE FOR SMOLENSK BEGAN SEPT.21 AS THE RED ARMY TORE INTO A DEFENSE LINE EAST OF SMOLENSK FORMED BY THE TOWNS OF YELYNA, YARTSEVO AND DUKHOVHSCHINA. BREAKING THIS LINE, THE RUSSIANS REACHED THE "SOLOVIOVSKAIA" CROSSING OF THE DNIEPER, WHICH A PRAVDA DISPATCH SAID THE NAZIS ATTEMPTED TO BLOW UP BUT WERE PREVENTED BY RUSSIAN PLANES AND ARTILLERY.

"THERE WERE HOURS OF TERRIFIC RETALIATION," SAID PRAVDA. "THOSE WHO REMAINED ALIVE WILL NEVER FORGET THOSE HOURS. IT APPEARED AT TIMES THAT SUNKEN ENEMY MACHINES AND WEAPONS HAD RAISED THE LEVEL OF THE DNIEPER'S WATERS."

THE FIRST CROSSING WAS MADE ON SEPT.22 OVER PONTOON BRIDGES. AFTER TWO DAYS OF FURIOUS BATTLES ALONG THE BANKS SOVIET FORCES STORMED INTO SMOLENSK FRIDAY AND CONQUERED IT SATURDAY.

THE GERMANS HAD BEEN ORDERED BY HITLER NOT TO GIVE UP SMOLENSK, PRAVDA SAID, AND ADDED THAT SEPT.25 WILL BE A DAY LONG REMEMBERED IN THE SOVIET UNION.

AS THE RED ARMY POURED INTO THE CITY, THOUSANDS OF CHEERING CIVILIANS EMERGED FROM THE FOREST WITH THEIR BELONGINGS AND MOVED IN BEHIND.

DISPATCHES SAID THE RETREATING GERMANS CONTINUED TO SHELL SMOLENSK, BUT THAT THE RUSSIANS QUICKLY DROVE ON WESTWARD, CAPTURING SETTLEMENTS ALONG THE OLD SMOLENSK ROAD WHICH EXTENDS ON TO WARSAW AND INTO BERLIN ITSELF.

MOSCOW--FIRST ADD THEATER XXX WAS EMPTY.

"IVAN SUSANIN" IS THE ANCIENT STORY OF A PEASANT WHO, DURING A FOREIGN INVASION, LED THE INVADERS TO THEIR DOOM AND HIS OWN.

THE THEATER'S STAFF OF MORE THAN 5,000 PERSONS, WAS WITHDRAWN FROM MOSCOW IN 1941 AND OPERATED ON A REDUCED SCALE AT KUIBYSHEV. AFTER THE EVACUATION A GERMAN BOMB HIT THE THEATER, RUINING SOME PRICELESS PAINTINGS AND FIXTURES BUT DOING NO SERIOUS STRUCTURAL DAMAGE.

WHILE THE STAFF WAS ABSENT THE THEATER WAS RENOVATED. EVEN WHEN THE GERMANS WERE AT THE DISTANT APPROACHES TO MOSCOW THE WORK CONTINUED DAILY. THE CEILING, BY THE RUSSIAN ARTIST TITOV, WAS RESTORED AND THE INTERIOR GLITTERED WITH LUSH SETTINGS.

SEP 26 1943

TICKETS TO THE OPENING WERE RESTRICTED TO THE HIGHEST SOVIET OFFICIALS, THE HEADS OF DIPLOMATIC MISSIONS AND FOREIGN CORRESPONDENTS.

THE ARCHBISHOP OF YORK, WHO IS VISITING MOSCOW, HAD TO DECLINE BECAUSE IT WAS SUNDAY BUT THE HOSPITABLE RUSSIANS INVITED HIM TO A SPECIAL PERFORMANCE THEY WILL GIVE FOR HIM IN THE NEXT FEW DAYS. ##

BY ERNEST G.FISCHER

DALLAS, TEX., SEPT 26-(AP)-RUSSIAN FORCES HAVE A MORE FORMIDABLE TASK IN RE-TAKING KIEV THAN THE GERMANS HAD TWO YEARS AGO IN CAPTURING THE CITY.

THE RUSSIANS FACE NATURAL BARRIERS; THE GERMANS FACED MAN-MADE BARRIERS.

THE UKRAINIAN CAPITAL IS ON THE WEST BANK OF THE DNIEPER RIVER, WHICH RUNS NORTHWEST-SOUTHEAST. THE WESTERN BANK CONSISTS OF CLIFFS; THE EASTERN BANK IS MARSHES AND SANDBARS. BETWEEN THE STONE CLIFFS AND THE SANDBARS, THE CHANNEL MEANDERS OVER A RIVER BED FROM ONE TO TWO MILES WIDE. OVER THIS TERRAIN, WEAPONS PLANTED ON THE WEST BANK OF THE RIVER CAN POUR A DEADLY FIRE. THE CLIFFS FORM AN ANTI-TANK BARRIER TO ARMORED UNITS UNDERTAKING A FRONTAL ATTACK ON THE CITY FROM THE EAST.

SEP 26 1943

ON THE WEST SIDE THE RUSSIANS EXCAVATED TANK BARRIERS WHEN THE GERMANS WERE MAKING THEIR EASTWARD SWEEP IN THE FALLS OF 1941. THESE EXCAVATIONS, ABOUT 20 FEET DEEP AND ABOUT AS WIDE, WERE SEVERAL MILES IN LENGTH. THE RUSSIANS ALSO FELLED GIANT TREES ON THE WESTERN OUTSKIRTS OF KIEV.

HITLER'S FORCES WENT AROUND THESE BARRIERS, INVESTING THE CITY FROM THE NORTH AND SOUTHEAST, ACCORDING TO GERMAN MILITARY LEADERS INTERVIEWED IN KIEV SHORTLY AFTER THE GERMAN OCCUPATION. THERE WAS LITTLE EVIDENCE OF SHELLFIRE ON THE WESTERN OUTSKIRTS OF THE CITY.

(MORE)

DALLAS---SECOND ADD KIEV (BY FISCHER) XXX OF THE CITY.

NOW THAT THE SITUATION IS REVERSED, WITH THE RUSSIANS SWEEPING WESTWARD TOWARD KIEV, UNCONFIRMED REPORTS THAT SOVIET SPEARHEADS HAVE CRACKED THE DNIEPER RIVER LINE NORTH OF KIEV MAY BE SIGNIFICANT.

KIEV RESIDENTS ARE ACCUSTOMED TO BEING IN THE CENTER OF THE FIGHTING GERMAN OCCUPATION AUTHORITIES SAID KIEV, CALLED THE MOTHER OF RUSSIAN CITIES, CHANGED HANDS 16 TIMES BETWEEN 1914 AND 1921.

WHEN THE GERMANS TOOK THE CITY IN SEPTEMBER, 1941, THEY ESTIMATED THE POPULATION HAD SHURNK FROM 850,000 TO 500,000.

BY WILLIAM F.BONI

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, SEPT. 26-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THE FLOODED BUMI RIVER, LESS THAN A MILE ABOVE THE VILLAGE, AND THE ENEMY'S FIXED DEFENSES ON THE SOUTH BANK OF THE STREAM HAVE COMBINED TO SLOW THE PROGRESS OF AUSTRALIAN TROOPS TOWARD FINSCHHAFEN, NEW GUINEA.

LATEST FRONTLINE REPORTS TODAY SAID THE AUSSIES HAVE SUCCEEDED IN TRANSPORTING TROOPS ACROSS THE RIVER SINCE THE CAPTURE OF THE FINSCHHAFEN AIRSTRIP TWO MILES TO THE NORTH, BUT THE PROCEDURE HAS BEEN HAZARDOUS, WITH THE MEN EXPOSED TO ENEMY FIRE.

IT IS BELIEVED, HOWEVER, THAT THE AUSTRALIAN FORCE, WHICH LANDED LAST WEDNESDAY ON A BEACH SIX MILES ABOVE THE FORMER GERMAN MISSIONARY HEADQUARTERS OF FINSCHHAFEN, IS OF SUFFICIENT STRENGTH TO WEAR DOWN ENEMY RESISTANCE IN COMPARATIVELY SHORT ORDER.

THE JAPANESE AIR FORCE ALSO HAS BEEN HARASSING THE AUSSIES, CONCENTRATING IN SEVERAL RAIDS ON ARTILLERY POSITIONS.

FINSCHHAFEN REMAINS VULNERABLE TO ENEMY AIR ATTACK, SINCE THE CAPE GLOUCESTER, NEW BRITAIN, AIRDROME ON ONE SIDE AND THE MADANG, NEW GUINEA, AIRFIELD ON THE OTHER ARE STILL AVAILABLE TO THE JAPANESE AS STAGING POINTS FOR BOMBERS AND FIGHTERS FROM RABAUL OR WEWAK.

(ADVANCE) ASUNCION, SEPT 27-(AP)-IN A WORLD AT WAR, 5,000 PEACE-LOVING MENNONITES HAVE FOUND HAPPINESS IN THE REMOTE AND FORBIDDING PARAGUAYAN CHACO.

SEP 26 1943

ALMOST OUT OF TOUCH WITH THE REST OF CIVILIZATION, SUBJECT ONLY TO THEIR OWN LAWS AND TAXES, SPEAKING THEIR DIALECT OF OLD GERMAN, THE TWENTIETH CENTURY "PILGRIMS" HAVE CREATED A WORLD OF THEIR OWN. EXCEPT FOR A FEW BATTERY RADIOS AND COMMUNITY-OWNED FARM MACHINES, THE MENNONITES ARE LIVING ALMOST AS PRIMITIVE AN EXISTENCE AS DID THE RELIGIOUS REFUGEES WHO LANDED ON PLYMOUTH ROCK IN 1620.

PARAGUAY'S MENNONITES ARE FORMER CITIZENS OF THE UNITED STATES, RUSSIA, CANADA, ENGLAND, HOLLAND AND SPAIN WHO BEGAN THEIR TREK INTO THE CHACO 18 YEARS AGO. THE PARAGUAYAN GOVERNMENT GRANTED THEM COMPLETE LOCAL AUTONOMY, INCLUDING RELIGIOUS FREEDOM, EXEMPTION FROM MILITARY SERVICE AND A TEN-YEAR EXEMPTION FROM IMPORT DUTIES AND NATIONAL TAXES. THE TAX-FREE AGREEMENT WAS LATER EXTENDED AN EXTRA DECADE.

THE GOVERNMENT HAS ALSO PROHIBITED THE SALE OF LIQUOR IN OR NEAR THE MENNONITE COLONIES, A RESTRICTION IT HAS BEEN UNNECESSARY TO ENFORCE. FOR, ASIDE FROM SEVERAL TRIBES OF NOMAD INDIANS, THE MENNONITES ARE THE ONLY SETTLERS IN THE AREA.

AIDED BY FRIENDLY INDIANS, THE HARD-WORKING MENNONITES SEND SOME OF THE WORLD'S BEST COTTON TO ASUNCION. THEY ALSO PRODUCE TOBACCO COTTON-SEED AND PEANUT OIL, USING THE PROCEEDS FOR COMMUNITY WORKS. THEY HAVE A REFRIGERATION PLANT, SAWMILL, COTTON-GIN, OIL PRESS, SEVERAL TRUCKS (NOW STALLED FOR LACK OF GASOLINE) AND FARM MACHINERY. THE LATEST AQUISITION IS A ROAD-BUILDING MACHINE. IT WILL BE USED BY A CANADIAN MENNONITE ENGINEER TO IMPROVE COMMUNICATIONS BETWEEN THE COLONISTS' CAPITAL AT PHILADELPHIA AND THE OTHER COMMUNITIES AT CAMBARAY, FARENHEINN, PALO SANTO AND PALO BLANCO.

THE COLONISTS ARE HELPED IN THE ROADWORK AND ON THE FARMS BY TABO INDIANS WHO HERETOFORE WERE REPUTED TO BE A SURLY LOT, SUSPICIOUS OF WHITE MEN. WON BY FRIENDLY TREATMENT, MANY TABOS HAVE GIVEN UP A WANDERING EXISTENCE TO SETTLE ON MENNONITE FARMS AS ASSISTANTS.

THE PROSPERITY OF THE COLONIES TODAY IS A GREAT ADVANCE OVER THE CONDITIONS EXPERIENCED BY THE FIRST ARRIVALS IN 1925. THEY WERE RUSSIANS WHO HAD WORKED THEIR WAY THROUGH SIBERIA AND CHINA, REACHING ASUNCION DESTITUTE. IN THE PARAGUAYAN CAPITAL THEY MET JUAN CASADO, ELDERLY ARGENTINE WHO FOR 50 YEARS HAS BEEN GETTING QUEBRACHO WOOD FROM NORTHERN PARAGUAY'S FORESTS. SR. CASADO EXTENDED CREDIT AND THE USE OF HIS SHIPS AND RAILROAD. THE FIRST COLONY WAS ESTABLISHED NEAR THE CASADO RAILROAD'S KILOMETER 145 STATION. FOR THE FIRST TWO OR THREE YEARS OF THEIR LIFE IN PARAGUAY, THE MENNONITES' MONEY CONSISTED OF ODD SCRAPS OF PAPER ON WHICH THE FARMERS PENCILED "I.O.U'S."

SR. CASADO SAID EVERY ONE OF THE SCRAPS WAS REDEEMED. "THEY ARE POOR BUT VERY HONEST," HE SAYS. "THEY MAY TAKE THREE YEARS TO PAY, BUT THEY ALWAYS PAY."

ARRIVING ABOUT TWO YEARS AGO, THE 200-ODD AMERICAN MENNONITES--MOSTLY FROM LANCASTER COUNTY, PA., FOUND LIFE COMPARATIVELY EASY. THEIR LAND HAD BEEN PURCHASED IN ADVANCE AND THERE WAS A READY MARKET

FOR THEIR PRODUCTS. THE AMERICANS HAVE SPECIALIZED IN COTTON, ALTHOUGH EACH FAMILY RAISES ITS OWN VEGETABLES, DAIRY PRODUCTS, CHICKENS AND CATTLE. MOST CLOTHES IN THE HOT CHACO ARE OF COTTON, GROWN AND SPUN ON THE MENNONITE FARMS.

SR. CASADO, ON A RECENT VISIT TO THE MENNONITE COLONIES, FOUND THE AMERICANS "HAPPY AND ACCLIMATED." THEY WERE TAKING AN INTEREST IN THE ELECTION OF THE VILLAGE BURGOMASTERS AND ONE OF THEM HAD BEEN ELECTED ADMINISTRATOR OF A MIXED COLONY. THE MENNONITES HAVE NO COURTS OR POLICEMEN, AND APPARENTLY HAVE NO NEED OF THEM.

THE SIMPLE LIFE OF THE MENNONITES AND THEIR SUCCESS IN FARMING THE UNINHABITED CHACO AREA HAS PROMPTED THE GOVERNMENT TO EXTEND FURTHER ASSISTANCE, INCLUDING SEVERAL SPANISH INSTRUCTORS FOR MENNONITE SCHOOLS. HERETOFORE ONLY THE RUSSIANS HAD LEARNED A LITTLE SPANISH. BUT THE CHILDREN ARE INTEREST IN LEARNING THE LANGUAGE.

THE MENNONITES, ON THE OTHER HAND, HAVE HELPED PARAGUAY BY PRODUCI NEEDED GOODS. ALTHOUGH THE PRINCIPAL TENENT OF THEIR RELIGION IS PACIFISM, THE MENNONITES FURNISHED THE PARAGUAYAN ARMY IN THE THREE-YEAR CHACO WAR WITH LARGE QUANTITIES OF FOOD AND COTTON.

JUST BEFORE THE OUTBREAK OF THE PRESENT WORLD WAR, THE MENNONITES WERE ARRANGING TO TRADE WITH BOLIVIAN BORDER TOWNS, EXCHANGING COTTON AND FOOD OILS FOR FUEL AND MANUFACTURED GOODS. THE PRESENT SCARCITY OF GASOLINE HAS POSTPONED THAT PLAN FOR THE DURATION. FROM THE MENNONITE CAPITAL AT PHILADELPHIA, THEIR GOODS TRAVEL A DAY TO THE RAILROAD BY CART, FIVE HOURS TO PORT CASADO (THE TRAIN RUNS WEEKLY OR DAILY, DEPENDING ON THE VOLUME OF QUEBRACHO) AND 36 HOURS BY BOAT TO ASUNCION.

IN RECENT YEARS THE MENNONITES HAVE BOUGHT FORTY LEAGUES (120,000 ACRES) OF LAND NEXT TO THE ORIGINAL 100 SQUARE LEAGUES (300,000 ACRES) THEY AQUIRED FROM CASADO. THE LAND COST THEM ABOUT FIVE DOLLARS AN ACRE.

THE MENNONITES HAVE BUILT A HOSPITAL MANNED BY DOCTORS AND NURSES WHO CAME WITH RECENT CANADIAN ARRIVALS. THEY NOW ACCEPT THE IDEA THAT MEDICINE IS NECESSARY. HOWEVER, WHEN THEY FIRST ARRIVED, THE RUSSIANS WERE ATTACKED BY A TYPHUS EPIDEMIC. THEY REFUSED MEDICAL ATTENTION ON THE THEORY THAT THE EPIDEMIC WAS A PUNISHMENT FOR THEIR SINS. THE PARAGUAYAN GOVERNMENT SENT A RUSSIAN DOCTOR INTO THE COLONY TO CURE THEM BY FORE.

SINCE THEN, EXCEPT FOR A MILD SIEGE OF TRACOMA, THE COLONY HAS ENJOYED GENERAL GOOD HEALTH.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: THIS IS THE FIRST OF A SERIES OF FOUR ARTICLES BASED UPON THE BOOK "BEHIND THE STEEL WALL," JUST WRITTEN BY THE SWEDISH NEWSPAPERMAN ARVID FREDBORG. IT PRESENTS THE MOST UP TO DATE PICTURE OF INSIDE GERMANY SINCE AMERICAN NEWSPAPERMEN LEFT THERE IN DECEMBER, 1941. FREDBORG ARRIVED IN GERMANY IN FEBRUARY, 1941, AND LEFT IN JUNE, 1943. IN MORE THAN TWO YEARS AS BERLIN CORRESPONDENT FOR THE CONSERVAATIVE STOCKHOLM NEWSPAPER SVENSKA DAGBLADET HIS COMPETENT OBSERVATIONS OF THE GERMAN SCENE HAVE MADE HIM ONE OF THE MOST QUOTED SWEDISH NEWSMEN.)

BY EDWIN SHANKE

(ADVANCE) STOCKHOLM--(AP)-ADOLF HITLER GIVES THE IMPRESSION OF A MAN CONSCIOUS OF THE FACT THAT SAND RUNS RAPIDLY THROUGH THE HOUR GLASS, SAYS ARVID FREDBORG, WIDELY KNOWN SWEDISH NEWSPAPER MAN WHO RETURNED HOME RECENTLY AFTER TWO YEARS IN GERMANY.

NOT ONLY IS DER FEUHRER'S HISTORICAL TIME RUNNING OUT BUT FREDBORG SAYS IN HIS NEW BOOK, "BEHIND THE STEEL WALL," THAT THE MASTER OF GERMANY IS AGING HIMSELF.

FREDBORG'S BOOK, COVERING THE PERIOD SINCE AMERICAN NEWSPAPER CORRESPONDENTS LEFT GERMANY, PRESENTS A MOST COMPREHENSIVE VIEW OF THE INTERIOR WORKINGS OF GERMANY.

DURING HITLER'S NUMEROUS NERVOUS BREAKDOWNS, FREDBORG WRITES, POLITICAL POWER HAS BEEN IN THE HANDS OF HEINRICH HIMMLER AND MARTIN BORMANN, TWO OF THE MOST POWERFUL MEN IN GERMANY, AND THE MILITARY CONTROL IN THE HANDS OF PARTY MEN.

BORMANN, CHIEF OF THE NAZI PARTY CHANCELLERY, SUCCEEDED RUDOLF HESS BUT WITHOUT HESS'S TITLE OF DEPUTY FUEHRER, AND HAS BEEN EMERGING WITH GREATER POWER THAN HESS EVER HAD. IN HIS HANDS HAVE BEEN PLACED EXTENSIVE NEW AUTHORITY IN DOMESTIC AND PARTY MATTERS.

IT IS EVEN DOUBTFUL WHETHER HITLER DURING THE PERIODS WHEN HE HAS BEEN IN FULL HEALTH HAS BEEN TOLD THE WHOLE TRUTH ABOUT GERMANY'S SITUATION, THE BOOK CONTINUES.

IT IS QUITE NATURAL THAT HIS SUBORDINATES ARE TEMPTED TO TOUCH UP THE SITUATION BECAUSE THEY HAVE TO DEAL WITH A VERY STERN MASTER WHO LIVES IN PRACTICALLY TOTAL ISOLATION AND SESS ONLY A FEW PERSONS.

THE FOREIGN CORRESPONDENT HAS TO DEAL MAINLY WITH HITLER'S POLITICAL AND MILITARY LEADERSHIP. HIS ATTITUDE TOWARD POLITICS MIGHT BE DESCRIBED AS CYNICAL REALISM. BUT THIS IS ONLY SHAM. HIS FEELINGS AND PERSONAL ATTITUDE FTEN HAVE PL

FEELINGS AND PERSONAL ATTITUDE OFTEN HAVE PLAYED A MUCH BIGGER ROLE THAN PERSONS OUTSIDE GERMANY CAN IMAGINE.

DECISIONS MAY WAIT FOR WEEKS BECAUSE HITLER'S AIDES DON'T DARE PRESENT SOMETHING UNPOPULAR UNTIL HE CAN HAVE COMPENSATION IN SOME FORM. MANY TIMES HIS PERSONAL DISLIKES HAVE BEEN DECISIVE FOR GERMAN'S POLICY.

IT IS THIS IRRATIONAL POINT WHICH IS SO DANGEROUS. AS A MILITARY LEADER HITLER HAS A GENIUS FOR OUTLINING GRADIOSE PLANS OF ATTACK. BUT HE ALSO HAS AN INCLINATION FOR FIDDLING WITH DETAILS WHICH HAS IRRITATED GERMAN MILITARY MEN.

TO BE HIS CHIEF OF STAFF IS HARD WORK. THE POOR CHIEF MAY BE CALLED IN 30 TIMES A DAY TO EXPLAIN DETAILS ABOUT THE FRONT WHICH ARE OF LITTLE IMPORTANCE AND WHICH OUGHT TO BE LEFT TO THE COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF ON THE GROUND.

HITLER MAY ALSO DELAY SOME QUESTION OF MILITARY EQUIPMENT BY PROFESSING THAT HE WANTS TO TEST THE ARTICLE HIMSELF. HE IS CONVINCED THAT HE IS ONE OF THE GREATEST SOLDIERS IN HISTORY BUT TO BE A GREAT SOLDIER ONE MUST HAVE SOMETHING MORE THAN POLITICAL GENIUS.

HITLER MISSED THIS "MORE" AND THEREFORE HIS AUTHORITY AS A MILITARY LEADER WAS DISSIPATED ON THE VAST RUSSIAN OPEN SPACES AND THE AFRICAN DESERT. IRONICALLY, HITLER IS OFTEN CALLED "DER GROESSTE FELDHERR ALLERZEIT" (GREATEST SOLDIER ALL TIME).

SEVERAL STORIES ARE TOLD ABOUT HIS MILITARY LEADERSHIP. ONE OF THEM DESCRIBES A CONVERSATCON BETWEEN FIELD MARSHAL FEDOR VON BOCK AND THE FAMOUS CONDUCTOR DR.WILHELM FURTWANGLER.

FURTWANGLER ASKED VON BOCK, FORMER CHIEF OF THE GERMANY ARMY HIGH COMMAND: "WHY WERE YOU DISMISSED?"

VON BOCK REPLIED: "MY DEAR FURTWANGLER, IF THE FUEHRER HAD BEEN ABLE TO PLAY THE HARMONICA YOU WOULD HAVE BEEN DISMISSED AS A CONDUCTOR, TOO."

SEP 26 1943

BEHIND THE SWASTIKA FACADE THERE IS A STRUGGLE OF ONE LEADER AGAINST ANOTHER IN THE HIGHEST NAZI CIRCLES, BUT THEY KEEP TOGETHER BECAUSE THEY KNOW THE TERRIBLE FATE THAT AWAITS THEM IF THE NAZI CLIQUE OF HITLER, GOEBBELS, HIMMLER, GOERING, BORMANN AND OTHERS IS UNABLE TO KEEP A UNITED CONTROL OVER THE REICH.

GOERING AND GOEBBELS ARE OLD ENEMIES, BUT THEY COMBINE THEIR FORCES AGAINST VON RIBBENTROP. HE HAS AN ALLY IN HIMMLER BUT VON RIBBENTROP AND HIMMLER AT THE SAME TIME COMPETE THEIR HARDEST IN THE FIELD OF QUISLING ADMINISTRATIVE POLICY.

HIMMLER IS THE GREATEST SUPPORTER OF THE QUISLINGS, BUT RIBBENTROP HAS TRIED MANY TIMES TO RESTRAIN THEM. THE SITUATION CAN CHANGE FROM ONE WEEK TO THE NEXT.

WHATEVER IS THE ACTUAL BALANCE OF POWER WITHIN THE NAZI PARTY, IT FREQUENTLY HAS BEEN SAID THAT GOERING IS THE MAN OF THE ARMY.

MUCH SPEAKS AGAINST SUCH AN INTERPRETATION, HOWEVER, AND THE SITUATION MIGHT DEVELOP WHERE ACTION MUST BE TAKEN AND WHERE ARMY LEADERS, THE FORMER IMPERIAL OFFICERS AND THE CHIEF OF THE LUFTWAFFE, CAN FIND A COMMON LINE. IT IS DIFFICULT TO SAY WHETHER THIS HAS HAPPENED NOW.

BUT FREDBORG FEELS THAT HIMMLER'S APPOINTMENT TO INTERNAL CONTROL IS A LIKELY COUNTER-BALANCE AGAINST SOMETHING--PERHAPS AGAINST GOERING. HIMMLER IS HITLER'S FIRST TRUMP CARD. HE DEPENDS UPON HIM BECAUSE OF HIMMLER'S OWN UNPOPULARITY.

BY EDWIN SHANKE

(ADVANCE) STOCKHOLM, SEPT 26-(AP)-A MILLION AND A HALF MORE GERMAN WOMEN MUST BE HARNESSED INTO WAR INDUSTRY BECAUSE OF THE FAILURE OF FOREIGNERS TO PRODUCE, WHILE AT THE SAME TIME GERMANY'S RAW MATERIAL SUPPLIES HAVE REACHED SUCH A LOW LEVEL THAT THE MOST EXTREME ECONOMY MUST BE PRACTICED.

SEP 26 1943

THE LONGER THE WAR LASTS AND ECONOMIC ATTRITION DRAINS AND STRAINS NAZI RESOURCES, THE CLEARER IT BECOMES THAT THE NAZIS ACTUALLY ARE NOT SOLVING THEIR MANPOWER SHORTAGE BY IMPRESSING FOREIGN LABOR.

ONE NAZI DISTRICT LEADER REVEALED IN A SPEECH THAT MOST GERMAN WOMEN WOULD HAVE TO GO TO WORK IN WAR PLANTS, BECAUSE "ALL THE FOREIGN WORKERS ARE VERY BAD. THEY HAVE BEEN USED ON IMPORTANT JOBS AND THEY LOAF MORE THAN THEY WORK. REGULAR GERMAN WORKERS MUST STAY AT THE FRONT. WE MUST USE MORE GERMAN WOMEN."

PROF. ALBERT SPEER, PRODUCTION CZAR, POINTED TO THIS AND OTHER DIFFICULTIES IN SEPTEMBER WHEN HE DECREED THAT ALL PRODUCTION NOT SERVING A WAR PURPOSE MUST HAVE SPECIAL PERMISSION. MANY WORKERS WERE TRANSFERRED TO WAR SHOPS. NAZI COMMENTATORS SAID THAT HEREAFTER AS MANY GERMANS AS POSSIBLE WOULD REPLACE FOREIGN WAR WORKERS BECAUSE OF THEIR INEFFICIENCY.

"MISTAKES" WERE BEING MADE--WRONG SWITCHES AND LEVERS PULLED AT THE WRONG TIMES. FOREIGN LABORERS WERE NOT FOLLOWING SPECIFICATIONS AND INSTRUCTIONS.

WHEN THEIR MISTAKES WERE POINTED OUT THEY MERELY SHRUGGED AND EXPLAINED THEY COULD NOT UNDERSTAND THE LANGUAGE. OFFICIALS NOW INSIST THAT FOREIGNERS BE MADE TO UNDERSTAND TERMS NECESSARY IN THEIR PARTICULAR FIELDS.

IN MUNICH, STREET CARS ARE BEING USED TO DELIVER EXPRESS GOODS FOR THE ADDRESSEE TO PICK IT UP BECAUSE THERE ARE NOT ENOUGH HANDS TO MAKE HOME DELIVERIES. INVALID SOLDIERS ARE TAKING OVER NAZI PARTY WORK FORMERLY DONE BY ABLE-BODIED MEN.

THE SCARCITY OF CLEAN-UP SQUADS FORCED THE BERLIN POLICE CHIEF TO ORDER HOUSEHOLDERS TO SWEEP GLASS FROM THE STREETS IN FRONT OF THEIR HOMES AFTER BOMBINGS TO SAVE VALUABLE VEHICLE TIRES. LETTER BOXES FREQUENTLY ARE OVERFLOWING BECAUSE OF A SHORTAGE OF POSTAL WORKERS, AND THERE HAVE BEEN MANY LETTER BOX THEFTS. THE POLICE HAVE WARNED "IF YOUR PILLAR BOX IS FILLED WALK TO THE NEXT ONE."

SEP 26 1943

NAZI ECONOMIC WRITERS HAVE BEEN MAKING ASTOUNDING ADMISSIONS REGARDING SHORTAGES--SHORTAGES WHICH THEY SAY ARE AT LEAST PARTIALLY BEING REPLACED THROUGH THE USE OF COSTLY SUBSTITUTES.

IN THE LIGHT OF RUSSIAN ARMY ADVANCES--WHICH ARE DRIVING THE NAZIS FROM RICH AND COVETED RUSSIAN SOIL--THESE ACUTE SUPPLY SHORTAGES IN THIS FIFTH YEAR OF WAR ARE MOST SIGNIFICANT.

AN OFFICIAL OF "DEUTSCHEN WAFFEN UND MINITIONSFABRIK," ONE OF GERMANY'S OUTSTANDING MUNITIONS FIRMS, HAS SAID BLUNTLY THAT GERMANY LACKS LEAD FOR BULLETS. HE LISTED BRASS, ZINC, COPPER, WOLFRAM, QUICKSILVER, MANGANESE AND "TO A CERTAIN EXTENT EVEN STEEL" AMONG WAR-VITAL METALS ON WHICH FACTORIES "MUST ECONOMIZE IN THE MOST EXTREME."

AT THE SAME TIME HE SHOWED HOW GERMANY WAS TRYING TO MAKE UP FOR THESE DEFICIENCIES WITH ERSATZ MATERIALS. THUS, BRASS CARTRIDGE CASES WERE REPLACED BY SIMPLE CARBON STEEL AND ERSATZ WAS ALSO FOUND FOR

1943

THE LEAD IN BULLETS WITHOUT AFFECTING BALLISTICS, HE SAID.

THESE SHORTAGES ARE SHOWING UP IN PRACTICAL WAYS EVEN AFTER FIVE YEARS OF SCRAP COLLECTIONS. STREET LAMP POSTS, FOR EXAMPLE, ARE SLATED FOR WAR MELTING POTS.

BREWERIES ARE SURRENDERING THEIR COPPER KETTLES AND COPPER ALLOY, USING SUBSTITUTE UTENSILS.

ONE SWEDE WHO FOUGHT ON THE EASTERN FRONT WITH THE GERMANS AS A VOLUNTEER SAID SOLDIERS NO LONGER ARE PERMITTED TO SHOOT AS MUCH AMMUNITION AS THEY PLEASE. EVERY HAND GRENADE MUST COUNT AND WAR VEHICLES MUST NO LONGER BE WARMED UP--A GAS-SAVING MEASURE.

OTHER SIGNS OF SHORTAGES:

THE FABRIC AROUND ELECTRIC WIRING IS SAVED AS WELL AS COPPER WIRING; MUSIC STORES ARE BEING CLOSED; FALSE TEETH ARE OUT AND MAIL ORDER WOODEN HOUSES SENT BY SWEDEN TO NORWAY ARE NOW BEING TAKEN BY THE GERMANS AND SENT TO GERMANY. THERE HAVE BEEN STRONG APPEALS FOR THE CONSERVATION OF ELECTRIC POWER.

AN EXAMPLE OF WHAT IS HAPPENING IN GERMANY WAS GIVEN BY A WORKER WHO RECENTLY ARRIVED IN SWEDEN AFTER SPENDING FOUR MONTHS IN A METAL PLANT. BETWEEN THE END OF APRIL, AND SEPT. 1, 1942, HE SAID, PRODUCTION DETERIORATED IN THE PLANT BY 40 PER CENT.

"THIS WAS DUE," HE EXPLAINED, "TO SEVERAL REASONS. MINERALS AT THE OUTBREAK OF THE WAR CONTAINED A PERCENTAGE OF 70 PER CENT OF LEAD, WHICH NOW HAS DROPPED TO 40 PER CENT. MINERALS PREVIOUSLY IMPORTED FROM RUSSIA HAVE BEEN REPLACED BY ALL KINDS OF INGREDIENTS WHICH OFTEN MAKES IT NECESSARY TO PUT SLAG INTO A FURNACE TWICE, AS THE PROPORTION OF LEAD OR TIN LOST IS VERY LARGE. BEFORE THE RUSSIAN WAR, LEAD INGOT PRODUCTION VARIED FROM 400 TO 600 IN EIGHT HOURS WHEREAS NOW THEY NEVER SURPASS 250 TO 300.

"THERE IS A LACK OF MANPOWER. THE FACTORY FORMERLY EMPLOYED 1000 WORKERS AND WAS FORCED TO REDUCE ITS PERSONNEL BECAUSE OF 'CALL-UPS'.

"RUSSIAN AND FRENCH WAR PRISONERS AND POLISH CIVILIANS REPLACED GERMANS UNTIL THE PERCENTAGE OF FOREIGNERS IN VARIOUS SHOPS VARIED FROM 30 TO 70 PER CENT.

"THE SHORTAGE OF COAL, TRACED TO THE RUHR BOMBINGS, AFFECTED THE WORK BADLY AND WHEN I LEFT SOME FURNACES WERE EXTINGUISHED BECAUSE OF THE LACK OF FUEL. THE FACTORIES HAVE FELT THE EFFECTS OF STEEL PLANT BOMBINGS IN A SHORTAGE OF TOOLS AND A LACK OF REPLACEMENTS FOR FURNACES."

SEP 26 1943

LEAVES FROM A WAR CORRESPONDENT'S NOTEBOOK

(ADVANCE)...A U.S. FIGHTER BASE IN ITALY, SEPT 21-(DELAYED)-(AP)-WHEN A FIGHTER PILOT GOES OUT ON A MISSION AND DOESN'T COME BACK THE BOYS WHO DID COME BACK CUT THE CARDS FOR HIS MILITARY EFFECTS THAT ARE NOT MAILED HOME.

MONEY PHOTOS JEWELRY--SUCH THINGS AS THESE ARE SENT TO THE PILOT'S RELATIVES, BUT NOT BED ROLLS, TOILET ARTICLES, TOWELS AND TRAVELING BAGS. THESE ARTICLES ARE URGENTLY NEEDED HERE AT ALL TIMES AND ARE KEPT IN THE STRUGGLING FAMILY.

THEY CUT THE CARDS FOR LT. DARREL E. WILLIAMS OF 422 SOUTH ELRINO

1943

ST. BALTIMORE MD. AFTER ME WAS SHOT DOWN BY FLAK SEPTEMBER 10 WHILE STRAFING A ROAD FROM AULETTA TO POTENZA.

IT WASN'T A CHEERFUL SCENE. THE 23-YEAR-OLD PILOT, A SLIM BLOND WITH BLUE EYES, WAS WELL LIKED. THAT DIDN'T MAKE IT ANY EASIER FOR THE BOYS WHO CUT THE CARDS.

THEN ONE EVENING EIGHT DAYS AFTER WILLIAMS DISAPPEARED A BEDRAGGLED FIGURE IN A BLUE SHIRT AND BROWN PANTS SEVERAL SIZES TOO LARGE FOR HIM JUMPED OFF A JEEP AND WALKED TOWARD THE A-36 INVADER SQUADRON BIVOUAC IN A GREAT GROVE OF TREES.

"WHAT IS IT--A SCARECROW"? SOMEBODY ASKED.

"IT IS NOT A SCARECROW, IT IS ME," SAID WILLIAMS, INDIGNANT AT BEING MISTAKEN FOR AN ITALIAN CIVILIAN. "AND FURTHERMORE I AM HUNGRY.

"HE LOOKS LIKE A ZOOTSUITER IN THAT GETUP," SAID A FLIER FRIEND. LT. ROBERT P.WILLS OF 535 POWELL PLACE, INDIANAPOLIS, IND. "AND HIS FACE AND ARMS HAVE A MILLION FLEA BITES."

AFTER THE PILOT HAD WASHED, FLUNG AWAY HIS FLEA-FILLED GARMENTS AND REVIVED HIS STOMACH WITH SOME HOT AMERICAN CHOW, HE TOLD HOW HE HAD DODGED GERMAN PATROLS FOR EIGHT DAYS IN A HIKE THROUGH NAZI LINES WITH THE HELP OF FRIENDLY ITALIAN CIVILIANS WHO SET UP AN IMPROMPTU UNDERGROUND RAILWAY TO GET HIM THROUGH SAFELY.

"I HAD STRAFED A GERMAN TRUCK FROM 500 FEET AND WAS PULLING UP WHE A CHUNK OF FLAK CAUGHT MY ENGINE," WILLIAM SAID. "I PULLED UP TO 1,000 FEET BETWEEN MOUNTAINS. MY SPEED WAS ABOUT 200 MILES AN HOUR. THERE WAS NOTHING TO DO BUT GET OUT OR CRASH IN A CANYON I JETTISONED MY CANOPY AND BAILED OUT ON THE LEFT SIDE OF THE COCKPIT.

"I HURT MY RIGHT LEG GETTING OUT. IT TOOK LESS THAN A MINUTE TO PARACHUTE DOWN. I HIT THE GROUND HARD WHICH DIDN'T HELP MY BUM LEG ANY. I LANDED NEAR A RAILROAD STATION. THIS WAS THE DAY AFTER THE INVASION BEGAN AND IT WAS STILL ENEMY TERRITORY.

SOME ITALIANS RAN UP AND BEGAN SHAKING MY HAND THEN THEY PICKED UP MY PARACHUTE AND HUSTLED ME INTO THE RAILROAD STATION. THEY HID ME THERE BECAUSE THE GERMANS HAD SEEN ME COMING DOWN AND SENT A PATROL TO SEARCH FOR ME. THE NAZIS WERE ALL OVER THE PLACE, I LAY UNDER A SHELF IN THE STATION WHILE THEY SEARCHED FOR ME A FEW FEET AWAY.

"AFTER THEY LEFT THE ITALIANS TOOK ME TO A PRIVATE HOUSE AND I STAYE THERE FOR TWO NIGHTS. THE THIRD DAY THEY RUSHED ME TO ANOTHER HOUSE AFTER THE GERMANS STARTED ANOTHER SEARCH FOR ME. I HID UNDER THE BED.

"THE ITALIANS WERE DEATHLY AFRAID OF THE GERMANS. THEY SAID IF THE GERMANS CAUGHT ME IN THEIR HOUSE EVERY ONE WOULD BE SHOT. I DECIDED TO HEAD FOR THE MOUNTAINS. ONE MAN BROUGHT ME A BLUE COAT AND PAIR OF BROWN PANTS THAT WERE FULL OF FLEAS. THE FLEAS WERE EVERYWHERE. I COULDN'T SLEEP BECAUSE OF THEM. THEY HIT ME FROM ALL SIDES.

SEP 26 1943

"AFTER I WAS DRESSED THE ITALIANS STARTED WITH ME DOWN THE FRONT WAY AND UPON SEEING GERMANS IN THE STREET THEY TURNED AND SNEAKED ME OUT THE BACK. I MET TWO OTHER ITALIANS ON THE WAY TO THE MOUNTAINS AND STAYED THAT NIGHT IN A CAVE WITH THEM. I STAYED ANOTHER NIGHT WITH A SECOND GROUP AND SET OUT ALONE ACROSS THE MOUNTAINS TOWARD SALERNO.

"I MET NUMEROUS FARMERS WHO GAVE ME FOOD ALONG THE WAY. THEY FED ME ALL SORTS OF FRUIT--GRAPES, PEACHES, PEARS, FIGS--FRIED POTATOES AND GOAT MEAT. THE GOAT MEAT WASN'T BAD AT ALL, IT WAS A LITTLE LIKE

1943

MUTTON. MOST OF THESE OLD FARMERS HAVE BEEN IN BROOKLYN AT ONE TIME. THEY ALL WANTED ME TO STAY LONGER AND INSISTED ON MISSING ME ON THE CHEEK WHEN I LEFT AND ONE TIME I STAYED TWO DAYS THINKING THE ENGLISH PATROLS WOULD BE THROUGH. WHEN I LEFT THE FARMER LED ME ACROSS THE MOUNTAINS TO THE HOME OF ANOTHER FARMER WHERE I STAYED THE REST OF THAT DAY AND NIGHT.

"THE NEXT DAY I CAUGHT UP WITH ONE OF OUR INFANTRY OUTFITS AND THEY FIXED ME UP WITH A JEEP RIDE. DURING THE EIGHT DAYS I WAS GONE I SAW SEVERAL FLIGHTS OF OUR PLANES. THEY DON'T KNOW WHAT A SENSATION IT IS TO BE IN A TOWN OR MOVING ALONG A ROAD THEY ARE STRAFING OR BOMBING. I'D RATHER BE IN ONE OF THOSE PLANES THAN UNDER IT ANY OLD TIME.

"YOU KNOW A FUNNY THING HAPPENED. I LIMPED SO MUCH FAVORING MY SORE RIGHT LEG IN MY 30 MILE HIKE ACROSS THE MOUNTAINS THAT I WORE OUT THE SOLE ON MY LEFT SHOE."

AFTER TELLING HIS STORY WILLIAMS DISCOVERED THAT THE CARDS HAD BEEN CUT FOR HIM DURING HIS ABSENCE AND THAT HIS PERSONAL GEAR HAD BEEN DIVIDED AMONG THE MEN WHO HAD GIVEN HIM UP FOR LOST.

"YOU COUNTED ME OUT TOO SOON," HE SAID, "I MAY HAVE BEEN DOWN BUT I WASN'T OUT. COME ON YOU VULTURES, HAND IT BACK!".

A. E. F. Breaches Nazi Line East of Naples, Advances 11 Miles; Russians Shell Kiev, Fight Way Into Dniepropetrovsk Suburb

Germans Retreat Ten Miles in Mountain Sector North of Salerno.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 27.—(AP) Allied armies surged forward tonight along a 108-mile front across Italy to within striking distance of the great Foggia airbase near the Adriatic and the key highway center of Avellino, possession of which would flank Naples to the east and unlock a new road into the demolished port city.

After a solid week of pounding from the American Fifth army and Allied air might, the Germans retreated 10 miles in a critical mountain sector northeast of Salerno and the pursuing Yanks captured Cassano, 50 miles due east of Naples and 10 miles southeast of Avellino. The victory drove a deep salient into Nazi positions. The enemy resorted to rear guard retreat. Their artillery slackened in tell-tale defeat.

Eighth Army Reaches Plain

On the eastern end of the front, the British Eighth army streamed across the Ofanto river at two points at least and burst onto the Foggia plains within 22 miles (the Cairo radio said 18) of that city with its 13 airfields. From these Allied bombers could easily reach all the Balkans.

Steadily mopping up Corsica, French troops and American Rangers drove in on the escape port of Bastia from the south and west through sharp German patrol and artillery reaction. Considerable losses were inflicted on the Germans and prisoners were taken, a French communique said. The airport of Ghisonaccia, 44 miles south of Bastia, was abandoned by the Germans after they had demolished equipment and fuel. Other troops were within seven miles of Bastia, where German flight from the island "is seriously hampered" by Allied planes. The enemy also was trying to escape from east of Borgo.

10 Axis Ships Sunk

(The British Admiralty announced in London that British submarines had sunk 10 vessels and damaged six others in attacks on Nazi forces attempting to withdraw troops and material by sea from Bastia.

(Four small supply ships, a ferry and two landing craft were sunk by gunfire, and a large supply ship and two small supply ships were sunk by torpedoes, the announcement said. Two landing craft and a small auxiliary vessel were declared damaged by gunfire, and a small supply ship and two large tankers were destroyed, one of the tankers subsequently being beached.)

The Eighth army dashed north along the Adriatic coastal road to seize the important salt manufacting city of Margherita di Savoia and the inland town of Cerignola.

Ready to Yield City

Apparently resigned to the loss of Foggia (pop. 62,340), the Germans concentrated practically all their combat troops in southern Italy against Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's Fifth army which was striking frontally and on the right flank of Naples. This left the Eighth army free to advance as rapidly as it could bring up supplies and overcome road demolitions.

The only contact Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery reported with the enemy was north of captured Atella in the center. The German command appeared to be confronted with the alternative either of pulling back this force or having it enveloped by a British move inland from the direction of Cerignola.

Havy Battle Rages

In strong contrast with the almost complete absence of opposition on the Eighth army front, British units of the Fifth army were locked in a toe-to-toe slugging match with strong German forces on the extreme western end of the front — immediately north and northwest of Salerno.

A military spokesman called this battle phase near the sea the most ferocious fought by any Allied troops in the Mediterranean since the Egyptian battle of El Alamein nearly a year ago. The British stormed and took "limited objectives" in the mountains. They still had four miles to go before breaking into open ground on the road to Naples.

(London reported the British navy had intervened, shelling the Germans with land batteries of 25-pounders and American Long Tom 155-mm cannon.)

The threat to Avellino from the capture of Cassano imperilled the whole German defense of Naples. Major roads radiate from Avellino (pop. 29,091) in almost every direction. The town is athwart an important road of retreat northward for enemy forces now holding lines north of Salerno. If that route is cut, the enemy would be compelled to pull back to the northwest through or near Naples where communications already have been badly shattered.

Capture Mountain Town

The Fifth army also drove 10 miles up the Sele river to capture Calabritto, mountain town 27 miles east of Salerno, just north of Valva. In the center, Muro fell, 38 miles due east of Salerno and 18 miles northwest of Potenza.

Unfavorable weather (perhaps the start of the Italian rainy season) limited air activity.

At the southeast foot of Mt. Vesuvius, enemy concentrations were bombed south of Sarno. Road junctions at Benevento and Colle, northeast of Naples were bombed. The Pomigliano d'Arco airdrome outside Naples was hammered.

Middle East bombers struck the Kalamaki airdrome near the Greek capital of Athens and left a ship sinking in the Syros harbor in the Aegean. One Middle East bomber was lost but Allied planes returned from Italian operations. Enemy activity aloft was negligible.

A headquarters announcement said 244 intact or slightly damaged Axis planes had been seized in Italy, 77 at Montecorvino-Ravella, 64 at Vibo Valentia and 103 near Taranto.

"Motor transport north of Foggia was attacked," Gen. Eisenhower's communique said, suggesting the Germans were continuing to retreat from that city and its airfields.

Near Many Axis Targets

Foggia is 465 miles from Vienna, 500 from Munich and 580 from the Ploesti oil fields of Rumania. It lies in the Apulian plain, ideal for tank maneuver.

It is a key railway point of eastern Italy, linked with Allied-held Bari and Brindisi and with German-occupied Pescara, Ancona and Ravena. An electric line links Foggia with Naples. Another railway leads to Potenza. The airfields extend as far as 23 miles from Foggia and have been damaged severely by Allied bombings and probably by Nazi demolitions.

In beating toward the city, the British overran without combat the ancient battle field of Cannae on the Ofanto, where Hannibal in 216 B. C. disastrously defeated the Romans and annihilated their army.

Gen. Clark's advance left the Salerno plain far behind and overran mountain positions dominating the elaborate network of highways leading to Avellino.

Front dispatches said the ten mile gain was made by troops who fought steadily for seven days and frequently at night.

The Fifth army was strengthening avenues of supply before its next big push. The retreating Germans blew up practically all bridges and roads.

Town 50 Miles From Italian Port Is Taken in Drive

By the Associated Press.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 27.—German forces today began a withdrawal in the sector east of Naples on the flank of their positions around the bay and port as American troops of Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's 5th Army registered a new advance of 10 miles. The Germans were offering only rearguard opposition.

In the drive the Americans captured the town of Cassano, which is in the mountains 50 miles due east of Naples.

(The British Navy has joined in the battle for the mountain passes leading to Naples, systematically blasting German positions with a heavy bombardment from its big guns, a Reuters correspondent with the 5th Army said today.)

Simultaneously, the British 8th Army of Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery drove rapidly up the east coast to within 22 miles of the airport center of Foggia, capturing the Adriatic towns of Cerignola and Margherita di Savoia, the latter a large salt manufacturing center.

Slight Opposition to British.

The British, after crossing the Ofanto River which empties into the Gulf of Manfredonia, were meeting only the slightest resistance and were speeding along on straight roads across flat, open country which extends to 30 miles beyond Foggia.

(A Cairo broadcast, recorded by Reuters, said the British were within 18 miles of Foggia, an air base with 12 satellite fields which would give Allied air forces a great springboard for attacks on all parts of the Balkans and much of Germany's southeastern domain.

(The German communique admitted that Nazi Army groups were carrying out another of their retreats "undisturbed by the enemy" in the eastern sector after destruction of traffic installations, but declared attacks northwest and northeast of Salerno were repulsed.)

In capturing Cassano, the Americans drove to a point 18 miles northeast of Salerno and only 10 miles southeast of Avellino, which with Benevento, forms two of the main hubs of German communications in the area east of Naples. Benevento is 15 miles north of Avellino.

Mountain Town Taken.

The troops of Gen. Clark also plunged up the Sele River, farther to the east, for a gain of four and a half miles and captured Calabritto, a mountain community 27 miles east of Salerno. The town is just north of Valva, the capture of which was announced yesterday. In taking Valva the Americans had driven 30 miles in six days.

In the central mountain sector, the British also were marking up steady progress and extended their lines beyond Muro, 18 miles northwest of Potenza and 38 miles directly east of Salerno. They were announced as "still in contact with the enemy just north of Atella," the capture of which was disclosed yesterday. Spinazzola also fell to the British in this area.

The British-American occupation had been pushed up approximately one-sixth the length of the Italian boot in 24 days.

Although the Germans were falling back northeast of Salerno, allowing the Americans to drive a wedge between their forces around Naples and those deeper inland, the fighting was bitter and at close quarters to the north and northwest of Salerno immediately along the coast.

Takes Limited Objectives.

Here the 5th Army stormed and captured "limited objectives" in a sustained offensive, a headquarters spokesman said, but 3 or 4 miles of tough mountain going remained before the British troops there could break through to the open Naples plain. From their mountain crests, however, the British overlooked the plain.

Front-line reports said the fighting there was more ferocious than anything seen in the Middle East, North Africa or Sicily since the British breakthrough at El Alamein in Egypt last October.

In their new advance Gen. Clark's Americans left the Salerno plain far behind and took mountain heights dominating an elaborate network of highways, some of which lead to Avellino, the center of resistance for the whole area inland from Naples.

The slackening of German ar-

tillery fire was the first signal that the Germans were withdrawing and the Americans at once began pressing the retreating enemy closely.

Messages from the front said the Americans now were consolidating their lines and straightening out their avenues for supplies, preparatory to the next big push, which might take them to an east-west road leading to Avellino, only 2 miles north of their present position.

Repair Work Necessary.

The enemy rearguards had demolished practically every bridge and road, however, and considerable repair work was necessary to open the flow of supplies.

Discussing the fighting north and northwest of Salerno, the headquarters spokesman said, "enemy resistance is stubborn and the outcome is being decided in man-to-man encounters. This fighting resembles some of the historic battles of World War I when strongpoints in some sectors had to be taken by hard frontal assault."

The Germans were so well entrenched in the mountains as to prevent small flanking or encirclement movements by tanks or motorized equipment, and it was necessary for Gen. Clark's men to slug them out of each machine-gun nest and mortar post.

Although two more river lines remained between Gen. Montgomery's troops and Foggia, the enemy had given no indication yet of making a stand in force along the Adriatic.

Allied warplanes sweeping ahead found only enemy transports north of Foggia, whose 13 airfields are within 500 miles of Munich.

Allies' Present Line.

The Allied line now runs from Margherita di Savoia, just below the Monte Gargano "spur" of the boot, southwest to Cerignola, almost due south across the Ofanto River to Montemilone, southwest to a point north of Atella and Muro, due west to Calabritto, northwest to Cassano, sharply southwest to Mercato-Rovella, west to San Cipriano and on out through the mountains of the Sorrento Peninsula.

The American 5th Army's frontal assault on Naples was said in yesterday's headquarters bulletin to have engulfed Cava di Terreni, a village 7 miles northwest of Salerno overlooking the valley which dips to Mount Vesuvius straight ahead.

(A Berlin broadcast last night placed the scene of battle only 7 miles south of Naples, but no Allied announcement has put 5th Army forces closer than 22 miles.)

Air Activity Reduced.

For the first time in many weeks bad weather almost completely stilled the great Allied air offensive against the German enemy in Italy. A few American Mitchells bombed some German troop concentrations through the clouds near Sarno, at the southeastern foot of Mount Vesuvius, an air communique said, and RAF fighter-bombers attacked some trucks beside the road.

Other fighter bombers scored hits among aircraft parked on a landing strip at Pomigliano d'Arco near Naples, and attacked road junctions in the Benevento and Collie areas, both northeast of Naples.

SHIP HIT BY BOMB, NURSES KEEP COOL

SEP 8 1943

Survivors Of Nazi Attack On Hospital Craft Pay Tribute Also To British Tars

DON WHITEHEAD

[By the Associated Press]

With the United States Navy in the Gulf of Salerno, Italy, Sept. 25 (Delayed)—American nurses who escaped from a hospital ship bombed and fired by a German plane outside this gulf September 13, agree that the only things that prevented a major tragedy were the coolness of the nurses and the bravery of the British sailors who led them to safety.

After the bombing, the nurses were taken to North Africa and then back to rejoin United States Fifth Army evacuation hospitals, which had been operating with enlisted men pinch-hitting for nurses.

"The British sailors were marvelous," said Lieut. Blanche Sigman, of Cambridge, Ohio. "They were as calm as though nothing had happened and kept kidding all the time.

Girls Wonderful

"But the girls acted wonderfully, too. The sailors said they never could have saved us if the girls had become hysterical."

Lieutenant Sigman said she awakened at 5 A. M., when a bomb hit near the ship, which was lit brightly, with white, red and green lights, and the moon beaming down.

"I got up and dressed and started up on deck," she said. "I met two girls and they said they had not heard a bomb, so I decided not to awaken the others. I got back in bed and then a bomb hit.

"It blew the doors off the hinges, shattered the walls, broke mirrors. By some miracle, none of the American girls were killed, although some British doctors and nurses died."

Trapped In Room

For a few minutes Lieut. Carrie Sheetz, of Millersburg, Pa., was trapped in her room when the door jammed. She tried frantically to open it. It wouldn't budge.

"I think God opened it," she said.

Nurses living in a ward over which the bomb exploded were awakened when the walls collapsed and the ceiling fell in. None of them was able to say why they were not seriously injured, at the least. Debris blocked passage to the wardroom.

They thought they were trapped until Lieutenant Sigman brought a flashlight down and sailors came to guide them through another passage to the deck.

From other quarters girls scrambled over the debris through steam and hot water as the flames spread.

None Very Scared

"We woke up when the bomb hit," said Scotty Warner, of Wichita, Kan., "but none of us was very scared. A British officer came down and asked if we would like some tea."

On the deck the girls climbed into lifeboats, only to find some of them damaged by the explosion and unseaworthy. Other hospital ships in the area sent lifeboats over and the girls climbed down rope nets and ladders into them. There were seventy-six in one boat.

The bomb had punctured the bows and the girls had to bail out the water with helmets to keep afloat. Many of them had severe rope burns caused by their sliding down into the rescue craft.

"Some of the girls would start down the ladders nude, and sailors would pull them back and give them their pants," Lieutenant Sigman said.

Fliers on More Than 50 Combat Missions to Come Home.

By WES GALLAGHER

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS in NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 27—(AP) En route to the United States today are more than 50 officers and enlisted men who have flown at least 50 combat missions over Europe, North Africa or Italy.

With them go some of the most famous American fighter planes in the Mediterranean war, including two Flying Fortresses, the "Berlin Sleeper" and "Hell's Kitchen." The "Berlin Sleeper" has been on 106 combat missions, believed to be a record for Fortresses in any war theater.

There are also three Mitchells, "Stud," "Poopsie" and "Shanghai Lil," and one P-38 fighter plane whose pilot, Lt. C. O. Johnson of Ada, Minn., has shot down four planes.

All will participate in the bond drive in the United States.

Two other P-38 pilots, Lt. Richard A. Campbell, of Fararaday, Ala., and Maj. Edward S. E. Newbury, of Bakersfield, Calif., also are returning to the United States.

Vichy Says Badoglio Regime Is Also at Adriatic Port

LONDON, Sept. 27 (AP). — The Vichy radio said today in a broadcast recorded by The Associated Press that the Italian King Victor Emmanuel III and the government of Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio now were at Brindisi, Adriatic port on the heel of the Italian boot.

[Delayed dispatches received Sunday through Allied censorship from "somewhere in southern Italy" said that the King, Crown Prince Humbert and Badoglio and his government were in a southern Italian city which in effect had been made the Italian provisional capital. The name of the city was said to have been withheld from publication for security reasons.]

Berlin Radio Claims Raid On Lero Island

London, Sept. 27 (AP)—The Berlin radio said today that waves of heavy German fighter and bomber planes had raided Lero Island, in the Dodecanese, which it said the British were attempting to make into a strong Allied eastern Mediterranean base.

The Nazis claimed their raiders sank a 5,000-ton transport with a loss of some of the troops aboard, left a 9,000-ton freighter sinking, set three small vessels ablaze and burned oil dumps.

The German report of the raid on Lero, occupied earlier in the month by Allied forces, was without confirmation from Allied sources.

NAZIS TO WITHHOLD FOOD FROM IDLE ITALIANS

AT THE SWISS-ITALIAN FRONTIER, Sept. 27—(AP) Nazi authorities in Milan announced today that only those who resume work will receive food rations.

A proclamation printed in the Milan press said the populace was invited to return to work and maintain discipline. Those who do not will get no food, the statement added, and those disturbing order will be sentenced by a German military court.

(The Nazi-controlled Italian radio said Monday that German Field Marshal Albert Kesselring has demanded the surrender of all Italian civilian motor vehicles—with "the drivers," if possible. The U. S. Foreign Broadcast Intelligence service heard the broadcast, which was directed to the Italian people.)

De Gaulle Wins Demand For Civilian War Head

Algiers, Sept. 27 (AP)—The French Committee of National Liberation yielded to Gen. Charles De Gaulle's demands today and decided to appoint a minister of war who will bear the title of Commissioner of National Defense to insure subordination of military to civil authority.

Up to now military authority in the French setup has been represented by Gen. Henri Giraud, French commander in chief.

Adrian Tixier, Commissioner of Labor, probably will be chosen Commissioner of Defense at a meeting tomorrow.

New Dnieper Crossings Admitted—300-Mile Fight Rages at Banks

TEMRYUK IS CAPTURED

Drive on Gomel Scores Major Gains of Day—1,320 More Villages Swept Up

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Tuesday, Sept. 28—The Red Army captured an east bank suburb of Dniepropetrovsk in a savage hand-to-hand struggle across the river from that big steel city yesterday, smashed the last German Caucasus fortress of Temryuk and swept up 1,320 villages for the biggest day's haul of the war, Moscow disclosed early today.

Hurling German remnants into the Dnieper, the Russians seized the suburb of Nizhne-Dnieprovsk and captured huge quantities of equipment the fleeing enemy was unable to remove to the west bank, said a communiqué recorded by the Soviet monitor.

Moscow Vague on Kiev

A Berlin broadcast already had acknowledged the fall of Temryuk, saying it was abandoned Sunday morning after military installations were destroyed. The Russians now are only twenty miles from the tip of the Taman Peninsula opposite the Crimea.

At other points along the river "our troops, reaching the Dnieper, were wiping out or capturing individual German groupings on the left bank," it added.

A Berlin broadcast also announced that night-striking Soviet troops who had breasted the Dnieper fifty miles above Kiev in an apparent encircling movement on the Ukrainian capital, still were battling the Germans on the west bank. Moscow was silent on this phase of the developing battle for Kiev.

The biggest gains of the day were scored in the push into White Russia toward the Vitebsk-Gomel link on the Kiev-Leningrad railway. Advancing up to nine miles, Soviet forces overran 870 villages. The Russian threat to the intermediate points of Orsha and Mogilev still was a distant one, but Gomel and Vitebsk already were endangered.

While fighting raged along a 300-mile stretch of the river, other Soviet armies in the north pressed on into White Russia, reaching a point only thirteen miles from Gomel, and smashed ahead nine miles beyond the fallen bastion of Smolensk.

The Soviet communiqué said that 25,000 Soviet civilians of one district who were being driven "to slave labor in Germany" were overtaken and freed, and hundreds of trucks, tractors, guns and horses fell into Russian hands, along with twenty-five locomotives and hundreds of freight cars. Scores of tanks were reported knocked out or captured.

Nearly 7,000 Germans Killed

Nearly 7,000 Germans were killed during the day, the bulletin said. Two thousand fell before the Russian columns pounding toward Mogilev, above Gomel. Entire battalions were wiped out in bitter fighting around the lower Dnieper River city of Kremenchug, where both sides threw in their air forces.

The strong Red Air Force not only supported the ground troops in their fighting for Dnieper River crossings, but ranged ahead to blow up German troop trains and rail junctions west of the river.

German troops by the hundreds were surrendering under the impact of the Soviet armies, Moscow said, 400 of them being taken in a "daring outflanking maneuver" that forced an estuary at Temryuk in the Caucasus and "cut off the retreat of the enemy."

Capt. Ludwig Sertorius, Berlin military commentator, said in a broadcast recorded here that the Russians already had crossed the Dnieper at several points, and also admitted that not all of them had been hurled back.

"These Soviet detachments," he said, "either were wiped out in immediate German counter-thrusts or else thrown back across the river, or at least hemmed in on a very narrow space in the immediate vicinity of the river."

He said the Russians were making "extensive use of parachutists and air-borne troops." This Soviet infiltration to the west bank, he hinted, extended all the way from the Zaporozhye sector below Dniepropetrovsk to the confluence of the Pripet and Dnieper Rivers above Kiev.

With the Russians silent as to details of the actual fighting on the east bank opposite Kiev, Sertorius said the situation there was static. He said he believed the Russians would not try frontal assaults but would seek to collapse the entire German Dnieper line by cracking the northern and southern ends.

The Germans have held Dniepropetrovsk since its capture by the troops of Field Marshal Ewald von Kleist on Aug. 26, 1941. The city had a pre-war population of more than 500,000 working in its network of steel and other metallurgical factories. The $110,000,000 American-built Dneprostroy dam and hydro-electric works, whence the city drew much of its power, was located about forty miles south of the city.

Other Russian troops have been reported storming the outskirts of Zaporozhye, forty-five miles south of Dniepropetrovsk, and Melitopol, another seventy miles to the south, for several days, but the latest Soviet bulletin gave no details of that struggle for control of those points on one of the railways leading into the Crimea.

The Russians said their troops had captured hundreds of villages along the river southeast of Kiev and fought their way toward river crossings at Kanev, Cherkassy and Kremenchug.

In the Kremenchug sector, eighty-five miles northwest of Dniepropetrovsk and 160 southeast of Kiev, the Russians said their troops had captured Kozelshchina, fifteen miles northeast of Kremenchug. Other Russian units already had reached the river Sunday.

The general opinion in London is that the Germans will never again be able to launch a major attack in Russia and now are fighting only to avoid destruction of the Army and to protect the Fatherland itself from invasion.

It is also believed that if the Russians force the German defenses along the Dnieper River their advance will continue steadily, perhaps even at the recent pace of 100 miles a month.

The River Bug, which extends parallel to and about seventy-five miles east of the old Bessarabian border to the Black Sea, is seen as the next Nazi defense line if the Russian advance continues on across the Dnieper, with the Dniester River, which forms the old Bessarabian border, as the second defense line and the Curzon line in Poland as the last defense.

While it is remarked in London that the German Army's retreat has been orderly, it is felt that even the most fanatic Nazis must come to the realization that an endless retreat is hopeless.

The question whether the retreat can be halted has been raised by the dubiousness of German defenses behind the Dnieper.

They are not believed to have been long or well prepared, and the Pripet marshes, which form a part of the defenses, instead of being a barrier would afford an open, frozen plain for tank combat during the winter.

Evacuation of Kiev Started by Enemy, Russians Say

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 27.—Red Army units were battling for toeholds across the broad Dnieper River today as the Germans reeled westward in retreat along a smoking front which a Soviet communique said extended from the Kuban bridgehead 750 miles northward to Smolensk.

The glittering domes of Kiev, ancient holy city of Russia, lay under Soviet siege guns on the eastern bank of the Dnieper with the Polish frontier 100 miles beyond, while at least a half-dozen other key towns along the winding river appeared ripe to fall into the hands of the hard-driving Red Army as Nazi resistance continued to crumble.

The Russian communique told of advances which brought Soviet forces abreast of the Dnieper in the vicinity of Dnepropetrovsk, industrial center at the easternmost bend of the river; in the Kremenchug sector 100 miles northwest; to the south of Pereyaslavl, 100 miles southeast of Kiev, and in the Kiev area itself.

Admit Soviet Penetration.

The Russian claims were substantiated by the Berlin radio in a broadcast recorded yesterday by the Associated Press, which admitted that the Russians had penetrated the German defenses and had reached the river's edge at several undisclosed places. The broadcast also said that in some instances the Red Army assault had carried across to the western bank. The Germans did not say that they had succeeded in throwing the Russians back across the 1,400-foot wide river.

More than 5,000 Germans were killed in the day's fighting, the Russians said, declaring many of the enemy were drowned as they were driven into the Dnieper. There were indications that in some sectors the German retreat was developing into a rout and the communique told of huge stores of war material and food which had been abandoned.

Prime prize in the present drive was the city of Kiev, held by the Germans since the early days of the war, and it seemed probable that Russian units on the flanks which already were on the eastern bank would attempt to smash their way across in an encircling movement.

Withdrawal Reported Started.

The Russians said the Germans already had begun to withdraw from the city, third largest in Russia, a Moscow broadcast recorded by Reuters said.

"There can be no doubt that detachments of Hitlerite plunderers are already fleeing from Kiev like rats from a sinking ship."

The Russians admitted that they were meeting stubborn German resistance in the Dnepropetrovsk area, where they said more than 1,000 Nazis had died in a futile attempt to recapture several strongpoints yielded in yesterday's battle.

Forty miles to the south of the city, between Dnepropetrovsk and Zaporozhe, also menaced by the Russian advance, lie the ruins of the $110,000,000 dam and hydroelectric plant blown up by the Russians in their retreat in the early days of the war.

Fierce Fighting Near Gomel.

With German resistance smashed on the three south-central fronts—Kiev, Kremenchug and Dnepropetrovsk—other Soviet forces under Gen. Vassily Sokolovsky were battering their way toward the river near Gomel. In some sectors they were near the vital main lateral Leningrad-Vitebsk-Kiev railway line, capture of which would threaten the Nazi communications.

Dispatches from Moscow said that as the Russians approached Gomel the fighting was becoming more violent, with the Germans throwing in large numbers of tanks in an attempt to halt the advance.

In the Smolensk area the Russians swept forward six miles toward Vitebsk on the edge of White Russia, west and slightly north of Smolensk, fall of which was announced Saturday. The district center of Kaplya was among the 200 villages taken in the advance.

The column advancing toward Mogilev still had 55 miles to go to reach the Dnieper and detachments operating out of Roslavl took Giankovka, 12 miles to the west, in addition to 250 other populated localities.

In the Gomel sector, 175 miles north of Kiev, the Soviet war bulletin said, Russian troops advanced 11 miles and captured more than 300 villages, including Novozybkov, and were only 12 miles from the border of White Russia.

Four More Towns Taken.

Far to the south the Russians were busily engaged in a campaign to smash the Nazis' tenuous hold on the Kuban bridgehead across the narrow strait separating Crimea from the Caucasus. The communique said Soviet units had driven the Germans from four more villages.

The Nazi communique disclosed strong Russian tank and infantry attacks supported by bombers at what it described as one of the main crossings of the Dnieper southeast of Zaporozhe in the extreme southern sector of the river battle line.

The Germans said the Russians had made local breaches at Zaporozhe, but that they were sealed off.

Soviet parachutists landed behind the German lines on the Kuban Peninsula in the Caucasus, but these attacks were frustrated, the Nazis declared.

Thunderbolts Carry Extra Gasoline Tanks to Extend Range.

HEAVY ATTACK PRESSED

Great Weight of Bombs, Incendiaries Dropped on Naval Base.

LONDON, Sept. 27—(AP) Swift P-47 Thunderbolts carrying long-range fuel tanks made aerial history today when they ran interference in an 800-mile roundtrip for Flying Fortresses which blasted the German North sea naval base of Emden and the nearby city of Aurich.

Allied airmen in these operations and day-long sweeps over the continent which saw three Nazi airfields and a railway center pounded shot down 58 German fighter planes—18 by Flying Fortresses, 22 by Thunderbolts, four by Marauders and 14 by R.A.F., Dominion and Allied fighters.

15 Planes Lost

From all operations, seven heavy bombers, one medium bomber and seven fighters were missing.

The Berlin radio suddenly went off the air late tonight indicating that the R.A.F. was keeping up the assault that the Nazis had been told only the weather would interrupt.

A joint British-American communique said strong forces of Fortresses of the U. S. Eighth Air force attacked installations at Emden and targets at Aurich, 14 miles to the northeast.

Marauders blasted the airfields at Beauvais-Tille and Conches, Mitchell bombers raided the railway center at Rouen-Sotteville, 60 miles northwest of Paris, and Typhoons bombed an airfield at Abbeville-Drucat, 90 miles northwest of Paris.

It was reported unofficially that the Fortresses mounted their bombs in a new way, allowing a greater variety of bombs and greater weight in each plane. The bombs included thousands of small incendiaries.

Thunderbolts Surprise Nazis

The unprecedented performance of the Thunderbolts which had the extra tanks fixed to their bellies—a success story like that of the Flying Fortresses which pioneered in high-altitude daylight bombing—surprised the Germans so that returning airmen reported only light opposition.

One London newspaper described the attack on Emden as "the greatest daylight raid of the war," with thousands of tons of bombs thrown down by nearly 500 planes.

At Eighth Air force press headquarters these figures were described as "completely unauthorized" and officers said they could neither confirm nor deny this estimate, although it was known the raid was a heavy one.

It was later learned definitely that the raid was not the largest by the U.S.A.A.F. although it was in heavy force.

For more than a half hour the Fortresses rained down explosives, incendiaries and pamphlets, but poor visibility prevented accurate observation of bombing results, Eighth air force headquarters said.

Clouds Obscure Target

"Our bombardiers dropped their bombs through nine-tenths clouds," said Brig. Gen. Fred L. Anderson, wing commander. "The splendid fighter support over the target given by P-47 Thunderbolts undoubtedly accounted for the low loss figure."

The Germans sent up the usual swarms of fighters to meet the first Forts, but reports from returning fliers indicated that only a small proportion of the enemy pilots were willing to tangle with the P-47s and Fortresses.

"Four fighters came up through the clouds, took one look at our heavy formation and ducked back in a hurry," said Maj. Ralph C. Hanshal, 31, Covington, Ky., pilot in the leading squadron.

"Jerry must know the jig is up when P-47s can go that far," said one pilot.

Single-engined fighters had always been considered to be held close to their bases by the limitation on fuel loads. The normal range of the Spitfire, Britain's standard fighter, is only about 500 miles.

The Thunderbolts overcame the limitation with a powerful 18-cylinder engine supplying all the power a four-bladed propellor can absorb to lift the extra gasoline load in light composition tanks. These tanks can be jettisoned as soon as they are empty or when the pilots need more speed for fighting.

Double Range

The success of today's operation indicates that the Fortresses can possibly as much as double the scope of penetrations into Germany with the same iron-clad escort that has confronted the Nazi opposition on shorter forays into France.

The Emden attack—the third for the Fortresses since May on Germany's naval base nearest to Britain and big port for the entry of Scandinavian ore to the Ruhr war factories—carried the U. S. Eighth air force across the line to a new record month's operations.

With three days of the month to go, the Fortresses' second raid in two days brought the September total to ten to equal the high mark set in July.

Lieut. Wayne J. O'Connor, of Aberdeen, S. D., who piloted one of the Thunderbolts, told of getting so close to a Messerschmitt 109 which he attacked that he could look into the cockpit.

"I came to a point just above the plane and all motion seemed to stop," he said. "I looked into the open cockpit below me and saw the pilot sitting there with his helmet gone and blood streaming down his face. His blond hair streamed out behind him and it looked like the longest hair I ever saw on a man. His hands were off the controls and the ship was just flying itself."

Approaching winter has put an extra bite into the great cold the Flying Fortresses always encounter on their lofty runs, and Lieut. Wandell S. Warren, from Benton, Miss., said feelingly:

"It was damned cold—44 degrees below zero, to be exact."

Saw Roof Break Up

Staff Sergt. Clarence E. Kelly, 22, of Bainbridge, Ga., a ball-turret gunner on his second mission, said: "Our bombs fell on the target. I saw one large building with a red roof hit by one or more bombs, and I saw the red roof break up."

The communique, however, did not give the results of the attack on the installations at Emden, nor did it reveal what the targets were in the raid on Aurich, which is on the Ems-Jade canal.

London, Tuesday, Sept. 28 (AP). The Berlin radio suddenly went off the air late last night, indicating that the RAF was keeping up the assault against the Continent.

German planes meanwhile appeared over widely scattered parts of east Anglia today after breaking through a heavy anti-aircraft barrage. There was intermittent gunfire over one town for more than an hour.

FLYING FORTS BLAST EMDEN IN DAY RAID

Assault on U-Boat Center Sets New Peak for U. S. Operations.

FIGHTER ESCORT ALL THE WAY

Thunderbolts Cover Bombers in Relays—Whole Attack Is Unopposed.

London, Sept. 27 (A. P.).—American Flying Fortresses, carrying United States Air Force operations in Britain to a new month's record, reached across the North Sea early today and bombed Emden, the great German shipbuilding center.

This second stab by the Fortresses in two days hit the Nazis' nearest submarine and shipping base and the receiving port for Scandinavian ore.

Thunderbolt fighters (P-47s) equipped with long-range belly tanks also escorted the Flying Fortresses on the 800-mile round-trip raid. It was the first time the eight-gunned fighters had escorted bombers all the way to a target in Germany. The Thunderbolts' longest previous hops were believed to have been their part-way escorts on the July 30 raid on Kassel, a 900-mile round trip, and the August 12 raid on Gelsenkirchen, a 700-mile run.

Fortress crewmen were jubilant over the powerful relays of escorts.

"Jerry must know the jig is up when those P-47s can go that far," said Capt. Andrew Dutch of Trenton, N. J., lead navigator of a bomber formation. "They met us every place right on the dot and we didn't have to worry about anything but getting the target and just dumping the bombs. What a difference compared with our raids on Germany—it was 300 per cent better! We were comparatively unmolested."

The raid was the tenth this month for the Fortresses which thus equaled the number of missions in the peak month of July. With the nineteen attacks this month by United States Marauder medium bombers—compared with only six in July—United States operations reached far above any previous level.

Rheims Airport Hit.

Yesterday the Fortresses lashed at the Nazi airport and repair base of Rheims, eighty miles northeast of Paris while United States Thunderbolt fighters swept over northern France in support.

Soon after the Fortress raid on Emden, United States Marauders swept down on the Nazis' Beauvais-Tille air base, forty-five miles north of Paris, for the fifth time in ten days and the eighth time this month.

After yesterday's Thunderbolt sweeps over northern France, returning pilots said that for the first time in their European operations they encountered no enemy opposition.

Mosquito Planes Attack.

Speedy R. A. F. Mosquito bombers kept the Allied aerial offensive going during the night by bombing targets in the Rhineland, an Air Ministry communique said. All returned safely, while one enemy bomber was destroyed over its base in Holland, the bulletin declared.

1943

Flak was light as the Fortresses sent their bombs away over the targets, but no Nazi fighters rose to challenge them. A'l American planes returned, but two R. A. F. fighters were listed as missing from an offensive patrol over France earlier in the day.

MUSSOLINI AGAIN ON ITALIAN SOIL, SAYS BERLIN RADIO

SEP 28 1943

Germans Take Part in Celebrating Anniversary of Tripartite Pact.

LONDON, Sept. 27—(AP) The Nazis, striving to fill Italy's vacant chair at the table where the tripartite treaty was signed, celebrated the third anniversary of that pact by announcing today that Benito Mussolini had returned to Italy.

The Berlin radio broadcast this statement as coming from the fallen Duce:

"I deem it a good sign that my return to Italy coincides with the anniversary of the pact that binds together indissolubly Fascist Italy, National Socialist Germany and the empire of the Japanese emperor."

Jap Makes Address

The statement came simultaneously with whistling-in-the-dark addresses by Japanese Foreign Minister Mamoru Shigemitsu and German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop, who drummed away on the familiar charge that the United States, Britain and Russia "want to conquer Europe to enslave its population."

On the whole, however, Germany and Japan observed the anniversary in perfect contrast to the loud exultations which rang through the world just a year ago, and put on a show of unconcern over Premier Pietro Badoglio's capitulation.

The broadcast quoted Mussolini, now Hitler's straw leader of a new German-formed Fascist government, as declaring:

"The Bolshevists and Anglo-Americans shall never conquer Europe nor will they ever deprive Japan of her possessions in the east.

"The republican Fascist government is determind to fight to final victory with all its strength and with the confidence which has always inspired Italy.

"The episode which was created by an international clique in collaboration with some traitors has had consequences which will be decisive for the future of the war because Italy can now obtain some idea of the ruin which threatened her.

"Republican Fascist Italy will wipe these days of humiliation out of her history and with her blood will extinguish the shame which a degenerate monarch tried to bring upon his country's traditions and glorious past.

"Together with German and Japanese troops the Italian forces will liberate the world from an international junta which does not stop at treachery to cause confusion among all nations and their traditions.

"Germany and Fascist comrades may rest assured that the tripartite pact will be fulfilled by republican Fascist Italy with the same eagerness and the same belief as that which inspired Italy in the past three years.

"This is the will of fighting soldiers who have shed their blood for the common ideal of three nations on so many battlefields."

Shigemitsu's statement, like that of Mussolini's, was read over the Berlin radio.

He joined in insisting that "the Axis pact remains unbroken" despite Badoglio's "treachery," and said the Axis powers would triumph in reaching their joint goal, "the achievement of justice in the world."

Without specifying where, Emperor Hirohito's foreign minister declared that "at present we are counter-attacking and are resolved to continue the battle until final victory. On all fronts of greater east Asia, Japan deals severe blows to the enemy."

Ribbentrop reviewed the hoary claim that the war was precipitated by enemies of the Axis and said Germany, Italy and Japan would never lay down arms until bolshevism was beaten.

"With the help of Russian a mored divisions," he said, "Euro was to be incorporated in the Sovi Union.

"We should fight and fight aga until clear vision arrives."

One Berlin broadcast took a vantage of the anniversary to a dress a warning to Axis satelli nations not to follow Marsh Badoglio's lead, saying:

"Any nation that today believ it is able to steer its small nation or private ship safe and sou through the waves of world te pest will have to pay for it seve ly some day."

The absence of martial music a more bombastic speeches to ma the anniversary underlined so military facts:

Last year at this time Field Ma shal Gen. Erwin Rommel sto menacingly upon the final a proaches to Alexandria, Egypt. T German summer campaign h ended with the big gains in Russ and the Japanese had reached th high tide in the Pacific and Indi Ocean theaters.

It was in the two months follo ng—October and November spectively—that Gen. Sir Berna L. Montgomery set out upon t ong road back from Egypt and t Allies landed in North Africa.

DUCE REPORTED BACK IN ITALY

He Helps Axis to Celebrate Anniversary of Pact.

London Sept. 27 (A. P.).—The Berlin radio announced today the return of Benito Mussolini to Italy and quoted him as seeking to breathe new life into the shattered tripartite pact on the third anniversary of the signature of that treaty which led Italy to disaster. The fallen Duce was said to have declared: "I deem it a good sign that my return to Italy coincides with the anniversary of the pact that binds together indissolubly Fascist Italy, National Socialist Germany and the empire of the Japanese Emperor."

Also today came words from the Japanese Foreign Minister, Mamoru Shigemitsu, and the German Foreign Minister, Joachim von Ribbentrop, who drummed away on the familiar old charge that the United States, Great Britain and Russia "wish to conquer Europe to enslave its population. Von Ribbentrop, the only one of the three to speak on the radio personally, shouted: "Bolshevists and Anglo-Americans shall never conquer Europe nor will they ever deprive Japan of her possessions in the East."

Another Axis reaction to the Tripartate pact anniversary was a warning to Germany's satellite powers not to follow the Italian lead by surrendering.

Otherwise, both Tokio and Berlin agreed that Italy never really amounted to anything, but Japan extended recognition to the remnant of Mussolini's Fascist regime in Italy.

Shigemitsu assured Germany that Japan "will continue to wage the war to its victorious end." On the whole, however, Germany and Japan observed the pact without martial music and bombastic speeches.

"The Royal House of Savoy, as far as the Imperial Government of Japan is concerned, will not be considered thelegal Royal House of Italy," the Japanese radio announced today in a broadcast picked up at New York by the OWI.

GERMANS DOOMED TO DEFENSIVE WAR, OBSERVERS ASSERT

SEP 29 1943

Nazis Unable to Launch a Major Attack in Russia.

LONDON, Sept. 27 — (AP) The general opinion in London is that the Germans will never again be able to launch a major attack in Russia and now are fighting only to avoid a destruction of the army and to protect the Fatherland itself from invasion.

This opinion is founded mainly on the fact that the Nazis are running increasingly short of manpower along the 1,100-mile front. The situation is viewed as markedly different from 1918 in France, when the Germans were able to overcome a manpower deficiency and resume their attacks by shortening their lines.

Will Continue Advance

It is also believed that if the Russians force the German defenses along the Dnieper river their advance will continue steadily, perhaps even at the recent pace of 100 miles a month.

The river Bug, which extends parallel to and about 75 miles east of the old Bessarabian border to the Black sea, is seen as the next Nazi defense line if the Russian advance continues on across the Dnieper, with the Dniester river, which forms the old Bessarabian border, as the second defense line and the Curzon line in Poland as the last defense.

Germany's original objective in 1941 appeared to be to knock out Russia completely by taking Moscow and Leningrad and gain control of Soviet grain, industry and oil.

Gives Up Hope of Oil

In 1942 the Nazis gave up the Moscow and Leningrad campaigns and concentrated on seizing the country's products and industry. It appears now that Germany has lost all hope of obtaining Russian oil, her army is being driven from the industrial areas and she has already lost half the rich Ukraine grain area.

If the Nazis could not realize their hopes when the German army was at its peak, their chances of realizing any of them seem slim indeed in view of their losses and the heavy demands being made by other fronts. On the other hand, the Russians show no sign of weakening either in men or material.

While it is remarked in London that the German army's retreat has been orderly, it is felt that even the most fanatic Nazis must come to the realization that an endless retreat is hopeless.

The question whether the retreat can be halted has been raised by the dubiousness of German defenses behind the Dnieper.

They are not believed to have been long or well prepared, and the Pripet marshes, which form a part of the defenses, instead of being a barrier would afford an open, frozen plain for tank combat during the winter.

SLAVS SEIZE VITAL CITY IN MONTENEGRO

Capture Of Savnik Menaces Big German Garrison At Niksic

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sept. 27—The Yugoslav liberation army, broadcasting a special communique heard by Yugoslav listeners in London, announced tonight the capture of Savnik, in the hills of Montenegro fifty miles from the Adriatic sea coast.

Already holding Zadljak, the mountaineers now menace the big German garrison at Niksic, fifteen miles to the southwest, besides commanding communications between German bases in the interior.

Germans Squeezed

The German forces in Montenegro now are sandwiched between the mountain forces and guerrillas holding a long coastal area.

Bitter fighting continued at Sinj to the north, where Germans and Ustachis who attempted to recapture Split now were reported on the defensive and suffering heavy losses. The Yugoslavs found revenge in this fighting, for the Prinz Eugen Division, once hailed by Hitler as having crushed opposition in this area, was said to have been badly defeated in a clash on the Cetina river, near Sinj.

Struggle Continues

The war bulletin said that the struggle for control of Susak, adjoining Fiume, continued indecisively.

No new mention was made of operations in the Trieste area.

Upward of 50,000 Italians, with stores of guns and munitions, were said to have joined their former foes in order to smash their former allies. Italian forces aiding Croat guerrillas were reported to have wiped out a German military camp near Bihac.

Germans Sentence 20 Belgian 'Terrorists' to Die

LONDON, Sept. 27 (AP)—The execution of thirteen more Czechs, including a woman of 61 and a man of 70, and death sentences for twenty Belgians have been announced by Germany in orders quoted today by refugee government agencies.

The Czechoslovak Press Bureau said six persons were executed in Prague for possessing arms and hoarding and seven young men were put to death in Bruenn the same day for illegal dealings in ration cards. The bureau said the Germans were anxious to conceal the nature of the Czechs' unrest, giving economic offenses as the reason for the executions.

The Belgian news agency said twenty Belgians were sentenced to death as "Communists and terrorists," charged with sabotage and other offenses.

Loaded Nazi Supply Ship Sunk Off French Coast

British and Dutch Believe Escort Vessel Was Hit

LONDON, Sept. 27 (AP).—A "large, fully laden and heavily escorted enemy supply ship" was torpedoed and sunk off the French coast last night by British and Dutch naval units, a joint British Admiralty-Netherland Navy communique said today. It added, "It is believed one of the enemy escorts was also hit." All Allied ships returned safely.

The Berlin radio reported a sharp clash in the English Channel off the French port of Fecamp, northeast of Le Havre, early this morning when British motor torpedo boats attacked a German convoy.

The broadcast, recorded by The Associated Press, said that several of the British craft were damaged, but made no reference to German losses. The reported clash was not confirmed by British quarters.

Submarines Attack Formation.

London, Sept. 27 (A. P.).—British submarines have sunk ten ships and damaged five others in attacks on Nazi forces attempting to evacuate troops and material from Bastia by sea, the Admiralty announced today.

A large supply ship and two smaller ones were sunk with torpedoes, and four small supply ships, a ferry and two landing craft were sunk with gunfire, the announcement said, while six other vessels, including two large tankers, were damaged and one of the tankers was beached, it continued.

Germans Down Own Plane

AN AMERICAN AIR BASE IN ENGLAND, Sept. 27 (AP).—A German anti-aircraft battery scored a bull's eye during the American Marauders' raid today on the Nazi-controlled Beauvais-Tille air base in France, forty-five miles north of Paris, but it was on one of the German's own fighter planes. Staff Sergeant Van Howell, a radio gunner from El Paso, Tex., said the Nazi fighter got caught in the flak bursts, "went down in flames and crashed."

ST. PETER'S CLOSED, NAZIS IN ROME SAY

All Other Churches Open, Germans Assert, In Effort To Soothe Italians

SEP 28 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Bern, Switzerland, Sept. 27—Apparently trying to explain away their establishment of a guard over Vatican City and minimize criticism, the Germans in Rome have issued an official declaration saying, in effect, that all is well in the Holy City.

The Chiasso correspondent of the newspaper Der Bund said "Italian Catholics concerned about the fate of Pope Pius and the Vatican since the Pope has been shrouded in silence are giving food for new rumors."

German Statement

Consequently, his dispatch said, a German statement was published in Il Corriere Della Sera, Milan newspaper, listing these points:

"1. German troops watching the demarcation line between the Vatican and Italian territory are required to see that no enemy national crosses into the Vatican.

"2. So far, the watching of the line has been without incident.

"3. Nothing has occurred which could lead to a protest between the Vatican and the German legation.

"4. The Basilica of St. Peter's has remained closed and all the other churches in Rome remain open. One may enter St. Peter's with special permission."

The Catholic paper Avvenire was quoted as saying that Vatican City had not been encircled by artillery and likewise as denying rumors that German soldiers were plundering churches in Rome.

Mutiny by Nazis Unconfirmed

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 27 (AP).—The best available sources of information provided no confirmation today for reports that rebellious German crews sabotaged three capital ships of the Nazi fleet off northern Norway after they received news of the Italian fleet's surrender. The reports, mentioning by name the ships Tirpitz, Scharnhorst and Luetzow, were published in England today under a Stockholm dateline.

MADRID FLOODED BY PEACE RUMORS

Madrid, Sept. 27 (A. P.).—Spain over the week end was the target of one of the strangest international rumor campaigns this country has ever known. The rumor was the hoary old one about an agreement between Russia and Germany. Saturday night and yesterday Spain's EFE agency, the only distributor of foreign news to the Spanish press, was bombarded with hundreds of calls. The Associated Press office, like other American and British offices, was kept busy issuing denials all week end.

Berlin correspondents for the last fortnight have been hammering on the idea that the German withdrawal was planned and that German diplomats will propose a separate peace first to the Anglo-Americans to unite with the Germans against Russia and then to the Russians to unite against the Allies.

The Allies have already rejected this proposal, say the rumor mongers and now Russia is on the point of accepting. These rumors are not being published in Spain.

GERMANS EYE SOVIET FRONT WITH ANXIETY

Bern Reports Uneasiness In Balkans Over Russian Continued Gain

SEP

By FRANK BRUTTO

[Associated Press Correspondent]

Bern, Switzerland, Sept. 27—Russia's spectacular advances have turned the eyes of the Germans to the eastern front and brought fear and uneasiness to their Balkan satellites.

A Berlin dispatch to the Basel Nationalzeitung said today the German public is "watching the east with burning interest" and that the question on every lip is "will the German retreat end at the Dnieper?"

Every edition of German newspapers now carries one of Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels' thirty rules of conduct during the war which soon will be gathered into a brochure to serve as a "catechism for the German people" in their fifth winter of war.

Looking Now To Defense

The seriousness of the retreat in the southern and central areas of the eastern front as well as the "unheard demands" of the soldiers are not withheld from the German people, but confidence in the ability of the German army is stressed.

German propaganda on the home front has polished a new phrase, "gain strength through defense," and gives this as the reason for the "withdrawals" on the Russian front. Voelkischer Boebachter, the Nazi party newspaper, stated that the shrinking eastern front makes possible the creation of reserves which are "especially important in view of the situation on the Italian front" and expressed a hope that rainy weather might bring a halt to the activity on the eastern front.

Rain Reported No Bar

[Berlin dispatches to Stockholm newspapers indicated that intensive fighting might continue on the Russian front in spite of heavy fall rains. NYA Daglight Allehanda's Berlin correspondent wrote that both the Russians and Germans now are equipped with newly developed tanks, assault cars and other vehicles which can be navigated through flooded fields, small streams and mud.

[The Allehanda dispatch said the rains already had hit several sectors of the front, but Berlin had acknowledged that the Russians were attacking with undiminished fury in an effort to break the orderly German retreat.]

Balkans Are Stirred

The Russian victories are stirring the Balkans, where both Rumania and Hungary are fearful of the fate of their troops and Bulgaria—bound by racial ties to Russia—is reported virtually Nazi-occupied since the death of King Boris.

Hungary, which has been playing a shrewd political fence-sitting game, was reported today to have withdrawn its troops in the Kiev sector, an official spokesman stating that this was done in agreement with Hitler.

A Budapest dispatch of the International Information Bureau, German propaganda agency, said military events in the east persuaded leftists to think the moment had arrived for their gain in power. Quick, violent German reaction to Italy, however, had a restraining effect on Hungary, which was inclined to follow the Italian example.

Parliament to Be Reconvened

One Budapest dispatch to the Basler Nachrichten, however, reported that Parliament, which adjourned May 4, would be reconvened next month and this was considered a concession by Premier Nicolas Kallay to the "leftist opposition and broad masses of the people." Six weeks ago the Social Democratic and Small Farmers parties asked the premier to reconvene Parliament.

The Gazette de Lausanne heard from Bucharest that the Russian advance had intensely moved the Rumanian people, who fear Russia's approach to their country. The government has forbidden public political discussions, but the nervousness is clear in the sharp rise of food prices and the departure of many persons to the interior, away from the danger zones. Even military circles display pessimism, saying that if the rainy season enables the Germans to stand, their Dnieper positions must be abandoned this winter.

Conference leaders in the country are reported to have demanded that King Michael obtain the immediate release of Rumanian divisions in the Kuban bridgehead, where they are threatened with being cut off by a Russian advance, and that they be held for the defense of the menaced Rumanian frontier.

A Sofia dispatch to the Gazette de Lausanne said Dr. Julius Dorpmueller, German transportation minister, had arrived in Sofia to speed agricultural shipments from Bulgaria which, together with those from Rumania, have become indispensable since the Italian capitulation.

AMERICANS BUILD NEW 'BURMA ROAD'

U. S.-Led Chinese Force Back Japanese—Highway to Serve Burma Drive, Join Old Road

AN AMERICAN BASE ON THE INDIA-BURMA FRONTIER, Sept. 25—(Delayed) (AP)—Despite hills and high water, American Army engineers—assisted by Indians and and Chinese—have hacked a roadway through the jungle from India into Burma along which, if God and the strategists are willing, an attack upon the Japanese may be launched.

Headquarters calls the highway the Ledo Road, but engineers on the job call it the "Tokyo Road," because, said Maj. John Moyer of Tuskegee, Ala., "the stuff transported over it eventually will wind up in Japan"—now some 3,000 miles away.

The road already has penetrated into enemy territory and Chinese soldiers, led and trained by American officers, are fighting the Japanese back farther and farther as construction progresses.

Its most immediate purpose is to supply attacking forces in the early stages of a campaign to clear the Japanese out of Burma. Its second purpose is to connect with the Burma road, if and when the Americans, British and Chinese manage to drive the Japanese out of the northern end of Burma, so that supplies can reach China by land as well as by air.

Major Moyer, 29-year-old commander of an engineers battalion doing one of the toughest assignments of the war, conducted correspondents over part of the road in one of the roughest jeep rides imaginable.

Winds Into Enemy Areas

Pursuing a generally eastward direction, the road runs along the southern slope of the Himalayan range through some of India's thickest jungles.

After crossing the Burmese frontier, the highway—or rather the route mapped out for it—winds in a southeasterly direction down the eastern slope of the India-Burma boundary range into Japanese-held sections of the upper Chindwin River area.

The toughest first portion of the road has been built, but much more must be done before it eventually connects with the Burma Road. The Americans hope that during the coming dry weather construction can be speeded up so that the highway can be used at least to transport supplies part way in the event of occupation of part or all of Burma.

Col. John Arrowsmith, 48, of Kansas City, is in charge of the work and Maj. Bob Hirshfield, 39, of Western Spring, Ill., is his executive officer.

Included among the engineering force are some troops who built airdromes in the Hudson Bay country before coming to this fever-ridden jungle country.

The trail goes through the heart of the head-hunting Naga tribal country, but that is only a minor problem, as most of the natives have proved friendly.

Soldiers Protect Project

The farther the road reaches into Japanese-held territory the greater becomes the prospect that the engineering forces will meet Japanese patrols. The engineers always have their guns handy, and a substantial force of Chinese soldiers under American Brig. Gen. Hayden Boatner of New Orleans is operating far in advance and on the flanks.

General Boatner's staff includes Col. Robert Cannon, 41, of Salt Lake City, operations; Lieut. Col. Edward McNally, 37, of Towson, Md., intelligence; Maj. Vernon Slater, 40, of Grand Rapids, Mich., supply; Capt. Alvin Larson, 27, of Akron, Ohio, adjutant; Capt. William Cummings, 35, of Newton Center, Mass., assistant intelligence; Second Lieut. John Kingsbury, 37, of Augusta, Me., signals, and Second Lieut. Howard Kleinman, 28, of St. Paul, Minn., assistant supply.

General Boatner's Chinese soldiers have had repeated skirmishes with enemy patrols, but they have kept the Japanese so far back that none of the engineers has ever seen one of them.

Near the halfway point on the road stands a camp sign reading "Illkyindova." That isn't Hindu—just a composite abbreviation for Illinois, Kentucky, Indiana, Ohio and Virginia troops who were on the job there.

Large hospital units from Pennsylvania, Rhode Island and California, with some of the best physicians and surgeons in America, are assigned to the project.

Chiang Council Assails Chinese Reds as Hostile

Parliament in Chungking Accuses Communists of 'Subversive Activities'

SEP 28 1943

CHUNGKING, Sept. 27 (AP).—Strained relations between Chinese Communists and President Chiang Kai-shek's nationalist party flared openly today when China's embryonic parliament, the Peoples' Political Council, accused the Communists of "a disobedient attitude and subservice activities."

Taking public notice of the Communists' first open attacks against Generalissimo Chiang, the council, which closed its week-long session today, denounced them in resolutions.

Each party capital—Chungking and Yennan in Shensi Province—has frequently accused the other of disrupting the national unity and hindering the prosecution of the war against Japan.

The council resolution expressed its "great regret and displeasure" at the "hostile attitude" and urged the Reds to abandon the Communist movement, dissolve their present "Soviet organization" and disband the Red Army by incorporating it into the National Army.

The Communist party in China has maintained its own independent army throughout the Japanese war, emphasizing in a recent warning against any attempts to eradicate it: "We have stable bases and twenty-two years of experience in brave struggles. . . . Military threats cannot subjugate our party nor agitators and intrigues split it."

Chinese High Command Reports Jap Offensive

Chungking, Sept. 27 (AP)—The Chinese High Command reported today an offensive by "more than 10,000" Japanese on Chinese positions in northwestern Shantung province.

10,000

A communique, reporting on operations through September 11, said Chinese troops, aided by local militia units, engaged three Japanese columns "in severe fighting resulting in heavy casualties for both sides."

The communique did not give the outcome of the fighting.

3 Jap Puppet Officials Reported Executed

Chungking, Sept. 27 (AP)—Chinese military authorities executed Sah Fu-chow, vice-minister of the navy in the puppet Nanking Government, and two subordinates after their conviction on charges of treason, a Chinese dispatch reported today.

The dispatch said the trio were captured by guerrillas near Canton.

FAMINE IN CALCUTTA GETS STEADILY WORSE

Government Acts to Import Food From Other Countries

F. L. MARTIN

CALCUTTA, Sept. 25 (Delayed) (AP)—The plight of Bengal's hungry millions has grown worse in Calcutta and the hinterland, where hundreds of persons are dying from starvation and scores more each day are reaching the point where food and medical care cannot fully restore damaged minds and bodies.

A large proportion of those starving in Calcutta is from rural districts where the situation is deteriorating rapidly. Persons able to move attempt to reach Calcutta, where they hope for help, and many die along the roadside.

Almost 150 free kitchens have been opened in the city, mostly sponsored by private relief societies, but they are not enough to feed 100,000 destitute people in Calcutta alone. Last week, Calcutta hospitals, filled to capacity, received 5,000 cases. One thousand were suffering from starvation, while the remainder had diseases resulting from hunger. Cholera and typhoid cases were increasing on the outskirts.

Trainloads of grain are being unloaded in the railway yards. Although 50,000 tons of wheat products have arrived in the past month, the condition steadily grows worse and the death toll mounts.

Newspapers friendly to the Indian Government are openly attacking the New Delhi administration for "lack of foresight and planning." They have called the Bengal famine the worst and most reprehensible governmental breakdown since the 1930 disorders.

ALLIED PLANES POUND JAPANESE IN BURMA

Communications and Installations Bombed and Strafed

NEW DELHI, India, Sept. 27 (AP)—American and British bombers and fighters ranged over Burma yesterday to attack enemy air, land and river communications and military installations, it was announced today.

American medium and heavy bombers raided railway yards and communications in the Mandalay and Rangoon areas, a communiqué said. It added that excellent results were reported and yard installations were damaged." No American planes were lost.

Beaufighters concentrated on rail targets, blasting two engines and more than thirty-five box cars on the lines running west and north from Pyinmana. Other targets included the station at Pyaubwe and barracks at Kyidaunggan.

Horse transport was hit yesterday afternoon at Saingbyin and other railroad cars were destroyed south of Yeu.

Hurricanes damaged a number of sampans on the Mayu River south of Kwazon and Vengeances dive-bombed Japanese positions southwest of Buthedaung.

All the aircraft returned safely.

Three Allied Forces Closing In on Japs At Finschhafen

Drive on Base Slackened To Reinforce Units For Final Assault

By the Associated Press.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Sept. 27.—Japanese defenders of Finschhafen, their hands already more than full in coping with Australian troops at their very doorstep, today stood the imminent and additional risk of being swept up from all sides.

Hardly more than 20 miles to the rear of their position on the northeastern tip of New Guinea was another Allied force pushing steadily eastward along the shore of the Huon Gulf from captured Lae.

On their land flank, 10 miles or less distant, was a third Allied ground element, a section of the Australian jungle troops who debarked on the coast 6 miles north of Finschhafen five days ago.

Seasoned Jungle Fighters.

Today's communique from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters placed the force from Lae at Hansch Harbor, nearly two-thirds of the way to Finschhafen from its starting point.

The inland arm of the pincers from the north was said to have touched Sattelberg, northwest of Finschhafen and 6 miles from the coast, as long ago as September 24. Since then it may have approached much closer to the Japanese base.

But the main body of the seaborne Australians presented the enemy with his most pressing problem. These seasoned jungle fighters were reported to be scarcely three-quarters of a mile from the heart of Finschhafen itself and to have come to against the core of enemy defenses on the north—sturdy earthworks and elaborate trenches.

There, in the face of stiffened resistance, the pace of their advance slowed, but a headquarters spokesman gave the Japanese no cause to believe their positions were secure.

Reinforcements Brought Up.

The drive was slackened, he explained, only so reinforcements could be brought up and the final attack made with full assurance of success.

There was little respite, either, for enemy forces holding mountain positions in the interior of Northeastern New Guinea or seeking to withdraw to less immediately vulnerable bases along the north coast of the island.

Allied Airacobra attack bombers and big four-engined planes made two sweeps September 24 and 25 along the Upper Ramu River Valley and supply trails linking it with Madang. Bridges were blasted, roads destroyed and troop centers set afire by 75 tons of bombs. Transport columns and bivouacs were ripped by scores of thousands of machinegun bullets.

100 U. S. Planes Blast Kahili and Kolombangara

U. S. HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC, Sept. 27 (AP).—More than 100 American fighters and bombers piloted by Army, Navy and Marine flyers bored through stiff Japanese ground and air defenses to blast Kahili airdrome on Bougainville and besieged Kolombangara in the northern Solomon islands, it was announced today.

Nine Zeros were shot down over Kahili and more than 700 light bombs fell on Vila airbase at Kolombangara in what a spokesman at South Pacific headquarters described as a perfectly co-ordinated mission.

Returning the next day, 50 Mitchell medium bombers accompanied by dive and torpedo bombers and fighters, dumped more than 20 tons of high explosives on enemy gun positions at Kape Harbor and Ringi Cove near Vila.

The raids, announced today by Allied headquarters in the Southwest Pacific, were the first in several days due to bad weather.

In the strike at Kahili Corsair and Lightning fighter pilots shot down 7 out of 60 intercepting Zeros in a hot and furious running battle which lasted 15 minutes. Meanwhile, Airacobra light bombers struck below cloud cover to devastate numerous ground installations, bomb gun positions and start a half dozen fires. The Japanese responded with heavy antiaircraft fire.

Liberator heavy bombers, unable to carry out high-altitude bombing because of poor visibility, turned back to the south to drop about 700 light antipersonnel and fragmentation bombs at Vila on Kolombangara.

A mile and a half across Blackett Strait from Kolombangara, marines and Army units have taken a heavy toll of Japanese in occupying Arundel Island. The Navy spokesman estimated casualties will run to 500 Japanese killed when the count is completed.

All pockets of resistance on Arundel were cleaned out, although a substantial number of enemy troops were believed to have escaped across Blackett Strait to Kolombangara.

Off Faisi, marine Corsair pilots pounced on a 70-foot steam launch, strafed it and saw it explode.

AUSTRALIAN FORCE AIMS FOR MADANG

Ground Troops Begin Advance Up Markham Valley on New Guinea.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Tuesday, Sept. 28—(AP) A ground movement against the Japanese shipping base of Madang was disclosed today in an Allied headquarters announcement that a force moving up the Yati river has captured the Markham valley town of Sagerak.

This development focused attention on an area approximately 70 miles northwest of captured Lae and an equal distance from Madang. Sagerak is eight miles northwest of Kaiapit, which was seized Sept. 18 by Australian troops landed in big transport planes.

175 Miles Up Coast

Madang is more than 175 miles up the New Guinea coast from the Huon peninsula sector where Gen. Douglas MacArthur's forces now are bidding for the capture of the Japanese air and supply base of Finschhafen.

Within less than a mile of Finschhafen, Australians moving down from the north still were held up by strong enemy resistance south of the Bumi river.

Today's communique said only that pressure there was increased.

Approximately 300 miles up the coast from Finschhafen, the Japanese air reinforcement base of Wewak was pounded by 33 tons of bombs, today's communique said.

At Hansa bay midway between Wewak and Madang, 22 tons of bombs were dropped by Allied raiders on supply dumps and bivouac areas.

Four-engined bombers were escorted by fighters in their attack on two airdromes, But and Dagua. Twenty Japanese fighters intercepted and three were shot down. The raiders sustained no losses.

Their explosives set fires visible for 30 miles. Direct hits were scored among six parked planes at Dagua.

"Both target areas were well covered," the communique said.

At Wewak, more than 400 enemy planes have been destroyed since mid-August, effectively weakening Japanese air resistance to the Allied land offensive.

All raiders also returned from the Hansa bay raid.

In a report on limited activity in the Solomons, headquarters said Japanese aircraft bombed a small Allied vessel off the coast of Vella Lavella island, "causing damage and casualties." Vella Lavella is occupied by American troops, a position which bypasses Japanese-held Kolombangara and poses a threat to the big enemy air base island of Bougainville.

HIT NEW JAPANESE PLANES

P-38's Bag 3 Heavily Armored Craft Built Like Hurricanes

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, Sept. 26 (Delayed) (AP)—American pilots of a unit of P-38 Lightnings raised their total of downed Japanese planes to 105 today by bagging three of twenty new type interceptors the enemy sent up over Wewak in an unsuccessful attempt to break up a bomber raid.

These new types have in-line engines and heavy armor plate on the general lines of the British Hurricane. Of the twenty, only three came in close enough to make feeble passes at the bombing Liberators.

636 WIN COMMISSIONS

Graduate From U. S. Officer School in Southwest Pacific

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Tuesday, Sept. 28 (AP)—More than 600 privates, corporals and sergeants, many of them veterans of jungle warfare in the Southwest Pacific, received the gold bars of second lieutenants today as the American Army Officers' candidate school in Australia graduated its third class.

All of the 636 new officers have been on active duty in the Southwest Pacific.

South Africans 'Unload' Argentine Merchandise

By The Associated Press.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa, Sept. 27—South African importers were trying today to unload approximately $50,000,000 worth of goods manufactured in South America—mostly Argentina—before shipments of better articles from Canada, the United States and Great Britain made them unsalable.

Speculators hoping to take advantage of the scarcity of some goods made big commitments in South America before the Government stopped import permits for certain Argentine products, principally inferior-grade stockings. Dealers were still trying to sell the hosiery at high prices, but 20,000 dozen pairs of Canadian hose are now arriving each month.

ANTI - U. S. RING BARED IN URUGUAY

Montevideo, Uruguay, Sept. 27 (A. P.).—Two Argentines were arrested today on charges of distributing pro-Nazi, anti-United States propaganda in Uruguay which had been imported from Argentina, and the arrests have lead to the discovery of a widspread anti-Allied propaganda ring in this country. The names of those held have not yet been announced.

A parliamentary committee investigating anti-Uruguayan activities and Special Judge de Gregorio, appointed to proceed against such activities, are inquiring into ramifications of the ring, which was uncovered when an Argentine trading agent was arrested in the Montevideo customs house as he tried to bring in a large package of Italian propaganda printed in Buenos Aires.

EDUCATION CONFERENCE OPENS IN PANAMA CITY

PANAMA CITY, Sept. 27 — (AP) President Ricaro Adolfo de La Guardia today inaugurated the first inter-American conference of ministers of education and laid down a broad outline for an inter-American university. Delegates from 21 western hemisphere republics are attending the conference.

Observing that the conference really aimed at post-war goals, the president said, "What could be more timely when the world seeks a means for a lasting peace, that we meet here in this isthmus center of hemisphere communications to lay the foundation for a cultural and spiritual union of the free men of America?"

Five institutes were created by the Panama government as a basis for an inter-American university. They include archaeology and history, sanitary sciences, economic sciences, comparative legislation and international law, and folklore and art. From this outline the conference is expected to give the university final form.

Extra Trousers for Canada

Two With Each Suit Allowed as Wool Shortage Is Eased

OTTAWA, Sept. 27 (AP).—The two-trouser suit is back in Canada.

"Any one who prefers a cuffed trouser or wants an extra pair of trousers when he buys a new suit now will be able to satisfy his wish and his clothier can lawfully accommodate him," the Prices Board announced today.

Cuffs and extra trousers were banned in March, 1942. Now, the board said, an adequate supply of Australian wool is assured and demands of the armed forces "are less of a burden."

Gen. McNarney Declares Germans Have Abandoned Hope of Victory

He Tells Editors and Labor Leaders That Nazi High Command Is Now Trying to Stave Off Defeat.

SEP 28 1943

Washington, Sept. 27 (A. P.).—The German High Command abandoned hope of victory several months ago, and since then has concentrated on an attempt to stave off defeat and emerge with what at best could be only a stalemate, Lieut.-Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, Deputy Chief of Staff, asserted today.

Addressing a conference of industrial and labor leaders and newspaper editors and publishers called by the War Department, Gen. McNarney said the shift in German hopes was disclosed when Germany reduced drastically its production of bombers to concentrate on fighters.

"This step, taken months ago," he said, "was the first visible evidence that Germany had abandoned the offensive and was seeking through defensive action what at best could be a stalemate."

The air offensive against Germany forced this result, Gen. McNarney said, but he warned the group not to let the success of the Allied bomber offensive make them overconfident. It has been a powerful factor in softening the enemy, he said, but Allied losses in the ground fighting, particularly of equipment, have been heavy although "our operations thus far have had relatively easy going."

Tells of Achievements.

He enumerated six results achieved in Europe by the air offensive: (1) Weakened the position of the German Air Force and compelled the disposition of strength to the serious detriment of German operations in Russia and the Mediterranean; (2) opened the German oil industry to critical reduction of supply; (3) reduced deliveries of military equipment by successful attacks on critical and heavy industries (4) cut submarine production and reduced the capacity of submarine bases; (5) reduced the margin of safety in Germany's rubber supply, and (6) made 1,800,000 persons homeless, diverting substantial resources to defense and repairs and at the same time lowering enemy morale generally by destroying public confidence in their political and military leaders.

Patterson Gives Warning.

Robert P. Patterson, Under-Secretary of War, told the group that the next twelve months of the war would place "the greatest strain in history" on the United States.

"There have been troubles and difficulties in the past, and we have, in the main, overcome those troubles and difficulties," he said in opening the conference, "but the most difficult job of all lies ahead. That is the drive to victory."

Because the War Department considers the group as a kind of "industrial general staff," and wants them to know exactly what the coming months hold in store on the way of production requirements, the Under-Secretary said the meeting was called to give these home front leaders a direct report, much of it confidential, from the Army's top commanders.

After Mr. Patterson's opening address the group heard an outline of the military situation from Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, who was followed by Major-Gen. George V. Strong, chief of military intelligence, with an outline of enemy strength, as well as Gen. McNarney.

Must Do Better.

Mr. Patterson said it was obvious that the war had taken a turn in favor of the Allies, and said that American-made equipment had played an incalculable part.

"Industry and labor have done a magnificent production job in this war," he said, but he continued: "I hope you will not think I am a man who sings only one tune, when I say that we must do better and better. The big operations, the decisive operations, lie ahead."

Remarking that he had just returned from a tour of the Pacific front, Mr. Patterson said he had asked Gen. Douglas MacArthur what he wanted most, and Gen. MacArthur had replied: "Send me air. Send me air and more air and more air."

It is true, Mr. Patterson said, that this country produced 7,612 planes in August, but we did not meet August schedules."

"These are not targets; they are working schedules," he said, asserting emphatically: "We need all those planes."

bor leaders and newspaper officials that the Germans now have three times as many combat divisions as they had at the time of the invasion of Poland. The Allies' main advantage, he declared, lies chiefly in our ability to produce weapons.

Japanese Power Growing

At the same time, Gen. Strong discounted the possibility of an early collapse of Japan and warned that the Japanese power will grow steadily as long as they retain virtual control of east Asia. Japanese resources are tremendous and the morale, both at home and in the army, is excellent, he said.

Lt. Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, deputy chief of staff who asserted that the Germans have given up aspirations for victory, pictured the Allies as having the initiative but warned that the heaviest fighting and the greatest losses lie ahead.

The two-day meeting was called to give the civilian leaders an insight into problems that have been overcome and those that lie ahead.

Robert P. Patterson, undersecretary of war, said in summing up the first day's session, that Gen. Strong's analysis, together with off-the record statements by Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, and Gen. H. H. Arnold, chief of the Army air forces, "left no doubt that our recent victories have failed to affect in any vital degree the strength of the enemy" and "made it plain that we have a long way to go before this war is won." Mr. Patterson added:

Far from Heart of Germany

"They pointed out that we are far from the heart of Germany or the heart of Japan and that both Axis nations have bigger armies now have 300 army divisions including 60 reorganized or established this year; and the labor force in war industries in Nazi-conquered territory has grown from 23,000,000 to 35,000,000.

The Japanese air force is getting larger and better and the Nipponese have a reservoir of about 4,000,000 men who can be called up when they're needed.

Gen. McNarney, in forecasting still heavier fighting, declared that it had taken 13 United States and British divisions five weeks to whip the three and a half divisions of Germans and 12 divisions of Italians of "doubtful combat value" even though the enemy's air power had been blasted from the skies by overwhelming Allied air forces.

20 Nazi Divisions Ready

"Today in Italy we are faced with nearly 20 German divisions; beyond Italy are the Alps, a formidable natural defense line and many more German divisions. At the present time, Germany is capable of opposing any attack on a vital portion of her European defense with at least 10 times the German forces defeated in Sicily.

"The fighting ahead will be hard and bloody. If we become overconfident or sit back and coast either in the Army or on the production front, we will be inviting disaster."

The first evidence that German military leaders realized the impossibility of an Axis victory and had shifted to a determined defense, he said, came several months ago when German bomber production was reduced drastically in order to step up the output of fighter planes.

The Allied air offensive has weakened the enemy greatly, he said, but the Germans are developing technical improvements which they hope will reduce the effectiveness of Allied bomber attacks. So far, he said, they have not succeeded.

In the Pacific, as in Europe, the principal weapon used to set the stage for future decisive action has been air power, Gen. McNarney said.

"No military man has wanted to follow a line of action which involved hopping short distances from island to island in the Pacific," he said, but the enormous supply problems imposed by the Pacific's vast distances have forced us thus far to operations against the perimeter (of Japanese strongholds.)"

"You can be sure," he added, "that future operations will provide for by-passing these outer barriers to the maximum exetent possible."

Nazi War Strength Greater Than It Was at Start of War

Foe Will Wage Desperate Fight, Army Leaders Say.

SEP 28 1943

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27 — (AP) Army leaders declared today that while the German High command has abandoned expectation of victory, the Nazis' combat strength is greater than four years ago and they will wage a desperate, bloody struggle to stave off outright defeat.

Major General George V. Strong, chief of military intelligence, told a conference of industrial and labor leaders that the war has taken a turn for the worse for the Germans, but that they are in a better position today than they had at the start of the war. There is no reason to believe that either is in imminent danger of collapse because of slack morale or economic stringency. On the contrary, there is every reason to believe that exactly the opposite is true.

"To be sure of victory we must throw everything we have into this fightand we must not relax our efforts until the last enemy has thrown down his arms."

From the reports of intelligence officers, Gen. Strong sized up German and Japanese strength this way:

The Luftwaffe is bigger than it was at the outset of the war, despite recent heavy losses: the Nazis

MRS. R. TELLS WHY SHE WENT

SEP 28 1943

First Reason, She Says, Was That Australia And New Zealand Asked Her

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 27 — Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, home from a five-week 25,000-mile tour of South Pacific islands and Australia, declared today that American men fighting the Japanese realize they have a tough job ahead but want to stick it out.

Breaking precedent, Mrs. Roosevelt welcomed men reporters to this press conference but with one exception the visitors left the questioning to their feminine colleagues. One man inquired whether she had heard complaints about the home front.

No Complaints From Men

Mrs. Roosevelt declared that she never heard a boy at any overseas post complain—not even the injured in hospitals nor those beset with the tedium of holding supply lines without the stimulus of action against the enemy.

The boys asked most, she said, about what was happening at home and whether they would have jobs when they came back.

Asked for overseas reaction to the father-draft question, Mrs. Roosevelt said most of the men thought the furor here "funny" because most of them were fathers.

Explains Why She Went

Mrs. Roosevelt explained that her tour into the Pacific war zones was made because:

1. Australia and New Zealand asked her to come there after her trip to England ten months ago.

2. Norman H. Davis, chairman of the American Red Cross, asked her to inspect Red Cross work there. Mrs. Roosevelt said she would make a written report to Davis, including "specific recommendations."

3. "My husband said it would be well for me to try to see as many of the hospitals and as many of the boys as possible."

Mrs. Roosevelt declared that she paid all of her expenses, except that the place on the transoceanic plane could not be paid for privately, being of Government assignment in wartime.

To observations of her press conferees, Mrs. Roosevelt agreed she had lost "quite a little" weight during her trip.

Broadcast For Bond Drive

Mrs. Roosevelt told a nation-wide radio audience that her trip gave her a surer faith that the men in the field can do the job "if we give them the tools and the backing which they need."

She spoke from the White House in connection with the $15,000,000,000 Third War Loan, now in its final week.

"Buying the war bonds is the first of our obligations to them," she declared. "War bonds provide the starting point from which materials of war evolve. This is the point at which your savings begin their return to your men all over the world."

HULL MOSCOW TRIP INDICATED BY BERLE

Secretary to Go if Presence in Parley Best Serves U. S. Interests, He Says

HULL RESTING IN VIRGINIA

Stettinius Hurries Back to Washington — Senate Will Act Soon on Nomination

SEP 28 1943

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27 (AP)—Nothing will keep Secretary of State Cordell Hull from going to Moscow for the three-power conference next month if American interests can best be served by his presence, Acting Secretary of State Adolf A. Berle said today.

Mr. Hull has gone to Hot Springs, Va., it was disclosed, apparently for a rest in preparation for the long air trip to the meeting of British, Russian and American diplomatic representatives.

Meanwhile Edward R. Stettinius Jr., newly appointed Under-Secretary of State—who may accompany Mr. Hull to Moscow—hurried back to Washington from the West Coast, where he was making an inspection as Lend-Lease Administrator.

On his arrival Mr. Stettinius immediately began a series of conferences with Government officials.

1943

He had said earlier that he wanted to talk with Secretary Hull but that that meeting probably would be delayed until Mr. Hull returned.

Mr. Berle said at a press conference that Mr. Stettinius probably would spend several days winding up lend-lease affairs before assuming his new post. President Roosevelt still must send his nomination to the Senate for approval.

Chairman Tom Connally said that the Senate Foreign Relations Committee would give prompt consideration to the nomination and probably would ask Mr. Stettinius to appear in person for questioning about policies he intends to inaugurate.

Mr. Berle said the [illegible]partment had always known M[illegible]ettinius as a friend and would [illegible]xtremely glad to have him a[illegible] league.

Mail to Reach Gripsholm

Messages May Be Sent to Passengers on Exchange Ship

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27 (AP).—The State Department announced today that messages may be sent to Americans returning on the Gripsholm in the current American-Japanese exchange of nationals.

Telegrams will reach passengers if sent on or before Oct. 10 in care of the American Consul General, Palace Hotel, Mormugao, Goa, Portuguese India, on or before Oct. 28 in care of the American Consul, Port Elizabeth, Union of South Africa, or on or before Nov. 10 in care of the American Embassy, Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. Air mail letters sent to the American Embassy in Rio de Janeiro will reach addressees if they are mailed before Nov. 1.

A tentative list of Gripsholm passengers has been given their families. Confirmation will be given after the Gripsholm leaves Mormugao and the list then will be made public.

To Use More Mexicans To Augment Labor Here

Washington, Sept. 27 (AP)—Paul V. McNutt, War Manpower Commissioner, expressed the opinion today that more Mexicans will be brought in to augment labor forces in this country.

When asked if more Mexicans would be brought in, he said "we have put forth every effort we can on that. Yes, I think we'll get some more. We've had some difficulties on the railroad side."

Browder Asserts Soviet Russia Won't Join War Against Japan

Declares Churchill Decided Against a Second Front Until 1944 and Holds Hitler Could Have Been Crushed.

Chicago, Sept. 27 (A. P.).—It is an illusion for the United States to expect the Soviet Union "will be able or willing also to undertake the burden of the military struggle against Japan," Earl Browder, general secretary of the United States Communist party, told a second front rally last night.

"All chatter about the Soviets giving us 'bombing bases' in Siberia is harmful nonsense," Mr. Browder continued, "with only one aim and end, to try to give the Soviet Union similar tasks in the Far East to those which she has performed in Europe, namely to win the war for us."

Earlier in his speech the Kansas-born Communist leader asserted: ". . . The cold hard truth is this, that unless we get down off our our high horse, unless, we, the United States, consolidate the alliance with Britain and the Soviet Union on the basis of equality all around . . . there is not the slightest prospect for us to emerge from this war with anything that can properly be called victory.

"The key to this victory is the full consolidation of the Anglo-Soviet-American alliance. This requires full coalition warfare at least to the extent of the Anglo-American side in the west engaging half as many of the Nazi forces as the Soviet Union takes on singlehanded. . . ."

Mr. Browder said that Prime Minister Churchill had "finally emerged as that 'military expert' whose opinion prevailed over Gens. Eisenhower and Marshall" in the "failure to open a second front" in France.

How to Win War in 1943.

Asserting the war could be won in 1943 by invading France, Mr. Browder said the steady advance of the Russian armies, "the prospect that it opens up a decisive victory in which Anglo-American arms will have no major share," may force reconsideration of Mr. Churchill's "decision to postpone the second front until 1944."

Again referring to Mr. Churchill and the second front, Mr. Browder said:

"Prime Minister Churchill, in his report to Parliament in the past week, declared that no amount of clamor for a second front would bring it a minute sooner than he had planned it. . . .

"Perhaps we cannot move Mr. Churchill. He is indeed a stubborn man, with a confidence in himself that survives many obvious mistakes. Our own Gen. Eisenhower was unable to shake him, when in 1942 Gen. Ike pleaded for the opening of the second front through France as the main action, with Africa as a secondary diversion. Gen. Marshall, American Chief of Staff, was unable to shake him in Quebec with the strongest military arguments for the immediate opening of the second front.

Says Weakness Is Moral.

". . . It is not military weakness that has prevented the Anglo-American combined forces from opening the second front. Some persons in position to determine the decision have been unwilling to have the second front opened. The weakness is moral, not military.

"It is a heavy responsibility to attempt to assign this default to particular persons. The evidence, however, inescapably indicates that Winston Churchill made the decision not to open the second front and that Franklin D. Roosevelt submitted to that decision because he was unwilling to have a public disagreement with Churchill. I feel sure that any time Churchill is ready to open the second front, he will find no obstacles from the side of Roosevelt."

Asserting that the Russian summer offensive had "proved beyond the possibility of a doubt" that with a second front in the west the past spring or summer "Hitler would have been crushed to the earth before this day," Mr. Browder continued:

"Who are the American supporters of Churchill's strategy of delay? They range all the way from the State Department within the administration through the Wheeler and poll-tax sections of the Democratic party, through the Republican congressional representation, to the whole camp of the America Firsters headed by the Chicago Tribune, Father Coughlin and Gerald L. K. Smith."

F. D. R. ISSUES RACIAL PLEA

Urges Cooperation In Winning War In Message To National Urban League

SEP 28 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Chicago, Sept. 27 — President Roosevelt says "Negro and white Americans must cooperate effectively in winning the war, and in developing harmonious peacetime living as a foundation of lasting American democracy."

He made the statement in a letter made public today on the eve of the annual meeting of the National Urban League for Social Service among Negroes. The message added:

"Democracy For All Men"

"The integrity of our nation and our war aims is at stake in our attitude toward minority groups at home.

"Men of all races—black, brown, white and yellow—fight beside us for freedom. We cannot stand before the world as a champion of oppressed peoples unless we practice as well as preach the principles of democracy for all men.

Responsibility Twofold

"Racial conflict diminishes war production, cuts down the flow of guns and planes and increases the toll of American lives. Racial strife destroys national unity at home and renders us suspect abroad.

"Ours is a twofold responsibility. All true Americans must be prepared to protect with life itself the inalienable rights of all men without regard to race, creed or color. All true Americans also must increasingly accept the responsibilities that go with democratic privileges."

Nassau-Canada Air Line Asked

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 27 (AP).—President Sigmund Janas announced here that Colonial Airways has filed application for a new air line connecting Nassau and Canada by way of Miami. The company, Janas said, proposes to use four-engined planes to provide passenger, mail and freight service to Nassau, Miami, Jacksonville, Savannah, Wilmington, N. C., Norfolk, Atlantic City, New York and Montreal.

BILLY BURKE'S BROTHER IS MISSING IN ACTION

NAUGATUCK, Sept. 27—(AP) First Lieut. Joseph Burkowski, a bomber navigator and brother of Billy Burke, a former National Open golf champion, is missing in action in the European theater of war, his wife was notified today by the War department.

Mrs. Burkowski, married last Dec. 4, said her husband told her in the last letter she received that he had been on 16 bombing missions. He was slightly wounded on his first mission, and had been decorated with the Order of the Purple Heart, the Air Medal and two Oak Leaf Clusters.

Another brother, Eddie Burke, reported receiving a letter from the lieutenant postmarked Sept. 16, in which the young officer said he had just returned from a furlough and had been golfing on a course in England where Billy Burke competed with the American Ryder cup squad.

NAZI PRISONER SEEKS VIEW OF CHICAGO RUINS

SYCAMORE, Ill., Sept. 27—(AP) A German soldier war prisoner asked permission today to "view the ruins of Chicago."

Sheriff Alfred Diez of De Kalb county said the soldier was one of 100 German prisoners brought from Camp Grant, Ill., to work in a canning factory here.

The prisoner seemed surprised, the sheriff added, when he was informed that continental United States remained unscathed from enemy air attack.

Seven Men Killed In Crash Of Bomber

SEP 28 1943

Tallahassee, Fla., Sept. 27 (AP)—Seven crew members were killed when an army medium bomber crashed about two miles from Dale Mabry Field here last night in a training flight from the Greenville

(S. C.) air base.

Capt. Frank Sakser, Mabry Field public relations officer, said there were no survivors of the accident.

JERSEY MEN KILLED

Dalhart, Tex., Sept. 27 (A. P.).—Second Lieuts. Leonard E. Dudek of 374 East 31st street, Paterson, N. J., and Charles E. Gutmann of 175 Preston street, Ridgefield Park, N. J., were killed Thursday night in the crash of a heavy bomber which took seven lives, the Dalhart Army Air Base announced.

Blythe, Cal., Sept. 27 (A. P.).—Army authorities have announced the death of two northern New Jersey men in the crash Wednesday night of a four-engined bomber near Waldo, Kan., in which nine other soldiers also died.

They were Sergt. Chester J. Urbanowicz, 27 years old, son of Mrs. Mary Urbanowicz of 24 Second street, Jersey City, and Second Lieut. Arthur L. Lamker, 25, son of Mrs. Henry Lamker of 11 Brandt street, Little Ferry.

Avon Park, Fla., Sept. 27 (A. P.).—Sergt. Howard C. Olsen of 51 Delaware street, Elizabeth, N. J., was one of six men killed Friday night in the crash of an Army bomber at the Avon Park Bombing Range, officers announced.

Chiang Aide Visits Jersey City

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Sept. 27 (AP)—Dr. Yulin Hsi, representative of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, in this country to conduct a survey of municipal governments, conferred today with Mayor Frank Hague, Dr. George O'Hanlon, chief physician of the Jersey City Medical Center, and Dr. Thomas Hopkins, chief of the Special Service Bureau, at City Hall. He is studying finance, police jurisprudence and social agencies.

CARRIER IS LAUNCHED

Camden, Sept. 27 (A. P.).—The aircraft carrier San Jacinto rode at anchor in the Delaware River today, a second direct contribution by the people of Houston, Tex., to America's expanding Navy.

Mrs. Jesse Jones, wife of the Secretary of Commerce, christened the ship, which was built with surplus funds after Houston's residents raised $80,000,000 in a drive for $30,000,000 to replace the cruiser Houston, lost in the Pacific. Mrs. Hally Bryan Perry of Houston, a descendant of Gen. Sam Houston, was matron of honor.

The ship was named for the battle of San Jacinto, in which Gen. Houston's Texans defeated the troops of Mexican Gen. Santa Anna, and is the second United States Navy ship to bear that name.

Charleston, S. C., Sept. 27 (A. P.).—Named for a Navy hero killed in the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, the U. S. S. Manning will slide down the ways on Friday in the first christening ceremonies for a destroyer escort constructed in building docks at the Charleston Navy Yard. The vessel will take the name of Milburn Alexander Manning, aviation machinist's mate third class of Howell Township, near St. Louis.

Sponsoring the ship will be Mrs. J. H. Hughes of Norfolk, Va., mother of five sons in the armed forces and widow of a Marine who served in world war I.

MARITIME LEADER WAS HELD ON SHIP

Curran Unable to Get Shore Leave When Vessel Docked at Africa.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27—(AP) Joseph Curran, president of the National Maritime union (C.I.O.), charged today that a security officer aboard his ship said he had an order to prevent the union leader from going ashore, at North Africa, and that he was told "I would be shot if I tried."

Back from a six-weeks' trip as an able-bodied seaman, Curran, announcing his union would appeal his 1-A draft reclassification, said the State department had done all in its power to block his mission to study maritime conditions abroad.

Forced to Stay Aboard Ship

"When we arrived at a North African port every member of the crew was given shore leave with one exception—Joseph Curran," he said. "I was informed that 'by order of the State department' I was not permitted to go ashore. I was also informed that if I descended the gangplank I would be shot and there were soldiers with tommy-guns there, ready to do the shooting."

Curran told the general press conference: "I was told I would be shot if I tried to go ashore, and would be returned to the United States as a consular passenger. They didn't say whether I'd go back in a vertical or a horizontal position."

Stalled on Passport

The N.M.U. chieftain said that when he decided to go to Great Britain, Soviet Russia and North Africa to study maritime conditions for the union, "the State department first delayed, then stalled on my application for a passport, so I shipped out on my seaman's passport as a worker-member of the crew."

"All I can think is that some interests in the State department did not want me to see the conditions I went to investigate," he said.

Referring to his selective service status, Curran said:

"All I can say is that I never knowingly violated the selective service laws. My employer, the union, is submitting an appeal, but what is in it, I don't know."

The union chieftain recently was reclassified from 2-A, an essential civilian status, to 1-A. His local board gave him until today to submit new evidence, pointing out that since there was a dissenting vote on the appeals board, he had the right to appeal to President Roosevelt.

Draft officials said Curran had left the country without notifying his local draft board.

What's Behind The War News

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

(Associated Press War Analyst)

Anglo-American troops in Italy are at the threshold of their indicated first objective, the Naples-Foggia line from the Tyrrhenian to the Adriatic. Perhaps a sixth of the Italian boot-and the important area for Allied purposes—is in their possession.

Thus, within 24 days of the first Allied landing on the mainland, the Italian bases to make good President Roosevelt's promise of ruthless bombing of southern and eastern Germany have been provided. The jump-offs for possible invasions of the Balkans and of southern France have been seized. And indications point strongly toward Nazi surrender of much more of Italy, possibly all of the long, narrow boot, with no more than hard-fought delaying action.

The withdrawal from Naples apparently already has begun. With British 8th army forces deploying into the Foggia plain to the northeast and the American 5th army converging on Avellino in the west, it is obvious that the Germans will make no serious fight to hold the Naples-Foggia short line position. It is too vulnerable on the flanks to Allied sea power.

Where the next stand of the enemy will come or what final defense line the Nazi High command has drawn in Italy remains to be seen. The speed with which Allied forces have swept up virtually to the Naples-Foggia line, however, again indicates that the fight in Italy is as yet only a rear-guard action in Nazi con ption.

It is being fought, and skillfully fought, to delay the Allied advance while that final defense position is put in readiness. And like the stunning Nazi retreat to the Dnieper in Russia, it has been done thus far without decisive losses—a reflection of fine German staff work.

Orderly retirement in the face of a hard pressing foe is the most difficult task any army commander can be called upon to execute. And both in Italy and in the far greater and more dangerous retreat in Russia there is no evidence of waning German army morale.

That is a fact to set down in conjecturing how close may be the end of the war in Europe. It under scores the warning of General Marshall and Prime Minister Churchill that the bloodiest part of the war is only now confronting us.

It seems posible that the Nazi plan in Italy is to fall back as slowly as possible to the Rome-Avezzano-Chieti line across the boot. There is a good highway and railroad system spanning Italy at that point. It follows river courses that would afford good natural protection, the Tiber and Anio in the west and center and the Aternus in the ast. It would also be strengthened in the west, based on Rome itself, by known Allied reluctance to put the Eternal city and Vatican city under merciless bombardment.

Seizure of the Foggia plain will give the Allies many air fields from which all upper Italy could be bombed. At Foggia, the British also will have a footing on the main inshore north-south highway up the boot. It passes around the head of virtually all of the rivers flowing into the Adriatic from the Apennines and an Allied advance there would outflank Rome.

RAIL TUNNEL BLOCKED ON ROUTE INTO ITALY

NEW YORK, Sept. 27 — (AP) The British Broadcasting corporation said today that "latest reports" showed the 8 1-2-mile-long Mt. Cenis tunnel through the Alps, main railroad link between France and Italy, was still blocked after being blown up by the Italians shortly after the announcement of the armistice with the Allies, and "will be out of order for several months."

The broadcast, recorded by CBS, said that with the demolition of the Mt. Cenis tunnel "one of the two railroad lines leading from France to Italy has been put out of condition. The other line has been bombed from the air and damaged by sabotage acts."

The BBC added that the railroad communication from Yugoslavia to Italy via East Venice was also broken as a result of action by Slovenian patriots operating "on both sides of the Italian-Yugoslav border."

New York, Sept. 27 (AP)—The Tokyo radio said tonight that Allied reinforcements had landed at Vella Lavella Island, northwest of Kolombangara in the Solomons, despite attacks by Japanese planes.

The broadcast, recorded by NBC, declared that two large Allied transports were set afire and that fires were started also at beach points "where the enemy forces made their landing."

LONDON, Sept. 27.—The London Daily Herald said today that Lord Beaverbrook, who became lord privy seal in the British cabinet Friday, may go to Washington soon to confer with President Roosevelt and other Government officials as a special representative of Prime Minister Churchill.

From Washington, the Daily Herald said, Lord Beaverbrook may go to Moscow to see Premier Stalin.

U. S. Soldier's Old Bunk Follows Him Abroad

3RD NIGHT LEAD AERIAL

LONDON, TUESDAY, SEP 28-(AP)-RAF BOMBERS BLASTED AT TARGETS IN GERMANY LAST NIGHT, THE BRITISH ANNOUNCED TODAY, CLIMAXING A DAY OF HEAVY AERIAL ACTIVITY IN WHICH AMERICAN FLYING FORTRESSES, ESCORTED BY THUNDERBOLT FIGHTERS, ATTACKED THE NAZIS' NORTH SEA NAVAL BASE OF EMDEN.

IT WAS THE FIRST TIME THAT BRITISH HEAVY BOMBER FORMATIONS HAD BEEN OVER GERMANY SINCE THE SMASHING ATTACK ON MANNHEIM-LUDWIGS-HAFEN LAST THURSDAY NIGHT, ALTHOUGH SPEEDY MOSQUITOS SUNDAY NIGHT ATTACKED OBJECTIVES IN THE RHINELAND.

THE THUNDERBOLT FIGHTERS WHICH ACCOMPANIED THE FORTRESSES WHICH

THE BRITISH ADMIRALTY ANNOUNCED THAT AT LEAST ONE GERMAN E-BOAT WAS SUNK AND SEVERAL OTHERS WERE DAMAGED SATURDAY IN A CLASH WHICH DEVELOPED WHEN BRITISH LIGHT NAVAL FORCES INTERCEPTED A FLOTILLA OF NAZI SHIPS OFF THE EAST COAST. THE ANNOUNCEMENT ACKNOWLEDGED THAT THE BRITISH TRAWLER FRANC TIREUR WAS SUNK IN THE ACTION.

THE BRITISH SHIPS WHICH INCLUDED TRAWLERS, CORVETTES AND DESTROYERS ENGAGED THE NAZI CRAFT SHORTLY AFTER MIDNIGHT AND THE GERMAN SHIPS STARTED TO WITHDRAW. TWO MOTOR LAUNCHES SET OUT IN PURSUIT AND ONE OF THE TWO RAMMED A GERMAN BOAT WHICH WAS THEN SET ON FIRE BY BRITISH GUNS.

THE GERMAN CREW ABANDONED SHIP JUST BEFORE IT WAS DESTROYED BY AN EXPLOSION.

ANOTHER GROUP OF GERMAN E-BOATS WAS ENGAGED AT CLOSE QUARTERS AND SOME OF THEM WERE HIT BUT POOR VISIBILITY PREVENTED ACURRATE OBSERVATION OF RESULTS, THE ADMIRALTY SAID.

SEP 28 1943

THE DISPATCH, WHICH CARRIED NO FURTHER DETAILS, WAS NOT CONFIRMED BUT IT WAS KNOWN THAT THE SHIPS HAVE BEEN HELD IN NORWEGIAN WATERS AND NORWEGIAN SOURCES IN LONDON SAID THAT ALL THREE OF THE VESSELS AS WELL AS THE POCKET BATTLESHIP ADMIRAL SCHEER TOOK PART IN THE GERMAN RAID ON THE ARCTIC ISLAND OF SPITZBERGEN EARLY THIS MONTH.

THE TIRPITZ, COMPLETED IN 1941, IS A BATTLESHIP OF MORE THAN 40,000 TONS WHILE THE SCHARNHORST, COMPLETED IN 1939, IS 26,000 TONS AND THE LUETZOW, FORMERLY THE POCKET BATTLESHIP DEUTSCHLAND, IS 10,000 TONS.

SOME QUARTERS IN LONDON WERE INCLINED TO CREDIT THE DISPATCH ON THE BASIS OF UNCONFIRMED RUMORS OF OUTBREAKS AND DISORDER AMONG THE

SUCH A VENTURE HAS BEEN THE SUBJECT OF CONSIDERABLE UNOFFICIAL SPECULATION IN LONDON. LIVERPOOL, SEPT. 27-(AP)-STOCKHOLDERS OF THE CUNARD STEAMSHIP CO., MAJOR TRANSATLANTIC LINE, VOTED TODAY TO AMEND THE COMPANY'S ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION TO PERMIT OPERATION OF AIR TRANSPORT SERVICE.

THE CHANGE PLACES DIRECTORS IN A POSITION TO BUILD, BUY OR CHARTER PLANES TO PUT CUNARD INTO COMPETITION FOR POSTWAR AIR ROUTES.

CUNARD WHITE STAR CO., A SUBSIDIARY OF CUNARD, ALREADY HAD BEEN GRANTED STOCKHOLDER PERMISSION TO ENGAGE IN AIR SERVICE.

HE WENT UP AND JUMPED AT 4,000 FEET.

"I SAW STARS," SAID WESTFALL AFTERWARD, "BUT THE 'CHUTE OPENED PERFECTLY."

MOSCOW, SEPT. 27-(AP)-PUSHING ON FROM CAPTURED SMOLENSK WITH THE AID OF A SUDDEN SPELL OF GOOD WEATHER, RED ARMY TROOPS MOVED DEEPER TODAY INTO WHITE RUSSIA, DRAWING HOURLY CLOSER TO THE GOMEL-MOGILEV-ORSHA-VITEBSK GERMAN DEFENSE LINE ON THE BANKS OF THE UPPER DNIEPER RIVER.

THE RUSSIANS HAVE ALREADY REACHED THE SWAMPS, MARSHY, FOREST-

30.24 8869

COVERED LAND CHARACTERISTIC OF WHITE RUSSIA. PROGRESS FROM NOW ON MAY BE EXPECTED TO BE DECIDEDLY HAMPERED SHOULD THE ARRIVAL OF FALL BRING RAIN OR SNOW. IT SHOULD BE REMEMBERED THAT WHEN THE GERMANS PLUNGED INTO WHITE RUSSIA IN 1941 THEY WERE FORCED TO BY-PASS MUCH OF THIS SWAMPY LAND.

A DISPATCH TO THE COMMUNIST PARTY ORGAN, PRAVDA, SAID THAT AS THE RUSSIANS APPROACHED GOMEL, THE FIGHTING WAS BECOMING MORE VIOLENT, WITH THE GERMANS THROWING IN LARGE NUMBERS OF TANKS IN AN ATTEMPT TO HALT THE ADVANCE.

SEP 28 1943

THE DAY'S BIGGEST STRUGGLE APPEARED TO BE UP AND DOWN CERTAIN SECTORS OF THE GOMEL-CHERNIGOV HIGHWAY. THE RED ARMY HAS ALREADY TAKEN REPKI ON THIS HIGHWAY AND IS BEATING ITS WAY NORTHWARD TOWARD GOMEL.

PRINCIPAL RED ARMY OBJECTIVES OF THE MOMENT APPEARED TO BE:

VITEBSK--THE RED ARMY WAS ONLY 20 TO 30 MILES FROM THIS BIG BASE INSIDE WHITE RUSSIA. THE SOVIETS ARE IN POSSESSION OF SCORES OF VILLAGES JUST TO THE EAST OF THE CITY AND ARE MAKING STEADY PROGRESS OF FROM THREE TO FIVE MILES DAILY.

ORSHA--NEXT BIG CITY SOUTH OF VITEBSK ON THE SMOLENSK-MINSK HIGHWAY, IS THE JUNCTION OF THREE RAILWAYS. THE RED ARMY WAS 57 MILES TO THE SOUTHEAST AT CAPTURED MONASTYRSCHINA.

MOGILEV--39 MILES SOUTH OF ORSHA, IS UNDER THREAT FROM THREE DIRECTIONS: FROM THE EAST FROM TZIGANOVKA; FROM THE NORTHWEST FROM MONASTYRSCHINA, AND THE SOUTHEAST FROM CAPTURED KHOTEMSK IN WHITE RUSSIA.

THE SOVIETS HAVE GAINED A NEW FOOTHOLD ON THE EAST BANK OF THE DNIEPER, 100 MILES NORTHEAST OF THREATENED KIEV, WHICH GIVES THEM A POWERFUL POSITION FROM WHICH TO MOVE UPON GOMEL.

TWO MORE ADVANCED POSITIONS, FROM WHICH THE SOVIETS ARE AIMING AT GOMEL, ARE ZLYNKA, 39 MILES TO THE EAST, AND LENINO, 36 MILES TO THE SOUTHEAST, BOTH OF WHICH ARE IN RUSSIAN HANDS.

TO THE SOUTH WHERE THE BIGGEST FIGHTING IS FOR BRIDGEHEADS UP AND DOWN THE DNIEPER, KIEV, UKRAINIAN CAPITAL, IS FACED WITH RED ARMY FORCES DRAWN UP ON THREE SIDES. THE GERMANS, HOWEVER, ARE OFFERING FIERCE RESISTANCE FROM WELL-FORTIFIED POSITIONS WITH HEAVY FORCES AND RESERVES.

SOUTHWARD, THE SOVIETS APPEARED STRONGLY ENTRENCHED ON THE EAST BANK AT KANEV AND CHERKASI, BOTH OF WHICH ARE ON THE WEST BANK AND ARE CONSOLIDATING UP AND DOWN THE BANK.

THERE HAS BEEN NO MENTION IN MOSCOW OF DNIEPER CROSSINGS SOUTH OF KIEV, BUT IT IS LIKELY THAT PATROLS HAVE REACHED THE WESTERN BANK.

THE RED ARMY HAS REACHED THE DNIEPER AT MANY PLACES IN THE KREMENCHUG, DNEPROPETROVSK AND ZAPOROZHE REGIONS, AND ASSAULTS ON THE THREE CITIES MAY HAVE COMMENCED.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, SEPT 27-(AP)-FRENCH TROOPS FIGHTING TO LIBERATE CORSICA CONTINUED TO PRESS CLOSELY UPON THE GERMANS IN THE NARROW NORTHEASTERN CORNER OF THE ISLAND YESTERDAY IN SHARP ENGAGEMENTS WITH ENEMY PATROLS AND ARTILLERY WEST OF BASTIA, A FRENCH COMMUNIQUE SAID TODAY.

CONSIDERABLE LOSSES WERE INFLICTED ON THE GERMANS IN RAIDS BY A FRENCH SHOCK BATTALION, THE ANNOUNCEMENT SAID.

THE GERMANS WERE FORCED TO EVACUATE THE AIRFIELD OF GHISONACCIA, 44 MILES SOUTH OF BASTIA ON THE EAST COAST, AFTER DESTROYING THEIR EQUIPMENT AND FUEL.

THE COMMUNIQUE SAID THE EMBARKATION OF GERMAN TROOPS BY AIR FROM CORSICA HAD BEEN SERIOUSLY HAMPERED BY ALLIED AIR ATTACKS.

ITALIAN RELATIONS

BY EDWARD KENNEDY

SOMEWHERE IN SOUTHERN ITALY, SEPT 21-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THE BADOGLIO GOVERNMENT, NOW ESTABLISHED IN SOUTHERN ITALY, SEEMS DETERMINED TO FORCE ITSELF UPON THE UNITED NATIONS AS AN ALLY, BUT AMERICAN AND BRITISH SOLDIERS HERE ARE FRANKLY UNENTHUSIASTIC ABOUT WELCOMING THE ITALIANS AS COMRADES IN ARMS.

IT WOULD NOT BE SURPRISING IF PREMIER BADOGLIO ACTUALLY ISSUED A DECLARATION OF WAR ON GERMANY AS A MEANS OF GETTING INTO THE WINNING CAMP AND SALVAGING SOMETHING IN THE POST-WAR SETTLEMENT.

THE IDEA OF ACCEPTING THE ITALIANS AS "ALLIES", HOWEVER, IS REPUGNANT TO MANY OF THE TROOPS, WHO THOUGHT THEY HAD DEFEATED THE ITALIANS ONCE AND FOR ALL AND NOW FIND IT STRANGE TO HAVE ITALIANS IN CHARGE OF CIVIL ADMINISTRATION HERE AND ISSUING DECREES WHICH INDIRECTLY AFFECT THE ALLIED FORCES.

BADOGLIO, ALONG WITH KING VITTORIO EMANUELE AND CROWN PRINCE UMBERTO, NOW ARE ESTABLISHED IN A SOUTHERN ITALIAN TOWN WHICH IS IN EFFECT THE PROVISIONAL CAPITAL OF ITALY. BADOGLIO HAS HIS OWN ARMY WITH ARMS, INCLUDING ARTILLERY, AND HIS GOVERNMENT IS PERMITTED THE USE OF THE BARI RADIO.

OFFICERS OF THE ALLIED MILITARY GOVERNMENT OF OCCUPIED TERRITORIES

(AMG) WHO CAME HERE TO ADMINISTER THE COUNTRY HAVE FOUND THEIR ORGANIZATION SIDETRACKED WHILE ITALIANS CONTROL THE CIVIL POWER, AND THEY ARE RESENTFUL OF THE SITUATION. AT LEAST ONE HIGH AMG OFFICER HAS RESIGNED, AND OTHERS LOUNGE ABOUT, SAYING:

"WELL, THIS IS A PRETTY COMIC WAR. WE CAME HERE TO DO A JOB, BUT FIND WE ARE NOT ALLOWED TO DO IT."

THE ATTITUDE OF THE TROOPS THEMSELVES IS EXPRESSED IN A REMARKABLY OUTSPOKEN ARTICLE IN THE BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY NEWS, WHICH HAS JUST BEGUN PUBLISHED A "MAINLAND EDITION" IN ITALY.

THE EDITORIAL FOLLOWED PUBLICATION OF GREETINGS FROM BADOGLIO TO THE EIGHTH ARMY IN WHICH HE SAID THAT "IN THE COMMON STRUGGLE WHICH AWAITS US, ITALIAN SOLDIERS WILL MARCH SIDE BY SIDE WITH BRITISH COMRADES AGAINST THE GERMAN OPPRESSOR FOR THE LIBERATION OF ITALIAN SOIL AND FINAL VICTORY.

REPLYING, THE EIGHTH ARMY NEWS SAID:

"ITALY SURRENDERED UNCONDITIONALLY. X X X WHAT DO WE FIND NOW? THE ITALIANS ARE OUR ALLIES. THEY THEREFORE CLAIM TO EXERCISE INDEPENDENCE IN INTERNAL AFFAIRS. A SOLDIER WHO WISHES TO CHANGE HIS BRITISH OCCUPATION MONEY FINDS IT HARD, IF NOT IMPOSSIBLE, TO DO SO. THE ITALIANS ARE QUIBBLING ABOUT THE RATE OF 400 LIRE TO THE POUND STERLING. X X X

SEP 28 1943

"MANY ITALIANS, IN FACT, ARE UNDER THE IMPRESSION THAT BECAUSE THEY SAY 'NOW WE ARE YOUR ALLIES' THEY ARE GOING TO SPARE THEIR COUNTRY THE RETRIBUTION WHICH A JUST VICTORY NORMALLY DEMANDS OF A DEFEATED ARMY AND WHICH A DEFEATED ARMY EXPECTS TO MAKE.

"WITH ALL DUE SYMPATHY FOR ITALIAN SUFFERINGS UNDER THEIR SELF-CHOSEN GERMAN FRIENDS, WE SHOULD SET THEIR MINDS STRAIGHT ON THIS."

THE EDITORIAL RECALLED THAT THE ITALIANS HAD HELPED PROLONG THE WAR, COST BRITAIN UNTOLD BLOODSHED AM WEALTH AND ALMO

WAR, COST BRITAIN UNTOLD BLOODSHED AND WEALTH AND ALMOST CAUSED HER TO LOSE THE CONFLICT IN THE MEDITERRANEAN. IT EXPRESSED BELIEF THE ITALIANS SHOULD "PAY THE PRICE OF THEIR FOLLY IN BELIEVING IN MUSSOLINI."

SIMILAR VIEWS ARE BEING EXPRESSED HERE BY AMERICAN OFFICERS AND MEN, ALTHOUGH THE FEELING IN THIS REGARD PERHAPS IS NOT QUITE SO PRONOUNCED AS AMONG THE BRITISH.

IT SEEMS, HOWEVER, THAT BADOGLIO IS STILL CLINGING TO THE IDEA THAT HE CAN PREVAIL UPON THE ALLIES TO FORGIVE AND FORGET AND WELCOME THE ITALIANS AS PARTNERS IN THEIR CAUSE.

ALGIERS, SEPT 27-(AP)-FRENCH INDO-CHINA'S PATRIOTS HAVE DECIDED THAT VIOLENCE IS THE BEST POLICY IN THE FACE OF THE OVERWHELMING PREPONDERANCE OF JAPANESE POWER, COMM.JEAN BOURGOIN, FORMER DIRECTOR OF COLONIAL PUBLIC WORKS IN INDO-CHINA, SAID TODAY.

BURGOIN ESCAPED INTO FREE CHINA IN SEPTEMBER, 1942, AND THEN MADE HIS WAY TO ALGIERS BY WAY OF LONDON. HE HAS AN AMERICAN WIFE WHOM HE HAS NOT SEEN SINCE EARLY IN 1941, WHEN HE SENT HER HOME TO BOSTON AS THE WAR CLOUDS GATHERED IN THE ORIENT.

BOURGOIN SAID THERE WERE A FEW TRAITORS IN THE COLONIES, BUT QUICKLY ADDED THAT NOW "ALL IN INDO-CHINA, BOTH FRENCHMEN AND NATIVES, ARE WITH YOU 100 PER CENT."

HE SAID THE JAPANESE HAD FREQUENTLY ATTACKED PATRIOT GROUPS, BUT WITHOUT SUCCESS.

"THE JAPANESE HAD ABSOLUTELY NO CONTACT WITH FRENCHMEN OR WITH THE ANAMITES," HE SAID. "THEY STARTED NEWSPAPERS WHICH THEY WERE FORCED TO CLOSE BECAUSE THEY HAD NO READERS."

THE COMMANDER SAID RESIDENTS OF THE COLONY AIDED AMERICAN AVIATORS WHENEVER THEY HAPPENED TO FALL ON INDO-CHINESE TERRITORY. HE HIMSELF HID ONE PILOT AND OPENED HIS LAST BOTTLE OF CHAMPAGNE IN HONOR OF THE OCCASION.

BOURGOIN URGED THAT THE ALLIES, WHEN THEY OPEN THEIR BURMA DRIVE, PUSH ON INTO INDO-CHINA WHERE "BASES OF GREAT STRATEGIC VALUE FOR FURTHER OPERATIONS IN THE CHINA SEA, AND PEOPLE OF WHOSE FIDELITY WE MAY BE SURE, ARE WAITING."

ON THE ADRIATIC COAST, SEPT. 25-(DELAYED)-(AP)-ARMCHAIR THEORISTS OF SUPER-MODERN WARFARE SHOULD BE SITTING TODAY ON THIS DUSTY HILL OVERLOOKING HISTORIC CERIGNOLA TO SEE ANOTHER STALEMATE IN THE ARGUMENT OF TANKS VERSUS GUNS.

AS NIGHT FALLS OVER THE VAST SWEEP OF OLIVE GROVES, VINEYARDS AND GRAIN FIELDS OF THE FOGGIA PLAIN, THE ARMORED SPEARHEAD OF THE BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY IS HALTED UNTIL TOMORROW ONLY TWO MILES FROM CERIGNOLA AND ABOUT 20 MILES FROM FOGGIA.

A SMALL AMOUNT OF GERMAN ANTI-TANK ARTILLERY HAS FORCED THIS TEMPORARY PAUSE.

TO THIS OBSERVER IT LOOKED AS IF DAVID WERE HOLDING OFF OUR STEEL GOLIATHS WITH AN EXPLOSIVE SLINGSHOT.

TODAY'S ALMOST BLOODLESS STRUGGLE OCCURRED ABOUT 10 MILES FROM THE SITE OF ANCIENT CANNAE, WHERE HANNIBAL'S ELEPHANT-BORNE CARTHAGINIAN INVADERS WIPED OUT THE ROMAN ARMY IN 216 B.C.

HANNIBAL WON CANNAE, BUT NEVER ENTERED ROME. ANY TOMMY AROUND ME NOW WILL BET YOU HE WILL HAVE BETTER LUCK THAN HANNIBAL.

SEVERAL TIMES DURING THE PAST FEW DAYS SURVIVING REMNANTS OF A GERMAN DIVISION THAT FOUGHT IN SICILY HAVE BARELY ELUDED ENCIRCLEMENT BY THE EIGHTH ARMY. THE COMMANDER OF THE ADVANCE GUARD TRIED AGAIN TO SNAFFLE THE ENEMY THIS AFTERNOON, SENDING SIX SHERMAN TANKS IN LEFT FLANK SWEEPS TOWARD THE OUTSKIRTS OF CERIGNOLA.

RAISING PLUMES OF BROWN DUST, THIS ARMOR, ACCOMPANIED BY SCUTTLING LITTLE BREN CARRIERS, ADVANCED OVER PLOWED FIELDS TOWARD THE EDGE OF THICK WOODS ON HIGHER GROUND.

THE TANKS HAD ALMOST PASSED THE BOUNDARY OF THE WOODS WHEN THE SHARP CRACK OF FIELD GUNS AND THE CLATTER OF MACHINE-GUNS ANNOUNCED

THE ENEMY DEFENSE.

THE TANKS RAISED SUCH A CLOUD OF DUST WE COULD NOT DISTINGUISH FROM LESS THAN A MILE AWAY WHETHER ENEMY TANKS HAD ALSO ENTERED COMBAT, BUT THE SPUTTERING WIRELESS CONVERSATIONS OF THE SHERMAN CREWS FURNISHED A RUNNING COMMENTARY ON THE ACTION.

"OBSERVE WHERE THEIR FIRE IS COMING FROM AND HAVE A SHOOT," SAID ONE TANK CAPTAIN TO ANOTHER.

"SORRY, X X X CAN'T SEE A THING BECAUSE OF THE DUST AND MACHINE-GUN BULLETS WHIZZING BY MY HEAD," WAS THE ANSWER.

"I'M RETURNING ALONG THE TRACK," SAID ANOTHER. "PLEASE GIVE ME CLEARANCE AND COVER."

"RIGHTO," CAME THE ANSWER.

"I'M RETURNING TOO, BUT I CAN'T COVER," SAID ANOTHER VOICE UNMISTAKABLY COCKNEY.

WE SAW THE BREN CARRIERS RACE BACK FIRST AND SWERVE TOWARD A DISTANT UNDEFENDED HILL TO FURNISH OBSERVATION. THEN THE SHERMANS ROLLED PONDEROUSLY TOWARD THE REAR AND LEFT FLANK TANKS BEGAN FIRING, EACH BURST SPEWING A CLOUD OF DUST FORWARD. THE RADIO WAS CROWDED WITH ORDERS AND REQUESTS FOR RANGING.

THE LIAISON OFFICER FOR THE BATTERIES OF 25-POUNDERS BEHIND US ASKED THE MAJOR OF THE CONTROL CAR:

"WE WILL SHELL THE WOODS, OF COURSE, BUT HOW ABOUT PUTTING DOWN A CRUMP ON THAT VILLAGE AHEAD TO SCARE ANY BOCHE OUT OF IT?"

THE MAJOR SHRUGGLED POLITELY. "I WOULDN'T DO IT. THE JERRIES HAVE GOT TO LEAVE THIS PLACE TONIGHT ANYHOW AND WE DON'T WANT ANY UNPLEASANTNESS WITH THE ITALIANS."

A SCRAP OF TANK TALK CAME IN AGAIN ON THE RADIO:

"I DON'T WANT TO BE GREEDY X X X I'VE JUST HAD A LOVELY SHOOT X X X SUPPOSE YOU RANGE NOW AND I'LL COOL DOWN A BIT."

OUR CONTROL CAR HAD BEEN IN FULL VIEW OF THE WOODS FOR AN HOUR WHEN SUDDENLY A GERMAN 75 BEGAN PAYING US ATTENTION. FIVE SHELLS BURST IN THE AIR BEHIND US.

"WHAT A VICIOUS NOISE," COMMENTED THE MAJOR COOLLY. "ANOTHER 60 MINUTES AND WE COULD HAVE CLEANED UP THIS GERMAN POCKET. NOW WE WILL HAVE TO STOP FOR THE NIGHT AND SEND OUT THE INFANTRY TO DO THE JOB."

WITH ALLIED FORCES IN CORSICA, SEPT 25-(DELAYED)-THE COMPLETION OF THE CAMPAIGN TO DRIVE THE GERMANS FROM CORSICA IS ESTIMATED NOW TO BE A MATTER OF DAYS.

THE GERMANS TODAY HAVE ONLY TWO STRONGHOLDS LEFT TO THEM--THE PORT OF BASTIA IN THE NORTHEAST AND GHISONACCIA, AN AIRFIELD 45 MILES TO THE SOUTH ON THE EAST COAST.

THEY ARE HOLDING THE COUNTRY AROUND THESE BRIDGHEADS AGAINST THE MOUNTING ATTACKS OF THE FRENCH EXPEDITIONARY FORCE AND CORSICAN PATRIOTS WHO ARE SUPPORTED BY ITALIAN TRANSPORT.

ONE ESTIMATE IS THAT 3,000 GERMANS ARE LEFT IN THE NORTHERN SECTOR AND 1,500 IN THE SOUTHERN AREA.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, SEPT 28 (TUESDAY)-(AP)-SUPPORTED BY RENEWED AIRACTIVITY, GROUND FORCES IN NORTH-EASTERN NEW GUINEA WERE CLOSING IN ON FINSCHHAFEN TODAY FROM THREE SIDES.

SEABORNE AUSTRALIANS, WHO LANDED NORTH OF THE JAPANESE BASE LAST WEEK AND WHO ALREADY HAVE TAKEN THE AIRPORT ABOVE THE TOWN, WERE ONLY THREE-QUARTERS OF A MILE FROM THE HEART OF FINSCHHAFEN.

AT THAT POINT THEY RAN UP AGAINST ELABORATE ENEMY DEFENSES AND THE ATTACK WAS SLOWED SO THAT REINFORCEMENTS COULD BE BROUGHT UP TO ASSURE FINAL SUCCESS.

ANOTHER ALLIED FORCE WAS ADVANCING EASTWARD FROM CAPTURED LAE ON HUON GULF. THESE SOLDIERS HAVE MOVED FORWARD NEARLY 40 MILES ALONG THE COASTAL ROAD AND WERE ABOUT 20 MILES FROM THE OBJECTIVE.

THE TWO COASTAL MOVEMENTS WERE SUPPLEMENTED BY A THIRD FORCE INLAND THE LAST REPORT, ON SEPTEMBER 24, PLACED THESE TROOPS AT SATTELBERG, NORTHWEST OF FINSCHHAFEN AND SIX MILES FROM THE COAST. THEY MAY HAVE APPROACHED MUCH CLOSER SINCE THEN.

VILLAGES AND ENEMY POSITIONS IN THE VICINITY OF FINSCHHAFEN WERE BOMBED AND STRAFED BY THE AIR ARM, CAUSING FIRES AND DAMAGE. THE JAPANESE RETALIATED WITH A NINE-BOMBER ATTACK BUT WITH LITTLE SUCCESS. FURTHER NORTHEAST ALONG THE COAST ALLIED BOMBERS IN TWO RAIDS IN THE MADANG SECTOR DESTROYED ROADS, BRIDGES AND TROOP CENTERS WITH 75 TONS OF BOMBS.

IN THE SOLOMONS AMERICAN PLANES CONTINUED TO HAMMER THE KAHILI AIRDROME ON BOUGAINVILLE ISLAND. THE JAPANESE SENT UP 60 PLANES IN AN EFFORT TO STOP THE ATTACK. NINE WERE SHOT DOWN AT AT COST OF TWO UNITED STATES CORSAIRS. THE VILA AREA ON KOLOMBANGARA, NEAR THE AMERICAN-HELD MUNDA AIR BASE ON NEW GEORGIA, WAS ATTACKED TWICE BY ALLIED AIRCRAFT.

NEW DELHI, INDIA-(CORRESPONDENCE OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)-MORE THAN 100 OFFICERS AND GEE-EYES (THE LATTER ANYBODY BELOW SECOND LIEUTENANT) HAVE ORGANIZED WHAT THEY HOPE WILL BE KNOWN TO POSTERITY AS SNYFBIC, MEANING THE STATE OF NEW YORK FORCES IN BURMA, INDIA AND CHINA.

MANY OF THEM HAD BEEN OUT HERE A YEAR OR MORE, BUT THEY GOT TOGETHER FOR THE FIRST TIME AT AN ORGANIZATION BANQUET AND HAD WHAT THE CBI ROUNDUP, WEEKLY NEWSPAPER, OF THIS WAR THEATER, DESCRIBED AS "ONE HELLUVA TIME."

"QUALIFICATIONS FOR MEMBERSHIP," THE CBI ROUNDUP SAID, "CONSIST OF BEING ABLE AND WILLING TO LOOK SOMEONE STRAIGHT IN THE EYE AND SWEAR THAT YOU ACTUALLY DO 'COME' FROM NEW YORK.

"A LEGAL COMMITTEE IS ATTEMPTING TO FIND OUT, AMONG OTHER THINGS, WHETHER IT IS AGAINST ARMY REGULATIONS TO CHARGE DUES."

ALTHOUGH THE CBI ROUNDUP HANDLED NEWS OF SNYFBIC'S ORGANI ZATION LIGHTLY, S/SGT. JACK BLUMENFELD, 27, OF (609 WEST 187TH STREET) NEW YORK CITY, ONE OF FIVE GEE-EYES WHO GAVE BIRTH TO THE SNYFBIC IDEA, DECLARED THE ORGANIZATION ALSO HAD ITS SERIOUS SIDE.

"OF COURSE," BLUMENFELD ADDED, "WE ENJOY MEETING OTHER FELLOWS FROM THE EMPIRE STATE, SOME OF WHOM WE NEVER SAW BEFORE ALTHOUGH THEY LIVED IN THE SAME BLOCK. BUT WE PLAN TO ORGANIZE CHAPTERS THROUGHOUT THE THEATER. WE HOPE SNYFBIC WILL LAST LONG AFTER THE WAR."

SEP 28 1943

HE READ OFF THIS PREAMBLE TO SNYFBIC'S CONSTITUTION:

"WE, RESIDENTS OF NEW YORK STATE NOW SERVING WITH THE U.S. ARMED FORCES IN THE BURMA-INDIA-CHINA THEATER OF WAR, IN ORDER TO FOSTER GREATER FRATERNITY AMONG OUR FELLOW EMPIRE STATERS; TO MAINTAIN AND TO PERPETUATE THAT DEEPROOTED FEELING OF ONENESS POSSESSED BY ALL NEW YORKERS; TO PRESERVE, EVEN AFTER THE WAR, THE COMMON RESERVOIR OF EXPERIENCE SHARED BY US BOTH IN ASIA AND AT HOME; AND TO ESTABLISH CLOSER CONTACT WITH THOSE FRIENDS AND RELATIVES WHO REMAIN BEHIND; DO HEREBY INAUGURATE THE STATE OF NEW YORK FORCES IN BURMA, INDIA AND CHINA."

BLUMENFELD'S FELLOW FOUNDERS WERE T/4 SAMUEL MILLER, 1094 BRYANT AVE., BRONX; T/5 EDWARD TRUISE, 3519 25RD AVE., ASTORIA; CPL. HAROLD MILLER, 811 WALTON AVE., BRONX; AND CPL. NORMAN DIAMOND, 555 OCEAN AVE., BROOKLYN.

AS THE GSI ROUNDUP PUT IT, "THEY CAME TO THE CONCLUSION THEY IMPLY COULD NOT FACE A FUTURE DEVOID OF CONTACT WITH OTHER NEW YORK PATRIOTS."

THE GEE-EYES WERE IN THE MAJORITY AT THE ORGANIZATION BANQUET, AT WHICH SPEECHES WERE SHORT AND HILARITY LONG. OFFICERS ON HAND INCLUDED COL. JOHN R.SUTHERLIN OF WHITE PLAINS, CHIEF OF STAFF FOR THE TENTH U.S. AIR FORCE; AND MAJORS JOHN MOTT, FORMERLY DIRECTOR OF INTERNATIONAL HOUSE IN NEW YORK CITY, AND CHARLES HOLMES, 41 EAST 75TH STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

BLUMENFELD SAID MODESTLY AFTER SNYFBIC'S ORGANIZATION BANQUET, "THIS IS THE BIGGEST THING THAT EVER HAPPENED IN NEW DELHI."

AMONG THOSE IN ON THE BIRTH OF SNYFBIC WERE: (FROM NEW YORK CITY UNLESS OTHERWISE NOTED)

T/5S WALTER J.ZENEWITZ, 545 EAST FIFTH; CHARLES F.KNELL, 7032 69TH, GLENDALE; FRANK W.PELAN, 7 AVENUE B; ERWING KLAPP, BROOKLYN; STEVE SNEARS, 185 EAST 2ND; GAETANO ESEMPLARE, 480 MYRTLE, BROOKLYN; DIEGO MARTINEZ, 67 PINEAPPLE, BROOKLYN; MARSHAL MELTZER, 1850 65TH, BROOKLYN.

THE STATEMENT FROM LONDON, HOWEVER, LEFT NO DOUBT ABOUT BRITAIN'S TRUE POSITION.

"HIS MAJESTY'S GOVERNMENT X X X HOPE THAT IN THE INTERNATIONAL SPHERE THE ARGENTINE GOVERNMENT WILL AT AN EARLY DATE RANGE HERSELF WHOLEHEARTEDLY ON THE SIDE OF THE FREEDOM LOVING NATIONS," SAID THE STATEMENT, THE FULL TEXT OF WHICH WAS PUBLISHED HERE.

THE NOTE POINTED OUT THAT BRITAIN WISHED TO CONTINUE HER FRIENDSHIP AND COMMERCE WITH ARGENTINE, BUT ADDED THAT BRITISH LEADERS NEVER UNDERSTOOD WHY ARGENTINA, ALONE OF THE WESTERN REPUBLICS, FAILED TO FOLLOW THE RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE RIO DE JANEIRO CONFERENCE OF FOREIGN MINISTERS REGARDING THE SEVERANCE OF RELATIONS WITH AXIS POWERS.

THUS, THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT FOLLOWED THE LEAD OF THE U.S.STATE DEPARTMENT IN OPENLY CRITICIZING ARGENTINE FOREIGN POLICY. SECRETARY OF STATE CORDELL HULL'S RECENT LETTER LED TO A GOVERNMENT CRISIS AND RESIGNATION OF FOREIGN MINISTER SEGUNDI STORNI.

THE BRITISH ASSERTION THAT ARGENTINA FAILED TO GIVE BRITISH ENCHRESTS AND NATIONALS "PROPER CONSIDERATION AND PROTECTION"

THE BRITISH ASSERTION THAT ARGENTINA FAILED TO GIVE BRITISH INTERESTS AND NATIONALS "PROPER CONSIDERATION AND PROTECTION" OBVIOUSLY ALLUDED TO THE RECENT DETENTION OF TWO BRITISH OFFICIALS OF A UTILITY COMPANY WHO WERE TAKEN FROM THEIR HOMES AT NIGHT AND HELD FOR 24 HOURS WITHOUT BEING TOLD OF THE CHARGES AGAINST THEM.

THE LONDON NOTE WAS MADE PUBLIC IN CONJUNCTION WITH AN ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE BRITISH FOOD MINISTRY OF AN AGREEMENT TO PURCHASE ARGENTINA'S EXPORTABLE SURPLUS EGGS FOR THE 1943-44 AND 1944-45 SEASONS. A MEAT PURCHASE AGREEMENT WAS CONCLUDED EARLIER IN THE YEAR.

OTTAWA, SEPT 27-(AP)-PRIME MINISTER W.L.MACKENZIE KING TOLD A DINNER GATHERING OF NATIONAL LIBERAL FEDERATION MEMBERS TONIGHT HE HOPED THERE WOULD BE NO NECESSITY OF A GENERAL ELECTION IN CANADA UNTIL "THE HOUR AT WHICH WE MAY LOOK FORWARD TO WELCOMING BACK" THOSE CANADIANS WHO SURVIVED THE WAR OVERSEAS.

BUT "WHETHER A GENERAL ELECTION CAN BE DELAYED UNTIL THAT TIME I CANNOT SAY," HE ADDED.

(ONLY BY DEFEAT ON A MAJOR ISSUE OR BY A NO-CONFIDENCE VOTE IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS, WHICH IS CONTROLLED BY LIBERALS, COULD THE PRIME MINISTER'S LIBERAL PARTY GOVERNMENT BE FORCED FROM OFFICE BEFORE MIDSUMMER OF 1945, WHEN THE STATUTORY LIFE OF THE PRESENT PARLIAMENT IS TO END.)

THE PRIME MINISTER WAS SPEAKING AT A DINNER OF THE ADVISORY COUNCIL OF THE NATIONAL LIBERAL FEDERATION AND LIBERAL WORKERS FROM COAST TO COAST, HERE FOR A TWO-DAY PARTY REORGANIZATION MEETING.

AN ELECTION BEFORE THE WAR'S END WOULD BE NECESSARY, KING SAID, IF:-

1. THE WAR IS STILL RAGING IN 1945, WHEN A REGULAR ELECTION IS SCHEDULED.

2. SUFFICIENT EVIDENCE ARISES TO INDICATE THAT "ANY CONSIDERABLE PROPORTION" OF CANADIAN PEOPLE ARE UNWILLING TO CONTINUE TO SUPPORT THE GOVERNMENT'S POLICIES;

3. A GROUP OR COMBINATION OF GROUPS IN PARLIAMENT MOVED TO IMPEDE THE WORK OF PARLIAMENT OR TO "MISREPRESENT AND DISTORT GOVERNMENT POLICIES" TO MAKE IT NEXT TO IMPOSSIBLE FOR THE GOVERNMENT TO CARRY ON;

4. THERE WAS DISSENSION IN THE RANKS OF THE GOVERNMENT AND ITS SUPPORTERS "FOR CAUSES AT THE MOMENT WHOLLY UNFORESEEN."

OTTAWA, TUESDAY, SEPT.28-(AP)-- ZZZZZZZZZ CANADIAN J.A.

TRADE MINISTER MACKINNON TODAY ANNOUNCED SUSPENSION OF WHEAT TRADING ON THE WINNIPEG GRAIN EXCHANGE.

SEP 28 1943

30.24 8879

IN THE MEANTIME ALL FUTURES PRICES AND ALL CASH WHEAT PRICES OF ALL GRADES ARE FIXED AT MONDAY'S CLOSE, AND NO PURCHASES OR SALES MAY BE MADE AT OTHER PRICES. NO EXPORT SALES MAY BE MADE UNTIL FURTHER NOTICE.

"UNDER THIS NEW ARRANGEMENT THE GOVERNMENT INTENDS TO MEET REQUIREMENTS UNDER THE MUTUAL AID PLAN AND TO PROVIDE WHEAT TO SUBSIDIZED DOMESTIC PURCHASERS OUT OF GOVERNMENT-OWNED WHEAT, RATHER THAN OUT OF WHEAT IN WHICH THE FARMER HAS A PARTICIPATING INTEREST," THE STATEMENT CONTINUED.

"THE GOVERNMENT WILL THUS BE ABLE TO AVOID THE POSITION OF BEING BOTH THE FARMERS' AGENT AND, IN EFFECT, THE ULTIMATE BUYER OF THE WHEAT.

"OTHER EXPORT SALES, INCLUDING SALES TO THE UNITED STATES, WILL BE MADE OUT OF WHEAT DELIVERED TO THE BOARD DURING THE 1943-44 AND 1944-45 CROP YEARS IN WHICH PRODUCERS HAVE A PARTICIPATING INTEREST."

THE CANADIAN WHEAT BOARD WILL BE EMPOWERED TO PURCHASE FOR GOVERNMENT ACCOUNT ALL UNSOLD WHEAT STOCKS IN COMMERCIAL POSITIONS IN CANADA, INCLUDING WHEAT HELD IN THE 1940-41, 1941-42 AND 1942-43 CANADIAN WHEAT BOARD CROP ACCOUNTS, AT MONDAY'S CLOSING PRICES ON THE WINNIPEG GRAIN EXCHANGE.

MACKINNON SAID THAT SINCE IT WILL TAKE SOME TIME TO MAKE THE NECESSARY ARRANGEMENTS FOR THE FINAL CLEARING OF ALL OUTSTANDING FUTURES CONTRACTS AND TO TAKE OVER ALL THE UNSOLD CASH WHEAT, THE FINAL CLOSING OUT OF THESE CONTRACTS WILL BE DEFERRED FOR SEVERAL DAYS.

SEP 28 1943

EFFECTIVE SEPT. 28, ALL PURCHASING OF WHEAT FROM PRODUCERS ON AN OPEN MARKET BASIS IS TO BE DISCONTINUED. THE CANADIAN WHEAT BOARD WILL PROVIDE ELEVATOR COMPANIES WITH PRICE LISTS FOR COUNTRY PURCHASES AS SOON AS POSSIBLE.

WHEAT MAY BE RECEIVED INTO COUNTRY ELEVATORS UNDER ESTABLISHED QUOTAS AND, PENDING THE ESTABLISHMENT OF DEFINITE INITIAL PRICES FOR ALL GRADES OF WHEAT ON THE NEW BASIS, ADVANCES MAY BE GIVEN BY ELEVATOR COMPANIES.

THE ACTION IN CLOSING OUT THE 1940-41, 1941-42 AND 1942-43 WHEAT BOARD CROP ACCOUNTS AT MONDAY'S CLOSING PRICES WILL MEAN THAT INSTEAD OF THE PRODUCER HAVING TO WAIT UNTIL THE BALANCE OF THESE CROPS ARE SOLD, HE WILL RECEIVE A FINAL PAYMENT ON HIS DELIVERIES TO THE BOARD AS SOON AS THE ACCOUNTING HAS BEEN COMPLETED AND THE CHEQUES CAN BE ISSUED," MACKINNON'S STATEMENT SAID.

"THE IMMEDIATE RESULT OF THE NEW INITIAL PAYMENTS OF 1943-44 AND 1944-45 DELIVERIES WILL BE A MATERIALLY HIGHER PRICE TO THE PRODUCER AT COUNTRY ELEVATORS. THIS RESULTS FROM THE INCREASED PRICE, BASIS IN STORE, FORT WILLIAM-PORT ARTHUR, OR VANCOUVER, AND FROM THE REDUCTION IN THE BUYING MARGIN AT COUNTRY POINTS.

"AS A RESULT OF THIS ACTION THE CANADIAN GOVERNMENT, THROUGH THE CANADIAN WHEAT BOARD, WILL OWN ALL UNSOLD STOCKS OF WESTERN CANADIAN WHEAT, EXCEPT WHEAT HELD BY PRODUCERS ON FARMS. ANY LOSSES RESULTING FROM THE SALE OF THIS WHEAT WILL BE ABSORBED BY THE GOVERNMENT.

"PARTICIPATION CERTIFICATES WILL BE ISSUED ENTITLING PRODUCERS TO SHARE IN PROFITS, IF ANY, REALIZED ON THE SALE OF WHEAT ACQUIRED BY THE BOARD FROM PRODUCERS DURING THE 1943-44 AND 1944-45 CROP YEARS."

WASHINGTON,SEPT.27-(AP)-REXFORD G.TUGWELL BLUNTLY TOLD CONGRESS TODAY THAT IT IS CONFRONTED WITH THE CHOICE OF GIVING ECONOMIC AID TO PUERTO RICO OR FACING THE POSSIBILITY OF "SUPPRESSING AN ANGRY PEOPLE" WHO MAY FEEL THAT THEY HAVE BEEN "WRONGED."

THE PUERTO RICAN GOVERNOR, IN A REPORT SHARPLY CRITICIZING WHAT HE TERMED THE FAILURE TO ADOPT A DEFINITE POLICY TOWARD THE CARIBBEAN POSSESSION, ASSERTED IT WOULD BE JUST AS CHEAP TO PROVIDE THE "MEANS OF RECONSTRUCTION" AS TO "KEEP PEACE WITH AN IDLE AND STARVING POPULATION" OF SPIRITED STOCK.

SPECIFICALLY, TUGWELL CHARGED, CONGRESS HAS NOT PROVIDED SUBSIDIES TO PROMOTE FOOD PRODUCTION ALTHOUGH HE SAID THE INSULAR GOVERNMENT HAD "EVERY RIGHT TO EXPECT FEDERAL AID."

DEFENDING HIS OWN ADMINISTRATION, WHICH HAS BEEN UNDER CONGRESSIONAL FIRE AT TIMES, TUGWELL ASSERTED THE "SOCIAL REFORMS" HE HAS INAUGURATED ARE AIMED AT BUILDING NEW ENTERPRISES AND SUPPLYING THE ISLANDERS WITH A GREATER INCOME. FURTHERMORE, HE DECLARED, HE HAS BEEN CONFRONTED WITH THE EMERGENCY OF WAR.

AS A SOLUTION FOR THE ISLAND'S PROBLEM, HE ADVOCATED "A DELIBERATE POLICY OF ASSISTANCE" FOR A FEW YEARS AND THEN A PLEBISCITE TO GIVE THE PUERTO RICANS A CHANCE TO SAY WHETHER THEY WANT STATEHOOD. IF THE ELECTORATE AND CONGRESS DO NOT APPROVE OF STATEHOOD, HE SAID, THEN A PLAN PROVIDING FOR GRADUAL INDEPENDENCE--ALONG THE LINES OF THE PHILIPPINE PLAN--COULD BE ADOPTED.

TUGWELL'S REPORT WAS SUBMITTED TO A SENATE SUBCOMMITTEE HEADED BY SENATOR DENNIS CHAVEZ (D-NM), WHICH INVESTIGATED CONDITIONS IN PUERTO RICO LAST SPRING. CHAVEZ DECLINED COMMENT UNTIL HE HAD TALKED WITH OTHER COMMITTEE MEMBERS.

SEP 28 1943

THE BLOODY BATTLE OF THE DNIEPER--750 MILES OF HELL ALONG THE WINDING REACHES OF EUROPE'S THIRD BIGGEST RIVER--HAS REACHED ITS CRISIS IN A STRUGGLE FOR THE CROSSINGS OF THIS EXPANSIVE WATERWAY BEHIND WHICH THE RETREATING HITLERITES HOPE TO TAKE REFUGE UNLESS THE ONRUSHING RUSSIANS GAIN CONTROL OF THE PASSAGES.

IT IS ONE OF THE GREAT DRAMAS OF THE WAR. THE NAZIS HAVE BEEN RACING BACK IN COSTLY CONFUSION WHICH IN PLACES HAS TAKEN ON THE NATURE OF THAT MOST DREADED OF MILITARY MISFORTUNES--A ROUT. GERMAN LOSS OF LIFE AND MATERIEL HAVE BEEN COLOSSAL.

NOW THAT PURSUED AND PURSUERS ARE CLOSE TO THE DNIEPER BARRIER, THE FUEHRER'S FORCES ARE THREATENED WITH DOUBLE DISASTER: (1) BEING CAUGHT AND ANNIHILATED AT MANY PLACES BEFORE THEY CAN MAKE THE CROSSINGS; (2) LOSING CONTROL OF THE FEASIBLE PASSAGES OF THE RIVER AND ALLOWING THE REDS TO GET ACROSS TO CUT UP AND SMASH THE DISORGANIZED GERMAN FRONT.

ALREADY MANY NAZIS HAVE BEEN SLAIN ON THE EASTERN BANK, WITHIN SIGHT OF THEIR DEFENSES ACROSS THE WAY. MOSCOW REPORTS THAT GREAT NUMBERS OF THEM ACTUALLY HAVE BEEN FORCED INTO THE ICY WATERS OF

THE RIVER WHERE THEY HAVE DROWNED.

THE NAZIS DOUBTLESS HAVE BEEN PRAYING TO HITLER--OR WHOMEVER IT IS THEY PRAY TO, IF AT ALL--THAT THE RUSSIANS WOULD BE BOGGED DOWN IN THE SEA OF MUD PRODUCED BY THE AUTUMN RAINS. THE LATTER SUFFER THE DISADVANTAGE OF GREATLY EXTENDED COMMUNICATIONS THROUGH A COUNTRY IN WHICH THE RAILWAYS AND HIGHWAYS HAVE BEEN DESTROYED BY THE ENEMY. THE GERMANS, ON THE OTHER HAND, HAVE BEEN FALLING BACK ALONG COMPARATIVELY GOOD COMMUNICATIONS WHICH AT LEAST PERMITTED FAST MOVEMENT OF MEN, IF NOT OF HEAVY EQUIPMENT.

BUT THE RAINS HAVE COME AND TURNED THE TERRAIN INTO A MASS OF CLINGING MUD, MORE TERRIBLE THAN A NIGHTMARE. THE HEAVY, BLACK MASS HAS CLUNG TO THE MUSCOVITE BATTLE-BOOTS LIKE GLUE. IT'S THE SORT OF THING WE USED TO SEE IN FLANDERS IN THE LAST WAR, WHEN IT WOULD TAKE STRETCHER BEARERS AN HOUR TO GO A HUNDRED YARDS WITH A WOUNDED MAN. I'VE SEEN THE AUTUMN MUDS OF EASTERN EUROPE, TOO--AND IT'S UNBELIEVABLE.

SO IN THE DRIVE ON THE DNIEPER, THE RED MOTOR TRANSPORT AND EVEN CATERPILLAR-EQUIPPED MACHINES HAVE BEEN SUCKED DOWN IN THE MIRE UNTIL IT SEEMED THEY COULDN'T MOVE. STILL THE MUSCOVITES HAVE DRIVEN THROUGH IT, BRINGING ALONG THEIR ARTILLERY AND SUPPLIES.

SEP 28 1943

BELIEVE IT OR NOT, THE REDS EVEN HAVE BROUGHT THEIR SIEGE GUNS UP TO THE EASTERN BACK OF THE DNIEPER OPPOSITE THE HOLY CITY OF KIEV--STRATEGIC CENTER OF HITLER'S DREAM-KINGDOM OF THE GOLDEN UKRAINE. ONE OF THE FIERCEST STRUGGLES OF THE WHOLE ELONGATED BATTLE IS PROCEEDING THERE AND MOSCOW HAS REPORTED:

"THERE CAN BE NO DOUBT THAT DETACHMENTS OF HITLER'S PLUNDERERS ARE ALREADY FLEEING FROM KIEV LIKE RATS FROM A SINKING SHIP."

SO GOES THE STRUGGLE FOR THE CROSSINGS OF THE DNIEPER. IN SOME PLACES IT'S REPORTED THAT THE RUSSIANS HAVE EVEN GOT TO THE WEST SIDE. STILL, OUT OF ALL THIS SENSATIONAL FIGHTING, WE MAY FIND THAT

30.24_8087

THE MOST IMPORTANT STAGE OF THE BATTLE AT THE WEEK-END WAS THE CAPTURE OF SMOLENSK--GATEWAY TO AND FROM MOSCOW.

SMOLENSK LIES CLOSE TO THE HEADWATERS OF THE DNIEPER. WHICH THERE TURNS TO THE NORTHEAST. IF THE RUSSIANS CAN CRASH THROUGH THE GERMAN LINE JUST ABOVE THERE IN WEIGHT, THEY WILL BE ABLE TO DEVELOP A TURNING OPERATION AGAINST THE ENEMY BOTH NORTH AND SOUTH. THE NAZIS IN THIS AREA THUS WILL BE IN DANGER OF BEING SURROUNDED AND DESTROYED. ALREADY THE REDS APPEAR TO BE LAUNCHING THIS OPERATION, FOR THEY HAVE SWEPT FORWARD SOME SIX MILES TOWARDS VITEBSK.

ON THE WHOLE, IT LOOKS AS THOUGH IN SMOLENSK THE RUSSIANS HAVE DISCOVERED THE ACHILLES HEEL OF THE GERMAN LINE. THROUGH THE SMOLENSK GATEWAY THEY MAY BE ABLE TO POUR DISASTER UPON THE NAZIS, EVEN IF IT'S IMPOSSIBLE TO ACHIEVE THE VITAL CROSSINGS OF THE DNIEPER FARTHER SOUTH.

WASHINGTON,SEPT.27-(AP)-EDWARD R.STETTINIUS, JR., THE MAN WHO PUMPED MARTIAL LIFEBLOOD INTO RUSSIA DURING THE GRIMMEST PHASES OF HER STRUGGLE WITH THE GERMANS, MOVED INTO THE NO.2 SPOT AT THE STATE DEPARTMENT TODAY AMID CONGRESSIONAL PREDICTIONS THAT HARMONY HAS BEEN RESTORED ON THIS COUNTRY'S DIPLOMATIC FRONT.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S APPOINTMENT OF THE 42 YEAR OLD LEND-LEASE ADMINISTRATOR AS UNDERSECRETARY OF STATE, AND HIS SIMULTANEOUS RESHUFFLING OF THE FOREIGN ECONOMIC AND RELIEF SETUPS, WERE VIEWED ON CAPITOL HILL AS PRESAGING A FIRMER APPROACH TO DIFFICULT INTERNATIONAL PARLEYS AHEAD.

DESPITE HIS "BIG BUSINESS" BACKGROUND, THE SUAVE, EARNEST STETTINIUS HAS COME TO BE WELL LIKED AND RESPECTED IN CONGRESSIONAL CIRCLES. THIS WAS DEMONSTRATED FORCEFULLY WHEN THE BILL RENEWING THE LIFE OF HIS LEND-LEASE ADMINISTRATION WENT THROUGH CONGRESS

WITH HARDLY A RIPPLE OF DEBATE LAST SPRING.

AND EQUALLY IMPORTANT, FROM THE STANDPOINT OF THE FORTHCOMING TRI-PARTITE TALKS AMONG BRITAIN, RUSSIA AND THE UNITED STATES, HIS SELECTION IS ALMOST BOUND TO BE WELCOMED IN MOSCOW, WHERE HE IS KNOWN AS THE MAN WHO DISPATCHED ARMS, FOOD AND OTHER LEND-LEASE SUPPLIES FOR THE SOVIET TROOPS.

COUPLED WITH THE EXPECTED APPOINTMENT OF W.AVERELL HARRIMAN, LEND-LEASE EXPEDITER IN LONDON, AS THE NEW UNITED STATES AMBASSADOR TO RUSSIA, THE STETTINIUS CHOICE IS REGARDED AS LIKELY TO OFFSET ANY SOVIET DISAPPOINTMENT OVER THE RETIREMENT OF SUMNER WELLES, FORMER UNDERSECRETARY.

WELLES HAD BEEN LOOKED ON BY THE RUSSIANS AS ONE OF THEIR STAUNCHEST FRIENDS IN THE STATE DEPARTMENT. HIS RESIGNATION WAS ANNOUNCED WITH "SINCERE REGRET" BY PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT IN A STATEMENT WHICH GAVE MRS.WELLES' HEALTH AS THE REASON. THERE HAD BEEN REPORTS FOR SOME TIME OF FUNDAMENTAL DIFFERENCES BETWEEN THE UNDERSECRETARY AND SECRETARY HULL.

SEP 28 1943

THE APPOINTMENT OF STETTINIUS, WHO HAD NOT FIGURED PROMINENTLY IN SPECULATION OVER A POSSIBLE SUCCESSOR TO WELLES, WAS ANNOUNCED WITH SUCH DRAMATIC SUDDENNESS THAT HE HAD TO CANCEL PLANS FOR ATTENDING A SHIP LAUNCHING IN SAN FRANCISCO AND FLY BACK TO WASHINGTON.

IT IS PROBABLE THAT HE AND HARRIMAN WILL ACCOMPANY SECRETARY HULL TO MOSCOW NEXT MONTH FOR A MEETING WITH THE BRITISH AND RUSSIAN FOREIGN MINISTERS, PRELIMINARY TO A ROOSEVELT-STALIN-CHURCHILL CONFERENCE. STETTINIUS, WHO HAS BEEN TO MOSCOW BEFORE IN CONNECTION WITH LEND-LEASE OPERATIONS, IS EXPECTED TO APPLY HIS PRACTICAL AND REALISTIC BUSINESS EXPERIENCE TO HIS NEW POST--HE FORMERLY WAS CHAIRMAN OF THE BOARD OF THE UNITED STATES STEEL CORPORATION.

MR.ROOSEVELT SAID HIS BUSINESS EXPERIENCE ADMIRABLY FITTED HIM FOR THE JOB.

IN FURTHER PREPARATION FOR IMPORTANT DEVELOPMENTS IN FOREIGN ECONOMIC AND RELIEF FIELDS, THE PRESIDENT ANNOUNCED THESE MOVES:

THE APPOINTMENT OF FORMER GOV.HERBERT H.LEHMAN OF NEW YORK AS SPECIAL PRESIDENTIAL ASSISTANT TO COMPLETE PLANS FOR NEXT MONTH'S ORGANIZATION MEETING OF THE UNITED NATIONS RELIEF AND REHABILITATION ADMINISTRATION. LEHMAN HAS BEEN MENTIONED AS A LIKELY DIRECTOR GENERAL FOR THIS INTERNATIONAL AGENCY.

THE CONSOLIDATION, UNDER LEO T.CROWLEY, OF THE OFFICE OF ECONOMIC WARFARE, THE LEND-LEASE ADMINISTRATION, THE OFFICE OF FOREIGN ECONOMIC COORDINATION, AND THE OFFICE OF FOREIGN RELIEF AND REHABILITATION OPERATIONS. MUCH OF THE LATTER OFFICE, NOW HEADED BY LEHMAN, PROBABLY WILL BE ABSORBED INTO THE UNITED NATIONS SETUP.

EIGHTH ARMY NOW HOLDS BIG NAZI AIR BASE

GALLAGHER

Takes 12 Satellite Fields Intact in Major Victory of Italian Campaign.

FIFTH ARMY NEARS ADRIATIC

Drives Into Melfi, 40 Miles From That Sea, Cutting Panzer Division to Pieces.

SEP 28 1943

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Sept. 28 (A. P.).—A strong British mobile armored column has raced twenty-five miles through Field Marshal Gen. Albert Kesselring's defenses and captured the great air base city of Foggia with its twelve satellite airfields.

Official reports disclosed the vanguard of Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's Eighth Army troops entered the city at 3 P. M. yesterday, easily overcoming minor opposition.

At the same time Lieut.-Gen. Mark W. Clark's men of the Fifth Army registered gains of from two to five miles to the north in the Salerno area in the face of stubborn German resistance.

The Fifth Army captured the towns of Lioni and Castelnuovo on the eastern flank of this line, which was held by American troops. The historic city of Melfi also was taken.

North of Salerno British troops plunged their way forward two miles.

Panzer Divisions Cut to Pieces.

Some idea of the intense fighting encountered by the Fifth Army was given by prisoners of the German Sixteenth Panzer Division who said their division had been virtually put out of action, with its losses exceeding 50 per cent.

[Today's German communique said the "pressure" of the Anglo-Americans in southern Italy had been considerably increased with the landing of fresh forces." It added: "While all attacks were beaten back in the Salerno area our troops have disengaged themselves according to plan in the area of Foggia and have retreated to prepared mountain positions. Foggia was evacuated after destruction of all installations of war importance."]

On the Eighth Army front "considerable casualties" were inflicted on the Germans in the drive on Foggia, headquarters announced, but there were indications that German resistance was slight on the swift advance against Kesselring's rearguard forces which were left at the mercy of British columns.

Foggia Most Important to Date.

From a strategic standpoint Foggia is perhaps the most important city captured in the Italian campaign to date. It is a city of about 85,000 and possesses one of the best airdromes in all Italy and a dozen smaller satellite fields that will place powerfull Allied air forces within closer striking distance of the Balkans as well as southern Germany and the great Ploesti oil fields of Rumania.

Foggia was the No. 1 objective of the Allied drive in southern Italy. So swift was the Allied advance that the enemy was prevented from destroying the airfields.

"It is obvious that the Allied drive in the east has made perilous the German position in the Naples area," an Allied headquarters spokesman said.

Foggia, in addition to being an air base, is a road center with at least six main highways leading into it from all directions.

Americans Drive to Melfi.

The Fifth Army's drive into the hills toward Nocera, ten miles northwest of Salerno, made steady progress in bitter hand-to-hand fighting. Capture of this road junction will take the Allies to the edge of the plain leading to Naples, vital port which the Germans have been systematically destroying.

The capture of Melfi, forty miles from the Adriatic, represented an advance of five miles beyond the previously reported Allied position. This gain was made by the American east wing of the Fifth Army and it placed the Allies within the road network area leading to the back door of Naples.

How long Kesselring can continue his savage defense north of Salerno in face of the Allied drives in other directions is a matter of opinion unless he decides to draw away his forces in the Naples area in a "Stalingrad" defense.

The Allied advances were made with only limited air cover because for the second day in succession bad weather grounded most aircraft.

Nazis Give Up Corsican Town.

German troops being pressed into a tight pocket in the northeastern sector of Corsica have evacuated the town of Aleria, forty miles south of Bastia on the east coast of the island, a French communique said today. The bulletin said the Germans deserted the town after withdrawing their forward posts from the Aleria-Corte road.

"Their retreat has been covered by demolitions and by the planting of mines which are slowing the advance of our troops," the French said.

French shock troops and patriot groups were said to have cut off German rearguard detachments, inflicting severe losses on the enemy and capturing some prisoners. In the sector west of Bastia, the communique said, the only activity of any consequence was a slight enemy retreat to the hill of Santo Stefano.

10 Enemy Planes Destroyed.

American A-36 dive bombers swooped down on an enemy airdrome at Viterbo and a seaplane base at Lake di Bracciano, northwest of Rome, in dawn raids yesterday, destroying at least ten enemy planes.

NORGAARD

The raiders caught between twenty-five and forty enemy aircraft on the ground at the Viterbo field and left five in flames with many others damaged. In addition a JU52 transport was caught over the field and shot down.

Other raiders also took off at dawn and roared down upon thirteen seaplanes anchored on Lake di Bracciano. Five seaplanes were left on fire.

The raids were carried out before bad weather closed down over Italy and grounded all Allied bombers.

Kitty-bombers and P-40 Warhawks were the only other North African Air Force planes in action. They made what were officially termed "two very successful attacks on a train north of Point Della Penna on the Adriatic coastal railroad eighty miles north of Foggia."

Meanwhile it was officially announced that a re-check showed two more JU52 transports were destroyed off Corsica September 24 by R. A. F. Beaufighters in addition to nineteen previously announced.

All Allied planes returned safely from yesterday's operations.

Fifth Army Continues Slow Advance Toward Naples.

NAZIS LOSE ON CORSICA

Enemy Evacuates Aleria, Retreats to San Stefano Hill.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 28 — (AP) The great Italian air base of Foggia and its 13 largely undamaged fields were captured Monday in a swift, 25-mile British armored lunge which increased the peril to German defenses of Naples, through which the American Fifth army advanced two to five miles.

Tonight, Hitler's Balkan satellites lay at the mercy of Allied air fleets which can strike from Foggia at Munich, the heart of Nazism; at Vienna, a key German aircraft center; and at the capitals of Hungary, Rumania and Bulgaria. Conquered Greece, Yugoslavia and Albania also came under the shadow of Allied air power, as well as all northern and central Italy and southeast Germany.

British Units Advance

Britons of the Fifth army on the extreme left advanced two miles in bitter hand-to-hand fighting in mountains northwest of Salerno and tonight they could look down on the rail and road junction of Nocera, southeast of Vesuvius and 19 airline miles from Naples. The capture of Nocera would take the Allies to the edge of the Naples plains leading to the demolished port of 925,000.

Americans inland on the right flank of Naples advanced two to five miles and captured Lioni and Castelnuovo. Lioni is 46 miles east of Naples on the railway crossing Italy to Bari. Castelnuovo is 57 miles east of Naples.

Historic City Falls

The historic city of Melfi, 75 miles east of Naples, also fell. It is 34 miles south of Foggia on an inland railway leading up from Potenza connecting with the Bari-Naples line.

The Germans on Corsica were retreating to San Stefano hill and evacuated Aleria, 40 miles south of Bastia, a French communique said. Mines and demolitions slowed the mop-up, but the French declared they were inflicting severe losses and capturing prisoners.

(The Algiers radio said Flying Fortresses destroyed 100 truckloads of Germans hemmed in at Bastia and that Nazis fleeing in small boats were brought under fire of Allied batteries.)

Foggia was a prize of equal or even greater importance than Naples because of its airfields.

The swift advance of the mobile British column prevented the enemy from destroying or damaging the airfields, which, however, have been battered frequently by Allied bombers. The airfields will need little work to become suitable for Flying Fortresses, Liberators and Marauders.

"It is obvious that the Allied advance in the east has made perilous the German position in the Naples area," an Allied spokesman said, pointing out that Foggia lies 80 miles northeast of Naples.

"The Eighth army advance was made possible because the enemy was putting his greatest strength against the Fifth army north of Salerno."

The British raced into Foggia at 3 p.m. yesterday after inflicting "considerable casualties" on the Germans in their advance. From all indications, the German resistance in Foggia itself was slight and the British were able to overrun Marshal Albert von Kesselring's rear guards.

580 Miles to Oil Fields

Foggia is the most important strategic city captured in the Italian campaign. Its airfields are within 580 miles of the Ploesti oil fields in Rumania without which German machines would thirst to death. They lie 465 miles from Vienna and 500 miles from Munich. The main field is Foggia Gino Lisa. The satellites of varying size and equipment extend as far as 23 miles from the city.

Foggia, a city of 85,000, is a major railway center. An electric line links it with Naples. Multiple tracks lead to Bari and Brindisi and a single line extends to Potenza. All these cities are in Allied hands. Still other railways link Foggia to the German-held cities of Pescara, Ravenna and Ancona and to the Gargano peninsula which radiate in all directions. Foggia is 190 airline miles north of the tip of the Italian heel.

The Foggia plain extends another 50 miles north in which there is no suitable defense line. It lies only 35 miles east of the road junction of Vinchiatura, leading through the wide Calore river mountain pass to points behind Naples.

Menaces Nazis in Greece

Possession of the Foggia air fields menaced the Germans in Greece particularly, because these Nazis depend on a single railroad down the Vardar valley for the bulk of their supplies. This narrow, twisting road with many bridges is less than 300 miles from Foggia and can be easily cut.

From Foggia, the Allies can throw long-range fighters over the Yugoslav Adriatic coast which the Germans are having a hard time policing since the Italian surrender. These fighters and bombers could support Yugoslav guerrillas or an Allied expeditionary force, if necessary.

1943

30. 24 - 8885

United States Naval units patrolled southern Italian waters near Naples "standing by to support land operations," Gen. Eisenhower's communique said.

Nazis Suffer Losses

German defense of Naples remained stubborn, though costly. Prisoners from the 16th German armored division said their outfit had lost half its men as casualties fighting the Fifth army.

The capture of Melfi represented a five-mile advance beyond the previously reported Allied position and placed the attackers within the road network of the area leading to the backdoor of Naples.

Kresselring's defense positions around Naples became increasingly untenable as the Fifth army drove flanking columns forward to the east.

Continued bad weather deprived the Allies of all but small air cover. Fighter-bombers attacked the Viterbo airfield, 40 miles north of Rome and a seaplane base at Lake de Bracciano.

The raiders caught between 25 and 40 enemy planes on the ground at the Viterbo field, and left five in flames and many others damaged. In addition, a Junkers 52 transport was shot down over the field.

At Lake di Bracciano, also north of Rome, five of 13 anchored seaplanes attacked were left afire.

These daring raids were carried out before bad weather closed down over Italy, grounding all Allied heavy and medium bombers. Kittyhawk bombers and P-40 Warhawks attacked trains and a railroad station north of Pont Della Penna on the Adriatic coastal line north of Foggia.

they finally encountered a lone civilian—a bearded man in tattered, faded blue jeans.

"Hello, boys," said Pietro Romania, who used to live around Forty-second street, New York. "Make yourself at home."

Brother Lives In Flushing

Romania, who said his brother Nicola lives in Flushing, but could not remember the exact address, related that a handful of German troops with armored vehicles evacuated posts on the outskirts of Foggia between 11 o'clock and midnight.

The British took Foggia without firing a shot, acquiring the most important air base that the Allies had yet won in Italy.

They smothered small but bitter German opposition yesterday within five miles of Foggia.

Along the banks of the nearly dry Gervaro river, a badly mauled Nazi rear guard tried to make a stand yesterday afternoon, after losing the town of Cerignola in the morning.

Brief Battles Fought

In the machine-gun ringed Incoronato woods, where the German ground crews had kept large stocks of plane parts and bombs, and in the open grain fields near the village of Colonello, hot, brief battles were fought.

Two German tanks were destroyed by British tommy-gunners who combed the thick oak forest of Incoronato on foot and cleaned it out of Nazis before nightfall.

The Germans destroyed a series of railroad and highway bridges over the Cervaro, but the river, despite last night's rain, was still only a shallow, muddy creek and easily fordable at almost any point of its bed across the Foggia plain to its mouth in the Adriatic.

A large amount of relatively undamaged railway rolling stock, including twenty to thirty locomotives, was left by the Germans on sidings outside Foggia.

Airfield Littered

Foggia's main airfield is littered with wreckage.

RAF officers in armored cars reached the airfields shortly after Foggia was occupied, and tonight they were completing a survey of the work that will be necessary to make them a great springboard for jumping the limits of the Allied air offensive far northward.

Foggia's entire population had taken refuge in the countryside, but this afternoon perhaps a dozen women and children and several men came back to scratch in the wreckage of what had been their homes.

Virtually every street is pitted with deep craters. Half of the big power station is smashed flat, and through broken walls transformers can be seen nearly buried in the debris.

British Losses Few

The Eighth Army's Adriatic offensive, which got rolling outside Bari last Thursday and reached Foggia this morning—a net advance of eighty miles—was executed with extremely light casualties.

I picked up a love letter from a girl at Festeburg to a German soldier, "Walter," which was written August 29. Like the majority of the other letters left behind by Nazi troops recently it complained that Walter had not written home for several months.

"Dare you not write, or is it a secret of the Wehrmacht?" the girl had written.

RUSSIANS TAKE 2 TOWNS NEAR KEY RAIL CITY

Battle of Dneiper Grows as Both Sides Rush Up Reserves.

BATTERED NAZIS REGROUPING

Soviet Troops Engulf 1150 More Places on All Fronts—Now

Threaten Vitebsk.

London, Sept. 28 (A. P.).—Russian armies closing in on the strategic southern White Russian rail junction city of Gomel have captured Zyabrovka, eleven miles to the southeast, and Zakopite, twenty miles to the east, Moscow announced tonight.

More than 1,150 towns and villages were reported seized on all fronts.

The Red Army threatening Mogilev and Vitebsk to the north scored gains ranging from six to fifteen miles, capturing more than 800 villages, said a communique recorded by the Soviet monitor. More than 200 fell in the plunge on Gomel, it said.

Thirty-eight more villages were declared seized on the left bank of the Dnieper River in the consolidation of Russian positions before Kiev, the Ukraine capital.

In the sector of Kremenchug, site of another Dnieper River crossing 160 miles southeast of Kiev, the Russians said their troops captured 120 villages, including Potoki, only nine miles to the northeast of the city.

The latest Soviet bulletin made no mention of any Russian leaps across the river, as reported by Berlin broadcasts, nor did it mention further progress in the Red Army drive on Dnepropetrovsk, a left bank suburb of which fell to the Russians yesterday.

Germans Call Up Reserves.

Thrown back to the Dnieper River from the Zaporozhe area in the south of Russia to positions almost as far north as Gomel in White Russia, the German Army summoned reserves today and regrouped its battered forces. Except in certain sectors the Red Army is virtually in control of the eastern bank of the Dnieper.

The Nazis still were fighting desperately in the Kremenchug area, outside Kiev and before Dnepropetrovsk, but the Soviet forces were doggedly breaking down this resistance.

[Russian Guards units, according to a BBC broadcast recorded by CBS, are storming across the Dnieper using small islands as stepping stones while other assault forces attack across what is left of two railway bridges. The location of the crossings were not mentioned.

[Another BBC broadcast reported that advance Russian forces are only a few miles from the big German bridgehead at Kremenchug. The Nazis are fiercely defending many other smaller bridgeheads over which they are trying to get their men to the west bank.

[Reports from Moscow say that the Russians have begun their assault on Dnepropetrovsk and Soviet field artillery last night shelled the German defenses of the city proper, BBC reported.]

Nazis Rush Up Armor.

It seemed only a matter of hours until the Russians would be encamped on the entire eastern bank of the Dnieper along a 400-mile stretch. From positions slightly south of Gomel to the area west of Smolensk the Red Army pushed on toward the eastern bank while at Smolensk, of course, the Russians were well beyond the western bank.

Dispatches to the official newspaper Izvestia told of new Nazi reserves arriving as the Germans tried to hold back the Red Army's punches up and down the Dnieper. New tank groups appeared and captives told Russian officers that reserves were being hauled up from distant points.

[Indications that the Russians are massing troops along the east bank of the Dnieper for simultaneous crossings in many places on a line running from Dneprepetrovsk to a point some ninety miles north of Kiev were referred to in a BBC broadcast heard this afternoon by NBC. Quoting Moscow sources, the British radio said that, except for certain stubbornly defended German bridgeheads, around Dneprepetrovsk which the Russians are rapidly eliminating, the Red Army holds the entire east bank of the Dnieper. Fresh troops and materiel are poupnring in along the Russians' Dnieper line, possibly, foreshadowing simultaneous crossings at manw points on this 400-mile front.]

Southwest of Cherkasi on the western bank of the river—a city which protects one of the biggest crossings—Soviet aviation found further evidence of fresh troops and machines. Russian bombers discovered several trains and attacked them with good results. Other bombers located more enemy troops and machines gathered at the Dnieper crossing.

GERMAN DEFENSES ON UPPER DNIEPER NEARING COLLAPSE

Hitler's Troops Fall Back on Vitebsk, Blow Up Bridges.

REDS APPROACH CITY

Russians Seize Much Booty as Enemy Retreat Widens.

LONDON, Wednesday, Sept. 28—(AP) Red armies pursuing a badly mauled and disorganized enemy into White Russia captured more than 1,000 villages yesterday, putting the Gomel-Vitebsk railway within artillery range and threatening the early collapse of Germany's upper Dnieper line, Moscow disclosed early today.

A Soviet bulletin said German troops falling back on Vitebsk were blowing up bridges and dynamiting installations as the Russians closed in on that upper White Russian city, key to Poland and the Baltic states. The Red vanguard was believed to be only 10 miles away.

11 Miles From Gomel

Two hundred miles to the south the Russians reached a point only 11 miles outside Gomel, junction of five railways, on the heels of a "disorganized enemy," the Soviet communique said.

Between Gomel and Vitebsk other units forced the Germans to abandon "one position after another," the communique said, in the race toward Mogilev and Orsha. In one sector on this front an entire Nazi regiment was flanked and routed. The same happened to another enemy column, and the Russians seized large quantities of war equipment and pushed on westward.

Farther south the Russians said their troops had surrounded Kremenchug, below Kiev, pinning Axis remnants to the east bank of the Dnieper and either killing or capturing them.

Russian armies drawn up on the east bank opposite Kiev also consolidated their positions, said the bulletin, recorded by the Soviet monitor.

Reds Filter Across River

Berlin broadcasts still said the Russians were filtering across to the west bank near Kiev, and Capt. Ludwig Sertorius, Nazi military commentator, frankly recognized the peril to the German line in the north.

In what appeared to be a preparation for another German retreat, west of the Dnieper, Capt. Sertorius said the Russian flanking design was becoming clearer in the north, then added:

"German armies will be established on a new front which has outstanding advantages for the defenders."

Altogether more than 1,160 villages were captured on all fronts during the day, the Russians said, and more than 3,500 of the fleeing enemy slain.

On the western tip of the Taman peninsula in the Caucasus, the Germans apparently were in headlong retreat across the Kerch strait to the Crimea.

The communique said airmen of the Soviet Black sea fleet had struck blows on concentrations of German troops there and "on enemy means of transport in the Strait of Kerch." Two freight craft and several landing barges were declared sunk, 100 trucks destroyed, ten German planes shot down, and a batallion of troops wiped out.

200 Trucks Destroyed

Soviet airmen also aided in the fight to reduce Kremenchug. Flying to the west bank, they were said to have destroyed 200 enemy trucks carrying troops and war materials, and shot down 41 German planes.

The fall soon of the east bank city of Kremenchug also was foreshadowed in the bulletin, recorded by the Soviet monitor. One Soviet column attacking that bridgehead city frontally was ripping Nazi defenses within nine miles of the city; others had swept around it to the Dnieper on both sides.

Dnepropetrovsk, 85 miles southeast of Kremenchug, also was endangered by Soviet troops attacking from its east bank suburbs, and the communique said 38 more villages had fallen to the Red army consolidating its positions on the river bank opposite Kiev, Ukraine capital far to the northwest.

Moscow dispatches said long lines of German reserves were being hurried from the rear in an effort to hold the Dniepper line. The Soviet air force was strafing and bombing troop trains west of the Dnieper, however, and the communique indicated no slackening in the Red army's westward plunges.

A German broadcast recorded by the Associated Press said the Red army already had stabbed unsuccessfully at some islands in the broad Dnieper above Kiev, building rafts and pontoon bridges by night.

Fresh crossings of the Dnieper also were reported by Berlin. Although one broadcast said these failed, the Nazi High command communique said "numerically weak" Russian troops still were fighting on the west bank. Moscow was silent on these reports.

Foggia Precipitates Nazi Action.

In these operations, Hitler was moving with all urgency against a menace suddenly and vastly increased against his Balkan front, for the capture of Foggia by the British, announced today, meant that the whole of northern Italy, the Danube Valley and southern Germany itself now have been brought more adequately under the shadow of the Allied air arm. It meant also that grand-scale facilities for Allied air action against the Balkans had now been obtained in an area of 150 miles across the Adriatic Sea.

Meanwhile Yugoslav guerrilla forces were reported to be menacing the German base at Niksic in Montenegro after capturing the mountain town of Savnik, fifty miles inland from the Adriatic Sea.

Capture of Savnik was announced last night in a special communique broadcast by the Yugoslav liberation army and heard in London by Yugoslav listeners. The patriot forces also were said to be in control of Zadljak, fifteen miles northeast of Niksic, and to command communications between German bases in the interior.

Caught Between Guerrillas.

The German forces in Montenegro were reported sandwiched between guerrilla troops operating in the mountains and a long coastal area.

The Yugoslav bulletin said that bitter fighting continued at Sinj in the north. It added that the struggle for Susak, in the Fiume area, was continuing indecisively.

"Violent street fighting and house-to-house skirmishes are taking place between Yugoslav patriots and Nazi troops in Susak, according to a Yugoslav communique, broadcast by the London radio and heard by NBC.]

Reports from Yugoslavia said that more than 50,000 Italian soldiers and their equipment have joined the liberation forces and one group, aiding Croat guerrillas, was said to have annihilated the German garrison at Bihac.

Dodecanese Bombed by Enemy.

German air attacks across the Ægean from Greece were disclosed by an Allied communique from the Middle East which said heavy enemy bombers, escorted by fighters, raided the Dodecanese Islands of Coo and Lero yesterday. Spitfires shot down one enemy bomber and a fighter.

Allied airmen also were active in the Ægean area the last two nights, the Cairo communique announced. R. A. F. Hudsons and Baltimores attacked the Kasteaeli-Pediada airdrome on the island of Crete last night, starting a number of fires. On the previous night, R. A. F. Wellingtons bombed the Greek harbor of Syros on the Ægean Sea, causing explosions on the quay and fires in the warehouse area. Three British planes were lost in these operations, the communique said.

triotic hands. Tonight's communique from the Yugoslav army of liberation, recorded by the Associated Press, told of heavy fighting in the mountains 15 miles northeast of Split and said German pressure had increased in the last 48 hours.

Farther north the battle for Susak, near Fiume, appeared in doubt. The communique said street fighting was "still in progress" at the Croatian port.

In the south the patriots were declared to have won the towns of Gacko, in southern Hercegovina, and Plevlje, in Montenegro.

The Berlin radio said that Corfu was occupied after "an ultimatum to the Badoglio troops which held the island was refused." The Germans were said to have occupied the entire island and to have taken several thousand prisoners "after a short fight."

In announcing capture of Split, Berlin tacitly acknowledged the truth of a Yugoslav announcement of last week that Yugoslav forces had then taken it.

Threat to Balkans

Foggia had been the greatest seat of enemy air power in all the Italian peninsula. In Allied control, it now throws a black and near shadow into the Balkans, aside from the fact that it will provide an ample base for a heavy mar-

The general picture tonight in the south of Europe was this:

A series of five or more islands in the Aegean confronting Greece were firmly in Allied hands; Corsica on the western wing of the Allied offensive slowly rolling up from the south was substantially in Allied control; the whole of the Yugoslav coastline was ripening for Allied thrusts; and a base for Allied airpower capable of reaching into the Balkans on a grand scale was in process of development at Foggia, the greatest prize for the Italian offensive since the Salerno bridgehead was secured.

Nazis Claim Corfu and Split

Report Isle Off Greece Seized From Italians —Say Yugoslav Port Is Recaptured.

London, Sept. 28 (A. P.).—The Berlin radio reported today that German troops had landed on the island of Corfu off the northwest coast of Greece across the Ionian Sea from the heel of the Italian boot. Berlin said the Germans occupied the entire island after Italian troops turned down a surrender ultimatum.

[Elaborating on the Corfu announcement Radio Berlin, in a broadcast heard by NBC, said that several thousand prisoners have been taken. The invasion was made by picked German Alpine troops supported by units of the German air and naval arms, the broadcast said.]

The Berlin radio also reported that German troops had captured the Yugoslav harbor town of Split, which was occupied by Yugoslav guerrillas after Italy's capitulation.

The Berlin broadcast said: "The Dalmatian port of Split on the Adriatic coast which was occupied by Badoglio forces and insurgents acting jointly yesterday was stormed and captured by German troops."

Nazis Land on Corfu, Isle Off Greek Coast

Enemy Moves to Strengthen Outer Defense Line of Balkans.

LONDON, Sept. 28 — (AP) The Germans announced today that their southern European forces, already spread thin, had occupied the Greek island of Corfu in the Ionian sea opposite the heel of Italy and the Yugoslav Adriatic harbor town of Split 300 miles to the north.

Both moves, perhaps bold in view of the weakening Axis position in this part of Europe, apparently were made in an effort to strengthen the German Balkan flank against the new and grave menace arising from the Allied capture of the big Italian air base of Foggia, only 150 miles from the already hotly-contested Yugoslav coast.

A Yugoslav authority in London declared that Split was still in pashalling of Allied bombers which now will be well within effective range of the rest of Italy, the valley of the Danube and southern Germany.

Conceding the loss of Foggia, the German command announced that counter measures requiring the use of large numbers of Nazi troops had been taken.

Despite the reported occupation of Split, the Nazi High command acknowledged that "strong groups" still were fighting German forces both in northeastern Italy and along the Dalmatian coast of Yugoslavia.

By these announcements, the German leadership implied that Allied action against the Balkans was expected imminently and also that guerrilla forces and Italians now loyal to the Allies were already seriously endangering the German position in the south.

On Corfu, for example, the German command conceded that the defenders had initially "established contact with the British and Americans."

R.A.F. ARMADA HITS HANOVER IN GREAT RAID

Brunswick and Emden Also Blasted in 3-pronged Night Attack.

BRITISH LOSE 38 BOMBERS

American Fortresses Employ New Technic in Assault on Enemy U-Boat Base.

London, Sept. 28 (A. P.).—Great Royal Air Force heavy bomber armadas struck three German cities last night, concentrating on the rubber center of Hanover in the second attack in force on that city within a week, amid indications that it is due for the same destructive punches which leveled Hamburg.

The three-ply night offensive also hit at the big German naval base of Emden, in a swift follow-up to the Flying Fortress slash yesterday when American bombers dropped a mixed load of high explosives, incendiaries and pamphlets. Another R. A. F. target was Brunswick.

Last night's attack was the eleventh heavy bombing delivered on Germany this month, and marked the forty-eighth time Hanover—about 380 miles from Britain and 160 miles due west of Berlin—has been bombed since the start of the war.

Thirty-eight bombers and a fighter were lost in the Hanover-Emden-Brunswick operations, the Air Ministry announced. (The German communique claimed fifty-six British planes were shot down.)

Returning crewmen reported tremendous flames eating through the city, which is a huge rail center and the site of numerous oil refineries and motor factories, in addition to Germany's largest rubber factory, the Continental Gummiewerke.

For Emden, important U-boat haven on the north coast, it was the second blasting within little more than twelve hours. The Fortresses had plowed through adverse weather to drop their loads, employing comparatively new methods devised to make potent the American daylight offensives as effective in bad weather as in good.

At Emden yesterday the Americans used their "pathfinders" technic, which undoubtedly is one of the new tactics which Gen. H. H. Arnold said recently were being set up to combat the hitherto big weather obstacle.

New Loading Technic.

By mounting high explosive bombs in a different manner the Americans were able to carry a greater load of incendiaries, and this procedure was followed yesterday, although it was not the first time that they dropped fire bombs.

The Canadian bomber group based in Britain sent three types of heavy bomb carriers out with the R. A. F. last night to rekindle Hanover's fires. Wellingtons, Lancasters and Halifaxes made up the several Canadian squadrons, and of the thirty-eight bombers reported missing, nine were Canadian. In addition, hundreds of Canadian airmen were in the crews of the other R. A. F. bombers.

Royal Air Force intruder attacks during the night resulted in the destruction of seven enemy aircraft over Holland and northwest Germany.

A small number of enemy planes were over eastern Britain last night and dropped bombs on one or two points. Little damage was caused and there were few casualties.

HANNOVER BLASTED BY R.A.F. BOMBERS

Attack Made in Very Great Strength, 38 Planes Lost.

LONDON, Sept. 28 — (AP) Mixing its punches with the skill and power of a champion boxer, the R.A.F.'s great bomber fleet smashed the big German industrial center of Hannover last night for the second time within a week, quickly followed up yesterday's Flying Fortress raid on the North sea port of Emden, and pounded the metal and machinery center of Brunswick.

The Air ministry said that the three attacks were made in "very great strength," and that 38 of the big bombers were lost. Returning crewmen reported tremendous flames were eating through Hannover, which bore the brunt of the assault.

The night's operations carried a number of significant indications of the greatly expanded scope of the Britain-based air campaign against the Germans. Again the R.A.F. switched its main objective hundreds of miles, keeping the Nazis scrambling to concentrate their thinly-spread defensive forces where they are most needed.

Alternate Attacks

All month the British bombers have been alternating jabs at Berlin and the north and the Rhineland industrial area 300 miles to the southwest, with occasional punches around Munich, 300 miles south of the capital.

Last night's was the RAF's second triple blow within five days. Last Thursday night it bombed the twin cities of Mannheim-Ludwigshafen and Darmstadt and Aachen. Such a diversion of attack, with the emphasis on one target, keeps the Germans guessing right up to the last minute where to throw the bulk of their fighters.

Hannover, site of the Nazis' biggest rubber factory, as well as numerous oil refineries and motor factories, apparently has been marked for death, as was Hamburg. A week ago the RAF rained an estimated 2,000 long tons of explosives on the city, and last night's attack was thought possibly to have been equally devastating.

North Sea Port

Emden, which may also have been checked off as an obliteration target, is the terminus of the Dortmund-Ems canal, which carries war materials to the industrial Ruhr. It inherited much of the shipping that once passed through Rotterdam, and since the destruction of Hamburg it has been Germany's only big North Sea port, handling mainly merchant shipping. Wilhelmshaven and Bremen are devoted mainly to shipbuilding and naval traffic.

The raid on Brunswick, hit only twice before in the war, along with recent attacks on the seldom-bombed places like Darmstadt and Aachen, showed that the RAF, besides increasing the strength of its attacks against the big centers like Berlin, still is expanding the scope of its operations.

Special attention is being paid to the enemy's synthetic-rubber production. The raid on Hannover was the fifth major blow at German rubber centers within four months. Flying Fortresses struck at Huls in June, and in July they attacked the gigantic Continental Gummiewerke plant in Hannover. Earlier in September the RAF made one of its saturation attacks on the Dunlop factory at Montlucon, France.

Important Metal Center

Brunswick, although not known to harbor a rubber plant, is important for its metal and machinery industries. It is fifty-three miles northwest of Magdeburg, on the main railway line from Berlin.

RAF Intruder craft also bored into northwest Germany and over Holland during the night and reported destruction of seven enemy planes. A small number of German planes were over eastern England, but the Air Ministry said damage and casualties were slight.

Today's German war communique said fifty-six British bombers, mostly four-engined, were shot down during the night's "terror" raids and that some damage was done to residential quarters.

CHURCHILL WARNS WAR EFFORT MUST PROCEED UNABATED

Tells 6000 Women Job Is to Keep Up Pace 2 More Years if Need Be.

London, Sept. 28 (A. P.).—Prime Minister Churchill told 6,000 women at a Government-sponsored conference today that Great Britain's job is to maintain its present war effort through the next two years. He said the country must continue the war effort at its current pace "through the fifth year of war or the sixth year if need be." Britain began its fifth year of the present conflict September 3.

Women from industry, military units and voluntary services from all parts of Britain were brought here by the Government, which paid their expenses and reimbursed those who lost time from work, to enlist their aid in the victory drive.

The text of the speech was withheld for later release, but portions of it were released by censorship when the excerpts were published in the London Evening News.

Assembled at Albert Hall, the women heard speeches by other members of the War Cabinet in addition to Mr. Churchill and were allowed to ask them questions.

The Women Kept the Secret.

For more than two weeks the women kept it secret that they had been invited by the Government to a national conference. The meeting was called to put the women in touch with Ministers handling problems related particularly to them and their homes.

A similar meeting was held several months ago for miners to whom Mr. Churchill appealed for a higher output of fuel.

Today's session was the biggest of its kind ever held for women exclusively. Women in military services, industry and voluntary services were invited.

Gets V-sign in Return.

Mr. Churchill spoke for twenty minutes. When he departed he raised his hand in the familiar "V-for-Victory" sign. Thousands of women rose spontaneously and returned the sign. Mrs. Churchill joined the Prime Minister in responding to the women's vote of thanks.

One delegate said Mr. Churchill indicated that Labor Minister Ernest Bevin, who presided, might call for more women to volunteer for war production. Mr. Bevin, Health Minister Ernest Brown, Food Minister Lord Woolton and Ellen Wilkinson, Member of Parliament, also addressed the conference. Lord Woolton gave the women the welcome news that no ration cuts were in prospect.

CHURCHILL URGES FULL WAR EFFORT

Pace Must Be Maintained, For Two Years If Necessary, Premier Says

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sept. 28—Prime Minister Churchill told Britain today that the nation's present full war effort must be maintained without letup, through two more years if necessary, and he warned that apathy or a slackening of the pace of the British war machine would bring new dangers, "deadly in their character."

Churchill said that larger armies would be fighting and more powerful air forces would be striking at the heart of the enemy during the forthcoming year, and to this prophesy Labor Minister Ernest Bevin added that "it will be a tough go during this winter and early spring."

The Prime Minister and the Labor Minister and four other British war leaders addressed the nation through 6,000 representative British women assembled secretly in London's Albert Hall. They had a heart-to-heart talk with the women to enlist their aid in maintaining the present peak in the home-front effort.

Plans Kept Secret

"We cannot reveal to you all that lies in store during that period," said Bevin of the coming year, "but it does represent possibly the greatest task that Britain has ever had to face."

The women representatives, who were brought here at Government expense after keeping their plans secret for more than two weeks, were asked to carry the Government's appeal to women throughout the nation.

Churchill was blunt in his warning of the dangers of letting up at this crucial point.

"We are engaged in a total war," he said. "We are engaged in a struggle for life.

Not So Imminent

"Although you cannot say that the peril is as imminent as it was in 1940 or during that year when we were all alone, nevertheless if this war were so handled that the unity of the national effort were diminished, then indeed another set of dangers, not perhaps so catastrophic in their aspects but nonetheless deadly in their character, would march upon us.

"The war would languish our soldiers would find themselves short of munitions and services just at the time when they would need them most, just at the time when their action is growing to an ever-larger scale—all this would occur."

And this, he said, is just the enemy's hope, that the democracies will get weary and that the Axis will be able to consolidate its position and "open upon the world in, it may be, a decade, another war even more terrible than that through which we are passing."

"We are fully extended now," said Churchill of the nation's war effort, "and what we have to do is to hold it."

Appeal For Sacrifice

All the ministers in reporting on their efforts in behalf of the home front presented new appeals for sacrifice and fortitude from Britain's women, of whom nearly 9,000,000 are engaged in national service or voluntary work.

Other speakers were Ernest Brown, Health Minister; Lord Woolton, Food Minister; Hugh Dalton, the president of the Board of Trade; Anthony Eden, Foreign Secretary, and Ellen Wilkinson, parliamentary secretary for the Ministry of Home Security.

A secret meeting similar to today's was held several months ago for miners, to whom Churchill appealed for a higher output of fuel.

EDEN OFFERS PLAN FOR FUTURE TASKS

Advocates Proceeding by Practice Rather Than by Blueprint.

LONDON, Sept. 28 — (AP) Looking forward to the American-British-Russian tripartite conference of foreign ministers, Anthony Eden today advocated proceeding "by practice rather than by blue print" in plans for a future world order.

Addressing a national conference of 6,000 women called by the government, the British foreign secretary added:

"Given an agreement between the British commonwealth, the Soviet union, the United States and China, any schemes for regional organizations, security systems and so forth can be worked out without too great difficulty. x x x."

He declared that without some agreement between the four powers "not one of these projects" is likely to prove to be practical politics.

In welcoming the forthcoming conference, Mr. Eden said:

"I hope that one task for that meeting will be to examine and to decide upon methods for joint consultation and joint action between us all in peace as well as in war."

Citing the equal interest of women with men in foreign affairs the foreign secretary said that the nation's first need in approaching foreign policy was a "wide measure of unity based on understanding," and, secondly, "firm belief in curselves and the leading part we intend to play in the organization of peace."

The foundation on which British foreign policy must be built, he continued, is the strengthening of the British commonwealth, "close and natural association" with the United States, Russia and China and the association of other states such as France with the United Nations powers.

EX-DUCE IN ROME DISSOLVES SENATE, SAYS BERLIN RADIO

L. HAWKINS

Broadcasts Say Mussolini Will Create New Army To Fight Allies.

LONDON, Sept. 28 — (AP) Axis radio reports indicated tonight that Benito Mussolini, protected by Nazi guns, has gone back to Rome, the capital that tossed him out, and taken nominal control of the strange hybrid "Fascist republic" state carved out so hastily by German bayonets.

The Berlin radio, in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press, quoted a Rome dispatch as telling of a long address by Mussolini to his fellow-puppets in which he promised an early constitution for a kingless new state and threatened to punish those who had evicted and arrested him.

Senate Dissolved

The Vichy radio listed decisions by Mussolini's new regime, saying that under them the Senate, whose members were nominated by King Vittorio Emanuele, was dissolved; that all Italian fighting forces were "concentrated under the Fascist Ministry of War"; that "existing syndicates are concentrated into a single one"; and that the investigation into the riches of old Fascist party members would continue, as would the probe into the records of all Italians who held public office in the last 30 years.

The Rome radio quoted Mussolini as saying his reformed government meant to create immediately an Italian army to rejoin the fight beside Germany and Japan.

The Vichy radio said the government planned to shift its seat from Rome because Rome had been declared an open city, and the Rome radio said it probably would set up house in Verona, where Field Marshal Erwin Rommel reportedly has his headquarters.

Government at Bolzano

An Italian frontier dispatch to Die Tat of Zurich, however, said the government already was located at Bolzano, about 38 miles south of Brenner pass. The Nazi press has been referring to Bolzano as a "German city," a hint—if the Die Tat dispatch was correct—that Mussolini might be more a Reich prisoner than a government head.

The Rome radio said Mussolini had described Italy's capitulation to the Allies as "simply catastrophic" and had declared that he aimed to cancel it and then achieve Italy's territorial objectives.

The Berlin radio said that Mussolini's "Fascist republican government" already had been recognized by the Nazi-dominated states of Rumania, Croatia, Bulgaria and Slovakia.

Mussolini's government, meanwhile, was quoted as announcing that the party organ would be Lavoro Fascista of Rome, and that Mussolini's old newspaper, Il Popolo D'-Italia, was not expected to resume publication.

The Axis accounts said that while Mussolini declared that no general reprisals were planned against those who merely obeyed the orders of Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio, he pledged swift punishment for Fascists "who, having for many years owed their positions and their fortunes to his regime went over to the enemy on July 25."

Meanwhile, there were reports of widespread partisan activity against German troops in northern Italy, and at Milan the Nazi consulate general published a communique telling the Italian people the German police now held the reins over Italy.

London, Sept. 28 (A. P.).—The Berlin radio said today that Benito Mussolini's German-sponsored "Fascist-Republican Government" has been recognized by Rumania, Bulgaria, Croatia and Slovakia—all States under Adolf Hitler's thumb. The broadcast declared that the new "government" had held its first meeting yesterday in a town in Northern Italy. The German-controlled Paris radio said the meeting was in Rome.

Germans Stop Boasting.

London, Sept. 28.—According to a Hollander who recently escaped to England, German authorities in Holland no longer put up posters on the sinking of Allied ships, which used to be displayed in great abundance when the Nazi U-boat war on Allied shipping was at its height.

JULIUS RITTER SLAIN

LONDON, Sept. 28 — (AP) The chief of the German manpower organization in France, Julius Ritter, has been assassinated, according to a Berlin broadcast recorded by Reuters, tonight.

Several "terrorists" shot Ritter as he was leaving his home by automobile, the broadcast said, adding that Ritter was 50 years old, and was chief of the Labor department at Nuremberg before going to France a year ago.

King Peter of Yugoslavia On Way to Middle East

London, Sept. 28 (A. P.).—King Peter of Yugoslavia has left Britain for the Middle East accompanied by his staff, it was announced today.

1943

London, Wednesday, Sept. 29 (AP)—Red Army General Vassily Sokolovsky, whose troops captured Smolensk Saturday, has been awarded the Order of Suvorov first class, the Moscow radio announced today in a broadcast recorded by the Soviet monitor.

Jap Cabinet to Meet After Reorganization

London, Sept. 28 (A. P.).—The Tokio radio said today that the Japanese Cabinet had ordered an extraordinary session of the Diet for October 25 and had simultaneously announced the abolishment of the Planning Board and the Ministry of Commerce.

A new post was created in the Cabinet with the establishment of a Ministry of Munitions, said the broadcast.

Britons Told To Expect Cut In Food From U. S.

London, Sept. 28 (AP)—Britons were told today they could expect food supplies from the United States to be curtailed in the near future.

William Mabane, Parliamentary secretary to the Ministry of Food, said the "impact of war and in particular of the manpower draft on American domestic economy is likely to make surpluses of essential foodstuffs harder to come by."

"There is an understandable tendency in America to blame lease-lend for shortages, although the food supplied to Britain is small in proportion to the whole," said Mabane, who recently returned from Canada.

Third British Ship Line Plans Air Service

London, Sept. 28 (A. P.).—The number of British shipping companies planning to enter the aviation field after the war was increased to three today with the announcement that the Manchester Liners Ltd., will seek permission of its shareholders to engage in air transport. At Liverpool today Cunard Steamship Company directors approved a resolution to amend the company's charter to establish air services.

The third company is Furness Withy & Co., which has called a meeting in London October 8 to approve changes in its charter.

Find British Farm Agencies Don't Overlap

London, Sept. 28 (AP)—Three American farm leaders who are here to study British methods for increasing farm production, today expressed admiration for the absence of overlapping agencies in Britain's agricultural program.

The three, here as guests of the British Ministry of Agriculture, are Harvey Solberg, of Denver, president of the Rocky Mountain Farmers' Union; H. L. Wingate, Collins, Ga., president of the Georgia Farm Bureau Federation, and Morton Tompkins, Dayton, Ore., master of the Oregon State Grange.

They will begin a month's tour of Britain with a visit to the county of Kent, southeast of London, late this week.

Baughman Commands Base At Londonderry

Londonderry, Northern Ireland, Sept. 28 (AP) — Commodore Cortlandt Chesterfield Baughman, a native of West Newton, Pa., assumed command of the United States Naval Base at Londonderry today. He succeeds the late Commodore James A. Logan.

Baughman, a graduate of Annapolis in 1907 and also of the Naval War College where he specialized in chemical warfare, came here from the Bureau of Naval Personnel in Washington where he was director of special activities. He has a record of seventeen years of sea duty. He was captain of the yard at Pearl Harbor at the time of the Japanese attack.

De Valera Reelected Head Of Fianna Fail

Dublin, Sept. 28 (AP)—Prime Minister Eamon De Valera was reelected president of the Fianna Fail at the party's annual meeting tonight.

The New York-born executive told the meeting he would continue to fight for the unification of Ireland.

TERROR IN DENMARK

Stockholm, Sept. 28 (A. P.).—A new reign of terror began in Denmark today as Gen. Kurt Daluege, ruthless troubleshooter for Heinrich Himmler's Gestapo, took over control of the country from Gen. Hermann Von Hannecken, who has been military dictator since August 29.

The Stockholm newspaper Dagens Nyheter said that one of Daluege's first acts was to start, under the personal orders of Adolf Hitler, the deportation of 6,000 Danish Jews.

The state of emergency declared by Gen. Von Hannecken was continued, although it has failed to stop sabotage and opposition to Nazi occupation.

Italians Deported to Germany

AT THE SWISS-ITALIAN FRONTIER, Sept. 28 (AP).—Italian soldiers disarmed by the Germans have been reported to Germany where they have been added to labor ranks working for the Reich, it was disclosed today. Official notification of this procedure, reported frequently, since the Italian capitulation, was given by "La Gazetta di Venezia."

Italians Reveal Germans Hold Rex at Trieste

Conte di Savoia Was Sunk by Her Crew at Venice; 2 Other Liners Scuttled

WITH THE BADOGLIO GOVERNMENT IN ITALY, Sept. 26 (Delayed) (AP).—Italian naval officers said today that the liner Rex has fallen into the hands of the Germans at Trieste and that the Conti di Savoia was scuttled by her crew at Venice. These ships were the largest and fastest of the Italian merchant marine and formerly made the Genoa-Naples-New York run.

The passenger liners Giulio Cesare and Duilio, 24,000 tons each, were scuttled by their crews in the northern Adriatic, these officers said.

The twin motorships Vulcania and Saturnia, also formerly of the North Atlantic run, were converted into naval training ships. Both left northern Adriatic ports for the south, manned by cadets. The Vulcania was captured by the Germans but the Saturnia reached a port controlled by the Allies, the officers said.

They disclosed also that the battleship Cavour, which was hit by a sixteen-inch shell from a British warship in a naval battle early in the war and afterwards was torpedoed and sunk in Taranto harbor, had been raised. They did not know its present whereabouts, however.

They likewise did not know the whereabouts of Italy's newest warship, the Impero, which had been completed except for an electrical system. Many merchant ships, including a large number taken from the French, were reported in Genoa harbor, which is in German hands.

Smoke Covers Naples As Explosions Rock City

View From Warship Shows Raging Fires, Smashed Docks

WITH THE AMERICAN 5TH ARMY IN ITALY, Sept. 27 (Delayed) (AP).—Fires raging in Naples covered the city today with a pall of black smoke and the rumble of explosions was clearly audible. Naples itself appeared to be a dead city.

Light warships brush the coast daily and from the reeling deck of one of these a good view of the battered city can be obtained. The port area was the scene of the main destruction. The docks were smashed. Those which escaped bombing now are being destroyed by German demolitions.

Two fires a short distance inside the city from the dock area have been raging since Saturday, sending columns of smoke up thousands of feet. One apparently is at the main Naples electric plant.

Neapolitans who escaped from the city said recently that German engineers were planting mines everywhere and booby traps in buildings and dwellings which still are habitable.

Italy May Declare War

SOMEWHERE IN SOUTHERN ITALY, Sept. 26 (Delayed) (AP).—Italy's new war role and her relations with the United Nations are expected to be fixed soon through negotiation.

An Italian declaration of war on Germany is likely in the opinion of many Italians here. Italian leaders apparently are burning with hatred for their erstwhile ally. In the last week, some say, the government of Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio has been on the verge of declaring war.

Italy's capacity to wage war on the Germans, however, may be limited mainly to behind-the-lines assistance of British and American armies.

Italian armistice overtures were marked from the start not only by a desire to break away from the Germans, but to line up with the Allies in fighting the Germans.

The attitude of Washington and London seems to be that, since the Italians now sincerely want to help in the fight against Germany, it is only common sense to use them.

Having them with us, it is believed, would simplify our occupation problems and aggravate those of the Germans, possibly relieving several Allied divisions from occupation tasks.

It seems possible that an agreement with the Badoglio government may accord Italy the status of a co-belligerent rather than that of an ally, and that any concessions which Italy may receive will be measured in the amount of assistance the Italians deliver.

Reporter Finds Italian People 'Too Friendly'

Majority Feel They're Now on Allied Side, Entitled to Enjoy All the Benefits

By Edward Kennedy

WITH THE ALLIES AT TARANTO, Italy, Sept. 20 (Delayed) (AP).—A trip of several hundred miles from Salerno to the Adriatic coastal area shows southern Italy to be disorganized, somewhat battered and facing serious food and transportation problems. I saw no evidence of starvation, however, nor even any serious cases of malnutrition.

The population is friendly—all too friendly in fact, and the majority feeling that they are now on the Allied side and entitled to draw the full benefits from this happy state of affairs is making the occupation problems more, rather than less, difficult.

Railroads are not running, except for a few stretches which the Allied armies have reopened for military purposes. Stores and most other public services are at a standstill.

Our trip was a slow one. Blown-up bridges and other demolitions caused us to turn back and detour many times.

In the hamlet of Celso the word had spread that the 8th Army was approaching. The 8th Army's fame had reached even this mountain village and the townsfolk were out in their best clothes to welcome the triumphant force. They had baked a cake as a present.

We—three correspondents, a Welsh Guards officer and an American sergeant in a truck and trailer—were the only ones to show up so they made a presentation speech and gave the cake to us. They cried, "Evviva l'ottava armata (Long live the 8th Army)" as we drove off.

In many other villages, the populace was on the taking rather than the giving side, clamoring for cigarettes, food and anything else we had.

"No Like Mussolini"

There was not a village, no matter how small, without at least one resident who'd been to America and spoke broken English. At Acquavella, a white-haired man said, "My name Jimmy Giordano. I work eight years copper mine, Butte, Mont., then I go to biggest copper mine in world, Anaconda. I got brother, Tony Giordano. He works on battle ranch at Los Angeles. I no like Mussolini. Gee whiz, how I no like Mussolini!"

At Lauria, a mountain town whose male residents are almost all stonemasons, we met Alfred Henle, a German Jew who lived in Milan twenty years. He said the Fascists interned him in this village at the request of the Germans. Since then he has received one package of food sent by his sister, Rose Henle, of 838 West End Avenue, New York City, which took six months to arrive.

The village priest at Sessa Cilento, Father Manfredi Merola, asked us if we had heard of his brothers, Lorenzo and Carmello, who work in a New York bank.

The wheat crop already had been harvested, hay and feed corn having been stored for the winter, and tomatoes, peppers, apples, melons and figs having been picked. The grapes hang heavy on the vines and the olives are ripening. There was considerable livestock to be seen. Almost every farm, even in bleak mountain areas, has a few chickens and a pig or two, while in the valleys cattle graze.

But in the larger towns the situation is more serious, due mainly to the paralysis in transportation which may take a long time to unravel.

We were under German shellfire as our tortuous trip took us near the front areas and we saw many battered towns and villages. Many other towns, however, show no scars of war. Those which have suffered from bombardments are mainly those having strategic rail and road bridges.

Glad Fascists Are Out

The prevailing attitude of southern Italians, who throughout history almost always have been governed by outsiders, is that they're glad the Fascists are out and the Allied occupation is just one more invasion and one with good prospects, as invasions go, since the invaders are wealthy and there may be some handouts.

The peasants in general want to be allowed to do their work and hope the Fascist tax burden will be reduced. The aristocrats, who never have done much to improve the condition of the masses, regard the occupation as a great inconvenience and can't see why the Allies should not let them alone, now that Italy has capitulated. They argue against the Army's requisitioning of any of their property and make it clear that in case of requisitions they expect prompt and generous compensation.

Road signs and milestones were all left in place, making it easier for the invaders to find their way about. Some townsfolk in Taranto cited this in itself as evidence of Italian friendship for the Allies, while one voiced the opinion that Allied occupation automatically conferred American citizenship on him. He asked to go to New York by the next boat.

Mountain villages southeast of the Plain of Paestum now are garrisoned by American troops. Asked how they were getting along with the locals, one officer said, "Oh, it's the same old hooey. They all say how brave we are and all that. I suppose they said that to the Germans."

France Invasion-Conscious

Madrid, Sept. 28 (AP)—With virtually all Corsica in Allied hands, France was reported today to be more invasion-conscious than ever.

"Never before have Frenchmen followed so attentively instructions of the London radio," said a correspondent of the Madrid newspaper Ya in a dispatch from Vichy.

Travelers reaching Madrid from France told of witnessing anti-German demonstrations by French war workers in the streets of Toulouse and Saint Denis last week.

In Toulouse the demonstrators marched through the streets shouting "Down with Laval," according to the accounts, while at Saint Denis, on the outskirts of Paris, workers paraded singing the "Internationale."

1943

The Germans were said not to have opposed either demonstration, despite the fact that the work stoppages affected war production.

PLANE LANDS AT LISBON

LISBON, Portugal, Sept. 28.—(AP) A United States four-engined plane made a forced landing at a Lisbon airport today. The crew surrendered to authorities for internment.

BLAST ROCKS LISBON

LISBON, Portugal, Sept. 28 — (AP) A munitions explosion today blew up one bastion of the old fortress of Ameizoeira, rocking every building in Lisbon and sending the population into the streets. Five men were believed missing.

Premier Dr. Antonio de Oliveira Salazar inspected the fortress soon after the explosion.

No announcement was made on the cause of the blast.

Duke of Aosta at U. S. Navy Base

WITH THE U. S. NAVY at an advanced Mediterranean base, Sept. 24 (Delayed) (AP)—Italy's Duke of Aosta, who once was appointed King of Croatia but never went to that turbulent country to assume the crown, arrived here today in a private yacht. The Duke expressed the hope that delivery of the Italian fleet might "assist the Allies in bringing an immediate peace to an Italy being ravaged by the enemy within and without."

GIRAUD'S POWERS IN FRENCH ARMY CURBED SHARPLY

Gen. Le Gentilhomme Named Commissioner of National Defense.

ALGIERS, Sept. 28—(AP) The French National Committee today named Gen. Paul Le Gentilhomme commissioner of national defense and in effect deprived Gen. Henri Giraud of exclusive control of French troops except those actually engaged in military operations.

In a surprise move designed to prevent a repetition of the Corsican invasion incident, the committee divided French forces into "two categories."

The first category consists of troops placed under Gen. Giraud, French military commander in chief, to be used for operations. The committee announced that troops in the second category were placed "under the direct authority of the commissioner of national defense."

Eisenhower's Views Awaited

How the committee's restriction on Gen. Giraud's authority will be received by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander in chief in the Mediterranean theater, remains to be seen. Gen. Eisenhower several months ago announced that he was insisting that Gen. Giraud be left in command of French troops in North Africa. Up to now, military authority in the French set-up had been represented by Gen. Giraud.

Gen. Gentilhomme, former high commissioner of Madagascar, joined the "Free French" forces of de Gaulle in October, 1940. Since last July he has borne the title of assistant commissioner of national defense.

Choice Is Surprising One

His elevation to war minister today was a surprise; as Adrian Tixier, one-armed World war veteran and labor commissioner, had been described by persons close to the committee as the only one acceptable to both Gen. Giraud and Gen. de Gaulle for the post.

The agitation for appointment of a war minister was provoked when Gen. Giraud carried out the invasion of Corsica without informing the National Committee or the smaller committee of national defense headed by Gen. de Gaulle. Gen. de Gaulle then renewed and enlarged his demands for the designation of a civilian war minister.

The committee also announced the appointment of Henri Hoppenot, who has been in Washington for some time, as delegate of the committee to the United States.

Appointment of Hoppenot, formerly chief of the Quai d'Orsay's European section, was viewed as a concession to Gen. Giraud and Giraudist sentiment in the United States and also as recognition of M. Hoppenot's handling of the troublesome Martinique question.

DE GAULLIST MADE CHIEF OF DEFENSE

Algiers, Sept. 28 (A. P.).—In a surprise move today the French National Committee appointed Gen. Paul Le Gentilhomme Commissioner of National Defense. The post, a new one, was originated at the demand of Gen. Charles de Gaulle to insure subordination of military to civil authority.

Up to now, military authority in the French set-up had been represented by Gen. Henri Giraud, Commander in Chief of French military forces.

Gen. Gentilhomme has since last July borne the title of Assistant Commissioner of National Defense. His elevation today was a surprise, as Adrian Tixier had been favored to win the new post. Gen. Gentilhomme, former High Commissioner of Madagascar, joined the then "Free French" of Gen. de Gaulle in October, 1940.

At the same time the committee announced the appointment of Henri Hoppenot, who has been in Washington some time, as delegate of the committee to the United States. The appointment of Mr. Hoppenot was seen not only as a recognition of his handling of the troublesome Martinique question but also a concession to Gen. Giraud and Giraudist sentiment in the United States.

Mr. Hoppenot, formerly chief of the Quai D'Orsay's European section, is a strong Giraud follower and was one of the few Giraudists on the July 14 delegation to Fort de France which resulted in adjustment of differences between the United States and Martinique.

Italians Become Co-Belligerents In Dodecanese

British Say 'We Need Every Weapon to Kill Germans'; Italy May Declare War

CAIRO, Sept. 28 (AP).—It was learned here today that Italian soldiers are extremely co-operative in the Dodecanese Islands now in possession of the British, where they have been accepted not as Allies but as "co-belligerents."

The British, who have occupied Cos and Leros in the Italian Dodecanese, and the Greek island of [illegible] are aiding their new "co-belligerents" in every way possible.

This new status of the Italians has created a somewhat confused situation in certain quarters, but the Allied viewpoint is explained this way: The people must not lose sight of the fact that the Allies' "first task is to kill Germans. To accomplish this, the Allies are going to use every weapon and means at their command."

Nazis Act Against Italians

Istanbul, Sept. 28 (AP)—The Nazi high command in Greece has published a demand for immediate delivery of all Italians who have taken refuge in Greek homes. The death penalty is provided for refusal to obey the order, according to advices today from Greece.

U. S. BLASTS AKYAB

New Delphi, Sept. 28 (A. P.).—American Liberators smashed at the port of Akyab on the West Coast of Burma yesterday as Allied bombers continued their assaults on Jap communications and supply lines. A United States Tenth Air Force communique said the four-engined bombers scored hits on the jetty and damaged a nearby harbor area.

American Mitchells pounded rail yards at Pyawbwe in central Burma, ninety-five miles south of Mandalay. Other formations attacked Kyaukse, about thirty miles south of Mandalay.

The headquarters bulletin also told of raids by heavy bombers the previous day on rail yards at Letpadan, about seventy miles north of Rangoon. Bombs were said to have blanketed the target area.

All of the American planes returned safely on the widespread operations.

Earlier, a British communique reported that R. A. F. Beaufighters and Hurricanes blasted Jap rail installations and River transport in western Burma yesterday.

Flood Hits Benares

Benares, India, Sept. 28 (AP)—The rain-swollen Varuna river today flooded sections of Benares, the holy city of 300,000,000 Hindus. Fifty houses collapsed in one section, but no deaths were reported.

20 U. S. SOLDIERS DIE IN INDIA CRASH

United States Tenth Air Force Headquarters in India, Sept. 28 (A. P.).—Twenty United States Army officers and men were killed last Tuesday in the crash of an Army transport plane near Calcutta, it was disclosed here today.

Lieut. Marlan Lowell of Alderdale, Wash., pilot of an American transport which landed at Calcutta a short time after the crash, said he "never saw a more complete washout. The wreckage was still burning when I sat down."

One of the transport's two engines apparently failed on the takeoff. No one knows definitely what happened inasmuch as the crash occurred a short time before daybreak.

All persons in the plane except Lieut. Dale Johnson (hometown unavailable) were killed instantly. Lieut. Johnson died two days later.

Other victims included Lieut. Kermit Peasley, the pilot; Lieut. A. Herman, Private Joseph Russo, Sergt. Matthew Coneys, Corp. Leon Haer, Col. Joseph Sheer, Lieut. Bruce Pryor, Lieut. H. Fleming, 2d, Lieut. Edward Sherman, Sergt. Douglas Patrick, Sergt. Henry Orlovick, Capt. William Sizemore, Gen. Forrest Branch, Lieut. Harold Harbin, Lieut. Albert Klett and Private Robert Marsh.

The names of the other three who lost their lives have not been ascertained.

ALLIES OPEN MADANG PUSH

MacArthur's Men Extending Grip on New Guinea.

Allied Headquarters in the Southwest Pacific, Sept. 28 (A. P.).—Gen. Douglas MacArthur, whose New Guinea troops have won virtually complete control of eighty important miles of coastline from Salamaua to Finschhafen since September 12, now has opened a thrust toward Madang, 170 more shoreline miles to the northwest.

This movement, while Australians are battering at the last Jap defenses before Finschhafen, is overland and is developing in the broad Markham Valley at a point sixty-eight miles northwest of Lae. Today's communique disclosed the capture of Sagerak, a village approximately seventy miles south and slightly east of Madang. It was the first hint of a land drive in that direction.

Sagerak is eight miles northwest of Kaiapit, a valley village where September 18, two days after the fall of Lae, big transport planes landed on a grassy field and unloaded Australian soldiers who clashed with an enemy force of 200, killing 120 and routing the others.

Allies Control Valley.

Whether Sagerak's capture was achieved by the air-borne force which took Kaiapit or meant a consolidated Allied line for all the sixty-eight miles from Sagerak to Lae was not made clear. Since Lae's fall, Gen. MacArthur's forces definitely controlled the valley for twenty miles from that air base back to the airstrip of Nadzab, seized by paratroopers on September 5.

Recently, Mitchell medium bombers swung low over the valley eighty-five miles northwest of Lae to bomb and strafe enemy troops seeking a backdoor exit from the debacle at Lae and Salamaua.

There are enemy air bases around Madang, and Astrolabe Bay provides a harbor.

Flyers Bomb Jap Bases.

Today's communique reported a twenty-eight-ton bombing by fighter-escorted Liberators of Hansa Bay, midway between Madang and Wewak and a thirty-three-ton raid on two airdromes at Wewak. The Japanese sent up twenty new No. 3 type heavier armored fighters but American P-38s downed three in fights ranging from 6,000 to 20,000 feet. There were no Allied bases.

At Finschhafen, Australian troops which landed six miles to the north on September 22 menace the air and supply base from two directions. One force which crossed the Bumi River near its mouth is three-quarters of a mile north of the town. Another force which moved inland before crossing the river is closing in from the west on ridges overlooking Finschhafen. Still another contingent is battling Japs around Sattelberg Mission.

SEVEN JAP SHIPS SUNK BY BOMBERS AT WEWAK PORT

Three Tankers, Four Cargo Vessels Smashed in New Convoy.

60 PLANES DESTROYED

Raiders Again Catch Enemy Aircraft on Ground at Air Base.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Wednesday, Sept. 29.—(AP) A surprise heavy air attack, lasting an hour and a half, on the Japanese shipping roadstead and airdromes at Wewak, New Guinea, Monday sank seven ships of a newly-arrived convoy and destroyed approximately 60 planes, 50 of them on the ground.

Three tankers were enveloped in flames and four merchantmen were blasted from mast height, at a cost of only three raiders, today's communique said.

Base Again Knocked Out

The raid by heavy and medium bombers, escorted by fighters, began at 9:30 a. m. and lasted until 11. The destruction in the area was so great, with smoke from the airdrome fires rising 2,000 feet, that headquarters said Wewak once again has been rendered impotent as an enemy operational base.

In addition to the 50 planes caught on the ground, eight out of 20 enemy fighters which intercepted weakly were shot down and three others probably were destroyed.

The raiders, attacking in a sector approximately 300 miles northwest of the present ground fighting zone on New Guinea, also destroyed 29 barges or luggers.

On Sunday, prior to the big Wewak raid, fighters attacked that sector, shooting down at least six enemy planes and probably a seventh.

The total plane bag raised to

more than 460 the number of enemy aircraft destroyed in the Wewak sector since mid-August.

Japs Suffer Casualties

In the tense ground battle for Finschafen on New Guinea's Huon peninsula, Australian veteran troops have inflicted heavy casualties just north of the town between the base and the Bumi river. In that area, where the Aussies are within less than a mile of their objective, progress has been slowed up by prepared enemy positions.

Twenty-five Japanese planes raided northwestern Australia, the communique said, striking at Drysdale mission.

A strong force of both heavy and medium bombers, escorted by fighters, attacked the Wewak sector at treetop and mast height levels. The ships were a convoy which just had arrived in the harbor.

The merchantmen sunk ranged in tonnage up to 5,000-ton vessels.

The aircraft destruction was wrought on the fields of Wewak, Boram, Dagua and But.

Enemy Taken by Surprise

The raiders caught the enemy by surprise, as has been the case on several other recent raids and the bulk of the planes were on the ground.

Three Allied bombers were downed by anti-aircraft fire. Others were damaged.

"The enemy efforts to re-establish his operational air bases in northeast New Guinea appear to have been again effectively countered," the communique said.

The new raid resulted in heavy damage to Wewak's harbor and the firing of fuel and supply dumps.

Midway between Wewak and Madang, Allied fighters strafed barges in Hansa bay and motor traffic on the Nubia road from low level.

Allied Losses Light

In the growing battle for Finschhafen, headquarters said sharp fighting occurred in and around high ground. Allied losses were described as light.

Artillery is pounding the base "in all areas."

In that sector, Japanese planes made sporadic raids on Australian beach positions and the airdrome which the attackers captured north of the town. The raiders inflicted "only light casualties and no material damage."

In the Solomons, the Japanese airforce continued active in the vicinity of American-occupied Vella Lavella. An enemy force of 18 dive bombers and 20 fighters was intercepted and driven off by American fighter patrols which, without loss to themselves, shot down one Japanese fighter.

American torpedo and dive bombers, screened by fighters, attacked gun positions and the airdrome at Vila, on Kolombangara island which lies between Vella Lavella and American-held New Georgia.

FOUR U.S. OFFICERS GIVEN LEGION OF MERIT AWARD

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Wednesday, Sept. 29 — (AP) Four American Army officers whose behind-the-lines duties have played a major part in transporting American and Australian troops to the front and supplying them after they got there were awarded the Legion of Merit today by General Douglas MacArthur.

They were Brig. Gen. Clyde C. Alexander, Col Harry H. Baird, Columbus, O.; Col. H. Bennett Whipple, Upper Montclair, N. J., and Col. Elliott T. Thrope, Westerly, R. I.

Col. Thrope, whose duties were secret, performed his job, the citation said "with notable skill and energy."

Curtin Asserts MacArthur Role Is Unchanged

Says Australia Must Agree to Any Shift, Denies Mountbatten Impinges

CANBERRA, Australia, Sept. 28 (AP).—The Australian government knows nothing of any change in command for General Douglas MacArthur, Prime Minister John Curtin said today, and hence none is in immediate prospect.

"I am unaware of any change in the status of authority or command of MacArthur," Curtin declared in a statement delivered to the House of Representatives. "As the Commonwealth government is a party to arrangements relating to the higher direction of the war in the Southwest Pacific area, no change could be made without its agreement."

General MacArthur himself raised the question of his future status with the cryptic statement issued a week ago in which he said: "I have no personal military ambitions whatsoever, and am perfectly content in such role as may be prescribed for me. . . . However subordinate may be my role, I hope to play it manfully."

The statement has been interpreted unofficially as indicating that perhaps MacArthur's command in the Southwest Pacific would be subordinated to that recently established under Vice-Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten in southeast Asia.

Of this, Curtin said: "The appointment of Mountbatten as commander in chief in southeast Asia does not impinge in any way on General MacArthur's command in the Southwest Pacific area nor subordinate the Southwest Pacific to the southeast Asia command. The eastern boundary of the latter coincides with the western boundary of the former."

MARINES OCCUPY NANUMEA ISLAND

Northernmost Land in Ellice Group May Become Airfield Site.

PEARL HARBOR, Sept. 28 — (AP) American occupation of Nanumea, northernmost isle of the Ellice group by United States Marines on Sept. 4 was disclosed by Pacific fleet headquarters today.

Pictures were released showing an unopposed landing on the island, probably for the construction of an airfield, about 450 statute miles southeast of the major Japanese Gilbert islands air base of Tarawa.

Such an airfield would put the United States within striking distance of the enemy's outer Pacific defenses, islands only recently attacked by both land-based and carrier-based American planes.

South of Nanumea, in the same island group, an airbase has been developed on Funafuti, occupied last April.

Nanumea is approximately 800 miles due west of Samoa.

Attends Church Without Pants

Attu, Aleutian Islands (A. P.).—Chaplain Francis W. Read of Glendale, Cal., has a subject he wants to preach on when he gets back to civilian life—"The Soldier Who Came to Church Without His Pants."

Chaplain Read said the episode occurred like this:

"A lieutenant came to me following services held in mess tent and I saw he had attended the services without his pants. All he wore was a pair of long drawers and a field jacket. He explained that he had had his pants cut off so a doctor could get at a wound and that as between coming to church without pants, and not coming at all he chose the former."

The chaplain said "It was amazing how the men would stand in rain, fog, cold and wind and almost knee deep in mud to worship. I held services in every war tent and in other locations and when I inadvertently missed a tent, the men felt it keenly. It was not unusual to hear men say, 'Chaplain, we've been sweating you out all day.'"

Argentina Denies Agents Of Axis Have Free Hand

Gilbert Says All Acts Against Allies Are Punished

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 28 (AP).—Acting Foreign Minister Alberto Gilbert, replying to a British government statement criticizing Argentina's neutrality policy, denied last night that Axis agents still are free to conspire in this country against the interests of the United Nations.

"It is lamentable that it should be considered possible that from our soil there is any conspiracy being carried out against the interests and security of the United Nations," Mr. Gilbert said.

"The Foreign Ministry and other departments of the government have always given their most careful attention to complaints presented to them and have taken all necessary measures for investigating their truth and punishing any acts which might injure the relations between Argentina and those nations (which made the complaints).

"It can be asserted that as a result of these severe measures there has been no known act of such a nature lately, and if, in spite of these measures any such act occurs, punishment would be immediate and inexorable."

Socialist Party Sends Demands To Ramirez

Montevideo, Uruguay, Sept. 28 (AP)—The Socialist party, one of the three main political bodies in Argentina, has sent a memorandum to President Pedro Ramirez demanding democratic action by the Government, including full inter-American solidarity, a quick return to constitutional normality and restoration of freedom of the press.

This was disclosed today when copies of the memorandum, submitted to the President last week by the party's national committee, reached Montevideo.

Montevideo, Sept. 28 (AP)—A traveler from Buenos Aires today brought copies of a proclamation purported to have been issued by the Argentine University Federation calling on Argentine students to strike tomorrow on "behalf of democracy and university reform."

The proposed strike apparently was in protest against the Federal interventor in Santa Fe University, who was accused of having deposed several professors, dismissed hundreds of students and closed student unions.

Santa Fe students already have been on strike for more than a month in protest against the interventor, Giordiana Bruno Genta, whom they termed pro-Nazi.

BRAZIL SET TO FIGHT

Rio de Janeiro, Sept. 28 (A. P.).—Gen. Eurico Gaspar Dutra, Brazilian War Minister, said today that "all details already are established between Brazil and the United States for participation of a Brazilian expeditionary force in active war."

He made the statement at his first press conference since his return from the United States last Sunday.

Gen. Dutra said that departure of a Brazilian fighting force awaited only the arrival of additional new equipment from the United States. He said that the shift from European military equipment to American materiel was being made under the direction of Brazilian officers who had undergone training in the United States. For reasons of security, he added, neither the exact time of the departure of the expedition nor its composition would be revealed.

Salvador Orders Dimes

SAN SALVADOR, Salvador, Sept. 28 (AP).—The Central Reserve Bank has requested the United States to send 2,000,000 dimes to Salvador to eliminate a shortage of fractional currency. The government last week authorized circulation of American dimes in Salvador, stipulating that they would be accepted as the equivalent of 25-centavo coins.

'Time on My Hands' And 'No Letter Today'

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Sept. 28 (AP).—When a new defense unit recently arrived at a Caribbean base the members were anxious to get settled so they could uncrate a radio-phonograph to hedp pass the time with 125 brand new records.

The radio worked well, picking up many home stations. The phonograph was topnotch, with good tone and plenty of volume.

Then they started thumbing through t he records.

They found fifty discs of "Time On My Hands" and forty copies of "No Letter Today."

WANTS OIL SUITS VOIDED

Mexican Ministry Says Foreign Owners Have Lost Rights

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 28 (AP)—National Economy Minister Francisco Javier Gaxiola asked the Mexican Supreme Court today to dismiss all pending injunction suits brought by foreign oil companies when their property was expropriated in 1938.

The Ministry said that since the United States and Mexico had agreed on a valuation of $25,000,000 for the oil properties, the settlement would be affected by any further action on the suits.

It added that the original owners had lost their rights to the property, since the settlement was embodied in an agreement between the two countries.

The oil companies have not agreed to the valuation and terms of payment approval by the two Governments and have not accepted the money, although Mexico has been making payments to the United States.

U-BOATS ON PROWL AGAIN READY TO FIGHT PLANES

OTTAWA, Sept. 28—(AP) Return of enemy submarines to the north Atlantic with heavy anti-aircraft armament was officially confirmed today when R.C.A.F. headquarters announced six separate attacks by Canadian-based, long-range aircraft against a U-boat pack which chose to stay on the surface and fight a two-day running battle.

When the Germans pulled their U-boats from the sea early in the summer, informed circles held that cruising aircraft had made things too hot for them and that they would be back only after being fitted out to fight off planes.

Long Island Man Killed in R. C. A. F.

Ottawa, Sept. 28 (A. P.).—Flight Officer Beverly Ward Bristol, son of R. W. Bristol of 16 Manor Road, Douglaston, L. I., was reported today in an R. C. A. F. casualty list to have been killed in active service in Canada. No details were given.

Ore Freighter Aground.

Kingston, Ont. Sept. 28 A. P.—Hard aground on the St. Lawrence River shore one mile east of Alexandria Bay, N. Y., the freighter Norman B. MacPherson was today feared damaged on the rocky banks. The vessel was carrying 2,500 tons of ore.

ARCHBISHOP LEAVES MOSCOW

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—(AP) The Archbishop of York has left Moscow after a nine-day visit, the British radio said tonight in a broadcast heard by NBC.

What's Behind The War News

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
(Associated Press War Analyst)

A grisly, potential trap apparently is being baited for the major Nazi forces holding the right flank of the Naples-Foggia line in Italy. Allied efforts appear to be aimed not to force the enemy out of the Naples sector but to pin him there while British forces to the northeast crunch forward from captured Foggia to take him in flank and rear for annihilation in the field.

A Nazi retreat to avoid such a trap is reported. The British armored column that swept blitzkrieg fashion into Foggia yesterday, however, is in a position to strike either down the Foggia-Naples highway, almost westward up the Rome road via Lucera to get in the rear of Germans falling back from the Naples front, or northward through San Severo to reach the Adriatic coast above the Monte Garagano spur. Just which direction Montgomery's veterans follow from the Foggia road and rail hub should give a clearer glimpse of Allied battle strategy in Italy.

British and American forces on the Italian mainland appear to have exchanged the roles they played in the swift Allied clean-up of Sicily. In that fight, which showed the Nazi command both outguessed and outfought, the battle-hardened British 8th army gripped the Mount-Etna flank, exerting intensive pressure that pinned German armor in place, but was short of a full scale frontal offensive. Meanwhile, Patton's American 7th army overran all western Sicily, reached the north coast and drove eastward toward the Messina escape route. Coupled with the cracking of the Nazi center under American-Canadian hammering, that shook the enemy out on the Mount Etna stronghold.

There is reason to doubt that the 5th army pressure on the Naples front in the west, dominated by Nazi held Vesuvius, is an actual effort to take Naples by storm.

With the Naples position already outflanked by British capture of Foggia, it seems obvious that it must soon fall. General Clark's mission probably is to make every effort to impede Nazi escape from the trap while Montgomery closes in from the northeast.

There is no longer doubt that German divisions recalled from Russia have been poured into the Balkans and Greece to brace that wavering front. That is the way German propagandists and military commentators explain the retreat in Russia. It was to shorten the line in the east and provide the forces necessary for the Italian and Balkan fronts, they say.

It is still true, however, that standing along the Dnieper the Nazi line in Russia has not been materially shortened. The great river affords a strong natural defense position; but it is some 850 miles in length from Orsha to its Black sea mouth.

German surrender of the Dnieper plateau, within the great southern Crimea would cut that front by 200 miles. Surrender also of the now gravely jeopardized Leningrad Peipus lake chain along the Russian-Esthonian border also would reduce the distance and the force necessary to hold a winter line.

Either move, however, would add to German public gloom. And a retreat from the Dnieper in the south, whether Nazi-planned or Russian-forced, unquestionably would see the crumbling of influence in the Balkans, and make an Allied Balkan campaign at some early date virtually certain.

In any case, Allied tactics bid fair to force upon the German command in Italy the very thing it most wishes to avoid, a lengthening of its defense lines which would force withdrawal of additional reserves from Russia just as the possible crucial battle of the war there along the Dnieper is being joined. What happens in Italy within the next few days could as powerfully influence war developments in Russia as could a sudden Allied invasion across the English channel.

What Prime Minister Churchill has called the Italian or Mediterranean "third-front," reserving the second-front designation for the cross channel jump when it comes, has already accomplished something that second-front could not alone have achieved until it was well on the road to Berlin. Italy is a full scale second-front so far as its influence on the Balkan theater is concerned. Nazi Balkan satellites are already being pinched between the Russian advance to the lower Dnieper in the east and possibilities of an Allied leap to the Greek Peninsula from the southwest, or up the Aegean from the south.

Berlin reports of the seizure of the island of Corfu in the Adriatic, just off the Greek-Albanian border, indicates utter uncertainty in the Nazi High command as to where the next Allied blow in the Mediterranean theater is going to fall.

ROOSEVELT HAILS CAPTURE OF FOGGIA

Washington, Sept. 28 (A. P.).—Indicating new blows at Nazi Germany, President Roosevelt today described the fall of Foggia in southern Italy as one of the most important Allied successes yet from a strategic point of view.

The President told his press conference, the first in several weeks, that the victory brings the Allied air forces nearer Germany and will permit air cover for all operations henceforth in Italy and in the Adriatic coast area, especially in northern Italy.

The President said he did not believe he was disclosing a military secret when he said the German General Staff had drawn circles around several strategic spots in Europe with Foggia in the center.

Heretofore, he added, a very large part of Germany has been sleeping outside what he called the vulnerable area. Now he said, it will be unable to do so.

He said the victory stands out as a demonstration of complete co-operation between the Allied land, air and naval forces.

1944 SHIPMENTS OF LEND-LEASE HINT STRATEGY

10 Per Cent Earmarked for Countries Now Held by the Nazis.

GAUD TELLS OF OBSTACLES

International Aid Official Informs Executives' Conference Chief Difficulty Is Shipping.

SEP 29 1943

Washington, Sept. 28 (A. P.).—A possible hint of the direction of next year's invasion campaigns was given today when Lieut.-Col. William S. Gaud Jr. of the Army general staff disclosed that 10 per cent of military lend-lease shipments for 1944 has been earmarked for such countries as France, Belgium, Norway and Greece.

This year's military lend-lease program calls for $5,400,000,000 worth of supplies for Allied nations, principally Great Britain, Russia and China, Col. Gaud told a conference—sponsored by the War Department—of industrial, labor and newspaper executives. He said it appears likely the goal will not be reached, and any deficit will have to be made up next year.

Col. Gaud, assistant to the director of the Army Service Forces' International Aid Division, told the conference that military supplies to our Allies have been limited by two main factors: (1) Shipping capacity, and (2) priority for American troops on items which we have been unable to produce in sufficient quantities to meet all demands. Shipping has been the more serious difficulty, he stated.

China, he said, is the prime illustration of our inability to supply an ally with equipment. The air forces have done a "superb job" in maintaining an air route to China, Col. Gaud said, but this method has serious limitations and the Allies have not "been sitting idly by waiting for a land route to be opened into China."

Train Chinese.

"Gen. (Joseph) Stilwell has established in India a great training camp for the Chinese," Col. Gaud added. "Cargo planes which carry American supplies into China return to India loaded with Chinese soldiers. They are there equipped and trained by American soldiers."

Some of these Chinese troops already are guarding American Army engineers who are building roads, he said, but most of them will return to China to train other Chinese in the use of modern machinery.

To Russia, he said, we are now sending tanks, trucks, guns and ammunition over the Persian Gulf route at a rate "that is straining Russia's transport system." He noted that Russian demands for equipment have altered considerably, and the Soviet Government is asking for 50 per cent more trucks and hundreds of locomotives.

"At least on that front," he said, "locomotives have apparently become more important than tanks."

As to military lend-lease supplies for civilian populations in conquered areas, Col. Gaud said the requirements would be great for the obvious reason that "no (military) front is safer than the civilian areas behind it."

Nazis Now Declared Forced To Draft Crews For U-Boats

German Sailors Balking Because Of U. S. Navy's "Tenth Fleet," Says Admiral Low

SEP 29 1943

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 28 — The navy's anti-submarine campaign has so chilled the fighting ardor of German sailors, it was reported tonight, that the Nazis now must draft crews to man their U-boats.

"We have information that the Nazis already are being forced to draft the U-boat crews," Rear Admoral Francis S. Low said in an interview broadcast over the Blue network. "Under such conditions, the quality of performance of officers and crews alike is bound to decrease to an unacceptable degree.

"We might compare the plight of the Nazi navy today with that which faced it during the final months of 1917."

He warned, however, that the U-boat was far from being driven from the seas.

The admiral, assistant chief of naval staff, disclosed the existence of a new arm in the United States Navy in the Atlantic—the tenth fleet—organized and equipped for the specific purpose of killing U-boats.

The main elements of the fleet, Low said, are destroyer escorts (designed for the special job of convoy), escort carriers (the substandard size aircraft carriers) and navy shore-based aircraft.

Low said production of the new destroyer escorts has been "excellent," adding that "our goal for the year is 260, and we shall get that many." Thirty-six of the vessels were completed last month alone, he said.

The Allies' position in the battle against submarine warfare in the North Atlantic is "the best yet," Low said.

"From May, 1943, through August, 1943," he asserted, "more than 4,000 ships of the United Nations crossed the Atlantic safely in convoy. Of the total number so convoyed, less than one half of one per cent. were lost through U-boat action."

Roosevelt Asks For Home Rule In Puerto Rico

In Message to Congress He Recommends Islands Elect Their Own Governor

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28 (AP).—In the first major move toward implementing the Atlantic charter, President Roosevelt today asked Congress to grant speedy home rule for Puerto Rico including election of a governor now appointed by the Chief Executive.

The President, submitting a home-rule bill in a special message, declared "there is no question of the Puerto Ricans' ability now to administer their own internal affairs." They should have the right, he said, to elect their own governor with "an opportunity for the free exercise of the powers of local self government."

This is the first major step toward self-determination for the islanders since the United States obtained Puerto Rico from Spain in 1899. The bill, however, provided for a Presidentially appointed commissioner general who will be responsible for the execution of United States laws applicable to the island. The insular legislature would have no power to override a Presidential veto.

Provision for Governor

In addition to providing for election of a governor at an annual salary of $12,000 and a government secretary at $7,500, the bill also calls for the abolition of the executive council previously set up under the organic act. The government secretary would assume the governor's duties in the event of the governor's temporary absence, disability or a vacancy in the office.

The President's action followed Governor Rexford Tugwell's recent blunt statement to Congress that it is confronted with the choice of giving economic assistance to the Caribbean possession or facing the prospect "of suppressing an angry people" who may feel they have been wronged. Mr. Tugwell also recommended an eventual plebiscite to give the islanders an opportunity to decide whether they want statehood.

The bill offered to Congress was drawn up by a committee named by the President to consider changes in Puerto Rico's organic law. The committee was headed by Secretary of the Interior Ickes.

Declaring that "there is no reason" for withholding any longer the island's right to select its Governor and other officials, Mr. Roosevelt said:

"It is recommended by the report of the committee that this fact be recognized at once. I agree that this should be done; and suggest that the Congress should consider it as a matter of right and justice for Puerto Ricans.

Committee Suggestions

The committee also suggested:

Procedure for impeaching civil officials, closely following the American Constitution on that point.

Appointment of all heads and assistant heads of executive departments by the Governor, with the advice and consent of the Puerto Rican Senate. Their terms of office would correspond with that of the Governor.

Authorization for the Legislature to create new departments and to redefine powers and duties of departments.

Abolition of an executive council, consisting of the heads of executive departments, which was provided for in the organic act. Its powers would be vested in the Governor until the insular Legislature provided otherwise.

Appointment of the auditor by the Governor for an eight-year term, subject to confirmation by two-thirds of all members of the Puerto Rican Senate. His duties would remain substantially as at present, but his powers over municipal funds would be enlarged.

Retention by the President of veto power to prevent "enactment of laws conflicting with the security and international relations of the United States or affecting the fundamental relations of the United States and Puerto Rico," with subjects on which Presidential veto might be exercised defined so as to "affirm the policy of non-intervention in matters of local concern." The powers of the Governor to veto particular items of appropriations bills would be clarified.

Plan for Legislature

Authorization for the insular Legislature to advance the meeting date of the regular session and to allow sessions to be extended to a maximum of 100 days. The Legislature also would be empowered to alter per diem and mileage allowances of its members.

The empowering of the Legislature to increase the number of Supreme Court justices and providing for the filling of all vacancies on the court by the Governor, subject to Senate approval, on and after Jan. 2, 1945.

Considerable legislation affecting Puerto Rico already is before

1943

Congress. The Senate Territories Committee has held hearings on a bill to grant the island complete and absolute independence. There are also bills for statehood and for ending the current term of Mr. Tugwell.

The United States got Puerto Rico from Spain in 1899. In 1917 Puerto Ricans received full American citizenship and Congress enacted an organic law for governing the Caribbean island, reserving to the President of the United States the power to appoint the Governor, Attorney General, Education Commissioner, Auditor and Supreme Court justices.

Quezon Urges Approval Of Tydings's Resolution

Washington, Sept. 28 (A. P.).—President Manuel L. Quezon of the Philippines urged the Senate Territories Committee today to approve the Tydings resolution to grant immediate independence tothe Commonwealth.

Mr. Quezon's statement was read to the committee by Major-Gen. Basilio J. Valdes, chief of staff of the Philippine Army, because of Quezon's illness.

SFORZA GETS PERMIT TO RETURN TO ITALY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28 — (AP) State department sources disclosed today that Count Carlo Sforza, former Italian foreign minister and leader of the anti-Fascist movement in this country, has received permits to return to Italy. Officials of the British embassy said it had not opposed the trip.

It was believed here Count Sforza might help reorganize the government he left because of Mussolini.

The State department said that Count Sforza was given American exit and re-entry permits several weeks ago, but added that if Count Sforza made the trip it would be on his own initiative rather than as an Allied envoy.

Standley May Not Return

Washington, Sept. 28 (AP)—President Roosevelt said today that the possibility that Admiral William Standley may not go back to Moscow as United States Ambassador is still in the talking stage.

Three Senators Return After World Fronts Tour

Washington, Sept. 28 (AP)—Three of the five Senators who have been visiting world battlefronts since July returned to the Capital today and immediately sought rest after an all-night flight from the West Coast.

Those returning were Senators Russell (D., Ga.), Brewster (R., Maine), and Mead D., N. Y.). Senator Lodge (R., Mass.) remained in Honolulu and Senator Chandler (D., Ky.) stayed in California for a visit with his wife and daughters.

New U.S. Stamp Honors France

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28 (AP).—A new five-cent stamp bearing the picture of the French flag as the central subject, went on sale here today. It is the seventh in a series of eleven honoring nations overrun by the Axis.

FCC Issues U.S.-Ethiopia Communications Right

Washington, Sept. 28 (AP)—The Mackay Radio and Telegraph Company was authorized by the Federal Communications Commission today to establish for a three-month period direct communication between the United States and Addis Ababa, Ethiopia.

At present such communication is routed by way of Great Britain. A similar request of Radio Corporation of America Communications, Inc., was denied.

How One Bomber Spotted and Strafed First of Victims and Called on Others to Finish Job Is Revealed by Navy.

Washington, Sept. 28 (A. P.).—Destruction of three German submarines and the damaging of a fourth by American planes flying from an escort carrier on Atlantic convoy duty were reported by the Navy today.

Lieut. Robert Pershing Williams, 26 years old, of Snoqualmie, Wash., scored heavy damage on these undersea raiders. He was flying a Grumman Avenger bomber with Morris C. Grinstead, radio man, of Letts, Iowa, and Melvin H. Paden, machinist's mate, of Salinas, Cal., as his crew.

Three of the submarines went to the bottom and a total of about sixty-five German seamen were rescued by destroyers. The fourth submarine left merely a huge oil slick on the surface and was recorded only as "possibly damaged."

The first of the series of attacks by Williams's bombing plane came in mid-afternoon when Paden sighted the wake of a large submarine. The raider was strafed by a fighter plane piloted by Lieut. (j. g.) Earl H. Steiger of 212 Best street, Buffalo. Then Williams roared in on his bombing run, and the depth charges straddled the submarine about twenty-five feet forward of the conning tower. The raider was mortally wounded but the German crew raced to the guns and began firing upon the planes.

Others Finish the Job.

Lieut. Williams had used his bomb load. He called his carrier and other planes were sent out to finish the job.

Meantime Lieut. Steiger continued strafing the German U-boat. On his third attack his Wildcat fighter suddenly swerved, its nose dropped and it plunged into the water 100 feet from the U-boat. Lieut. Steiger is listed as missing in action.

Then aid came from the carrier. Lieut.-Commander Charles W. Brewer of Tulsa, Okla, carried on the strafing and was followed by Lieut. (j. g.) James F. Schoby of Bode, Iowa, in a bomber, who finished the job of sinking the submarine.

Approximately thirty-five survivors of the U-boat were seen struggling in the water and a destroyer rescued thirty-three. One died a few minutes later. The others, treated by Lieut. Rodney A. Farmer of Greensburg, Pa., are prisoners.

The next morning, Williams again on patrol, spotted a periscope cutting through the water about eight miles away. He sped to the attack and dropped one depth charge in close. The U-boat disappeared trailing oil. This attack was listed as involving only "possible damage."

Back to the Attack.

Two days later Williams made his third attack, this one a certain kill. One depth charge exploded directly beneath the German submarine. Five men were thrown clear and debris and oil spread over the sea. Two of the Germans drowned before a destroyer reached the scene. The other three are held prisoners.

A series of routine patrols followed until Williams's radio man Grinstead spotted the next U-boat.

Williams dropped his bombs. The sub surfaced sharply. Black smoke trailed from its conning tower and it began to settle. Approximately thirty survivors were rescued by a destroyer that reached the scene.

Lieut. (j. g.) Martin G. O'Neill of 129 Cottage street, Jersey City, N. J., and Lieut.-Commander Brewer and Lieut. Richard F. Neely of Tuscaloosa, Ala., aided Lieut. Williams in that attack.

Lieut. Williams was born in Pierre, S. D., and was attached to the U. S. S. Lexington when that carrier was sunk in the Pacific. At the time she went down he was in the air and landed his plane on another carrier.

Talk of Marshall's Shift Stirs Roosevelt, War Dept.

Political Implications Bring Protest of Harm to War Effort.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28 — (AP) The White House and the War department manifest deep concern today over political implications read into reports that General George C. Marshall is to get a new command.

From neither was there a denial that Gen. Marshall, the army chief of staff, is to be made global commander of American and British forces in the field. On that point, President Roosevelt told a news conference that he could say nothing about Gen. Marshall's status now or until the time was ripe.

Displeased by Reports

But the displeasure over some of the reports having to do with the asserted motives for a change was made plain.

1. Mr. Roosevelt read to his conference, and in effect endorsed, an editorial in the New York Herald Tribune which spoke of the "mixture of unauthenticated 'news,' rumor, guesswork and innuendo" revolving about Gen. Marshall as a brilliant example of "how to obstruct the conduct of the war."

2. Members of the House Military committee, addressing the House, quoted Gen. Marshall as appealing for an end to talk about political interference with the High command which he told them, they added, is not true and is "doing great harm to the war effort."

The House talks followed early morning conversations by members of the Military committee with Gen. Marshall and with Secretary of War Stimson. Apparently they grew from last week's assertion by Rep. Shafer (R-Mich.) that the War department was threatened with conversion "into a New Deal political WPA."

Committee members told the House General Marshall assured them there is "complete harmony and cooperation" between the War department and the Administration, and among the army's own high ranking generals.

Gen. Marshall Concerned

"General Marshall called me at my residence this morning to express very deep regret and deep concern at some of the statements that have appeared," said Rep. Thomason (D-Tex.) ranking Democratic member of the Military Affairs committee.

"He said it was seriously affecting the war effort and authorized me and other members of the committee to quote him and to express the hope that such statements be not repeated. Because, as I said, they are doing great harm to the war effort."

Rep. Shafer later returned to the floor, and said he had "substantially the same information" as recent news reports (by International News Service) that White House advisors are planning a reorganization of Army production that would put Gen. Somervell in control of a $22,000,000,000 spending program next year.

Mr. Roosevelt had obviously anticipated questions at his press conference on Gen. Marshall's status and had prepared for them. On his desk were clippings of one news story, with passages underlined in red pencil, and two editorials.

To a question whether there was anything he could say about reports on a "prospective change in the command in the army," Mr. Roosevelt said he supposed the easiest thing to do was to quote the newspapers. He remarked that a lot of those present had not read the papers as he had, and he wanted the things he quoted recorded in his press conference, so that they would be published later.

Quotes INS Story

The story before him, the President said, was written by the chief of the Washington bureau of the International News Service, William K. Hutchinson. Mr. Roosevelt emphasized that Mr. Hutchinson represented a news agency.

The story, which was copyrighted by INS, said:

"A group of influential White House advisers are planning today (September 25) to give Lieut. General Brehon Somervell personal control of the expenditure of $22,000,000,000 in the coming year by a complete reorganization of the entire Army production front."

The story went on to say:

"This domestic coup d'etat is the objective behind the Cabal's efforts to oust Gen. George C. Marshall as Army chief of staff and 'kick him upstairs' to a glorified but powerless war command over Anglo-American forces. Informed sources say the motive is to use the Army's vast production program, excepting aircraft, as a political weapon in the 1944 Presidential campaign."

Shows Copy of Editorial

The President then picked up an editorial from the New York Herald Tribune of September 22 which spoke of the "mixture of unauthenticated 'news,' rumor, guesswork and innuendo which has exploded a teapot tempest around the figure of General Marshall." The editorial said this was a brilliant example of "how to obstruct the conduct of the war," and of "the vices of that whispering gallery journalism into which we seem to be sinking." It added:

"To us it seems outrageous that the absolutely vital question of the High Command of the armies of the United States should be subjected to this process of disruptive and confusing tittle-tattle."

The Herald Tribune noted that first reports that Gen. Marshall might become Allied commander for a western European landing were regarded as complimentary to his abilities. It said that a service paper then discounted the reports on grounds of the general's vital importance in his present post of chief of staff but added that powerful interests would like to eliminate him from Washington.

"This was promptly embroidered," the paper said, "by the Patterson press—which has been so sleepless in its efforts to spread disunity among the Allies and confusion in their war planning—into the melodramatic tale that General Marshall has already been 'quietly removed' because 'he won't subordinate his technical views on global strategy to Messrs. Roosevelt and Churchill'."

Mr. Roosevelt also read a portion of another editorial from the Herald Tribune of the following day which took a similar position.

But when Mr. Roosevelt was asked whether he could supply any facts on the Marshall situation, he said the only fact he had today was the capture of the important Foggia airdrome in Italy by the Allies.

Obviously, the commander in chief said, he could not say anything about Gen. Marshall's status. Only when the time is ripe will anything be said, he added, and the time for announcing any proposed transfer will not be determined by press reports.

Mr. Roosevelt said his statement that he had no news on a subject did not necessarily mean it was not being discussed. Actually, he said, it might be in the discussion stage without any decision having been reached; it might be two weeks or ten months before an announcement could be made.

The President agreed emphatically with a reporter who commented that there "seem to have been leaks from prominent places."

Asked whether there was anything he could do about it, Mr. Roosevelt replied in the negative and then went on to add that leaks are prevented from 90 per cent of the higher-ups in Washington — a pretty good average. About 90 per cent, he said, are damn good eggs, but he would not characterize the other 10 per cent, who probably leak badly.

In the second Herald Tribune editorial, the President cited a section which said the best newspapermen resent being compelled to work in a sea of hint and rumor, and mediocre ones swim along in it too often without realizing how insubstantial it is.

Mr. Roosevelt quoted the editorial: "And the worst and most irresponsible deliberately exploit it—as the Patterson and McCormick newspapers are constantly doing—to create the maximum of division and obstruction and baseless suspicion in the conduct of the war and of affairs."

The editorial concluded that "there will be no real cure until the public learns to demand facts which are facts and not simply the echoes from a whispering gallery."

Marshall Denies Friction Exists in Military Setup

SEP 29 1943

Tells May There Is Complete Harmony Among High Officials of War Department and the Administration.

Washington, Sept. 28 (A. P.).—Members of the House Military Committee conferred with Gen. George C. Marshall, Chief of Staff, today and then told their colleagues that congressional criticism of the Army's High Command was seriously affecting the war effort. Representative Thomas (D.-Tex.) told the House:

"Gen. Marshall called me at my residence this morning to express very deep regret and deep concern at some of the statements that have appeared in local papers and also on the floor of this House.

"He (Marshall) said it was seriously affecting the war effort and authorized me and other members of the committee to quote him and to express the hope that such statements will not be repeated because, as I said, they are doing great harm to the war effort."

Followed Assertions.

Representative May (D.-Ky), chairman of the Military Committee, said Gen. Marshall assured him today that there is "complete harmony among the high officials of the War Department and the administration and that anything that was done was done with his approval."

The speeches followed assertions that there had been political dabbling in Army High Command affairs. A few minutes earlier Representative Shafer (R.-Mich.) had said that he and another member of Congress, whom he did not identify, had been furnished "substantially the same information" as that contained in an article distributed by the International News Service which said:

"A group of influential White House advisers are planning today (Saturday) to give Lieut.-Gen. Brehon Somervell personal control of the expenditure of $22,000,000,000 in the coming year by a complete reorganization of the entire Army production front."

"I feel," Mr. Shafer said, "that if by any word or deed I can prevent those in the cabal mentioned in the article from taking over the War Department and building it into a political machine, I will have rendered our armed forces and the nation a service."

Representative McCormick (D.-Mass.) the majority leader, gave the House this statement from Secretary of War Stimson:

"The President has absolutely refrained from interfering in any way with the War Department and in the choice of any generals of the United States Army and in their assignment to duty. The President has followed the advice of his military advisers in the consideration of all questions of strategy, which have governed the war, and so far as his intrusion in any political or personal way it has been absolutely nonexistent."

Notes President's Approval.

Mr. McCormick said Mr. Stimson also authorized him to say that "the President has a very high regard for Gen. Marshall and profoundly respects him and his ability."

Representative Andrews (R.-N. Y.), ranking Republican member of the Military Committee, said he considered Gen. Marshall preeminently fitted for an assignment as global commander for the Allies. If such an office is named, he said, his command should include both the British and American navies and he should be able to consult with the military heads of the Chinese and Russian governments.

Mr. Andrews said he also conferred with Gen. Marshall today and declared the General "greatly resents all references that have been made to his key man, Gen Somervell, on the floor of this House and in the newspapers." Some reports had mentioned Lieut.-Gen. Brehon B. Somerville, chief of the Service Forces, as a likely successor to Gen. Marshall as chief of staff.

Denies Criticizing General.

During his remarks, Mr. Shafer said:

"I have never directed any criticism, nor linked with any plot, the roportedly proposed appointment of Gen. Marshall as global chief of staff. I have understood for some time—as I think that we all have understood—that Gen. Marshall has been the accepted choice of the leaders of the United Nations for the post of supreme commander when the final blow is to be struck against the Axis Powers.

"I have made no criticism of the Commander in Chief of our Army in connection with this proposed promotion of Gen. Marshall. In fact, I said in my remarks on Thursday, 'I prefer to think his promotion is a fine recognition of Gen. Marshall's ability.'"

NOMINATIONS GO TO SENATE

Stettinius Among Large Group Submitted.

Washington, Sept. 28 (A. P.).—President Roosevelt today formally submitted to the Senate for confirmation the nomination of Edward R. Stettinius Jr., to be Under-Secretary of State.

The President announced Saturday night his acceptance of the resignation of Summer Welles as Under-Secretary and the appointment of Mr. Stettinius to succeed him.

Mr. Roosevelt also transmitted to the Senate the nomination of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower for promotion from his permanent rank of lieutenant-colonel of infantry to major-general. Gen. Eisenhower, supreme Allied commander in the Mediterranean theater, now holds temporary rank as a full general, with Senate confirmation.

Gen. Drum Included.

Three major-generals were nominated to the temporary rank of lieutenant-general. They are Hugh A. Drum, commanding the Eastern Defense Command; Ira C. Eaker, commanding the Eighth Air Force based in England, and Barton K. Yount.

Twenty-three brigadier-generals were nominated as major-generals and sixty-five colonels were nominated brigadier-generals, all to hold the higher ranks temporarily. The permanent rank of most of these officers is that of lieutenant-colonel or colonel.

Lieut.-Gen. Drum, whose usual home address was listed as Indianapolis, Ind., now holds the rank of Lieutenant-General by virtue of his appointment as commander of the First Army. He is being nominated for the rank on a temporary basis in order that he might hold it in his new job as chairman of the Inter-American Defense Board.

Major-Gen. Eaker's usual home address was listed as Eden, Tex., and the home address of Major-Gen. Yount, commander of the Army Air Forces training command, was listed as Troy, Ohio. Brig.-Gen. Frederick H. Osborn of New York, was nominated a Major-General (temporary) of the Army of the United States.

Colonels Are Promoted.

The following Colonels were nominated to be Brigadier-Generals (temporary), Army of the United States (with usual home addresses):

Stuart Cutler, infantry, Freeport, N. Y.; Eric S. Molitor, field artillery, New York city; Emer Yeager, field artillery, New York city; Leo T. McMahon, field artillery, Rome, N. Y.; George G. Lundberg, Air Corps, Olean, N. Y.; Garrison H. Davidson, engineers, New York city; Vincent J. Meloy, Air Corps, native of Brooklyn, N. Y.; James M. Gavin, infantry, native of New York city; John W. Coffey, ordnance department, New York city.

WHEELER FIGHTS

TO PROTECT DADS

Demands That Unmarried Government Employes Be Drafted First.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28—(AP) Senator Wheeler (D-Mont) challenged the Senate today to drive "draft dodgers and slackers" from their "hiding places in government and industry" by blocking the induction of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers, scheduled to start Friday.

Unless stopped, he declared, "the bureaucrats" in control of the government, will "drive American children into the streets while single men—mind you—remain at their desks in unessential jobs."

To Check on Employes

As the Senate went through the first day of debate on Senator Wheeler's bill, expected to continue at least through tomorrow, Senator Byrd (D-Va) announced that the Joint Committee on Reduction of Non-Essential Federal Expenditures would launch an investigation "within the next few days" looking to reduction of the government pay roll by 300,000 employes.

While Senator Byrd said he would oppose any legislation interfering with draft plans of the military leaders, he declared "The time, however, is long overdue for a thorough investigation and overhauling of government personnel."

He said Paul V. McNutt, chairman of the War Manpower commission had not responded to his Sept. 18 request for action, when the government "is the chief hoarder of manpower."

"Every single agency of the Federal government is overmanned," he asserted.

Galleries Crowded

Galleries were so crowded that scores stood while Senator Wheeler carried on what appeared to be a futile fight for passage of his bill to postpone father induction until Jan. 1.

Pointing dramatically to the spectators, including 84 children from a District of Columbia school, Senator Wheeler shouted:

"There are a lot of babies up in gallery. Take their fathers away from them—send their mothers off to work—and see what happens to the American home!

"What are we fighting for?"

Administration spokesmen reiterated their confidence they would have sufficient votes to recommit the measure to the Military committee. Only the decision as to when to administer the "death blow" remained to be made.

"Let these bureaucrats be called upon to bring about a better utilization of the manpower we have before we make mothers and children sacrifice their homes," Senator Wheeler asserted.

"During my 20 years in the Senate, I have never been called upon to speak on a more important piece of legislation, except when I tried to keep this nation out of war.

"Slackers in government bureaus and war industries are hiding behind women's skirts.

"Men, financed by government funds, are spending money like drunken sailors under cost-plus-fixed fee contracts, and hoarding labor—Single men—while they are getting ready to draft fathers."

He asked his colleagues to "go home and tell your people that's what you stand for."

Two Amendments Pending

Meanwhile, two proposed amendments to Senator Wheeler's bill were pending in the Senate. It is on the basis of these "new developments" the Administration probably will make its appeal to recommit the bill.

One, by Senators Bailey (D-NC) and Clark (D-Mo) would forbid government employment of able-bodied, draft-age non-fathers unless they are doing indispensable work, and forbid non-combat duty in Washington for able-bodied, draft-age non-father holders of Army and Navy commissions unless they are indispensable in their present jobs. Senator Bailey said the proposal was described to make their jobs available to fathers.

The other amendment, by Senator Taft (R-Ohio), would classify fathers into two groups—those from 18 through 29, and those from 30 to 38—and provide for the taking of younger men first.

In a letter to the chairman, Representative Costello (D.-Cal.), the Secretary sail Col. Fitzpatrick "exceeded any authority he could possibly have in his capacity as an Army officer, a representative of the selective service, or both."

Mr. Barnett, Mr. Ickes said, apparently succeeded in conveying the impression that the Interior Department had requested deferments for 6,000 employees.

The Secretary's letter said that his department had not asked 6,000 deferments "nor does it intend to do so." He said the department had requested, as of September 15, 1943, a total of 1,358 deferments.

He said Col. Fitzpatrick's "ignorance and incompetence" are most strikingly demonstrated by his selection of the map-making activities of the Geological Survey as his special target. The Secretary said this map-making is primarily a War Department project, financed by that agency as a "direct and important contribution" to the war.

Col. Fitzpatrick and Mr. Barnett testified last Thursday before the committee, which has been investigating deferment of Government employees from military service.

BROWDER FACING HOUSE SUMMONS

Rep. Barry Asks That Communist Be Called To Explain Russia Remarks

Ickes Assails Draft Testimony

SEP 29 1943

Calls Depositions on Deferment of Employees of His Department 'Malicious.'

Washington, Sept. 28 (A. P.).—Secretary Ickes, asserting today that his Department of the Interior is important to the war effort, accused Col. Edward A. Fitzpatrick, selective service official, and Robert M. Barnett, chairman of the review committee on deferment of Government employees, of "irresponsible, incompetent and malicious" testimony before a House Military sub-committee.

1943

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 28—Representative Barry (D., N. Y.) today asked Chairman May (D., Ky.), of the House Military Committee, to call Earl Browder, secretary of the Communist party in the United States, before the committee to explain staements regarding Russian cooperation with this country and England.

Browder, Barry said, has claimed that Russia will not enter the war against Japan, and will not grant Siberian bomber bases to the American air forces. Barry also said Browder has asserted that morale, not military weakness, has prevented opening a second land front in Europe.

Calls For Summons

In a telegram to May, Barry urged the chairman "to summon Browder before Military Affairs Committee and gave him state authority for such assertion. Does he reflect the views of Stalin? What is the source of information respecting the military strength of Allies?"

If Browder's statements are false, Barry asserted, he "should be treated as a morale sabateur."

"No statements made by Axis propagandists have been more helpful to Hitler and Hirohito than Browder's," Barry's message concluded, "and none more destructive to the cause of the United Nations. If he will not appear voluntarily, I am sure the House will grant you power to subpoena."

VOTE AGAINST END OF RENEGOTIATION

Washington, Sept. 28 (A. P.).—By a vote of 17 to 5, the House Naval Committee decided today against recommending termination of the renegotiation law, under which the Government recovers "excessive" profits on war business under contracts made after January 1, 1944.

The motion was offered by Representative Cole (R.-N. Y.), sponsor of a measure to repeal the statute. The House Ways and Means Committee voted yesterday against repeal. The Naval Committee will vote tomorrow on the question of recommending a change in the law to authorize the renegotiation after—instead of before—taxes.

112,000 Deferred as U. S. Aids

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28 (AP).—Selective Service Headquarters reported today that approximately 112,000 of the 675,000 men between eighteen and thirty-seven years old in the Federal government employ on Aug. 15 were draft-deferred by reason of their government employment.

The report, prepared at the request of the Senate Military Affairs Committee, said 96,658 of these were employees of the Army, Navy and "related departments."

AID BILL ADOPTED

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28 — (AP) The Senate passed today and sent to the White House a bill appropriating $18,620,000 for aid to enlisted service men's wives who become mothers.

Waves to Stay Home

Navy Bows to Senate Pressure and Drops Plan for Overseas Duty

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28 (AP).—The Waves are not going overseas, at Least not soon. The Navy acceded to strong Senate pressure today and dropped its support of legislation which would have permitted such assignments for its women.

The Wacs, Army counterpart of the Waves, are bound by no stay-at-home rule.

ASSIGNED TO NAVY POST

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28 — (AP) Rear Admiral Thomas L. Gatch, a hero of the battle of Guadalcanal, was confirmed by the Senate today for a four-year term as judge advocate general of the Navy.

First Sale Of Axis Properties Is Made

New York, Sept. 28 (AP)—Award of the sale of the first Axis-owned securities offered to United States buyers under the Federal Government's plan to "Americanize" Axis properties will be made tomorrow, Frank Garvey, head of the New York alien property custodian office, announced today.

The securities consist of eighty-two shares of common capital stock in the G. Bruning Tobacco Extract Company, Inc., of Lynchburg, Va., and represent thirty-three per cent. of the company's stock, Garvey said.

The shares, he said, were owned by the estate of Mrs. G. Schilling, of Bremen, Germany. The Government called for bids on the shares several weeks ago.

Bard Urges Americans Not to Condemn Russians

Asserts World Peace Depends on Friendly Ties

BOSTON, Sept. 28 (AP).—Ideas Americans have had, based on Russia's Communist program of ten years ago, should not be allowed to wreck the world peace program covering the years ahead of us, Assistant Secretary of the Navy Ralph A. Bard asserted today.

Addressing members of the metal trades department of the American Federation of Labor, holding a three-day convention, Mr. Bard said, "Fear of Communism has been used as a ready stick with which to beat progressive ideas."

"It is my personal opinion," he added, "the future peace of the world lies in relationships soon to be established between the United States, Great Britain, Russia and China."

"Russia as our ally," he continued, "makes sense in a big way. Russia as some one else's ally raises consternation in the breast of those of us who are vitally interested in the world our children will have to live in."

Father Of Twins Gets Five Years In Draft Case

Philadelphia, Sept. 28 (AP)—Philip Mancuso, 26, father of year-old twins, was convicted of violating the selective service law and sentenced to five years in prison in United States District Court today after a six-month legal controversy with his draft board.

A jury of six men and six women returned the verdict after ten minutes of deliberation. Judge Harry E. Kalodner told Mancuso the sentence will be revoked if he asks permission to go into the armed forces before a new term of court begins November 1.

Mancuso was accused of refusing to obey three orders to report for induction. In extended litigation, he alleged that the draft board reclassified him from 3-A to 1-A without giving him "a fair and proper hearing."

3 DENY WAR FRAUD CHARGE

Brothers, Former Top National Bronze Officials, Testify At Trial

[By the Associated Press]

Cleveland, Sept. 28 — Three Schmeller Brothers, former top officials of the National Bronze and Aluminum Company here, categorically denied in Federal District Court today Government charges of sabotage and war fraud.

The trio—John, former president; Frank, former superintendent, and Edward, former chief metallurgist—and four other former officials are accused of conspiring to sell welded warplane supercharger castings to the Packard Motor Company at Detroit in violation of Army Air Force specifications.

Tells Of Meeting

Edward and Frank Schmeller both testified they never had seen specifications of the war contract with Packard. John Schmeller told the jury of a meeting with Packard officials in Detroit last September.

"One of the Packard officials showed us several castings," the former president related. "Three had circled chalk marks on them. Packard officials said they were our castings and that they were welded.

"I said 'O. K., let's look inside.'

A man chiseled and sawed through the circled place. I turned to James Helm (former National Bronze superintendent and another of the defendants) and asked: 'They say these are welded. Are we welding?'

"Send Them Back"

"He said we were not, and I returned to Packard officials and said:

" 'Our men say we are not welding, but if we are, send them back to us and we'll melt them down.' Packard officials said they would use welded castings for school motors. They paid half price for such castings."

John Schmeller conceded he had received letters from Packard protesting against welded castings, and said he ordered copies sent to various former subordinates.

Several Government witnesses testified earlier that such welding was in direct violation of army specifications.

Great Naval Battle In Pacific Forecast

Hot Springs, Ark., Sept. 28 (AP)—J. Norman Lodge, Associated Press war correspondent, said today that the South Pacific, probably in the near future, would be the scene of one of the greatest naval battles in history and that the Japs would be blasted out of the water.

Lodge, who recently returned from the Pacific area, spoke before the annual convention of the Southern Newspaper Publishers' Association.

"I can't predict just where the impending naval battle will occur but I can predict it will be a great victory for us," he said.

Saudi Arabia King's Two Sons Reach U. S.

Miami, Fla., Sept. 28 (AP)—Two sons of the King of Saudi Arabia, one the Foreign Minister of his country, arrived here today for a visit to this country. They will be guests at a White House dinner Thursday and will be feted Friday by Secretary Hull. Amir Faisal, Foreign Minister, and Amir Khalid were accompanied by Sherkh Hafix Wahba, the Saudi Arabian Minister to London. They were flown here in an Army Air Transport Command plane.

'Chutist Lands on Booby Trap

ALLIANCE, Neb., Sept. 28 (AP).—Staff Sergeant August W. Viehl, of Ridgewood, L. I., an Alliance Army Air Base paratrooper, was killed on Sunday when he parachuted onto a booby trap at Sedalia, Mo., during a practice leap, the base public relations office announced today.

2 Sailors Lost in Collision

Ship Shears Off Sub Chaser's Stern Outside Golden Gate; 5 Rescued

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 28 (AP).—A pre-dawn ship collision outside the Golden Gate yesterday sheared off the stern of a 110-foot Navy sub chaser and spilled seven sleeping sailors into the ocean, two of them to probable death.

The 12th Naval District said the severed section of the sub chaser sank quickly. Rescue craft succeeded in towing the forward part of the vessel into port. Five of the men, two of them seriously injured, were pulled aboard lifeboats. The other two were listed by the Navy as missing. Names were not announced.

Golden Gate Collision Wrecks Sub-chaser

San Francisco, Sept. 28 (A. P.).—A pre-dawn ship collision yesterday outside the Golden Gate sheared twenty-five feet off the stern of a 110-foot Navy sub-chaser and spilled seven sleeping sailors into the ocean, two of them to probable death.

Five of the men, two of them seriously injured, were pulled aboard lifeboats. The other two were listed by the Navy as missing. Names were not announced.

Insects' Aim Excels Japanese

ON SEPT. 24 A SWISS REPORT SAID THAT SFORZA, FORMER ITALIAN FOREIGN MINISTER, WOULD ENTER THE BADOGLIO CABINET AS THE REPRESENTATIVE OF AN ANTI-FASCIST ORGANIZATION ACTIVE ABROAD FOR 20 YEARS. IN NEW YORK SFORZA'S DAUGHTER, MISS FIAMMETTA SFORZA, SAID SHE HAD BEEN AUTHORIZED BY HER FATHER TO DENY THE REPORT.

TODAY'S MESSAGE, DIRECTED IN ENGLISH TO NORTH AMERICA BY THE UNITED NATIONS' RADIO AT ALGIERS, SAID IN PART:

"IN MY OPINION IT IS THE ESSENTIAL DUTY OF ALL ITALIANS, REGARDLESS OF PARTY OR POLITICAL CONVICTIONS, TO CONTRIBUTE TO THE DEFEAT OF THE GERMAN ARMY AND THE EXPULSION OF GERMANS FROM ITALY.

"AS LONG AS MARSHAL BADOGLIO IS [illegible] CRIMINAL TO DO ANYTHING WHICH MIGHT WEAKEN HIS POSITION OR HINDER HIS WORK IN THE FIGHT FOR THE LIBERATION OF ITALY AND THE ITALIAN PEOPLE."

-DASH-

IN NEW YORK, COUNTESS SFORZA SAID TODAY THAT ANY REPORT THAT THE COUNT HAD COMMUNICATED WITH BADOGLIO WAS "ABSOLUTELY INCORRECT."

"COUNT SFORZA HAS NEVER BEEN IN COMMUNICATION WITH BADOGLIO OR MEMBERS OF HIS GOVERNMENT," SHE SAID, "AND ANY SUCH REPORT IS INEXACT."

THE COUNT, SHE SAID, WAS "OUT OF TOWN" AND COULD NOT BE REACHED FOR COMMENT UNTIL TOMORROW. SHE REFUSED TO SAY WHERE HE WAS.

"I AM READY TO OFFER MY FULL SUPPORT TO MARSHAL BADOGLIO AS LONG AS HE CONTINUES IN HIS EFFORTS IN THIS DIRECTION. THIS IS THE ONLY WAY TO DESTROY THE LAST CRIMINAL REMNANTS OF FASCISM."

LONDON, SEPT. 28-(AP)-WITH FOGGIA'S ELABORATE STRING OF AIR FIELDS IN ALLIED HANDS, THE GERMANS STRUCK AT ONCE TODAY IN AN EFFORT TO SHIELD THEMSELVES FROM THE GRAVE STRATEGIC CONSEQUENCES OF THE LOSS OF THAT VITAL BASE.

ALMOST AT THE MOMENT THAT GEN. DWIGHT D.EISENHOWER'S COMMUNIQUE DISCLOSED THAT GEN. SIR BERNARD L.MONTGOMERY'S FORCES HAD OVERRUN FOGGIA, THE GERMANS ANNOUNCED TWO QUICK STEPS OF THEIR OWN:

1. THEY THREW LANDING FORCES AT THE ISLAND OF CORFU OFF THE WEST COAST OF GREECE.

2. THEY ATTACKED AND CLAIMED TO HAVE REGAINED THE YUGOSLAV HARBOR CITY OF SPLIT, PREVIOUSLY STORMED AND SEIZED BY YUGOSLAV GUERRILLAS.

IN THESE OPERATIONS, HITLER WAS MOVING WITH ALL URGENCY AGAINST A MENACE SUDDENLY AND VASTLY INCREASED AGAINST HIS BALKAN FRONT, FOR THE CAPTURE OF FOGGIA BY THE BRITISH MEANT THAT THE WHOLE OF NORTHERN ITALY, THE DANUBE VALLEY AND SOUTHERN GERMANY ITSELF NOW HAVE BEEN BROUGHT MORE ADEQUATELY UNDER THE SHADOW OF THE ALLIED AIR ARM.

IT MEANT ALSO THAT GRAND-SCALE FACILITIES FOR ALLIED AIR ACTION AGAINST THE BALKANS HAD NOW BEEN OBTAINED IN AN AREA ONLY 150 MILES ACROSS THE ADRIATIC SEA.

THE BERLIN ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE OCCUPATION OF CORFU, DIRECTLY ACROSS THE IONIAN SEA FROM THE HEEL OF THE ITALIAN BOOT, SAID THE GERMANS TOOK OVER THE ENTIRE ISLAND AFTER A SHORT FIGHT WITH ITALIAN TROOPS WHO TURNED DOWN AN ULTIMATUM TO SURRENDER.

"THE GERMANS BROKE DOWN RESISTANCE AND BROUGHT IN SEVERAL THOUSAND PRISONERS," SAID THE BROADCAST.

IN A SEPARATE ANNOUNCEMENT BROADCAST A SHORT TIME BEFORE, BERLIN SAID THE DALMATIAN PORT OF SPLIT, ON THE ADRIATIC COAST ACROSS FROM ITALY AND ALMOST DUE NORTH OF FOGGIA, WAS "STORMED AND CAPTURED BY GERMAN TROOPS."

GERMAN AIR ATTACKS ACROSS THE AEGEAN FROM GREECE WERE DISCLOSED BY AN ALLIED COMMUNIQUE FROM THE MIDDLE EAST WHICH SAID HEAVY ENEMY BOMBERS, ESCORTED BY FIGHTERS, RAIDED THE DODECANESE ISLANDS OF COO AND LERO YESTERDAY. SPITFIRES SHOT DOWN ONE ENEMY BOMBER AND A FIGHTER.

ALLIED AIRMEN ALSO WERE ACTIVE IN THE AEGEAN AREA THE PAST TWO NIGHTS, THE CAIRO COMMUNIQUE ANNOUNCED. RAF HUDSONS AND BALTIMORES ATTACKED THE KASTEAELI-PEDIADA AIRDROME ON THE ISLAND OF CRETE LAST NIGHT, STARTING A NUMBER OF FIRES.

ON THE PREVIOUS NIGHT, RAF WELLINGTONS BOMBED THE GREEK HARBOR OF SYROS ON THE AEGEAN SEA, CAUSING EXPLOSIONS ON THE QUAY AND FIRES IN THE WAREHOUSE AREA. THREE BRITISH PLANES WERE LOST IN THESE OPERATIONS, THE COMMUNIQUE SAID.

LONDON, SEPT. 28-(AP)-THE STORY OF HOW FOUR BRITISH SIGNAL CORPS MEN STORMED A SECTION OF THE SALERNO BEACH STILL HELD BY THE GERMANS AND THEN LAY IN THE WATER FOUR HOURS DIRECTING THE FIRE OF ALLIED WARSHIPS AT SEA UNTIL THE BEACH WAS CAPTURED WAS TOLD BY A ROYAL SIGNAL CORPS OFFICER TODAY.

THE BEACH WHERE THE SIGNAL CORPS MEN LANDED, HE SAID, WAS THOROUGHLY COVERED BY NAZI MACHINEGUNS AND TIGER TANKS. THE FOUR MEN PLACED THEIR RADIO EQUIPMENT ON THE SAND AND THEN LAY IN THE WATER TO ESCAPE THE GERMANS' FIRE WHILE SENDING THEIR REPORTS.

TWO OF THE FOUR WERE WOUNDED WHEN AND ONE HAD NOT A SINGLE ROUND LEFT IN HIS TOMMYGUN WHEN THEY WERE RELIEVED.

"MANY OF THE BRITISH WHO LANDED SOUTH OF SALERNO WERE BROUGHT FROM NORTH AFRICA IN UNITED STATES LANDING CRAFT," THE OFFICER DISCLOSED. "THERE IS NO DOUBT THAT ALL OUR SOLDIERS WERE IMPRESSED BY THE MAGNIFICENT SEAMANSHIP OF THE AMERICANS.

"AT ONE TIME THE FLAGSHIP FROM WHICH AN AMERICAN ADMIRAL WAS DIRECTING THE ENTIRE OPERATION CAME UNDER FIRE FROM SHORE. HE DIDN'T HESITATE, BUT GAVE THE ORDER OVER THE LOUDSPEAKER TO ATTACK. HIS SHIP WENT IN WITH ITS FIVE-INCH GUNS AND DIDN'T COME OUT UNTIL IT FINISHED ITS JOB."

london, sept. 28 -(ap)- "a cabin in cotton" came to albert hall for two and a half hours tonight in a stirring program of american spirituals and ballads sung by a chorus of 200 negro soldiers.

u. s. ambassador john g. winant was among the sell out audience which heard the chorus present such spirituals as "certainly lord," and "when angels go marching in" and "ain't dat good ~~news~~ news."

the chorus was directed by 1st sgt. alexander b. jordan of st. paul, minn., a a gradaute of tuskegee institute, and pvt. james mcdaniel of kansas city.

between numbers the london symphony orchestra played under the direction of warrant officer hugo weisgall of baltimore and solos were sung by roland hayes, american tenor.

the "ballad for americans" was presented by chorus and orchestra with pfc kenneth cantril of springfield, mo.

AT A U.S.FIGHTER BASE IN ENGLAND, SEPT.28-(AP)-THE FEAT OF TANGLING WITH THE GERMANS IN AERIAL COMBAT NEARLY 400 MILES FROM THEIR OWN BASES DIDN'T TAKE THE EDGE OFF THE FIGHTING ABILITY OF AMERICAN THUNDERBOLTS--OR THEIR PILOTS.

FOUR FLIERS IN THEIR TWENTIES SMASHED FIVE ENEMY PLANES IN A HOT HALF HOUR OVER EMDEN PROTECTING FLYING FORTRESSES YESTERDAY, ACCOUNTING FOR NEARLY A FIFTH OF THE EIGHTH FIGHTER COMMAND'S BAG OF 22 AGAINST THE LOSS OF ONE THUNDERBOLT--THE GREATEST DAY FOR THE P-47S.

THEIR BEST PREVIOUS DAY WAS JULY 30 WHEN THEY ESCORTED FORTRESSES IN AN ATTACK ON SOUTHWEST GERMANY AND SHOT DOWN 16 ENEMY FIGHTERS FOR THE LOSS OF THREE OF OURS.

THE FURIOUS QUARTET'S FIVE KILLS IS BELIEVED TO HAVE MADE THEIR UNIT, COMMANDED BY MAJOR E.P.ROBERTS, 817 EAST INDIANA STREET, SPOKANE,WASH., THE TOP FIGHTER SQUADRON IN THE EIGHTH AIR FORCE WITH A TOTAL OF 42 KILLS. ROBERTS HIMSELF HAS SIX.

THUNDERBOLTS AT THIS BASE ACCOUNTED FOR 10 OF THE TOTAL CREDITED TO AMERICAN FIGHTERS YESTERDAY IN A RAID ON WHICH ONLY SEVEN FORTRESSES WERE LOST.

UNIT COMMANDER CAPTAIN JACK J.OBERHANSLY OF SPANISH FORK, UTAH, GOT TWO ME109S AND HEARD OF HIS PROMOTION TO MAJOR WHEN HE GOT BACK TO BASE.

THE FURIOUS FOUR, MAKING THE AIR CRACKLE WITH THEIR 400-MILE-AN-HOUR SPEED, SHOT NAZI FIGHTERS DOWN AT THE RATE OF ONE EVERY SIX MINUTES DURING THE EMDEN BATTLE.

WHEN ROBERTS ARRIVED WITH HIS BOYS JUST AHEAD OF THE FORTRESSES THE NAZIS WERE QUEUEING UP AT 25,000 FEET TO TRY TO RIP THROUGH THE BOMBER FORMATION.

"I CAME UP RIGHT BEHIND ONE," SAID BROWN, "AND MY SHOTS CREPT UP THE LEFT WING THROUGH THE COCKPIT AND INTO THE RIGHT WING. PARTS FLEW IN EVERY DIRECTION AND HE WAS DONE."

LATER STUMP, WITH FLIGHT OFFICER PETER E.POMPETTI, 164 NORTH SIXTY FIRST, PHILADELPHIA, BLEW A ME109 TO PIECES.

THEY SHARED THE VICTORY, AND POMPETTINLATER GOT A ME110 ALL FOR HIMSELF.

BERN, SWITZERLAND, SEPT [illegible]P)-THE GERMAN PUBLIC AND THE NATION'S BALKAN SATELLITES KEPT AN UNEASY EYE ON THE DNIEPER RIVER TODAY AMID GENERAL SPECULATION AS TO WHEN THE NAZI RETREAT IN RUSSIA IS GOING TO END.

THERE HAS BEEN NO ATTEMPT UPON THE PART OF PAUL JOSEPH GOEBBELS' OFFICE OF PROPAGANDA TO SUGARCOAT THE SERIOUSNESS OF THE SITUATION ON THE EASTERN FRONT. THE NAZI PROPAGANDISTS, HOWEVER, COINED A NEW SLOGAN, "GAIN STRENGTH THROUGH DEFENSE" AS THEY ELABORATED THE THEME THAT THE SHORTENED RUSSIAN LINE CREATES RESERVES TO MEET THE GROWING THREAT IN ITALY.

NEVERTHELESS A BERLIN DISPATCH TO THE BASEL NATIONALZEITUNG DECLARED THAT THE GERMAN PUBLIC IS "WATCHING THE EAST WITH BURNING INTEREST" AND THE QUESTION IS "WILL THE GERMAN RETREAT END AT THE DNIEPER?"

ADOLF HITLER'S NEWSPAPER, THE VOELKISCHER BEOBACHTER, EXPLAINING THAT THE SHRINKING EASTERN FRONT MEANS ADDITIONAL TROOPS TO THROW AGAINST AMERICAN AND BRITAIN FORCES IN ITALY OR WHEREVER ELSE THE ALLIES MAY STRIKE, EXPRESSED HOPE THAT THE COMING OF THE AUTUMN RAINS MIGHT BRING A HALT TO THE SOVIET JUGGERNAUT.

(BERLIN DISPATCHES TO STOCKHOLM NEWSPAPERS INDICATED THAT FIGHTING MAY CONTINUE EVEN IN THE RAINY SEASON BECAUSE OF TECHNICAL IMPROVEMENTS IN BOTH GERMAN AND RUSSIAN EQUIPMENT. NYA DAGLIGT ALLEHANDA PUBLISHED A STORY FROM BERLIN WHICH SAID THAT BOTH ARMIES ARE NOW EQUIPPED WITH TANKS AND ASSAULT CARS CAPABLE OF NAVIGATING THROUGH FLOODED FIELDS, SMALL STREAMS AND MUD.

(THE DISPATCH ADDED THAT AUTUMN RAINS HAVE ALREADY STARTED IN SOME SECTORS, BUT SAID THE WEATHER HAD NOT LESSENED THE FORCE OF THE RED ARMY ATTACK.)

THE GERMAN PROPAGANDA MINISTRY, MEANWHILE IS MAKING EVERY EFFORT TO STEEL THE NATION FOR FURTHER BAD NEWS DURING THE COMING FIFTH WINTER OF THE WAR. ALL GERMAN NEWSPAPERS CARRY GOEBBELS' 30 "RULES OF CONDUCT" FOR THE HOME FRONT AND THEY WILL SHORTLY BE PUBLISHED SEPARATELY FOR DISTRIBUTION THROUGHOUT THE COUNTRY.

FOR BULGARIA, HUNGARY AND RUMANIA, WHICH HAVE SHOWN SIGNS OF REPENTING THE DAY THEY CAST THEIR LOT WITH THE AXIS, THE SITUATION WAS GROWING SERIOUS.

BULGARIA, BOUND TO RUSSIA BY RACIAL TIES, HAS BEEN VIRTUALLY UNDER NAZI DOMINATION SINCE THE DEATH OF KING BORIS AND NAZI AGRICULTURAL SPECIALISTS HAVE BEEN SPED TO SOFIA TO EXACT A HEAVIER CONTRIBUTION OF FOODSTUFFS.

HUNGARY, WHICH HAS BEEN REPORTED TOYING WITH THE IDEA OF COMPLETE WITHDRAWL FROM THE WAR, WAS SAID TO HAVE WITHDRAWN HER TROOPS FROM TH KIEV FRONT WITH HITLER'S APPROVAL.

THE GAZETTE DE LAUSANNE REPORTED FROM BUCHAREST THAT THE RUMANIAN GOVERNMENT HAS FORBIDDEN DISCUSSION OF THE GERMAN RETREAT, BUT SAID THERE WAS CONSIDERABLE WORRY ON THE PART OF THE PEOPLE OVER THE APPROACH OF RUSSIA TO THE RUMANIAN BORDER. EVEN MILITARY CIRCLES IN BUCHAREST HAVE TAKEN THE GLOOMY VIEW THAT A GERMAN DEFENSE LINE AT THE DNIEPER IS UNTENABLE OVER THE WINTER, IT WAS SAID.

MADRID, SEPT. 27-(DELAYED)-(AP)--TRAVELERS REACHING HERE FROM FRANCE TODAY TOLD OF WITNESSING ANTI-GERMAN DEMONSTRATIONS BY FRENCH WAR PLANT WORKERS LAST WEEK IN THE STREETS OF TOULOUSE AND SAINT DENIS.

NEITHER DEMONSTRATION WAS OPPOSED BY GERMAN AUTHORITIES, THEY DECLARED, DESPITE THE FACT THAT THE RESULTANT WORK STOPPAGES AFFECTED IMPORTANT PRODUCTION FOR THE NAZI WAR MACHINE.

THE TOULOUSE DEMONSTRATION OCCURRED WHEN SHIFTS WERE CHANGING IN THE SNCA AIRCRAFT FACTORIES (SOCIETE NATIONAL DES CONSTRUCTIONS AERONAUTIQUES), WHICH ARE WORKING NIGHT AND DAY FOR THE GERMANS.

MARCHING UNOPPOSED THROUGH THE STREETS OF TOULOUSE, THE DEMONSTRATORS SANG LEFTIST SONGS AND SHOUTED "DOWN WITH LAVAL," THE TRAVELERS SAID, AND FINALLY BROKE UP OF THEIR OWN ACCORD.

AT SAINT DENIS, ON THE OUTSKIRTS OF PARIS, WORKERS IN IRON FOUNDRIES AND MACHINE SHOPS PARADED THE STREETS SINGING THE "INTERNATIONALE," THE ARRIVALS SAID.

ANOTHER PROMINENT ITALIAN SAID, "ITALY'S ONLY FAULT WAS GOING TO SLEEP FOR 20 YEARS."

THE BADOGLIO GOVERNMENT, AT PRESENT, RETAINS CIVIL ADMINISTRATION IN CERTAIN AREAS AND IS COOPERATING WELL WITH ALLIED MILITARY AUTHORITIES, THOUGH THE SITUATION IS NATURALLY CHAOTIC, DUE TO WAR TIME CONDITIONS.

BADOGLIO APPEARS FREQUENTLY IN PUBLIC, BUT LITTLE IS SEEN OF KING VITTORIO EMANUELE OR OTHER MEMBERS OF THE ROYAL FAMILY. ONE ALLIED OFFICIAL WHO TALKED WITH THE MONARCH SAID HE APPEARED IN EXCELLENT HEALTH, "THOUGH HE LOOKS HIS 73 YEARS."

THIS OFFICIAL SAID THE SOVEREIGN HAD SHOWN A GOOD GRASP OF AFFAIRS AND CONVERSED IN PERFECT ENGLISH. HE SAID CROWN PRINCE UMBERTO ALSO WAS IN EXCELLENT HEALTH.

THE LAST TIME I WAS IN SOUTHERN ITALY WAS IN 1939 WHEN THE REGION WAS BUSTLING WITH PREPARATIONS FOR WAR. EVERYTHING WAS VERY FASCIST THEN. ALMOST ALL VISIBLE TRACES OF FASCISM NOW ARE OBLITERATED. IT WOULD BE A MISTAKE TO SAY THAT FASCISM HAS BEEN ERADICATED BECAUSE, SO FAR AS SOUTHERN ITALY IS CONCERNED, IT NOW IS EVIDENT THAT IT NEVER HAD ANY ROOTS, BUT WAS A PARASITIC GROWTH ON THE SURFACE. THIS GROWTH HAS SHRIVELED UP AND DIED AND SOUTHERN ITALY HAS RETURNED TO ITS CAREFREE EXISTENCE - OR AT LEAST AS CAREFREE AS POSSIBLE IN THESE TRYING TIMES.

THE ITALIAN GENERAL CARLO VECCHIARELLI, COMMANDER OF ITALIAN TROOPS AT ATHENS, WHO TOLD HIS TROOPS TO DISREGARD THE ALLIES' ARMISTICE INSTRUCTIONS, IS REPORTED TO HAVE BEEN SENT BACK TO ITALY BY THE GERMANS TO JOIN THE MUSSOLINI GOVERNMENT.

THE SITUATION IN THE DODECANESE HAS REMAINED STATIC WITHOUT ANY MAJOR ACTIVITY SINCE THE BRITISH PARTIES LANDED SEPT. 21, BUT THERE IS NO DOUBT THAT THE PRESENCE OF THE BRITISH IN THE ISLANDS IS CONTRIBUTING TO THE DISTURBED STATE OF THE NAZI MIND.

NEW DELHI SEPT 28-(AP)-CONCENTRATING THEIR OPERATIONS ON JAPANESE COMMUNICATIONS IN WESTERN BURMA, ROYAL AIR FORCE BEAUFIGHTERS AND HURRICANES YESTERDAY BLASTED RAILWAY EQUIPMENT AND RIVER TRANSPORTS, A BRITISH COMMUNIQUE REPORTED TODAY.

BEAUFIGHTERS PATROLLING ENEMY-HELD RAILWAYS SOUTH OF YEU AND THE MAIN ROAD RUNNING WEST FROM YEU TO THE CHINDWIN RIVER SHOT UP A LOCOMOTIVE AND ROLLING STOCK, AS WELL AS THREE LARGE MOTOR TRUCKS AND OTH ROAD TRANSPORT.

AT HENZADA ON THE LOWER IRRAWADDY RIVER ANOTHER FORMATION OF BEAUFIGHTERS RAKED THREE STEAMERS WITH CANNON AND MACHINEGUNS, AND THEN DAMAGED A FREIGHT BARGE AND 25 SMALLER RIVER BOATS IN A SWEEP ALONG THE RIVER FRONT.

THE HURRICANES, PATROLLING THE COAST BELOW AKYAB, ATTACKED ENEMY SAMPANS IN THE VICINITY OF DORONGA ISLAND, SINKING SIX AND DAMAGING OTHERS. THE FIGHTER PLANES COMPLETED THE DAY'S OPERATIONS WITHOUT LOSS.

MOSCOW, SEPT. 28-(AP)-THROWN BACK TO THE DNIEPER RIVER FROM THE ZAPOROZHE AREA IN THE SOUTH OF RUSSIA TO POSITIONS ALMOST AS FAR NORTH AS GOMEL IN WHITE RUSSIA, THE GERMAN ARMY SUMMONED RESERVES TODAY AND RE-GROUPED ITS BATTERED FORCES.

EXCEPT IN CERTAIN SECTORS THE RED ARMY IS VIRTUALLY IN CONTROL OF THE EASTERN BANK OF THE DNIEPER.

THE NAZIS STILL WERE FIGHTING DESPERATELY IN THE KREMENCHUG AREA, OUTSIDE KIEV AND BEFORE DNEPROPETROVSK, BUT THE SOVIET FORCES WERE DOGGEDLY BREAKING DOWN THIS RESISTANCE.

IT SEEMED ONLY A MATTER OF HOURS UNTIL THE RUSSIANS WOULD BE ENCAMPED ON THE ENTIRE EASTERN BANK OF THE DNIEPER ALONG A 400-MILE STRETCH. FROM POSITIONS SLIGHTLY SOUTH OF GOMEL TO THE AREA WEST OF SMOLENSK THE RED ARMY PUSHED ON TOWARD THE EASTERN BANK WHILE AT SMOLENSK, OF COURSE, THE RUSSIANS WERE WELL BEYOND THE WESTERN BANK.

DISPATCHES TO THE OFFICIAL NEWSPAPER IZVESTIA TOLD OF NEW RESERVES ARRIVING AS THE GERMANS TRIED TO HOLD BACK THE RED ARMY'S PUNCHES UP AND DOWN THE DNIEPER.

NEW TANK GROUPS APPEARED AND CAPTIVES TOLD RUSSIAN OFFICERS THAT RESERVES WERE BEING HAULED UP FROM DISTANT POINTS.

SOUTHWEST OF CHERKASI ON THE WESTERN BANK OF THE RIVER--A CITY WHICH PROTECTS ONE OF THE BIGGEST CROSSINGS--SOVIET AVIATION FOUND FURTHER EVIDENCE OF FRESH TROOPS AND MACHINES. RUSSIAN BOMBERS DISCOVERED SEVERAL TRAINS AND ATTACKED THEM WITH GOOD RESULTS. OTHER BOMBERS LOCATED MORE ENEMY TROOPS AND MACHINES GATHERED AT THE DNIEPER CROSSING.

IN THE PAST FEW HOURS THE BIGGEST ADVANCES HAVE BEEN MADE IN THE GOMEL SECTOR WHERE THE RED ARMY ADVANCED SEVEN TO TEN MILES, LIBERATING OVER 230 POPULATED POINTS AND IMPORTANT TOWNS.

SOVIET TROOPS ALSO CAPTURED MORE PLACES WITHIN WHITE RUSSIA SOUTH, SOUTHEAST, EAST AND NORTHEAST OF GOMEL AND GREATLY STRENGTHENED THE HALF CIRCLE OF STEEL WHICH IS CLOSING ON THE CITY.

ONE OF THE MOST SIGNIFICANT ADVANCES WAS UP THE CHERNIGOV-GOMEL HIGHWAY WHERE RED ARMY TROOPS HAVE FOUGHT THEIR WAY NORTHWARD INTO WHITE RUSSIA. SOUTHEAST OF THE CITY THEY ARE PRESSING FORWARD AFTER CAPTURING TEREKHOVKA, ONLY 22 MILES AWAY.

IN THE MOGILEV DIRECTION THE RED ARMY TOOK OVER 350 TOWNS AND VILLAGES AND JUST ABOUT COMPLETED THE JOB OF CLEARING BIG SMOLENSK PROVINCE.

THE GERMANS HOLD ONLY A FEW VILLAGES IN SMOLENSK PROVINCE AND THESE ARE RIGHT ON THE WHITE RUSSIAN BORDER. TOMORROW OR THE NEXT DAY SHOULD SEE THE ENTIRE PROVINCE LIBERATED FOR THE FIRST TIME IN TWO YEARS.

SEP 29 1943

EAST AND SOUTH OF GOMEL THE RED ARMY ALREADY HAS REACHED THE MARSHY, FOREST-COVERED LAND SO TYPICAL OF THE WHITE RUSSIAN REPUBLIC.

30.24-8903

GOOD WEATHER CONTINUED TO AID OPERATIONS, BUT AT THIS TIME OF YEAR THE RAINS MAY COME ANY DAY.

THE SOVIET FORCES ARE DRIVING TOWARD VITEBSK WITH HEAVY FORCES WHICH PASSED NORTH OF SMOLENSK AND JOINED WITH THE ARMY THAT TOOK SMOLENSK.

THE GERMANS ARE EXPECTED TO TRY TO HOLD VITEBSK, FOR WITH ITS FALL MANY GARRISONS FROM LENINGRAD SOUTHWARD WOULD BE EXTREMELY ENDANGERED. VITEBSK IS GOING TO BE NO EASY PLACE TO TAKE.

THE BRITISH STATEMENT WAS MADE PUBLIC IN CONJUNCTION WITH AN ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE LONDON FOOD MINISTRY OF AN AGREEMENT TO PURCHASE ARGENTINA'S EXPORTABLE SURPLUS EGGS FOR THE 1943-44 AND 1944-45 SEASONS.

REPLYING TO AN ASSERTION THAT ARGENTINA HAD FAILED TO GIVE BRITISH INTERESTS AND NATIONALS "PROPER CONSIDERATION AND PROTECTION," GILBERT ASSURED BRITAIN THAT HER NATIONALS AND BUSINESS INTERESTS WOULD RECEIVE FAIR TREATMENT.

MONTEVIDEO, SEPT.24-(AP)-MINISTER OF AGRICULTURE ARTURO GONZALEZ VIDART TODAY ANNOUNCED THAT UNDER AN ANGLO-URUGUAYAN MEAT CONTRACT NOW NEARING SIGNATURE IN LONDON, URUGUAY WILL EXPORT ALL ITS AVAILABLE MEAT SUPPLY THERE UNTIL OCTOBER, 1944, WITH AN INCREASE IN PRICES OVER THE PREVIOUS CONTRACT OF 3.33 PER CENT.

BRITAIN IS ACTING AS THE REPRESENTATIVE OF ALL THE UNITED NATIONS, VIDART SAID.

THE MINISTER SAID THAT UNDER THE FOURTH WARTIME CONTRACT ENDED LAST OCT.31 URUGUAY HAD EXPORTED 32,500 TONS OF FROZEN BEEF AND 4,500 TONS OF FROZEN MUTTON, BUT UNDER ADDITIONAL QUOTAS THROUGH LAST DECEMBER, THE EXPORTS HAD BEEN INCREASED BY 3,500 TONS OF FROZEN BEEF AND 2,500 TONS OF FROZEN MUTTON. ADDED ADDITIONAL QUOTAS EXPORTED LAST YEAR WERE 12,000 TONS OF CORNED BEEF AND 5,000 TONS OF ARMY RATIONS, HE SAID.

VIDART SAID THE URUGUAYAN GOVERNMENT ALREADY HAD INSTRUCTED ITS REPRESENTATIVES IN LONDON TO AGREE TO TERMS OF THE CONTRACT. THIS MEANS URUGUAY WILL SELL TO BRITAIN FOR THE ALLIES, 25,000 TONS OF FROZEN BEEF, 20,000 TONS OF CORNED BEEF, 1,400 TONS OF DEHYDRATED BEEF AND 18,000 TONS OF ARMY RATIONS OF THREE DIFFERENT TYPES--HOTPACKS WHICH INCLUDE MEAT, VEGETABLES AND NOODLES, STEAK, AND STEAK AND KIDNEY PUDDING.

PRICES UNDER THE CONTRACT HE SAID AVERAGE 5 13/16 CENTS A POUND, AN INCREASE OF SLIGHTLY LESS THAN $6 A TON OVER PRICES IN THE PREVIOUS CONTRACT.

THE RCAF MADE NO SPECIFIC CLAIM TO SINKING OR DAMAGING ANY OF THE SUBMARINES IN THE SIX ENGAGEMENTS BUT DESCRIBED ONE FORAY--DELIVERED BY FLIGHT LT.REG INGRAMS OF MONTREAL--AS A "PERFECT ATTACK." INGRAMS POPPED OUT OF CLOUDS AND CAUGHT HIS U-BOAT BY SURPRISE.

THE VIGOR OF THE SUBMARINES' DEFENSE AGAINST THE CANADIAN LIBERATOR BOMBERS, HOWEVER, WAS EVIDENCED IN THE FACT THAT ONE AIRCRAFT RETURNED TO BASE WITH A MOTOR DISABLED BY GUNFIRE, AND FLAK HOLES THROUGH WINGS, TAIL AND FUSELAGE, AND ONE OF ITS CREW SLIGHTLY WOUNDED.

THE CANADIAN PLANES WERE PROTECTING A CONVOY. THE RCAF DID NOT ANNOUNCE WHETHER ANY OF THE CONVOY VESSELS WERE LOST.

THE RCAF REPORTED EVERY SUBMARINE ATTACKED BY ITS LIBERATORS REMAINED "ON THE SURFACE AND ATTEMPTED TO BATTLE IT OUT WITH THE ATTACKERS," WHO WERE MET "BY A FIERCE CURTAIN OF ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE."

OTTAWA, SEPT 28-(AP)-SUSPENSION OF WHEAT TRADING ON THE WINNIPEG GRAIN EXCHANGE WAS ANNOUNCED TODAY BY CANADIAN TRADE MINISTER J.A. MACKINNON.

MACKINNON SAID THE CANADIAN WHEAT BOARD WAS TAKING OVER AT MONDAY'S CLOSING PRICES AND UNTIL THE BOARD HAD COMPLETED THE NECESSARY ARRANGEMENTS THE CLOSING OUT OF FUTURE CONTRACTS WOULD BE AT THOSE PRICES.

THE BOARD'S INITIAL PAYMENT TO PRODUCERS ON AUTHORIZED DELIVERIES BEGINNING TODAY AND FOR THE REMAINDER OF THE CROP YEAR 1943-44 AND FOR THE FULL CROP YEAR 1944-45 WILL BE $1.25 PER BUSHEL, BASIS NO.1 NORTHERN WHEAT, IN STORE AT FORT WILLIAM, PORT ARTHUR, OR VANCOUVER.

THE MINISTER SAID THE CHANGE IN WHEAT POLICY WAS NECESSARY BECAUSE OF THE UNUSUAL CIRCUMSTANCES SURROUNDING THE MARKETING OF CANADIAN WHEAT UNDER PRESENT CONDITIONS.

"IN PLACING CONTROL OF THE PURCHASE AND SALE OF CANADIAN WHEAT IN THE HANDS OF THE WHEAT BOARD IT WILL BE POSSIBLE TO DEAL WITH CURRENT AND FUTURE MARKETING PROBLEMS ON A BASIS MORE SUITABLE TO WAR CONDITIONS," THE ANNOUNCEMENT SAID.

TRANSPORTATION DIFFICULTIES HAD INTERFERED WITH THE NORMAL FUNCTION OF THE WINNIPEG MARKET AND FARMERS HAD BEEN UNABLE TO BENEFIT FULLY FROM THE RISING PRICES.

"UNDER THIS NEW ARRANGEMENT THE GOVERNMENT INTENDS TO MEET REQUIREMENTS UNDER THE MUTUAL AID PLAN AND TO PROVIDE WHEAT TO SUBSIDIZED DOMESTIC PURCHASERS OUT OF GOVERNMENT-OWNED WHEAT, RATHER THAN OUT OF WHEAT IN WHICH THE FARMER HAS A PARTICIPATING INTEREST," THE STATEMENT CONTINUED.

"THE GOVERNMENT WILL THUS BE ABLE TO AVOID THE POSITION OF BEING BOTH THE FARMERS' AGENT AND, IN EFFECT, THE ULTIMATE BUYER OF THE WHEAT.

"OTHER EXPORT SALES, INCLUDING SALES TO THE UNITED STATES, WILL BE MADE OUT OF WHEAT DELIVERED TO THE BOARD DURING THE 1943-44 AND 1944-4 CROP YEARS IN WHICH THE PRODUCERS HAVE A PARTICIPATING INTEREST."

ANNOUNCEMENT OF SUSPENSION CAME AT A TIME WHEN PRICES ON THE WINNIPEG MARKET HAD REACHED THE HIGHEST LEVEL IN SIX YEARS--$1.20 3/4 CENTS A BUSHEL.

INCREASED EXPORT DEMAND, WITH THE UNITED STATES AND THE UNITED KINGDOM THE BIG CUSTOMERS, SENT WHEAT ON THE OPEN MARKET SOARING 30 CENTS A BUSHEL OVER THE FORMER 90-CENTS-A-BUSHEL INITIAL PRICE IN LESS THAN NINE MONTHS.

TALK OF $1.25 WHEAT BECAME COMMON MANY WEEKS AGO IN GRAIN CIRCLES IN WESTERN CANADA WHILE FARMER ORGANIZATIONS HAVE CONTINUALLY URGED A HIGHER INITIAL PAYMENT FOR THEIR WHEAT.

(IN CHICAGO, SUSPENSION OF TRADING IN WHEAT FUTURES AT WINNIPEG CAME AS A "DISTINCT SHOCK" TO TRADERS IN GRAIN. WHILE THERE HAD BEEN RUMORS SUCH ACTION MIGHT BE TAKEN BY THE DOMINION GOVERNMENT, PRIVATE WIRES TO CHICAGO GRAIN FIRMS FROM THEIR WINNIPEG REPRESENTATIVES HAD DENIED THEM AS "POLITICAL PROPAGANDA."

(THE MOST DRASTIC ACTION WHICH CHICAGO TRADERS THOUGHT POSSIBLE, AFTER LAST WEEK'S BREAK OF THREE CENTS A BUSHEL, WAS THE ESTABLISHMENT OF A CEILING, PERMITTING TRADING BELOW OR AT THAT MAXIMUM. CHICAGO GRAIN MEN UNDERSTOOD, IT WAS SAID, THAT THE UNITED KINGDOM, A HEAVY BUYER OF CANADIAN WHEAT, HAD FAVORED THE CONTINUANCE OF WHEAT FUTURES TRADING.)

PREMIER BADOGLIO'S SEEMING DESIRE TO BRING HIS ITALIAN GOVERNMENT IN ON THE SIDE OF THE UNITED NATIONS AS AN ALLY IS CAUSING SOME RESENTMENT AMONG AMERICAN AND BRITISH SOLDIERS AS WELL AS ON THE PART OF OFFICERS OF THE AMG (ALLIED MILITARY GOVERNMENT OF OCCUPIED TERRITORIES).

"IT WOULDN'T BE SURPRISING," REPORTS EDWARD KENNEDY, ASSOCIATED PRESS WAR CORRESPONDENT IN ITALY," IF PREMIER BADOGLIO ISSUED A DECLARATION OF WAR ON GERMANY AS A MEANS OF GETTING INTO THE WINNING CAMP AND SALVAGING SOMETHING IN THE POST-WAR SETTLEMENT.

"THE IDEA OF ACCEPTING THE ITALIANS AS 'ALLIES' HOWEVER, IS REPUGNANT TO MANY OF THE TROOPS, WHO THOUGHT THEY HAD DEFEATED THE ITALIANS ONCE AND FOR ALL AND NOW FIND IT STRANGE TO HAVE ITALIANS IN CHARGE OF CIVIL ADMINISTRATION HERE AND ISSUING DECREES WHICH INDIRECTLY AFFECT THE ALLIED FORCES. OFFICERS OF THE AMG WHO CAME HERE TO ADMINISTER THE COUNTRY HAVE FOUND THEIR ORGANIZATION SIDE-TRACKED WHILE ITALIANS CONTROL THE CIVIL POWER, AND THEY ARE RESENTFUL OF THE SITUATION."

WELL, IT'S EASY TO UNDERSTAND THAT FEELING. MAYBE, TOO, IT'S A GOOD THING THIS HAS CROPPED UP NOW, BECAUSE WE ARE GOING TO HAVE OTHER DEFEATED COUNTRIES TO DEAL WITH BEFORE LONG AND IT'S IMPORTANT THAT WE ADJUST OUR MINDS TO THE COMMON-SENSE WAY OF HANDLING THESE SITUATIONS. TAKE THE CASE OF ITALY:

THE ALLIED OBJECTIVES HAVE CALLED FOR UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER, WIPING OUT OF FASCISM, PUNISHMENT OF MUSSOLINI AND HIS GANG, DISARMAMENT, DEPRIVING ITALY OF HER ILL-GOT EMPIRE AND RETURNING ITS COMPONENT PARTS TO RIGHTFUL SOVEREIGNTY, MILITARY OCCUPATION OF ITALY AND AMG ADMINISTRATION UNTIL SUCH TIME AS THE PEOPLE CAN CHOOSE A LEGITIMATE GOVERNMENT OF THEIR OWN. WE SWORE TO DO ALL THIS WITH FIRMNESS,

ADMINISTRATION UNTIL SUCH TIME AS THE PEOPLE CAN CHOOSE A LEGITIMAT GOVERNMENT OF THEIR OWN. WE SWORE TO DO ALL THIS WITH FIRMNESS,

AND THERE'S NO INDICATION WE'VE WEAKENED.

BRITISH PREMIER CHURCHILL LAST WEEK GAVE US A SIGNIFICANT GLIMPSE OF ALLIED DETERMINATION TO RID THE WORLD OF GANGSTERISM WHEN HE TOLD WITH GRIM BREVITY HOW IT HAPPENED THAT NAZI PARACHUTISTS WERE ABLE TO RESCUE MUSSOLINI. THE ITALIAN CARIBINIERI WHO WERE GUARDING THE EX-DICTATOR FAILED TO CARRY OUT THEIR ORDERS TO SHOOT HIM IF ANY DELIVERY WERE ATTEMPTED. THAT'S TO SAY, THE DUCE WAS TO BE EXECUTED ON THE SPOT IF THERE WAS DANGER OF HIS ESCAING ALLIED JUSTICE.

30.24-8907

WE SHALL GET HIM AGAIN, JUST AS WE SHALL GET HITLER AND TOJO--DEAD OR ALIVE--AND ALL THEIR HENCHMEN. THEN PUNISHMENT WILL BE EXACTED, AND IT WON'T BE TEA AND CAKES.

WHAT WE HAVE TO REMEMBER ABOUT ITALY, HOWEVER, BEFORE WE GET INDIGNANT OVER THE TREND OF AFFAIRS, IS THAT WHILE THE GOVERNMENT CAPITULATED, THIS DIDN'T END THE WAR ON THE PENINSULA BY A LONG SHOT. WE STILL HAVE TO WREST THE COUNTRY FROM THE GERMANS.

IN THESE CIRCUMSTANCES ONE WOULD EXPECT THE OCCUPIED PORTIONS TO CONTINUE UNDER MILITARY RULE, THEREBY PERHAPS DELAYING THE ESTABLISHMENT OF AMG. IT ISN'T SURPRISING EITHER THAT THE ALLIES ARE ENCOURAGING THE ITALIANS TO FIGHT THE GERMANS. THAT DOESN'T MEAN THE ITALIANS ARE BEING INVITED TO BECOME OUR ALLIES; THEY'RE BEING INVITED TO HELP THEMSELVES. THEY STILL MUST TAKE THEIR PUNISHMENT.

HOWEVER, WHEN WE HAVE DEALT WITH MUSSO--IMPRISONED HIM, HANGED HIM, OR COMPELLED HIM TO LISTEN CONTINUALLY TO PHONOGRAPH RECORDS OF HIS OWN BOMBASTIC SPEECHES, AS A COLLEAGUE OF MINE SUGGESTS--AND WHEN WE HAVE CARRIED OUT THE OTHER ANNOUNCED ALLIED AIMS, HOW MUCH FURTHER WOULD THE AVERAGE AMERICAN WANT TO GO IN THE WAY OF RETRIBUTION? NOT A GREAT WAY, I'LL GAMBLE.

THE ALLIED LEADERS HAVE MADE IT CLEAR THAT THERE'S NO INTENTION OF CRUSHING THE ITALIAN PEOPLE BUT, ON THE CONTRARY, OF HELPING THEM GET A FRESH START. IT STRIKES ME AS HIGHLY IMPORTANT THAT THIS BE EMPHASIZED, AND CERTAINLY THAT WE DON'T ALLOW OURSELVES TO BE SENT OFF ON SOME EMOTIONAL TANGENT.

WE'VE GOT TO BE TOUGH, BUT WE DON'T HAVE TO TRY TO BE TOUGHER THAN WE ARE BY NATURE. OTHER AXIS NATIONS ARE WATCHING ITALY. NO COUNTRY WILL SURRENDER IF IT BELIEVES IT'S GOING TO BE SNALVED, AS THE PEOPLE OF GERMANY, FOR EXAMPLE, ARE BEING TOLD BY HITLER AND GOEBBELS.

ANYWAY, ALL ARGUMENTS NOTWITHSTANDING, WE'LL PROBABLY BE SMART TO LET THE VERY CAPABLE GENERAL IKE EISENHOWER HAVE A FLING AT RUNNING HIS OWN JOB.

Allied Headquarters Looks for Troop Entry at Any Moment.

BIG NAVAL BASE CAPTURED

NORTHWARD

U. S. and British Forces Race Across Plain After Breaking Through Mountain Ring.

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Sept. 29 (A. P.).—The Fifth Army has driven the Germans from their last mountain positions above Salerno and is pursuing the enemy on the plain within a few miles of Naples, the fall of which appeared imminent today. At Allied Headquarters an entry into the city was expected at any moment.

The Germans routed out of the mountain strongholds in six days of heavy fighting were in general retreat, leaving the Allies in complete possession of the Sorrento Peninsula, which separates the Bay of Naples from the Gulf of Salerno.

American and British troops under Lieut.-Gen Mark W. Clark began the final attack on the enemy's extremely strong mountain positions at dawn yesterday and by noon had captured Nocera, vital road center at the entrance to the coastal plain that leads to Naples.

[At London today the authoritative British Press Association said that Fifth Army forces at the foot of Mount Vesuvius had entered Pompeii, only thirteen miles from the heart of Naples. In a broadcast picked up at New York today by NBC, the British radio announced the capture of San Angelo, which is due east of Avellino.]

Big Naval Base Is Captured.

Castellammare, the great naval base on the south shore of the Bay of Naples, also fell quickly into Allied hands as the Germans withdrew in a flight that may not cease until they reach the River Volturno, well north of Naples.

The breakdown on the extreme western end of the front, extending across Italy from coast to coast, was accompanied by a general advance along the entire Fifth and Eighth Army line. American troops on the Fifth Army's right flank smashed their way six miles northward against crumbling enemy opposition and were within seven miles of Avellino, road and railway junction which is the key to inland communications east of Naples.

The capture of Avellino would constitute a threat to any German effort to make a new stand anywhere east or south of Naples.

Turn Tide in Furious Struggle.

British troops on the extreme southwest end of the Allied front began the final shove against the enemy in the mountain line north and northwest of Salerno and encountered the bitterest kind of fighting at the town of Sala which had previously changed hands many times in the past few weeks of furious struggle. This time the British captured it for good and swept on triumphantly. The Germans, realizing that any further attempt to make a stand in that area was futile, began to retreat.

Reports from the front emphasized that the enemy's retreat was orderly, and there was no suggestion that the Allies were taking any large numbers of prisoners. The Germans appear to have realized far ahead of time that they must ultimately yield before the sledge-hammer blows of the Allies, and accordingly to have made plans well in advance for such a swift retreat.

The British Eighth Army under Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery meanwhile wiped out the deep salient on its western flank, previously reported, and established a straight line between San Angelo and Malfi, while along the Adriatic these forces stormed northward from Margherita di Savoia and occupied the town of Zappanetta on the Gulf of Manfredonia, due east of the great Foggia air base.

Today's communique noted that the aerial offensive against troop concentrations and supply lines of the retreating Germans was hampered by bad weather. Some Allied squadrons, however, carried out offensive patrols, encountered a few enemy fighters and shot down one of them. Fighters and fighter-bombers attacked a train and a small motor transport convoy, the communique added, while other Allied airmen continued to patrol the battle area. No Allied planes were lost.

Women and Children Are Machine-gunned by Hitler's Troops.

FLEEING BOATS ARE FIRED ON

Many Persons Shot to Death in Streets—City Has Become One of Horrors.

SEP 29 1943

By DON WHITEHEAD.

With the United States Navy in the Gulf of Salerno, Sept. 26 (Delayed) (A. P.).—The once beautiful port of Naples is now a ravaged city of horrors. Desperate German troops—ruling the tortured city by terrorism—are spreading destruction, machine-gunning women and children and forcing soldiers and civilians alike into slave labor battalions with death for those who refuse.

This is the story brought from Naples by terrified refugees who escaped in fishing boats, risking drowning at sea rather than face the fury of their one-time Allies. Many of the refugees were not so lucky. The Germans tossed hand grenades into their boats as they attempted to slip away from the harbor or machine-gunned the frail craft.

The apparent aim of the Germans, infuriated by the Italian armistice with the United Nations on the eve of invasion, is to wreak vengeance on the Italian people and to destroy Naples as much as possible so that nothing of value remains when Allied troops take the city.

The port is rapidly becoming a shambles, refugees say, and harbor facilities are being blasted and burned day and night. Ships are being sunk in an effort to block the harbor entrances and the waters are mined to delay the Navy's making use of the harbor as a supply base.

Volcano's Smoke Dwarfed.

Great clouds of smoke drift over the city and make the smoke pouring from Vesuvius seem a puny effort. The rumble of demolitions is plainly audible on the Island of Capri, which is becoming a haven for hundreds of refugees.

One refugee, who asked that his name be withheld for fear of reprisals against his relatives held by the Germans, told this story:

"There are many bodies of dead Italians lying in the streets of Naples. Some of them were shot down for no reason except that they were walking the streets. I saw a German shoot an Italian soldier who still had a rifle. A young man ran to pick up the rifle and he was killed too. I saw a German soldier flip a cigarette butt into the street. A youth stooped to pick it up and he was shot. There is an absolute reign of terror existing. Food stores are being looted and the people are starving in their homes, afraid to come out on the street.

"The Germans are forcing every able bodied man to 'volunteer' for labor battalions. They are taking them north as pioneer troops and perhaps to force them to work in German factories. These people are becoming nothing more than slave laborers.

"A few days after the armistice some of our troops fought the Germans in Naples. But they had little ammunition, since the Germans controlled the supplies. The Germans soon overpowered them."

Nazis Wield Torch.

Allied bombings smashed most of the harbor facilities, sank many ships in the gulf and alongside docks and battered the railway terminals. What the planes did not destroy the Germans are trying to finish and from all reports they are setting the torch to many non-military buildings such as the Naples Opera House.

Great fires are burning in the southern part of the city where the Germans blasted a torpedo factory, the military arsenal, gas works, engineering works and many oil storage centers around the railway yards.

Obviously Naples' primary value to the Allies is in its large harbor. Since the invasion, all troops, armor, guns and supplies have been moved across the beaches in the Gulf of Salerno by shallow draft amphibious operations vessels. Once Naples harbor is seized, deep draft vessels can unload cargoes at the docks, speeding up the flow of supplies and material to the Army.

The food situation in Naples is acute. No supplies are moving into the metropolis from the farms, where there are abundant harvests of grapes, apples, peaches, nuts and vegetables.

Disease is rife among the malnourished people to increase the fear and misery. Many refugees arriving at Capri are being segregated for fear disease will spread to the little playground island. The influx of 100 to 200 persons each day is putting a strain on Capri's slender food resources. The refugees arrive with only small bundles of valuables, fifteen or twenty persons crowded into a small boat. Fortunately the waters in the gulf have been placid or many of the boats would have capsized while crossing to Capri.

Many Italians in civilian clothes are escaping from Naples through the mountains, slipping through the German lines and trudging along dusty roads to the south, trying to hitch rides on Army vehicles. Some of them are Sicilians trying to make their way home from points as far north as Genoa and La Spezia.

RETREAT IS ORDERLY

Germans Move Rapidly from Port with Americans in Hot Pursuit.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 29—(AP) The American Fifth army raced tonight within a few miles of ravaged Naples and was expected to enter the terrorized city at any moment after driving the Germans into full flight across the coastal plains near Mt. Vesuvius with strong armored forces.

Castellammare, the naval base 15 miles from Naples, and the whole Sorrento peninsula flanking the Bay of Naples to the south, were in Allied hands.

(In a broadcast from London, Elmer Peterson of N.B.C. said the Allied armies should be entering Naples by tomorrow.

(The German-controlled Paris radio said the British fleet had approached the Gulf of Naples. Units of the fleet, the batteries of which can be expected to assist ground forces in the final push, have been patrolling the gulf area for several days.)

The stout mountain defenses north of Salerno, in which the Germans for six days gave ground grudgingly in the face of continuous attacks, sagged suddenly early yesterday and then vanished, headquarters announced today.

The victorious army of Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark then rolled down on the Naples plains. He threw into battle his tanks and mobile artillery, which had been almost useless in the past week of mountain fighting.

He was racing tonight for the smoking and exploding city of 925,000—the first even approaching that size in all the vast areas of Africa, Sicily and Italy already wrested from the Nazis. Rome and Milan are two only larger Italian cities.

Nazi Retreat Orderly

The Germans were in swift, orderly retreat which may not end until they reach the Volturno river line, 20 miles north of Naples and almost due west of the great Foggia air center across the peninsula, which fell with its 13 virtually intact air fields Monday.

"The enemy's defensive ring around Naples is broken," a military spokesman declared emphatically.

(The British Press association said the Allies had entered Pompeii, the city at the foot of Vesuvius 12 miles southeast of Naples, which the volcano destroyed in 79 A.D.

(The German radio acknowledged that Castel San Giorgio and Barcnissi, 23 and 24 miles southeast of Naples, had been evacuated and that American reinforcements had landed. The German communique said that, despite continuous rain and "difficult road conditions, our own movements took their anticipated course.")

The crackup of German resistance was accompanied by sharp gains by American troops farther inland and by the British Eighth army near the Adriatic coast.

British Erase Salient

The British wiped out a deep salient in the mountainous center, establishing a straight line between San Angelo, 45 miles east of Naples, and captured Melfi, 17 miles farther east. (Radio Algiers said San Angelo was captured.)

Along the Adriatic, the British drove without substantial opposition 12 miles north of Margherita di Savoia and occupied the fishing port of Zapponeto on the Gulf of Manfredonia, due east of Foggia.

The final, decisive drive against the German mountain defenses south of Naples opened at dawn yesterday in a heavy rainstorm after almost a week of violent fighting, much of it hand-to-hand. By noon Tuesday, Gen. Clark's men had captured Nocera, road center on the edge of the Naples plains 19 miles southeast of Naples and six miles below Vesuvius.

Hot Pursuit

Castellammare, a city of 45,000 with naval facilities capable of handling 330-foot ships, fell quickly. The Allies were hotly pursuing the enemy at nightfall. Official reports did not specify how far beyond Nocera the advance had extended.

The military spokesman declined tonight to predict when Naples actually would fall. His caution was inspired by his recollection that Allied troops once were within 11 miles of Tunis five months before that city finally surrendered. A similar delay of weeks occurred south of Catania in Sicily.

Nevertheless, news of the Fifth army's entry into Naples was expected here at any moment.

The breakthrough was at the extreme western end of the front, north and northwest of Salerno.

The bitterest fighting was at Sala which already had changed hands many times in the past week of furious battle. This time, the British and American troops of Gen. Clark's command seized it firmly and swept triumphantly on toward Naples -- a city of horror where refugees said the Nazis were machine-gunning women and childern and forcing soldiers and civilians alike into slave labor battalions, killing those who refused.

Smoke Envelops City

The acrid smoke of wanton destruction filled the noses of the advancing Fifth army troops. Great clouds of smoke enveloped Naples and made the smoke pouring from Vesuvius puny by comparison. The rumble of demolitions was plainly audible from the isle of Capri. The great port of Naples, second only to Genoa in Italy, rapidly was becoming a shambles. Explosions ripped the waterfront day and night and ships still were being sunk to block harbor entrances.

"The stories out of Naples confirm that the enemy is not intending to hold the city, and the way he is making a shambles of it indicates he doesn't ever intend to return," the military spokesman said. "Reports from the front indicate the enemy's withdrawal is orderly and there is no suggestion of our taking large numbers of prisoners."

The Germans appeared to realize well in advance that they must yield ultimately, and accordingly Marshall Albert Kesselring had his plans for swift retreat.

Clark Capitalized Quickly

Gen. Clark quickly capitalized on the break at Sala and on German efforts to extricate their troops. Allied armor, which has been virtually useless in the rugged mountain fighting, moved forward onto the Naples plains below to exploit the situation. A tank thrust took Nocera and armored and foot troops swiftly pushed the Allied line to the Bay of Naples and drove steadily in pursuit of the fleeing foe.

The only effective defense positions which the Germans could possibly employ between the charging Allies and Naples appeared to be the slopes of Vesuvius. Even these positions appeared untenable because the Allies were in position to drive onward on both sides of the mountain, the world's most famous active volcano.

There was nothing to indicate that the enemy intended to risk a major stand anywhere near Vesuvius. Instead, there was every sign that Marshal Kesselring had completed all preparations to abandon the wrecked city, where for days his troops had been systematically destroying every installation of possible value to the Allies.

U. S. troops on the Fifth army right flank advanced six miles north against the crumbling German lines and last were reported within seven miles of Avellino, the junction 25 miles east of Naples and back door to the port city.

Both south and east of Naples, the Germans fought back vigorously until the last minute before retreating.

Every Bridge Blasted

"Every bridge, every culvert and every road junction was blown up to slow down our advance," the spokesman said.

For the third successive day, air activity was at a low level as bad weather grounded the predominant Allied aerial armada. Only fighters and fighter-bombers got off the ground and they attacked a train and a small motor convoy. A few Nazi planes were sighted and one was destroyed. Middle East bombers attacked Greek airdromes, the port of Syros and landing strips in the Aegean. The Germans raided Coo in the Dodecanese.

On the Eighth Army front in central and Adriatic Italy, the spokesman said German parachute troops were captured who "complained bitterly that their only job was to fight rear-guard actions. One said there were only seventeen men left in his company as the result of recent fighting."

Matter Of Reinforcements

Although the enemy appeared to be beating toward the Volturno river, the Fifth Army may not be in a position to continue its heavy pressure far north of Naples until supplies and reinforcements can be brought up.

Since the first landings, Clark has depended upon reinforcements, tanks, guns, ammunition, food and other paraphernalia of modern warfare landed by shallow-draft craft on the beaches. These were loaded on trucks and transported to the front over roads which in many places had been rendered almost impassable by demolitions.

20 Days After First Landing

The breach in the Naples defenses culminated twenty days of savage battle started when Clark's army first landed in the Salerno area.

The first troops who waded ashore included an American Ranger battalion, which immediately swarmed into the hills just west, northwest and north of Salerno to seize positions protecting the Fifth Army's left flank.

As a result of that swift action, Salerno and the surrounding hills to the west and north were held with a comparatively small force during the furious and prolonged battle farther east and southeast, where the Germans, with tank support, swarmed onto the Salerno plain and tried vainly to drive the Allies into the sea.

It was only when that phase of the battle was won that Clark was able to begin the arduous drive northward toward his announced objectives of Naples, Rome, the northern Italian cities and all the nation itself.

On the basis of the latest announced places seized by the two Allies armies, the battle line extended from Castellammare on the south shore of the Bay of Naples northeast through Nocera and Montemarano to Tarella. From there the front dips slightly to the southeast to San Angelo, thence east to Melfi.

NAZIS WRECK OWN AIRCRAFT

Runways Of Airfield Near Naples Mined Before Planes Could Take Off

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Sept. 29—Fearful of an Allied break-through to Naples, the Germans mined the runways at the Capodichino airfield three miles north of the city even before their own serviceable planes were able to take off, an Italian air officer who escaped from the city said today.

This officer told Allied air officials that as a result of this action "there are dozens of machines—giant six-engined Messerschmitt 323 transports, many Junkers 52's, Junkers 88's and Messerschmitt 110's at Capodichino."

Scrap Heap Of Nazi Planes

"The ground is holed with craters which the Germans have not attempted to fill in. They preferred to burn the remaining aircraft," he added.

At the even larger and better equipped Pomigliano airport twelve miles northeast of Naples, this report continued, "many German aircraft have been caught on the ground by our bombs, and the perimeter is a regular scrap heap of German aircraft and wrecked engines and fuselages."

Germans Destroy Factories

At both fields the hangars are gutted and the Alfa-Romeo factory near Pomigliano where the Daimler-Benz and other airplane and auto engines once were produced for both the German and Italian armies also is in ruins.

The Italian officer reported that a number of Italian aircraft works had been placed in tunnels under Naples and therefore had escaped damage from Allied bombings. He said that these had been demolished by the Germans and that the Germans were destroying other factories, including those manufacturing clothing and cosmetics.

Nazis Admit Setback.

London, Sept. 29 (A. P.).—The Berlin radio said today that German troops had evacuated several towns and villages northeast of Naples, but two towns named in the broadcast are southeast of Naples. These were Castel San Giorgio, three miles east of Nocera, and Baronissi, five miles north of Salerno.

Berlin also reported that American reinforcements had arrived in the Salerno sector and that an Allied attack had been launched on the road leading from Vietri, on the Sorrento Peninsula, to the northwest. The Germans said that in the sector northeast of Naples their troops had withdrawn to shortened positions in the mountains and had evacuated Montoro and other towns after destroying all military installations. Montoro is about eleven miles north of Salerno and due east of Naples.

BRITISH FIGHT ALL DAY LONG FOR ONE TOWN

Advance Units Breeze Through Another In Drive Toward Naples

By RELMAN MORIN
[Associated Press Correspondent]

With the Fifth Army in Italy, Sept. 28 (Delayed)—The Fifth Army advanced through mountain defenses today and reached the plains of Naples with armored forces which can be employed in the drive on Naples itself.

We were with the most advanced British units when they took two important towns.

Bitter Fight For Second Town

They breezed right through the first. The Germans had been badly manhandled, prisoners said, and they pulled out without leaving their usual rear guards.

There was a bitter day-long fight for the second.

In taking the second town, the British fought their way forward street by street. The Germans had left at least one tank, a sizable group of self-propelled guns, some anti-tank artillery and machine gunners to hold the place.

Germans Take Stand At Bridge

Taking full advantage of the narrow, winding streets, the Germans solidly covered the approaches of the bridge spanning the river that splits the town in half.

Artillery, mortars and daring tommy-gun squads cleaned out most of the Nazi nests by early afternoon. But an equally daring German tank crew delayed the further advance of the British for several hours by covering a turn in the only road leading out of town.

The German tank's guns were locked squarely on the curve and fired whenever anything attempted to nose around it. For a while, we stood at the corner and watched mortar shells explode all over the Nazi position.

Four American correspondents crossed the street, running forward a few seconds before the tank opened fire at an armored vehicle and blew the entire corner to pieces.

British flanking parties, meanwhile, however, were moving into position on the sides of the tank for the kill.

GERMANS PINNED TO TIP OF CORSICA

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Sept. 29 (A. P.).—The Germans are now holding only a fifteen-mile strip along the east coast of Corsica, in the Bastia-Borgo-Folelli area, the French High Command announced today. The Nazis had speeded up their retreat from the strategic Mediterranean island, evacuating the mountainous area between Corte and the sea. Piedicroce, an important center of enemy resistance, was captured yesterday, the communique added.

GERMANS LOSE LAST BASE EAST OF THE DNIEPER

Russians Trap Many Troops by Capture of Escape Gap at Kremenchug.

NAZIS MOUNT COUNTER-BLOW

Reds Still Gain in White Russia —Menace Railway Network West of Smolensk.

London, Sept. 29 (A. P.).—The Russians have captured the town of Kremenchug, the last great German stronghold on the east bank of the middle Dnieper River, between Kiev and Dnepropetrovsk, the Moscow radio announced today.

The Russians thus closed the last escape gap for the German forces below Poltava. Both railroads from the Poltava region to Kremenchug had already been cut and many German troops were reported inclosed in the pocket.

The broadcast, picked up by the Soviet monitor here, quoted an Order of the Day issued by Premier Joseph Stalin.

Nazis Launch Counter-Blows.

Moscow, Sept. 29 (A. P.).—Unleashing concentrations of troops and tanks in the battle for the Dnieper River, the Germans counter-attacked strongly today in a bid to maintain their bridgeheads on the eastern bank.

Front line dispatches said the enemy, holding favorable positions, was launching ten to twelve counter-attacks daily with powerful air support. The Communist Party newspaper Pravda reported that at one point a Red Army was put in a "critical situation" at one time, but Soviet artillery came to its relief.

A sharp new Red Army advance was reported in White Russia where dispatches said a considerable area was occupied in the Gomel and Mogilev sectors. After the northern part of Chernigov Province had been cleared of the enemy the Russians moved north along the Unecha-Krichev railroad toward Mogilev.

Battle on Lower Dnieper.

No further progress was reported immediately in the direction of Zaporozhe and Dnepropetrovsk, two major objectives on the lower Dnieper.

Zaporozhe lies on the east bank of the Dnieper behind a solid ring of fortifications. The main part of Dnepropetrovsk, the suburbs of which already have been reached, lies on the west bank.

[Red Star reported today that a big battle is now in progress in the outskirts of Zaporozhe, BBC stated in a broadcast heard by NBC.

[Today's German communique, as broadcast by Berlin, said German troops, engaged in heavy defensive fighting on the Dnieper war front, lost ground temporarily yesterday, but wiped out their losses with counter-attacks. The communique added Russians attacks at several points on the west bank of the central Dnieper were frustrated. It reported Russian bombers raided Constanta, Rumanian Black Sea port.

[Russian artillery is reported to be shelling Gomel, BBC reported today. Correspondents say that advanced Russian forces are clashing with German detachments about eight miles southeast of the town," added the broadcast recorded by CBS.]

Towns Taken in White Russia.

In the White Russia sector Krichev, sixty miles southeast of Mogilev, came under direct attack from the Russians.

Occupation of Krichev would cut a knot of five strategic railroads.

The Germans put up a stiff fight before Krichev, attempting to hold the key to Mogilev. They also battled stubbornly in the Nosovichi sector, just southeast of Gomel.

Red Star, the Army newspaper, said the enemy launched several strong counter-attacks with infantry, tanks, motorized guns, in the Nosovichi sector, but was repulsed and forced to retreat anew.

NAZI STRONGHOLD SEIZED BY REDS IN WHITE RUSSIA

Russians Take Rudnya, Pierce Within 110 Miles of Old Polish Border.

KIEV FORT IS TAKEN

Russians Overpower Enemy at Bridgehead Defenses of Ukraine Capital.

LONDON, Thursday, Sept. 30—(AP) Flying Soviet columns, more than 400 miles apart, have pierced within 110 miles of the old Polish border in the north and 210 miles of the Rumanian frontier in the south while a third drive rolled into a Dnieper river island little more than a quarter-mile from the gun-studded hills of Kiev, Moscow announced today.

In the north the Red army advanced half-way from Smolensk to Vitebsk by capturing the town of Rudnya on the 80-mile railway line between these two cities. Despite rain-soaked roads the Soviet forces advanced more than nine miles, killing 1,000 Germans, capturing much war material and occupying 120 towns and hamlets.

Premier Marshal Josef Stalin, in one of two orders of the day, called Rudnya, ten miles from the northern border of White Russia on the rail line that leads to Riga, "a powerful enemy stronghold and a center of communications in the Vitebsk direction."

River Bastion Seized

At Kiev the Russians burst out through German defense lines to capture the bridgehead fortifications of Trukhanov island, a river bastion directly in front of central Kiev. The river is 1,400 feet wide at this point.

In that advance the Russians also captured Darnitsa, nine miles east of Kiev after several days fighting. The communique said they killed more than 6,000 Germans and destroyed 69 tanks and 78 guns. Much booty and many prisoners fell to the victorious Soviet troops.

"Remnants of routed German troops were hurled onto the right (west) bank of the river," it said. "x x x The fighting was for the liquidation of the enemy bridgehead fortifications x x x. Our troops, capturing the enemy bridgehead fortifications in this district, came out directly onto the Dnieper river in front of the town of Kiev."

Kremenchug Seized

The third major gain of the day was the capture of Kremenchug, on the east bank of the Dnieper river between Kiev of Dnepropetrovsk.

After a great three-day battle by eight Soviet divisions and swarms of Soviet fighter planes, the Russians captured the town, Stalin said in one of his orders of the day broadcast by Moscow radio and recorded by the Soviet monitor.

"Remnants of routed German troops were hurled back onto the other side of the Dnieper river. Many trophies were captured," added the Soviet communique, also recorded by the monitor. "The enemy hurled reserves into this district and attempted by all means to hold bridgehead fortifications on the left bank of the Dnieper."

The capture of Kremenchug wiped out one of the last German bridgeheads on the east bank of the mighty river and cut off a large number of Germans pocketed between the river and Poltava.

In two other Soviet advances on White Russia between Smolensk and Kiev, the Red army drove within 12 miles northeast of Gomel and marched on Mogilev and Orsha with the capture of more than 370 towns and villages, it was related.

Reds Reach Sozh River

In the more southerly of these drives, toward Gomel, Vyetka and 170 other towns and villages were declared taken as 600 Germans were killed. In one sector the Red army was said to have reached the Sozh river, but communique had no further explanation. The Sozh runs from Smolensk south past Gomel to the Dnieper.

In the more northerly drive toward Mogilev and Orsha, Soviet troops crossed the Vkhra river, 60 miles east of Orsha, in several places. Goby, 34 miles southeast of Orsha on the branch railroad to Krichev, also was captured.

"The enemy tried to fortify himself on a new defense position but was routed and hurled back by our advance guard detachments," the communique said. "In these engagements our troops killed about 2,000 Germans. More than 200 prisoners were taken."

The capture of Kremenchug was hailed by a Moscow victory salute of 12 salvoes from 124 guns.

Kremenchug is a rail junction 160 miles east of Kiev, 83 miles northwest of Dnepropetrovsk. It is at the east end of the only Dnieper bridge in the area. Its capture opened vistas of outflanking the whole lower Dnieper line if the Soviet troops can cross the river in force.

Crossings Indicated

There were indications that the Soviets had crossed the river, at least with advanced units, for the German high command communique said "new attempts on the enemy's part to gain ground in some places on the middle Dnieper on the western bank failed."

Capt. Ludwig Sertorious, Berlin radio commentator, said "a few enemy nests" remained on the west bank of the Dnieper north of Kiev and said that other attempts in the Kiev sector to move major forces across the Dnieper via islands in mid-river was unsuccesful.

The Russian advances did not come without cost, however, as Moscow dispatches clearly indicated the Germans were by no means routed and were fighting for the river with all their strength.

Big Battles Reported

Furious battles were reported and typical was one sector where as many as ten German tanks, several self-propelled guns and a full regiment of infantry, supported by twenty to thirty planes, counter-attacked individual Red army units. German batteries, firing from the high west bank of the river, backed up the bridgeheads on the east bank.

A German broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press, contended that the Dnieper fighting had become more stable. "Movements on both sides slowed down to such a degree that it seems justifiable to assume that the Dnieper placed certain natural limitations on the movements on both sides."

Gains Admitted

The broadcast also admitted the Russians had gained a strategic height north of Melitopol on the southern end of the Dnieper line.

Dmitri Manuilsky, a member of the Central Executive Committee of the Communist party, in a message to the Red army broadcast by the Moscow radio and recorded by the Soviet monitor, said the Russians had advanced 185 to 250 miles in two months, liberated over 192,500 square miles and tens of millions of Soviet people.

Another Moscow dispatch said the Commissariat of Railway Transport announced that 5,000 miles of railroad lines had been laid in the wake of the advancing Red army since last March. One entire new line was built at the front in a month and an 845-mile line repaired in two weeks.

Limited Reprieve for Italy Likely as Troops Aid Allies

HEISTER

Role as Co-Belligerent Possible; Concessions Hinge on Aid Given.

LONDON, Sept. 29 — (AP) A chance for at least a limited reprieve for Italy from the status of a defeated aggressor nation was seen here tonight following disclosure that Italian ships and troops already are working in the American-British service.

Thus far, it is understood here, Italy definitely has been classed as a defeated enemy, but there is concrete basis for the belief that she will be given an opportunity to alter her status provided she collaborates fully with the Allies.

Whether Italy will be asked actually to declare war on Germany is a question that cannot be answered categorically in London tonight, but such an act was believed possible.

Roll As Co-Belligerent

Edward Kennedy, Associated Press correspondent with the Allied forces in Italy, said in a dispatch received today and dated Sept. 26 that "it now seems possible Italy may be accorded the status of a co-belligerent, and that any concessions she may receive will be measured by the aid she delivers."

This correspondent pointed out, however, that there are difficulties barring granting of "anything even approaching United Nations status."

"One," said Mr. Kennedy, "is the reluctance of the troops who have been fighting the Italians to accept them as Allies."

Prime Minister Churchill said recently that Italy was now "working her passage" and he implied the Allies would determine her future position on the extent of her labors in the coming months.

The question was raised in the London press today whether Italian troops and ships would be allowed to fight for themselves, and if so, whether Italy would be given a seat on the right side of the peace table. One answer is that smaller Italian ships, manned by their own crews, already are sailing in the direct service of the Allies.

Organized Troops Serving

It became known too that organized Italian troops actually are in service behind the lines of the American Fifth and British Eighth armies now pushing up the leg of the Italian boot, performing transport and other work in addition to sharing in sabotage and other such activities behind the German lines.

A number of bomb explosions which have rocked the northern Italian naval base of La Spezia and the northern industrial city of Turin were reported today by Reuters. A third attack by Italians on German sentries also was reported, and the Nazis have threatened mass executions and arrests in reprisal unless the sabotage ceases.

The best information here is that the Badoglio government has been thoroughly advised of the Allied desires and is offering no opposition to these wishes. One of these wishes, stated by Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden in the House of Commons a week ago, was that Marshal Badoglio broaden the base of his government and include all parties that are "anti-Fascist in character."

Mr. Eden added that anyone who "will assist us in the battle against Hitler will be welcome."

It seems here that the armistice terms will be interpreted in the light of Italian collaboration against Germany, and if sufficient help is given, then some of the Italian "trespasses" will be forgiven.

Yugoslavs Battle Nazis On Broad Adriatic Front

LEWIS HAWKINS

German Column Routed in Dalmatia; Trains Are Derailed.

LONDON, Sept. 29.—(AP) The Yugoslav Army of Liberation battled crack German troops over a wide front today, including the Italian city of Trieste, where its troops told of killing "a large number of Nazi soldiers."

The Yugoslav patriots continued successful operations in Montenegro, Herzegovina and the province of Sandzak, said a Yugoslav army communique released through the night, but was forced to evacuate the Adriatic port of Split "to avoid encirclement."

The reoccupation of Split was announced by the Germans yesterday.

The Yugoslav army attacked and routed a strong German column in northern Dalmatia and killed 80 of the Nazis, the communique said, while 63 more were killed in Bosnia when two freight trains and an armored train were derailed. Another score of Germans was killed in Montenegro in a clash near Kolasin.

S. S Troops in Action

The German radio, in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press, told of German SS troops being supported by the regular army in Dalmatia—an apparent confirmation that the operations of Yugoslav patriots had compelled Hitler to send top grade troops into the area. This broadcast said the Italian city of Gorizia, 30 miles northwest of Trieste, as well as Split, were recaptured by the Germans in full-scale battles of encirclement.

The Germans obviously were being kept on the alert in this entire area, both in northern Italy and Yugoslavia. Swiss dispatches said the German-controlled press in northern Italy had published orders directing all members of the Italian Air force, including those demobilized, to report for service with the German Air force.

Bern dispatches said tonight that in the confused period after the Italian armistice, the Germans were able to gain control of most northern Italian cities by using loud speakers to trick the people into believing that great Nazi forces were arriving.

A Budapest dispatch to the Swiss Gazette de Lausanne said that Hungary, now playing an increasingly isolated role in the Balkans, had refused to recognize Benito Mussolini's "Fascist-Republican" government of Italy.

However, a DNB dispatch broadcast tonight by the Berlin radio asserted the Budapest government had extended such recognition today.

From France came fresh evidence today of increasing violence against chief of government Pierre Laval and his Nazi masters, with desperate collaborationists urging still harsher repressive measures against patriots scenting early freedom and trying to prepare the way for their liberators.

Among the French there is a story current now that Laval recently began trying to get himself put in jail by the Germans in order to acquire some kind of martyrdom, but that the Germans refused.

Rural France Revolts

This description of conditions in rural France, where the peasant strength is stirring, was sent through French and German censorship by a correspondent of the Madrid newspaper A. B. C.:

"City halls are attacked and sacked, fields and crops are burned, agricultural machinery is destroyed, tracks are torn up and trains are derailed."

The Belgian news agency in London also reported attacks by Belgian patriots on rail lines in their country.

An Istanbul dispatch said that Konstantin Sbarounas, until recently general secretary in the ministry of finance in the Athens government, told the United States Greek Relief representative in Turkey that if the Allies do not invade Greece and bring the Greeks large-scale relief from starvation and malnutrition before another winter, the Greek race would be threatened with extinction.

Damage Dozen Locomotives in France, Ships Off Holland

LONDON, Sept. 29 (AP).—Royal Air Force Spitfires, Mustangs and Typhoons made low-level attacks today on German land and sea communications and damaged the engines of more than a dozen freight trains in France, it was announced tonight.

Two large coastal vessels were declared seriously damaged by Typhoons off the Netherlands coast. The raiding planes also shot up two other coastal vessels and a collection of tugs, barges, anti-aircraft boats and E-boats, the announcement said. The operations were accomplished without the loss of a plane.

[German-controlled radio stations along the North Sea and the English Channel fell silent on Wednesday night, indicating another Allied air raid on the continent might be in progress. The Federal Communications Commission reported that among the stations which went off the air were those at Bremen; Calais; Hilversum, in the Netherlands, and Kalundborg, Denmark.]

'STALINGRAD PSYCHOSIS' BRINGS HITLER'S IRE

LONDON, Sept. 29 — (AP) Radio France of Algiers, quoting the so-called German "Freedom" station Atlantic, said today that Adolf Hitler had reproached a conference of German marshals and generals for a "Stalingrad psychosis" which he said influenced their strategy.

This broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press, placed the scene of the conference as the headquarters of Field Marshal Fritz Erich Von Mannstein.

Pope Is Reported Resuming Audiences

London, Sept. 29 (A. P.).—The Swiss radio said tonight that Pope Pius XII resumed his usual audiences today at the Vatican City.

Nelson Is Impressed By British War Work

London, Sept. 29 (A. P.).—After a tour of an aircraft factory in the Midlands where Spitfires are being made, Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the American War Production Board, declared:

"There is a great sense of urgency here. That is the message I shall take back to America."

WHITNEY STRAIGHT IN AIR TRANSPORT

London, Sept. 29 (A. P.).—Whitney Straight, American-born R. A. F. ace who escaped from an enemy prison camp after being shot down over France in 1941, now commands an air transport group which operates over the Rabat-Cairo run across North Africa.

The wealthy former auto racing driver only this year was promoted to air commodore. He is 30 years old. It was learned here that he now is at Cairo, where he directs transport aircraft known as "North African Expresses."

Speed of 840 M. P. H. Credited To U. S. Flyer in Emden Fight

By the Associated Press.

A UNITED STATES FIGHTER BASE, SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Sept. 29.—Second Lt. Robert H. Knapp of Norwich, N. Y., was believed today to have achieved a speed of approximately 840 miles per hour in a dive during an air fight over Emden, Germany, last Monday.

If true, Lt. Knapp, pilot of a P-47 Thunderbolt fighter which helped escort Flying Fortresses in a raid on the German city, probably has flown faster than any human being ever has traveled before.

The greatest speed previously officially recorded by the pilot of a fighter plane was that of Col. Cass Hough, also of the 8th Air Force Fighter Command, when he flew a P-47 "more than 780 miles an hour," which is the speed of sound, in a test flight in England last spring.

While flying as wingman to Second Lt. Robert E. Ealey of Arboles, Colo., Lt. Knapp went down with him from 20,000 feet to attack a Focke-Wulf 190.

When his plane achieved a speed so great that the "paint curled on his elevators" and his controls locked, Lt. Knapp thought he was doomed, he reported to fellow-officers of his command. But at 5,000 feet the plane came out of its vertical dive and Lt. Knapp was able to regain control.

Inspection of Lt. Knapp's plane when he returned to his base revealed the peeling of the paint on his elevators, but otherwise there was no evidence of strain or structural damage.

GESTAPO FINDS ITS FACE RED

Stockholm, Sept. 29 (A. P.).—Reports reaching here indicate that the majority of the German people have turned their backs to the Nazi party. There are three factors of direct political significance which are viewed as likely to survive the Nazis—the church, high finance and the army. In the fight for freedom of conscience, the clergy, especially the Catholic Church, has taken the lead.

Such men as Bishops Konrad Preysing and Clemens von Galen have played an important role in fighting Nazism.

All Germany knew, for instance, that Bishop Schulte in Cologne had spoken about "the lie that limps through Germany." He was summoned by the Gestapo to explain what he meant by speaking in that fashion about Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels, who limps. The bishop, indignant, said: "I was thinking about the devil." He was quickly released.

German Tongue Decreed For Nazi-Occupied Italy

At the Swiss-Italian Frontier, Sept. 29 (AP)—The Nazis have commanded that German become the official language in all parts of Italy occupied by them.

A Chiasso dispatch to the Bern newspaper Der Bund said tonight that the Nazi decree was published in the Corriere della Sera, of Milan, and other German-dominated newspapers, advising Italians that any request to Reich authorities must be made in the German language.

This, the dispatch said, was tantamount to declaring German the official tongue.

Meantime, that part of the Italian press controlled by the Germans announced the civil administrations in the provinces of Parma, Piacenza, Reggio and Emilia now were under the direct control of the Nazi armed forces.

Italy's Aid to Allies May Decide Extent Of Concessions

By EDWARD KENNEDY,
Associated Press War Correspondent.

SOMEWHERE IN ITALY, Sept. 26 (Delayed).—The Badoglio government obviously desires recognition as a full-fledged British-American ally and it now seems possible that Italy may be accorded the status of a co-belligerent and that any concessions she may receive will be measured by the aid she delivers.

There have been indications during the last week that Premier Badoglio has been on the verge of declaring war on Germany in an effort to line Italy up with the Allies.

This would be purely an independent action, however, and it is expected that Italy's new war role and her relations with United Nations will be fixed shortly through negotiation.

Troops Reluctant.

Many difficulties lie in the way of granting Italy anything even approaching United Nations status. One is the reluctance of the troops who have been fighting the Italians to accept them as allies—a feeling doubtless shared by a large part of the public in the United States and Britain.

The attitude of Washington and London, on the other hand, seems to be that since the Italians wish sincerely to help in the fight against Germany it is only common sense to make use of them.

(A dispatch from William McGaffin, Associated Press war correspondent in Cairo, reflected a similar viewpoint there. Mr. McGaffin said that British forces which recently occupied Coo and Lero Islands in the Dodecanese had accepted the Italians as "co-belligerents" on the grounds that the Allies' first task is to kill Germans and that to accomplish this they should use every weapon and means at their command.)

Might Help Behind Lines.

How much Italy can help to wage war on Germany is, of course, a question. Her capacity to help may be limited mainly to behind-the-lines assistance to the British and American Armies, but having the Italians with us might simplify our occupation problems and aggravate those of the Germans, possibly relieving several Allied divisions from occupation tasks and tying up five or six German divisions.

Meanwhile, the Badoglio government retains civil administration in certain areas and is co-operating well with Allied military authorities, though the situation naturally is chaotic because of wartime conditions.

In some areas the country is directly under Allied military rule, with Italian prefects of police taking orders from the army on all matters of policy. AMG (Allied Military Government of occupied territories) is not playing as extensive a role as it did in Sicily.

Montgomery Refuses Guess On End Of War

At General Montgomery's Headquarters in Italy, Sept. 26 (Delayed) (AP)—General Sir Bernard L. Montgomery isn't venturing a guess when the war will be over.

"I expect you correspondents to tell me things like that," the general said today, and thereupon asked: "When?"

A correspondent speculated that the war in Europe would end in the spring.

"But when in the spring?" the general asked.

"March."

"When in March?"

"March 15."

"Hm," said Montgomery. "Hmm. March 15." But his cool gray eyes offered neither confirmation nor denial.

War-weary Girl Won't Hear Again From Kurt, Who Died Fighting for the Corporal in Italy

By DANIEL DE LUCE.

Corleto-Perticara, Southern Italy, Sept. 22 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Here in Corleto-Perticara you will find the heartbreak town of Southern Italy.

Four military roads meet in a dusty junction at the edge of Corleto's central square and for four days and nights American and R. A. F. bombers sowed explosives in giant patterns over the sun-scorched shoulder of the Apennines whereon Corleto stands.

German vehicles caught in the whip-like range of Allied bombs were splintered into a thousand fragments and scattered as chaff in the wind. On Corleto's main street—Via Pietro la Cava—gray stone buildings with red tile roofs collapsed in piles of rubble and shade trees were upturned.

But this isn't a story of bombings. It's the story of a dead German soldier and the girl he left behind in Berlin. It is also the story of twenty-four Jewish civil internees from Central Europe, and of Italian families whose heart is not in Corleto but in Connecticut, U. S. A.

A half mile from Corleto on the crater-pocked road westward lies a mangled Nazi Army truck in which two Germans set out to lay mines to protect the retreat toward Potenza. One was killed outright by an Allied air attack and the other died within a few hours, the Italians told me. Beside the overturned chassis in the ditch was a Paris-made letter folder. Inside was a neatly typewritten message to "Mein lieber Kurt" from a bitterly distressed girl, who scrawlingly identified herself as "Bobb."

Reveals War Weariness.

I've just read this letter—so despairing and war weary and anti-Nazi—that it casts an amazing light on what the German home front has been thinking. It was dated August 1, 1943.

"It's now weeks and months that my last two letters have gone unanswered," wrote the Berlin girl to her soldier lover. "I had hoped you might surprise me by suddenly appearing on leave and I waited in the summer heat as if I were sitting on ice . . . are our diplomatic relations broken off? Are they to be replaced by enemy activity? . . . I hope that you are healthy, secure and in good circumstances and between times are well off under greater Germany's Korporal (Hitler?).

"Everything here is satisfactory . . . Allied terror attacks are greater than ever. . . . Hamburg, which is spoken of as a 'general test,' suffered heavily . . . Everything is satisfactory exceept that my 76-year-old father's home was hit and burned down. He was knocked unconscious and was taken to the hospital with grave burns.

Goering Now Silent.

"Reichsmarshal (Goering?) whose mouth was always so full of words is now silent. He is called 'Tengelmann' (name of a German chain system of restaurants) because in so many towns he has had defeat."

That letter mocking Germany's "Korporal" and "Reichsmarshal" reached "Kurt," according to the postmark, about the time he and his Nazi comrades were fighting in the desperate withdrawal from Sicily.

Its complaints were hardly calculated to raise his morale. But he didn't tear it up. In the long, harassed Italian retreat he kept it among his baggage, and five days ago when he was killed it lay in the white dust of an Apennine road until enemy hands picked it up and enemy eyes read it.

Eating bully beef and biscuits in the debris of Corletto's piazza plebescito I heard the story of the twenty-four Jews—fourteen women, eight men and two children—from the grizzled, bespectacled Hermann Ephraimson, former Berlin shopkeeper.

He smoked one of my dwindling store of cigarettes and related how his party—one of thousands—trying to flee Europe in 1940 got trapped in Italy by the war after obtaining American visas.

Bound for America.

"My son Max Ephraimson, lives in London but mama and her mother and I all had permission to go to the United States," the elderly refugee said. "With other friends from Germany and Austria and Czecho-Slovovakia and Poland we were interned here by the Italians. That was three years ago and we are still here now."

Only a handful of citizens had as yet returned to their smashed homes, but these, hearing that I was an American and a war correspondent, crowded around pleading with me to send word of their safety to relatives in the United States. I sat on the shrapnel-scarred base of the bronze war memorial to Corleto's dead of the first world war and scribbled these tidings from the heartbreak town.

Message for Connecticut.

Shoeless Lucio Peretta, one-time country correspondent for the Giorlane d'Italia, said: "Please tell my uncle Gennaro La Raia of 75 Maple street, Hartford, Conn., that the Peretta and Montao families here are safe and well."

Smiling Tommy Montao asked also that the Montao family's safety be told to his aunt, Mrs. Teresa Di Santis, 156 East Lake street, Winsted, Conn.

Carolino Carbone sent greetings to his sister, Rochina Cordano, 4 Horne avenue, Winsted, Conn. Lawyer Francesco Calcone forwarded love to his sister Felicia Falcone, 14 Edgewood street, Hartford, Conn.

Paola Guerrien also sent affectionate regards to his son, Carl Guerrien, in Hartford, but he was nearly in tears because he could not remember the street address.

DUKE REACHES ALLIES

With the United States Navy at an Advanced Mediterranean Base, Sept. 24 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Italy's Duke of Aosta, who once was appointed King of Croatia but never went to that turbulent country to assume the crown, arrived here today in a private yacht. He was accompanied by Italy's top destroyer admiral, Amedo Nomis di Pollone.

The duke expressed the hope that the delivery of the Italian fleet into Allied ports might enable the fleet to "assist the Allies in bringing an immediate peace to an Italy being ravaged by the enemy within and without."

Lieut. Paul Alfieri of 3922 Murdock avenue, the Bronx, acted as the United States naval liaison officer and interpreter at the reception.

Valletta, Malta, Sept. 29 (AP)—Dockyard workers of Malta went on strike today following the announcement of a Government decision on their application for an increased war bonus.

Some 17,000 workers, who have been playing an important role in Allied operations, staged a six-day strike last month. They returned to work after a conference had been called by Field Marshal Lord Gort, commander in chief of Malta.

The Government has agreed to increase subsidies for certain rationed goods and has offered a minimum weekly wage of about $12. The workers have demanded a $13.50 minimum.

ITALIAN FLEET POSES BIG JOB

Country Keeps Warships But Shows Little Inclination To Enter Battle

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Sept. 29—Disposal of the Italian fleet is developing into one of the knottiest political questions of the war.

So far the Italians have been allowed to keep their warships, which are admitted to be of great value to the Allies, but they have shown little inclination to fight, in the Mediterranean or anywhere else.

The French, on the other hand, have pointed out to the United States and Britain that they have a reserve officer and sailor pool of 25,000 men willing to fight aboard the ships either here or in the Pacific.

Dutch, Greek Available

This situation frames one of the questions which undoubtedly will be taken up by the Mediterranean commission the Allies are establishing.

The Dutch, the Greeks and the Norwegians, all of whom lost their fleets fighting on the side of the Allies, also have reserve pools of sailors.

It would take considerable time to train crews to take over the battleships, but the small cruisers and destroyers, which are urgently needed by the Allies, could be put into action quickly.

There is little inclination on the part of the Allied chiefs to trust the Italian warships with the duty of guarding important Allied troop convoys from air or undersea attack.

But the great speed of the Italian warships would make them especially valuable in the Pacific. Most of the Italian warships now are idle, although a few destroyers are going about on missions.

In some military minds there may be doubt that the Italians are valuable enough in a military way to justify the shipping space the United Nations have allotted them to keep them in the war. The Italians already have requested that they be supplied with clothing for 300,000 persons, including troops who attacked Albania and Greece and have been stationed there, but now, disarmed by the Germans, have been returned to Italy.

KING PETER IN CAIRO

SEP 30 1943

Cairo, Sept. 28 (Delayed) (A. P.).—King Peter of Yugoslavia Government-in-Exile is now transferred from London to Cairo.

[King ePter's departure from London was disclosed yesterday in an announcement saying he was en route to the Middle East, but it did not indicate when he had left. His presence in the Middle East stirred speculation that events affecting the Balkans might be in the offing.]

The King reached Port Said aboard a British cruiser and motored to Cairo, where a villa had been prepared for him.

The 20-year-old King was accompanied by his Premier and Minister of Foreign Affairs, Dr. Bozhidar Puritch. With their arrival the seat of the Yugoslav Government in Exile is now transferred from London to Cairo.

Appeals for Aid to Greece

ISTANBUL, Sept., 28 (AP) (Delayed).—Unless the Allies invade Greece before winter sets in and bring large-scale relief, the country's population, especially the middle classes, will be threatened with extinction from malnutrition and starvation, a former official of the Athens government said today.

This report was made by Konstantin Sbarounas, until recently general secretary of the Ministry of Finance in the Athens government, to the United States Greek Relief representative in Turkey.

Konstantin Sbarounas, until recently general secretary of the Greek Ministry of Finance, in a report to the United States Greek Relief representative in Turkey, declared that the Nazi armies had burned 200 Greek villages in an effort to crush the Andarts, Greek patriotic organization, and had thus created a new refugee problem. Every one in Greece hopes for deliverance before winter, he said, adding that incredible prices must be paid there for food and clothing.

ALLIES RAID BURMA

New Delhi, Sept. 29—A. P.).—American and British air units struck again at Jap supply lines in central Burma yesterday with attacks on rail installations and river transport, headquarters communiques announced today.

American Mitchells raided Myotha, highway hub and supply point on the railroad running between Mandalay and Myingyan to the southwest. Other U. S. Tenth Air Force formations caused heavy destruction in rail yards at Taungtha, south of Myingyan. All of planes returned safely.

The British war bulletin said R. A. F. Beaufighters blasted enemy transport along the Chindwin and Irrawaddy Rivers in one of their most successful patrol operations of the past fortnight.

U. S. FLYERS WRECK SIXTY JAP PLANES

SEP 30 1943

Allied Headquarters in the Southwest Pacific, Sept. 30.—(Thursday).—(A. P.).—Jap efforts to re-eestablish operational bases in northeastern New Guinea have been countered with another stunning blow by the Allied air force.

In the ninth heavy raid on Wewak since mid-August American and Australian bombers and fighters destroyed more than sixty planes, three tankers, four merchant ships and twenty-nine barges and luggers.

This brought enemy plane losses at Wewak to at least 460 in six weeks. Repeated Jap efforts to re-enforce their airdromes at Wewak have been met by damaging air attacks.

Three hundred miles to the southeast the battle for Finschhafen neared the end. Australians, less than a mile north of the town, took a heavy toll of Japs. Japanese planes made sporadic raids on Allied beach positions near Finschhafen.

Jap Casualties Heavy As Finschhafen Battle Moves Toward End

60 More Planes Destroyed And Seven Ships Sunk In Allied Raid on Wewak

By the Associated Press.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Sept. 29.—The bloody battle for Finschhafen moved toward its finish today, with Australian soldiers exacting a heavy toll among the Japanese defenders and the supporting bases of the enemy for 300 miles to the northwest along the New Guinea coast bombed into impotence.

More than 60 planes were destroyed at Wewak by Allied bombers and fighters Monday. Three tankers and four merchant ships just arrived in the Wewak harbor with supplies which could have been intended for overland movement south, were sunk.

The coastal road leading from Wewak down to Finschhafer was strafed at Hansa Bay by Allied fighters.

Finschhafen Virtually Encircled.

Less than a mile north of Finschhafen veteran Australian groud troops struck hard at Japanese positions on high ground, inflicting heavy casualties.

Other Australians have fought their way to Ilebbe Creek west of Finschhafen. The enemy's air and supply base, which is separated by only 70 miles of water from Japan's strategic island holding of New Britain, is virtually encircled.

Allied artillery shelled it.

Headquarters, in the first report on the new air raid on Wewak, said that operational base was heavily bombed and also hit by 160,000 rounds of ammunition Monday for an hour and a half by more than 200 raiders. Fifty planes were destroyed on the ground, some of them fighters transformed into wreckage as they tried futilely to get into the air.

Only 20 Jap Planes Get Off.

Twenty got aloft. Eight were shot down for certain, three others probably. Three raiding Mitchells fell prey to intense enemy antiaircraft fire. All the other Mitchells, Liberators and escorting fighters returned to base, some damaged.

(William F. Boni, Associated Press war correspondent, in a dispatch from somewhere in New Guinea on the Wewak raid, disclosed for the first time that some of the Mitchells were based on the northern side of the Owen Stanley Mountains. Hitherto the only New Guinea bomber base which has appeared in the reports has been Port Moresby on the southside.)

The Wewak harbor took a terrific pounding. Twenty-nine barges or luggers were destroyed. On the previous day Allied fighters bagged at least six enemy planes at Wewak, where Japanese losses since mid-August now exceed 460.

Twenty-five Japanese planes caused minor damage and casualties in their first attempt to attack Drysdale, a small Australian town southwest of Darwin. Thirty-eight enemy planes attempting to attack American positions on Vella Lavella in the Solomons were driven off.

Big Jap Munitions Depot Blasted in Wewak Raid

SEP 30 1943

Eight Towering Fires Rage in New Guinea After Air Assault.

CU MEATS

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Thursday, Sept. 30 — (AP) American bombers smashed again at the Japanese base at Wewak, New Guinea, and destroyed a large munitions depot there, General MacArthur announced today.

Pilots who took part in the long-range aerial assault said they started the largest explosions ever witnessed in the Southwest Pacific.

In addition to the destruction of vital munition dumps, the bombers also touched off large fuel supplies and counted eight towering fires as they left for their home bases.

The communique said 145 tons of bombs were dropped on the enemy's northeast New Guinea base, a heavy day's work for that area.

Close in on Finschhafen

On the land side, Australian troops battered their way through fixed Japanese defenses to move within 600 yards of the main jetty at Finschhafen, Japanese shipping base overlooking their more important bases at New Britain.

The advance was the first reported for days after the Australian veterans ran into typical Japanese pillbox and machine gun emplacements.

The raid against Wewak was not without stiff opposition. The bombers smashed into a defending force of 40 Japanese fighters and destroyed eight of them.

Their aerial victory added new gains to the imposing list of plane losses inflicted on the Japanese there, the losses now mounting far in excess of 400.

This raid on the enemy's operational base 325 miles up the coast from the present ground fighting scene followed quickly another on Monday in which more than 60 planes were destroyed and even ships of a newly-arrived convoy were sunk.

General MacArthur termed the Wewak raid, in which fleet P-38 Lightning fighters protected our heavy bombers, a continuation of the campaign to "deny the enemy the use of his air bases."

Severe Blow Dealt

Hard pressed to supply the Wewak garrison because of incessant Allied raids that have destroyed many ships daring to enter the harbor, the destruction of the munitions dump was a severe blow.

The dump, it is believed, is the chief munitions dump for all Japanese forces in New Guinea. It was located halfway down the east end of the Wewak peninsula.

The communique said the explosion and resulting fires "obscured the entire peninsula," and flames were visible 60 miles.

In addition to the eight Japanese intercepting fighters shot down, three others were believed "probably destroyed."

We lost no planes in the raid, but some of the attacking force limped home damaged.

New Positions Seized

The Australians, in their slow drive against Finschhafen from the north, captured additional Japanese positions south of the Bumi river. This drive, closest of three main drives against the base, pushed into Salankaua plantation. Still another force coming up from behind made progress while the third force driving east from Lae advanced to Mango point.

The hard-fighting ground troops had the support of American attack and dive bombers that strafed coastal trails on which Japanese still contested the advance.

Farther to the northwest where Allied forces were pointed toward Madang, heavy bombers dropped 24 tons of 1,000-pound bombs and caused extensive landslide obstructions along the narrow trails.

Bomber planes from the South Pacific turned their attention to Bougainville island in the Solomons and scored damaging hits on supply and bivouac areas and gun positions at Jakohina and Kangu hill.

There, too, the Japanese offered aerial resistance, sending up 30 fighters to intercept. But the bombers went ahead with their task while American fighters took care of the Japanese Zeros and shot down two. We lost one fighter.

The Wewak raid, the tenth since mid-August, occurred Tuesday.

SINGLE SOLDIER CLEARS BEACHHEAD

Sergeant, Nearly Bayoneted, Repulses Force of 100

Japs in New Georgia.

By WILLIAM IMPPLE

U. S. ARMY HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC — (AP) Sgt. James Burgess of Lakewood, O., is the newest one-man army of the South Pacific.

Sgt. Burgess single-handedly attacked a Japanese force of about 100 men, killed an estimated 20 and broke up an attack on a beachhead during the New Georgia campaign.

Corp. Andrew Genzoli of Ferndale, Calif., an Army public relations man who reported the exploit, said Sgt. Burgess volunteered to man a machine gun outpost protecting a beachhead supply dump.

It was not uncommon for a large enemy force to penetrate the front lines and filter to the rear to disturb any installations they might find.

Bayonet Came Close

One night, an estimated force of 100 Japanese approached the beachhead. Sgt. Burgess was forced to take cover in his foxhole shortly before an enemy scout approached. The Japanese probed Sgt. Burgess' hole with a bayonet, almost touching him.

As soon as the Japanese soldier went far enough away, Sgt. Burgess put his machine gun into action. He cut into the main body, dispersing the greater portion of them, killing an estimated 20, and putting an end to the attack on the beachhead.

The retreating Japanese, however, had cut off Sgt. Burgess' position.

His machine gun was now out of order and he was forced to leave the foxhole and circle around the Japanese.

Four-Day Trip

Because of the route the fleeing Japanese had taken, Sgt. Burgess had to circle wide on a solitary jungle trip of four days. Given up for missing in action, he returned to his base on the fourth day.

Three times he had to swim to nearby islands to keep from being discovered. He finally returned to the U. S. position.

Somewhere in New Guinea, Sept. 27 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Among those participating in the raid on Wewak was bombardier-navigator Lieut. Louis Sprecher, 215-33 Jamaica avenue, Queens Village, Queens. damaged but made a safe landing. Other planes in the bomber flight had to circle about for some time while the bomber field runway, slightly damaged by bombs dropped from the high level enemy bombers, was repaired.

'Sleeper Play' Technique Adopted By Jap Fliers to Blast U. S. Ships

SEP 29 1942
ERICKSON

GUADALCANAL — (Delayed)—(AP) The large Navy transport U.S.S. John Penn was torpedoed and sunk in a smartly executed new-style Japanese torpedo plane attack on supply ships off Guadalcanal.

Hit squarely amidships, the transport in a few minutes was flaming from bow to stern. It sank in a short time but flaming oil on the water lighted the area while landing boats sped out from the beach to pick up survivors.

Luckily, the unloading of troops and cargo from the ship—former American export lines Excambion—had been completed in the afternoon. Casualties among the crew were reported light.

(An Allied headquarters communique last Friday announced the loss of the John Penn).

This was the way the enemy executed the attack:

Three or more high altitude bombers first came in over Guadalcanal from the west or inshore side. Searchlights, anti-aircraft and night fighters all concentrated on them.

With attention of defense diverted, a torpedo plane swooped in low over the channel. It was not detected until it was making its run on the transport in the bright moonlight.

Anti-aircraft guns opened fire but did not hit the plane before it dropped its tin fish. Men aboard ships in the harbor reported seeing a plane go down in flames near Savo. However, observers were unable to determine whether this was the plane which atacked the transport.

One of the high altitude bombers which served as decoys was shot down by a night fighter.

During the height of the anti-aircraft fire from the beach and anchored ships the first plane of a flight of Liberator bombers returning from a dusk raid on Kahili flew in and drew a heavy barrage from our own guns before it was recognized as an American bomber.

The returning ship was hit and

Lodge Assails War Optimism

Asserts News Reports Misrepresent Battles and Make Troops at Front Angry.

SEP 29 1942

By EUGENE BURNS.

Pearl Harbor, Sept. 29 (A. P.).—Greater frankness in war news presentation today will prevent cynicism and lack of confidence in our leaders later, United States Senator Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. (R.-Mass.) said in an exclusive interview after war front visits where "I saw the reaction of our fighting men to habitually optimistic news reports."

He will report to Congress that "our fighting men are mad because of the false optimism of our news."

"It's a general condition of our news reporting, our communiques, our radio commentators and our desk writers," he said.

He noted that censors perhaps overlook the fact that, unlike the last war, the news they censor gets back by radio within twenty-four hours to the men who make the news, who are wounded and who have fallen comrades.

Sees Disillusionment.

"Our present news censorship as I saw it at the front enrages and disillusions our fighting men in the truthfulness of their leaders and at home it breeds apathy," Senator Lodge said. "Whom our rosy censorship and propaganda helps I do not know. If anything, it helps the enemy by getting us to underestimate him. Our fighting men rapidly are learning that our propaganda which makes all our Allies good and all our enemies bad is bunk."

He told of seeing American soldiers befriend Italian and German prisoners, but said no such camaraderie exists in the Pacific.

"Our fight with the Jap is a fight to the finish," he said. "The Japs made it that way. They tortured our prisoners, shot down our parachutists, executed our Doolittle fliers in cold blood and our litter bearers are their favorite targets. These truths of the Japs should be driven home, too."

Senator Lodge asked the writer (who was a war correspondent in the Aleutians) the reaction of American soldiers to news they received while driving the Japanese from Attu. I told him an official announcement came over the radio that the enemy was defeated, except for mopping up, in the first week, whereas actually the main fighting had not commenced and many of our men already had been killed.

Greatest Misrepresentation.

"It's that way everywhere," Senator Lodge said. "Unfortunately, where they are hit hardest and their outfits have had heavy casualties, the news seems the worst misrepresented. When suffering intensely, they will hear a bland radio announcement saying 'The enemy is routed. Our losses are negligible. There is little if any enemy resistance.'"

Senator Lodge emphasized the importance of not disclosing information beneficial to the enemy but added: "However, the time comes when it is more important to tell the people the truth than to keep the truth away from them. When the time of military usefulness to the enemy has gone, the truth should be told to the home folks—for the sake of men who give their lives at the front."

Jungle Fighting Horrible.

African desert and Italian beach fighting cannot be compared with Pacific jungle warfare, Senator Lodge said.

"Jungle fighting is worse. It's fiendish. It's horrible."

Senator Lodge, a major in the Army, was with the first American group of tanks at Tobruk, and now is concluding a two-month tour of war fronts. He dodged enemy bombs in Sicily, China, New Georgia and New Guinea.

In the desert, he said, "you can see your enemy and make plans. . . . In the jungle you cannot see him.

"Besides the Jap, you fight diseases. And your fear is great. Even without the skulking, tricky, animal-like enemy, our jungle fighters wage a twenty-four-hour battle to keep alive."

Australia's War Budget Is $2,888,600,000

Canberra, Australia, Sept. 29 (AP). Australia's 1943-1944 war budget was introduced into the House of Representatives today, with the Commonwealth Treasury warning that nothing less than the utmost effort would suffice until victory had been won.

The budget estimated total expenditures of 715,000,000 pounds (about $2,888,600,000, an increase of 44,000,000 pounds over last year. Approximately 570,000,000 pounds was devoted to war outlays and the remainder to civilian costs.

Japs Draft East Indians For Anti-aircraft Work

Melbourne, Australia, Sept. 29 (A. P.).—The Japs are conscripting East Indian natives for anti-aircraft defense and plane-spotter work as the result of the mounting tempo of Allied air raids in that area, the Netherlands News Agency Aneta reports.

Tokio broadcasts said all able-bodied Javanese men had been called by Japanese occupational authorities for training for air defense duties, Aneta said.

New Yorker Wins Air Medal in Aleutians

An Aleutian Base, Sept. 29 (A. P.).—The Eleventh Air Force announced the award of the Air Medal to Staff Sergt. William F. Ceely of 18 East 49th street, New York city, for participation in recent heavy bomber raids on the Japanese Paramushiru and Shimishy islands and earlier missions over Kiska and Attu.

Argentine Ex-Official Is Released On Bail

Buenos Aires, Sept. 29 (AP)—A Federal judge granted the release of Iguel Culaciati, former Minister of the Interior who is charged with misappropriation of Argentine Government funds, on bail of 7,000 pesos ($2,080) today.

Detained since the June 6 revolution, Culaciati was accused last week of having received money from the Government-financed transport corporation and having used it to promote the campaigns of Congressional candidates supported by the Ramon S. Castillo administration.

Says Marshall's Map Erred

Venezuela Denies Presence of American Troops

CARACAS, Venezuela, Sept. 29 (AP).—The National Press Office said today that maps printed in foreign newspapers, on the basis of information supplied by General George C. Marshall, chief of staff of the United States Army, showing United States troops in Venezuela, were in error. Confusion probably arose from the assignment of an American military mission here to teach Venezuelan artillerymen, but it left last March, the office added in a statement.

(The arrival of American troops in Venezuela March 12, 1942, was reported among other United States Army movements in a map made public by General Marshall at Washington Sept. 8.)

CHILE ACCUSES NAZIS

Santiago, Chile, Sept. 29 (A. P.).—The newspaper La Hora says Chilean secret service agents, searching the baggage of 148 German diplomats and citizens leaving tonight for Germany, found several films portraying Chilean defense projects. The films were concealed among dishes, soap and beans.

The Germans are leaving for Portugal, where they will be exchanged for Chileans caught in Europe by the war.

Mexico Halts Shipment Of Beef to U. S.

Mexico City, Sept. 29 (A. P.). Twenty carloads of Mexican beef destined for United States markets were turned back at Ciudad Juarez on the United States border, President Avila Camacho announced last night. The shipment, which had not been authorized by the Mexican Government, was rerouted to Mexico City, which is currently experiencing a beef shortage.

2 ARMY PALS ARE AS ALIKE AS TWINS

San Juan, Puerto Rico, Sept. 29 (A. P.).—This is a story about two soldiers in the same outfit who are neither twins nor father and son, but who still have almost the same appearance, were born on the same day and month, joined the Army together and have worked face to face since their first day in the service.

Staff Sergt. William H. Brundage Jr. of Newburgh, N. Y., and Staff Sergt. Kenneth W. Turner of New York city lived only sixty miles apart, but never met until they were inducted on October 17, 1942, at Camp Upton, N. Y.

They reached Puerto Rico on the same boat on November 12, 1942, after creating considerable confusion aboard ship because of their striking similarity of physical appearance. On their arrival here they were assigned to the same company, and from there to the same office—the Antilles department classification section, where they sit across a desk from each other.

Both got their successive promotions at the same time; both are married, and usually write their respective wives and parents at the same time; both like swimming and golf, unintentionally splitting even on wins and losses. They have the same eating tastes, participate in the same recreation activities.

Both men are 5 feet 11 inches tall, weigh 170 pounds, have blue eyes, are right-handed and wear size 9½ shoes.

The German General Was Asleep

New York, Sept. 29 (AP)—British troops with the American Fifth Army, rushing northward toward Naples, yesterday captured an entire German headquarters, complete with a general, without firing a shot, BBC said today.

The British broadcast, recorded by NBC in New York, said a column of the British troops strode into the headquarters and caught the Nazi officers—a score of them—flat-footed, their pistol belts slung over their chairs.

The general was found sleeping soundly, BBC said. He was not identified in the broadcast.

Undercover Army Grew From Band Of 7 Men, Says French Radio

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Sept. 29—From a band of seven Corsicans grew the undercover army which harassed Axis occupation troops for months and is now helping regular Allied forces pinning the Germans to their present narrow shield on Corsica's east coast, the French Committee of National Liberation radio at Algiers said tonight.

The broadcast was based on the report of an organizer of French resistance on Corsica and was recorded by the United States Foreign Broadcast Intelligence Service.

From 7 To 2,000 Quickly

The seven began to operate in June, 1942, and soon their number swelled to 2,000, it was said.

"It was at first necessary to fight tribal hatred and everything else which favors disunity," the broadcast stated. "But in the end agreement was reached throughout Corsica on a program of the Front Patriotique—to give France an opportunity of freely choosing her Government. The spirit of revolt conquered the Corsican soul and methodically insurrection was prepared.

From Mountains And Caves

"On the eve of the rising, only 25 out of 110 tons of munitions sent to the island had fallen into the hands of the occupants. Two thousand Corsican patriots were in arms. The movement was directed by a group hiding in the mountains and in caves. They operated a wireless set and printed two papers. . . ."

The broadcast said two of the original seven were killed in action, one was serving a thirty-year prison term and the others still were fighting.

Nazis Curb Use Of Coal

New York, Sept. 29 (AP)—The British radio said today that severe restrictions had been placed on the use of coal throughout Germany.

Yugoslavs Concede Evacuation of Split

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—A communique from the Yugoslav army of liberation, broadcast by the United Nations radio at Algiers, said today that the Adriatic seaport of Split "has been evacuated as the result of enemy pressure after heavy fighting."

The Germans yesterday reported occupation of the seaport.

Archbishop Leaves Moscow

NEW YORK, Sept. 29 (AP).—The Archbishop of York has left Moscow after a nine-day visit, the British radio said last night in a broadcast heard by NBC.

21,860 Refugees Reach Switzerland In 10 Days

New York, Sept. 29 (AP)—A total of 21,860 refugees from Europe's war-torn countries and 960 escaped prisoners of war arrived in Switzerland between September 17 and September 27, and the influx continues at the rate of 200 to 300 a day, a Swiss radio network broadcast recorded by the OWI reported today.

City Is Pride of South Italy

Naples, the pride of southern Italy, was, in peace time, a gay and thriving city of nearly a million people, a gathering place for tourists who reveled in its soft climate and marveled at its artistic wonders, and at the same time an important manufacturing and shipping center, The Associated Press notes.

The city, usually bright with the southern sun, spreads fanwise and upwards in tiers of white buildings across the curving northern shore of the Gulf of Naples.

Dominant over Naples is Mt. Vesuvius, classically called "Her Terror and Her Pride." The volcano rises from a flat on the northeast shore of the Gulf of Naples. At the base of the mountain are populous villages as well as the classic sites of Herculaneum and Pompeii.

Naples was founded as a Greek colony about 1,000 B. C. The Romans conquered it in the fourth century, then it fell into the hands of the Ostrogoths, and later it became the capital of the Greek Duchy of Naples. In 1131 the city came under the power of the Lombards and became the capital of the Kingdom of the Two Sicilies.

It will be no new thing for Naples to be under foreign domination, for throughout the centuries the city was successively under Spanish, Prussian and French rule and finally merged with the Kingdom of Italy.

Much of Naples' charm lies in its artistic treasures, some of which may now be in ruins. It has numerous ancient and modern castles of great beauty as well as over 300 churches. Its many educational institutions are headed by the University of Naples. Its San Carlos Opera in the years before the war was one of the best known in the world.

Art Treasures Vast

In its national museum are—or were, at least, before the German Nazis got their hands on the city—unparalleled art treasures from Herculaneum and Pompeii. Besides an abundance of seventeenth-century art many fine examples of thirteenth century art and the Rennaissance rested in Naples. The churches of Naples are usually elaborately decorated inside though their exteriors are somewhat plain.

Before the Germans began the demolitions which occurred for days as the Allied armies approached, the city had vast manufacturing establishments which turned out locomotives and engines, steel, glass, gloves and goods of wool, linen and silk.

Peace-time Naples had its water supply brought in from the hills in the neighborhood of Avellino in a great covered masonry canal. The water supply was developed after the great cholera epidemic of 1884.

What's Behind The War News

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
(Associated Press War Analyst)

Allied occupation of Naples, indicated in advices from General Eisenhower's headquarters to be only hours away, will end the second phase of the war on the Italian mainland. It also will open the still unpredictable third act of the great drama of the Mediterranean which began with American landings in French Africa a little less than eleven months ago.

In view of President Roosevelt's estimate of the vast strategic importance of Allied seizure of Foggia, it can no longer be doubted that the Naples-Foggia line was the first big objective of British-American armies. The next probable Allied move is not so easy to discern. To some extent the initiative must rest with the enemy. Until Allied leadership can detect in Nazi dispositions and resistance signs that the enemy has reached the ground where he proposes to stand again, the maneuvering of both Allied armies must conform in some measure to the enemy's movements, unless the Naples-Foggia line turns out to be the preselected Allied front in Italy for the time being while other operations are set in motion. And political rather than strictly military considerations may play a major part in determining just how far up the Italian boot the Allies intend to drive at this stage of the war.

It certainly is not in Allied strategic books to immobilize any more troops than absolutely necessary in occupation of Italy. The Mediterranean campaign was inaugurated and brilliantly carried through for a single purpose, to obtain closer-up bases from which to strike at Germany. They have been secured. They also afford jump-off positions to strike across the Adriatic at the Balkans or up the Tyrrhenean from Corsica at southern France.

That three-way Allied threat from Italy is already profoundly influencing Nazi army dispositions not only in France, Italy and on the Balkan peninsula, but in Russia. It is forcing the German high command to keep substantial elements deployed and all but idle in southern France, Greece and the Balkans when they are vitally needed in Russia or to bolster threatened fronts in the west from the English channel to the north cape of Norway.

Limited Thrust Possible

Berlin may be convinced that the winter season is too close for a major Allied invasion of the continent this year from Britain. It can never be certain, however, that a lunge of limited objectives might not be attempted in the west at any moment, or several of them. Such a lunge might have as its objective gaining a sufficient continental bridgehead to provide bases for fighters to escort bombers operating against Germany.

Berlin, at least, dare not ignore that possibility. It cannot weaken anywhere its defense dispositions in the west no matter how bad the need to reinforce armies in Russia, in the Balkans and in Italy.

It is against the background of that ever growing and menacing Allied pressure from the west and south that the crisis in Russia is approaching along the Dnieper.

The proof both of present Nazi over-extension and of first line manpower attrition might come at any moment in Russia. A retreat from the Dnieper could have no other meaning, and it may be coming.

Perils Balkan Domination

To do so, however, inevitably must mean not only the loss of all Nazi Balkan satellites and their vital war resources, but surrender also of most of the Baltic states. It must mean retirement within the German citadel itself, ever probably from much of France, to stand an Allied siege that sooner or later could only end in unconditional German surrender.

What happens along the Dnieper and above it to the Baltic in the next few weeks will go farther to furnish a better clue to the probable duration of the war in Europe than any foreseeable developments on other fronts. Keep your eye on the Dnieper.

Secretary of State Hull has informed colleagues that he definitely expects to attend the meeting, and in view of his dislike for air travel, indications developed today that the conference might be shifted from Moscow to shorten his trip.

Mr. Hull will join Foreign Minister Anthony Eden of Britain and Foreign Commissar Molotov of Russia in an attempt to promote greater co-operation among the three allies, both in the field of actual warfare and in the realm of post-war planning. The conference is expected to prepare the way for another later in the year among President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin.

Moscow's Feeling Very Friendly.

The State Department is in possession of information that the Russians have the friendliest of feelings toward their Anglo-American allies and definitely are not interested in a separate peace with Germany. But the department has been advised that the picture could change(particularly if Anglo-American forces fail to open the second front in Europe which the Soviet Union has been urging.

Admiral Wiliam H. Standley, United States Ambassador to Russia, made his first report to President Roosevelt today since his return from Moscow. He declined to go into details about his conference.

Admiral Standley plans to give up his diplomatic post, and W. Averell Harriman, American lend-lease co-ordinator in London, is being mentioned as his successor.

MEXICO SETTLES FOR OIL PROPERTIES

U. S. Concerns Will Receive 20 Millions for Expropriated Wells.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—(AP)—The State department made public tonight an agreement whereby Mexico will pay American nationals $20,137,700.84, in addition to the $9,000,000 in cash paid in 1941, in the final settlement for expropriation of oil properties in 1938.

Oil companies had set the value of their properties in hundreds of millions of dollars but the valuation was cut by a commission of experts.

The payments will begin tomorrow with a remittance of $3,796,391.04, and the balance will be paid in four annual installments of $4,085,327.45 each.

The department announced the agreement had been reached through an exchange of notes by Adolf Berle, Jr., acting secretary of state, and Rafael de la Colina, Mexican charge d'affaires.

The total of $29,137,700.84 represents $23,995,991 plus $5,141,709.84 interest at three per cent on all unpaid balances from March 18, 1938, to Sept. 30, 1947, the date set for the final payment.

The first payment of $9,000,000 was made on Nov. 19, 1941, when the two governments agreed to appoint experts to determine the just compensation to be paid for the oil properties. The experts, Morris L. Cooke, for the United States, and Manuel J. Zevada, for Mexico, determined the evaluation in a report on April 17, 1942.

10 AMERICANS SENT TO SPEAK IN BRITAIN

OWI Selects Representative Group to Present Story of U. S. War Effort.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—(AP) The overseas branch of the Office of War Information announced today that 10 Americans will make two-month speaking tours of England as part of a program designed to stir reciprocal enthusiasm in America and Great Britain for an accelerated war effort.

Each American, selected as informed on a particular aspect of wartime life in America, will make speeches and answer questions before English audiences with similar interests.

For instance, Mayor Earl Riley of Portland, Ore., whose arrival in London was announced today, will speak to municipal groups about American cities' wartime problems and post-war plans.

Upon return from England, each American representative is expected through speeches or articles to pass on information gathered about wartime England.

OWI Pays Expenses

The OWI is paying the expenses of the 10 consultants who, it was announced, are serving without compensation.

Besides Mayor Riley, the Americans already in England are Dr. Margaret Mead, anthropologist now working with the National Research council; George V. Denny, director of the Town Hall of the Air, and Henry Steele Commager, historian and Columbia university faculty member.

Those yet to arrive in England are Allan Kline of the Farm Bureau Federation, Mrs. Iphigenie Bettman of Cincinnati, representing women's interests; Robert Lynd, author of the sociological text, "Middletown;" Worth McClure, superintendent of schools in Seattle, Wash., and president of the American Association of School Administrators; Chester La Roche, New York advertising council official, and Mark Starr, director of workers education for the International Ladies Garment Workers union.

E. C. Wilson Appointed To Mediterranean Post

Washington, Sept. 29 (A. P.).—The United States representative on the Mediterranean Commission will be Edwin C. Wilson, 50-year-old career man in the diplomatic service and since February, 1941, this Government's Ambassador to Panama. His appointment was announced late yesterday by President Roosevelt.

The commission, an agency of the United Nations, is scheduled to assemble soon to examine problems in the Mediterranean area, gather information and make recommendations for action.

WINDSORS AT CAPITAL

Washington, Sept. 29 (A. P.).—The Duke and Duchess of Windsor, en route from Boston to the Bahamas, arrived last night in the capital for a two-day visit. The Duke, who is Governor-General of the Bahamas, will confer with the British colonial supplies liaison on Bahamian affairs, a British embassy spokesman said.

The former King and his American-born Duchess spent several days in Boston visiting the Duchess's aunt, Mrs. D. Buchanan Merryman, who is ill. During their stay here they will be guests at the embassy.

GREEKS WILL RECEIVE LIBERTY SHIP TODAY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29 — (AP) Ceremonies transferring a Liberty ship to the Greek government-in-exile will be held Thursday afternoon at the New England Shipbuilding company yards in Portland, Me., before representatives of the United States and Greece.

The ship will be named the "Amerikh," which is America in the Greek language. The vessel is one of two to be turned over to the Greek government under Lend-Lease terms.

PACIFIC VICTORY UNLIKELY IN '44, SAY 3 SENATORS

SEP 30 1943

Group Back from Tour of World Battlefronts Sees Early Nazi Fall.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29 — (AP) Three Senators just back from a 40,000-mile inspection trip of world battlefronts said today they believed that the war in the Pacific would not end before 1945 but that a collapse of Germany may come at any time.

Reporting publicly on their two-month flying trip to the war zones, Senator Russell (D-Ga.), Mead (D-N.Y.) and Brewster(R-Me.) told a press conference that "Our Army and Navy are developing into the toughest fighting machine the world has ever seen."

They said there was reason to believe that Germany might not last long, because Hitler had lost the oil of Russia, control of the Mediterranean and the submarine battle with shipping.

For that reason, they agreed that plans ought to be worked out now to move into Germany to control the civil population, reorganize transportation and prevent chaos.

Close Cooperation Noted

On the Pacific front, they said there was the closest cooperation between the Army and the Navy, that not enough supplies and men were being sent there yet, but that "the Japs know we are on the offensive."

Sketching other details of the world picture, Senator Russell said he did not believe the American people had been given enough information about the "seamy side" of some of the American fighting, that, in other words, the losses had not been mentioned fully.

Senator Mead said the Truman War Investigating committee, of which he and Senator Brewster are members, would turn its attention to developing a post-war aviation policy under which commercial planes from this country would have access to some of the airfields built with United States funds in foreign countries.

Senator Brewster said the committee also would urge that additional oil for the United Nations be taken from the Persian gulf area so that American supplies would not be exhausted after the war.

Jap Danger Stressed

In an hour's review of what they saw and found on the two months trip, the three senators reported that folk on the home front are still underestimating the danger from Japan.

Senator Russell said Chinese officials estimated the Japanese are building 1,000 planes a month instead of the 500 usually credited to them. Senator Brewster said the group was informed that the Japanese doubled their ship building capacity.

Senator Brewster said he attributed a recent statement by Gen. MacArthur to concern in Australia over reports that the Southwest Pacific command might be subordinated to that of Lord Louis Mountbatten in India and Burma.

Senator Russell said he agreed with Senator Lodge (R-Mass.) who told the Associated Press in Honolulu that the men at the fighting front are disturbed at the optimistic tone of official communiques issued by the Army and Navy. Senator Lodge has not yet returned to this country and Senator Chandler (D-Ky.), who also made the trip, stopped in California to visit his family.

Pacific War Council Meets With Roosevelt

Washington, Sept. 29 (A. Met Him on Australian Trip, Found Him Lonesome

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29 (AP).—When the voice of the telephone said it was the White House calling, Miss Helen Carl, a government secretary, thought it was just one of Washington's favorite gags. But this time it wasn't.

"I met your boy friend, Sergeant Al Lewis, in Australia and he asked me to call and say hello!" said Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, just returned from the south Pacific war front. "The boys are doing a wonderful job, but they're lonesome for their girl friends."

Sergeant Lewis was a police reporter before becoming a Marine Corps combat correspondent.

Navy Flyer Bags 150 Captives Without Leaving His Plane

Pilot And Radioman Ride Herd On Italians, Driving Them To Yank Lines By Firing At Heels

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 29—A navy flyer and his radioman captured 150 Italian soldiers and herded them to American lines without leaving their plane during the Sicilian invasion, the navy reported today.

The airmen were Lieut. (j. g.) Paul E. Coughlin, Edina, Mo., and Radioman Richard Shafer, Albany, Ore., who directed the prisoners' march by firing at their heels.

Coughlin told the story to his commanding officer:

"I circled past some of our soldiers, a forward patrol, on the beach at the foot of a cliff.

White Flags And Italians

"They waved and pointed at the hill, which they were evidently having trouble gaining. I began to strafe this position and after about four runs of fixed and free gunfire, white flags and Italians began appearing. I flew low and motioned for them to go in the general direction of our troops; their movement was hurried and guided by the very accurate fire of the radioman.

"Looking about the top of the hill for a way to direct them, where they would be in the open, I saw white flags waving over four intrenchments. As the prisoners would get close to one of these positions, I would fly over and wave for them to go in the direction of the others.

"They were a little slow coming out until a few shots were fired close to them. In this way we got all out into the open, and headed for the beach.

Radioman Resorts To Trick

"We rode herd on them. When one would start to stray or they would start spreading, shots were placed close to the stragglers. This worked very well and they gathered forces as they went forward, resulting in what appeared to be about 150 by the time they reached the (American) soldiers on the beach.

"At a critical point when they were scattering out, the free gun jammed. I told the radioman not to let them know for they might try to escape. I circled low around them and told him to point the gun in their direction. As we got close to one who was making a run for it, I heard some shots fired. Looking back I saw the radioman aiming the machine gun and firing his forty-five beside it, making the fugitive run in the other direction.

Two Enemy Fighters Close In

"I went back over the hill and strafed the other positions, this time corralling about thirty stragglers. As the group reached the crest of the hill, I noticed a burst of anti-aircraft fire on my starboard beam. Looking quickly around the sky, I saw two enemy fighters (German Messerschmitt 109's) closing on my tail. I put the plane into a steep dive. Five-inch shells from my cruiser began breaking between me and the enemy fighters, forcing them to turn away.

"As the planes disappeared, I went back to find my prisoners gone, but a few shots and a little strafing of the buildings and vicinity soon rounded up most of them again."

SENATE DRAFT OF POST-WAR BILL READY BY WINTER

SEP 30 1943

Committee Pigeonholes Fulbright Measure as 'Too Vague.'

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29 — (AP) A Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee decided today to draft its own statement on post-war foreign policy, and some members predicted it would be ready for Senate consideration before Congress goes home for the Christmas holidays.

Effectively bottling up the House-approved Fulbright resolution, the sub-committee decided—in the words of Chairman Connally (D.-Tex.) — to "draft a resolution expressive of its attitude."

The Fulbright measure would put Congress on record as favoring American participation, through constitutional processes, in the establishment of "appropriate international machinery" to preserve the peace.

Vague Wording Criticized

It has been criticized as vague in its wording and commitments and there were indications that the Senate sub-committee would attempt to spell out in greater detail the position Congress would like to have this country take.

Indications arose that the meeting of American, British and Russian Foreign ministers may be held in London instead of Moscow, and it was learned that Secretary Hull has told associates he definitely expects to attend.

Senator Vandenberg (R.-Mich.), member of the sub-committee, which will draft an expression on post-war policy, has made it plain that he and others will insist that American sovereignty be maintained in any commitments.

Senator Connally, who is expected to draft what may be regarded as an Administration proposal, has declared personally for an international organization of sovereign nations to maintain the peace primarily through economic sanctions, backed by military action if that becomes necessary.

Super-State Opposed

He has opposed creation of any world "super-state" and has suggested, instead of the establishment of a standing police force, that military power be furnished by nations on a quota basis.

Senator Hatch (D.-N. M.), one of the authors of a resolution which would put Congress on record in favor of establishment of a United Nations organization with power to use force, welcomed the sub-committee's decision as indicating at least that the Senate will take some action.

EARLY ADOPTION OF AID PLANS FOR SOLDIERS URGED

SEP 30 1943

Sen. Thomas Says Concrete Program Should Be Mapped During War.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29 — (AP) Senator Thomas (D.-Utah) urged tonight the adoption of plans during the war to take care of soldiers once peace is restored.

Asserting that it will take longer to achieve a return to normal ways than it has taken to prepare for war, Senator Thomas declared that it would be "a political crime not to plan" now for the welfare of veterans. He spoke on the Washington Evening Star's national radio forum.

"If the men and women in our Army and Navy have been fighting to preserve what we call the American way of life," Senator Thomas said, "surely the government which wants to maintain the American way of life x x x should plan that the way will not be lost in the adjustment after the war."

Plans should include, he said, assistance for those who have not been injured in the war but "who have not been fortunate to rehabilitate themselves economically in the peace."

Anticipating that "our taxpayer associations" will protest the cost, he declared that if the nation can afford "billions and billions" to destroy, "we can afford thousands and thousands of dollars to build up."

HARBOR PLANNING AS POST-WAR JOB

Washington, Sept. 29 (A. P.).—Representative Mansfield (D.-Tex.) announced today that the House Rivers and Harbors Committee, of which he is chairman, will begin hearings within two weeks on a new rivers and harbors authorization bill.

He made public a letter from President Roosevelt to Majority Leader McCormack suggesting approval of a bill to authorize such improvements as part of a plan to set up a post-war public works backlog which would provide jobs during the transition to peacetime economy.

Mr. Mansfield made no estimate of the probable costs involved.

Authorizations made by Congress can be carried out by the Army engineers whenever appropriations are made.

Committee members said the new measure would not include controversial items such as the St. Lawrence seaway.

WSA Starts Training Of Wounded Veterans

Washington, Sept. 29 (AP) — A training program for wounded veterans of this war that emphasizes reemployment now has been put into operation by the War Shipping Administration.

The first class of sixty-eight trainees, soldiers and merchant seamen incapacitated for active service by enemy action, already are performing important war jobs in the Merchant Marine inspection and repair service, WSA announced today. The program will be expanded until the several thousand men required for these services have been trained, WSA announced.

DEPENDENCY PAY BOOST FAVORED

Army, Navy Approve Plan to Increase Allotment for Children.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29 — (AP) The Army and Navy backed higher government payments to children of service men today, but opposed a boost for childless wives.

Testifying before the House Military committee, Major General Miller G. White also turned thumbs down on a suggestion that payments be withheld from wives who are financially independent or who prove unfaithful.

Gen. White, head of the Army's personnel branch, said the War and Navy departments generally favored the bill passed by the Senate. This would continue at $50 a month —$28 coming from the government and $22 from the husband—payment to a wife, but would raise from $12 to $18 the monthly government payment for the first child and from $10 to $11 that for each additional child.

The question whether a serviceman should be allowed to cut off payments, mandatory under existing law, to his wife if she is unfaithful was raised by Rep. Sparkman (D.-Ala.).

Scorns Domestic Issues

Gen. White was emphatic that the Army did not want to become involved in questions of "domestic relations."

Frequently, he remarked, "mothers-in-law" and others write to service men and complain of the actions of wives back home.

Gen. White also said he did not believe it would be wise to require the departments to determine whether a wife needed the allotment and allowance. The payments, he explained, were considered a part of a service man's remuneration and no distinction should be made because of financial status.

In addition to an increase in payments for children, the general said payments should be raised for totally dependent parents, brothers and sisters. He favored separating class "B" dependents (those other than wife and children) into two groups, one chiefly dependent and the other only partly dependent on a service man's financial help, with increased payments for those whose chief support comes from a service man.

Extension to All Grades

Gen. White also favored the government's paying the entire first month's payment, without any deduction from the service man's check, and extending benefits of the act to dependents of all seven grades of enlisted men. Only dependents of enlisted men in the four lower grades now are eligible for payments.

By requiring the government to make the entire initial payment, he explained, delay would be avoided and hardship averted.

The changes he supported would, he said, cost about $393,000,000 additional during the remaining nine months of this fiscal year.

ST. LAWRENCE PLAN BROUGHT UP AGAIN

Washington, Sept. 29 (A. P.).—Authorization for construction of the St. Lawrence waterway to open the Great Lakes to Atlantic Ocean traffic and develop water power resources was proposed in bills by Senator Aiken (R.-Vt.) and Representative Pittenger (R.-Minn.). Senator Aiken said there was little hope of passage of the measures during the war, despite support of the War, Navy, Commerce, Agriculture and State departments.

The development would cost about $429,000,000, of which Canada would pay $144,000,000, Mr. Aiken said. New York State would pay $93,375,000 of this country's share of $285,000,000.

The St. Lawrence would be deepened to twenty-seven feet and the power plants would be constructed by the State of New York, but the bill (S1388) would require the State to sell excess power to adjoining States.

The St. Lawrence waterway was advocated by President Roosevelt in 1941 as important to defense. The development was proposed in a bill passed by the House, but there was no vote in the Senate.

Senate Commerce Committee aids said the Aiken-Pittenger bill was the first in recent years proposing specific authorizatian of the St. Lawrence waterway.

The waterway has been debated many times in Congress in recent years.

LEND-LEASE HELP PASSES 15 BILLIONS

Washington, Sept. 29 (A. P.).—Lend-lease supplies to the Allied nations now total nearly $15,250,000,000.

The overall figure was disclosed yesterday by President Roosevelt with his announcement that supplies for August set a new peak at $1,261,000,000—$211,000,000 over the July figure of $1,050,000,000.

The grand total of $15,235,000,000 includes $13,016,000,000 in goods transferred and $2,219,000,000 in services rendered since the lend-lease program began on August 31, 1941.

Aircraft—both planes and parts showed a sharp upsurge over previous monthly figures, the President's statement disclosed.

Mr. Roosevelt noted that "American planes are being flown in increasing numbers by Russian pilots on the eastern front and by British and other United Nations pilots in several theaters of war." And he added:

"The steadily growing strength of our own air force and of the air forces of our Allies, which are pounding away at Germany and the occupied countries night and day, is continuous evidence of Hitler's inability to put a roof on fortress Europe."

WAVES Sorry Senate Bars Duty Abroad

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29 — (AP) Three trimly clad WAVES today heard the all-male Senate Naval Affairs committee vote solidly against allowing them to serve overseas.

"Do you approve of the action the committee has just taken?" Chairman Walsh (D-Mass.) inquired of the girls, who were sitting in the spectators section.

"We were a little disappointed," one replied.

Sen. Walsh told the young women they had been doing excellent work, but that there were very few billets suitable for the Navy's women reservists abroad, and that such posts could be filled with limited service men.

Through the committee's decision, the stay-home provision stands for Coast Guard Spars and Women Marines, as well as WAVES.

The Army's WACS, Sen. Walsh remarked, are in a different category since there are more large Army installations abroad where they fit in.

The commitee's vote amended a House-approved bill which raises the rank of the commanding officer of the WAVES from lieutenant commander to captain; entitled WAVES to the same benefits and allowances as Navy male personnel;and stipulates that female physicians and surgeons shall not be permitted to serve aboard ship but shall be restricted to shore duty in the continental United States.

MOVE TO DRAFT FATHERS UNDER 30 GAINS SUPPORT

Anonymous Woman Buys Gifts for Isolated Soldiers

Little Old Lady to Help Men Stationed in Remote Posts

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29 (AP).—Four hundred soldiers in all sorts of out of the way places will receive Christmas boxes from an unidentified little old lady in a blue gingham dress.

"I want to buy a Christmas present for a few of the boys overseas who would not get one otherwise—boys in the most remote and lonesome places," she told "The Washington Post."

A trembling hand held out a certified check for $1,000.

"I only wish I knew how long I will live. I am seventy-six now. I think I will ask my banker what to do," she said on her return the next day by appointment. In about an hour she was back again with a second check for $1,000.

Army chaplains helped select the gifts, but the little old lady insisted upon a frivolous item or two, "soap that smells nice or violet talcum powder." Then, too, she wanted to help wrap the packages. "The Post" asked permission to use her name and take her picture, but she declined.

"I like it better this way," she said.

Taft Proposes Virtual End to Deferments for Men in That Age Group.

DOWNEY ASSAILS ARMY

Demands Full Use of Air Power, Says Manpower Is Wasted.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29—(AP) Congressional Strength built up steadily today behind moves for induction of childless government employes and the under-30 age group in larger numbers so as to cushion the general impact of the draft on older men with children.

Most attention centered on a proposal by Senators Bailey (D-Nc) and Clark (D-Mo) which would:

1. Forbid government employment of able-bodied, draft-age non-fathers not indispensable in their posts.

2. Forbid Washington desk assignments to able-bodied, draft-age non-fathers holding Army and Navy commissions who could be spared for combat duty.

Sen. Bailey told reporters three War department representatives—two generals and a major—had assured him and Sen. Clark that they had no objection at all to the first section of the bill.

He said these officials, whose names he would not disclose, suggested some changes, however, in the second section.

"They promised to send us a communication in the morning embodying their suggestions for a revision," Sen. Bailey added.

Taft Offers Drastic Bill

At the same time, Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) disclosed that a bipartisan group of Senators would offer a plan to prohibit deferments to men under 30 years old on Oct. 1 unless they are "indispensable" in agriculture or " in a plant producing airplanes, ordnance, munitions or ships, or in a mine producing minerals for use in waging war."

This measure would wipe out most occupational deferments for men under 30 in both government and civilian activities, regardless of fatherhood, and make them draftable ahead of all older pre-war fathers.

Both the government-employe and under-30 preferential draft plans were proposed as substitutes for the bill by Sen. Wheeler (D-Mont) to postpone until Jan. 1 the induction of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers. The Wheeler measure appeared doomed in the face of Army and Administration opposition.

Downey Assails Army

Nevertheless, the fight for the Wheeler bill went ahead on the Senate floor, with Sen. Downey (D-Calif) assailing the Army high command for what he called its failure to bring Germany "to dust and to defeat months ago" by bombing, and for what he termed its emphosis on increasing a land army "already too large."

"If they longer delay to force the surrender of Germany by the full use of our bombers," Sen. Downey declared, "then the day will not be long delayed when the voice of America will be raised in horror and indictment, proclaiming the waste and sacrifice inherent in the strategy of our high command."

Sen. Downey poured out his wrath upon "ancient concepts of strategy" which he said failed to recognize that more than 95 per cent of the injury inflicted thus far upon the enemy was due to bombers and fighters while 30 per cent of the nation's military power had been concentrated upon aircraft.

"If now we should concentrate upon Germany all of available bombers, within 60 days we could ruin at least 25 per cent of her cities and her production—within four months at least 50 per cent, and if that were not sufficient to force surrender, in a comparatively short time longer, we could pound to rubble and the dust almost every city, factory and building that Germany possesses," Sen. Downey said.

Takes Sarcastic Tone

Sarcastically, he added:

"If our high command desired, after that, we could march to the ruins of Berlin a few hundred thousand of the millions of Allied soldiers now stationed in Africa and Britain, and, if it made our leaders happier, transport abroad a few token thousands of the many millions that will still be left in the continental United States."

Sen. Hill of Alabama, the Democratic whip, said he understood that Sen. Wheeler, who held the floor throughout yesterday, would speak again tomorrow.

"The bill apparently hasn't gained any strength," Sen. Hill told reporters. He said a decision had not been made on when to offer a motion to send the bill back to the Military committee.

Sen. Hill told Sen. Downey he was surprised at the charges of "improper strategy" at a time when General George C. Marshall and Admiral Ernest J. King "and others of our high command aren't here to defend themselves."

He told Sen. Downey the officials testified before the military committee, of which the Californian is a member, and could have been questioned.

Asserting the Military committee was "nothing more than a rubber stamp for what the Army, the Navy and the White House asks," Sen. Downey said he started to question along the lines of his speech when he became aware "of the displeasure aroused" among members by attempts to question Gen. Marshall.

Hull Commemorates The Jewish New Year

Washington, Sept. 29 (AP)—Secretary Hull in a statement commemorating the Jewish New Year said today it was appropriate at this time to "rejoince together over the world's quickening hope." The text of his message follows:

"On the occasion of the celebration of the Jewish New Year I desire to extend my greetings to all Americans of the Jewish faith.

"It seems appropriate at this season to express again my constant sympathy with them in their sorrow over those of their religion who still live and die in the deep shadow of persecution.

"It is also appropriate at this time for us to rejoice together over the world's quickening hope for the dawn of a New Year in which we may realize peace at last for all the great brotherhood of mankind."

Additional Casualties Are Listed by Navy

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29 (AP).—The Navy announced today the names of fifty-four casualties, including twenty-nine dead, eighteen wounded and seven missing. Also listed were five casualties whose status has changed.

This brings to 30,112 the total of Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard casualties reported to next of kin since Dec. 7, 1941. Including 10,754 dead, 5,293 wounded, 9,922 missing and 4,143 prisoners of war. The casualties announced today included (those listed are Navy and non-commissioned personnel unless otherwise specified):

SFORZA TO ASSIST BADOGLIO RULE

SEP 30 1943

Noted Anti-Fascist Will Return to Italy to Help Defeat Axis.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29. — (AP) Count Carlo Sforza, noted Italian anti-Fascist, indicated in a statement here tonight he would return to Italy to help "defeat the Nazi danger" but, he added, "I will be more useful for that purpose out of government than inside any government."

He told the Associated Press in a statement which he declined to amplify:

"It is evident that I consider it the first duty of all Italians to join in the common struggle to defeat the Nazi danger in Italy.

"When I am in Italy, I think I will be more useful for that purpose out of government than inside any government."

On Sept. 24 a Swiss report said Count Sforza, former Italian Foreign minister, would enter the Badoglio cabinet as the representative of an anti-Fascist organization active abroad for 20 years. At that time, Miss Fiammetta Sforza said she had been authorized by her father to deny the report.

Count Sforza declined to comment upon a report yesterday by the Algiers radio that he had messaged Marshal Pietro Badoglio that he was ready to offer "full support" to the present Italian government as long as it continued its efforts to defeat the Germans. However, Countess Sforza said yesterday that any such report was "absolutely incorrect."

Big Leagues Select Squads For Troop Tour In Pacific

Thirty-Six Players Named In All-Star Group To Stage Games For Men In Service

By SID FEDER
[Associated Press Staff Writer]

New York, Sept. 29—The big leagues today picked a pair of 18-player squads for the post-season exhibition trip to our troops in the Pacific, including practically every top performer in the business for 1943.

Managed by Frankie Frisch, the Pittsburgh Pirates' pepper-pilot, and round Joe Cronin, of the Boston Red Sox, the all-star collections include nine of the big guns from next week's World Series; 18 of the aces from last summer's all-star game; the year's batting bosses in both loops—Stan Musial, of the St. Louis Cardinals, and Luke Appling, of the Chicago White Sox; the American League's No. 1 elbower, Spud Chandler, of the Yankees; and the season's home-run ranking Rudy York, of the Detroit Tigers. The two outfits will leave for the Pacific theater as soon after the World Series as the War Department gives them the green light.

Six Yanks On Squad

Headed by six of the American League champion Yankees and three of the National League pennant-winning Cardinals, the squads list virtually all the season's "all-star all stars" with the possible single exception of Mort Cooper, the stylist slinger of the Card's staff. And brother Walker, the National League's No. 1 catcher, will be along to hold up the Cooper family interests.

Along with Musial and Walker Cooper, the Cards also are sending Lou Klein, the classy rookie second-sacker. Against this trio, the Yanks will be represented by Chandler, Second Baseman Joe Gordon; Thirdsacker Bill Johnson, one of the junior circuit's "rookies of the year"; King Kong Charlie Keller and his big bat; and Bill Dickey and Rollie Hemsley from the catching department.

National Fully Represented

All eight of the National League clubs are represented. The American League picked its squad from six of its outfits.

In addition to the players and managers, the squads will include Umpires Larry (National League) Goetz and Bill (American League) Summers; Trainers Charlie Jorgensen, of the Pirates, and Ralph McCarthy, of the Red Sox; and Leo Ward, the Cards' secretary, and Earl Hilligan, American League Service Bureau director, as team secretaries.

The two squads:

War Prisoners Replace Soldiers on Farms

Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 29 (A. P.).—One thousand Pine Camp soldiers, who have been working in western New York canneries and on farms for several days to alleviate the man power shortage, are being replaced today by Italian prisoners of war.

Part of the prisoners will be employed in this vicinity, Col. John A. McDowell, commanding officer of District 4, Second Service Command, said, while others will be used in Clyde, Medina, Albion, Holley, Hamlin, Batavia, Dansville and Silver Creek.

HOPE IN RUSSIA SEEN BY BISHOP

Tucker Asserts Christian Aid Will Be Welcomed.

Cleveland, Sept. 29 (A. P.).—Churches have the post-war responsibility of showing peoples of all nations that "only in unity of purpose will they be able to realize the possibilities open to them," the Right Rev. Henry St. George Tucker of Richmond, Va., presiding bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church, declared today.

The leader of 1,500,000 Episcopalians in the United States came here for conferences preceding the church's fifty-fourth triennial convention, opening next Saturday.

"I have no doubts about the role of the church in the peace that is to come, it must accept a large share of the responsibility of bringing order out of chaos in the post-war world," he told an interviewer.

"Especially encouraging, I believe, is the reception given the Archbishop of York by the dignitaries of the Orthodox Church in Russia.

"I know the Russian people well, having served with the Red Cross there during and after world war I. They are, at heart, very devout. They will receive our missionaries with open arms. Eager to improve their educational and hospital facilities, they will accept all the help we, the Christian church, can give them and I'm sure we won't let them down.

"With the new understanding between communist authorities and the church, much should be accomplished. But we must take a realistic view of the problems of Russia—her aspirations and aims. Over here, far from the disturbing elements in central Europe, we are apt to be idealistic and fail to get to the heart of the trouble. We must reach a common understanding and the time to start is now."

New Governor of Jamaica Takes Oath Today

Miami, Sept. 29 (A. P.).—Sir John Huggins, an expert on Caribbean shipping and supply, will fly to Jamaica tomorrow to take the oath as Governor of the British colony. He came to Miami from Washington, where for a year he has been head of the British Colonies Supply Mission and a member of the Anglo-American Caribbean Mission.

Among his first duties will be the introduction of the colony's recently granted new constitution, which gives a greater degree of self-government to the people of the island, including universal suffrage.

Air Collision Kills 2 Instructors and Cadet

Walnut Ridge, Ark., Sept. 29 (A. P.).—Two inspectors and one cadet attached to the Walnut Ridge Army air field were killed yesterday when two training planes crashed, Public Relations announced today.

Lieut. Francis Daniel Stegna, 24 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stegna of Girard, Ohio, was killed when his plane fell a mile west of Portia, Ark.

Lieut. Roy D. Hammond, 22, whose mother, Mrs. Marie G. Hammond, resides at Jud, North Dakota, and Aviation Cadet William J. Donavon of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., died when their plane crashed ten miles west of Pocahontas, Ark. Donavon is survived by his wife, Mrs. Winifred Donavon.

Willkie Will List Issues In St. Louis Talk Oct. 15

Broadcast to Answer Questions on His '44 Views

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 29 (UP).—Wendell Willkie will tell where he stands on domestic and international issues bearing on the 1944 presidential campaign when he speaks Oct. 15 in St. Louis, he said today.

The address will be broadcast and will be his answer to a series of pertinent political questions presented to him by Missouri political groups, he told a press conference in which he also called for an "affirmative domestic and international program" from the Republican party.

"We cannot win by a process of negation," he said. "We don't deserve to win, nor will we win by such a process. We must offer an affirmative program both as to domestic policy and as to relations of the United States with the rest of the world.

Asked if he anticipated any support at the Republican Convention, he said he could see within the party a rapid drive toward adoption of his principles. Such a drift he said had been reached with regard to his international views, as evidenced by the report of the Mackinac Island conference this month. He hoped for such a drift on domestic issues.

LONDON, THURSDAY, SEPT 30-(AP)-USE BY BRITAIN'S NEW TACTICAL AIR FORCE OF THE "FLYING FLEA," A HIGH-WINGED OBSERVATION MONOPLANE WITH A CRUISING SPEED OF 107 MILES AN HOUR, WHICH ALREADY HAS BAFFLED GERMANY'S FASTEST FIGHTERS AND HEAVIEST GROUND DEFENSES, WAS ANNOUNCED TODAY BY THE AIR MINISTRY.

THE TAYLORCRAFT AUSTER-3, WITH ITS 130-HORSEPOWER ENGINE, CAN TAKE OFF IN 50 YARDS, CLIMB AT 1,000 FEET A MINUTE AND--BECAUSE OF ITS HIGH-WING CONSTRUCTION--CAN ALL BUT HOVER IN THE AIR.

PILOTS OF THE SHIP HAVE CIRCLED A TREE WHILE NAZI FIGHTERS HAVE SWEPT ABOVE THEM, IT WAS SAID.

IT WAS SAID THAT THE FORCE WAS USING THE AUSTER TO DRAW FIRE AND THUS REVEAL ENEMY GUN POSITIONS. THE PLANE, ARMORED BUT NOT ARMED, WAS USED FOR THAT PURPOSE IN THE NORTH AFRICAN CAMPAIGN.

LONDON, SEPT 29-(AP)- MAYOR EARL RILEY OF PORTLAND, ORE., HAS ARRIVED IN GREAT BRITAIN FOR A SPEAKING TOUR SPONSORED BY THE U.S.OFFICE OF WAR INFORMATION AND THE BRITISH MINISTRY OF INFORMATION.

AT A U.S. BOMBER BASE IN BRITAIN, SEPT 29-(AP)-TECHNICAL SGT. THOMAS DYE, OF STEUBENVILLE, O., FLUNKED OUT OF AIR GUNNERY SCHOOL. THE OFFICIAL REASON WAS THAT HE HAD AN "UNSKILLED SHOOTING EYE."

IT WAS A LAUGH, TOO, FOR AT THE TIME DYE HAD TWO ENEMY PLANES TO HIS CREDIT.

DYE HAD TRAINED IN THE UNITED STATES AS A RADIO OPERATOR, BUT WHEN HIS FORTRESS, THE "SNOW BALL," WAS WITHOUT A BALL TURRET GUNNER ONE DAY HE VOLUNTEERED.

IN FIVE MISSIONS HE GOT TWO GERMAN FIGHTERS, AND THEN THEY SENT HIM TO GUNNERY SCHOOL FOR A "REFRESHER" ON A COURSE HE NEVER HAD TAKEN ORIGINALLY.

THE INSTRUCTORS PAID NO ATTENTION TO HIS RECORD, AND SO HE WAS FLUNKED OUT FOR THE "UNSKILLED SHOOTING EYE."

SO DYE QUIETLY WENT BACK TO THE "SNOW BALL" AND UP TO TODAY HE HAS SHOT DOWN EIGHT ENEMY PLANES AND WEARS THE DISTINGUISHED FLYING CROSS AND THREE CLUSTERS WITH THE AIR MEDAL.

madrid,sept.29-(ap)--pierre laval,chief of government of german -occupied france,since the italian capitulation and the allied occupation of sardinia has stepped down from the position of france's public enemy number one to become public nonentity number one, according to/travelers from neutral france who arrived in madrid today.

"i have never seen a country where the citizens have insulted the government with a more thorough lack of interest than france," one of these travelers told the associated press.

a story current among frenchmen now is that laval has recently been trying to get himself put in jail by the germans in order to acquire a halo of martyrdom, but that the nazis refused to humor him, the travelers reported.

the vichy correspondent of the barcelona newspaper La Prensa xx said in a dispatch xx that laval is now one of the ~~x~~ important figures inn france who has no important public enemy. the reason for this, he reported, is by no means that laval has no enemies.

"he lacks none at all," said the correspondent, negatively.

"but the fact of the matter is that no important enemies of laval have emerged recently because nobody wants to take his place."

the same correspondent, ramon borobio, xx writing from vichy, described france as a bomb which everybody is waiting to see explode. he added that the question xxxx is no longer whether laval will remain as the german "front" in france but whether the germans themselves will stay in xxxxx that xx country.

there was a time, borobio wrote, before sardinia and corsica were removed as barriers to an allied landing on french soil from the mediterranean when some frenchmen were interested in the constant quarrels between members of the vichy government, but that situation has ceased to exist. the french public no longer hate or defend laval or marshal philippe petain--they just ignore them, according to borobio. #

MILITARY SPOKESMEN AGREED THAT THE CAPTURE OF FOGGIA WITH COMPARATIVELY FEW CASUALTIES ON THE PART OF ALLIED COLUMNS WAS THE MOST IMPORTANT VICTORY THUS FAR IN THE ITALIAN CAMPAIGN.

NOT ONLY DOES THE CITY CONTAIN THE LARGEST AND BEST EQUIPED AIR BASE IN SOUTHERN ITALY BUT IT IS THE JUNCTION POINT FOR RAILWAYS WHICH RUN SOUTH TO THE EAST COAST CITIES OF BARI AND BRINDISI AND THE INLAND CITY OF POTENZA, ALL OF WHICH ARE NOW IN ALLIED HANDS.

ANOTHER ELECTRIC RAILWAY CUTS ACROSS THE PENINSULA TO NAPLES.

DANIEL DE LUCE, ASSOCIATED PRESS WAR CORRESPONDENT WITH THE EIGHTH ARMY, SAID THAT THE CAPTURE OF FOGGIA CAME AFTER A SPEEDY 80-MILE DRIVE UP FROM BARI.

THE CITY ITSELF WAS TAKEN WITHOUT A SHOT MONDAY AFTERNOON, HE SAID, AND THE BRITISH ARMORED COLUMNS ROLLED INTO A DEAD CITY HAMMERED INTO A HEAP OF RUBBLE BY SUCCESSIVE ALLIED RAIDS THAT STARTED WITH THE INVASION OF SICILY.

THE GERMAN WITHDRAWAL WAS SO HURRIED, DE LUCE DECLARED THAT THE GERMAN'S DID NOT HAVE TIME TO UNDERTAKE THE EXTENSIVE DEMOLITIONS

AND LAND MINING ENCOUNTERED IN OTHER PARTS OF THE BOOT.

THE CORONATO WOODS YIELDED LARGE STOCKS OF AIRPLANE PARTS AND BOMBS AND IN THE CITY'S RAILWAY YARDS THE BRITISH FOUND 60 LOCOMOTIVES AND CONSIDERABLE ROLLING STOCK ONLY SLIGHTLY DAMAGED.

FROM ITALIAN NAVAL OFFICERS CAME WORD THAT THE GERMANS HAVE SEIZED THE BIG ITALIAN LINER REX BUT THEY SAID THE CONTE DI SAVOIA HAD BEEN SCUTTLED BY HER ITALIAN CREW. THE TWIN MOTORSHIPS VULCANIA AND SATURNIA, CONVERTED INTO TRAINING SHIPS, ATTEMPTED TO FLEE THE NAZIS. THE VULCANIA WAS CAPTURED BUT THE SATURNIA REACHED A PORT UNDER ALLIED CONTROL, THE ITALIANS SAID.

ABOARD A U.S.AIRCRAFT CARRIER IN THE PACIFIC, SEPT.20-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THE JAPANESE ZERO IS "A GOOD AIRPLANE WITH A GLASS JAW." IT CAN DO ALMOST ANYTHING EXCEPT TRADE PUNCHES.

THAT'S THE WAY LIEUT.COMMANDER ERNIE SNOWDEN, COMMANDER OF A NAVY DIVE BOMBING SQUADRON, LOOKS AT IT.

SNOWDEN OF (131 CRAVEN ST.) BEAUFORT, N.C., IS A VETERAN OF THE SOUTH PACIFIC FIGHTING. HE COMMANDED A SCOUTING SQUADRON ABOARD THE OLD U.S.CARRIER WASP AT THE TIME THAT SHE WAS LOST.

HE LEARNED ABOUT ZEROS AND OTHER JAPANESE AIRCRAFT WHILE WINNING THE NAVY CROSS FOR SOME HEAVY PUNCHING AROUND FLORIDA ISLAND IN THE EARLY STAGES OF THE SOLOMONS FIGHTING. H E BLEW THE TOP OFF GAVUTU ISLAND WITH A 1,000-POUND BOMB, UPROOTING SEVERAL TROHBLESOME GUN EMPLACEMENTS AND MAKING MARINE LANDINGS A BIT EASIER.

HE THEN FLEW, AND STILL FLIES, THE NAVY SBD DIVE BOMBER WHICH IS NOT A FIGITER PLANE. BUT PILOTS IN THE PACIFIC OFTEN MAKE THEIR PLANES DO DOUBLE DUTY.

"THE JAP PLANES ARE MANEUVERABLE ENOUGH BUT THEY SIMPLY CAN'T TAKE IT, AND OUR PLANES," HE SAID. "SOMETIMES THEY GET IN THE FIRST LICK. OUR SHIPS SHAKE IT OFF AND COUNTERPUNCH AND THE JAP EITHER EXPLODES OR BURNS UP, OR BOTH. THE DIFFERENCE LIES IN THE ARMOR. WHEN TWO PLANES ARE EQUALLY ARMORED, THE MAN WHO GETS THERE FIRST WITH THE MOST BULLETS WINS. BUT THAT DOESN'T HOLD WHEN ONE SHIP CAN TAKE PUNISHMENT AND THE OTHER CAN'T."

NOW IF THE MUSCOWITES HAVE THE RESERVE STRENGTH TO DEVELOP THIS MOVEMENT, IT WILL CUT OFF T OF HITLERITES IN THAT WHOLE NORTHERN ZONE WHICH HAS ITS APEX IN LENINGRAD. OF COURSE THIS DRIVE IS IN ITS INFANCY, AND PREDICTIONS THEREFORE ARE STRICKLY OUT OF ORDER. IT MAY OR MAY NOT COME OFF. WANAWANA ISLAND, SEPT.17-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THE CHIEF OF ALL THE MUNDA TRIBES--THEY ONCE WERE AMONG THE WORLD'S MOST FEROCIOUS WARRIORS--HAS DECIDED THE AMERICANS CAN KEEP MUNDA AND ALL OF NEW GEORGIA ISLAND, FROM NOW ON, IF THEY WANT IT.

"TOO MANY BATTLES THERE," EXPLAINED THE CHIEF, 35-YEAR-OLD BLACK-SKINNED JOHN BITIMBULI.

"ALL THE NATIVES ARE FRIGHTENED BY THE NOISE OF AIRPLANES AND BOMBS AND SHOOTING. WE HAVE MOVED HERE TO A VILLAGE WE WILL CALL MAUNDU. IT IS BEAUTIFUL HERE, AND QUIET. WE WILL NEVER GOBACK TO MUNDA."

"I WENT TO MUNDA THE OTHER DAY, JUST TO SEE," HE CONTINUED. "ALL THE BEAUTIFUL TREES WERE KNOCKED DOWN. THERE WERE GREAT HOLES EVERYWHERE FROM SHELLS AND BOMBS. HUNDREDS OF AIRPLANES WITH THE AMERICAN STAR ON THEM WERE TAKING OFF FROM A FIELD ON THE SPOT WHERE I WAS BORN.

"THE AMERICANS TOOK ME FOR A RIDE IN A JEEP--ALL AROUND. I SAW EVERYTHING. IT WAS TERRIBLE. I DO NOT KNOW WHETHER I EVER WANT TO SEE MUNDA AGAIN."

JOHN BITIMBULI SPOKE AS WE ATE WATERMELON UNDER A GREAT SPREADING TROPICAL TREE BETWEEN THE MAUNDU (CORRECT) VILLAGE METHODIST CHURCH AND THE BEACH, ACROSS FIVE MILES OF WATER FROM MUNDA. HE SPOKE SLOWLY, IN PERFECT ENGLISH LEARNED AT THE OLD MUNDA MISSION SCHOOL.

HE WORE A YELLOW SKIRT, NO SHIRT NOR SHOES, NOR HAT. HIS TEETH WERE A DIRTY GOLD COLOR FROM CHEWING BETEL NUTS. THE CROWN ON HIS BLACK WOOLLY HAIR WAS PINK, FROM LIME HE RUBS ON IT DAILY.

"YEARS AGO, WHEN MY FATHER WAS CHIEF," HE CONTINUED, "THE NATIVES THOUGHT MUNDA WAS TOO TAME. THEY WENT IN CANOES TO CHOISEUL AND KOLOMBANGARA AND OTHER ISLANDS AND FOUGHT WITH THE NATIVES OF THOSE ISLANDS. THEN THE BRITISH CAME, AND EVERYTHING WAS THE SAME FOR MANY YEARS. NOTHING EVER HAPPENED.

"THEN THE JAPANESE CAME -- ONLY LAST YEAR. THEN THE AMERICANS CAME.

"THE NATIVES LEFT WHEN THE JAPANESE CAME, BECAUSE THE JAPANESE DO NOT SMELL GOOD AND THE NATIVES HAVE GOOD NOSES. THE AMERICANS SAY WE CAN GO BACK NOW. THE AMERICANS ARE GOOD TO US. BUT MUNDA IS CHANGED TOO MUCH.

"WE WILL STAY ON WANAWANA."

CAPTURE OF FOGGIA IN SOUTHERN ITALY--GREAT COMMUNICATIONS CENTER AND FOCAL POINT OF A BAKER'S DOZEN UP-TO-DATE AIRDROMES--REPRESENTS ONE OF THE MAJOR TRIUMPHS OF THE MEDITERRANEAN WAR, FOR IT'S THE KEY TO VAST NEW FIELDS OF ALLIED ENDEAVOR.

POSSESSION OF FOGGIA WILL PERMIT US TO UNLEASH A FRESH TORNADO OF BOMBING AND FIGHTING PLANES. FIRST OFF, IT SHOULD GREATLY EXPEDITE THE CONQUEST OF THE ITALIAN PENINSULA, FOR IT WILL GO FAR TOWARDS BREAKING THE BACK OF GERMAN RESISTANCE THERE. AN EARLY DEVELOPMENT SHOUD BE NAZI EVACUATION OF THE HOTLY CONTESTED NAPLES REGION.

BUT OUR GUN-SIGHTS CAN BE RAISED TO MUCH MORE DISTANT HORIZONS. FROM FOGGIA WE CAN REACH INTO GERMANY TO VITAL CENTERS WHICH HERETOFORE HAVE BEEN DIFFICULT TO BOMB. WE'VE DESTROYED A HUGE PORTION OF HITLER'S INDUSTRIAL STRUCTURE, AND NOW MUCH OF THE BALANCE IS WITHIN OUR RANGE. THE BALKANS LIE OPEN TO THE FLYING FIELDS OF FOGGIA -- A MATTER OF THE UTMOST IMPORTANCE AT THIS MOMENT WHEN THE COCKPIT OF SOUTHEASTERN EUROPE IS SQUIRMING TO ESCAPE HITLER'S CLUTCH.

ITALY ISN'T THE ONLY THEATER TO PRODUCE SENSATIONS, HOWEVER, FOR THE RUSSIANS HAVE BROACHED A NEW OPERATION WHICH MAY BE A BLOCKBUSTER. THAT'S UP ON THE LENINGRAD END OF THEIR FLAMING FRONT. DO YOU REMEMBER THAT NIGHT A COUPLE OF YEARS AGO WHEN HITLER IN ONE OF HIS BOMBASTIC SPEECHES DEFIED THE UNITED STATES, DARED BRITAIN TO INVADE FRANCE AND, AS A SPECIAL MARK OF HIS PROWESS, PROCLAIMED THAT LENINGRAD "IS SURROUNDED AND NO ONE WILL FREE IT AGAIN AND IT WILL FALL INTO OUR HANDS?"

THAT WAS THE TIME WHEN THIS BIRTHPLACE OF THE RED REVOLUTION WAS BEING DEFENDED NOT ONLY BY RUSSIAN SOLDIERY BUT BY ITS CITIZENS--MEN AND WOMEN, YOUNG AND OLD. IT WAS A WINTER OF HORROR, OF VIOLENT DEATH AND THE SLOW TORTURE OF STARVATION AND BITTER COLD, BUT STILL THEY CLUNG TO THEIR CITY. SOMEHOW THE HITLERIAN RING WAS PUSHED BACK UNTIL LENINGRAD NO LONGER WAS ISOLATED, THOUGH THE INVADERS HAVE CONTINUED TO HOLD THEIR LINE NOT FAR FROM THE SOUTHERN SIDE OF THE CITY.

WELL, THE RUSSIANS NOW AS PART OF THEIR GREAT OFFENSIVE AGAINST THE NAZIS ARE BEGINNING AN OPERATION WHICH, IT STRIKES ME, IS CALCULATED TO BE THE PAY-OFF FOR HITLER'S CRIME AGAINST THE CITY OF THE RED REVOLUTION. I REFER TO THE CAPTURE OF THE STRATEGIC CITY OF SMOLENSK AND THE CONTINUING DRIVE WESTWARD. PLEASE GET OUT YOUR MAPS WHILE WE SEE WHAT THIS MEANS, FOR IT'S AS FASCINATING A DISPLAY OF TACTICS AS WE ARE LIKELY TO ENCOUNTER.

AMERICAN TANKS ENTER OUTSKIRTS OF ITALIAN PORT

GALLAGHER

Germans Report Evacuation of Burning, Ravaged West Coast Harbor.

FALL OF CITY NEAR

British Advance Swiftly in Drive Up Eastern Area.

TRUCK CONVOYS BOMBED

Heavy Allied Casualties Reported in Violent Land Battles.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 30. — (AP) Beaten German forces streamed north out of burning Naples tonight toward their next defense line in the hills just short of Rome, 135 miles away, as American tanks clanked into the outskirts of the great port from the south after skirting Mt. Vesuvius.

(A Berlin dispatch to Stockholm said the Germans had evacuated Naples, and the Nazi-controlled Italian radio said a British fleet was shelling the ravaged city.)

Yanks Pass Pompei

At last report American armored columns had fought their way past the ruins of ancient Pompei to reach Torre Annunziata, arms and iron center nine miles south of Naples and within clear view of their goal.

With the first great step in the conquest of Italy nearing completion in the capture of a superb deepwater port, it was announced that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied commander in chief, met yesterday with Marshal Pietro Badoglio to discuss the future use of Italy's army and navy against the Nazis.

(The German-controlled Vichy radio said tonight that "Naples no longer is inside the German defense line in southern Italy. The German line now runs north of the city.")

Fall of City Near

The fall of Naples was near. The five German divisions bulwarking the Nazi defense were seen fleeing into the city and then streaming to the north and northeast in orderly retreat.

The unbroken advance of the American Fifth army rolled beyond Mercato San Severino, 22 miles southeast of Naples, and approached the broad plains of Vesuvius in a move that threatened to flank the city of 925,000 and trap any German rear guards who elected to fight there behind street barricades.

The Allies already were thinking about Rome, Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's second announced objective, which lies 135 rail miles north of Naples across broad plains netted with excellent highways. A military spokesman today quoted an old schoolbook saying, "All roads lead to Rome," adding that the Nazis face an almost impossible military task of supplying their troops south of the capital for a full scale battle unless they use Rome as a fortified, and not an open, city.

British Advance Rapidly

The extreme right flank of the Allied line across Italy rapidly was investing the Adriatic coast. The British Eighth army advanced 20 miles north of Zapponeto to capture Manfredonia on the gulf of that name. Some indications were that Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery might be hurling part of his forces westward to flank the Volturno river, 20 miles north of Naples, to which the main body of Marshal Albert Kesselring's army appeared to be fleeing.

The frontal and flanking approaches to Naples were mined and demolished extensively. These familiar German retreat tactics were particularly annoying to the British and American troops of the Fifth beating upon Naples along the narrow coastal bottleneck between Vesuvius and the sea. But already the army was well ensconced on the Naples plains and exerting ever-increasing pressure with strong armored forces—tanks, armored cars, mobile artillery and the like.

Large, systematic demolitions slowed the French cleanup of Corsica, their Mediterranean island 100 miles below France. U. S. Rangers and Moroccan Goums destroyed a tank and machine-gun carrier in a raid on Barchetta, 12 miles southwest of Bastia. The French airforce destroyed six planes, including four large Junkers-52 transports, and attacked a convoy off Bastia. The French communique said "Shock battalion and patriot troops are eagerly pursuing the enemy" between Aleria, 40 miles below Bastia, and Folelli, 16 miles south.

The modern town of Pompei, which rose from the ruins of the city obliterated by Vesuvius' most violent eruption in 79 A.D., and Mercato San Severino fell yesterday.

Bombers Hit Trucks

Airmen, who spotted the Germans fleeing into Naples and beyond to the north and northeast, bombed their truck convoys.

The Allied communique covered action only to 6 p. m. Wednesday and fresh gains ranged from one to five miles near the Gulf of Naples.

Allied casualties were heavy. Incomplete figures, excluding most of the violent action leading to the bursting of the final mountain barrier south of Naples, showed 8,708 British and American troops killed, wounded or missing.

Three British correspondents were killed by a Mark-III tank at the edge of the Naples plain Tuesday. They were A. B. Austin of The London Daily Herald, Stewart G. Sale of Reuters and William J. Munday of The London News Chronicle and Sydney (Australian) Morning Herald. A fourth British writer, Basil Gingell of Exchange Telegraph, was injured slightly. They were the first correspondents killed by enemy action in Sicily or Italy.

Casualties Reported

British divisions of the Fifth army suffered 5,211 casualties between Sept. 9-20 and the Americans through Sept. 15 of the same period lost 3,497 men. The high proportion of casualties, considering the number of troops involved, gave an indication of the fierceness of mountain fighting by the infantry which preceded the armored surge into and beyond Pompei.

As the Fifth army advanced on Naples, great columns of smoke and flame leaped from the city of horror. Engineers did yeoman service in swiftly digging out minefields. In contrast, the Eighth army pushed along the Adriatic and beyond the great air center of Foggia without encountering extensive mines or effective resistance.

The Foggia plain, which extends 30 miles north of Foggia, was declared almost entirely under Allied domination.

The fall of Naples will complement the earlier seizure of Foggia, 50 miles to the northeast. The great harbor of Naples is large enough to accommodate a tremendous marshalling of Allied might, just as the 13 Foggia air fields will base the predominant air forces. Naples' harbor has been wrecked extensively, and upwards of 30 ships have been scuttled to block its docks. Allied experience in North Africa and Sicily, however, showed that harbors cannot be permanently sabotaged.

Weather Aids Airforce

Bright, windy weather prevailed instead of heavy rains, allowing medium bombers to destroy bridges, roads and junctions within 45 miles of Naples to the north, northeast and east.

Main targets were Cancello, Piano, Amorosi, Castelvenere, Apollinare, Benevento and Formia. All are on German retreat routes. Fighters and fighter-bombers patrolled the "Benevento battle area, attacking targets of opportunity," the Allied communique said. Benevento is 32 miles northeast of Naples.

Lightning fighters bombed and strafed a highway bridge two miles east of Apollinare "striking at enemy troops moving north of the battle area around Naples," an air force statement said. The resurgent aerial attacks complicated German movements.

The Naples area was completely free of German planes yesterday.

British and Canadian Wellingtons resumed their actions last night after three days of weather-enforced idleness, pounding the railroad and highways near Formia, 43 miles northwest of Naples. Bright flashes indicated the destruction of electric rail lines.

One Allied plane was lost in all operations.

An official summary said medium bombers had achieved these results in attacks on enemy retreat lines beyond Naples:

The Amorosi bridge on the major supply line 27 miles northeast of Naples was put out of commission by direct hits on both approaches. An important rail bridge south of Cancello on the Naples line was severed in several places. Other bridges around Cancello and Piano were attacked and several were immobilized. The approaches to a bottleneck bridge at Castelvenere on the Naples-Benevento road were ripped up and left temporarily impassable.

Middle East bombers again attacked German airfields in Greece and Rhodes and the enemy hit back at the R.A.F.'s Dodecanese base at Coo.

Rolling In on City.

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Sept. 30 (A. P.). —The Allied Fifth Army rolled across the coastal plain at the foot of Vesuvius today toward the towers of smoke and flame that marked the city of Naples, Italy's second greatest port.

GALLAGHER

Overrunning Pompeii, the modern town of 4,000 people built on the ashes of its ancient namesake destroyed in A. D. 79, troops of Lieut.-Gen. Mark W. Clark drove to the southern slopes of Vesuvius and began the last stages of their approach around the base of the great volcano.

Allied Headquarters announced the capture of both Pompeii, ten miles along the coast from Naples, and Mercato San Severino, twenty - two miles southeast of the big port, which has been shaken and swept for a week by the explosions and fires set by German demolition crews, and ridden by machine-gun squads reported to have excited a reign of terror among the people.

Troops Believed Closer.

But it was probable that the troops were much closer than disclosed by the communique which usually contains no information of operations later than 6 P. M. of the preceding day.

The weather turned from rain to warm as General Shermans and other tanks of the Fifth Army rumbled to the outskirts of Torre Annunziata, beating down rearguard opposition and pressing on despite extensive minefields and demolitions which had ruined roads and bridges. The capture of Torre Annunziata would place the Fifth Army nine miles from the Naples city limits along the flat plain bordering the gulf.

The bulk of the German defenders had apparently fled into Naples and then on to the north, according to an Air Force announcement which told of bombarding Nazi truck columns to the northeast of the city.

The fierce rush of Gen. Clark's troops through the mountain ring had cost dearly, however. A military spokesman announced that British divisions of the Fifth Army suffered 5,211 casualties from September 9, when the battle of Salerno began, to September 20. This was a high proportion of casualties considering the number of troops involved.

[The War Department announced last Saturday that American casualties at Salerno, up to September 15, totaled 3,497.]

Eighth Army Also Gains.

While Gen. Clark's Fifth Army continued its unbroken advance, Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's Eighth Army along the Adriatic continued to consolidate the newly won air bases at Foggia, only 160 miles from Rome, and branched out to reach Manfredonia, on the coast, in a twenty-mile advance from Zapponeto.

Medium bombers of the North African Air Force took to the air and raided Cancello, Benevento, Formia, Piano and Amorosi—all along the escape routes the German forces must follow in their retreat before the advancing Allies. Road junctions were blasted near Cancello, thirteen miles northeast of Naples, near Amorosi, twenty-seven miles to the northeast, and near Piano, the communique declared.

Fighters and fighter-bombers also swept over the Benevento battle area, thirty-two miles northeast of Naples toward the center of the peninsula, attacking targets that presented themselves. Fighter bombers shot up a bridge near Apollinare. A night flight to Formia, along the coast forty-three miles northwest of Naples, was the deepest penetration into enemy territory. One Allied aircraft failed to return in the last twenty-four hours. No German planes were encountered, according to the communique, which made belated announcement of the destruction of three additional enemy aircraft in a fight on September 25.

City Is Being Surrounded.

London, Sept. 30 (A. P.).—The Cairo ra[illegible] in a broadcast recorded by Reuters today that the Allied Fifth Army is rapidly surrounding the city of Naples from the south and southeast.

Late this afternoon the German-controlled Fascist radio declared that "at this moment the British fleet is bombarding Naples." There was no confirmation of this report from any other quarter.

In a communique broadcast by the Berlin radio, the German High Command said that the harbor installations at Naples had been destroyed in an effort to prevent Allied landings, and that "very severe measures were taken against communist riots which are flaring up" within the city.

Nazis Tell of Naples Riots

LONDON, Sept. 30 (AP).—A D. N B. dispatch broadcast from Berlin said tonight "very severe" measures had been taken against Italians in Naples — apparently an acknowledgment of refugees' charges of killings as well as of destruction by demolitions and torch.

The broadcast told of widespread rioting and of attacks on German soldiers, but boasted that harbor installations had been so thoroughly destroyed that Allied landings would be impossible anywhere around the Gulf of Naples for a long time.

While attempting to charge much of the destruction to Allied air bombardments and to sabotage by resisting Italians, the German news agency made it clear the city was indeed one of the war's worst-ravaged great towns.

"The town of Naples has suffered terribly," the broadcast said. "The destruction of her entire harbor area could neither be prevented nor hampered by the Allies. Large districts of the town itself are in ashes."

[The German communique hinted at the evacuation of Naples, saying: "Harbor installations have been thoroughly destroyed to prevent enemy landings. Severest measures have been taken against Communist riots. The enemy in general followed up our movements with rather weak forces. British tank forces pressing strongly south of Vesuvius were halted." A Berlin dispatch to Stockholm said that "Communist revolt and extensive sabotage partly forced the evacuation" of Naples, and added that "rebels" were assisting the 5th Army south of Naples.]

Naval Bombardment Reported

LONDON, Sept. 30 (AP)—The German-controlled fascist radio announced in mid-afternoon today that "at this moment the British fleet is bombarding Naples." There was no confirmation of the report from any quarter.

Badoglio Sees Eisenhower, Maps Strategy

Conference on the Nelson, at Malta, Charts Italians' Fight Against Germans

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 30.—General Dwight D. Eisenhower and Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio conferred yesterday at Malta on plans for throwing all available Italian military and naval strength into the war against Germany, an Allied headquarters statement disclosed today.

At the same time it was revealed that Badoglio, who was forced to flee from Rome when the Germans took over the country, had formed a new Cabinet composed principally of military figures.

Announcement of the new Cabinet listed the aged marshal as "head of the government." Members announced were General Vittorio Ambrosio, chief of staff; General Mario Roatta, army chief of staff; Rear Admiral Raffaelo de Courten, Minister of Marine; General Renato Sandalli, Air Minister, and the Duke of Aquarone, Minister to the Royal Household.

The Allied announcement said that Italian army, air and naval forces already had been engaged actively against "the common enemy, Germany," but there was no immediate indication whether there would be a formal Italian declaration of war against the Nazis.

The importance attached to the dramatic conference between Badoglio and the Allied commander in chief in the Mediterranean aboard the British battleship Nelson in Malta Harbor, where there still is abundant evidence of the devastation wrought by Italian as well as German bombers, was indicated by the presence of the top-[illegible]oglio and the Allied commander in chief in the Mediterranean aboard the British battleship Nelson in Malta Harbor, where there still is abundant evidence of the devastation wrought by Italian as well as German bombers, was indicated by the presence of the top-ranking members of Eisenhower's staff.

Those attending included General Sir Harold R. L. G. Alexander, Allied ground commander in this theater; Admiral Sir Andrew Browne Cunningham, commander of Allied naval forces in the Mediterranean; Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur W. Tedder, the Mediterranean air commander; Harold Macmillan, British Minister in North Africa; Robert D. Murphy, American Minister in North Africa, and Major General Walter Bedell Smith, Eisenhower's chief of staff.

The official statement on the conference emphasized military co-operation against Germany, but the presence of Murphy and Macmillan suggested that the sudden emergence of Italy as a co-belligerent of the United Nations also was discussed.

The text of the communique was as follows:

"Yesterday, Sept. 29, the Allied commander in chief met Marshal Badoglio to discuss military questions of mutual interest. The conference was held in Malta on board the flagship of Vice-Admiral Willis, H. M. S. Nelson.

"Marshal Badoglio was accompanied by members of his military, naval and air staff, while the commander in chief was accompanied by Admiral of the Fleet Cunningham, General Alexander, Air Chief Marshal Tedder, Allied Chief of Staff Major General Bedell Smith, Harold Macmillan and Robert Murphy.

"The principal topic of discussion was the method for making most effective Italian military efforts against the common enemy, Germany.

"Some units of Italian military, air and naval forces have already been engaged actively against the Germans.

Determination of how Italy could best contribute to the war on Germany would certainly involve examination of these questions:

1. Whether the Italian fleet, which seldom sailed the Mediterranean since the outbreak of war, could function more effectively with Italian than with Allied personnel.

2. Whether hundreds of thousands of Italian prisoners held by the United States and Britain could be more effectively employed as labor battalions or should be reorganized and re-equipped as combat forces.

3. Whether some parts of the warships and merchant shipping which came over to the Allies under Badoglio's orders should be turned over to the French as compensation for French vessels seized by the Axis earlier in the war.

4. Whether the Italians, if intrusted with an actual combat role against the Germans, could be depended upon to stand firm against their former Axis partners.

5. Whether the job of feeding and otherwise supplying the portions of Italy freed from the Germans will strain Allied shipping resources needed for military purposes.

Special Communique Announces Full Staff Discussions on Board British Battleship.

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Sept. 30 (A. P.).—Gen. Eisenhower, the Allied commander in chief in the Mediterranean, conferred with the Italian Premier, Marshal Badoglio, on military co-operation aboard a warship at Malta yesterday, an official announcement said today.

Gen. Eisenhower was accompanied by Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, the Allied ground commander; Admiral Sir Andrew Browne Cunningham, commander of the Allied naval forces; Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Tedder, commander of the Allied Air Forces; Harold MacMillan, the British Minister in North Africa, and Robert Murphy, the American Minister.

[In a dispatch from Berne, quoting the Milan newspaper Italia, A. P. said late today that several thousand British prisoners of war, liberated by the Badoglio government after the armistice, have succeeded in partly arming themselves and are attempting to fight their way south to join the British Eighth Army in Apulia.]

Italian Troops Fighting.

The conference was held aboard the British battleship, H. M. S. Nelson, the flagship of Vice-Admiral A. U. Willis, and "the principal topic of discussions was the method for making the most effective Italian military effort against the common enemy, Germany," the announcement said, adding that "some units of Italian military, air and naval forces have already been engaged actively against the Germans."

The text of the communique said:

"Yesterday, September 29, the Allied Commander in Chief met Marshal Badoglio to discuss military questions of mutual interest. The conference was held in Malta on board the flagship of Vice-Admiral Willis, H. M. S. Nelson.

"Marshal Badoglio was accompanied by members of his military, naval and air staff, while the Commander in Chief was accompanied by Admiral of the Fleet Cunningham, Gen. Alexander, Air Chief Marshal Tedder, Allied Chief of Staff Major-Gen. Bedell Smith, Harold MacMillan and Robert Murphy.

REDS SHELL KIEV FROM EAST BANK OF DNIEPER RIVER

Suburbs of City and Isles in Stream Are Taken by Soviet Troops.

Moscow, Sept. 30 (A. P.).—Red Army guns shelled the Germans on the high cliffs of Kiev from numerous positions in the suburbs of the eastern bank of the Dnieper today.

The Russians were in possession of the entire eastern suburbs of the city, some of which lie less than 100 yards across the river. They were at the railway and highway bridges on the eastern side of the villages of Posdnyaky, Predmostnaya Sloboda and Trukanhov Island, all in Kiev's front yard. These are just across the river and actually are not villages but subdivisions of the city.

[In a communique broadcast by the Moscow radio and picked up tonight at London, the Soviet High Command announced the capture of Krichev, a key railway junction in northern White Russia, and declared that other Russian forces had gained from six to eight miles in their advance on Gomel. This indicated that the fall of Gomel was imminent.]

Snipers Picking Off Nazis.

Russian troops are so close to the city that in many places they are able to rake the cliffs with machine guns, and snipers are busy picking off unwary Germans.

Soviet forces which pushed into the suburbs on the eastern bank of the river are exposed to heavy fire from natural fortifications along the towering west bank where ancient cells of monks hewn into the high cliff afford excellent machine gun and light gun nests for the Germans.

[The Berlin radio said that Soviet forces were continuing big-scale crossing thrusts along the central Dnieper without revealing the success of the assaults. It added that Russian reinforcements were being thrown against German defenses near Zaporozhe, on the river south of Dnepropetrovsk, and Soviet forces "are still attacking with powerful forces in the Kuban."]

Red Plan Not Clear Yet.

It is not known here whether the Germans have destroyed railway and highway bridges spanning the Dnieper at Kiev, and there is no indication whether the Russians intend to storm the city's high cliffs frontally from across the river or flank it by crossings to the north and south.

There were no reports here either that Soviet forces had already crossed the river either directly above or below Kiev. The fall of Gomel, river fortification above Kiev, appeared imminent as Soviet troops advanced to within twelve miles of the city from the northeast and other columns advanced from the south and east. Thirty villages lying athwart Gomel's approaches and transformed into outer fortifications have been captured, Red Star, official Army organ, said.

Still another Russian column pushing into White Russia above Gomel in the Mogilev sector, has occupied a number of villages, front line dispatches said.

Reds Drive Ahead in North.

London, Sept. 30 (A. P.).—With the capture of Rudnya, important communications center, midway between Smolensk and Vitebsk, Red Army forces today were plunging ahead toward the northern borders of White Russia, less than ten miles away.

The swift advance constituted a potential threat to German-held Poland, 100 miles further west, and Riga, capital and chief city of Latvia on the shores of the Baltic Sea.

A Reuters dispatch from Moscow quoted front-line dispatches as saying that the Russians had scored a ten-mile advance toward Zhlobin, fifty miles northwest of Gomel on the road to Minsk and a junction point on the last remaining rail link between the northern and southern German armies.

Reds Advance Swiftly.

The Red Army forces were reported rapidly advancing beyond Bolshe Nemki, fifty-two miles east of Zhlobin, where the drive toward Minsk apparently began. Minsky is approximately 175 miles nortwest of Gomel and twenty miles from the old Polish border.

A major victory reported by the Russian communique was the capture of Kremenchug, on the east bank of the Dnieper between Kiev and Dnepropetrovsk.

Capture of this strategic river city wiped out one of the last German bridgeheads on the east bank of the river, the Russians said, and isolated a sizeable Nazi force pocketed between the river and Poltava to the east. It also posed a direct flanking threat to German forces defending the great power city of Dnepropetrovsk, eighty-three miles to the southeast, should Soviet troops effect a crossing of the river in force.

Important Strongpoint Taken After Crossing of Sozh River.

LONDON, Friday, Oct. 1—(AP) Soviet troops fought to clean up the eastern bulge of White Russia today in new advances that overwhelmed Krichev, 57 miles east of the Dnieper river crossing at Mogilev, while to the south a crescendo of guns and bombs announced the beginning of the battle for Kiev, Moscov said today.

The capture of Krichev, bringing an order of the day from Premier Marshal Joseph Stalin, was said to have given the Russians an "important strongpoint and railway junction." To take the town where railroads to Mogilev and Orsha cross, the Soviet troops forced the Sozh river.

But it was only one move in a widespread battle on a 50-mile front to clear the area between the Besyad and Sozh rivers. The Soviet midnight bulletin, broadcast from Moscow and recorded by the Soviet monitor, said Red army mobile detachments were ferreting out the German emplacements, taking "a considerable number of prisoners."

Considerable Booty Seized

Much war material was captured and 2,200 Germans were declared killed in this area alone.

At Kiev, Soviet forces, installed in the cross-river eastern districts of the city, were less than a hundred yards across a narrow part of the Dnieper from the frowning claffs of the ancient city. Here German guns answer the attack from emplacements in the ancient cells of monks.

While the fight for the greatest prize since Kharkov was shaping, the Soviet daily communique, recorded by the Soviet monitor, made no mention of Kiev.

It told of the capture of Krichev and more than 170 other populated places in advances up to 12 miles while Soviet forces marched on toward Gomel and Vitebsk in the battle for White Russia.

South of Mogilev other Soviet forces which already had reached one point 12 miles from Gomel also moved up south and east. Moscow dispatches said Gomel's capture was expected hourly, but the communique merely recorded the capture of 50 inhabited localities in advances of from six to seven miles.

Gomel is the last city held by the Germans on the eastern side of the Dnieper.

Strong Defenses Erected

A dispatch in the Soviet army Moscow newspaper Red Star said the Germans have erected strong defenses on Gomel's approaches—a series of pillboxes and foxholes connected by trenches. Settlements have been transformed into strongholds surrounded by barbed wire, backed by artillery and mortars. But Red Star added that the Soviet forces had smashed 30 of these settlements and reached the eastern bank of the Sozh river which is only a few miles east of Gomel.

The communique also told of advances in the Vitebsk direction where yesterday the Russians captured Rudnya, 40 miles east of the city. More than 30 towns and hamlets were taken in this sector.

But it was the battle of Kiev that held the most drama on the long Russian battlefront. The taking of Kiev also would mean crossing the Dnieper at the heart of that vital German defense line.

Red army guns shelled the Germans on the high cliffs from their newly-won eastern emplacements. The Russians held both railway and highway bridges on the eastern side of the villages outside the city. The Russians also hold Trukhanov island, a sandy plain washed by the Dnieper and its arm, the Starik, in Kiev's front yard. They were just across the river and the villages they held actually were subdivisions of the city.

Snipers Slay Nazis

In many places the Russians were able to rake the Kiev cliffs with machineguns and snipers picked off Germans who were answering Russian fire.

A dispatch to the Moscow newspaper Pravda said the first air battles were taking place over Kiev despite fog and rain. Stormovik dive-bombers broke through to the enemy artillery and cleared the way for infantry advances. Messerschmitts came up to meet them but were reported downed after a sharp dog-fight.

Eddy Gilmore, Associated Press correspondent in Moscow, hinted Kiev may be taken by a direct frontal attack despite the formidable obstacles of terrain.

Reds Hold Initiative

"The fact that the Reds were able to push so close to the German positions means the Red army has the situation well in hand and gives the Germans no time to sit calmly behind barricades and pour down steel and death. With its commanding high cliffs Kiev would appear impregnable from attack across the river but this remains to be seen. With Russians in the front yard of the city the Germans must show extreme vigilance to prevent large scale night crossings."

Moscow dispatches said there were no indications whether the Germans had blown up highway and railway bridges over the river, but the Germans now had to decide whether the Reds would assault the city frontly or attack it by crossing north and south or even by wider operations to flank it.

South of Kiev where the Soviet Army reached the east bank of the Dnieper by the capture of Kremenchug, German broadcasts announced the railway bridge and other bridges across the river had been destroyed, and that Germans "counter-attacked successfully Russian units which managed to cross the river."

A "Red Star" dispatch said the Germans considered Kremenchug their most important Dnieper bridgehead and added that the Dnieper here was "most available for crossings." The Germans were said to have fled in near panic in this section despite a reported order from Adolf Hitler to hold out until the end.

"Pravda" said the Germans had time to set fire to the city, which is described now as a "huge bonfire." Thousands of Russian civilians were driven across the river

R. A. F. BOMBERS HAMMER BOCHUM IN RUHR VALLEY

Big Coke and Steel Center Blasted in Heavy Raid—Eight Planes Lost.

London, Sept. 30 (A. P.).—Returning to Germany's great Ruhr concentration of war industry after an interval of a month, a British bomber fleet last night gave the big iron city of Bochum its fifth heavy pounding of this year, it was announced today. A communique said eight of the bombers were missing.

Other objectives in the Ruhr Valley also were hit in the raid, the R. A. F.'s third attack against German war targets in the last eight nights.

Bochum, last attacked on June 25, is the center of Ruhr coke and steel industry. A heavy night raid on June 12 devastated 130 acres in the center of the city, which has a population of 320,000. Three large steel works, including branches of the Krupp combine are situated there, as well as many important coke, coal, iron, tin, zinc and chemical works.

Third Blow at Canal.

One hundred and fifty miles inland from the Dutch coast, Bochum is situated eleven miles west of Dortmund, amid other frequently bombed cities such as Duisburg, Krefeld and Munchen-Gladbach.

The attack represented the third blow this week at the Nazis' great industrial artery, the Dortmund-Ems Canal.

The Berlin radio, in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press here, said the Royal Air Force bombs dropped during the night "damaged the residential quarters of several towns, particularly in Bochum."

Berlin also broadcast a Stockholm dispatch reporting that foreign airplanes passed over southern Sweden in the night, flying in a southerly direction. What connection this had with the attack on the Ruhr was problematical, unless the British squadrons followed a circle route to avoid the heavy anti-aircraft defenses concentrated along the channel coasts.

100 BERLIN PLANTS WRECKED BY RAF

Aerial Pictures Show Great Damage To Nazi Capital's War Industries

RAF concludes month of peak Allied air activity with heavy attack on Ruhr industrial city of Bochum.....Page 2

[By the Associated Press]

London, Friday, Oct. 1—Enormous damage to Berlin's potent industrial structure is shown in aerial reconnaissance pictures made public today, revealing that at least one hundred factories lie in varying stages of destruction as a result of the last three RAF raids on the Nazi capital.

These raids on Berlin, which is just as important for its industrial output as for the fact that it is an administrative and population center, were made on August 23, August 31 and September 3.

Siemenstadt Hard Hit

The big concentration of bombs was notably effective in Siemenstadt, an industrial community of 250,000 people where light and heavy electrical equipment, of first importance to the German war effort, is manufactured. The great Siemens electrical works was partially wiped out.

The pictures show that a grotesque steel framework is all that remains of two big containers of the capital's second largest gas works, those located in the Mariendorf district. Three other gas works were hit as well.

Railroad Yards Wrecked

The Templehof railroad yards were blasted and five other freight yards and five passenger stations were destroyed or damaged, and the Unterspree power station at Charlottenberg was hit.

At least thirty of the hundred plants damaged were engineering and electrical works. Seventy-five per cent. of the buildings of the electro-chemical branch of the Siemens Schuckertwerke were burned to the ground, and flames ate through much of an electric motor works and an accessories plant.

A third of a rectifier plant where light electrical equipment is turned out was gutted.

Big Engineering Plants Bombed

Two high-explosive bombs fell on the main workshop of the important A. E. G. works in Brunnenstresse, producers of submarine power plants; two works of the Gesfur Elektristche Unternehmungen machine tool factory were damaged, and an X-ray works producing radio tubes also was hit.

Other engineering plants badly damaged included those of the Berliner Maschi Nenbeu, the Daimler-Benz, and the Klockner-Humboldt-Deutz companies.

The Askaniawerke at Mariendorf, where 7,000 workers manufacture optical instruments, suffered severe fire damage.

The report gave a list of sixty-five miscellaneous factories and industrial premises damaged, including two firms manufacturing balloon fabric and parachutes, two oil depots and a large leather works.

The attack, described by the Air ministry as heavy, was the third this week at the Nazis' important industrial artery, the Dortmund-Ems canal, which brings Scandinavian iron ore in from the sea. The northern terminus of the canal, Emden, was hit twice Monday, by daylight by American Fortresses and at night by the R.A.F.

September's operations included an unprecedented eight-day, nonstop round-the-clock cross-channel bombing offensive in conjunction with land and sea exercises which were nothing short of a shooting rehearsal of the Air forces' part in eventual invasion.

This was brought much closer by the Allied invasion of Italy, closing aerial pincers on Hitler's releaguered European fortress and raising the possibility of early short-range bombing of southern German and French targets and shuttle-bombing between England and Italy.

The Britain-based Fortress fleet of the American Eighth air force made ten raids in September, equalling July's previous peak, while the American Marauder medium bombers were out 20 days as against July's five. They hit some 40 targets, mainly air fields and railroad yards.

The Fortresses during the month executed their first dusk raids, landing in full darkness; and with a flare-signal system and a new bomb-suspension arrangement permitting transport of a lot of incendiaries in addition to high explosives, they made a scatter-bombing attack through heavy clouds to hit Emden in the Monday assault.

New Progress Attained By 8th Airforce in Month

LONDON, Sept. 30—(AP) The R.A.F. concluded a month of peak Allied air activity from Britain last night with a heavy attack on the Ruhr industrial city of Bochum, a nest of targets including three large steel works, and coke, coal, iron and chemical works.

It was the R.A.F.'s first attack on the Ruhr in September, a month devoted to nine powerful defense-dispersing blows at targets hundreds of miles apart, ranging from Berlin to central France and the Italian border, and a month which brought the American Eighth Air force's greatest progress to date.

The month's operations made it clear that Allied air fleets are moving from "groundwork" attacks to a phase of intensive operations preliminary only to the final big invasion drive against Germany.

Eight Bombers Lost

The R.A.F. lost eight bombers in hitting Bochum, a figure regarded as low and as reflecting inroads made on the German Air force's now mainly defensive force during the four weeks of continual hammering of Nazi bases, factories and planes.

Concentrated fires were started soon after the first bombs were dropped, and by the end of the attack smoke was rising 12,000 feet in the air, the Air ministry said tonight. Reports from the raiders agreed that the defenses were by no means so strong as at the beginning of the battle of the Ruhr. The attack was made in the early evening, the fliers going after tea and returning for a late supper.

It was the fifth attack of the war on Bochum, which lies 150 miles inland from the Dutch coast and has a population of more than 300,000. The steel works there include branches of the Krupp combine.

Canal a Target

The attack, described by the Air ministry as heavy, was the third this week at the Nazis' important industrial artery, the Dortmund-Ems canal, which brings Scandinavian iron ore in from the sea. The northern terminus of the canal, Emden, was hit twice Monday, by daylight by American Fortresses and at night by the R.A.F.

September's operations included an unprecedented eight-day, nonstop round-the-clock cross-channel bombing offensive in conjunction with land and sea exercises which were nothing short of a shooting fighter plane history, going all the way to the target—800 miles round-trip—with special extra gas tanks which did not prevent them from destroying 22 German opponents for a loss of one Thunderbolt.

First U. S. Doubleheader

The Fortresses also executed their first doubleheader, hitting Nantes in France twice in one day.

The force lost about 70 heavy bombers during the month (some communiques were not specific in counting losses), as against at least 114 for August. The lighter Marauders in approximately 3,000 sorties over 2 1-2 months with Thunderbolt escort have lost about a dozen ships.

Collaboration between the U.S.A.A.F. and the R.A.F. was intensified, with many joint targets on daylight medium bomber operations. The joint R.A.F.-Fortress attack on Emden Monday was another example.

The R.A.F. intensified its new multiple-target strategy to split defenses. They hit three targets on each of two successive raids.

Rubber Industries Blasted

The British struck hard against Germany's vital rubber supplies, bombing the big Dunlop plant at Mont Lucon, France, and twice hitting Hannover, site of the Continental Gummiewerke, Germany's largest rubber factory.

In nine major raids, including one against Berlin, two on the industrial center of Mannheim-Ludwigshafen, one on Munich and one on the Alpine tunnel at Modane, France, the R.A.F. lost 188 bombers, an average of about 21 per raid.

If the forces were of only 400 planes in each attack, this would amount to the five per cent loss regarded as economical.

Tonight, the Air ministry announced that Typhoons of the fighter command had set ablaze and sunk a small coastal vessel off Holland and set fire to a freighter which later was beached, listing badly. No planes were lost in the operations.

FOE REPORTED BADLY ROUTED BY YUGOSLAVS

Guerrillas Say Germans Retreat in Northeast of Italy.

HEAVY FIGHTING AT GORIZIA

Activity Is Believed in London to Foreshadow Major Balkan Development.

London, Sept. 30 (A. P.).—A patriot communique broadcast today from somewhere in Yugoslavia, and picked up here by Reuters, said that guerrilla forces had forced German troops to retreat at many places near the northeast Italian city of Gorizia and at Ljubljana in Yugoslavia. It made no mention of how far the irregulars had swept past Gorizia, which is twenty-five miles west of the Yugoslav border and thirty miles northwest of Trieste.

The London Daily Mail, however, quoting German radio accounts, said that the guerrillas had penetrated 100 miles into northern Italy to the Venice area. This account declared that fighting was in progress along a 125-mile front between Venice and Trieste to the northeast and northward toward the Austrian border in the Dolemite foothills. The Daily Mail also quoted a Berlin radio spokesman as saying that the entire area was unsafe and that German troop movements were possible only in convoys. Roads, bridges and railways were said to have been blasted.

Nazis Send Reinforcements.

South along the eastern shore of the Adriatic, the Germans were said to be rushing additional forces to the Dalmatian coastal sector to strengthen the battered troops which recaptured the port of Split after fifteen days of fighting.

The Yugoslav communique today said that heavy fighting was in progress near that city, the evacuation of which had been admitted earlier. In the port of Susak, adjoining the Italian city of Fiume, all positions were firmly held, and heavy losses were inflicted upon the enemy, it continued.

This Yugoslav fighting is without a doubt preliminary to major events in the Balkans which may lead to a junction of the Allied and Russian armies the London Daily Telegraph said.

Meanwhile the arrival in Cairo of young King Peter of Yugoslavia was viewed in London as the probable forerunner of an Allied move to bring about the unification of the two Yugoslav guerrilla armies which are estimated to total together about 300,000 men.

Milijoi Gavrilovic, Councilor of the Yugoslav embassy, said in London that the Nazis, tacitly admitting the fierceness of the fighting in Northeast Italy, had directed their forces to take no more prisoners. He added: "German war criminals must answer individually if they flout the rules of war and slaughter prisoners of a duly constituted army."

YUGOSLAV BATTLE NEAR THE STATURE OF MAJOR FRONT

W. WHITE

Thousands of Patriots Locked in Fight with German Troops.

LONDON, Sept. 30—(AP) Yugoslav patriots by scores of thousands savagely fought German troops tonight from the middle Adriatic to northeastern Italy, hacking at Hitler's tight-stretched southern European lines in battles now approaching the stature of a major front.

Split, on Yugoslavia's Adriatic coast, the port of Susak, 175 miles to the north near Italian Fiume, and the area of Gorizia, about 25 miles above Italian Trieste, were cores of heavy action involving many Nazi divisions. Fighting also was in progress in several other less critical areas.

Reports Heavy Fighting

The German High command indicated the scope of the military task suddenly heaped atop its grave reverses in Russia and Italy by declaring that in current action in the Gorizia area alone "Slovenian and Communist bands" had lost more than 1,000 killed and "several thousand prisoners." Nazi troops were reported to have been ordered to take no more prisoners.

The London Daily Telegraph declared, with seeming authority, that the Yugoslav fighting "without doubt is preliminary to major events in the Balkans, which may lead to a junction of Allied and Soviet armies."

Battle Rages at Split

In a communique broadcast by the Free Yugoslav station, heavy and indecisive fighting was reported about Split. It said patriot lines were holding strongly at Susak and that the Germans were suffering high casualties.

The Berlin radio told of bitter fighting in the Dolomite foothill between Venve and Trieste and said the entire area was "unsafe" for German troops. Nazi reinforcements were reported being rushed into the Dalmatian coastal sector to take some of the pressure off battered German troops who recaptured Split after 15 days of hard fighting.

All available information indicated that the weight of 25 or more German divisions shortly would be taken off the Allies by this half-submerged war in the Balkans.

It was even more important for what it foreshadowed, for it furnished the first large-scale test of the ability of subjected people to strike back at Hitler—to strike with effective discipline and with the aid and counsel of Allied officers as they now are doing.

All that was lacking was unity among the estimated 300,000 guerrilla forces of the two Yugoslav leaders—Josip Broz, known as "Tito," and Minister of War General Draja Mihailovic. There was hope of progress in this direction since the arrival in Cairo yesterday of young King Peter, who was expected to open negotiations to bring the two leaders together.

dying flicker from a past enemy. But it was not so.

Walked Into Danger.

"The enemy was still in force on the outskirts of the town," he continued, "and after our troops had knocked out an anti-tank gun and had knocked out at bayonet point a machine-gun post that fired from a well-hidden farm cart, the strength of resistance was made known. I had left my jeep and had walked down the road with my three friends.

"We stood in a knot by a street corner watching an assembly of armor when there was a blinding flash and a terrific explosion shook the ground.

"I was flung a great distance and was buried by falling debris. When I was able to look around I saw that my companions were dead."

Gingell suffered only scratches.

Ironically, the news the correspondents had been killed reached London only a few hours after a prophetic story by Austin had appeared in today's Daily Herald under the heading "On the Road to Death."

"Along the road to death we are driving to the plain of Naples," the dispatch began.

3 War Correspondents Killed

Reporters on Naples Front Are Caught Between Lines During Advance.

London, Sept. 30 (A. P.).—Three British war correspondents with the American Fifth Army have been killed near Naples, it was announced today. They were listed as A. B. Austin of the London Daily Herald, Steward G. Sale of Reuters News Service and William J. Munday of the Sydney Morning Herald and the London News Chronicle.

The British news men were with the leading units of Lieut.-Gen. Mark W. Clark's armor advancing upon Nocera, and it was after they had seen enemy opposition wiped out on the outskirts of the town that they were killed.

Basil Gingell, Exchange Telegraph correspondent, said the three were killed by a German shell. He said he and the trio had been met with such enthusiasm by villagers and peasants that "warning shots as we crossed a bridge seemed no more than a

"The worst is over," Austin added.

All Experienced in War.

Austin, who was 40 years old served during the battle of Britain as wing commander in charge of the press section of the R. A. F. Fighter Command. Returning to the Herald, he went on the Dieppe raid and then was with the British First Army during the Tunisian Campaign.

Munday, 33, had been in the Middle East, covered the Burma campaign, was with the Eighth Army in North Africa and landed with the Fifth Army at Salerno. His widow and a son live in Sydney.

Sale, 38, was in Berlin on Jan. 16, 1943, in a British heavy bomber. His widow and two sons survive.

23 Reporters Killed So Far.

In New York the magazine Editor and Publisher said the deaths announced today raised total British war correspondents' deaths to ten since the war began. Thirteen American war correspondents have been killed, three are missing and presumed dead, and sixty-seven have been wounded.

AID TO RED ARMY CITED BY JOUBERT

P. MOORE

British Air Chief Marshal Credits Allies With Diverting Nazi Strength

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sept. 30—British Air Chief Marshal Sir Philip Joubert said tonight that only one fourth of Germany's fighter planes, one half of her bombers—including dive bombers—and about two thirds of her divisions were fighting the Russians.

Sir Philip declared in a broadcast that credit for the 1943 Soviet army successes went first to Russia, but that the Allies deserved a share for their contributions of materials, weapons and food, and for diverting Nazi military power to other fronts.

Credit To Britain And U. S.

The air chief said he believed that Britain, on the basis of her manpower, had done much in diverting the Germans from the Russian front, and credited United States forces for the aid they contributed in North Africa, Sicily and Italy.

"But it must be realized," he continued, "that America's great land power hitherto has been mainly in the training state only. The majority of trained fighting men in the European theater are British and Dominion."

Spanish Writer Comments

At the same time, a Madrid dispatch quoted an article by "Colonel J. A. F.," Spanish military writer, in which he said the Allies now were able to provide adequate air cover for invasion operations in the Balkans, southern France or northern Italy.

The writer said he was baffled by "the limited activity of the Luftwaffe," saying it was absurd to think that Germany had lost her air power overnight. He predicted "very disagreeable surprises for Germany's enemies" in the air in the near future.

Nazi Plotters Sought to Sink The Queen Mary With 10,000

London Report Reveals Threat to Americans on Ship Which Carried Tens of Thousands From U. S. in 1942.

London, Sept. 30 (A. P.).—The liner Queen Mary carried tens of thousands of United States troops to fighting fronts around the world in 1942, it may now be disclosed. The role played by the liner as a troop transport was revealed after publication of a report telling how a German plot to sink her with 10,000 Americans aboard was foiled with discovery of a German radio transmitter at Sao Paulo, Brazil.

Early in the summer of 1942 the Queen Mary played an important part in saving Britain's desperate position at El Alamein, the Daily Mail's naval correspondent wrote.

"Once she steamed right through a pack of submarines estimated to number about twenty-five," he added, "and not one had time to get a torpedo trained on her.

"She went flat out from England with men and stores representing half a fully equipped division. Her passage from an English port, right around the Cape to Port Suez, a distance of some 12,000 miles, was made in a few weeks, including a stop at a South African port."

"It is safe to say," the correspondent added, "that the Queen Mary played a biggeer part than any other ship and perhaps the biggest individual part of any fighting unit in saving the situation."

Struck By Giant Wave.

With a full load of American troops aboard in the late winter in 1942, the writer said, the liner ran into giant storm-lashed seas which almost upset her. She was heading for a northwestern port and an enormous wave hit her broadside some 700 miles from port.

"She listed until her upper decks were awash, and those who had sailed in her since she first took to the sea were convinced she would never right herself," the correspondent wrote. "Her safety depended on no more than five inches. Had she gone those inches further to port the Queen Mary would have been no more."

"It as only exceptional seamanship on the part of the bridge officers that saw her through that tense period," he added. "By a quick turn of the helm her bows were brought dead on to this exceptional wave and she was safe."

In addition to taking Allied troops to the fighting front, the Queen Mary—which has accommodations to carry 12,000 to 20,000 men—has carried to overseas captivity thousands of Italian and German prisoners of war.

can soldiers aboard.

The brave story of "the Queen's" exploits, divested of its cloak of wartime censorship, indicated she was within five inches of disaster during this storm.

Carried Troops to Africa

Around the Cape of Good Hope to Suez she plied on the 12,000-mile route from Great Britain with reinforcements during the most critical hour of the campaign in the desert — an achievement which perhaps proved decisive in the British victory at El Alamein, the turning point of the war in the sandy wilderness.

Across the Atlantic to New York she went many times on timetable schedule. Her great grey bulk was a familiar sight on New York's waterfront. She was seen too at certain Canadian west and east coast ports.

Before Pearl Harbor she moved about the Pacific, shuttling Australian troops to Singapore.

Nazi Plot Thwarted

At one point in her career a Nazi plot to sink her with 10,000 Americans aboard was thwarted through the discovery of a German radio transmitter at Sao Paulo, Brazil. The story of the great liner's role as a troop transport came out with publication of this report.

The Queen Mary's closest call occurred during the winter of 1942 when, with a full load of Americans aboard, she was hit broadside by an enormous wave some 700 miles from port.

"She listed until her upper decks were awash and those who had sailed in her since she first took to sea were convinced she never would right herself," wrote the naval correspondent of the Daily Mail.

"Her safety depended on no more than five inches. Had she gone those inches further to port—he Queen Mary would have been no more.

"It was only exceptional seamanship on the part of her bridge officers that saw her through. By a quick turn of he. helm her bows were brought dead on to this exceptional wave and she was safe."

At this port her great bulk towered over waterfront buildings and practically supplied a backdrop for the town. After loading up she sped straight across the Atlantic, relying on her speed to carry her through submarine packs. Once she raced through a pack of about 25 and not one had time to get a torpedo trained on her.

Besides her work as a troop transport the Queen Mary carried thousands of Italian and German prisoners of war to overseas captivity.

She has accommodations to carry between 12,000 and 20,000 men.

Speedy Liner Queen Mary Has Eventful Year at Sea

Fierce Storm Nearly Capsizes Ship with Americans Aboard.

LONDON, Sept. 30 — (AP) Shorn of her peacetime elegance, the great and speedy British liner Queen Mary ranged the seven seas in 1942, carrying Allied troops to battlefronts over the world, it was disclosed today, and in one encounter with a fierce north Atlantic storm almost capsized with thousands of Britain-bound Ameri-

BRITISH FLEA PLANE NO SECRET WEAPON

London, Sept. 30 (A. P.).—Britain's newest "secret weapon," which has been causing a minor flurry in London, is a plane almost exactly the same as the Cub in which American sportsmen have been aerial joy riding for years, it was disclosed today.

The plane, known as the Taylorcraft Auster-3, has been used by the British with no attempt at secrecy since the beginning of the war, and is similar to the United States Army Air Force's standard Grasshopper observation plane.

The story of how the innocuous 100-mile-an-hour unarmed, two-seater cabin plane, used for observation and freight carrying, became magnified in a secret-weapon-conscious capital into a sensational new gadget is this:

A reporter for "Aeroplane" magazine wrote a technical description of a new model in place of the old model which saw service with the British Expeditionary Force in France and in the Tunisian campaign. This account was out for a week when a London newspaper picked up the story, described the plane as a startling innovation, and said that its newest stunt was to draw the enemy's fire.

Actually, it endeavors to stay as far away from enemy fire as possible. Both the British Army and the United States Army Air Force have found the little planes—despite their lack of armor—surprisingly successful in accomplishing their missions without being hit. Germany and most other nations have similar types of planes.

BRITAIN BOOSTS ALLOTMENTS

LONDON, Sept. 30 — (AP) The Treasury announced today an increase in the scale of remittances to mothers and children evacuated to Canada and the United States. The new limits will be 10 pounds monthly for children and 20 pounds for adults, compared to 3 pounds and 10 pounds at present.

Jews In Services Mark New Year In Britain

London, Sept. 30 (AP)—Jewish men and women members of the United States armed services throughout Britain participated in observance of the Jewish New Year tonight.

Sailors, marines, soldiers, nurses and WACs were entertained in thousands of Jewish homes and communal meals were provided in many cities and towns for Jewish servicemen and women of all the United Nations forces.

Special services were held tonight. Another is planned for tomorrow in London under the auspices of the United Synagogues of Great Britain.

9,000 VICKERS WORKERS CONTINUE ON STRIKE

LONDON, Sept. 30—(AP) Workers of the Vickers-Armstrong armament plant at Barrow, where about 9,000 engineering employes have been out for two weeks in protest against a wage interpretation by the national arbitration tribunal, voted today to remain on strike until the company evolved a different method of bonus payments.

London morning newspapers displayed the story prominently. The Daily Mail commented, that the workers had kept the dispute on an industrial rather than a political plane, "but that does not alter the fact that their unlawful action is sabotaging the war effort."

$27,000,000 Given To British War Relief

London, Sept. 30 (A. P.).—The British War Relief Society of America today presented a $58,000 check to Mrs. Winston Churchill for her Y. W. C. A. War Emergency Fund. This brought to $172,000 the society's total contributions to the fund.

Clark H. Minor, the society president, said it had 1,500,000 volunteer workers who had collected $27,000,000 for British War Relief. Mr. Minor is making a tour of projects sponsored by the society.

Boosted Output Will Save Lives, Declares Nelson

London, Sept. 30 (AP)—Donald M. Nelson, United States war produc-

...hief, said today that the next few months would be critical in Allied production for fashioning a killing blow at the enemy.

Expr...ing his views at a press conference following the first London meeting of the combined Production and Resources Board of the United States, Britain and Canada, he said a superhuman effort was necessary by labor and management to save the lives of troops.

"If any one lesson has been driven home to me in Great Britain," Nelson told newsmen, "it is that the more we produce the more lives we save. We need more landing craft, more planes, more vehicles."

Changes in strategy and actual experience in battle have caused so many changes in American production that more contracts have been canceled already than were canceled after the last war, he disclosed.

Nelson said that Allied producers now were making railway rolling stock to take into Europe and added that in the United States enough synthetic rubber is "in sight for all essential purposes."

Nazis Report Clash In Channel Off Dieppe

London, Sept. 30 (A. P.).—The Berlin radio reported a clash between British torpedo boats and light German naval forces in the English Channel between Dieppe and Boulogne early today.

A broadcast recorded by the Associated Press asserted the British "evaded" action and sped away after suffering losses.

BOMB RUINS PRINTSHOP OF LAVAL'S NEWSPAPER

LONDON, Sept. 30 — (AP) The Algiers radio said tonight a bomb had exploded in the printshop of a newspaper owned by French Chief of Government Pierre Laval, le Moniteur of Clermont-Ferrand, and a Swiss report said another bomb was found in his motor car 12 days ago.

Both accounts followed dispatches and reports from travelers that sabotage and opposition to German occupation forces in France were nearing a state of civil war.

Laval was quoted by the Nazi-controlled Vichy radio tonight as saying that "my work has only one aim: to save France. I work with great optimism and confidence."

His words contrasted with a recent report in Madrid that he was tired battling his countrymen and was ready to step down.

FOWL PLAY IN HOLLAND

London, Sept. 30 (A. P.).—A Dutch farmer has succeeded in evading Nazi restrictions on sale of fowl.

Aneta, the Netherlands news agency, said today the farmer advertised that he had lost a purse containing 100 guilders ($53 when Hitler entered Holland). He offered one goose as a reward for its return.

Next morning dozens of persons lined up with purses to "return."

Japan's Exchange Ship Calls Briefly at Saigon

LONDON, Sept. 30 (AP).—The Tokio radio said today that the Japanese liner Teia Maru, carrying 600 Americans, fifty Canadians and fifty Chileans to be exchanged for Japanese subjects, called yesterday at Saigon, Indo-China, and left today for Mormugao, in Portuguese India, where the exchange will take place.

The Swedish liner Gripsholm is carrying Japanese nationals to the rendezvous of Mormugao.

MORE GERMAN TROOPS ASSIGNED TO DENMARK

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 30 — (AP) Dispatches from Copenhagen said today Nazi storm troop and Gestapo leaders in Denmark had been forced to appeal to Berlin for reinforcements in their attempts to stamp out sabotage and opposition to German occupation troops.

More than 1,000 additional storm troopers and 600 additional Gestapo agents have been sent to Gen. Kurt Daluege's assistance, the reports from that revolt-torn kingdom said.

Leutzow Is Reported In Baltic Sea Again

Stockholm, Sept. 30 (AP)—The Luetzow, one of the key warships of the German navy, was reported back in the Baltic Sea today after spending most of the summer in a Norwegian hideout at Alten Fjord.

It was known that the Luetzow, a 10,000-ton pocket battleship, had needed docking for overhauling. She probably will go to Gdynia or Kiel. The best information was that the ship sailed directly for the Baltic after participating in the recent Spitzbergen raid with the Tirpitz and the Scharnhorst.

PRISONER EXCHANGE ARRANGED IN SWEDEN

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 30 — (AP) Arrangements are being completed to exchange wounded British and German prisoners and some civilian

Stockholm, Sept. 30 (A. P.).—The Germans have evacuated Naples after destroying the harbor installations, a Berlin dispatch to the newspaper Aftonbladet said today.

Communistic revolts and sabotage on a big scale were partly forcing the evacuation, a military spokesman in Berlin was quoted as saying, adding that the rebels were co-operating with the Allied troops south of Naples, and that because of the nearness of the Allies and "the risk of new Allied landings in Naples itself, the German war chieftains consider it far too risky to keep troops in the city."

internees at Goeteborg, dispatches in the Swedish press said tonight.

Berlin and London have reached an agreement for the transfer, with Sweden placing her technical facilities at the disposal of the two belligerents, the press said, adding that several points were still to be settled and the transfer was not expected to take place before Oct. 7 or Oct. 8.

The exchange ship Drottningholm and two British vessels, the Atlantis and the Russian Empire, will be used, it was said.

PRISONERS LIBERATED

BERN, Switzerland, Sept. 30.—(AP) Several thousand British prisoners of war, liberated by the Badoglio government after the armistice, have succeeded in partly arming themselves and are trying to fight their way south to join the British Eighth army in Apulia, the Milan newspaper Italia reported today.

NAZIS CONSCRIPT ITALIANS 18 TO 33 FOR FORCED LABOR

BRUTTO

Program to Strip Peninsula of Manpower Speeded as Allies Advance.

AT THE SWISS-ITALIAN FRONTIER, Sept. 30.—(AP) Speeding their program to strip Italy of all manpower that might assist the Allies, the Germans today conscripted all men between 18 and 33 in 15 central Italian provinces for forced labor in Germany, according to reports reaching here.

A Chiasso dispatch to La Suisse in Geneva said it was expected the mobilization order would be extended to all Nazi-occupied provinces. There are stimated to be between 5,000,000 and 6,000,000 men within the age group in all Italy.

In addition, Nazi military commanders throughout the occupied areas posted orders that the following classifications must present themselves to German authorities: former Fascist militiamen, officers and men of the Italian armed forces demobilized by the armistice, members of anti-aircraft defense forces and military pilots.

"Volunteers" Recruited

Recruiting bureaus also have been opened through the occupied territory for Italian men and women who wish to "volunteer" for work in Germany.

(The German-controlled Rome radio described the latest Nazi move as a "migration" of Italian workers from southern to "central and northern Italy," and did not suggest that the conscripts might wind up in Germany.

(In a broadcast heard by U. S. government monitors, Domenico Pellegrini-Cianpietro, finance minister of Benito Mussolini's puppet Fascist cabinet, assured his listeners that it merely was planned to transfer "part of our working masses and our population to central and northern Italy, where everything has been prepared for you so that you might find work and decent living conditions.")

Shipped in Freight Cars

In northern Italy the Nazis were reported already to have rounded up 1,000 men, including disarmed soldiers, and shipped them in boxcars to Germany. Appeals to Italian workers in the north to volunteer for service in Germany were said to have gained no response whatsoever.

In Turin, where three attacks recently were committed against German soldiers, the Nazi-controlled newspaper La Stampa told the people to expect mass arrests and reprisals by German authorities in the quarters where the attacks occurred.

The paper warned the Italians to avoid such acts, which could only produce "cruel consequences."

More Political Prisoners Ordered Freed in Spain

New Laws Grant Conditional Liberty to All Over 70

MADRID, Sept. 30 (AP).—All Spanish political prisoners over seventy years of age will gain conditional liberty under new laws approved by the Cabinet and announced today by Generalissimo Francisco Franco. Another law granted similar freedom to 6,605 other political prisoners.

Still another decree abolished the heavy excess profits tax of from 40 to 80 per cent on all individuals, companies and corporations reporting profit of more than 7 per cent.

The tax, imposed in 1941, was designed "to distribute more equitably the sacrifices of reconstruction and the profits of the World War."

"Last Warning" Reported

MADRID, Sept. 30 (AP).—Pierre Laval, Marcel Deat and Jacques Doriot, Nazi collaborationists, have received a "last warning" that a "blood bath" will be loosed against France unless resistance to German occupation forces ceases, reports from Farnce said today.

The reports said the assassination at Paris Tuesday of Julius Ritter, German labor boss for France, had inspired Nazi fury to new heights and resulted in the warning.

[A Dr. Jolicoeur, secretary-general of Jacques Doriot's pro-Nazi French Popular party in the Marne Department, was assassinated at Rheims Wednesday, the German transocean news agency said in a broadcast heard Thursday by United States government monitors.]

NAZI GUNFIRE KILLS THREE WAR WRITERS

SEP 31 1943

British Correspondents Felled By Shell From Tank Near Naples

By RELMAN MORIN

[Associated Press Correspondent]

With the Fifth Army in Italy, Sept. 28 (Delayed)—Three war correspondents were killed today by shell fire from a German tank at the edge of the plain of Naples.

They were A. B. Austin, 40, of the London Daily Herald; Stewart Sale, 38, of Reuters, and William Munday, 33, of the Sydney (Australia) Morning Herald and the London News Chronicle.

Another British correspondent, Basil Gingell, of Exchange Telegraph, British news agency, was slightly injured.

A group of British, Dominion and American correspondents had halted at a road fork to watch three German Mark III tanks maneuvering. One came under the fire of a British reconnaissance car.

Tank Opens Fire

Most of the correspondents had gone on when one German tank opened fire on the reconnaissance car. The opposing vehicles were barely 200 yards apart when the German tank fired. The shell missed the reconnaissance car but hit the corner of a building where the three correspondents stood.

They were killed instantly. The second shell from the German tank destroyed the reconnaissance car.

Four American correspondents narrowly escaped the same fate. They had been standing at the same corner watching the tanks only a moment before it opened fire but had moved across the street out of the line of fire when the reconnaissance car edged forward.

Wrote Prophetic Story

Only a few hours before his death, Austin had written a prophetic story which appeared in today's Daily Herald under the headline, "On the Road to Death."

"Along the road of death we are driving to the plain of Naples," the dispatch began.

Shell Missed U. S. Reporters

By Relman Morin

WITH THE FIFTH ARMY IN ITALY, Sept. 28 (Delayed) (AP).—Five American correspondents, in blissful ignorance of their position, "captured" one town a half hour before British patrols arrived.

We left headquarters early in the morning intending to visit mountain sectors where the British for five days previously had been hammering German defenses beautifully chosen to hold passes.

We had expected to stop at the ruined hamlet of Camerelle, but when we arrived there we saw a convoy winding through the mountains ahead. Somewhat to our surprise we reached the major city of Nocera.

We pushed on in our jeeps, occasionally passing a British reconnaissance car proceeding with caution.

Italians lining the road were wild with joy and threw fruit and flowers at us. Some of them finally flagged us down and told Herbert Matthews of "The New York Times," who speaks Italian, that five Germans with two machineguns were still hidden in buildings ahead.

Looking back we could see our second jeep bringing Seymour Korman, of "The Chicago Tribune"; Farnsworth Fowle, a correspondent for the Columbia Broadcasting System, and Sergeant Dave Golding, of "The Stars and Stripes," the American Army newspaper, but no British armor. We decided to wait.

A few minutes later a British patrol arrived and went slowly up the street to the first corner and instantly the rattle of a German machine gun broke the stillness.

Then came the crack of an anti-tank gun.

While we lay low British infantry, led by townspeople, slipped through gardens and over walls to flank the position, and it was finally silenced, with some prisoners taken.

Two miles across the valley at the foot of the hills we saw a series of heavy explosions which we identified as Germans destroying their dumps and vehicles. The British had come roaring down out of the hills so fast they swept beyond the German forces facing the Americans along the lateral axis of the mountains across from us. The Germans were obviously pulling out at full speed to prevent being encircled and were destroying their equipment en route. Their whole position had collapsed.

This town was full of crazy people, literally insane with joy. They were so happy they were forcing cigarettes on all of us instead of begging them. The bells were ringing and it was like a fete day, with the war far away.

That didn't last long. On the road leading from the town to Pompeii a German tank and two self-propelled artillery pieces boldly emerged. The tank planted itself squarely in the center of the road. Its big gun was pointed at the turn in the street.

For a few moments we stood on that corner, practically looking down the barrel of the tank's big gun. It was utterly silent and seemingly dead there in the road. We saw British mortar shells exploding all around it and still there was no sign of life anywhere in or around the tank. We must been standing full in the gunner's sights but there was nothing to indicate then that there was any one looking through them.

Then Shell Struck

We came to the conclusion that the tank had been abandoned. Crossing the street, we began approaching it with the curve of the road sheltering us. A British tank and a reconnaissance vehicle clattered up behind us.

Suddenly there was a crash that seemed to shake the world.

What felt like a blast furnace shot past us. A massive stone house trembled from the concussion and the street was suddenly filled with dust and smoke. It happened too swiftly for realization. We felt only the heat and the shock. Then I looked back over my shoulder.

The corner of the building where we had been standing ten seconds before was blown to bits. Two figures, terribly still, lay beneath in a hole where the shell struck. They were Tommies with whom we had been talking. One had borrowed a match from us.

The British returned the fire, and for a few sickening moments we pressed ourselves against a stone wall with shells passing in both directions. During a brief lull we escaped back down the street. The dancing Italians had all vanished. There was nobody in the streets but Tommies lying flat on the sidewalks. Two Americans were present—Sergeant Don Graeber, of Salt Lake City, and Private John Priester, of 235 East Eighty-fourth Street, New York City They were "enjoying the show."

U. S. Troops, Moroccans Destroy Tank in Corsica

Wreck Nazi Machine-Gun Carrier in Barchetta Raid

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 30 (AP).—American Rangers and Moroccan Goumiers operating in Corsica destroyed a German tank and a machine-gun carrier in a raid on Barchetta, twelve miles southwest of Bastia, a French communique said today.

The French air force, in action over Corsica where the Germans are being steadily pushed into the sea, shot down six German planes.

Four of the planes were German transport craft, Junkers 52s. The French airmen also attacked an enemy convoy off Bastia.

"Despite systematic and large-scale demolitions by the enemy, as well as concentrated mine fields along the northeastern coastal strip, shock battalion and patriot troops are eagerly pursuing the enemy retreating between Aleria and Gole," the communique said.

Aleria is half way up the east Corsican coast and Gole is eleven miles south of Bastia.

OLD SAYING POINTS TO ROME

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Sept. 30 (A. P.).—With the American Fifth Army close to Naples, a military spokesman today quoted an old schoolbook saying "all roads lead to Rome."

The spokesman pointed out that almost all roads north from Naples go into Rome. The Nazis, he said, face an almost impossible military task of supplying their troops south of the capital for a full scale battle unless they abandon the claim that Rome is an open city and use it in a military fashion.

ENEMY WARSHIP BLASTED IN ÆGEAN

Cairo, Sept. 30 (A. P.).—An enemy warship escorting armed merchantmen in the Ægean Sea was left listing badly and almost obscured by heavy smoke after an attack by Beaufighters of the Royal Air Force following a five days hunt, an R. A. F. spokesman disclosed today.

The warship, whose type was undisclosed, was protected by two airplanes, one of which was shot into the sea and the other chased away. The merchantmen also were attacked with bombs and cannon fire, the spokesman said. He did not reveal when the attack was carried out.

King Peter Expects Allies To Be in Yugoslavia Soon

Says He'll Follow Troops Into His Homeland

CAIRO, Sept. 30 (AP).—King Peter II said today he expected Allied troops to be fighting on Yugoslav soil soon and he hoped to go into his homeland with the troops or soon after.

Conducting his first press conference at the new seat of his government at Cairo, King Peter acknowledged he might not be able to accompany the invasion waves, but said he was looking forward eagerly to seeing Belgrade again.

Bulgaria, he said, should "be punished and severely punished. They've attacked us three times in the last century." He added, however, that he hoped the post-war Bulgaria could be brought into the Balkan confederation.

"Once you give them economic help so that they don't depend on outside influence I think they will be helpful," he said.

FLYERS BLOW UP JAP AMMUNITION

Allied Headquarters in the Southwest Pacific, Sept. 30 (A. P.).—A huge store of ammunition which the Japanese painstakingly had transferred overseas for use against Gen. MacArthur's advancing New Guinea troops was exploded Tuesday at Wewak by Liberator bombers in the greatest pyrotechnic display ever seen in the Southwest Pacific.

A communique also announced that hard fighting Australians have inched through bitter Jap resistance to within 600 yards of the main jetty at Finschhafen.

The Japs utilized forty fighter planes and concentrated batteries of anti-aircraft guns in an effort to prevent further destruction at Wewak. The fighting caliber of the opposing pilots led returning flyers to believe they were crack Navy airmen rushed in from Rabul.

Fifty Japs Killed In Sharp Fighting—Troops "Matter Of Yards" Apart

[By the Associated Press]

Allied Headquarters in the Southwest Pacific, Friday, Oct. 1—Australian jungle troops are closing in on the last Japanese positions at Finschhafen, New Guinea; after having hurled back three Japanese counter-attacks which sought to break the strangle hold.

General MacArthur's headquarters announced today that fifty Japanese were killed in sharp fighting for a strategic spur just outside the town site. The remainder of the defending forces were scattered.

All enemy resistance has been reduced on the high ground surrounding the little village, the last Japanese holdings on the Huon Gulf looking toward New Britain.

"Matter Of Yards" Apart

MacArthur's spokesman said opposing troops are "very close—a matter of yards."

Fighting was reported heavy for jungle-type warfare, but there was no mention of casualties aside from the fifty Japanese killed in the one assault.

While the Allies maintained their pressure against Japanese ground troops, bombers from both the Southwest Pacific and South Pacific pressed their blows against Japanese bases and damaged an 8,500-ton freighter in Dutch Celebes, and shot down twelve of thirty-five intercepting Japanese fighters in the skies over Bougainville in the northern Solomons.

Catalinas In 2,000-Mile Foray

Catalina bombers which made the 2,000-mile round-trip assault on Celebes Island, northwest of Australia, found the freighter at Pomelaa, a nickel mining center.

Their bombs heavily damaged the ship as well as two oil barges found there. They also attacked wharf and barracks areas in the night raid.

Another force of Australian troops pushing toward Madang, Japanese base northwest of Finschhafen, advanced to a point approximately fourteen miles northwest of Kaiapit, which was captured September 18 in another on General MacArthur's air-borne attacks.

Close In On Three Sides

The advance left the troops more than sixty miles from Madang.

The communique reporting fighting in the Finschhafen area said our ground forces "are pressing on to the outskirts of the town from the north, west and south."

Troops threatening the little village from behind encountered a pocket just outside the town site and took a strategic point by assault in close fighting. Fifty Jap dead were counted after the engagement and the remainder fled.

The Japanese counter-attacks came the night of September 27 and morning of September 28 from the direction of Satelberg to the northwest of Finschhafen. The Australians stood their ground against all three assaults and the Japanese fell back.

Air Activity Slackens

Air activity, heightened in recent days by heavy attacks on the New Guinea base of Wewak which the Japanese built up following the fall of Buna, slackened yesterday. Planes still found time, however, to go after landing barges and installations in the northern Solomon islands of Bougainville and Choiseul.

Fighter planes from the Thirteenth Army Air Force sank one barge loaded with Japanese troops off Taro Island near Choiseul.

Heavy bombers attacked Kahili airdrome on Bougainville in a midday raid and started "large fires," the communique said.

American fighter pilots who covered the bombers fought off a force of thirty-five intercepting Japanese planes and destroyed twelve of them. We lost one plane.

AUSTRALIA ROILED BY MRS. ROOSEVELT

Melbourne, Australia, Sept. 30 (A. P.).—Australians young and old are waxing fluent in the big city newspapers over Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt's statement that Americans are winning the Australian girls because the Australian men are too reserved.

Readers have flooded editors with letters, some indignant, some defending Australian womanhood and some defending Mrs. Roosevelt as having made in haste an unfortunate choice of words.

The American soldier is enjoying the situation immensely—and carrying on as before.

Mrs. Roosevelt in an interview on her arrival at San Francisco said Australian lads have much of the British attitude of aloofness and formality toward women and consequently "they find American boys walking away with their girls, and they hardly know what to make of the Americans' fast work."

One typical letter-to-the-editor said: "Admittedly some Australian girls have been temporarily bewildered by the glitter and glamour of the Americans, with a different manner of speech, stories of great cities, and a surplus of money—but we will venture to say that they (the Americans) have only succeeded in sorting the good from the bad for our Australian lads."

Super-Zero Fast, Armored, Can Outdive P-38, Say Fliers

SEP 31 1943

EUNSON

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, Sept. 29.—(Delayed) —(AP) Allied pilots who have been in actual combat with Japan's dangerous new fighter plane said today that it can outdive the American P-38 but can not outclimb it and apparently has a short range.

The new plane so far has been seen only within 300 miles of the enemy base at Wewak.

Members of the "Headhunters" unit of P-38 pilots have been making a study of the new opponent during combat. They say it is about the same size as the Zero and is believed to have a wing spread of 38 feet, four inches and a length of 28 feet.

It is equipped with an in-line V-type engine and has exhibited plenty of power. It is harder to down than other Japanese fighter planes because of the armor protection for the pilot which the Zero does not have.

Its fire power comes from one 7.7 mm gun in each wing and two 12.7 mm machine guns in the nose.

First Lieut. Cyril F. Homer, Sacramento, Calif., came within 100 feet of one he shot down over Wewak on Aug. 28. Lieut. Homer, who now is an ace with five Japanese planes downed, said:

"I opened fire at 200 yards and hit a gas tank. Flames and smoke poured from his cockpit. When I passed over the top I saw a big hump over the canopy and thought it was like a British Hurricane. From information we pieced together, the ship has self-sealing gas tanks in front, below and behind the cockpit with tanks in each wing also. I think I hit either the front or underneath tank."

The thing that seems to have our pilots guessing is the maneuverability of the new ship. Major Edward Cragg, Greenwich, Conn., one of the "Headhunters," was the first to bag one of them. Major Cragg now has a score of ten enemy ships knocked down.

One of the first of Lieut. John L. Jones' seven enemy planes was a new one. The Hazard, Ky., ace dropped one over Wewak Aug. 21.

"I hit him at 100 yards," Lieut. Jones said, "and must have killed the pilot as the canopy smashed and he crashed from 3,000 feet."

British Mission on Way To South Pacific

Melbourne, Australia, Sept. 30 (A. P.).—A special British military, naval and air mission, headed by Major-Gen. J. S. Lethbridge will arrive shortly in the South Pacific on the way to Australia.

The mission will study methods of providing the maximum British co-operation with the United States in future operations against the Japanese. Formation of the mission follows Prime Minister Winston Churchill's promise of last June 30 of fullest British aid in the Pacific. The mission already has spent some weeks in the United States.

Australian Wheat Crop Falls Below Average

Melbourne, Australia, Sept. 30 (A. P.).—The Australian wheat board in a preliminary report today estimated this season's national wheat crop at 89,000,000 bushels compared to the average of 156,000,000 for the past eight years.

Weather conditions, reduced man power and a shortage of fertilizers have contributed to the decrease, the board said.

Argentina Suspends Paper

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Sept. 30 (AP)—Argentine authorities suspended the newspaper Noticias Graficas for two days today after it published an editorial eulogizing its publisher, Jose Agusti, who is under arrest. Noticias Graficas was suspended from publication for seven days two weeks ago following publication of an editorial on the correspondence between U. S. Secretary of State Cordell Hull and Vice Admiral Segundo E. Storni, former Argentine foreign minister, in which Mr. Hull rejected a request for lend-lease aid. Admiral Storni later resigned.

U. S. Ambassador Leaves Peru

LIMA, Peru, Sept. 30 (AP)—United States Ambassador R. Henry Norweb left by plane today for the United States. There was no announcement as to the purpose of his trip. Ambassador Norweb's home is in Cleveland, Ohio.

Studies Plan For U. S. To Help Improve Bolivia

La Paz, Bolivia, Sept. 30 (AP)—Carlos Salinas, Minister of Foreign Affairs, said today that the Bolivian Government is studying a plan for United States cooperation in improving Bolivia's economic and administrative systems.

Salinas said the plan, submitted by the United States State Department and drafted by a commission headed by Otis Mulliger, provides for the United States and Bolivia each to put up $470,000 to carry out the project.

Greater output from Bolivian mines and improved living conditions for miners, improvement in the school system, training of Government employes and the application of labor laws would be among the projects undertaken.

HIGHWAY WORK ENDS IN CENTRAL AMERICA

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, Sept. 30.—(AP) Suspension of work on a military highway through Central America to the Panama Canal zone was announced last night and President Rafael Calderon Guardia said today it "constitutes a hard blow to Costa Rican economy."

Building of this road is sponsored by the U. S. War department. The cause of the suspension was not disclosed here.

Several thousand Costa Ricans have been employed on the project. The economy of Central American nations, all of which have declared war on the Axis, has been shaken by curtailment of banana exports and the loss of their European coffee markets.

George Brent Discharged by Army

Mexico City, Sept. 30 (A. P.).—George Brent, movie actor, who said he had been released by the Army because of a back ailment after serving as flight instructor at a Pacific Coast base, arrived today to rest. Mr. Brent said he plans to return to Hollywood late in October since he has just signed a five-year movie contract.

Post-War Status Of 40,000,000 Exiles Studied

International Labor Office Urges Repatriation and Controlled Immigration

MONTREAL, Sept. 30 (AP).—The International Labor Office declared today that "one of the most urgent tasks of post-war reconstruction" would be permanent resettlement of between 30,000,000 and 40,000,000 persons torn from their European homes.

A 166-page report, entitled "The Displacement of Population in Europe," said the problem was far "beyond the powers of any single country" and added: "Millions have been victimized by a narrow nationalism which has had a total disregard of human beings. They can be helped only by international co-operation and organization."

Looking for a solution to the problem presented by the millions of displaced persons, the study expressed the view that in most cases repatriation will be the most obvious remedial measure.

But even repatriation would not afford a necessarily satisfactory solution, the study pointed out, because various countries will have differing labor requirements. Therefore, in conjunction with repatriation, a redistribution of labor might become necessary if full employment is to exist..

"This kind of geographical redistribution of labor, like repatriation, would call for action on an international scale," the report continued. "It would call for nothing less than the organization of an international employment service."

Another likely obstacle to full and easy repatriation may be that many persons will. "if they have the opportunity, prefer to try their luck in an overseas country," the study said, adding: "Instead of rebuilding their old homes, they will want to make new ones. . . . This will also be the feeling of many who have been forced to suffer the horrors of war and persecution in their native homes."

To take care of such persons the report recommended a system of controlled immigration supervised by "an international organization capable of co-ordinating the interests of the countries of emigration and immigration, and of making available the capital necessary to enable the labor of the former countries to be used to develop the natural resources of the latter."

The report declared that unless immigration, especially to countries of the Western Hemisphere, is resumed in an ordered manner "it will not be possible to solve the problem of war and pre-war refugees."

POMPEI HAS NEW RUINS AMONG ITS LANDMARKS

NEW YORK, Sept. 30—(AP) A tourist guide already has set up shop to show Pompei's new ruins alongside the old, the British radio said today.

The guide is doing business "outside of a bomb crater," the BBC correspondent said. Pompei's famous amphitheater was reported undamaged by shelling, although a bomb crater is less than 50 yards away. The forum and museum bear new scars atop their old ones.

"There are still plenty of ruins left intact," the correspondent added. The broadcast was heard by U. S. government monitors.

HUNGARIAN GEN. RETIRES

NEW YORK, Sept. 30—U. S. government monitors recorded a dispatch broadcast today to Hungarian newspapers by the Hungarian news agency, M.T.I., saying that Regent Nicholas Horthy had relieved Lieut. Gen. Karolyi Mathe of his post as secretary-general of the Supreme National Defense council and replaced him with Maj. Gen. Geza Veroes. The dispatch said Gen. Mathe had reached the age limit.

RUBBER REACHES SWEDEN

NEW YORK, Sept. 30—(AP) The safe conduct motor ship Mindoro arrived in Sweden from the United States today carrying a 7,000-ton cargo including 172 tons of crude rubber, "the first time Sweden has received this important war material since March, 1942," the Swedish radio said in a domestic broadcast recorded by U. S. government monitors.

Bulgaria's Queen Mother Reported Held Prisoner

New York, Sept. 30 (AP)—Queen Mother Ioanna of Bulgaria, widow of King Boris, "is reported to be held a prisoner in Sofia by the regency government," BBC said today in a broadcast recorded by NBC.

[Dispatches last week from neutral sources said the Queen Mother had threatened to go into exile as a result of differences with the regency, and had been ordered arrested if she attempted to flee the country.]

critical Russian thrust is beginning to take shape. It outmatches even the obvious Red threat to the Vitebsk gateway north of Orsha and from besieged Kiev southward to Russian-captured Kremenchug in ominous potentialities for the whole Nazi front from the Baltic to the Black sea.

Moscow makes no mention of this newly-reported Russian drive to reach the right bank of the Dnieper at Zhlobin, 50 miles north of Kiev. There is a minor rail crossing at that point for the Konotop-Gomel-Minsk line. On that sector, also, just to the northwest of Gomel the west bank of the Dnieper is more vulnerable than farther south where the German-held bluffs on the right bank dominate the lower east-bank approaches over which the Russians must advance.

A Russian break-through at Zhlobin in force would virtually cut the whole Nazi line in Russia in half. The west bank rail lateral, feeding the whole north central sector of the German line, would be cut. A swing southward west of the river would segregate the Gomel enemy bridgehead east of the stream entirely.

Even more dangerous, a Russian advance southwestward beyond the Dnieper to the upper bank of the Pripet would split the whole Nazi line in Russia apart. For the Pripet drains the vast and now rain-sodden Pinsk marshes and the marshes of the Pripet itself into the Dnieper 20 miles or so above Kiev. Those marshes at this season represent a huge morass that extends from the Dnieper all the way westward to the western Bug in Poland.

The only north-south connection through it linking the German forces along the Dnieper is the right there and in a matter of days or weeks at most.

The Russians are within sight of the most decisive break-through of the Nazi-Russian war by either side in the reported drive closely menacing Zhlobin. Should they break across the Dnieper there, with the east-side high bank in their favor, it would probably send the whole Nazi front toppling back to the western Bug, halfway across Poland, to the line set up in the Berlin-Moscow partition of that country.

Nor can it be over-stressed that such a further German retreat in Russia—and a retreat that would have to be made with winter close at hand — would result in Nazi abandonment of both the Balkan and Baltic state flanks of the eastern line to hold the unquestionably strongly fortified west bank of the Polish Bug.

LOSSES OF BRITISH HEAVY AT SALERNO, STIMSON REVEALS

American Casualties 3,500 in Italy, Allies Set at 5,211.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—(AP) British troops have suffered heavier casualties than American forces in the Allies' battle with the Germans at Salerno.

This was disclosed today in a report by Secretary of War Stimson who said that up to Sept. 15 American casualties amounted to about 3,500, while a London announcement set British casualties at 5,211 up to Sept. 20. The battle of Salerno opened with the landing of Allied forces on the beach on the evening of Sept. 8.

The casualty figures for both American and British forces are total killed, wounded and missing.

British Heavily Engaged

An indication that the British continue to be engaged heavily was contained in Secretary Stimson's weekly review of the war with his statement that British units of the 5th army, fighting up the western side of the Italian peninsula, "are meeting heavy resistance" near Naples.

While there was no official explanation here concerning the preponderance of British casualties, it was recalled that in the early days of the battle British units were engaged by German armored outfits which presumably caused many of the losses. The understanding has been that the Allied forces which landed at Salerno were about equally divided between British and American troops. (The German radio reported at the time that there were three divisions of Americans and three of British).

Secretary Stimson commented that "it was gratifying to note that the American casualties in the battle of Salerno were less than we had feared" but he added that "it is well to remember that our casualties are continuing to mount as we move forward." This, Secretary Stimson observed, "is an inevitable price that we must pay for success in battle."

The war has cost the United States 110,704 men killed, wounded, missing and prisoners on all the world fronts, ashore, on the sea and in the air, since Pearl Harbor, latest figures show.

The Army casualties, from the beginning of the war to Sept. 15 (not including the 3,500 at Salerno) were listed by Stimson as follows: 10,682 killed, 26,666 wounded, 23,743 missing in action, 29,451 taken prisoner.

Navy casualty figures (kept current daily) now total: 11,258 killed, 5,305 wounded, 9,456 missing, 4,143 prisoners. The Navy suffered its heaviest casualties at the very outset of the war when Japanese bombs and torpedoes blasted American war craft at Pearl Harbor.

The prisoner list is tabulated from actual names received from enemy countries through neutral and International Red Cross sources and when a prisoner's name is received his name is removed from the missing list.

What's Behind the War News

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
(Associated Press War Analyst)

A triple crisis for Nazi invaders of Russia appears to be developing rapidly along the important Dnieper defense line, overshadowing in military significance the probable entry of American troops into historic Naples.

In Italy the battle might well develop into a foot-race as Anglo-American forward patrols seek to keep contact with the retreating enemy all across the Italian boot above the Naples-Foggia line. There is no present indication just where the next Nazi delaying stand will be staged and the battle rejoined.

Along the Dnieper between Gomel and the Orsha bend to the north, however, a new and very c[illegible] Orsha-Zhlobin-Karosten-Kiev railway. If that should be severed above the Pripet, the north and south wings of the German army would be cut apart in the center. The only remaining rail communication between the two wings above and below the Pripet would be through Brest Litovsk, 300 miles west of the Dnieper.

What that would mean to the logistics of an apparently Nazi contemplated winter stand along the Dnieper can easily be conjectured. To shift reserves from one sector to the other would require that they be marched 300 miles westward and back again to circumnavigate the Pinsk-Pripet marshes.

That makes the Zhlobin-Gomel sector of the front the most critical of the whole line for the invader. Germany's fate could be decided economic activity are falling far behind that of the British.

The gist of their complaint, it was said, is that British postwar policies already are functioning in a practical way while American representatives are at a loss to know what this nation's attitude will be on many important world questions when the fighting is over.

As a result, the committee members were said to have found that the British stand to reap postwar benefits from many American lend-lease contributions to other countries.

Committee Irritated.

Some indication of this repressed irritation at British activities was given by Senator Russell (D.-Ga.) when he told a press conference yesterday that the news of American military activities was being played down by British news services and the British radio.

From accounts they read in Egypt, Senator Russell said it appeared that United States troops were not doing any of the fighting in Sicily. He told reporters later he had made a study of English news and radio broadcasts and found that when the Royal Air Force made a sortie it always was mentioned by name, but when American bombers went into action the results were always attributed to "Allied air forces."

Similarly, Senator Brewster (R.-Me.) said that he thought the time had come to obtain more oil from the British holdings in the Persian Gulf area instead of continuing the heavy drain on American supplies.

"I am told that the British refinery at Abadan, Iran, which they say is the largest in the world, could increase its output 40 per cent," Senator Brewster said. "I hope that we can get a greater proportion of our oil there instead of drawing so heavily on our diminishing supplies.

He Fears Scarcity.

"If that goes on and we have another war in ten or fifteen years, we may have to go out with a tin dipper and ask somebody for oil."

Senator Brewster said that the British have had representatives of Cabinet rank in intimate touch with their military leaders in North Africa and the Middle East. He said the American diplomatic front is "undergoing some strengthening that is encouraging," but added that the situation in India is mixed up.

Senator Brewster and Senator Mead (D.-N. Y.) said that the Truman War Investigating Committee would be called upon to look into the formation of a policy for the use by American commercial planes of United States-built airports outside the Western Hemisphere which will revert to foreign countries six months after the war ends.

Senator Brewster asserted that present arrangements "leave us holding the bag."

Senator Lodge (R.-Mass.), another member of the touring committee, told the Senate today that he had found a surprising amount of sentiment among military and naval commanders in the field for a single department of war. He criticized military censorship, called for greater British contributions of petroleum to teh fighting forces and urged that some means be found to furlough war-weary American troops home.

He said that wherever he went he and the other Senators who made the trip found "a demand for a definite policy of releiving men overseas after they have served a certain lengt hof time." He said that shipping problems and the danger of submarine attack thus far had made it impractical to send men home, but expressed the hope that a furloughing policy could be worked out.

"There is a surprising amount of sentiment among the older men for a single department of war, with autonomous land, sea and air services co-ordinated at the top by a joint staff, wit each branch free to pursue its own personnel and materiel policies," he said.

Ickes Says Matter Is Up.

Secretary of the Interior Ickes, at a press conference, was queried regarding suggestions of the returning Senators that our Allies might furnish a larger percentage of oil for the war effort, now that the Mediterranean is in the hands of the United Nations.

Speaking for the Petroleum Administration for War, of which he is head, Mr. Ickes replied:

"We've been working on that intensively for some time. We're going to work something out. I can't make any statement on it as yet."

Senators Find British Trade Gets Benefit of Lend-lease

Committee Sees Ally's Post-war Policy Gaining Ground While United States Activity Lags Behind.

Washington, Sept. 30 (A. P.).—A critical report on British commercial and diplomatic activities may be laid before the Senate in executive session by members of a five-man inspection committee which just returned from a 40,000-mile trip to the world's battle fronts.

There were indications today that the committee members feel that American diplomacy and

FOREIGN FOOD PLAN ARRANGED

Crowley Will Direct New Streamlined Setup.

Washington, Sept. 30 (A. P.).—A streamlined foreign food program will be one of the first results of President Roosevelt's centralization of foreign economic activities under Leo T. Crowley, it was learned today.

An executive order will be issued shortly to place all food activities abroad under the Office of Economic Warfare, one of four agencies shifted to the newly created Foreign Economic Administration headed by Mr. Crowley.

The step is designed to eliminate overlapping functions of the OEW, the War Food Administration, the Agriculture Department and the Office of Inter-American Affairs, it was reported by a source which could not be identified by name.

Acting with the advice of the WFA, Mr. Crowley will be responsible for all development and procurement activities, now centering chiefly in Central and South America and in North Africa. The program is aimed at supplementing this country's food supply both for home consumption and relief in liberated areas.

To End Confusion.

Mr. Crowley, meantime, stressed that creation of the FEA would provide a clear-cut delineation of foreign activities and thereby eliminate confusion.

Policy making will be centered under Mr. Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull and administration of those policies under him, Mr. Crowley said. He reiterated a determination to follow the policies laid down and said he was convinced his relations with the State Department would be harmonious.

1943

In addition to the OEW, the new agency embraces the Lend-Lease Administration, the Office of Foreign Relief and Rehabilitation Operations, and the Office of Economic Co-ordination.

Single Department of War Favored by Men in Field

Senator Lodge Reports on Trip to Battle Fronts.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—(AP) The Senate heard today from Senator Lodge (R., Mass.) that Army and Navy commanders in the field have developed a "surprising amount of sentiment" for uniting America's fighting forces under a single department of war.

Senator Lodge, who went far enough forward in the front lines in New Georgia to see Japanese troops in action, came back to the Senate today from about 43,000 miles of flying to the far ends of the globe as one of five senators making an unique inspection trip.

The tall, tanned Massachusetts senator told his colleagues:

U. S. Exhausting Its Petroleum

(1) It is "common knowledge" that we are exhausting our oil, that civilians in Algeria and Morocco have more American gasoline than people in the Eastern states and that Australia ought to be supplied with petroleum from the British-dominated Persian gulf area.

(2) He wonders whether he had been right in urging continuance of foreign operations by the Office of War Information in the light of some of its propaganda he had seen.

(3) He hopes the invasion currency being issued in Sicily, does not bear promises "which the already overburdened American people are neither rich enough nor numerous enough to keep."

(4) There is much dissatisfaction among soldiers about the government's "censorship and propaganda policy" which pictures our Allies as perfect.

Forces Closely Integrated

(5) There is close integration of American land, sea and air forces in all theaters.

(6) Americans should have post-war commercial rights on landing fields which are being built all over the world.

(7) There is need for a definite policy of furloughing war-weary troops home.

Senator Lodge reported that one outfit in the theater directed by Admiral William F. Halsey was commanded by a major general of the Army, with a Navy captain as chief of staff and a Marine colonel as operations officer, all fliers.

"Senior officers of both the Army and Navy are deeply impressed with the need for unity of the services when our new military policy is framed," Senator Lodge said.

"There is a surprising amount of sentiment among these older men for a single department of war, with autonomous land, sea and air service coordinated at the top by a joint staff, with each branch free to pursue its own personnel and materiel policies," he said.

Senator Lodge's discussion of the oil supply and post-war airport problems was similiar to that yesterday by three other members of the group, Senators Russell (D., Ga.), Brewster (R., Me.) and Mead (D., N. Y.).

No Criticism of British

While some of the latter indicated they want to discuss British commercial and diplomatic activities in a closed session of the Senate, Senator Lodge told reporters before he spoke in the Senate he had no particular criticism of the British.

"If we are not smart enough to keep up with them, that's our fault and we ought to do something about it," he said.

Senator Russell told a press conference yesterday that from British news reports which the Senators read in Egypt, it would appear that United States troops were not doing any fighting in Sicily.

Senator Brewster suggested that the time has come to get more oil from British holdings in the Persian gulf area instead of continuing the heavy drain on American sources.

The general feeling of the complaining senators is said to be that the British are far ahead of Americans in diplomatic and economic activity and thus stand to reap post-war benefits from many American Lend-Lease contributions to other countries.

Has Confidence in Marshall

SEP 31 1943

Stimson Says Any Change Will Be to Put Him Where He Can Do Most Good.

Washington, Sept. 30 (A. P.).—Secretary of War Stimson said today that any new assignment given Gen. George C. Marshall would be with the idea of putting him where he could do the most good.

Asked at a news conference if he had anything to say on the subject, Mr. Stimson replied by reading a formal statement:

"I am in a position to say with absolute confidence that whatever duties Gen. Marshall may hereafter be called upon to perform will be decided by the President in a spirit of entire confidence in Gen. Marshall and with the sole purpose of placing this supremely able officer of the United States Army in the position where he can render the best service toward a successful conclusion of this war.

"Furthermore, the attitude of President Roosevelt toward the Chief of Staff is entirely consistent and in keeping with his attitude in other respects toward all of his military advisers in the Army.

"I am in a position to know and to say, as I do say, that any suggestion that the President has sought to influence the appointments or assignments of officers in the Army with any political, personal or other motive than the successful winning of the war is completely untrue. It is more than that. It is a piece of folly aimed at discrediting the American conduct of the war during a most critical period of its course."

Gen. Marshall, now Chief of Staff, has been reported the probable choice for global commander of all American and British forces.

Says West Indian French Feel Liberated

Washington, Sept. 20 (A. P.).—Henri-Etienne Hoppenot, newly named delegate to the United States for the French National Committee of Liberation, said on his return from Martinique today that the people of the French West Indies feel they have been liberated for the first time since the fall of France.

"The oppressive atmosphere that dominated Martinique and the other possessions under the Vichy rule of Admiral Robert has disappeared," he told reporters.

Senate Studies Chinese Ban

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30 (AP).—A fight to repeal the Chinese exclusion laws, temporarily stymied in the House Immigration Committee, moved today to the Senate with introduction of a bill by Senator Charles O. Andrews, Democrat, of Florida, which would amend the immigration acts to allow Chinese to enter this country on a quota basis. The Andrews bill, companion to a measure offered in the House by Representative Magnuson, Democrat, of Washington, also would amend existing naturalization laws to permit Chinese to become American citizens.

Brewster Says New Zero Gives Americans Trouble

Returned Senator Asserts It 'Surprised' Chennault

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30 (AP).—The Japanese have come up with a new fighter plane more formidable than the Zero, Senator Ralph O. Brewster, Republican, of Maine, disclosed today, and the United States may have to send more "big league" battlers to cope with them.

Senator Brewster, one of a group of Senators just back from a swing over the world's battle fronts in an Army plane, told an interviewer that the new "super-Zero" apparently was just getting into production, because only a few had been sighted.

But those few, he indicated, had proved tough. He said the ratio of American victories over losses, which ran as high as 4 to 1, has begun to drop.

Brewster said that Major General Claire Chennault's men were "surprised" by the new ship in their first encounter over Canton, with the result that five of seven American bombers were lost.

Details were not well known at the time he was in the war area, Senator Brewster said, but he was given to understand that the new ship resembled the old Zero so much that it was not readily distinguishable, which accounted for the surprise. The latest model, he added, is faster, better protected and has more fire power.

Senator Brewster said American flyers also have encountered a new Japanese two-engine bomber which is faster and carries a heavier bomb load.

War Department officials said that detailed information on the new planes still was classified as secret, so far as the Army was concerned.

Mexico Pays Oil Installment

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30 (AP).—A check for $3,796,391.04 was turned over to Adolph A. Berle, Acting Secretary of State, today by the Mexican Ambassador, Francisco Castillo Najera, in part payment of damages to American citizens when Mexico expropriated petroleum properties in 1938. Mexico's total liability, agreed upon in notes exchanged between the two governments, is $23,995,991 plus $5,-141,708.84 in interest at 3 per cent a year on unpaid balances from March 18, 1938, to Sept. 30, 1947, the date set for final payment. Four annual installments are still to be made, each of $4,085,327.45. Mexico made a cash deposit of $9,000,000 in 1941.

U. S. SUBMARINE SINKS 19 JAP SHIPS

Washington, Sept. 30 (A. P.).—The United States submarine Gudgeon sank nineteen Japanese ships, including one submarine, and damaged three other ships in eight war patrols in the Pacific, the Navy reported today in announcing award of a presidential unit citation to the ship.

Unit citations are awarded for "services above and beyond the high standard expected of our forces."

GUEST AT WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—(AP) His Royal Highness Aimar Faisal, foreign minister of Saudi Arabia and second of 17 living sons of Ibn Saud, arrived by plane today for a visit as guest of the United States government. He was entertained at a formal White House dinner tonight.

PAT HURLEY PLANS 'LONG TRIP' ABROAD

SEP 31 1943

New Mission for Roosevelt Indicated by Former Diplomat.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—(AP) Brigadier General Patrick J. Hurley, who has undertaken numerous confidential missions for President Roosevelt, indicated today he is leaving soon on another one.

Gen. Hurley visited the chief executive, and said afterward he was starting "a long trip," perhaps within a week. He would not discuss its character or say whether it was of a military or diplomatic nature.

For a time Gen. Hurley was minister to New Zealand and served as a roving ambassador for the President in the Pacific. Later he went to Russia and the Middle East as the chief executive's representative.

Another White House caller was Edwin C. Wilson who conferred with the President about the tasks confronting the British-Russian-American Mediterranean commission. Mr. Wilson is the newly named representative of the United States on the commission.

Mr. Wilson told reporters he probably would leave fairly soon and take two or three people with him. The commission will sit in Algiers.

PRE-WAR FATHERS FACE DRAFT CALL

Congress Fails to Block Inductions Scheduled to Begin Today.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30—(AP) The general draft of pre-war fathers is due to begin tomorrow and Congress, mindful of military leaders' advice that nothing must stop the flow of men into the ranks, showed no signs tonight of heading it off.

The Oct. 1 deadline set weeks ago by Selective Service means that from now on the number of children a draft-age man has counts for nothing.

446,000 Face Call

From now until the end of the year draft officials intend to call in 446,000 physically fit men between the ages of 18 and 38 who heretofore have been deferred for dependency reasons. And an Associated Press survey showed that in most states some pre-Pearl Harbor fathers may expect to start leaving home for service in October. Few states reported having enough non-fathers to meet quotas past Nov. 1.

When 3-A's become 1-A's will be determined largely from here on by their order numbers with local draft boards.

These boards have authority to take into consideration extreme hardship cases and the importance of a man's job to the war effort. They are not supposed to draft any pre-war fathers until they have exhausted the supply of childless men, post-Pearl Harbor fathers, those in specified "non-deferrable" jobs and fathers who have quit farming in violation of the law.

The bill of Senator Wheeler (D-Mont) to defer the drafting of fathers until Jan. 1 made no progress in the Senate today.

Downey's Proposal Fails

An effort by Senator Downey (D-Calif) to have it laid aside, pending a congressional examination of the high command's strategy failed when Majority Leader Barkley (D-Ky.) refused to agree to the necessary unanimous consent.

"I do not believe the strategy of this war can be worked out on the floor of the United States Senate," Senator Barkley told Senator Downey, who had argued that perhaps increased use of air power could make large armies unnecessary.

With Senator Wheeler's bill headed for a committee pigeonhole or flat Senate rejection, sponsors of two substitute proposals continued their efforts.

Senator Bailey (D-NC) talked with War department officials about his bill to deny government employment to able-bodied draft-age non-fathers unless they are indispensable and to curtail desk duty for Army men fit for combat.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio) worked for adoption of his plan to have fathers under 30 drafted before those over 30 are called.

Amendment Offered

Just before the Senate recessed for the day, a bi-partisan group headed by Senator Taft introduced a proposed amendment broadly revising draft regulations and tearing down the state quota system.

1943

Under it, deferment for occupational reasons of non-fathers under 30 would be prohibited, and drafting would proceed on a nation-wide, progress scale providing for the taking of all men in the first group before touching the second.

Also, the amendment would direct the President to appoint a commission to consider lowering physical requirements of the armed services with a view of taking some of the more than 3,000,000 men now in class 4-F by reason of physical disqualifications.

The categories for drafting men in the future would be set up thusly:

1. Men with dependents other than wives and children.
2. Men married prior to Pearl Harbor, but childless.
3. Fathers under 25 years of age.
4. Fathers under 30 years of age.
5. Fathers from 30 to 38.
6. Fathers whose inductions would cause extreme hardship to wives and children.

NEW BILL WOULD LIMIT NAVY FAMILIES AT BASES

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30—(AP) A bill aimed at discouraging migration by families of Navy personnel to conjested seaports won approval today from the Senate Naval Affairs committee.

Sponsored by Senator Walsh (D-Mass.), it would permit the Navy to disallow transportation expenses for dependents and household effects of Navy, Marine corps and Coast Guard personnel into congested areas.

Barkley Urges Action Soon on Post-War Role

Hints White House Wants Senate to Debate Before Talks With Russia Start

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30 (AP).—An assertion by Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky, Senate majority leader, that he does not fear the effect of Senate debate on forthcoming diplomatic conversations with Russia and Great Britain lent support tonight to reports that the Roosevelt administration will back early consideration of a declaration of post-war foreign policy.

Senator Barkley, a member of the foreign relations subcommittee which is considering a dozen or more such proposals, told reporters that while the Administration is bringing no pressure, he thought the White House would like to have the Senate adopt a post-war resolution some time soon.

"Debate should present no obstacles or embarrassments in connection with the forthcoming conversations with Russia," he said.

Previously, Tom Connally, Democrat, of Texas, chairman of the committee, had counseled against unrestrained debate on foreign policy at this stage, and it generally was understood that he and others favored delay until after the forthcoming meeting of American, British and Russian representatives.

That meeting may take place, however, before the committee reaches final agreement on the form its resolution will take, some members said. Most predictions are that it will take a month or more for the subcommittee to compose divergent views and for the full committee to agree on a declaration, although one member said he thought it could be done in ten days if it could be done at all.

Administration leaders have made it plain that they want no resolution reported to the Senate that cannot command a two-thirds vote there.

For that reason the committee-drafted proposal is expected to represent a compromise which may be no more definite in its commitments than the House-approved Fulbright "lasting peace" proposal.

Possible drafts of a post-war foreign policy declaration were discussed informally by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee today, and Senator Gerald P. Nye, Republican, of North Dakota, told reporters that the fifteen members present seemed to have "fifteen different views on the matter."

Stettinius Nomination Is Approved by Senate

Action Speeded So He Can Replace Hull, Going to Parley

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30 (UP).—The Senate today unanimously approved President Roosevelt's nomination of Edward R. Stettinius jr., Lend Lease Administrator, as Under Secretary of State suceeding Sumner Welles after the leadership requested immediate action because of "the urgency of the international situation."

Normally, the nomination would not have been acted upon until tomorrow. But Tom Connally, Democrat, of Texas, chairman, whose Foreign Relations Committee approved the nomination a few hours earlier, requested immediate action because Secretary of State Cordell Hull "has been called away and it would be desirable for the Under Secretary to take over the duties of the office during his absence."

So far as is known, Mr. Hull is on vacation at Hot Springs, Va., preparatory to attending the meeting of British-American-Russian foreign ministers.

Charles L. McNary, of Oregon, Republican leader, objected at first because many Senators were absent, but then deferred to Democratic Leader Alben W. Barkley's plea.

OFFICIAL DELAY ON NEWS ASSAILED

Public Not Adequately Informed on War, Committee Declares.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30—(AP) The newspaper advisory committee of the Office of War Information, asserting that the American public "is not being adequately informed about the war," tonight blamed "the disinclination on the part of some high naval and military authorities to evaluate what is information to which the public is entitled."

"If there is any complacency or letdown in the war effort on the part of the American people, it is not due to any lack of patriotism or desire for easy victory, but rather to the absence of full necessary understanding," the committee said in a statement issued after a day-long conference.

The group is made up of executives of a dozen newspapers, headed by Roy A. Roberts, managing editor of The Kansas City Star.

The committee praised the "brilliant and courageous work" of American war correspondents, but pointed out that it required Prime Minister Churchill's speech in the House of Commons to give the U. S. public "much important information which was known to American authorities but which had not been released to the American people."

Truman Calls Patterson on Wright Motors

Senator Sets Hearing for Oct.6,SaysPublic Should Know What Army Found

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30 (AP).—Senator Harry S. Truman, Democrat, of Missouri, said today the public "is entitled to know what the Army found" when it examined some engines produced by the Wright Aeronautical Corporation plant at Lockland, Ohio, and passed by regular plant tests.

As chairman of a special Senate committee investigating the war program, Senator Truman said Robert P. Patterson, Under Secretary of War, had been summoned for Oct. 6 to answer questions about the Army tests.

"The official position of the War Department is that the facts should be kept from the public," Senator Truman said.

Production and inspection procedure at the Lockland plant was criticized this summer by the Truman committe.

Senator Truman said in a statement:

"The committee has requested the War Department to furnish it with information as to the results obtained when the Army tore down and reinspected airplane engines produced at the Wright Aeronautical Corporation plant at Lockland, Ohio. These engines had passed final inspection and, but for such a re-examination, would have been accepted for installation in military aircraft.

"At the committee's hearings in Cincinnati on Aug. 20 the resident Army representative, Major Lavista, testified that: 'Three engines which were on the shipping dock finally inspected and sealed ready to ship to destination were brought back, disassembled and reinspected 100 per cent. Every one of the three engines was found to be in such a condition that they could not have been installed in an airplane.'

"Major Lavista also testified to the committee that: 'The conditions found were bad enough that the company immediately ordered eighty-nine engines, which were ready to ship, returned to the assembly department to be completely disassembled and reinspected 100 per cent.'

"Major Lavista has since furnished the committee, at its request, with a report on the results obtained from reinspecting sixty-four of those eighty-nine engines and ten out of 100 additional engines which were brought back from the Army as a sample of production by Wright Aeronautical Corporation during the months of January to April of this year—prior to the committee's report.

"The committee believes that the public is entitled to know what the Army found when it examined these engines, especially in view of rumors to the effect that the engines were not defective, which were circulated before the Army had torn down engines and learned the facts."

Third War Loan Half Billion Over Top–2 Days To Go

Washington, Sept. 30 (AP). Largest financing operation in world history, the Treasury's Third War Loan to "back the attack," went $532,000,000 over its $15,000,000,000 goal tonight with two days of the drive remaining and untold millions still to be counted.

Although expressing gratification that the quota had been oversubscribed before the October 2 deadline, Daniel W. Bell, Under Secretary of the Treasury, said he hoped there would be no letup in bond buying.

Secretary Morgenthau announced in an address at Evansville, Ind., earlier in the day that the $15,000,000,000 mark had been passed at 11 A. M. Tonight's total represented a $793,000,000 overnight jump.

Col.KenyonGetsLegion of Merit

WASHINGTON Sept. 30 (AP).—Colonel William A. Kenyon, retiring deputy director of the Army Postal Service, received the Legion of Merit today for his services in planning and establishing the war-time handling of Army mail. The decoration was presented by Major General James A. Ulio, adjutant general. Colonel Kenyon, a native of Charleston, S. C., but for the last twenty years a resident of Ridgewood, N. J., was chief inspector of the Army Postal Service in France during the World War, and chief of the Army Postal Service with the Army of Occupation in Germany. He is being placed on the inactive list of the Army, having passed the statutory age limit, and will return to his former duties in the Post Office Department.

Additional Casualties Announced by Navy

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30 (AP).—The Navy announced today fifty casualties, including twenty-three dead, twelve wounded and fifteen missing, bringing to 30,162 the total of Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard casualties reported to next of kin since Dec. 7, 1941. They include 11,258 dead, 5,305 wounded, 9,456 missing, and 4,143 prisoners of war.

These totals included the revision of 479 previously reported casualties from missing to dead. Names were not disclosed.

The casualties announced today include:

Sees Unfavorable Reaction

"If the practice is pursued consistently, an unfavorable public reaction is certain, and when it comes, the pendulum cannot be arrested on center but will go to a point approaching total elimination."

Declaring the "necessary induction of fathers" would hasten the increasing development of public resentment against unnecessary occupational deferment requests. Hershey said that "management and management alone has the responsibility to use superhuman efforts to see that no deferment is requested for a man capable of rendering miltary service unless the job must be done and can be done by no other person."

The effect of selective service on essential industries, he told the deelgates, "has been exaggerated grossly, repeatedly . . . we got it coming and going."

Cites Aircraft Situation

The aircraft situation on the West Coast, he added, "is the perfect example of selective service taking eight per cent. of the men and receiving ninety per cent. of the blame for the fact that production schedules have not been met in some plants some months."

"Local boards," he said, "can hardly escape a feeling of futility when they see 140,000 workers leave an industry during a period in which the local boards removed 10,000. And those figures are not imaginary and neither is the industry."

Pressure, Lobbying Threaten Deferment Plan, Hershey Says

Declares Industry Makes Boards' Task Difficult By Holding Young Men To Prevent Inconvenience

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Sept. 30—Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, national director of selective service, said today that "by pressures and lobbying some management has threatened public respect and local board respect for the very system of occupational deferment upon which production depends."

Addressing the final session of the American Management Association Conference on Manpower Stabilization, Hershey said:

"It is the considered judgment of hundreds of local boards that industry has made the tasks of local board members extremely difficult by the retention of young men simply because it is more con-

Government Must Quit Business After War, Says Jesse Jones

NEW YORK, Sept. 30 — (AP) Jesse H. Jones, Secretary of Commerce, said tonight that "when the war is over, the government should get out of active industry as soon as it can, without too much unnecessary loss."

"And business will do well," he said in an address before the New York Board of Trade, "to recognize the taxpayers' investments when negotiating for government-owned plants, properties and supplies, and not expect too many bargains."

To indicate the "extent to which government is in business," Mr. Jones said the Reconstruction Finance corporation through its Defense Plant corporation had authorized nine billion dollars to construct, equip, or expand 1,753 plants producing war supplies. The figure, he said, included 534 plants for the manufacture of airplanes, plane engines, and parts.

Priorities For Local People

"Many of our war plants can be converted to the production of peacetime requirements," he said, "and to avoid monopolies and too much concentration, local people should have the first call on such plants. A substantial amount of our excess plant facilities and supplies can very property be used in other countries."

Mr. Jones added that although it should stop participating in active industry after the war, "in many instances the government must continue to have a hand in business."

"It must make investments and take risks where private capital cannot afford to," he said, "just as government had to take the risks and do most of the financing for expansion of our industrial facilities to meet the demand of war."

Better Trade Relations

Declaring that political and military arrangements on an international basis "cannot preserve peace if we have economic warfare," Mr. Jones said:

"The war has emphasized that the nations of the Western hemisphere should develop their trade relations and further cement the ties that now bind them together. In doing this we cannot expect our neighbors to deal with us if we do not attempt to meet and anticipate their needs. We must supply them with what they want—not just what we want to sell them. And we must be prepared to develop markets for them in this country."

Percy C. Magnus, board chairman, presented Mr. Jones with a plaque which bore the inscription, "for years of distinguished public service."

PAPERS REPLY TO ROOSEVELT

Joseph Patterson, McCormick Comment On Marshall Rumor Statement

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Sept. 30—Asked for a statement with respect to President Roosevelt's news conference Tuesday, during which the President quoted from editorials and news stories on contemplated changes in the military high command, Joseph M. Patterson, president of the New York Daily News, said his views were expressed in an editorial printed in today's paper.

The Daily News, under the heading "President vs. Press," said:

"President Roosevelt at his Tuesday press conference attacked what has come to be called the Hearst-Patterson-McCormick press, though there is no connection between the Hearst and Patterson-McCormick papers.

His Suspected Purposes

"The President's purpose, obviously, was double-barreled: (1) To intimidate the Hearst and Patterson-McCormick papers, and through them all the other newspapers and magazines in the United States, into obsequious subservience to his will; (2) to further his ambition for a fourth term. When and if he gets a fourth term he will be our one-man ruler, our despot.

"Mr. Roosevelt's method of belaboring the Hearst and Patterson-McCormick papers was funny and, we thought, inept. He took as the occasion for his attack some rumors printed in these papers about an impending transfer of Chief of Staff George C. Marshall to command of an Allied invasion of western Europe. These rumors, said the President in effect, gave aid and comfort to the enemy.

Effect Of President's Talk

"That, of course, is improbable. It can matter very little to Hitler who is chief of staff in Washington. What matters to him is how many United States troops are in the European war theater and who commands them there. Nor can it matter much to Tojo whether Marshall or anybody else is chief of staff in Washington.

"However, if it does matter, the President's rebroadcast of these rumors through the world-wide amplifier of a Presidential press conference must give the enemy far more aid and comfort than if the President had ignored the rumors. Further, his statement that he could not confirm or deny reports of a Marshall transfer for ten days, ten weeks or ten months is pretty sure to unsettle, we should think, the officers of the general staff.

"Mr. Roosevelt quoted with approval, thereby making them his own utterances, two recent editorials from the New York Herald Tribune, attempting to chide us for alleged divisionist and obstructionist tactics."

McCormick's Comment

Asked for his comment on published reports of the President's conference, Robert R. McCormick, publisher of the Chicago Tribune, said:

"First, the so-called rumors respecting the military high command came out on the floor of the House of Representatives, and therefore presumably became public knowledge.

"Second, the New York Herald Tribune is a foreign propaganda sheet devoted to returning the United States to the status of a foreign colony.

"Third, Mr. Roosevelt is devoting all his powers to trying to destroy the republican form of government."

Annapolis of Merchant Marine Is Dedicated by Roosevelt

Former Chrysler Estate at Great Neck, L. I., Will Quarter 2,670 Cadets.

GREAT NECK, N. Y., Sept. 30—(AP) The Annapolis of the United States Merchant Marine—a $6,900,000 academy built in record time on Kings Point, Long Island, and geared for quick, wartime training of Marine officers—was formally dedicated today.

President Roosevelt, in a message read to 5,000 guests in the academy's flag-decked O'Hara hall, said that "not since enactment by the Congress of the Merchant Marine act of 1936 has there been an event of greater import to America's world commerce — either in maintenance of our wartime lifelines or our future peacetime economy."

"Our shipbuilders have become virtual miracle men," the President said. "They are adding more than five new ships a day to our ocean-going merchant armada. War has proved to the American people that a strong merchant Marine, manned by courageous, capable, well-trained officers and crews, is as necessary to the nation as a powerful Army and Navy.

"Dedication of the United States Merchant Marine academy x x x is a momentous forward stride in the nation's planned program of maritime progress."

A national institution, the academy has a wartime capacity of 2,670 cadets.

Former Chrysler Estate

The main buildings are on an estate formerly owned by Walter P. Chrysler and acquired by the Maritime commission for $100,000. The old Chrysler mansion was converted into the school's administration building.

Officers now complete their training in 18 months, compared to three years in peacetime.

Delivering the dedicatory address, Capt. Edward MacAuley, Maritime commissioner and deputy War Shipping administrator, said "victory is growing closer and the time will come when our running lights will burn bright again x x x. So even as we fight today, we are planning for the days of peace to come."

Capt. MacAuley turned over command of the academy to Capt. J. H. Tomb, US.N., retired.

38 YEARS IN ARMY, COL. LUCAS RETIRES

CAMP EDWARDS, Mass., Sept. 30—(AP) Lt.-Col. John H. Lucas, camp plans and training officer who came up from the ranks, was retired today after more than 38 years of service in the Army.

Col. Lucas, whose retirement was automatic because of his 61 years of age, enlisted in 1901.

He saw service in the Philippine insurrection, the Cuban uprising and in Panama. During World war I, he served in France and Belgium and at the end of that conflict was provost marshal of Belgium with the rank of major.

Upon being mustered out of service at the close of World war I, he reenlisted as a first sergeant, quickly won recognition, and was commissioned a captain in 1920. In 1935 he was raised to the rank of major and retired later in the same year.

He was recalled to active service in 1941 and has served at Camp Edwards since.

Foreign Minister Of Saudi Arabia To Visit Academy

Annapolis, Sept. 30 (AP)—The Amir Faisal, Foreign Minister of Saudi Arabia, and his official party will visit the United States Naval Academy tomorrow, Rear Admiral J. R. Beardall, superintendent, announced today.

Saudi Arabia is composed of several small Near Eastern States. The nation is now a base for Allied war materials flowing into Russia.

Following a luncheon given in honor of the visitors by Admiral Beardall, they will be conducted on a tour of the Naval Academy grounds. A regimental parade in honor of the guests is scheduled to be held on Worden field in the afternoon, ending with the firing of another twenty-one-gun salute.

Included in the Amir's party are the Amir Khalid Shaikh Hafiz Wahba, Minister to Great Britain, and Shaikh Ibrahim Suleiman.

Italian Prisoner Sees Sister, Living In Virginia

Fort Benning, Ga., Sept. 30 (AP). War Prisoner Francesco Terlizzi is the owner of a $100 United States war bond today, thanks to War Department cooperation in reuniting him with a sister he had not seen in twenty years.

The sister, Mrs. Marianna Cacciapaglia, Staunton, Va., saw a news reel of captured Italian soldiers at Staunton theater several weeks ago, thought she recognized her brother, whom she had last seen at their home in Santerimo, Italy.

She wrote the War Department, was informed her brother was a prisoner and, on the same day, received a postcard from him, sent from the Fort Benning internment camp. The army permitted Mrs. Cacciopaglia to visit Terlizzi. Mrs. Cacciapaglia gave him the war bond.

IN ROCKET ATTACK

Miami, Fla., Sept. 30 (A. P.).—The five sergeants were rounding out their 300 hours of combat flying in a raid over Italy Sept. 3—the day of the surrender—when their formation was attacked by Germany's new rocket fighters.

"We figured that was our last mission," they admitted today upon arrival for a rest furlough.

"The rocket shells weighed about thirty-two pounds each, and looked something like our 155-millimeter shells," Tech. Sergt. Robinson B. Berry said. "They were fixed to explode on time or contact, and the fighters fired them into our formation to burst like shrapnel bombs.

"We were a bit surprised at first, but it was all right. The rockets didn't damage our plane, and we fought them off. The pursuit stayed with us more than an hour, and we were starting to get worried when they finally quit."

All five men participated in the famed raid on the Ploesti oil fields.

REFERRING TO DIFFERENCES BETWEEN "TITO" AND MIHAILOVIC, HE SAID HE WAS MORE OPTIMISTIC, AS A RESULT OF THE GENERAL YUGOSLAV OPPOSITION TO THE GERMANS, THAT THE LEADERS OF YUGOSLAV FORCES EVENTUALLY WOULD JOIN UNDER A COMMON BANNER.

THE BERLIN RADIO, IN A FURTHER ACKNOWLEDGEMENT OF YUGOSLAV OPPOSITION IN NORTHERN ITALY, SAID THAT NAZI FORCES MOPPING UP "SLOVENIAN AND COMMUNIST BANDS" IN THE AREA EAST OF GORIZIA, IN NORTHEASTERN ITALY, WERE "PROGRESSING."

LONDON, SEPT. 30-(AP)-HERE IS THE LAST DISPATCH, "ON THE ROAD OF DEATH," WRITTEN BY THE DAILY TELEGRAPH'S WAR CORRESPONDENT, A.B. AUSTIN, WHO WAS KILLED SEPT. 28 WITH THE AMERICAN FIFTH ARMY IN ITALY:

WITH THE FIFTH ARMY, SEPT. 28--ALONG THE "ROAD OF DEATH" WE ARE DRIVING TO THE NAPLES PLAIN.

THE WORST IS OVER. WE HAVE TURNED THE CORNER OUT OF THE STEEPEST MOUNTAINS AND ARE HEADING STRAIGHT FOR NAPLES.

FOR THE PAST FIVE DAYS OF BITTER FIGHTING I HAVE SEEN A MILE ADDED TO THE "ROAD OF DEATH" EACH DAY.

I HAVE DRIVEN SO MANY TIMES UP AND DOWN THIS VALLEY 'ROUND THROUGH THE MOUNTAINS FROM SALERNO--ALWAYS JUST A FRACTION EVERY DAY AS THE INFANTRY STRUGGLED AHEAD--THAT I CAN SEE EVERY UGLY PLACE OF RUIN AND DECAY ON IT WITH MY EYES SHUT.

FOR YEARS TO COME THIS VALLEY WILL BE REMEMBERED AS THE SCENE OF ONE OF THE HARDEST VICTORIES OF THE WAR.

ALL OF US WHO HAVE WRITTEN ABOUT THE FIGHTING HAVE TRIED TO BRING HOME TO THE OUTSIDE WORLD JUST HOW RELENTLESS HAS BEEN THE STRAIN UPON THE ENGLISH INFANTRY WHO HAVE STRETCHED THEIR ENERGY AND THEIR COURAGE AS FAR AS MEN CAN, TO FORCE THEIR WAY OUT OF THESE MOUNTAINS.

BUT THE RESULT OF THEIR FIGHTING AND OF THE GERMAN RESISTANCE IN THE VALLEY ITSELF SHOULD BE KNOWN TOO, FOR THIS IS WHAT HAPPENS IN AN INVASION AND IT IS NOT LONG SINCE WE PREPARED FOR INVASION OF ENGLAND.

THIS IS WHAT MIGHT HAVE HAPPENED TO ANY STRETCH OF ENGLISH COUNTRYSIDE LEADING UP FROM THE SEA.

ALONG EVERY MILE OF LOVELY VALLEY FROM SALERNO AND VIETRI TO CAVA DE TIRRENI AND CARAMELLA AND BEYOND THERE IS NOT A SINGLE HOUSE THAT HAS NOT BEEN HIT BY SHELLFIRE OR BOMBING.

WHEN YOU LOOK DOWN FROM ONE OF ITS MOUNTAIN TOPS YOU SEE NOTHING BUT PEACE. THE FORESTS DROP GRADUALLY DOWN FROM HIGH RIDGES TO

1943

30.24— 8943

VINEYARDS, ORCHARDS AND MAIZE FIELDS.

THE VALLEY BOTTOM LOOKS AS IF IT IS ONE CONTINUOUS LINE OF PINK AND BLUE AND WHITE VILLAS, COTTAGES AND FARMS, SWELLING EVERY SO OFTEN INTO VILLAGES AND TOWNS.

BUT WHEN YOU GO DOWN AMONG THE HOUSES YOU FIND THAT HALF OF THEM ALONG THE ROADSIDE ARE RUBBLE-CHOKED SKELETONS AND THE REST CRACKED OR SHELL-POCKED.

HOUSES ARE NOT THE ONLY RUINS. PASSING ALONG THE "ROAD OF DEATH" THERE IS FIRST THE SMASHED PARAPET OF THE FAMOUS GANTLET BRIDGE AT VIETRI.

A GERMAN TANK LIES TO ONE SIDE, APPARENTLY INTACT, BUT SHATTERED INSIDE BY A HAND GRENADE DROPPED FROM THE SLOPE ABOVE WHICH KILLED ALL ITS CREW.

SEP 31 1943

EVERY FEW YARDS THERE IS SOME NEW SIGN OF DEATH AND DESTRUCTION --A GERMAN CORPSE IN A DITCH BADLY NEEDING BURIAL. FALLEN HORSES SWOLLEN WITH DEATH. SHATTERED FARM CARTS.

A FACTORY CHIMNEY WITH A HOLE NEATLY DRILLED THROUGH IT LIKE THE EYE OF A MONSTROUS NEEDLE.

SHATTERED TELEGRAPH POLES DANGLING TRAILING WIRES. BROKEN WALLS. GRAVES ON HIGH GRASSY SHELVES AND IN DITCHES--GRAVES WHEREVER A GERMAN OR AN ENGLISHMAN HAD FALLEN, AND THERE WAS NO TIME TO DRAG HIM OUT OF THE BATTLE. BODIES THAT WILL NO DOUBT BE COLLECTED BEFORE LONG AND BURIED IN SOME TRIM CEMETERY BY THE MEDITERRANEAN.

CRUMBLED RUINS OF FUTILE ROAD BLOCKS--THE KIND OF CEMENT ROAD BLOCKS IN WHICH WE ONCE PLACED SO MUCH FAITH AT HOME.

BURNT OUT TRUCKS, SHELL CRATERS AND THE RUSTY LITTER OF GERMAN GASOLINE AND WATER CANS.

AND THROUGH IT ALL, UP AND DOWN, EVERY DAY, STIRRING THE RUBBLE DUST INTO WHITE CLOUDS, FLATTENING SHELL CASES STREWN ON THE ROAD, BUMPING IN AND OUT OF SHELL HOLES, RUMBLING ACROSS SAPPERS' BRIDGES SPANNING EXPLODED ARCHES, MOVES THE TRAFFIC OF THE ARMY.

NOW THAT THE TANKS ARE MOVING THROUGH WITH ALL THEIR MAINTENANCE TRAIN, TRAFFIC ALONG THE "ROAD OF DEATH" HAS SWELLED TO A ROAR.

LUCKILY, PAST CAMERELLE THE SINGLE ROAD BRANCHES INTO SEVERAL PARALLEL ROADS SO THAT AT LAST WE WILL HAVE ELBOW ROOM AND THE GERMANS WILL HAVE, TOO, MANY DIFFERENT ROUTES TO MINE OR BLOCK THOROUGHLY. . .

THREADING THEIR WAY TO AND FRO AMONG THIS DEATH AND DESTRUCTION AND PHYSICAL FURY ARE THE ITALIAN PEOPLE. THEY ARE A PATHETIC BACK-GROUND. THEY MOVE AWAY FROM THEIR HOMES, BUT MOVE BACK AS SOON AS THEY CAN.

OLD, GREY MEN WILL GRAVELY SALUTE YOU AS THEY SIT IN THE SUN ON BROKEN CHAIRS AT THE DOORS OF ROOFLESS HOUSES.

CHILDREN RUN AMONG THE RUINS, SWARMS OF CHILDREN, PALE, RAGGED, TOO OFTEN WITH SKIN DISEASES. WHENEVER YOU STOP, SMALL BOYS RUN UP TO YOUR JEEP CHATTERING EXCITEDLY ABOUT THE BOCHE AND BEGGING CIGARETTES.

MOTHERS SIT ON FALLEN BLOCKS OF STONE TO SUCKLE THEIR BABIES. OLD, AILING WOMEN ARE TRUNDLED PAST ON HANDCARTS, WRAPPED IN THEIR BEDCLOTHES UNTIL THEY CAN BE TRUNDLED BACK AGAIN IN SAFETY.

NOW AND THEN SOMEONE IS KILLED OR DIES IN A NORMAL WAY.

ALONG THE "ROAD OF DEATH," GROTESQUE BECAUSE IT IS THE LAST THING YOU EXPECT TO SEE IN A BATTLEFIELD, COMES AN UNDERTAKER'S

1943

SHINING HEARSE, ALL BLACK HANGINGS AND WITH PLUMED HORSES.

THE ONE THING YOU NEVER FIND ALONG THE "ROAD OF DEATH" IS RESENTMENT.

LONDON, SEPT. 30-(AP)-JUST A YEAR AGO TODAY ADOLF HITLER PROMISED THE GERMAN PEOPLE STALINGRAD WOULD BE TAKEN--"YOU MAY BE SURE OF THAT."

THIS SPEECH, THE "NAZIS' NIGHTMARE" NOW WAS BROADCAST TONIGHT BY THE BBC IN GERMAN TO AXIS-OCCUPIED EUROPE.

THE DIFFERENCE IN THE POSITION OF THE GERMANS THEN AND NOW IS SO STRIKING THAT THE BBC MADE FEW INTERJECTIONS IN THE REBROADCASTING OF HITLER'S OWN WORDS.

HITLER'S SPEECH STARTED IN AN UNUSUALLY FACETIOUS MOOD. HE COMPARED THE "MODEST GERMAN SUCCESSES" WITH THE BRITISH "VICTORIES" OF NORWAY AND DUNKERQUE, AND WENT ON TO SAY:

"WHEN WE OCCUPY THE UKRAINE, THE GREATEST GRANARY IN THE WORLD, AND WHEN WE GAIN POSSESSION OF THE DONETS BASIN AND ITS GOAL--IT'S ALL A MERE NOTHING."

HERE THE BRITISH ANNOUNCER INTERPOLATED: "HE WAS MORE RIGHT THAN HE KNEW."

SINCE THIS SPEECH, WHICH BACKFIRED WITH THE GERMAN ARMY DEFEAT AT STALINGRAD, HITLER HAS MADE ONLY TWO BROADCASTS TO THE GERMAN PEOPLE--ON NOV. 8, 1942 AT MUNICH WHEN HE WARNED "WE KNOW THE FATE THAT AWAITS US IF WE LOSE," AND LAST SEPT. 10, AFTER THE SURRENDER OF ITALY, WHEN HE DENOUNCED THE "TREACHERY" OF PREMIER BADOGLIO.

AT THIS UNUSUAL "MUNICIPAL" MEETING IN WAR-TIME LONDON WERE MAYOR ROBERT E.RILEY AND LT.COL.JOSEPH K.CARSON, MAYOR FOR 12 YEARS, WHO IS NOW WITH THE ARMY ENGINEERS HERE.

RILEY WAS COMMISSIONER OF FINANCE AND COUNCIL PRESIDENT IN CARSON'S ADMINISTRATION AND SUCCEEDED HIM AS MAYOR FOUR YEARS AGO.

RILEY IS A REPUBLICAN, CARSON A DEMOCRAT. BUT THEY EXPLAINED THAT PORTLAND HAS A NON-PARTISAN GOVERNMENT.

THEY EXTOLLED "THE CLEAN GOVERNMENT AND CLEAN STREETS" AND OTHER VIRTUES OF THEIR GREAT NORTHWEST WARSHIP-BUILDING CITY, WHICH REDUCED ITS INDEBTEDNESS MORE THAN 50 PER CENT DURING THEIR ADMINISTRATIONS.

"YES, SHE'S QUITE A CITY," DECLARED CARSON, "AND THE PEOPLE KNOW HOW EVERY NICKEL IS SPENT."

AFTER REFRESHING CARSON WITH THE LATEST MUNICIPAL NEWS, RILEY, WHO ARRIVED A FEW DAYS AGO, WENT ON TO SAY "LONDON, LIKE PORTLAND, IS A REMARKABLY CLEAN CITY."

HERE AT THE INVITATION OF THE MINISTRY OF INFORMATION, RILEY WILL SPEND TWO MONTHS VISITING ENGLAND, SCOTLAND, IRELAND AND WALES--GIVING THE INHABITANTS A PICTURE OF WAR TIME LIFE IN AMERICA AND GAINING THEIR REACTIONS TO TAKE BACK HOME.

STOCKHOLM, SEPT. 30-(AP)-ATTEMPTS BY SOME GERMAN SOLDIERS TO ORGANIZE MUTINY AMONG NAZI TROOPS GARRISONED IN DENMARK WERE DISCLOSED TONIGHT.

THE FREE DANISH PRESS SERVICE HERE REPORTED THAT TWO NAZI SOLDIERS AWAITING EXECUTION ON MUTINY CHARGES HAD ESCAPED FROM MILITARY PRISON.

THE SOLDIERS OVERPOWERED A GUARD AND FLED FROM THE PRISON, AT HJOERRING IN THE NORTHERN PART OF JUTLAND WHERE STRONG NAZI FORCES ARE GUARDING AGAINST A POSSIBLE ALLIED INVASION THERE, IT WAS SAID.

THE PRESS SERVICE SAID THE ESCAPED SOLDIERS HAD BEEN COURT-MARTIALLED FOR TRYING TO INDUCE OTHER GERMAN SOLDIERS TO REVOLT.

THE STORY ADDED THAT THE DANISH POLICE HAD REFUSED A GERMAN REQUEST FOR AID IN THE SEARCH FOR THE TWO MEN.

THE GERMANS HAVE ACKNOWLEDGED THAT POOR DISCIPLINE AMONG THEIR TROOPS WAS RESPONSIBLE FOR INCIDENTS WHICH PROVOKED THE DANES TO REBEL OPENLY AGAINST NAZI OCCUPATION TROOPS IN AUGUST. TO HALT SUCH REBELLION FROM REPEATING, THE GERMANS IMPOSED THEIR MILITARY DICTATORSHIP.

GERMAN SOLDIERS IN DENMARK INCLUDE MANY VETERANS OF THE RUSSIAN FRONT WHO HAD BEEN TRANSFERRED BECAUSE THE BRUTE FEROCITY OF THE EASTERN FRONT WARFARE HAD INJURED THEIR EFFICIENCY.

A COMPILATION OF GERMAN ANNOUNCEMENTS SINCE SEPT. 2 SHOWED THAT 12 GERMAN SOLDIERS HAVE BEEN EXECUTED FOR DEFEATISM, 16 FOR BLACK MARKET ACTIVITIES AND FRAUD AGAINST THE REICH.

MADRID, SEPT. 30-(AP)-A GERMAN WAR CORRESPONDENT, IN ONE OF THE FIRST DETAILED ACCOUNT OF FIGHTING BETWEEN THE GERMANS AND BANDS OF SLOVENE AND CROAT PARTISANS AND ITALIANS, SAID TODAY THE WHOLE CITY OF GORIZIA, WITH ITS NETWORK OF RAILWAY AND HIGHWAY COMMUNICATIONS, HAD BEEN DESTROYED BY ARTILLERY FIRE.

A DISPATCH FROM BERLIN SAID PARTISANS ATTACKED THE GERMAN-HELD CITY FROM BOTH NORTH AND SOUTH SEPT. 22. AFTER DAYS OF HARD FIGHTING ONLY THE SOUTHERN PART OF THE CITY REMAINED IN GERMAN HANDS. THE COMMANDER RADIOED FOR HELP AND A STRONG FORCE OF TROOPS WAS RUSHED IN.

(A LONDON RECORDING OF A BERLIN BROADCAST SAID A BRITISH ARMY OFFICER, WHOM THE GERMANS CALLED "THE NOTORIOUS MAJOR WILLIAM JONES," WAS ONE OF THE LEADERS OF THE PARTISANS.)

DESPITE STRONG GERMAN FORCES, "BARRICADES RAISED IN THE STREETS, DESTROYED BRIDGES, DEMOLISHED RAIL LINES AND CLEVERLY SITUATED CENTERS OF RESISTANCE DELAYED THE GERMAN ADVANCE," THE CORRESPONDENT WROTE.

HE ALSO COMPLAINED THAT THE INSURGENT FORCES WOULD NOT STAND AND GIVE BATTLE, EVEN WHEN SURROUNDED BUT INSTEAD "DISAPPEARED AT THE SIGHT OF GERMAN SOLDIERS."

THE SECOND DAY AFTER THE ARRIVAL OF REINFORCEMENTS, THE GERMANS SUCCEEDED IN BREAKING RESISTANCE, THE CORRESPONDENT SAID. HE DECLARED THE FIGHTING "COST THE ENEMY MORE THAN 1,000 DEAD."

NO ESTIMATE WAS GIVEN OF GERMAN CASUALTIES BEYOND THE STATEMENT THAT THEY WERE "INSIGNIFICANT."

ACCORDING TO THE GERMAN ACCOUNT THIS WAS THE END OF THE BATTLE, BUT LATEST REPORTS FROM THE REGION RECEIVED IN MADRID INDICATED THE GERMANS HAD BEEN REINFORCED AGAIN, FOLLOWING ANOTHER HEAVY ATTACK ON GORIZIA FROM THE NORTH.

THE WHOLE AREA BETWEEN GORIZIA AND LJUBLJINA, ACCORDING TO THESE REPORTS, IS IN THE UNCONTESTED CONTROL OF PARTISANS WHO ARE KEEPING THE RAILWAY BETWEEN THE TWO TOWNS OUT OF SERVICE. THE ONLY OTHER GERMAN ROUTE INTO THE BALKANS FROM ITALY AND THE BRENNER PASS WAS SAID TO BE CUT AT SUSAK.

A MILITARY SPOKESMAN ANNOUNCED THAT BRITISH DIVISIONS OF THE FIFTH ARMY SUFFERED 5,211 CASUALTIES FROM SEPT. 9, THE BEGINNING OF THE BATTLE OF SALERNO, TO SEPT. 20. THIS WAS A HIGH PROPORTION OF CASUALTIES CONSIDERING THE NUMBER OF TROOPS INVOLVED.

THE CAPTURE OF TORRE ANNUNZIATA WOULD PLACE THE FIFTH ARMY NINE MILES FROM NAPLES' CITY LIMITS ALONG THE FLAT PLAIN BORDERING THE GULF.

EVEN IF THE GERMANS PLANNED A TEMPORARY STAND ON THE WESTERN SLOPE OF VESUVIUS, IT WAS PROBABLE THAT THE ENTRY INTO NAPLES WOULD BE WITHIN A DAY OR TWO.

IN CAPTURING MERCATO SAN SEVERINO THE ALLIES CONTINUED TO DEVELOP THEIR FLANKING MOVEMENT AGAINST THE CITY. THE TOWN IS EIGHT MILES NORTHEAST OF NOCERA, CAPTURE OF WHICH WAS ANNOUNCED YESTERDAY, AND ABOUT 12 MILES SOUTHWEST OF AVELLINO, THE COMMUNICATIONS CENTER EAST OF NAPLES.

NAPLES' GREAT HARBOR IS BIG ENOUGH TO ACCOMMODATE A TREMENDOUS MARSHALLING OF FORCE AND MAY BECOME THE MAIN FLEET, SUPPLY AND GROUND FORCE BASE FOR THE ITALIAN CAMPAIGN, AS FOGGIA MAY BECOME THE MAIN AIR BASE FOR A DRIVE UP THE PENINSULA OR INTO THE BALKANS.

MEANWHILE, THE SLOW PRESSURE AGAINST THE GERMANS PROMISED TO GIVE TO THE ALLIES SOON THE SUBSTANTIAL ISLAND BASE OF CORSICA. FROM THERE AND FROM SARDINIA THEY CAN THREATEN THE SEAWARD FLANK OF THE ENEMY.

GEN.MONTGOMERY'S THRUST NORTHWARD ALONG THE ADRIATIC ALSO POISED A FLANKING THREAT TO THE GERMANS' NEXT POSSIBLE DEFENSE POSITION ALONG THE VOLTURNO RIVER, SOME 20 MILES NORTH OF NAPLES.

THE EIGHTH ARMY WAS NOT ENCOUNTERING ANY RESISTANCE WORTHY OF THE NAME AND WAS EXPANDING RAPIDLY IN THE PLAIN OF FOGGIA WHICH WAS NOW ALMOST ENTIRELY UNDER ALLIED DOMINATION.

ALGIERS, SEPT. 30-(AP)-SENATOR PAUL GIACOBBI, CORSICA RADICAL PARTY MEMBER, SAID TODAY THAT CORSICAN RESISTANCE MOVEMENTS JOINED HANDS AT THE SUGGESTION OF COMMUNISTS AND ALGIERS AGENTS IN TZOCKX TIME TO TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THE ITALIAN COLLAPSE.

GIACOBBI, WHO HAS JUST ARRIVED FROM THE ISLAND, SAID THE FREE FRENCH WERE INSPIRED FROM LONDON BY COMMUNISTS WHO BEGAN ANTI-AXIS ACTIVITIES FOLLOWING THE INVASION OF RUSSIA. FINAL UNION WAS ACHIEVED IN MAY, 1943, HE SAID.

SEP 31 1943

THE INITIAL LIAISON WITH THE ALLIES TO ARRANGE FOR ARMING THE PATRIOTS WAS DELAYED WHEN A PLANE CARRYING A BRITISH AGENT CRASHED ON THE ISLAND IN SEPTEMBER, 1941. THE AGENT WAS ARRESTED AND HIS PAPERS CONFISCATED.

WITH THE ALLIED LANDINGSXX IN NORTH AFRICA, CONTACT WAS QUICKLY AND EASILY ESTABLISHED AND ARMS BEGAN FLOWING IN DESPITE THE INTENSE SURVEILLANCE OF MORE THAN 2,000 ITALIAN POLICE AND GERMAN DETECTIVES. THE ITALIANS, WHO FIRST ATTEMPTED TO WIN THE XXX POPULATION QUICKLY CHANGED THEIR POLICY AND EVENTUALLY SHOT 12 PERSONS AND SETENCED 60 MORE TO LONG TERMS.

GIACOBBI SAID HE HEADED CORSICAX'S FIRST RESISTANCE MOVEMENT IN 1940 FOLLOWING THE ARMISTICE. HE SPENT FOUR MONTHS IN JAIL AND THEN HID THREE MONTHS IN LONELY MOUNTAINS AFTER ESCAPING.

ASKED IF HE EXPECTED TO HAVE A MEETING SOON WITH GEN.DRAJA MIHAILOVIC, LEADER OF YUGOSLAV PATRIOT FORCES NOW BATTLING GERMAN TROOPS, THE KING SAID "I DON'T KNOW. IT IS VERY DIFFICULT TO GET ANYONE OUT OF THERE."

THE KING ACKNOWLEDGED DIFFERENCES AMONG VARIOUS GROUPS WITHIN YUGOSLAVIA, BUT SAID HIS GOVERNMENT WAS SEEKING A SOLUTION AND WAS GIVING "EQUAL SUPPORT TO EVERYONE FIGHTING THE ENEMY."

REGARDING YUGOSLAVIA'S RELATIONS WITH RUSSIA, HE SAID THEY ARE "CORDIAL AT THE MOMENT AND I HOPE WE SHALL BE ON MUCH BETTER TERMS."

THE PRESENT GOVERNMENT, PETER SAID, IS "ONLY TEMPORARY UNTIL WE RETURN TO YUGOSLAVIA, WHEN WE WILL GIVE THE PEOPLE A CHANCE TO CHOOSE THEIR OWN GOVERNMENT."

ASKED IF PUNISHMENT WAS PLANNED FOR MEMBERS OF THE FORMER GOVERNMENT WHO SOLD OUT TO GERMANY, HE SAID "YOU CAN'T HAVE PUNISHMENT WITHOUT TRIALS, BUT WE EXPECT THERE WILL BE TRIALS."

COMMENTING ON HIS TRIP TO THE UNITED STATES A YEAR AGO, PETER SAID HE "HAD A GRAND TIME AND I WAS VERY MUCH IMPRESSED. THERE ARE LOTS OF THINGS IN AMERICA WE'D VERY MUCH LIKE TO HAVE, AND MANY THINGS THERE COULD BE ADAPTED TO OUR COUNTRY."

IN A PREPARED STATEMENT HE REFERRED TO PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL AS "ONE OF THE GREATEST MEN IN HISTORY, OF WHOM NOT ONLY THE BRITISH PEOPLE ARE PROUD BUT ALSO ALL OF THE UNITED NATIONS."

THE RESULTANT FLAMES AFTER THE STORAGE DEPOT WAS HIT COULD BE SEEN FOR 60 MILES. A LARGE FUEL DUMP AND SEVERAL SUPPLY DUMPS ALSO WERE DESTROYED.

NEARER THE GROUND FIGHTING AT FINSCHHAFEN, LIBERATORS CAUSED LANDSLIDE OBSTRUCTIONS WITH 1,000-POUND BOMBS ON THE COASTAL ROAD SOUTH OF MADANG.

THE FINSCHHAFEN GARRISON, IN ADDITION TO FALLING BACK FROM SOME PREPARED POSITIONS SCATTERED THROUGH PLANTATION AND JUNGLE ON THE NORTHERN OUTSKIRTS OF THE MISSIONARY VILLAGE, ALSO WERE MENACED BY A FORCE WHICH CROSSED THE ILLEBE CREEK BEHIND THE BASE AND BY A FORCE MOVING ALONG THE COAST FROM LAE. THE DEFENDERS WERE DIVE-BOMBED AND SHELLED BY ARTILLERY.

IN THE SOLOMONS, 35 LIBERATORS AND LIGHTNINGS HIT JAPAN'S BIG KAHILI AIRBASE ON BOUGAINVILLE WITH 600 BOMBS AFTER WHICH NEARLY 100 TORPEDO AND DIVEBOMBERS WORKED OVER NEARBY GUN POSITIONS. ONE OF 30 ZEROS WHICH ATTACKED THE LIBERATORS WAS DOWNED AND 20 CORSAIRS AND HELLCATS GOT A SECOND IN HIGH ALTITUDE FIGHTS WITH 30 MORE ZEROS. ONE UNITED STATES PLANE CRASH-LANDED BUT THE PILOT WAS SAVED.

DESPITE REPEATED ATTACKS, THE JAPANESE ARE MANAGING TO BRING UP MORE ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUNS TO KEEP KAHILI OPERATING.

(WX)-GUADALCANAL-(DELAYED)-ALTHOUGH KNOCKED ACROSS THE DECK AND INJURED BY A FALLING 12-TON BEAM, MARINE CAPTAIN WILLIAM C. ROBERTS, OF 501 TWENTY-SECOND AVENUE, SAN FRANCISCO, THE SON OF A BANKER, PROBABLY SAVED THE LIVES OF SEVERAL BADLY WOUNDED MEN BY TYING LIFE JACKETS ON THEM AND LOWERING THEM OVER THE SIDE OF THE TORPEDOED AND SINKING USS JOHN PENN.

THE ACTION WAS DESCRIBED BY MARINE SERGEANT WILLIAM F.STODDARD, JR., OF 136 QUINCY ROAD, RIVERSIDE,ILLS., WHILE STODDARD WAS LINED UP ON THE BEACH WITH THE OTHER SURVIVORS.

THESE TORPEDOED SURVIVORS, CLOTHED IN PAJAMAS AND COVER-ALLS GIVEN THEM BY NAVY HOSPITAL CORPSMEN, WERE ANSWERING A ROLL CALL TO CHECK THE MISSING.

"A JAP PLANE PUT HER FISH RIGHT IN OUR ENGINE ROOM," RELATED STODDARD. "THE BOW BEGAN GOING UNDER ALMOST IMMEDIATELY, AND THE ENTIRE SHIP WAS OUT OF SIGHT IN LESS THAN 20 MINUTES.

"CAPTAIN ROBERTS WAS INJURED WHEN THE EXPLOSION OCCURRED. HE WAS INJURED BY A 12-TON BEAM THAT INSTANTLY KILLED TWO MEN STANDING RIGHT NEXT TO HIM. HE PICKED HIMSELF UP, BLEEDING, AND RIGHT AWAY BEGAN TO HELP THE OTHER WOUNDED LYING AROUND THE DECK.

"HE TIED LIFE JACKETS AROUND THE UNCONSCIOUS AND LOWERED THEM TO THE WATER, HOPING THE RESCUE BOATS WOULD PICK THEM UP. THE BOW WAS THE LAST TO GO UNDER, AND WHEN I LEFT THE SHIP HE WAS STILL

1943

UP THERE HELPING MEN TO GET OFF BEFORE THE WHOLE THING WENT DOWN."

EVEN WHILE HE WAS RELATING THE STORY ANOTHER ALARM SOUNDED AND OUR INTERVIEW HAD TO BE FINISHED IN A FOXHOLE.

"IT WAS AN ALL-NAVY CREW," HE CONTINUED, "EXCEPT CAPTAIN ROBERTS AND MYSELF, THE ONLY MARINES PERMANENTLY ATTACHED TO THE SHIP.

"EVER SINCE I GOT ASHORE I'VE BEEN LOOKING FOR HIM. I WAS AFRAID HE WENT DOWN WITH THE SHIP, BUT I FINALLY LOCATED HIM JUST A LITTLE WHILE AGO. HE'S AT ONE OF THE HOSPITALS WITH A BAD RIGHT SHOULDER AND A COUPLE OF BURNS, BUT HE SAYS HE'S OKAY AND SHOULD BE OUT WITHIN A WEEK."

THE TORPEDOING WAS NOT SERGEANT STODDARD'S FIRST CONTACT WITH THE JAPS. HE IS A GUADALCANAL VETERAN WHO LANDED WITH THE FIRST INVASION TROOPS AUGUST 7,1942. AFTER TWO MONTHS UNDER FIRE HE WAS TRANSFERRED TO SHIP DUTY, AND SINCE THEN HAS BEEN SERVING IN AND OUT OF SOLOMON WATERS.

HIS MOTHER AND FATHER LIVE AT 136 QUINCY ROAD, RIVERSIDE,ILLS.

CAPTAIN ROBERTS, WHO JOINED THE MARINE CORPS SHORTLY AFTER HIS GRADUATION FROM THE UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA IN 1940, IS ALSO A SEASONED GUADALCANAL CAMPAIGNER. HE SERVED MOST OF LAST WINTER WITH COLONEL CARLSON'S RAIDERS IN THE SOLOMONS, AND THEN WAS TRANSFERRED TO SEA DUTY IN THIS SAME AREA. HE WAS TRANSPORT QUARTERMASTER OF HIS SHIP BEFORE SHE SANK.

HE IS THE SON OF MR.AND MRS.W.R.ROBERTS, 501 22ND AVE., SAN FRANCISCO. HIS FATHER IS A VICE-PRESIDENT OF THE CROCKER FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF SAN FRANCISCO.

NEW YORK, SEPT. 30-(AP)-THE NEW YORK TIMES SAYS IN A LONDON DISPATCH IT WAS LEARNED TONIGHT THAT GEN. GEORGE C. MARSHALL, U.S. ARMY CHIEF OF STAFF, WOULD BECOME COMMANDER IN CHIEF OF THE ALLIED FORCES IN THE BRITISH ISLES, AND WOULD ESTABLISH HEADQUARTERS IN LONDON SOON TO DIRECT THE ALLIED INVASION OF THE CONTINENT FROM THE WEST.

"IT IS MAINTAINED IN HIGH QUARTERS HERE (LONDON)," SAYS THE DISPATCH, "THAT GEN. MARSHALL'S COMMAND WILL DEAL SOLELY WITH THE INVASION OF THE CONTINENT FROM THE WEST AND WILL NOT INCLUDE ALLIED COMMANDS IN OTHER THEATERS OF OPERATION."

THE ARTICLE SAYS THAT MARSHALL WILL DIRECT "ALL FORCES WHICH ACTUALLY ATTACK EUROPE IN THE WEST REGARDLESS OF WHERE THEY COME FROM," AND EXPLAINS THAT THE SOURCE OF THE INFORMATION INDICATED THAT MARSHALL WOULD NOT SUPERSEDE GEN. DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER, "WHO WILL CONTINUE TO ACT AS COMMANDER IN CHIEF OF THE ALLIED FORCES UNTIL GEN. MARSHALL'S ARMIES FROM THE WEST MEET THE ARMIES FROM THE SOUTH AND ESTABLISH ONE CONTINUOUS FRONT AGAINST THE REICH."

THEN, THE DISPATCH CONTINUES, "IT IS UNDERSTOOD THAT GEN. MARSHALL WILL ASSUME SUPREME COMMAND OF ALL ALLIED FORCES ON THE CONTINENT -- A COMMAND WHICH WOULD BE FAR GREATER THAN THAT HELD BY GEN. JOHN J. PERSHING, WITH WHOM HE SERVED IN THE FIRST WORLD WAR."

SW--TIMES PERMISH FROM MCNEIL---12M

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE
ASSOCIATED PRESS WAR ANALYST

THE BALKAN THORN IS BEING PRESSED STEADILY AND DANGEROUSLY DEEPER INTO FUEHRER HITLER'S SIDE BY THE BUSINESS-LIKE PROGRESS OF THE ALLIES IN THE CONQUEST OF ITALY, AS MARKED TODAY BY THE REPORTED INVESTMENT OF THE STRATEGIC PORT OF NAPLES.

ONE OF HITLER'S CHIEF REASONS FOR DEFENDING ITALY IS TO PROTECT HIS HOLD ON THE EXPLOSIVE BALKANS, JUST ACROSS THE ADRIATIC. EACH DAY OF SUCCESS ON THE ITALIAN PENINSULA ADDS TO THE ALLIED ABILITY TO RAKE THE BALKANS FROM THE AIR, AND IT ALSO IS BOUND TO INCREASE GERMAN FEARS OF INVASION. THE SITUATION IN THIS COCKPIT OF SOUTH-EASTERN EUROPE IS INDEED A THORN IN HITLER'S SIDE, FOR IT IS A TERRIBLE MENACE TO THE RIGHT FLANK OF HIS BADLY MANHANDLED BATTLE-FRONT IN RUSIA.

SEP 31 1943

THE FUEHRER'S FEARS OF INVASION OF THE BALKANS DOESN'T NECESSARILY MEAN THAT THE ALLIES HAVE DECIDED ON SUCH AN OPERATION. THEY ARE IN THE ENVIABLE POSITION OF BEING UNDER NO PRESSURE AT THIS TIME TO UNDERTAKE IT, WHEREAS THE UNHAPPY NAZI CHIEF IS COMPELLED TO MAINTAIN AN ARMY IN THAT THEATER, TO GUARD AGAINST INVASION AND TO KEEP THE LID ON THE UNPREDICTABLE BALKAN PEOPLES.

NOT ONLY ARE ALL HIS SMALL SATELLITES--BULGARIA, RUMANIA AND HUNGARY--TRYING TO BREAK AWAY FROM HIM, BUT THE OCCUPIED COUNTRIES ARE SMITING HIM HIP AND THIGH. TODAY, FOR INSTANCE, A PATRIOT COMMUNIQUE FROM YUGOSLAVIA RECORDS THAT GUERRILLA TROOPS HAVE FORCED THE GERMANS TO RETREAT AT MANY PLACES IN THE NORTHEASTERN PART OF THE COUNTRY. THERE IS HEAVY FIGHTING ON THE DALMATIAN COAST.

THUS ALL THE BALKANS, BOTH FRIEND AND FOE, ARE SERVING THE ALLIED CAUSE WELL, EITHER BY DESIGN OR BY CIRCUMSTANCE. ACTUALLY ALL THE UNITED NATIONS NEED DO TO KEEP THE POT BOILING IS TO CONTINUE TO SUPPORT THEIR FRIENDS WITH ALL AID SHORT OF INVASION, MEANTIME TOSSING BOMBS AND MORAL FERMENT AMONG THE LITTLE AXIS STATES. THE BALKANS WILL DO THE REST THEMSELVES, UNTIL SUCH TIME AS EITHER RUSSIA OR THE ANGLO-AMERICAN ALLIES CAN SEND ARMIES INTO THE PENINSULA.

HITLER WOULD BE CRAZY IF HE DIDN'T TRY TO SAFEGUARD HIMSELF AGAINST A POSSIBLE INVASION OF THE BALKANS. IT IS CLEAR THAT THE ALLIED HIGH COMMAND HAS CAREFULLY CONSIDERED THE ADVISABILITY OF STRIKING INTO THIS THEATER, THOUGH IT IS FAR FROM CLEAR WHAT CONCLUSION HAS BEEN REACHED. IT MAY EASILY BE THAT FINAL DECISION OF THIS VERY BIG QUESTION IS STILL ON THE TABLE AS UNFINISHED BUSINESS, SINCE THE POSITION IN THIS WAR ZONE IS SO MERCURIAL THAT BIG CHANGES COULD HAPPEN OVERNIGHT. THAT CIRCUMSTANCE IS, OF COURSE, ONE OF HITLER'S BIGGEST PAINS.

CERTAINLY IN WEIGHING THE MATTER THE ALLIES HAVE FOUND THINGS TO ENCOURAGE AT LEAST A POSTPONEMENT OF SUCH AN AMBITIOUS UNDERTAKING. ONE OF THESE IS THAT WE STILL HAVE A BIG JOB ON HAND WITH THE GERMANS IN ITALY. THE BALKAN ADVENTURE WOULD HARDLY SEEM FEASIBLE UNTIL WE HAVE DEPRIVED THE NAZIS OF ITALY AS A BASE AND HAVE SECURED THIS VITAL AREA FOR OURSELVES. THE QUESTION OF A SUITABLE INVASION BASE, BY THE WAY, IS A BIG ONE. ITALY BY ITSELF ISN'T IDEAL, AND TURKEY STILL MAINTAINS HER NEUTRALITY.

THERE ARE TWO OTHER EVEN MORE COGENT REASONS FOR CAUTION IN INVADING THE BALKANS. ONE IS THAT THIS OPERATION WOULD DIVERT ALLIED STRENGTH FROM THE PRIME OBJECTIVE, THAT IS, THE INVASION OF WESTERN EUROPE. UPON THAT DEPENDS ANY EARLY TERMINATION OF THE WAR--BARRING A GERMAN INTERNAL COLLAPSE UPON WHICH RELIANCE SHOULDN'T BE PLACED. THE SECOND REASON IS POLITICAL--THE RUSSIANS CONSIDER THE BALKANS THEIR SPHERE OF INFLUENCE AND DON'T WANT THE ALLIES TO INTERFERE.
